TOBACCO GROWERS LOOK TOWARD WASHINGTON

Buyers' Meeting Set For Capital City Tomorrow

N. C. GROWERS ASK EFFORT PLAN CAUCUS DURING NIGHT FOR BOOSTING FARM PRICES

Governor Ehringhaus To Attend Conference To Raise Prices For This Year's Tobacco Crop; Sign up About Completed in The Carolinas; Markets Scheduled to Open Monday

Raleigh, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Eyes of the flue-cured tobacco growers today turned to Washington as preparations went forward to hold a public hearing tomorrow on the proposed buyers' agreement to bring higher prices for the 1933 crop. Representatives of the growers and buyers will attend the hearing. A caucus of North Carolina growers will be held tonight. Governor Ehringhaus of North Carolina plans to attend the hearing. The campaign to sign up growers for a 30 per cent reduction of the 1934 and 1935 crops had just about been completed in the two Carolinas where a sales holiday has been in progress over two weeks. The Carolinas markets are scheduled to re-open next Monday.

MUCH MALARIA FOUND IN PITT

Investigation Reveals Illness Caused by Wide Prevalence of Mosquitoes

An investigation recently completed by the State Board of Health shows that there is a large prevalence of malaria in Pitt county at this time. It was revealed in a report received today by the Pitt County Department of Health from Warren H. Booker, director of the Division of Sanitary Engineering of the State Health office. The survey was made recently by M. R. Cowper, assisted by the local health department.

"A large number of mosquito complaints in Pitt county," the report stated, "are due to the Culex mosquito. The Culex is solely a pest and will breed in any type of standing water. The Culex may be found in collections of water in or about the house, especially in cingle troughs in which a broken shingle or accumulation of leaves is holding back rain water; in discarded tin cans, bottles, old automobile tires and broken crockery on the garage hear; in flower pots and vases.

"This mosquito may be controlled by oiling or thoroughly covering all artificial water containers that cannot be emptied. It is recommended that the above facts be advertised throughout the city."

Declaring the prevalence of malaria to be great, the health department recommended the following control measures:

Cotton Delegation Leaves Note For President as he Prepares to see it.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—(AP)—President Roosevelt sent word today he would be glad to receive the Southern delegation urging currency inflation, but meanwhile he maintained silence as to his views on the subject.

He went to his study in the Executive Mansion for the first time since his recent cold. He had a group of callers who had been waiting to see him since Monday.

He will be unable to see the delegation on inflation before tomorrow. However, leaders of the delegation had decided not to insist on a conference with the President.

Before hearing from him, leaders of the delegation decided to let another stand as their appeal. The letter, signed by several score of the delegation last night, said the situation in the cotton States was desperate and asked for immediate and effective action to raise the level of prices and boost farm products through inflation.

Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Oklahoma, acting chairman of the delegation in the absence of Senator Smith, Democrat, of South Carolina, who left last night for his home on a private mission, said: "There was a necessity for the committee selected to wait here until the President recovered to pursue this course."

"We have accomplished all that can be accomplished at this time," he said. Effort to draw out any further exposition of the President's idea for a steady rise in prices and wages were unavailing today. He laid down months ago policies, using inflation as an end when it may be necessary. He was said not to be talking about the subject now.

NEW SKIRMISH FACING CUBA

Political Factions Promise Fight as Soldiers Track Rebel Leader

Havana, Cuba, Sept. 20.—(AP)—A motley crowd of soldiers, students and workmen tracked the rebellious Juan Blas Hernandez in the rugged Camaguey hills today while at home the scenes were set for another political skirmish.

Blas Hernandez, doubtful campaigner against Gerardo Machado, was reported some distance in Las Cuevas, in Camaguey province, with 500 men, all firm in their conviction that President Ramon Grau San Martin should resign.

On their trail were 600 soldiers commanded by St. Mazaor and armed with twelve machine guns, manned by students and laborers. There were many rumors about their movements. News was that troops surrounded the rebels near the small town of Veyes, and another said the soldiers and rebels exchanged shots near Cafaberindo, but friends of the Cuban "Sandino" said he would not surrender.

On the Havana front less dramatic but no less important episode was being enacted when the executive described before 5,000 hearers as a "duel to the death" in which he and his followers were bound to maintain the country for which "our fathers dreamed."

COUNTY COURT SITS TWO DAYS

Over Dozen Cases Heard Tuesday; Work Continues During Today

Sitting for the first time in two weeks because of a scheduled session of Superior court here last week, County court disposed of over a dozen cases yesterday and continued digging away today in a docket that was about half completed during the first day's session. Judge Dink James presided and indications were the docket would be completed during the late afternoon.

As usual, the court was faced by cases ranging all the way from the most trivial matter to those of an important nature but whether important or unimportant the wheels of justice moved smoothly and when the day was over the normal amount of work had been accomplished. Several actions were appealed to the next session of Superior court.

Oscar Haskins, colored, charged with possession of liquor, was released upon payment of $25 and cost. Convicted of a charge of gambling, Clifton Reeves and Dennis Morris, colored, were sentenced to sixty days each on the roads.

Richard Knight was sentenced to 90 days on the roads and Dock Nelson to 60 days on a charge of gambling. Will Price and Joe Gray, two other colored men held in the same case, were allowed to pay cost. For carrying a concealed weapon, William Smith was sent to the roads for 90 days.

It cost Addie Nobles, colored, $45 to cut another woman over her husband, but she paid it cheerfully. She was taxed with $25 cost and $20 doctor's bill.

Charged with the larceny of clothing from Grant's store here, John Weston, colored, was sentenced to six months on the roads. Lemon Hunting paid half cost on a charge of assault.

LEAF SIGN-UP ENDS TONIGHT

Reduction Campaign To Cut Acreage Will Close With Signatures Today

The tobacco reduction campaign which has been in progress over two weeks will come to a close tonight. Although it was impossible to obtain definite figures regarding the total Pitt county sign-up today because of the absence from the city of E. F. Arnold, director of the farm department, it was said the acreage probably would reach the 50,000 mark.

The total had passed the 48,095.33 mark with 2,902 farmers having signed to reduce acreage the next two years as a means of boosting bright leaf prices. The government announced the latter part of last week the campaign would close tonight, and after that time a full report regarding the sign-up, which has met with marked success in all states effected, was expected.

APPEAL MAY HALT DEATH NEGRO KILLER

John Edwards May Not Die Friday; No Decision Reached in McLamb Case

Raleigh, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Edwin Gill, parole commissioner, said today he did not expect John Louis Edwards, negro sentenced to be electrocuted for the alleged murder of a street car conductor, to die in the electric chair Friday and that no final decision had been reached in the case of Luther McLamb, also scheduled to be executed Friday.

Gill said he understood that attorneys for Edwards, one of whom is Cecil Mc-Coy of Durham, had perfected a plea to the State Supreme Court for the man.

His case has not been docketed in court here. "If the appeal has not been perfected then there will be a reprieve probably to allow perfection of the plea," Gill said. He pointed out that perfection of the appeal automatically deferred execution until the higher court decides in the case. "I expect to have something on the McLamb case soon," the commissioner said.

Ayden Minister Tells Of Storm Along The Coast

Ayden, Sept. 20.—Rev. R. F. Pittman, pastor of the Free Will Baptist churches in Greenville and Ayden, gives a harrowing account of his experience during the storm. He was holding a series of services at Davis, east of Beaufort. He was staying at the home of C. F. Davis, which was over his store. During the early hours Friday night the water came up in the store until they were standing knee-deep. The upper part of the structure was shaken so badly by the torrential winds that it was dangerous to go upstairs. The father of Mr. Davis came with a skill, wading through water almost to his shoulders, to rescue the party. On the way back to Father Davis' home the skiff sank and the whole party was forced to wade through the steadily rising water. When they reached the home the water was just as deep as in the store they had left, and for 24 hours Mr. Pittman and his wife and the Davis family stood in water fearing that either the house would blow down or be washed away. All of the land was under water, and there was no way to escape in any direction. Across the sound the sound the breakers were coming clear over the beach.

He reports that two churches, the Free Will and the Missionary Baptist were destroyed, many of the homes badly damaged, chicken and hogs and boats and nets washed away and the crops ruined; that the people in that community were in destitute condition and were in dire need of the Red Cross assistance.

Mr. Pittman had just bought a new Chevrolet car before taking the trip and the water engulfed and practically ruined it.

START DRIVE FOR MEMBERS TO TALK POOL

New Officers Also Inducted at Regular Meeting of Legion Last Night

Election of officers and inauguration of a membership drive marked the monthly meeting of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion at Third street school club house last night. J. H. Rose, commander, and other officers elected at a previous meeting, were inducted into office by A. B. Corey. The new commander succeeds J. C. Lanier, who some time ago was named tobacco expert of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration at Washington. J. B. Kittrell was named chairman of a committee to have charge of the membership drive to continue until November 1. A one hundred per cent sign-up was registered at the meeting. The membership campaign will be pushed by the committee as rapidly as possible in the hope of bringing former soldiers back into the fold of the Legion, which is using its influence for the cause of the men who fought in that great conflict overseas to crush German autocracy. Kittrell said all members would be enlisted in the campaign to sign-up as many former veterans as possible between now and November 1, and the outlook was brighter than it has been in years, it was believed. The meeting was well attended and the Legionnaires were treated to an old time ham and egg supper, the kind that grandma used to cook.

PITT ASKED TO GIVE TO STORM AREA

Red Cross Seeks Funds to Help Carry Relief to Coastal Part of State

Pitt County people have been called on to give to the hundreds of persons who suffered from the hurricane which ravaged the North Carolina coast the latter part of last week.

W. J. Bundy, chairman of the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross, received a call for funds to help carry succor to the regions torn by the gale which reached a velocity of 120 miles an hour on some parts of the coast.

Mr. Bundy, recognizing the dire distress of coast dwellers, has called upon the people in this section to give liberally to the cause and help carry relief to men, women and children who have had all of their belongings wiped out by flood and storm.

The Red Cross already has sent workers into the storm area and they were said to have done splendid work in carrying for the injured and providing food for the hungry, desolate people of the fishing banks where the storm was reported to have done the greatest damage.

Contributions may be sent direct to Mr. Bundy or to The Daily Reflector. A list of contributors will be carried each day so the entire world may know how Pitt County rallies to the storm-torn district, almost a stone's throw from their own doors.

Baltimore, Sept. 20.—(AP)—One man was burned to death and 7 others escaped in life boats when fire swept through the oil-laden freighter Hugh Bernie, nine miles below Smith's Point in Chesapeake Bay early this morning. The boat, a 125 Daisel power craft was bound from Norfolk to Baltimore.

Captain Ira L. Killman, who telephoned the report of the fire from Reidsville, Va., said the blaze was started by an explosion. "Buzz" Evans, a second engineer, was the man killed.

RUSH RELIEF OVER HUNDRED MILE SECTION

Property Damage in The Millions of Dollars; Red Cross and Other Relief Forces Push Work in Devastated Areas; State Wide Drive For Funds Started at Raleigh by Red Cross

New Bern, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The death toll in the storm-torn sound country of North Carolina stood at 21 today as rehabilitation was being pushed along a 100-mile shore line.

Discovery of four unidentified bodies at Portsmouth brought the number of dead from 17 to 21. Property damages was estimated in the millions of dollars. Red Cross and other relief workers made their way into devastated coastal villages and while desolation was reported everywhere there was no serious outbreak of disease. Precautions were being taken to prevent the latter. John Farrar, special Red Cross representative, said that adequate provisions had been made for those who lost everything in the storm.

"There is no hunger but there would have been had it not been for quick action. Relief work in being done on a firm basis with no soup kitchens being reported or bread lines established."

A state-wide drive for funds to aid the sufferers was launched at Raleigh by the Red Cross. Throughout the area relief workers continued to distribute food and clothing and to give shelter to hundreds made homeless by the hurricane.

DO YOU WANT A SWIMMING POOL?

A special meeting of citizens interested in a swimming pool for Greenville has been called for tomorrow night at 7:30 at the library and it is to be hoped that every interested citizen will be present. Information gained from the explanation by government representatives at Kinston yesterday is that the loan is available for the swimming pool if we really want it and are willing to go after it. While the swimming pool is a public proposition, the city authorities would like to make sure that the public is really behind the movement and it is up to our citizens who desire a pool here to let the authorities know that they want it. Be at the meeting tomorrow night, let your wishes be known, and we are sure that the city officials will act in accordance with the wishes of the citizens.

The Trembling House

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

On the front porch stood Christopher Columbus Crow. "Caw, caw. I was just coming to you for shelter."

"I was just going out to look for you," Willy Nilly answered. They went back into the house, and the animals were greatly relieved to see them.

"I've never seen it rain so hard in all my life," said Willy Nilly, "and I never heard of such a wind storm."

"It's a lucky thing we have a house," said Rip, the Dog, "where we can be safe."

But now it seemed as though the rain had decided it could come down with greater force, and the earth was loosening and softening and the rain was making it squashy. In fact, the earth was no longer firm and strong.

"Did I feel something then?" Willy Nilly asked in alarm.

"Growl, growl," said Jelly Bear, "I felt myself moving."

"So did I," growled Honey Bear, and she moved closer to Jelly Bear for protection.

"Bark, bark," said Rip, the Dog, "the house is shaking."

"I thought I felt that," said Willy Nilly nervously. "Oh, dear, I am afraid the foundations are going to be washed away. Whatever shall we do?"

And now the house began to tremble and waver.

"We've got to do something," declared Top Notch, the Rooster. "It's not safe here."

"We'll use your shed as a house boat and float along the Ducks' pond until the flood lets up," said Willy Nilly.

(Continued from page one) purposes of the college and the nature of the courses open to them, giving them advice that would help them plan their work for the future and offering helpful suggestions about many things.

He called attention to the fact that students are no longer required to sign an agreement to teach and he explained the readjustment of fees that made provision for a tuition fee, which is in accordance with the recent law. He impressed upon them the rating of this institution which is of A grade in every sense of the word, and is so rated by every accrediting agency.

"He quoted one of the slogans he has gone by throughout the history of the college, 'On time every time.' He impressed upon them the importance of a daily schedule that would stretch into a life program. 'It means that you will live an ordered life, a life according to a definite program, and if you have a definite program you must have a definite purpose. This brings dependability and truthfulness into one's life, and help to build character.'

He made them realize that teachers are not paid according to the grade they teach, but according to their experience and training. The primary teacher is rated as high as the high school teacher in North Carolina, and no State in the Union has a better scheme than this, even though others may have better salaries. "There is no nobler work on earth than teaching the little fellow comes from the home of his mother and father for the first time, than leading him into the ways of knowing. Give the child the right start and God alone knows the heights he may reach."

Figures from the placement bureau quoted show that there is more demand for primary teachers than others, and the grammar grade teachers come next. This proves that there are in much greater demand in North Carolina than high school teachers, especially in reference to women teachers. There is, however, a demand in the high school for men teachers. It looks as if there is a place for every man teacher who graduates from E. C. T. C., especially if he can coach athletics. There is especially a demand for girls who can play the piano and conduct programs in the public school.

Mrs. Spillman, after President Wright's talk, explained to the new students their relationship to the treasurer, and Mr. McGinnis to the registrar.

Miss Kuykendall conducted the singing.

At 4 o'clock the student officers conducted a sight-seeing tour of the campus.

At a rally in the evening the cheer leader had the freshmen sing college songs and giving college yells. Student officers and dormitory officers were introduced to them and Miss Martin made a timely talk.

All the officers and members of the faculty except the critic teachers who teach in the city schools, were in their places. They have been scattered far and wide during vacation.

WILSON NEGRO HELD ON BURGLARY CHARGE

Wilson, Sept. 20—Roger Bailey,

Outrageous Fortune

by Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS: In the Elston Hospital a man lies mumbering in his sleep of something "like a kid's green beads" and of someone named "Jimmy Riddell"—or perhaps it's "Randal." An inquiry has been broadcast, and in response Nesta Riddell comes to the hospital to see whether the man, who is a survivor of a ship broken up in a gale, can be her husband Jimmy. Just as the nurse takes her to the sleeping man, the nurse is called away about an accident. The man awakes mumbering, this time saying something about killing a man and about emeralds. Nesta is frightened.

Chapter Three THE DECISION

NESTA took hold of his arm and dragged it down.

The man's face was brown and haggard against the coarse white pillow. A two-days' stubble made him uncouth. His eyes were half open. He seemed between sleeping and waking.

"Jimmy Riddell?" said Nesta harshly.

His eyes opened—dark grey eyes with black lashes. He gave her back the name like an echo:

"Jimmy Riddell."

Nesta shook him.

"Yes—Jimmy Riddell?"

"I don't know... no one knows... nobody knows but me... and they're him away. If it hadn't been for this bus business, I wouldn't have got him. Even as it is, they wouldn't have let him come if they'd known it was the best part of sixty miles, so I've told them we've come from Marley."

"Marley?" said Tom. "Why Marley?"

"Because I remembered the name, and it's only about eight miles from here—and don't start asking questions or I shall scream."

She stepped back from the car, but kept her hand upon it. Tom Williams looked at her curiously. The flush which had covered her face had now drawn together into a brilliant patch high up on either cheek, leaving the rest of the skin white and wet.

"What is it?" he said. "What's the matter?"

THAT something was the matter was very certain. Nesta didn't look like that for nothing. Not for the first time, she felt as if her affairs were a sort of trap in which he was caught and from which he had no hope of ever getting free.

If it wasn't for Nesta's affairs, he and Min might be as happy as the day was long. Yet for the life of him he couldn't keep out of Nesta's affairs. What had been happening to make her look like that? He felt a the finest emeralds in the world... the Van Berg emeralds... and nobody knows where they are but me."

His eyes began to close again. He pulled his arm away and flung it up across his face. She heard him mutter:

"Green... like a kid's beads... Jimmy Riddell..."

She straightened herself and stood looking down at him—the long legs, the rough brown hair, the burn, the arm thrown up to shield his eyes. Her face worked for a minute, then muscle by muscle it hardened. When she turned at the sound of hurrying steps, those short dark brows of hers made one straight line and her lips another.

The day nurse had her question on her lips.

"Well? Is it your husband?"

Nesta Riddell nodded. It seemed as if her lips were set too close to speak.

"TOM!"

Tom Williams had been staring idly at that blue handsbreadth of sea and thinking that it was just the day for a dip. He hadn't had a proper swim this year, what with the weather and Nesta's affairs. That bit of blue water was just about right.

"Tom!"

He turned with a start. Nesta had the door of the car open. She was very much flushed, and her eyes were bright and hard.

"We're taking him back with us," she said.

"Then it's Jimmy?"

Nesta frowned and went on speaking in a hurried, jerky voice.

"Of course it's Jimmy. We're taking him back with us, and you'll have to drive right in, because he's pretty dicky. They wouldn't let me take him away, only there's been a bus smash at the cross-roads and the doctor's just rung up to say they've got to take in six whether they've got room for them or not."

"What's the matter with him?" said Tom Williams.

"Crack on the head. Now look here, Tom—I've had to fight to get horrific pang of apprehension, and his voice shook.

"Nesta—what's the matter?"

Nesta Riddell's hand tightened on the side of the car. Just for a moment she had felt as if she were going to faint—"And a nice thing that would be!" she said to herself furiously.

"Nesta!"

She straightened up, leaning on the car, and said in a voice that was as low as a whisper but much harder.

"He's talking about the Van Berg affair."

Tom Williams felt as if someone had hit him in the face with a wet towel. His jaw dropped, and his eyes bolted.

"What?" he stammered.

Nesta's color became the normal color of an angry woman.

"Be quiet, you fool!"

"The Van Berg—"

"Will you be quiet!"

"But why?" said Tom Williams.

"I mean why—I mean—"

Nesta jumped into the car, sat down, and held him by the arm.

"Because he's out of his head. Now shut your mouth and listen to me, because I'm not going to say it twice! I went in, and I'd hardly got in when the nurse was called to the telephone about this bus affair!"

"She left me alone with him, and there he was, muttering to himself like she said he'd been doing all along. All they'd been able to make out was 'Jimmy Riddell'—and we may thank the Lord for that. He kept on saying it, but whilst I was there he said a pack of other things too—and my lord, what things!"

Tom shifted away from her, moving round so that he could see her face. A chill of foreboding ran up his spine.

"What sort of things?" he said uneasily.

Nesta slipped her arm through his, and brought her mouth close to his ear.

"He was talking about the emeralds."

'WHAT PRICE INNOCENCE?' COMES TO STATE FRIDAY

The responsibility of mothers toward their young daughters in this era of liberalized youth is the theme of "What Price Innocence?" the Columbia picture due at the State Theatre on Friday. No gay little story of modern drinking, smoking, necking youngsters is this photoplay, which was written and directed by the famous stage successes. True, these phases of the life of modern youth play their part in the picture, but merely as the background for the dramatic subject presented. Members of the cast include Willard Mack, Jean Parker, Ben Alexander, Minna Gombell and Bryant Washburn.

WEIGHT SHORT DUKE LINEMEN USE FIGHT

Durham, N. C., Sept. 20.—Duke University's linemen will have to depend on the same thing they did last year—fight—to carry them through the Blue Devils' hard ten-game schedule for they are not any heavier this fall; in fact, a fraction less than they were in 1932.

The line that is running in the Duke camp now will average 183 from end to end. With Harry Rossiter in the line-up on one of the ends the heft will increase to about the same as the forward will weighed last year.

The heaviest man in the first string line is Freddie Crawford, the Blue Devils' great tackle. He weighs 195 pounds, five more than he tipped the beam last year. None of the other linemen running with the first string in the Duke camp now weigh over 190, although a few of the reserves do.

O. C. Britton, reserve center from Winston-Salem, is the heaviest man on the squad. He weighs 210. Roy Phipps, 203, veteran tackle; Sam Trakas, 204, sophomore guard, and J. K. Boling, 205, sophomore tackle, are the only others going over the 200 mark.

The figures for the line are Tom Rogers, 170, and Earle Wentz, 173, ends; Crawford, 195, and Al Means, 189, tackle; Captain Carl Schock, and Jack Dunlap, 184, guards; E. B. Dunlap, 188, center.

The Blue Devils will have a heavier backfield than last year's quartet of ball carriers. Nick Laney, the only regular returning from last year, has picked up two pounds; Hendrickson, 165, and Cornelius, 177, weigh the same, while Cox has added to his weight.

The tallest man on the squad is J. K. Boling, the sophomore tackle. He is six feet five. Other boys who reach up into the air are Phipps, six three; Crawford, six two, and Rossiter, six two.

MEL OTT

This is the third of a series of sketches on individual stars of the New York Giants and Washington Senators, world series rivals.

New York.—(AP)—Melvin Ott, slugging right fielder of the Giants, is the youngest veteran in the major leagues. At 24 he is a seasoned campaigner, winding up his ninth year in the big show.

Ott, then a schoolboy catcher at Gettysburg, Pa., was only 16 when a friend of John McGraw saw him slugging baseballs all over the Louisiana landscape. He bought Mel a ticket for New York and wired McGraw the lad was on his way.

From the moment he walked into the Polo Grounds, Ott has never called another baseball park home. He spent that season, 1925, just sitting on the bench and looking around. The next year he played 32 games in the outfield; the next, 82. At the ripe old age of 19 he became a regular, and he's been right there ever since.

Ott is one of baseball's most consistent and timely hit men. His average never has fallen below .300. In 1930 he slugged at a .349 clip and was runner-up for National League home-run honors. For the last two seasons he has been second only to Chuck Klein of the Phillies in runs batted in, though many league rivals had higher batting averages.

Washington pitchers will find him a tough man to handle in the world series punches, and the first baseman who takes liberties with Ott's throwing arm will think he has been cut down by rifle fire.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady unchanged to eight higher with inflation buying offset by southern and foreign selling.

Offerings were active after the call and the market broke rapidly. December sold off to 10.05 with active months showing losses of 43 to 50 points under selling.

The quick break of $2.00 a bale evidently attracted trade demand and covering.

At the end of the first half hour December was selling around 10.31 with active months showing losses 20 to 28.

After early selling the market rallied. The rally carried December up to 10.36 about 30 points from the early low. This bulge met further liquidation and fluctuations were irregular. The market eased later in the day under liquidation.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Topsy turvy financial markets today presented an enigma to bullish and bearish forces alike as contracts turned rapidly in most speculative and investment categories.

Stocks were included to be hysterical and prices broke shortly after the opening under a barrage of profit-taking.

The ticker ran behind and large blocks of favorites were sold for losses of one to three points or more.

Metal shares failed to respond to another advance in the price for gold to $22.28 an ounce. U. S. Smelting was off about four points, while losses of one to two or more points were recorded by Anaconda, Alaska Juno. Homestake gave up ten points.

Other losses of one to three or more points included American Telephone, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Chrysler, Allied Chemical, American Can and Goodyear. Even the oils were easier. Sales totaled 2,419,750.

GOLDSBORO WOMAN IS SERIOUSLY INJURED

Goldsboro, N. C., Sept. 20.—Mrs. Fred Smith had the ligaments of her foot badly torn and the bone of her leg split for three or four inches above the ankle when her foot was caught in a ring on the end of a cow's chain and she was dragged for some distance in the yard at her home on East Mulberry Street at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

The cow had been shut up in a stable, and Mrs. Smith turned her out to let her graze on a vacant lot nearby. The cow began to run and in some way Mrs. Smith's foot got caught in the ring and she was dragged screaming until the cow reached the grass and stopped to graze.

Neighbors came to her rescue and she was taken to a hospital in an ambulance, suffering great pain. X-ray pictures were made and a plaster cast will be used.
