Tobacco Contract Forces Driving Toward Close Of Whirlwind Campaign Here

ONLY TWO MEN HAVE REFUSED TO SIGN BLANKS

Farm Agent Arnold Wires Head of Agricultural Adjustment Corporation of Progress Campaign Here; Winterville Campaign Goes Over the Top One Hundred Per Cent Strong

Driving toward a close of the whirlwind campaign, field corps engaged in the signing of tobacco growers for reduction of acreage during the next two years, today were one step from the hundred per cent mark.

Figures released from the office of E. F. Arnold, director of the Pitt County Farm Department, today at noon showed the county was above the 99 per cent mark and almost ready to declare the sign-up complete and the campaign at an end.

On the basis of this information, Mr. Arnold wired J. B. Huston, director of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, giving complete information concerning the progress of the drive in this county, and declared that only two farmers contracted by the field forces had actually refused to sign the contracts for curtailment of acreage in 1934-35 for which the government has promised an advance in the price situation.

The two growers who refused to sign were in Carolina and Beaver Dam Townships, and they were expected to join the ranks and make the sign-up complete within the next several hours.

The message to Mr. Huston follows: "Signed contracts in the office 2-756 for 46,123 acres. One hundred land bank farms under blanket contract with estimate of two thousand acres. Estimate forty-four contracts in mail and hands of workers with four hundred acres. Only two farmers contacted have refused to sign. Their total acreage will not exceed fifty. Estimate less than 25 growers not signed."

Yesterday with only one grower remaining unsigned, Carolina Township had grabbed the lead in the whirlwind sign-up race, but today she had relinquished this honor to Winterville where it was said every tobacco grower of the township had put his signature on the dotted line and thereby told the government he was one hundred per cent behind its efforts to bring about improved price conditions.

COURT DROPS INJUNCTION IN FLURENE CASE

W. H. Bradsher Loses Fight to Restrain Action of New Company Directors

An injunction protesting the legality of the reorganization of the Flurene Chemical Company, an organization formed here sometime ago to distribute drug products bearing that name, was dissolved in a hearing before Judge J. Paul Frizzelle here this week.

The action was instituted by W. H. Bradsher, former president of the concern, September 2, and the restraining order was issued by Judge Frizzelle with the hearing of the case being set for the first of this week.

The court ruled against Bradsher on the grounds that he actually participated in what his complaint alleged to have been an "unlawful" meeting of stockholders for the reorganization of the affairs of the concern.

In obtaining the injunction Bradsher was said to have complained against a meeting of the stockholders of the Flurene Chemical Company held on August 24. He contended the meeting was held upon notice to consider affairs of the corporation and that at the meeting it developed the real purpose was to reorganize the corporation.

In view of the fact that notice of reorganization had not been given, it was held the meeting to be illegal and that the designated directors were not lawfully directors.

NEW THREAT OF DISORDER FACES CUBA

Americans Prepare To Flee as Unrest Becomes More Accentuated on Island

Havana, Cuba, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Many Americans in Cuba prepared for emergencies today as they watched with growing concern the new threat of strike moves to train boys as soldiers and the failure of 500 officers to make peace with the government.

At least a score of Americans were under military protection after labor trouble at the American-owned Mangese mines had endangered their lives. Soldiers had found them barricaded in their homes fearing attacks by workers.

Across the bay from Santiago de Cuba in the small Cape Rente settlement a number of Americans gathered for safety after leaving their homes in the Orienta province because of unsettled labor conditions.

Santiago awaited arrival of the American warships as strikes that have tied up sugar mills became more intense.

In Cardenas, on the north coast, American residents packed their baggage so they could board an American coast guard ship if violence should result from the unrest among negroes reported angered because they had not been given help along with other storm victims.

Striking employees of the railway at Camaguey, in mid-Cuba, demanded that 1930 wage levels be restored; after having been refused, picketed highways to prevent company officials, including two Americans, from leaving the city.

The United States destroyer J. Fred Tabbutt entered the Santiago harbor from Manzanilla to relieve the Sturtevant, which went to Camera to refuel.

Three training camps have been established to train 2,000 students, many in their teens.

NEW CODE IS PREPARED FOR COAL MINERS

Writing of Another Agreement Now Under Way at Washington City

Washington, Sept. 13.—(AP)—A new Recovery code for the bituminous coal industry was being written today at NRA headquarters.

Arthur, summoned to conference tables included administration experts, representatives of operators from all major producing fields and leaders of the United Mine Workers of America.

Hugh Johnson was to take a hand as knotted issues arose. Spurring all groups toward the goal of completing the final code this week were reports of growing labor disturbances in western Pennsylvania coal fields. But deputy administrator Kenneth M. Simpson declared to forecast a definite time for taking the charter to the White House.

Late News Flashes From Over World

Postpone Leaf Market Openings.

Durham, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The of a sales committee of the U. S. Tobacco Association today unanimously voted to postpone opening of auction sales in the middle and old belt and other belts where sales have not started, by as many sales days as the South Carolina and new bright belt markets stay closed.

The South Carolina and new bright belts are now closed under proclamation of Governor Blackwood of South Carolina and Governor Ehringhaus of North Carolina. It has been indicated they will be reopened Monday or Tuesday.

The middle belt markets are scheduled to open Sept. 19 and those in the old belt Sept. 26. If the South Carolina and new belt markets reopen Monday the middle belt will begin Oct. 3 and the old Oct. 10.

Markets May Open Monday

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 13.—(AP)—State College authorities said today that 14,850 contracts pledging reduction covering 161,168 acres of planted tobacco this year had been signed by farmers to last night and Governor Ehringhaus would call for a re-opening of eastern markets Monday or Tuesday.

START FIGHT ON FEVER HERE

Health Department Warns Against Spread of Scarlet Fever and Diphtheria

By reason of a pronounced increase in scarlet fever and diphtheria the last few years, the Pitt County Health Department today issued a warning against spread of the diseases this year.

Records show the diseases have shown a tendency to spread at this season of the year, and Dr. R. S. McGeachy, director of the department, in a statement today, called on the public to observe the quarantine law and co-operate with public health workers in holding the diseases to a minimum.

A check of records, Dr. McGeachy reported, shows there were more than twice as many cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria reported from September 1 to December 31 than were from January 1 to August 31 of the same years.

In view of the fact that scarlet fever is a "very contagious" disease, the health director called attention of the public to the quarantine law and urged the isolation of such diseases immediately upon their discovery.

"Parents should have all children under six years of age immunized against diphtheria and older children subject to sore throat should begin tests to see whether or not they are immune," Dr. McGeachy said.

The early symptoms of diphtheria and scarlet fever, he pointed out, are very similar, and early treatment is very important in checking development of the diseases.

TOBACCO CUT DRIVE NEARS FINAL STAGE

Whirlwind Campaign In Tobacco-Growing States Today For Signers

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 13.—(AP)—The whirlwind campaign to obtain parity prices of above 16 cents for flue-cured tobacco through acreage reduction entered its final stage today.

Its success assured, county agents prepared to wind up the drive by carrying government contracts to the minority of bright leaf growers who have not signed to reduce production in 1934 and 1935.

More than half of South Carolina's 100,000 acres were reported in agreements so far signed, it was estimated, while several North Carolina counties reported the drive virtually completed and others prepared to bring the campaign to an end today.

The rapidity with which Carolina growers have signed contracts was partly ascribed to the desire to reopen the markets which have been closed in both North and South Carolina by gubernatorial proclamation for the last ten days.

Governors of both States have said they would not consent to lifting of the holiday until the acreage reduction price raising drive is completed. Tobacco experts expected the re-opening of auction markets by Monday.

The sign-up drive was proceeding more slowly in Georgia where the markets have already closed for the year, and in parts of South Carolina and Virginia where they have not yet opened.

Georgia growers have been assured benefits under the reduction plan will be retroactive.

In the old belt of North Carolina, comprising the Piedmont section of the State, the growers are busy housing their crop, and for this reason the campaign was not being conducted so hurriedly in that area.

A statement issued by the Department of Agriculture yesterday said that conditions as if September indicated production of 492,576,000 pounds in North Carolina, the nation's largest tobacco-growing area. This is 67 per cent more than was harvested last year when the crop was curtailed throughout the flue-cured belt by the prevalence of the blue mold.

THREE OTHER STATES JOIN REPEAL RANK

Maryland, Minnesota And Colorado Latest to Vote For Repeal Issue

(By The Associated Press) Twenty-nine States today marched in the repeal path, and only seven more need follow to end national prohibition. Maryland, Minnesota and Colorado were the latest recruits. All voted yesterday to abolish the Eighteenth Amendment and left the score in 1933: for repeal, 26; against, 0.

If the seven States now needed to supply the three-quarters needed for repeal are among the voting before November 8, the repeal amendment will have been ratified formally December 6—date of the 36th convention. Fast mounting figures put repeal majority five to one. The margin was smaller in Colorado and Minnesota, the home of Andrew Volstead, who sponsored the prohibition enforcement act. Late counts listed others in the two to one class.

Prohibitionists promised undiminished efforts to block the trend which on Monday caught Maine, the first bone-dry State.

Tuesday Idaho and New Mexico vote on repeal. Two weeks later—October 3—Virginia votes, and a week later—October 10—Florida.

BLACKWOOD SEEKS HELP OTHER STATES

At Mass Meeting Growers of Palmetto State Telegraph Sec. Wallace to Arrange for Meeting With President Next Monday; Other States Urged to Name Delegations To Attend Meeting

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 13.—(AP)—"Fifteen cent cotton" was the cry which was sent to Washington from South Carolina farmers today.

Taking the lead in a new drive to get better prices for the staple crop, the State through Governor Blackwood has called on other States to make direct appeal to President Roosevelt next Monday to save Southern farmers.

After a mass meeting of growers, agricultural leaders and representatives of three other States here yesterday, Governor Blackwood telegraphed governors of other cotton-growing States to consider a resolution similar to the one adopted here. They also were asked to name delegations to join the one from South Carolina in an appeal to the President Monday.

Notifying Secretary of Agriculture Wallace of the meeting's action, Governor Blackwood asked the secretary to arrange for an audience with the President for the delegations.

GOVERNMENT BACKS LEAF PRODUCERS

Lanier Repeats Promise of Administration to Raise Tobacco Prices

The promise of the federal government to support tobacco growers in their effort to procure better prices for their product this year and the next two years in exchange for reduction of acreage during 1934-35 was reiterated over long-distance telephone from Washington City today by J. C. Lanier, former Greenville attorney, now contract expert in the tobacco division of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Talking to D. J. Whichard, Jr., publisher of the Daily Reflector, Lanier declared the government was intensely interested in the campaign now under way to curtail production the next two years and had confidence the farmers were going to respond in a wholehearted manner.

He expressed appreciation of the quick action taken by tobacco growers in the tobacco-raising states and commended his home county of Pitt for blazing the way in a drive that has the backing of the federal government and consequently has all the power of the tremendous government facilities behind it. He reiterated the promise made by the government at the outset of the campaign that it would use its powerful resources for better prices with resumption of sales if the growers would sign up to reduce their acreage the next two years, and in so doing showed the world that the government as usual is not playing but has reached out its powerful hand to bring relief to thousands of growers who would suffer inexpressible hardships from low prices received from the product at the time the governors of the tobacco-growing states declared a warehouse holiday because of low prices.

Mr. Lanier is one of the leaders in the tobacco division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and is figuring prominently in the campaign to bring higher prices to the tobacco growers.

HARTNESS SUCCEEDS WEBB ON NRA BOARD

Washington, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Joe A. Hartness, of Statesville, former Secretary of State, was appointed a member of the North Carolina NRA Advisory Board to succeed William M. Webb of Morehead City, who resigned today.

Hartness was appointed upon recommendation of Rep. Doughton. No salary attaches to the position, but the board probably will be called upon to consider important industrial matters relating to codes.

S. C. BANKER GIVEN THREE-YEAR PRISON TERM

Rock Hill, S. C., Sept. 13.—(P)—A sentence of three years in prison was given N. M. McDill, 51-year-old former president of the National Exchange Bank of Chester, after he had pleaded guilty to bank law violations in Federal Court here today.

S. F. Murphy, 42, former assistant cashier of the bank who entered a similar plea, was sentenced by Judge H. H. Watkins to a year and a day. Both will serve their terms in the Atlanta penitentiary.

Charges against McDill involved approximately $16,000 and consisted of three counts of misapplying funds and two of false entry. Murphy's consisted of three of misapplication of funds.

DROPS DYNAMITE BOX; DIES OF BROKEN NECK

New Albany, Ind., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Fellow-workmen fled in all directions as John Cecil Austin, 32, slipped and dropped a heavy box of dynamite he was loading on a barge here Monday. The dynamite did not explode, but the box fell on Austin's neck and broke it, causing his death.

ONLY TWO

With Pitt County's tobacco acreage sign-up above the 99 per cent mark only two growers contacted in this county have refused to sign the contracts. Of course there is no law to compel the growers to sign the contracts. It was a voluntary proposition by which the government would guarantee better prices if the growers would co-operate by agreeing to reduce their acreage for the next two years. Whether or not the two growers, who have refused to sign, hope to profit at the expense of their neighbors, we do not know, but whatever the cause, we would certainly hate to be known as one of two persons who was selfish enough to stand out when everybody else was showing a spirit of co-operation and a willingness to help.

Hoping that these two growers will have a change of heart before the campaign is over and sign, we refrain at this time from giving their names but we said at the beginning that basing our reports upon the official records we would at the close of the sign-up campaign, publish the list of such growers as did not sign. This is still our intention and such a list, if any, will be published. If you are one of the growers who has not signed, sign now, for we would much prefer to print the fact that our county was 100 per cent than to print the roll of non-signers.

GOVERNMENT GIVES ASSURANCE

J. C. Lanier, tobacco expert, of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration, over long-distance telephone this morning, declared that there need be no fear on the part of tobacco growers that the government will not come through with its promise of parity prices to the growers in return for the promise of reduced acreage for the next two years. Mr. Lanier declared that the government meant business when it promised the growers it would use every resource it had to see the growers through, and that the growers could depend upon this promise.

We have had utter confidence in the ability of the government to take care of this situation from the start and have so expressed our belief in this column. We gladly pass on to our readers this renewed assurance from the government. Mr. Lanier is a native of this city and is well known

The HIDDEN DOOR By FRANK L. PACKARD

SYNOPSIS: Colin Hewitt, the writer, has witnessed murder and crime of all sorts. He has posed for weeks as a crook in an effort to track down the Mask, New York underworld czar. He just has come from spending the night in the Mask's headquarters, where he had pretended to be overcome by loss of blood from a superficial wound received on a hi-jacking expedition. And he has discovered the hidden door that in its turn hides, he is sure, the secret of the Mask. Now he is making a rendezvous with his friend, Detective Sergeant Mulvey.

Chapter 43 FRIENDS MEET There was a pause, then Sergeant Mulvey spoke crisply: "Where are you? Uptown or thereabouts?" "Yes," Colin returned.

"All right. I'll fix it. Go over to the Kranway-Stratton. One more coming or going in that lobby'll be lost in the shuffle. Don't register. Ask the room clerk for the key to 608-A. That ain't the key you'll get but it'll be the key to the right room. Go up to the room and wait for me. I'll be right along. Get it?"

And fifteen minutes later, having followed out Sergeant Mulvey's directions, he found himself the occupant of a large pleasant room with bath on the second floor of the Kranway-Stratton. He pulled an easy chair into a position across the room facing the door and sat down to wait.

He had come to the point, he realized, where he could no longer play a lone hand—a fact which in itself afforded him intense relief. He needed help now. Police help—the sort that Detective Sergeant Mulvey had at his command. That had been the basis of the plan he had evolved last night.

He lighted a cigarette. There did not seem to be a flaw anywhere in the plan. He had gone over it detail by detail a dozen times. He went over it again now. It ought to work if Tim Mulvey picked the right men, and Tim Mulvey could be depended upon to do that. It was—

Rip's Own Escape

By MARY GRAMH BONNER "Rip is some little distance along the road," said Christopher Columbus Crow. "When you could not find Rip in the pound I went on a flying search over the countryside. I did not know whether Rip was alive or not, but the dog catcher seemed so surprised, too, when he was not in the pound that I used my Crow brains and figured that Rip had tried to make his own escape. "I thought perhaps that he had feared that we could not raise the money in time. Now just make this first right turn and you'll find Rip waiting for us." Willy Nilly made the first right turn. All the animals were leaning out of the automobile Two-Ways looking for Rip. At last they all saw him, lying down on a grassy bank by the road. But as soon as he saw the automobile and his friends he gave a mighty leap. Willy Nilly stopped the car, and such joy as there was! Rip jumped up and down with delight. Willy Nilly shouted with happiness. Jelly Bear and Honey Bear danced on their hind legs with glee. Christopher cawed delightedly. Top Notch crowed at the top of his roosterish voice, and the Ducks quacked for all they were worth. "Tell us everything," cried Willy Nilly. "I made my own escape with the help of the other dogs," barked Rip. "Oh, it was a narrow escape. I'll tell you all about it. But first let me see dear Puddle Muddle. I long for home!"

Tomorrow—"In Puddle Muddle"

vey incredulously. "Then perhaps you know who did it?" "Yes; it was a man named Dollaire." "Who's Dollaire?" "A run-runner from St. Pierre." "That's worth knowing!" Sergeant Mulvey sucked in his breath sharply. "I'll make a note of that!" "I wouldn't bother if I were you," advised Colin confidentially. "He was hi-jacked in turn outside the twelve-mile limit here last night, he and his crew put on the spot, and his scow sank."

Sergeant Mulvey stared. "How in God's name do you know that?" he rasped. "I was there," said Colin. "My God!" Sergeant Mulvey's hand roved helplessly through his hair. "I don't get you! How did you come to be there?" Colin bent forward and touched Detective Sergeant Mulvey lightly on his swollen jaw.

"That's the reason—mainly," he said dryly. "And here's your artillery. I brought it along with me from my room." He reached into his pocket and tossed the gun into Detective Sergeant Mulvey's lap. "Sorry, Tim! I didn't know it was you at the time, but I would have had to do it anyway."

"Almighty Moses!" stuttered Sergeant Mulvey. He picked up the gun and examined it as though suspicious of its identity, then, with a grunt of recognition, dropped it into his pocket. "So you're the bird that laid me out, are you?" he blustered. "I've been looking for him in—hard. I could send you up the river for that! Aiding and abetting a man to escape arrest on a murder charge is penitentiary stuff, my bucko. Damn it—" he fingered his jaw tenderly—"I'm telling you!"

Colin thrust out his wrists. "Bracelets, Tim?" he asked contritely. Detective Sergeant Mulvey coughed. "Go to hell!" he retorted. "Got anything else to spring? You've done pretty good so far."

"Yes—lots," said Colin soberly. "And, except for the reason, which I am not at liberty to tell you, that took me to Reddy's old room on the night you left my place, which reason in turn was the reason why I went down on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, I'm going to give you the whole story right up to this minute. Now listen."

Sergeant Mulvey produced a cigar and bit off the end and lighted it. "Go to it!" he urged. "I haven't forgotten that you said you had a line on the Mask."

And then, as briefly and concisely as he could, though interrupted by many a quick-flung question or comment from Sergeant Mulvey, Colin told the story of the weeks that had elapsed from the night he had paid the visit to Reddy's old room until the hour or so ago when he called up his listener on the phone.

"Here's the story," he ended; "and here's where you draw cards. I'm putting in an emergency call." Detective Sergeant Mulvey jumped to his feet and began to pace excitedly up and down the room. "Boy," he burst out, "I ain't got it all yet! I'm trying to make myself believe I ain't been dreaming! This'll bust New York wide open! This'll bust New York wide open!" "Yes," said Colin with a quiver smile, "except that perhaps New York would like to know who the Mask is, and—well—just how he was caught."

Detective Sergeant Mulvey paused suddenly in his stride—then flopped down in his chair. "You're right," he said. "I was counting the chickens. Well?" (To Be Continued)

GREENVILLE MARKET REPORT

If You Haven't Signed Do It Now

We wish to congratulate the tobacco growers of Pitt County and Eastern North Carolina for their fine spirit of co-operation in so readily signing the government acreage reduction contracts. There are still a few who have not signed and we urge them to sign at once.

Tune in on Greenville's Radio Station WEED every day (except Sunday) at 9:45 A. M., 12:45 P. M. and 5:45 P. M., for latest tobacco market reports. Will find it on your dial around 142 or 1420.

The government, after mature deliberation has stepped in to assure reasonable prices. We believe they will never step out so long as the growers welcome their support.

Growers in foreign countries are constantly increasing their own production. Exports of flue cured tobacco from the United States to foreign countries have been steadily declining. Consequently, the government knows our only hope for improved prices is control of production.

All markets will reopen simultaneously through contact by Governor Ehringhaus with officials at Washington, D. C., and ample notice will be given. We are sure the companies will not place a buyer on any market until this is done.

County Agent now has name of every land owner in the county. As you sign, your name will be checked off. Let's make it a 100 per cent sign up in Pitt County.

We beg you, in this emergency, not to let your name appear on the list with those who do not sign the Government Contract for acreage reduction.

Let us urge the growers living out of Pitt County, many of whom are receiving the Daily Reflector, to get busy at once in their respective counties.

Why Hold Your Cotton?

WE ARE DUE TO HAVE BETTER PRICES

We were promised pre-war parity prices by the Roosevelt administration.

Present cotton prices do not fulfill those promises.

We still have confidence in the promises of our President and the Secretary of Agriculture, and they have not played all of their trump cards yet under the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

The "plow up" campaign cut down several million bales of surplus cotton.

The National Recovery Administration is working wonders in bringing about better business conditions and this will increase consumption of cotton.

Details will soon be announced by the Secretary of Agriculture on plans to reduce our 1934 cotton acreage to 25,000,000 acres, and this should help to give higher price levels.

Seed loan borrowers profited by storing their cotton last season on the 91-2c plan.

Seed loan borrowers can store their cotton for this season by putting up enough cotton at market price to cover loans and six months' storage and expenses. They can keep their seed for picking expenses and draw on us for 50c per hundred ($2.50 per bale) if needed.

We netted our members 8c per pound for seasonal pool cotton last season, a far better price than outside average.

Low storage rates, low interest rates, selling direct to mill, paying premiums for better grades and staples—these are the secrets of our success.

We are advancing 7c per pound on seasonal pool cotton and 61-2c on optional pool cotton on day of delivery.

Every cotton producer should cooperate and help in this plan for better prices.

See our nearest Field Representative, Receiving Agent, or Warehouseman, or write us for additional information.

Advices Against Selling Cotton At Present Price

Raleigh, Sept. 13.—The purchasing power of cotton today is no greater than it was a year ago, and the situation is an alarming one to me.

So said U. Benton Blalock, general manager of the North Carolina Cotton Growers Cooperative Association, before leaving early this week for Washington in the interest of Cotton producers.

"The 'plow up' campaign," he said, "went over in great shape and cut our prospective 16,500,000 bale crop to an estimated one of 12,400,000 bales. This move unquestionably is largely responsible for the rise of approximately 50 per cent in cotton prices as compared with last year."

"But we are still far away from the pre-war parity of price promised us by the administration under the Agricultural Adjustment Act for the reason that the things which the farmer has to buy in many instances have increased in value one hundred per cent or more."

"It seems that under the readjustment of prices under the National Recovery Act, agriculture has not only been unable to keep step with other industries but has been forced to lag still further behind in the prices for all farm commodities."

Answering his own questions, "And what are we to do about it?" Mr. Blalock said:

"The Administration's plan for the control of production of cotton in 1934 and 1935 should be announced as speedily as possible, and whatever is necessary in the way of a campaign for making the plan effective should be launched at once with the producers so that the cotton consuming world would know on what to expect from next year's crop.

"Second, if the Administration still holds trump cards in the way of inflationary measures, they should be played now and not after the cotton has passed out of the producers' hands. Higher prices in January, March or May will be of no avail if the producer has no cotton to sell."

"Third every effort possible should be put forth by every agency available to prevent a too-rapid movement into the markets of the 12,000,000 bales and more crop of this season. And most assuredly every effort should be made to prevent surplus cotton held by government agencies being dumped on the market for the next several months in competition with our 1933 crop."

Mr. and Mrs. Furnie Tripp spent the week-end with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy McLawhorn of Simpson.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. James and Mrs. Kenneth, visited relatives in Stokes last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Stocks and Mrs. Bettie Barber spent Sunday with Miss Stella Vinson.

FORD V-8 WINS NATIONAL STOCK CAR RACE

Detroit, Michigan—All previous records for the Famous Elgin Road Race were shattered when a Ford V-8 won the Joseph Weidenhoff Trophy race for stock cars of American manufacture in the 203-mile grind at Elgin, Ill., last Saturday. The race was conducted under the rules of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association and was sanctioned by that organization.

The winning Ford V-8 piloted by Fred Frame, Indianapolis Speedway champion last year, lowered the mark set in 1920, in the last previous running of the race, by Ralph DePalma, famous race driver, in a high-powered racing car. Frame's average speed was 81.27 miles per hour. DePalma's record was 79.5 miles per hour. The Ford V-8 negotiated the 203 mile course in two hours, 32 minutes, 6. seconds.

Fifteen cars were entered (including Fords, Chevrolets, a Plymouth and a Dodge. Fords took the first seven places in the event. The Plymouth finished in eighth place. The other cars either were forced out of the race by mechanical failures or were flagged when the race was declared finished.

Frame in the winning V-8 took the lead in the first 8 1-4-mile lap and led every lap thereafter with the exception of the twelfth when he stopped at the pits one minute and twenty seconds for gasoline, oil and water. This was Frame's only stop in driving what race officials described as a perfect race around the picturesque but treacherous course of concrete, bituminous macadam and gravel, with its four perilous turns.

A Ford V-8 entered and piloted by Frank Brisko, after completing the morning race over the 203-mile course for the Weidenhoff trophy at an average speed of 77.98 miles per hour, was the lone stock car to finish in the afternoon race over the same distance for the Elgin Watch Company trophy. The other four to finish were specially-built racing cars. Eight of the fourteen entrants in this race were forced out because of mechanical trouble before half the distance had been run. This Ford thus became the only car in either the stock car race or the free-for-all to complete the course twice on the day of the races.

The highly consistent performance of the Ford V-8 cars finishing the stock car is revealed by the race records. The difference in elapsed time for the race between the first and seventh Fords to finish was only six minutes, 35.6 seconds and the difference in their average speeds for the course only 3.33 miles per hour.

“Proud and glad to do our part”

WITH President Roosevelt's acceptance of the NRA Automobile Code, Chevrolet, the world's largest builder of motor cars, officially begins operations in accordance with the administration's recovery program.

Although the official code was signed only a few days ago, it will be of interest to Chevrolet's many friends to learn that the Chevrolet Motor Company started to carry out the spirit of today's recovery program over three years ago!

At that time, we put into operation a "share-the-work" plan, whereby our workmen cooperated in spreading the work to give more men jobs. By means of this plan, as well as by regulating hours of work per week to meet retail demand, and by building up parts stocks in lean seasons, it was possible to carry 33,000 men on our payroll through the depression. For eleven months of each year since 1929, we have kept our employment within 10 per cent of this average. We are justly proud of that record. We are also proud to say that Chevrolet workmen did not, at any time during the depression, become a burden on public welfare departments.

On August 1st of this year, Chevrolet announced a blanket wage increase as well as the adoption of a 7½-hour, 5-day week and the employment of 12,000 additional men. This wage increase was the second in the last 4 months, Chevrolet having been among the first to put a blanket wage increase into effect.

We feel that the President's recovery program deserves the whole-hearted support of every citizen and manufacturer in America. It is a bold, swift, courageous plan to start the ball rolling toward economic recovery. Its sincerity is unquestioned. Its objectives are admirable. And the direct, forceful steps the President and his associates are taking to make it a success, should stir the pride and admiration of every American.

We are proud and glad to do our part. And we are deeply grateful to the American people for the patronage that has enabled us to anticipate the present recovery program and to play our part today. After all, the immense number of men employed by Chevrolet is a direct result of the continued preference America has shown for Chevrolet.
