NEW SCHOOL ATTENDANCE RECORD HERE

All-Time Mark Established as City Education System Begins Work

An all-time attendance record was set with the opening of city schools here last Monday morning, records in the office of Supt. J. H. Ross showed today.

Total enrollment at white and colored schools was given as 2,803. The figures were expected to be swelled well above the 3,000 mark with the enrollment of one hundred children who were not able to attend the opening day on account of the "pink eye" reported in various parts of the community.

The enrollment by schools follows: High school, 453; Third Street, 341; Training School, 536; West, Greenville, 252; Williams, 83; Colored 1,103.

Along with the opening of schools came the transportation problem the bone of contention in all sections of the state.

In some sections of the state patrons have gone on a strike. While no such action has developed in Pitt county, parents are becoming more recalcitrant than any time in the history of the system and are demanding better facilities for getting their children to school.

A delegation living about two miles from Greenville visited the office of Mr. Ross yesterday seeking a way to get their children to school. The state is willing to transport the children to Falkland or Farmville on buses already crowded to capacity, yet is unwilling to provide them with transportation here.

Among the delegation were 58 children affected by the ruling. Several appeals have been made to the county board of education to do something about the matter, but that body is helpless. The entire problem is in the hands of the state commission.

Routes have been consolidated all over the county and hundreds of children living two miles from school are walking or furnishing their own transportation.

The question will again be taken up with the commission and it is hoped some relief might be provided especially for the children who are privileged to ride eight or twelve miles to school but are denied such convenience to a school two miles away.

MORE STATE PRISONERS GET AWAY

Eight Reported at Large in Widely Separated Areas of State Today

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Eight State prisoners were at large today in two widely separated areas of the State after attacking and overpowering their guard and three others who took part in the uprising had been recaptured.

Six of the eleven broke away from the road gang in Cleveland County late yesterday by overpowering their guards and the other five escaped from Caledonia prison farm in Halifax County after beating their guard.

The time of the escape was not reported at Central Prison here. Two of the gang, Robert Brown and Harvey Ross, were recaptured a short time later, and Ned Helfm, who took part in the Caledonia break, was caught and was in solitary confinement today.

Among the eight still at large were Jim Tyndall, convicted of second degree murder in Wayne and given from fifteen to twenty years, and three other men serving long terms.

Th report from Caledonia, which is in an isolated section of Halifax County, did not give the name of the guard who was attacked nor did it say how seriously he was hurt. The convicts beat him over the head presumably with his own gun, authorities said.

Caledonia officials expressed belief that Tyndall and Joe McCarthy, Moore County men, convicted on three charges, had been drowned trying to swim the Roanoke River where it forms the prison boundary.

Eight children are still living. Ohio's flag was first displayed in 1901 at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

TWO HURT AS VESSELS HIT IN DENSE FOG

Two Hundred Passengers Rescued From Hudson River Steamer Last Night

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Two hundred passengers on the Hudson River night line steamer Rensselaer were imperiled and four injured at 2 a. m. when the Swedish steamship Roxel in a fog collided with the river vessel.

A hole was torn in the side of the passenger boat. In a sinking condition, the Rensselaer, bound to New York from Albany, stopped and limped to a stone barge and put her passengers ashore.

She then attempted to continue the voyage to New York, but abandoned the trip when her list became so bad that automobiles fell overboard and water poured into her hull. She appeared to be in a sinking condition.

The scream of two women trapped in the wreckage of the portside of the steamer excited passengers who quickly found life preservers. One lifeboat was lowered but was not used when it was found the boat could reach the barge.

DRYS TO HOLD MASS MEETING

Countywide Organization to be Set up at Court House Friday Evening

A mass meeting will be held at the courthouse tomorrow night at eight o'clock for the purpose of completing the county-wide organization of those against repeal of national prohibition.

Dr. R. H. Wright, named chairman of the county organization at a meeting here Sunday afternoon, expressed hope today that a large crowd would be present to help outline plans for the approaching battle with the wet-to-be one of the most strenuous since the advent of prohibition.

Drys from all precincts were expected to attend to that they will be familiar with plans of the organization and be in position to do their bit by the cause.

In announcing the list of officers last Monday, J. L. Little was listed as chairman. The man was an error. He was elected treasurer. Dr. Wright heads the organization and will direct its activities in the forthcoming battle.

In addition to perfecting the county-wide body, delegates to represent the drys in the November election will be chosen. It was stated.

NO COLD FEET FOR HITLER SAYS AGED HANSFRAU

Neulewing, Germany.—(AP)—Knitting two pairs of woolen socks for Adolf Hitler to wear at his Vavarian mountain retreat was the greatest joy which Frau Marie Kleeman had when she celebrated her 102nd birthday recently.

A special nazid guard of honor visited her, and a congratulatory telegram from Hitler and a costly porcelain cup and saucer from the Prussian government were among the gifts.

"Mother" Kleeman's pride, however, centered in the socks. She mailed them to Hitler that same day and explained: "They'll keep Herr Hitler's feet warm even in the coldest weather. I'm sure he'll need them."

Late News Flashes From Over World

Leaf Markets Flooded. Raleigh, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Tobacco market warehouses in the Carolinas were swamped today as growers rushed their weed to them eager to sell despite the failure of prices to approach the parity figure of 17 cents set as the goal during the market holiday and subsequent efforts to raise prices.

Tobacco was being unloaded on the streets at Rocky Mount while warehousemen struggled to clear floors of the deluge of the weed. Estimates were made that 2,500,000 pounds had been brought to market and sales were expected to pass the 1,000,000 pound mark for the third day.

Conditions were similar in South Carolina markets. At Darlington floors were piled with leaf and some was being put in the streets. Prices were a little higher but most of the farmers reported no dissatisfaction was evident.

O. L. Boyett, sales supervisor at Smithfield, said farmers here were expressing much dissatisfaction. "This is a dissatisfied bunch today, the most dissatisfied I have seen this season," he said. He estimated the price average for the day would not be more than 11 cents a pound. About 500,000 pounds were on the floors with indication that little more than half could be sold today.

Official figures for the New Bern market gave sales there yesterday as 107,930 pounds at an average of $9.74 a hundred. The bulk of sales were of common and damaged grades and farmers were making no complaints. The market at Kinston was blocked today with the weed overflowing warehouses. The price average there yesterday was $12.37 a hundred for 1,047,730 pounds.

WIFE OF LEAF MAN IN PLOT OF EXTORTION

Mrs. S. Clay Williams Received Letters From Girl Seeking Education

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 27.—(AP)—The name of Mrs. S. Clay Williams, wife of the president of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, of Winston-Salem, was added to the list today of prominent Carolina women from whom Willie Mae Wheelless, 15, attempted to extort money for a college education.

Federal officials would reveal no further information concerning the letter to Mrs. Williams beyond saying she was an intended victim, and Mrs. C. F. Harris, of Wadesboro, wife of a wealthy physician and business man and Mrs. E. A. Judd, of Spartanburg.

Frank Littlejohn, chief of Charlotte detectives, said the investigation would be continued upon the theory the girl was not alone in the plot.

"We know a lot about what she did an attempted to do but we may not know all. You will have to give her credit for fixing up some wild letters if she did it all by herself, and maybe she had help from some other source. She said she got her cue from a detective magazine.

Meanwhile the child remained in the custody of her father-in-law at Ansonville and Sheriff S. M. Gaddy, who said she will not get away.

STORM FUND MOUNTS HERE

Pitt County Contributions Reach $100 for Sufferers Along The Coast

Contributions to the Red Cross fund for storm sufferers along the North Carolina Coast stood at $100 this morning, and W. J. Bundy chairman of the Red Cross here, urged the public to continue to give to the cause.

Mr. Bundy, who several days ago said a canvass for funds would be made this week said today this would be abandoned, but reiterated the need for liberal giving to the hundreds of people along the coast who had their homes swept away by the tropical hurricane which whipped coastal regions last week.

Contributions have been coming into the Red Cross and Reflector offices rapidly the last two days, and if they continue at the same rate of speed indications were that Pitt county would take its rank among the most liberal givers in the state.

The Red Cross is making an effort to relieve suffering as much as possible, but this will be impossible without liberal donations from those who appreciate what people are undergoing only a stone's throw from their own door.

The storm was the most devastating that has hit Carolina in many a day, and coastal towns will be years recovering from the ruin and desolation caused by gales and high water.

Additional names will be published tomorrow.

TEACHERS TO BE CLUB GUESTS

Kiwanians to Entertain Members of Public School Faculty Friday Night

Kiwanians will be host to members of the faculty of city schools at the Woman's Club Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

The entertainment of teachers is an annual affair with the Kiwanians and an effort will be made to make the program far greater interest this year than ever.

J. Frank Harrington, one of the club's humorists, and chairman of the program committee, and Charles Laughinghouse not so bad at the light vein stuff himself, will be in charge of the program.

Although the program had not been completed today, it was rapidly assuming form and by the date of the gathering something out of the ordinary was assured. This will be the first entertainment for teachers this year, as schools did not open until Monday owing to the curtailed term.

NEW MENACE IN TAMPICO STORM AREA

Disease, Hunger and Thirst Reported Adding to Terrors of Storm Section

Tampico, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Disease, hunger and thirst threatened to add terrors today to the storm which four days ago brought death and destruction here.

An official estimate placed the dead at 54 and the injured at more than 850. It was feared more deaths would be found in the ruins and that the number hurt might total 1,500.

There is enough wheat left to last only three days. Other food supplies are nearly gone. Medical and food articles have been sent from the city, but their arrival is problematical because of the disrupted rail service.

Much of the city lies in ruins. The harbor is filled with debris and cannot be used. Residents have to obtain water from small private wells for fear the broken public water system may be contaminated.

ASKS $30,000 FOR LOSS EYES

Former State Convict Sues Raleigh Granite Company For Damage Here

A negro prisoner who lost the sight of two eyes while serving a term at State prison today was seeking $30,000 damage in the civil term of Superior court here.

Jake Watson is the prisoner's name, and he is suing The Raleigh Granite Co. He lost his eyes while serving a 15-year sentence from Beaufort county on a charge of second degree murder. He was paroled when blindness overtook him and sent back home to the care of his people.

After being confined in State prison, Watson contends he was hired out to the Raleigh Granite Company and put to work cracking rocks. He lost one eye on this job from what he alleged to have been particles of stone lodging in his unprotected eye. Previously he had lost any eye while employed on a similar job with the City of Durham.

Watson contends his blindness was caused because he was furnished with no means of protecting his eyes. The defendants declared the injury resulted from negligence on the part of the plaintiff.

The suit now being heard is for the loss of one eye. Another for $15,000 is pending against the City of Durham and probably will be heard again sometime in the near future.

Hearing of the case against the Raleigh Granite Company started Monday afternoon and was expected to be completed during the early afternoon today. It will then go to the jury and it was problematical whether a verdict would be reached before late today.

MUCH TOBACCO OFFERED FOR SALE TODAY

Growing Dissatisfaction Among Farmers As Result of Price Situation

The first hour and half of sales on the local tobacco market today showed a price trend apparently lower than yesterday. At 10:30, however, there was a slight strengthening on some grades.

There was a note of growing dissatisfaction among the growers, in view of the drop in the average price yesterday and the low opening today.

Although there was much common and damaged tobacco on sale yesterday, opinion was divided as to whether it was more pronounced than the day before.

Much common tobacco was in evidence today. With over two million pounds of tobacco being offered for sale today farmers of this great bright leaf district were looking forward to prices nearer the parity of 17 cents as promised at the conference, between buyers and government officials at Washington the later part of last week.

Yesterday's market average dropped over a cent under that of the day before but this was said to be due to selling of tremendous quantities of tips and damaged leaf carried over from the day before.

The average yesterday was given as 11.75 on 1,485,375 pounds of tobacco which brought a total sum of $174,529.27.

Unmindful of the warning of Governor Ehringhaus that they market the crop slowly, farmers continued to rush their tobacco to market. Warehouse floors were jammed Monday and the same condition existed yesterday and today. Warehousemen also joined the governor in appealing for orderly marketing, but growers, short of money because of the prolonged holiday, were attempting to sell enough tobacco at the outset to meet some of their most pressing obligations.

People attending the opening sales were surprised at the large amount of black tips and damaged tobacco in evidence on first sales, but they were more surprised at the apparent increase of those grades when buyers hit the second sale houses yesterday.

Thousands of people have attended sales daily and scores of barbecue and concession stands in the tobacco warehouse district have done a thriving business. The pilgrimage of the farmers to the city has completely transformed the city from a state of lethargy to the most feverish activity. This condition will continue for several weeks as growers from miles around bring their offerings to sell on the largest bright leaf market in the world.

DESPERADO KILLS ONE MAN, WOUNDS ANOTHER

Scotland Neck, N. C., Sept. 27.—Saturday afternoon Ollie Richardson, who is part Indian and part negro, shot and killed another negro and seriously wounded a second at a logging camp near Hollister, in the upper end of Halifax County. Richardson, who thirteen years ago killed a white man and served part of a sentence in the penitentiary, until he escaped, was drinking and got into an argument over five cents worth of barbecue. He deliberately walked to a nearby house, got a gun and shot the negro in the side and then in the back, and after the wounded man dragged himself to a pile of lumber, walked up to him and hit him several times over the head with the butt of the gun. Another negro who attempted to interfere was shot in the leg.

Sheriff G. R. Johnson, aided by Deputies Bill Robinson and Joe Riddick searched untiringly for the desperado and finally captured him early Monday morning two miles from Scotland Neck. He is in jail at Halifax awaiting trial at the next criminal court.

Urbana, Ill.—(AP)—Having an automobile at one's disposal on the college campus has no deleterious effect on grades, according to statistics compiled by C. R. Frederick, assistant dean of men at the University of Illinois.

Frederick reports that he found 46.18 per cent of the men students who had cars rated above the all-university men's average, while 65 per cent of the women students with cars were above the all-university women's average of grades.

DON'T RUSH THE MARKETS

Yesterday's average tobacco price here was a little over a cent below Monday's opening sale and while today's figures will not be available until tomorrow, indications based upon early sales were that the price would be as low or lower than yesterday. This, however, will depend upon the prices throughout the day and only the official figures will tell the true story. There was a divided opinion as to the average quality of yesterday's offerings compared to Monday's opening and this morning there seemed to be a growing dissatisfaction on the part of the farmers.

In connection with the present situation we wish to bring to the attention of the growers the danger of continuing to rush the markets. Every market in the belt, from which we have had reports, is filled to overflowing which means that the growers are selling their tobacco under a very great disadvantage. It is still our opinion that all some of the buying companies need to keep prices down is just an excuse and the growers by rushing the markets are furnishing one of the finest excuses for the companies. It stands to reason that the companies are not going to pay as high prices with their factories filled to overflowing as they are when the tobacco is needed to keep the machines moving and the sooner the sales lighten up the sooner the latter condition will prevail. Then and only then will we be able to tell just what to expect from the crop.

The government has promised to see to it that the growers receive parity prices for this crop but as long as the markets stay glutted, giving the companies an excuse to keep the price down, more than likely it will stay down. We realize that much tobacco is graded and many of the growers, without money for a long time, feel compelled to market some of their crop just as quickly as possible, but let us again warn against the dangers of glutting the markets and urge you to sell just as little as possible until the present situation is cleared up.

Don't give the buying companies an excuse to pay low prices and then maybe they will come across rather than have the government take a hand.

Outrageous Fortune
by Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS: A man, picked up on the shore after the wreck of the Alice Arden, has been taken from the hospital by Nesta Riddell as her husband, Jimmy Riddell. He is at her brother Tom's house in Lexington. A few moments after Nesta and the man had left, Caroline Zeph arrives at the hospital, searching for her distant cousin, Jim Riddell. She is leaving, disappointed, when the nurse mentions a scrap of a letter she had found in her patient's pocket, with the signature "Caroline." So Caroline determines to continue her apparently hopeless search. Meanwhile the man awakes, and Nesta tells him he is her husband. He declares he does not know her; nor can he recall other events of the past.

Chapter Nine UNCOMPROMISING PAST

HE WOKE in the morning to the sound of Tom Williams clattering down the stairs and being softly hushed by Min. He was out of bed in a minute and at the door.

"I say, lend me a razor—there's a good chap!"

He found Tom embarrassed but friendly. The razor was produced, and Min brought him hot water and asked him timidly if he felt better. When he said, "I don't feel better—I feel well," she looked pleased; but when he added, "I expect I look like a cut-throat," she colored and ran away.

He shaved, dressed himself, and was relieved to find himself no more than just a little shaky. His clothes he discovered in a neat pile upon a shelf screened by a chintz curtain. The suit had been pressed, but it still had a smell of sea-water about it; one or two rents had been neatly mended.

He frowned at the clothes. They fitted him, so he supposed that they were his; but he couldn't remember them—he couldn't remember anything.

When he was dressed, he sat down on the edge of the bed and put his head in his hands. It was just as if a black gulf of nothingness were cutting him off from everything that had happened to him up till now. On this side of the gulf his mind was working in a perfectly normal manner.

Yesterday, for instance, was on this side of the gulf, and he remembered all about yesterday; he could have repeated his conversation with Nesta verbatim. But as to what had happened to him on the other side of the gulf, he had only her statements to go by. He went over them with a sort of puzzled horror.

His name was Jim Riddell.

He was married.

He had married Nesta Williams at the Grove Road registry office on July 25.

He had been on his way to Glasgow when the Alice Arden came to grief.

He had been going to Glasgow to "get off the map."

He ran his hands through his hair and asked himself why—and why—and why?

Why had he married a woman who hadn't the faintest atom of attraction for him? You may marry a woman for her looks, or for money, or for ambition, or for purely animal reasons, or for pity, or because you happen to love her.

Not a single one of these reasons applied to Nesta, Riddell. She was not an object of pity; the Williams were certainly not well-to-do; and mentally and physically she repelled him.

Over and above all this, he had a sense of her strangeness. He could not believe that he had held her in his arms, that they had kissed. She was stranger to him than someone whom he had never met—far more deeply strange than any of the forgotten people on the wrong side of the black gulf which cut him off from his past.

HE LEFT that.

Why had he been going to Glasgow?

Nesta had given him the answer—"get off the map."

Why had he got to "get off the map?"

The answer to that was somewhere on the other side of the gulf.

He went over everything that had happened yesterday down to the time when he had fallen asleep to the faint sound of an orchestra through the partition wall. He had slept without waking, but not without dreaming.

He leaned his head on his hands, and knew that those sleeping hours had not been spent in unconsciousness. The shadows of swift clashing events moved in them. They were like the shadows of George darting fish seen through waters veiled by mist. Mist—fog. Fog came into it—fog, and a voice.

His voice? Behind the fog, strange violent things, happening at an incredible speed, flashing through his mind too quickly to be grasped... like beads of light, strung on a dark chain... like a kid's green beads.

For an instant he saw a small brightly lighted picture. The light came from above, and swinging to and fro beneath it was a string of square green stones. They swung from a man's hand. There were eight of them—big, square, green stones; a double chain of pearls between every two.

He saw the man's hand, and the square green stones, and the pearls, and the light shining down on them. The voice said, "Like a kid's green beads," and everything went dark.

Some time after this Nesta was at the door. He thanked heaven that he was up and dressed. If he had had to lie there whilst she sat on the edge of his bed and talked, he might not be able to hide the violence of his recoil. Women always bullied a man when they had him at a disadvantage.

The thought of yesterday set his teeth on edge. To-day they would meet on equal terms, and he would try and remember that the situation was a horrible one for her. For himself it was very nearly intolerable. He hadn't a job, and as far as he knew, he hadn't a penny in the world.

What was he to do? Live on Nesta—borrow from Nesta? The situation was not only nearly, but quite, intolerable.

These thoughts went to and fro in his mind as they sat at breakfast in the small hot kitchen.

Tom Williams bolted a couple of rashers of bacon, gulped down his tea, and was off, saying that he would be late. The chug-chug of his motorcycle came back through the thin walls of the little house.

WITH recovered confidence Min began to tell him how wonderful Tom was at almost everything—"Why, he can cook as well as I can. And every bit of paper in this house is what he hung himself." It was a great relief to have Min's prattle get them through the meal. She had shy smiles for him now and no longer kept her eye on the door. So much for a shave!

When breakfast was over, he spoke to Nesta directly.

"Is there somewhere where we can talk?"

With no more than a nod she led the way into the parlor, with its saddle-back suite in bright shades of red and blue, its crimson Axminster square, and its silver photograph frames.

Into this room, so new, so garish, so commonplace, there came these two angry, incongruous people; and at once its slight emptiness became charged with strain, pressure, resistance.

Nesta waited for him to begin. She stood with her back to the window, leaning forward over one of the red and blue chairs in a would-be easy attitude. He walked to the woolly mat in front of the hearth, and said what he had planned to say.

"This is a rotten deal for you. I want to tell you I'm awfully sorry about it."

Heavens! How incredibly difficult she made it! His words, his efforts to get her point of view, slipped back from the hard surface she turned towards him. It was like seeing a fly slip on a pane of glass. She was angry, hard, resentful, cold.

But there was something else. He could feel the pressure of her will. Why should she be putting out her will against him like this? It got his back up. It made it too damned difficult to feel or say the decent thing. What was she to him after all, but a stranger whom he disliked?

He said, "I really am sorry," and the room filled again with her scornful silence.

She stood there leaning over the back of the chair with bright close-set eyes and just a hint of an angry smile breaking the straight line of her lips. There was something secret about that smile, something that said, "Take care—I can be even with you if I like."

He spoke before he knew what he was going to say.

"Why do you look at me like that? What's behind all this?"

"Ah!" said Nesta very softly. "You'd like to know—wouldn't you?"

The Mighty Rock

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Jelly Bear! Honey Bear!" shouted Willy Nilly. "Can you hear me? Are you all right?"

But not a sound came in answer to Willy Nilly's cries. Christopher Columbus Crow was flying overhead now.

"Caw, caw, what is the trouble?" "Can't you see?" answered Willy Nilly. "During that terrible storm there must have been a landslide and falling rocks—particularly around here where there are so many rocks and stones. And here, right in front of the entrance to the cave, is an enormous rock which is so big that it completely blocks the entrance."

"I don't know what has happened to Jelly Bear and Honey Bear. They don't answer me."

"But they spend the winters in caves," said Christopher Columbus Crow.

"That's very different," answered Willy Nilly. "In the late autumn they eat a great deal and they don't need a meal while they take a long, long sleep. But at this time of the year they can't do that.

"How will I ever get this rock away?"

"I could flap at it with my wings," said Christopher, "but I don't believe I'd be helping much."

"Jelly Bear, Honey Bear," shouted Willy Nilly again. "Are you all right?"

But not an answer came. "I've got to get this rock away. I don't know how I'm going to do it, but it must be done," Willy Nilly said with determination.

GREENVILLE MARKET REPORT

Our market reopened Monday selling 1,508,774 pounds for $193,462.97, at an average of $12.82

In so far as the Greenville Tobacco Market is concerned, there is being displayed a splendid spirit of cooperation with the Government in advancing the prices, and we confidently believe that a close approach to parity prices will prevail for the season's average

It is observed by everyone that there is a material increase in prices now paid for the medium and better grades. It is also known that yesterday's sale included a much larger percent of damaged tobacco than usual, which of course brings down the general average.

You will not find the tobacco buyers on any market cooperating in every way more splendidly than the buying forces on the Greenville Tobacco Market. This fact alone is more responsible for Greenville being the world's largest Tobacco market than any one factor. When such conditions as this exist on a tobacco market, better prices for the growers is always the result.

We advise against rushing your tobacco to the market as we believe prices will strengthen as the season progresses.

The Board of Trade does not permit under penalty of $50.00 fine, any warehouseman to reserve floor space for anyone. The principle of first come first served under the By-Law must be carried out.

Tune in on Greenville's Radio Station WEED every day (except Sunday) at 9:45 A. M., 12:45 P. M. and 5:45 P. M., for latest tobacco market reports. Will find it on your dial around 142 or 1420.

MEETING OF WESLEY PHILATHEA CLASS

The Wesley Philathea Class of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church held its first meeting of the fall on Monday night at the home of Mrs. E. L. Hillman, with Mrs. L. L. Rives and Miss Addie Conleton assisting hostesses.

There was a large attendance, 40 members answering to roll call. Several members of the class are teachers in other departments of the Sunday school, and seldom have the opportunity to attend the class, which is so ably taught by Mrs. W. C. Vincent. But these women kept in close contact and united interest by their association in the monthly class meeting, which is the business and social organization, carrying building and loan shares to help pay for the Sunday school annex; the support of an orphan in the M. E. orphanage at Raleigh; and various other activities of social service and religious work.

The president, Mrs. Milton White, presided, rounding out two years of service. She spoke appreciatively of the faithful attendance and loyal support of the members of the class. The worship program was given by Mrs. Hortense Moyer, who read the sixth chapter of 2nd Corinthians, and spoke feelingly of the privilege of a Christian to work in union with God. Mrs. T. A. Person led in prayer.

A brief business session followed with reports of officers. The treasurer, Mrs. J. B. Mallison, had an unusually good report, all obligations paid and a substantial balance in the treasury.

Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Mrs. Wiley Brown, president; Mrs. K. W. Cobb, vice-president; Mrs. J. B. T. Futrell, secretary; Mrs. J. B. Mallison, treasurer; Mrs. W. C. Vincent, teacher; Mrs. T. A. Person and Mrs. H. E. Austin, assistant teachers.

With a few appreciative words, Mrs. Person presented Mrs. White with a small token of affection in behalf of the class, to which Mrs.

CRAWFORD ALL SET FOR THE DUKE OPENING

Durham, N. C., Sept. 27.—Freddie is ready and all is well at Duke. Crawford, the Blue Devil tackle, and the greatest star of modern football history at the institution, is probably in better shape this fall than he has ever been at the start of a gridiron campaign.

Reports that opposing teams are planning to "gang" him in order to keep him out of their backfields make it necessary for him to be just about twice as good as he was last year. And in the Duke camp they'll vouch that he is even better than twice as good.

There is nothing the husky mountaineer likes better than being "ganged." The more men opposing teams put on him, the greater he plays. He is one of the most vicious football players in the game today.

Has named on the All-Southern first team and the All-American second team last year because he was rated as the fastest man going down under punts and the fastest offensive charger in the game as well as being extra-ordinary in all other departments of tackle play.

He is a football player for the "pinches." While he stands out above the field in every contest, it is when the battle gets nip-and-tuck that he is at his best. In the Auburn game last year he was far above every lineman on the field and was in every play. Against Tennessee when it appeared that Duke was going to take a trouncing, he "float-ed" out of the line, intercepted a pass and dashed off 72 yards for a touchdown that led the Devils to a tie with the Vols before they were beaten out in the final two minutes of play by a field goal.

Defies Death Daily

An extraordinary feature in the program of the combined World Bros., Buffalo Ranch Wild West, coming to Greenville next Saturday September 30 is the appearance of the noted animal trainer Capt. Walker. He is said to be every bit as clever as the far famed Beatty and really accomplishes some remarkable feats with the big lions in his act. Armed with only a common kitchen chair, a whip and a blank cartridge pistol he enters the large steel arena, and first has the big Nubians form pyramids and take their places on pedestals; Four of them sit down to a table and are fed raw meat from his bare hands, and Duke the largest and most ferocious of them all leaps through hoops of fire. He has them all jump the hurdles and concludes his performance by lying prostrate in the center of the group after tossing his whip and gun to an attendant on the outside.

The captain has been handling and training lions for many years and bears plenty of scars to attest to the danger attendant upon the calling. He also has had remarkable success with tigers and leopards said to be the most treacherous of all wild animals. He works the elephant act with the circus and is an all round animal man. Although he has had years of experience he is still a young man, and he laughingly says the lions have plenty of time to get him yet.

NEW GULF GAS RECEIVES APPROVAL

That the American motorist is deeply interested in the gasoline he uses is proved by the announcement by the Gulf Refining Company that hundreds of testimonials are pouring in relative to the newly perfected Gulf gasoline. These letters from motorists are appearing only one week following the actual introduction of the gasoline with the higher anti-knock rating.

When the announcement of the Gulf Refining Company was broadcast last week, it was told that the new gasoline had a higher octane rating of from three to eight points. This announcement was important to the car owner, who demands smooth performance, quick starting and power. According to the letters on the subject, hundreds of motorists are trying the new motor fuel and finding its quality highly satisfactory.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The deflation of inflationary speculative enthusiasm gave the security market a bearish tone today and many disheartened traders liquidated their holdings at sharp price recessions.

Utilities shares generally showed some resistance to selling, but there was little sport for other groups. Issues off one to four or more points at one time included Allied Chemical, American Can, American Telephone, Dupont, U. S. Steel, General Motors, Westinghouse, United Aircraft, Western Union, National Distillers, American Commercial, Seaboard, Air Line, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, U. S. Smelting, American Smelting and Alaska June issues suffered successive declines in the forenoon, but a quiet rally in the late trading cut early losses of one to around four points.

Transfers were 2,200,000 shares.

Indicted For Hoarding.

New York, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Fred Barber Campbell, attorney, who yesterday filed suit to test action of President Roosevelt against gold hoarders, was indicted on a federal charge of hoarding gold.

The suit was filed in federal court yesterday against the Chase National Bank to compel the institution to return to him 27 bars of gold bullion he said he had entrusted to the bank's care as security for hire.

Federal authorities here said the indictment today made him the first defendant in prosecutions involving the gold hoarding act.

To Advance Full Cotton Loans

Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—E. F. Creekmore, general manager of the American Cotton Cooperative Association told newspaper men today that his organization intended to lend the full amount of the government loan on cotton to its members as soon as the government had worked out details of the plan.

Creekmore and other officials of the American Cotton Cooperative Association and cotton factors today discussed details of the government plan announced recently with Oscar Johnson finance administrator of the farm adjustment administration.

The farm administration announced it would lend 10 cents a pound on cotton still in the hands of producers.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened fairly steady two to four lower with steeper Liverpool cables offset by southern selling.

Prices later rallied to about yesterday's close. December which had eased to 10.05 advanced to 10.10 with active months ruling about unchanged to three higher at the end of the first half hour.

The market remained quiet later in the morning with prices holding steady within a range of 8 to 10 points.

The easier ruling of wheat and the heavy ynone of the stock market brought little selling but after easing to 10.03 for December or six net lower the market steadied again and ruled unchanged to three lower at midday.

Can there be any stronger recommendation for a car than this

CHEVROLET Chevrolet leading in sales by the widest margin in history! So far ahead of its field that no other car comes near it! Headed straight for its third consecutive year in first place—its fifth year out of the past seven.

What more could you possibly want as a recommendation for a low-priced car than that?

America can't be fooled when it comes to spotting the best "buy" in any field. America knows too much about motor cars for that. So when one certain car wins almost as many buyers as the next two put together, you know the answer: IT MUST BE BETTER. And that's what the new Chevrolet Six most certainly is.

Better looking—it has long, sleek, aer-streamed lines—Fisher's smartest styling. Chevrolet has better bodies—they're built not just of steel alone, but of steel reinforced by a sturdy hardwood frame. Chevrolet has a better engine—six cylinders for lowest gas and oil consumption, cushion balancing for killing vibration. And Chevrolet gives more and better features, including a Starterator, Synco-Mesh gear-shift and Free Wheeling.
