TOBACCO GROWERS WAIT WORD FROM PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Expected to Make An Early Reply to Governor Who Asked Improved Prices

EHRINGHAUS SAYS PARTY PRICE NEEDED

Failure to Obtain Higher Prices, Governor Declares May Bring Results Difficult to Forecast; Says Growers who Signed Reduction Agreement Expect Higher Prices

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Tobacco markets of North and South Carolina opened for another week's sales today while growers awaited word from President Roosevelt on the appeal for aid made by Governor Ehringhaus.

Asking the President to intervene personally, the governor in a telegram to President Roosevelt Saturday said: "Parity prices were necessary to avoid results which it is difficult to forecast."

The governor pointed out that growers who signed the government acreage reduction contracts in the recent marketing holiday in the Carolinas were promised parity prices. Efforts to have the middle belt open tomorrow instead of October 10 were unsuccessful. Sales will begin as scheduled.

The governor has sent the President the following message:

Here is the Governor's telegram to President Roosevelt in full: "Honorable Franklin D. Roosevelt, President, Washington, D. C.

"May I not entreat your personal attention to plight of fire-cured tobacco growers. Their situation, for which you have expressed sympathy in answer to my former communications, has grown desperate. Starvation prices brought about marketing holiday. Appeal to Agricultural Department resulted in request for crop reduction contracts, which were signed enthusiastically and almost unanimously. For these Government agents promised parity prices or the exercising of every governmental power to obtain them. Hearing on Government proposed marketing agreements held over week ago. Spokesmen for domestic manufacturers at this hearing protested their desire to pay parity prices, but yet prices offered on re-opened markets are pitifully low. Fulfillment of Government promise or parity means easy success in other Government activities on this line. Failure involves tremendous loss of confidence in government, admission of its inability to cope with great whole agricultural relief program, destitution and other dangers. While representatives of buyers and manufacturers haggle over details of agreement, prices continue to slump, their agents continue to acquire more and more of the crop at these prices, and unrest, distrust and indignation increase. Continued hesitancy and inaction is increasingly demoralizing. Immediate action of some kind is necessary.

"I beg you with all the earnestness at my command to intervene personally in this situation and insist upon immediate action and the accomplishment of parity in order to avoid results which it is difficult to forecast, as well as accomplish something to equity for a terribly distressed people. The situation challenges the power of the National Government. Our people have every confidence in you, and as their spokesman I am making this appeal to you direct because of the extreme importance of the situation and the possibilities involved. Immediate action is imperative. The growers feel that the government promised parity in return for reduction contracts, and unless parity is achieved the administration will suffer a terrific loss in prestige in a territory where it has most friends. Forgive me but do not underestimate the earnestness, the sincerity, and the imperativeness of this appeal. I will be glad to come to Washington."

VA. READY FOR REPEAL FIGHT

State to Vote on Prohibition Issue Tomorrow; Governor For Repeal

Richmond, Va., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Virginia after an unusually quiet campaign of drys against wets will vote on the thirty-second State tomorrow on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and on the question of liquor control law for her State prohibition act.

Interest in the final hours of the campaign was heightened by announcement of Governor Pollard he would vote for repeal.

In a formal statement, the governor, a life-long dry, said it would not be fair for Virginia to vote for retention of the Eighteenth Amendment after thirty-one States has voted for repeal.

"I shall furthermore exert myself," the governor added, "to secure the best liquor-control law possible."

Liquor Control Issue Raps At F.D.R.'s Door

Among the memoranda awaiting President Roosevelt's attention, one he gets a moment from the dizzy activities of economic reconstruction, is one asking an old, old question: "What about liquor control?"

GIVES FACTS ON SALES TAX

T. T. Hollingsworth Explains Collections Effective Last July 1st

T. T. Hollingsworth, deputy sales tax collector, today issued the following information regarding collection of the tax:

"Under the provisions of the Sales Tax Act, which went into effect on July 1, 1933, merchants liable for the tax are required to make monthly reports if the tax during the month amounts to as much as $10. If the tax did not amount to as much as $10 per month, merchants are allowed to make quarterly returns.

"The first quarter under the Sales Tax Act ends on October 1, and at that time reports will be due to be filed which are required to be filed on or before the 15th of October for all merchants in the State.

"All merchants who have not made monthly returns and those who have made monthly returns will make returns within those dates.

"It is going to be impossible for me to see every merchant in the territory to help them fill out their returns. The law requires that returns be made out by them and sent in with check for their tax liability before the 15th of October, and merchants should not wait to make their returns until I see them, but should send them in themselves directly. If any merchant should find it impossible to make his returns out, if he will communicate with me at my office, the address of which is Chamber of Commerce Office, I will be glad to be of any help that I can.

FATHER IDENTIFIES BODY OF DEAD SON

Spartanburg, S. C., Oct. 2.—(AP)—A youth killed by a freight train here nine days ago was identified tonight as Carol Ensley 16 of Canton, N. C.

Identification was made by L. E. Ensley of Canton, father, and Frank Ensley, brother, who identified him by high yellow boots which the boy was wearing when the wheels of a train mangled his body, causing instant death. They said the boots were issued Carol in the army and that the number on them represented his army serial number.

The youth had been missing since September 21 and the family had no idea of his fate until brought here after being shown a newspaper account of the accident by neighbors.

LABOR ALL SET FOR BIG FIGHT

Momentous Convention Seen as Labor Federation Begins Session

Washington, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Old jurisdictional problems and new ones added by the recovery act promises to fulfill predictions that the American Federation of Labor convention starting today will be at least as momentous as those in war days.

This was the statement of its officers and President William Green, who was hopeful a little attempt at reason would induce the approximately 500 delegates to lay aside the factional dispute and work together in the recovery war as they had in the last real war.

He and his aides were confronted with a number of problems among them the contention of many that the recovery program is moving toward a showdown and that only a show of real strength in strikes will bring the desired speed.

DR. M'GEACHY KIWANIS HEAD

Dink James Also Chosen Vice-President at Teachers' Night Program

Dr. R. S. McGeachy, director of the Pitt County Public Health department, was elected president of the Kiwanis Club at the twice-a-month meeting of the organization at the Woman's Club last Friday night. He succeeds Rev. E. L. Hillman, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, who served for the customary term of one year.

Dink James was also elected to the vice-presidency, a position held by Dr. McGeachy until his elevation to the presidency. Four members to the board of directors were also chosen. They were: Dr. J. M. Barrett, S. B. Law, Charles Flye and Donald Conley.

In addition to the election of officers, the Kiwanians held their annual entertainment for members of the faculty of city schools. The evening is always looked forward to with keen anticipation by the club membership and the program Friday night was in keeping with past years.

The visitors were extended a brief welcome by President Hillman, but it was left to Rev. W. A. Ryan to tell the teachers how the Kiwanians appreciate having them every year. The response was made by Miss Eva Keeter.

Allan Moore and Jack Kittrell were presented as Junior Kiwanians for the month. Each month two high school students who have the best all around rating are picked for this distinction, and the youngsters were given a round of applause as they arose in response to the welcome accorded by the president.

The program was in charge of J. F. Harrington and Charles Laughlin, humorists of established reputation, who said and did things that caused many a ripple of laughter. Outstanding among the gifts to numbers of the lady guests and the singing of teachers and Kiwanians picked especially for this duty.

The Kiwanians were presented tickets to the state fair and members of the visitors were given free passes to State Theatre through the courtesy of the manager, T. Y. Walker.

President Hillman called attention of the Kiwanians to the divisional meeting of Kiwanis to be held in this city October 13. The session will be one of the most important held in the city in some time, it was said, and clubmen were looking forward to the gathering with much interest.

LEAF PRICES BETTER HERE

Advance Noted on Improved Grades; Market Expected to Clear Today

The price situation was reported better on the Greenville tobacco market today with much of the congestion which has been in evidence the past week partly cleared up. Indications pointed to the virtual clearing of all floors by completion of sales late this afternoon.

Better grades of leaf displayed more strength than when the market closed for the week last Friday, and based on estimates of the first few hours of sales, it was indicated the best average of the season would be established.

The quality of tobacco was described as improved over the first few days of last week and competitive bidding was keen.

ANOTHER IS ALSO SLAIN IN CONFLICT

Employe of Swift and Company Killed by Stray Bullet While Watching Battle Around Hotel in Havana; Washington Notified of Slaying But no Indication of Intervention Evident

Havana, Cuba, Oct. 2.—(AP)—At least two persons, one an American, were killed in the course of a pitched battle between army and navy officers in the National Hotel and soldiers who attached from the outside. One of the dead was Robert G. Lotspich, Havana manager for Swift & Company, who was killed by a stray bullet as he watched the fighting from the Lopez Cerrado apartment where he lived nearby.

The other man and most of the more than a dozen injured were unidentified as the fighting continued with such intensity that immediate checks was impossible.

What started the battle early today was not immediately learned, but most sources agreed the shooting started in the streets near the residence of President Grau San Martin, six blocks from the mansion and later at the hotel.

Among the wounded were Camillo Castro, 17, son of the owner of Castro apartment house. He was struck by a bullet while looking at the battle through field glasses. Amid scenes of wild confusion that spread through the city army plane roared over the hotel roof garden.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Ambassador Welles in Havana quickly notified Secretary Hull today of the killing of an American in the fighting here but there was no indication of American intervention. Ambassador Welles by telephone told how Robert Lotspich, assistant manager of Swift & Company, had started out to watch the fighting and was killed by a stray shot as soldiers attempted to dislodge army officers in the National Hotel by heavy fire.

Top Notch's Thought
 BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Willy Nilly, the little spume-like man who made his home with his animal friends in Puddle Muddle, was feeling himself once more. The country was recovering from the food and honey and Jelly Bear had helped to get Top Notch's shed back where it belonged.

"I'll have to fix up my place," said Willy Nilly, "as the grounds need attention after the storm."

"Cock-a-doodle-do," crowed Top Notch, the Rooster. "You can't stop to do that now. I've just had a most important thought."

"Can't you go on thinking while I'm working?" inquired Willy Nilly.

"We must all work together on this," answered Top Notch. "Has it occurred to you that we haven't any school in Puddle Muddle? What is going to happen to us if we don't improve our minds, and what is going to happen to the little Ducks and the younger animals around the countryside if they're not educated? Of course I'm so very well informed that I don't have to learn anything and so I could be the teacher."

"Caw, caw," said Christopher Columbus Crow. "I am much brighter than you are."

"You are tricky," replied Top

SYNOPSIS: Nesta Riddell has told Jimmy Riddell that he is her husband, that he has stolen the Van Berg emeralds, and shot their owner. He has had a blow on the head, and can't remember his past. Caroline Leigh, searching for her missing cousin Jim Riddell, fears Jimmy Riddell may be he; she has picked up Nesta's trail through a bill for a coat-sewist, and plans to find her in Ledington and question her. Caroline is talking with Patsy Arubothnot, who, whom she likes.

"I THINK you might talk about something," said Patsy in an aggrieved voice.

Caroline was quite ready to talk about anything except Jim.

"What shall we talk about?"

"You might have brought an evening paper," Patsy was still aggrieved.

"I wasn't near one. What did you want it for?"

"I wanted to know whether there was anything more about the emeralds and Mr. Van Berg."

"Why should there be?"

Caroline wasn't really listening. She was thinking that she could get to Ledington by eleven. She was thinking that fourteen hours was a very long time to wait.

"Well," Patsy went on, "he'll either be better or else worse. Won't

We congratulate Governor Ehringhaus for his action in bringing to the attention of President Roosevelt, in no uncertain terms, the situation of the tobacco farmers of this section as a result of the apparent inaction on the part of the government. When the tobacco markets went on a holiday because of the low prices and the matter was taken up with the farm administration officials of that body very definitely promised to use every resource of the government to secure parity prices if the farmers would sign acreage reduction contracts. The farmers lost no time in carrying out their part of the bargain and naturally they expected results from the government before this time. That they had confidence in the ability of the government was evidenced by the fact that over 96 per cent of them willingly signed the acreage reduction contracts upon the promise of better prices and if the government is to continue in the confidence of these people it must make good.

Notch, with a shake of his head, "but not intelligent."

"That's where you're wrong but you're too conceited to admit it," returned Christopher. "Not only can I play a trick and a prank once in a while, as life would be so dull without a touch of mischief, but I'm known for their cleverness. I'll be the teacher."

"I'll be the teacher," quacked Mr. Quacko. "Neither of you could teach swimming!"

Tomorrow—"The Argument"

only lost the profits of their labor but they have begun to lose the confidence in the government which they helped to create and by which they had been assured of present help. In that week, too, the farmers have begun to feel that the manufacturers have had more consideration from officials in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration than has been given the farmers themselves. These feelings on the part of the farmers may not be justified. The problem which Washington must solve is not an easy one. But it is a problem which must be solved with dispatch if it is solved at all. Delay means not only days passing but months of destitution for planters whose tobacco is sold at pitiful prices while manufacturers "haggle" and officials listen to their haggling.

Governor Ehringhaus does not overstate the case in his message to the President when he declares that the power and faith of the government is on trial in the matter. As he says, "the situation challenges the power of the national government." As he says, also, the people and the planters have every confidence in President Roosevelt. It is for that reason that the Governor's appeal goes direct to him. The planters know his courage and his power. They act to uphold him when, through the Governor as their spokesman, they tell him that "fulfillment of the government's prime of parity means easy success in other government activities on this line," while "failure involves tremendous loss of confidence in government, admission of its inability to cope with great tobacco interests, utter collapse of whole agricultural relief program, destitution and other dangers."

Governor Ehringhaus' telegram is the report of a vigorous captain in the field to his great leader. Somewhere the staff has been fumbling. For days the staff has been listening to men who bargain while other men are destroyed. There is not loss of faith in the great leader. President Roosevelt himself, but the time has come and Governor Ehringhaus has acted in that time to sweep past the slow councils of flaggers and place the fate of thousands of men and women into the strong and direct hands of the President himself.

That the President will guard the confidence of his people there can be no doubting. That confidence is both his power and the hope of America. It must not be destroyed.

COTTON CONSUMPTION HITTING HIGH MARKS

New York, Oct. 2.—(AP)—World consumption of American cotton was at an unusually high level in August and at an annual rate in excess of the crop this year, the New York cotton exchange service reported today.

August consumption approximated 1,260,000 bales compared with 1,067,000 a year ago, 936,000 two years ago and 799,000 in 1930.

Without allowing for seasonal variation, said the report, "consumption in August was on an annual basis or about 15,200,000 bales. The current crop is estimated at approximately 12,400,000 bales. If consumption should continue at the present annual rate, this would result in reducing world stocks this season by about 2,800,000 bales.

World consumption was the largest for any August since 1927 "and probably the second largest total on record."

MANY NEW STOCK BRANDS REGISTERED IN NEBRASKA

Lincoln, Neb.—(AP)—Branding irons are glowing in Nebraska this year.

Eleven hundred new brands have been registered with the secretary of state here since January 1, compared with 1,400 during the previous two years. There are about 13,000 registered brands.

L. B. Mauplin, in charge of the registrations, said that government loan requirements and a new law fixing a penalty for using an unregistered brand had caused the increase.

Caroline wanted Mrs. Riddell's address.

It is dreadful if he dies? Jim having known him seems to bring it home so. You know, of course it must be wonderful to have the finest emeralds in the world—and I simply adore emeralds—don't you?—but just think of the anxiety. Even if they get them back, I shouldn't think that Mrs. Van Berg ever want to wear them again—anyhow not if he dies. I should think she'd always feel as if there was blood on them."

Caroline winced, not visibly, but deep inside herself. She couldn't talk about a woman who was waiting to know whether her husband was going to die. Jim had written about the Van Bergs from New York—they had been awfully good to him—Mrs. Van Berg was pretty and kind. The emeralds were like a fairy tale.

Now it was spilt. She couldn't bear to think about kind, pretty Suse Van Berg with everything failed to bits around her. A shot in the night had broken the fairy tale. She wished that Patsy Ann would stop picking over the pieces.

Caroline left her car in the Market Square at Ledington next day. Then she walked round the corner into Market Street and penetrated into Mr. Smithies' ironmongery. The day was damp and rather muggy, and the shop was full of mingled smells of paraffin, turpentine, varnish, tin-ware, and creosote.

Caroline asked for coalcuttles, and having been led into the corner which they shared with patent wringers, law-mowers and wheelbarrows, she produced Mrs. Riddell's bill and smiled trustfully upon a freckled young man whose red hair rose a sheer three inches from a rather pallid brow.

"I do wonder if you can help me," said Caroline, her voice very soft and deep. "It would be so very kind if you would."

The young man blushed. He was a susceptible young man.

"Was it anything in the way of a purdonium?"

Spoken, the word was completely awe-inspiring. Caroline found herself echoing it in a rapt mental recitative: "Cadmium—chromium—suphonium—harmonium—purdonium?"

Fielding Makes the Pitcher

Charles Fred Lucas is a man of few words, mostly well chosen. He is sticily built, readily manifesting the stamina that annually carries him through more completely pitched games than most any other hurler in either league. He has won 100 and lost 87 games in nine big league seasons, the last seven with the second-division Reds. He can hit, too, and play either the infield or outfield. There is no necessity of adopting the suggestion to have a tenth man bat for the pitcher when Lucas is in the line-up.

"Good fielding can and does make good pitching," remarked Lucas. "But the reverse isn't true, as one of the boys suggested the other day. "A club that is hustling and putting up a great defense behind its pitching is a big factor in making the hurler look good. That's why these Giant pitchers have had such a great year. They are being backed up in wonderful style. The Giants have a fine defense.

"On the other hand, many a good pitcher will look bad consistently because balls are skidding past infielders or being missed my outfielders and going for hits."

Lauds Mancuso

Lucas is among the observers—which also include Manager Bill Terry of the Giants—who give Gus Mancuso a large chunk of the credit for where the league leaders from Gotham are today.

He thinks Gus has done one of the great jobs of the year, even though it is quite true that when the votes for the year's most valuable player award are counted Carl Hubbell will be found to have many more ballots than the hard-working backstop.

Mancuso has weathered the double-header grind better than any member of the Giants' battery de-

in the Series

GUS MANCUSO

New York.—(AP)—The Giants' catching staff virtually consists of Gus Mancuso, August Mancuso and A. Rodney Mancuso. There's another receiver around, named Paul Richards, but you would never know it from watching the box scores.

Mancuso not only has appeared in more games this season than any player on the New York team except Mel Ott, but he has done a noble job of handling the Giants' pitching staff and has hit consistently over the 250 mark.

Born at Galveston, Texas, in 1905, Gus was inducted into the St. Louis Cardinals' chain system at the tender age of twenty, first at Houston. For the next nine years he was with Syracuse, Minneapolis, Rochester, Houston again. Fort Smith and almost any other club that comes to mind until the Cards bought him in to stay in 1930. He hit 366 in seventy-six games that year.

He saw considerable action as the Cards' second-string backstop in '31 and '32 but it didn't seem to be getting anywhere. It was a real break for him when Bill Terry, remodeling his Giants last winter, decided that Mancuso was the scrapping dependable catcher he wanted.

Bill gave up a lot to get Gus, including a fine pitcher in Bill Walker, but he's never had a chance to regret it. He gives Mancuso most of the credit for the sterling work of his pitchers.

Mancuso is not great fielding backstop. Early in the year the fans dubbed him "butter-fingers." But he's long since made them forget that. He's "Good Old Gus" now, and he is credited with having much to do with the success of the club's inner defense. If he doesn't detect some of the enemy signals, he at least has a "seventh sense" for guessing them.

Comparing Views

One thing to be remembered about the New York majority situation: Teamwork is interested primarily in city politics, secondarily in New York State politics. Administration politicians are interested primarily in national politics, secondarily in state politics. It is at Albany that these two interests overlap, and it is toward state control that the eyes of Washington will be directed if and when Washington openly intervenes.

 RAPS AT F. D. R.'S DOOR

was real rather than diplomatic, although by coincidence it had its diplomatic aspect. His absence flattened out NRA activities so completely that for the first time in weeks news was scarce. That fitted in exactly with administration ideas of shifting the spotlight for the moment to Mr. Roosevelt's credit expansion activities.

There is a very good reason why officials close to the White House have given away no secrets about the President's currency reform plans. They just don't know. In every conference Mr. Roosevelt has been full of questions, but this is one subject on which he has kept his opinions almost entirely to himself.

Take Your Choice.

Republican close harmony as recorded in one day's headlines: Former Senate Leader Watson urges Republicans to oppose the Roosevelt policies. Former War Secretary Hurley urges Republicans to support the NRA. Present Senate Leader McNary urges Republicans to keep quiet and watch and wait.

Not all the worries about party solidarity are on the Republican side. Administration officials grow very serious when they contemplate the currency debate which seems inevitable at the January session of Congress. Will it be humanly possible to draw up a policy that will go far enough to satisfy Senator Elmer Thomas and not too far to satisfy Senator Carter Glass?

FARM NOTES

By E. F. ARNOLD,
County Agent

With acreage reduction in wheat, cotton and tobacco throughout the United States, it is calculated that there will be a considerable demand for all kinds of legume seed. Consequently, the Extension Service of Pitt County is urging that farmers save seeds of every description for their own use in connection with acreage reductions and for sale to other parties. This is true especially of soybeans. The demand should be good and the price fair.

It is hoped that everyone will make a special effort to properly care for seed they may be able to save on their farms. This office will be glad to assist in the disposal of same when reported to us by farmers.

Mutual Exchange
The Mutual Exchange will be glad to assist farmers in securing seeds for sowing on lands that have been taken out of cotton and tobacco production. Therefore, the farmers who wish to pool their orders with the Exchange should do so at once for fall seed in order to give time for purchasing and delivering same.

Cotton Checks
All cotton checks will be mailed to this office and farmers will be notified by letter to call for same. To date we have only received 136 checks, all of which have been delivered.

We have urged the Department at Washington to mail these out as rapidly as possible but it seems that it is difficult to get action of the Department. However, they have promised to have all checks which have not been delivered because of errors or other complications in my office between now and October 15.

I would suggest that you look after your mail carefully and any letter from the Government should be opened and read. Some folks are in the habit of discarding these letters as circulars. However, they may contain important notices.

The WORLD OF STAMPS

By QUINTON JAMES

A complete new issue of postage and postage due, comprising all 32 stamps, has been prepared by the island of Reunion, a small French colony of France in the Indian Ocean off the coast of Madagascar. The postage stamps comprise the first basic change in the design since 1907 and since 1902 for the dues, although several different surcharges have been put out in the meanwhile.

Three designs and a multiplicity of colors are used for the postage issue, totaling 22 and ranging from one centime to 20 francs. A waterfall is depicted on the stamps from the lowest value to 30 centimes; the next group, 40 to one franc, has a mountain scene, while on the remainder is the front of the Leon Deix museum. Deix, a French poet, was born in Reunion.

The Reunion coat of arms is contained on each of the ten postage dues, ranging from five centimes to three francs in value. A color scheme similar to that for the postage is followed.

The Byrd Stamp

A plan somewhat unusual for United States postage is to be followed in the case of the forthcoming Byrd expedition 3-cent stamp. It will not be placed on sale in post-offices generally and will be for use only on mail to be sent to the Byrd party in the Antarctic. In addition to the three cents for the stamp, 50 cents extra will be required as a "service charge."

The navy blue stamp is to be the size of the current special delivery. It will have a geographic globe bearing dotted lines showing Byrd's past flights as well as his proposed flight in 1934.

The stamp issued by Haiti commemorating the first non-stop flight by Boyd and Lyons between New York and Haiti last June is to be listed in the catalog.

It's a Push Button Symphony, Without Baton Conductor Plays Orchestra Like Typewriter

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (Associate Press Science Editor) Ithaca, N. Y. —(AP)—Combining music with electrical engineering, Professor Vladimir Karapetoff of Cornell University has devised what he calls the electrical dirigent, a substitute for the orchestra conductor's baton.

The dirigent is an electrical keyboard, played by the conductor's fingers, each key lighting signals on the music stands of his players. The signals are colored lights, four of them flashing alike on the stand but two others on each stand carrying only individual messages.

Professor Is Cellist
Dr. Karapetoff is professor of electrical engineering. He is also a lifelong orchestra player, the cello his hobby.

For a long time, he says, "I have felt the inadequacy of controlling a large body of musicians by means of wavy motions of two arms, and a recurring expression of rage on the conductor's face."

"Because the conductor cannot possibly indicate all that he wants with his two hands, and a few facial muscles, numerous rehearsals are necessary, until the musicians actually remember what to do in the important places. Rehearsals force the conductor to abide by the inter-preparation drilled into the musicians at the rehearsals."

Combination Varied

Explaining the combination of signals possible, with six lights on each music stand, Dr. Karapetoff says: "The conductor can push one button for the first beat of each measure and one of the other buttons for the remaining beats of the measure. Thus with a three-four time the white may flash the first beat and the blue the other two. The red light may mean softer, the green louder. The green and red together may mean 'hold.'"

"And when they're extinguished the player or singer is to stop the sound."

"Besides these four which simultaneously light on all the music stands, each musician has before him two more miniature lights. He knows that these are individual signals for him lone."

"Two fields suggest themselves at once for such a device—the educational field and the commercial orchestras or ensembles. The device could also find application in church music.

"I call the device the electrical dirigent. The word dirigent means orchestra conductor in German."

'LONG DISTANCE' COASTER MAKES JOURNEY UNNOTICED

Memphis, Tenn. —(AP)— Danny McAfee, 12, a bold young adventurer went from here to Dyersburg, Tenn., a distance of approximately 80 miles, in his little red coaster wagon.

No one knew of the trip until he arrived at his grandparents' home 24 hours after his departure from Memphis, asking for fried chicken and "all the trimmin's."

He said he coasted most of the way.

Strengthened By Cardui

"Just after the birth of my son, I was weak and nervous," writes Mrs. W. H. Harrison, of Tulsa, Okla. "My back ached. I didn't get my strength back until I had taken Cardui. It seemed to build me up and give me strength. I was less nervous. Since that time, I was irregular. Not knowing anything better than Cardui, that is what I took, with good results. It settled my nerves, built up my strength. I have a good color, do all my work and feel fine thanks to Cardui."

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 2—(AP)—The uncertainties apparently overruled certainties in the financial market today and stocks and staples melted about hesitatingly in trading which marged on the duller of the year.

Equalities led by the recently hard pressed American Telephone were for sale at reduced prices in the first hour. There was no rush of buyers and the ticker tape moved lazily.

Shares of U. S. Smelting showed advance after being down more than two points. Issues of Cere Depasco, McIntyre, Dome and American were fractionally higher. American Can, Commercial Alcohol, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Standard Oil and New York Central steadied. American Telephone was steady. Standard Oil points and Consolidated Gas one point. General Motors, Case and General Electric eased. U. S. Steel held about even.

The late tone was again heavy as a number of the leaders resumed their decline. Transfers were 960,000 shares.

Roosevelt Talks To Veterans.

Chicago Stadium, Chicago, Oct. 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt dyked his veteran economy program with plain talk and a smile, today before the world war soldiers assembled in the American Legion convention.

The band swung into the national anthem as the President took his place on the platform. With an overseas cap of the American Legion set on his head he stood rigidly at attention while the band finished playing.

He told the cheering men in blue after a tumultuous reception that greater benefits were hoped for the veterans who suffered disability in service but he stood by his rule against special benefits; to those who incurred injury or disease not connected with the service.

Walking onto the platform where he accepted the nomination as President from the Democratic convention in 1932, Mr. Roosevelt donned the cap of the Foreign Legion as the vast stadium roared with cheers.

Striking at class distinction as an enemy of national unity he assured the veterans that any suffering and destitute would be given the same relief the government was giving to others in the same plight.

The President pounded the desk with his fist as he asserted with a smile "The fact of wearing a uniform does not mean that the veteran can demand an increased benefit from the government which no other citizen receives.

"It does not mean that because a person served in defense of his country, he performed it as a basis for application of citizenship. He should get a pension from his government because of a disability incurred after his service had culminated and in connection with that service."

One Great Leader Says of Another—

"Essolene leads the field, because Essolene is made by the Industry's Leader"

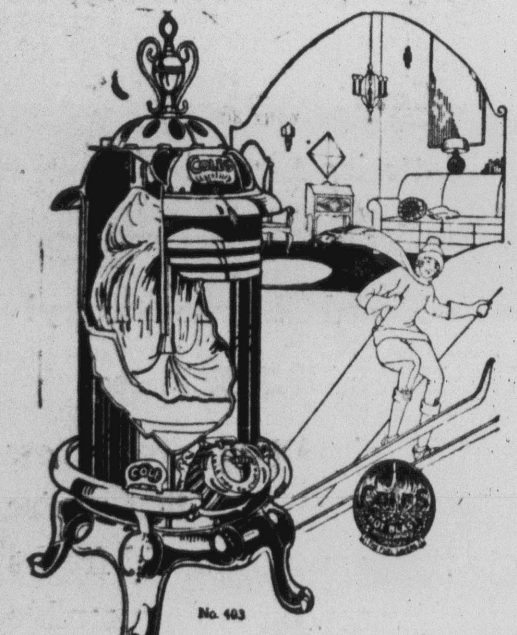

"Next to baseball I know motor fuel best. I've sold it for years. I sell it now—all winter long—down in Memphis, after the season's over. "And let me tell you, folks, it takes a leader to deliver the goods—in baseball or in motor fuel. That's why you can depend on Essolene—the largest oil organization in the world is behind it. When the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey says—'Essolene guarantees smoother performance' that certainly means you'll get smoother performance. "I use nothing but Essolene and Essolube Motor Oil in my car. "You'll get quick starting, smooth pick-up, mileage and economy with Essolene that you never could get in the old-fashioned gasolines. Take my word for it."

about Cigarettes

Of all the ways in which tobacco is used the cigarette is the mildest form

YOU know, ever since the Indians found out the pleasure of smoking tobacco, there have been many ways of enjoying it. But of all the ways in which tobacco is used, the cigarette is the mildest form. Another thing—cigarettes are about the most convenient smoke. All you have to do is strike a match. Everything that money can buy and everything that science knows about is used to make Chesterfields. The right home-grown tobaccos—seasoned with just enough aromatic Turkish—are blended and cross-blended the Chesterfield way. Then the cigarettes are made right—firm, well-filled. Chesterfield uses the right kind of pure cigarette paper. There are other good cigarettes, of course, but Chesterfield is the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better. Chesterfields satisfy—we ask you to try them.

Chesterfield the cigarette that's MILDER the cigarette that TASTES BETTER
