LONE BANDIT STAGES MAIL ROBBERY AT WILSON

Pouches Believed To Hold Currency Shipments For Banks Looted Near Town

GOVERNMENT PREPARES FOR PROBE TODAY

Contract Mail Truck Driver Held up at Point of Gun at A. C. L. Station Early Today; Forced to Drive To Woods Near City Where Three Pouches Were Looted; Bags Believed to Contain Shipments Of Money For Wilson Banks

Wilson, Oct. 18—(AP)—Local police officers found a stolen mail package in Smith's woods two miles from here this afternoon. The package had not been tampered with and contained $50,000 consigned to a total bank.

Wilson, Oct. 18—(AP)—A lone bandit held up Hugh Hawley, contract mail truck driver here early today, forced him to drive to the woods near the city, tied him up and escaped with three registered mail pouches believed to contain currency shipments for local banks.

Postmaster John R. Diddy was unable to ascertain immediately whether the bags contained any large shipments of cash but said he believed the pouches were those expected by banks here today.

While postal authorities checked records, federal authorities were enroute here to begin an investigation. Hawley was held up at the Atlantic Coast Line railroad station at 4 a. m. by the bandit at the point of a pistol and forced to drive away from the city into the woods where another machine occupied by two men drove up.

There the mail truck was looted of the three bags and the bandits' car occupied by two other men drove off.

The third man forced Hawley to turn about and drive a half mile back toward Wilson and stop. There the man bound Hawley's hands and walked down the road.

A short while later, Hawley was found by a farmer nearby and was freed. He then notified police.

While he was at the farm house Hawley said he saw a car pass from the direction in which the third robber disappeared on foot and it was believed this machine had picked up the third man and was attempting to catch up with the first bandit car.

Police attempted to trail the machines but lost track of them on the concrete highway.

The trip from the railroad station to the postoffice was only a block away and Hawley expected to make the run in a few minutes. After he had loaded the truck he climbed in and started to drive away when an unidentified man leaped into the cab, thrust a pistol in his face, snatched Hawley's revolver and ordered him to drive out of town.

A policeman saw the truck turn away from the direction of the postoffice but believed Hawley would merely circle the block and then drive to his intended destination.

The bandit forced Hawley to drive two miles from Wilson where the robbery took place. Hawley said it was his impression that several persons were implicated and met at same spot by prearrangement. He said he did not recognize any of the men.

It was first believed the mail pouches contained $90,000 for banks in Greenville, but it was later discovered that this money had been received by the banks. If this money was in the mail truck, it was overlooked by the bandits in their haste.

Late News Flashes From Over World

Says Prices Not High Enough. Washington, Oct. 18.—(AP)—President Roosevelt feels that although farm prices have increased 32 per cent in the average for the year that ended March 31, they are not yet high enough. An economist for the executive council has presented figures to the president showing that the product the farmer sold in September brought 32 per cent more than in the 12 months ending with March. In the same period it was stated in official quarters today that the economist had reported the cost of things the farmer buys as increased 11 per cent. Figures also have been submitted to the president showing that a factory employment in September with 1,029 had improved two-fifths of its decline and the income if workers had regained a quarter of the loss while the cost of living rose 9 per cent from March to September.

Large Tobacco Break at Salem

Winston-Salem, Oct. 18.—(AP)—The largest break in the history of the local tobacco market—1,500,000 pounds—yesterday was reported here today and warehousemen expected today's sales to equal yesterday's when 1,134,448 pounds sold for an average of $17.75 per hundred pounds.

SMITH UPSETS TAMMANY HALL

Al's Failure to Attend Meeting Last Night Causes Much Speculation

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith had a cold—and political observers were running a fever today trying to figure out the probable effect on Tammany's health. The men of Tammany gathered last night for the traditional ratification rally designed to start John O'Brien's campaign off with a bang and repulse the double three fusion and the recovery party to drive the house from power.

Smith—for the first time in years—was absent.

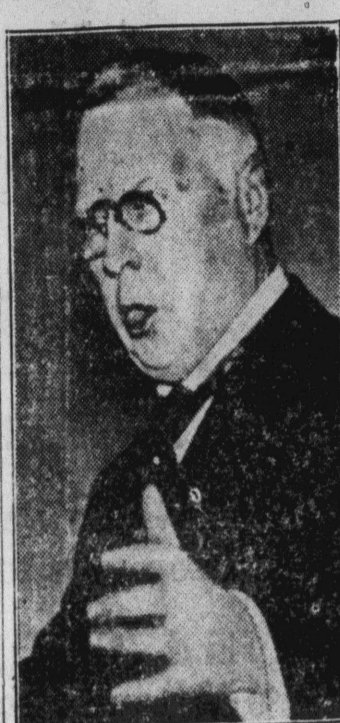

The word was passed around that he was home in bed with a cold. The New York Times interpreted his action as a blow to the leadership of John Curry, Tammany chief and John H. McCooey, the hall's Brooklyn ally.

JONES HELD FOR COURT

Man Charged With Sodomy Bound Over In Preliminary Hearing Here Today

Probable cause on a charge of sodomy was found against Ray Jones, 28-year-old Greenville man today in a preliminary hearing before Magistrate John Ivey Smith, and he was bound over to the October term of Superior court under bond of $1,000. He was unable to give bond and was remanded to jail. Jones was arrested by local officers Monday night on charges preferred by a man named Anderson who alleged that the prisoner took his 11-year-old son to a farm about a mile east of the city and criminal J. attacked him. The child returned home, crying and upon revealing the attack to his parents, police were notified and Jones was immediately taken into custody and held in jail to await hearing today.

GIVEN JAIL TERMS FOR LEAF THEFT

Heber Stepp and Aunt, Mollie Stepp, Draw Six Months Each in Court

Heber Stepp and his aunt, Mollie Stepp, were sentenced to six months each in jail on a charge of larceny of tobacco by Judge Dink James in the regular weekly session of county court here yesterday. The man was ordered to serve his term on the roads and the woman in jail.

They filed notice of appeal to Superior court. The couple were arrested here the middle of the week on charges preferred by C. T. Mumford from whom the tobacco was stolen. They were alleged to have disposed of the tobacco without turning the money over to Mr. Mumford.

Around fifteen cases were disposed of yesterday, ranging all the way from larceny to possession and sale of whiskey, and the entire docket was completed. Bruce Deal of New York, arrested by patrol officers here the first of the week on a charge of reckless driving and driving while drunk was found guilty of speeding and was released on payment of cost.

The defendant was injured when his car crashed into another automobile on the Winterville highway but he was able to attend court, having been released from the hospital a short while after the wreck. Two negroes, Robert Redmond and Prince Grimes, were found guilty of transporting liquor for sale and were fined $25 and cost each. Alfred Jones held in connection with the same case was adjudged not guilty.

TRUCK KILLS TWO MULES

Driver of Standard Oil Truck Escapes Uninjured in Wreck Last Night

Two mules were killed when struck by a Standard Oil truck of this city about a mile west of Winterville last night at 8 o'clock, it was reported today by the highway patrol. The truck, driven by a man named Allen, was damaged only to a minor extent and the driver escaped with only slight shock. Officers said the truck was found on the left side of the road after the wreck, but the driver said he was forced to leave his side of the road by another car and in an attempt to avoid hitting the mules. The accident occurred while a dense fog overhung highways of this section, but the driver, officers said, reported that visibility was good enough for him to see the mules and attempt to prevent hitting them. Although members of the highway patrol investigated the wreck, no action had been taken today.

TWO WEEKS OF COURT BEGINS HERE MONDAY

First Week to be Confined to Civil Actions And Second to Criminal

A two-weeks' term of Superior court will convene in Greenville next Monday morning with Judge J. Paul Frizzelle of Snow Hill, presiding. The first week will be confined to the hearing of civil actions and the second to criminal.

The calendar for the civil term, completed the first of the week, contains about fifty cases of more or less interest to the people of this section, but the court was not expected to draw large attendance until the second week when the hearing of criminal cases gets underway.

The criminal docket has not yet been completed but it contains only cases of minor importance this time although there are quite a number of them.

The calendar for the civil term follows: Monday, October 23. Roddenbery Hdw. Co. vs. R. E. Rogers; Flanagan Buggy Co. vs. H. L. Elks; Flanagan Buggy Co. vs. Paul Baker and Others; Guy Sutton vs. Albert Hardy and Others; Roy T. Cox, Executor, vs. Thurman Vincent et al.; W. H. Bradsher vs. Flurene Co., Inc.; Jake Watson vs. Raleigh Granite Co.; Sylvia Moore vs. J. B. Bullock; J. N. Williams vs. J. M. Taft and Others; S. J. Everett vs. American Exchange National Bank.

Tuesday, October 24. Greenville Oil & Fertilizer Co. vs. J. L. Draper and Wife; Mrs. Lucy Belcher vs. Pitt County Ins. & Realty Co.; Greenville Oil & Fertilizer Co. vs. J. B. Worthington; R. G. Fountain vs. J. A. Lane; M. A. Tucker vs. Johnnie Whicard; R. H. McLawhorn vs. Exum Dail; Heber Hardee vs. Greenville Supply Co.; N. C. Tripp vs. Will Worthington; State Planters Bank & Trust Co. vs. John M. Taft and Others; R. N. Johnson vs. C. V. Cannon; Greenville Oil & Fertilizer Co. vs. N. T. Stokes and wife.

TWO HELD FOR LEAF THEFT

Negroes Bound Over To Superior Court For Stealing Tobacco Here Yesterday

Charged with stealing tobacco, James Ward and Elmer Gilmore, colored, were bound over to the next term of Superior court under bond of $200 each in a preliminary hearing here today. They were unable to provide bond and were remanded to jail.

The couple was charged with stealing tobacco valued at $30 from the Keel and Long warehouse yesterday. After stealing the leaf, the negroes were alleged to have placed it for sale on the same warehouse floor. Warehouse employees missed the leaf and found it on sale under a different name. They immediately notified police and when the negroes appeared at the office to receive payment they were taken into custody.

This is one of a number of cases of tobacco thefts reported here this season, but in the majority of cases the guilty parties have been apprehended and either face hearing or are now serving terms on the roads.

PITT COUNTY ROOSEVELT TEACHERS TO MEET IN AYDEN

General Session to be Held in The High School Saturday Morning 10 A. M.

A general meeting of county teachers will be held at the high school in Ayden, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, Donald Conley, director of Pitt County Department of education, said today.

All white teachers of the county, numbering 175, were expected to attend the session, and speakers high in the educational life of the state were scheduled to hold the oratorical spotlight.

The principal speaker will be T. B. Atmore, of Washington, district school commissioner, who will discuss current school problems. Mr. Atmore spoke before the Kiwanis club here recently and imparted considerable information concerning the operation of the new state school legislation.

S. T. Emory, member of the faculty of the University of North Carolina, will discuss new geography texts and the teachers were looking forward with interest to this information.

Superintendent Byrd of the Ayden school system, will tell of the work of the Pitt County school system, enumerating some of the most important changes effected by application of the new school legislation.

The speakers will be presented by Mr. Conley, who will also make announcements regarding the work of the system at this time.

These meetings, Mr. Conley said, are of the utmost importance to the faculty members in all sections of the county and he expressed the hope each school would be well represented.

FARMERS TO BE PAID FOR REDUCTIONS

$250,000,000 Benefit To go to Growers Who Co-operate in Government Plan; Government Contracts For Billion Bushels of Wheat For Relief Distribution

(By The Associated Press)

A half billion dollar corn and hog program today was added to the government's efforts to boost farm prices. Secretary Wallace announced the two-year plan for balancing supply and demand through $250,000,000 in benefit payments to farmers in return for corn and hog reduction.

While Governor William Langer of North Dakota pressed upon other states his plan for wheat shipment embargo, the federal government contracted for a billion bushels for relief distribution.

There were indications this figure might be swelled to 40,000,000 bushels and eggs added to the relief commodities.

Organization of relief credit corporation advanced to a stage where it will be ready to make loans to cotton growers by this week-end. The producers may borrow from 8 to 10 cents a pound on the unsold portion of this year's crop if they agree to join the 1934 acreage reduction program.

Governor Langer's embargo plan seemed headed for court, test of his authority to halt wheat movement across the North Dakota line. Secretary Wallace declined to discuss the plan but commented that it should call attention to the farmers' problems.

HEAVY LEAF SALES HERE

Market Yesterday Sold 1,409,162 Pounds at an Average of $15.56

Sales, which picked up sharply on the Greenville tobacco market the first of the week, continued to move forward rapidly today and indications were that floors would be cleared during the afternoon hours.

The official report of K. W. Cobb supervisor of sales showed the market yesterday sold 1,409,162 pounds of tobacco for $219,024.93 at an average of $15.56 per hundred pounds. The average was slightly below the day before but the situation continued to show strength today in spite of the fact that a good deal of common tobacco was in evidence.

Better grades of tobacco continued to bring improved prices and farmers expressed satisfaction at seeing their earnings increased over previous weeks. With clear weather indicated today farmers were expected to continue to move their tobacco rapidly and it was indicated sales Thursday and Friday would be as heavy if not heavier than the first of the week.

Sales with yesterday's report passed the 26,000,000 mark and the end of the week was expected to see the total draw near to 30,000,000.

A GOOD PLAN FOR THE FARMERS

Announcement that the government has completed
its plan whereby cotton growers may obtain a loan of ten cents a pound upon their cotton without recourse should be good news for the farmers. The plan automatically pegs the minimum
price of cotton at ten cents
if the growers will agree to reduce acreage next year and this they should be willing and glad to do anyway
for it is only through smaller crops that they can hope to get fair prices. In view of the government's plans, we believe it would be unwise
for growers to sell their crop
at the market at present prices instead of accepting the government loan.

DISSEMINATES SOME OF FOG

(News and Observer)
Former Governor Gardner dis-seminates some of the fog that obscures
the real issue before the voters in the November election in North Carolina. While declaring himself unambiguously for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, Governor Gardner is equally positive in pointing out that North Carolina is not voting on November 7 on the question of whether the State will be wet or dry.

The only question submitted to the voters is whether or not North Carolina shall be counted for or against repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Upon that question the qualified electors of the State have a right to vote without having themselves recorded as either for or against repeal of the State prohibition law. Such is Governor Gardner's position. Legally he is right.

As to whether the November election on the Eighteenth Amendment shall be a referendum on State prohibition depends upon the attitude that leaders in the movement for repeal take. Many of the leaders in the campaign against repeal have declared that it is in fact a referendum. If the leaders in the campaign for repeal accepted this version of the November election, then it would in fact be such a referendum.

Governor Gardner, by declaring
for repeal and by reason of his position and prestige, makes himself one of the prominent leaders in the campaign for repeal in North Carolina. His declaration is his own, and binds no one else in the November election, it being one of the sovereign rights of a citizen to vote as he pleases, but it none the less a statement that will help to clear the atmosphere in North Carolina.

There is no escaping the fact that, regardless of the outcome of
the November election in North Carolina, a determined fight will be made at the next session of the General Assembly for modification of the Prohibition laws of the State. Governor Gardner has announced this fight, and has declared that he is opposed to any change without submission of that issue to the people.

State Prohibition was submitted to the voters and adopted in 1908
by an overwhelming majority. Only by a vote of the people can it in good faith be repealed. Upon that question there should be no division. But the November election is not such a referendum.

Outrageous Fortune

by Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS: Caroline Letch
leaves her cousin, Jim Randall, hiding in State Place, his boyhood home, while she goes to London to look up Neta Riddell's marriage bond, that he stole the famous Van Berg emerald, and shot Elmer Van Berg, Jim's memory is gone,
except for flashes from the past.
One thing he recalls is drinking with Van Berg; now Caroline learns from a woman on the train
that the police are taking finger prints from the glasses Caroline
follows the woman from the train,
and learns Van Berg left a book containing all his friends' finger prints. But, says Mrs. Rodgers, one page was torn out.

Chapter 27

DIRE TRUTH

MRS. RODGERS watched Caroline turn away and begin to go down the hill. Then she took a step towards the stile, but almost in the act of taking it she swung about like a boat when the current catches
it. She called.

"Miss Caroline! Miss Caroline!" And Caroline came back. She didn't want to come back, but she came.

"I mustn't miss my train," she said.

"There's time," said Mrs. Rodgers, and took her by the sleeve.

Caroline turned cold with dread
of what she was going to hear.

"Miss Caroline—" said Mrs. Rodgers.

Caroline's eyes besought her.

"My dear, you'd best know and be done with it. That torn-out page—"

"Oh, no!" said Caroline. "No!"

"You'd best know it, my dear, Mrs. Henry's no inter, and it's what she seen with her own eyes. She took pertickler notice, because there wasn't no name signed on that page."

"No name?"

"No name, my dear—nothing but the finger-prints and two great big initials getting on for a couple of inches high. She took pertickler notice, and when the book was found pushed down behind the bookcase like I told you, she took a look at it, and that there identical page was gone. I s'pose I didn't ought to tell you what the initials was, but what's the good of baring the bread
if you don't take it out of the oven?"

Caroline tried to pull her sleeve away, but she couldn't speak. Mrs.
Rodgers' voice boomed in her ears.

"Mrs. Henry won't talk unless she's asked, and it's not for me to say whether she'll be asked or no,
but if so be she is, she's bound to tell the truth—not that she or anyone else around these parts 'ud want to get a young gentleman that was well liked, and his family respected,
into trouble.

"But there's a name that's been mentioned, and Mrs. Henry's own nephew—Willie Bowman, that's been his caddy at golf many and many a time afore he went off to foreign parts—Willie seen him in the drive getting on fer midnight, and hasn't told no one, only his aunt
and me.

"And what were you doing, Willie?" she says, and of course he hadn't got a word to say, she knowing same as everyone else that he's carrying on with that flighty piece, Gladys Garrett, down at the Crick-eter's Arms."

Caroline's head swam. Through a jumbled whirl of irrelevant anecdote something horrible advanced upon her. She wanted to run away, but she couldn't.

Mrs. Rodgers dropped her voice to a penetrating whisper.

"It was Mr. Jim Randall as Willie seen—and the initials on the tore out page was J. R."

Caroline's mouth made a soundless "Oh!" There was no sound, because she did not seem to have any breath. She pulled away from Mrs.
Rodgers and ran down the hill, as if by ranning she could get away from Jim's name.

THE clock of St. Mary Magda-lene's church struck half-past twelve as Caroline turned into Grove Road. The things that Mrs.
Rodgers had told her were all locked away in a dark secret cupboard at the back of her mind. She wasn't going to let herself look at them or think about them until she
and Jim could look at them together.

What she had got to do now was to be sensible and practical and businesslike. She had to prove from the entry in the register that it wasn't Jim who had married that horrible Neta woman on July 25th.
It stood to reason that it wasn't Jim,
but she had got to prove it.

Well, one glance at the register would do that, because she would know Jim's writing anywhere, and she was quite sure that the entry
wouldn't be in Jim's writing.

She found the office quite easily.
An elderly clerk inquired her business. He had a pale plump face, and reminded her of one of those fish which flap slowly to and fro behind the plate glass of an aquarium.
The light in the office was almost as opaque as water, and he had the pale unwinking stare of a fish. He had a voice that matched, high and weak.

"Please may I see an entry in the register? It's a marriage—on the twenty-fifth of July."

"Lest?"

Caroline did not take his meaning.
She looked at him with bewildered eyes.

"Please may I see the register of marriages for the twenty-fifth of July?"

"East July?"

"Yes—oh yee."

She stood and waited. She wasn't afraid; she kept insisting on that.
There was nothing to be afraid about—there couldn't be. She was going to see Jim Riddell's signature, and it would be the signature of a stranger. There wasn't the very slightest possible doubt about that.

She saw the clerk turn the pages of the register—big, stiff pages thick with the names of men and women who had gone adventuring into marriage through this drab back door.
Perhaps if you loved someone very much, you wouldn't notice the linoleum and the smell of disinfectant.

"Here you are," said the clerk in his high weak voice. He stood aside and pointed at the left-hand page of the open book.

Caroline, a little dazed, looked down at the names. She saw Neta's name first—"Neta Williams, spinster." And then—"James Riddell, bachelor." It wasn't Jim's writing—of course it wasn't. What odd writing it was—like a child's. No, it wasn't. A child wrote round hand.
This was more like shaky print.

She looked up with a puzzled frown.

"What funny writing!"

"What?" said the clerk. "Oh, that?
Written with his left hand, that was,
on account of having his right arm in a sling—motor-bicycle accident, I think he said."

CAROLINE'S heart jumped; she didn't quite know why. Jim hadn't got his arm in a sling. Jim hadn't had an accident. Jim hadn't written that signature. Why didn't she feel all happy and triumphant? Why didn't she even feel relief? Why did she feel as if there was something horrid just round the next corner?

The clerk was speaking, and she tried to give him her attention.

"If you want a certified copy, it will be five shillings."

Caroline flamed. A copy of this abominable lie! She made her voice gentle and polite with a terrible effort.

"No, thank you."

The flame died down. She felt businesslike and rather tired. Jim Riddell's address was given as 14
Saracen Row, Neta Williams' as 3 Grove Road. His father's name was James Riddell too; her father's name was Thomas Williams. She wrote down both the addresses and asked to be directed to Saracen Row.

"Third to the left, second to the right, and third to the left again,"
said the clerk.

Caroline turned back at the door.
"Do you remember this Mr. Riddell—could you describe him?"

The clerk's pale, prominent eyes looked at her without intelligence.

"He had his arm in a sling."

"Oh, can't you tell me what he looked like?"

"Why," said the clerk, "we get them coming in all day. I shouldn't remember about his arm if it wasn't for the writing—said he'd never signed his name with his left hand before, and you can see what an awkward job he made of it. If it wasn't for that, I wouldn't remember him."

"You can't remember at all. Not whether he was dark or fair, or short or tall?"

"No, miss, I can't—and you might take that to mean that there wasn't anything very much to remember.
You take my meaning? I might have remembered red hair, or a squint, or bandy legs, or anything over six foot or under five, so you may take it he was just one of the average lot—and as I said before, they keep on coming in. What with births, marriages and deaths, they keep coming in all day, and after a bit you stop taking notice."

Caroline went out feeling very much discouraged.

"They're found!" barked Rip, and they all dashed in the direction
from which the sounds came. There, huddled together, under a blanket

"It was the only way—a could

"Chep—chep—chep—chep, take us

GREENVILLE TOBACCO MARKET REPORT

EVERYBODY PULLING TOGETHER IN BEHALF OF THE TO-BACCO GROWERS SELLING ON OUR MARKET HAS MADE GREENVILLE THE OUTSTANDING MARKET OF THE ENTIRE BRIGHT TOBACCO BELT.

All 1933 Records Broken
Market Sold Monday 1,552,352 Pounds
Average $16.56
Prices Continue Strong

IT IS IMPORTANT THAT:

- 1st---The weather has changed, and you are especially urged to keep your tobacco dry at all times.
- 2nd---Grade your tobacco more carefully, do not let green, reddish and black leaves get mixed with your bright tobacco.
- 3rd---Hundreds of thousands of dollars annually are lost on account of marketing tobacco in too soft condition and by careless grading.

You will not find the tobacco buyers on any market cooperating in every way more splendidly than the buying forces on the Greenville Tobacco Market. This fact alone is more responsible for Greenville being the world's largest Bright Tobacco market than any one factor. When such conditions as this exist on a tobacco market, better prices for the growers is always the result.

Let us suggest that every one preserve warehouse bills of sales and see that they are dated.

Tune in on Greenville's Radio Station WEED every day (except Sunday) at 9:45 A. M., 12:45 P. M. and 4:45 P. M. for latest tobacco market reports. Will find it on your dial around 142 or 1420.

Sans Souci Club Meets.

The Sans Souci Club met Tuesday afternoon, October 17, at the home of Mrs. F. J. Forbes. The members were greeted by Mrs. Forbes in a most cordial and happy manner. The home was lovely with decorations of fall flowers.

After the usual routine of business, Mrs. White appointed Mrs. Bruce Sugg, Mrs. J. B. Kirtrell, Mrs. Judson Blount and Mrs. Frank Wooten as a committee to select the type of book for the club shelf in Sheppard Memorial Library. The books were then passed by Mrs. Warren. Mrs. Sugg, chairman of the program committee, after reading the next two programs, turned the meeting over to Mrs. J. Key Brown, who had the paper for the afternoon. Her subject, "Cuba in the Spotlight," proved most interesting and timely. It was well given and showed thought and study.

Current events on education was given by Mrs. Frank Wilson.

A number of guests added much to the pleasure of the meeting. The hostess served a delectable salad course with hot coffee and after a half-hour of pleasant conversation the club adjourned to meet with Mrs. J. G. Woodward on Oct. 31st.

GARDEN CLUB BEGINS YEAR'S PROGRAM

The Garden Department of the Woman's Club, with Mrs. Travis Hooker as chairman, has planned a very interesting and instructive program for the year.

The program began last Thursday morning at eleven o'clock with an illustrated lecture, "Art in the Flower Garden," at State Theatre. There were sixty slides in the lecture with fifty-nine of them in color. Famous American and European gardens were included.

Miss Mamie E. Jenkins of East Carolina Teachers College, in her usual gracious manner, read the lecture.

A large and appreciative audience attended the lecture.

The lecture was prepared and sent out under the direction of the General Federation of Clubs in Washington, D. C.

On Thursday afternoon the first meeting of the year was held in the Woman's Club building, with a good attendance. Three new members were received.

The club decided not to give the annual flower show this fall. However, at the next meeting which will be held in November, there will be an attractive display of flowers.

Anyone interested is invited and urged to join the club at this time.

Tips on CONTRACT

By TOM O'NEIL
Making The Most

When partners have fits in three suits and control of the first lead of any suit the sun is shining and it is time to make hay.

Even with such a wealth of cards, at times careful planning from the start is necessary if the most is to be made of them.

In illustration is a hand in which William B. Tower, Jr., of New York and partner won a big top in a New York duplicate tournament.

They bid a little slam. Tower took all the tricks by a squeeze after noting that the opening was favorable toward such an end. All other bidders on the same cards stopped at a no trump game. Here was the hand.

North opened the auction with a diamond, regarding his suit as too weak for a no trump. The adversaries passed throughout. South bid a heart and North called two clubs. South rebid hearts, and North as-stances shows possession of two aces and the king of a bid suit, that is hearts, diamonds or clubs. Since South held the diamonds and club kings, he knew that North held the heart king and at least two more hearts, because of the rise of South's hearts. North could have bid five no trump, but he wished to be cautious because of the anemic diamond and club suits.

Over the four no trump, south bid five clubs, a sign off, to leave the decision to the forcing hand North. The dealer then bid six hearts, the contract.

West led the club ace. It occurred to Tower, holding the South cards, that there was a possibility of a squeeze if West led from the

HIGH DIVING HORSE HOLDS INTEREST AT THE FAIR HERE

Eight thousand children and seven thousand grown-ups were reported at the Pitt county fair here yesterday and saw the "Girl in Red" and her high-diving horse make one of the most thrilling dives ever seen here.

All other stunts of a dangerous nature disappeared as the high-diving girl on horseback holds the center of the stage as the most daring, nifty, fearless, flirting with death proposition ever looked upon by human beings. Men in search of realistic and dangerous propositions to entertain the public simply lift their hats to Carver, his high-diving horses and "The Girl in Red." In this, the greatest of all sensational stunts, two lives instead of one are at stake; a girl risks her life on the intelligence of a dumb animal. The horse, true to his training, shows human intelligence in his preparation for the Dip of Death. No other words describe this, the greatest of all daring club queen and also held the diamond queen.

The knave of clubs in the North hand held the first trick. A diamond was led to the South hand, and then the diamond knave was finessed. The ace of spades was played, then the king of hearts and the king of clubs followed by all the trumps from the South hand.

West had to find three discards. She threw her two spades, but on the thirteenth heart had to unguard one or the other of the minor suit queens. She chose to drop a club with the result that a club took the last trick. Tower made five hearts, one spade, three diamonds and four clubs.

The slam is possible also at no trump.

'ALFALFA BILL' PROPOSES PENTHOUSE ATOP CAPITAL

Oklahoma City, — (AP) — Gov. William H. "Alfalfa" Bill Murry proposes to build a $500,000 penthouse "penthouse" atop Oklahoma's domeless capital.

"It would be more beautiful than a dome and would provide needed office space" he commented.

He suggested the tower be built as a public works project, the federal government advancing the money, 70 per cent of which would be repaid by the state.

Sees New Surplus Relief Plan Fighting Privation

By HEURY A. WALLACE
Secretary of Agriculture
(Copyright, 1933, Associated Press)
Washington—(AP)—Within the past week a new national policy has been announced. It proposed that we produce the necessities of life not merely for all who can buy them, but for all in this country who need them.

That is the significance of the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation, recently organized, with Harry Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, in charge.

It so happens that agriculture has been producing at that abundant rate, plus a substantial surplus, for many years. Industry has never found it possible to do so. Industry in time of depression has curtailed production and thrown workers onto the relief rolls. There are three and one half million families there now. They comprise 13 per cent of the population.

The new policy stipulates that the federal government shall buy surplus raw materials and give them to the unemployed. This will accomplish two purposes:

First, it will prevent starvation and privation in the cities this winter.

Second, it will prevent comparable privation in the country because it will enable farmers to stay on their farms and produce.

We can plan our agricultural production, therefore, for all of the 125 million people in the United States; if there is a reasonable prospect of selling something abroad we can include that in our plans. The essential thing is that we must and will produce enough for our own people, with the proper margin for safety.

Farmers resent the idea of reducing production of the necessities of life so long as people in the cities are in need. I share that feeling. I wish it might be extended beyond such necessities as food to such other necessities as clothing and fuel and light and housing.

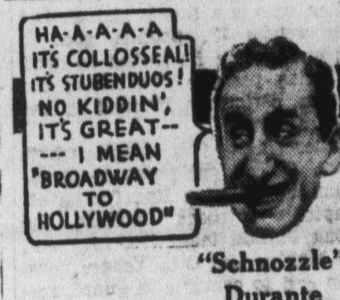

At any rate, the huge surplus of food stuffs is available. The government can transfer a sizeable portion of it to the hungry.

By so doing we attack, even if we do not solve, the problems of over-production on the farm and under-consumption in the city.

The three and one half million families on the public relief rolls can consume two million pounds of come available this week-end the corporation has been forced to speed up machinery for this additional activity.
