Governor Asked To Appoint Coastal Planning Commission

Organization to Foster Development of Coastal Region of This State Also to be Formed Soon

Resolution requesting Governor J. C. Ehringhaus to appoint a Coastal Section Planning Commission of five representative citizens of the territory and another calling for a general meeting at an early date to perfect an organization to seek development of the region and preservation of its natural resources were adopted at a mass meeting here this morning under the supervision of the State Advisory Board of the Federal Public Works program. The motion for appointment of the Planning Commission was presented by Congressman Lindsay C. Warren, of Washington, while the resolution seeking a permanent development organization was presented by Judge Francis D. Winston, of Windsor. Prominent citizens from every part of the coastal section attended today's meeting at the request of R. Bruce Etheridge, head of the State Department of Conservation and Development. The delegations likewise included representatives of the Southeastern Coastal Development Association which includes the five States of North and South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and Florida.

The meeting was presided over by Frank Page, head of the State Advisory Board, and attended by other members of the board and State Engineer H. C. Baily, devoted the first two hours of the meeting to a discussion of plans now being fostered by the people of the coastal region of this State for the conservation of resources and development of the regional into national park area. Re-forestation along the coast line to prevent further erosion, preservation and fish and game life, drainage in the interest of better sanitation and health and development of roads to make the section more easily accessible to the people of the eastern section of the United States as a whole, are a part of the finely worked-out development program.

Those taking part in the discussions included Congressman Warren, Judge Winston, Frank Stick, of Elizabeth City, Lindsey Russell, of Wilmington, and others.

Following disposal of the first phase of the meeting attention was given to the matter of procuring of government funds by municipalities and other sub-divisions of the State to carry on necessary projects admissible under the public works program.

At the outset of the meeting Chairman Page stressed the fact that North Carolina would have to pay its part of the government $3,400,000 public works fund whether or not we took advantage of the opportunity to borrow from this fund, and he urged that every locality aid in recovery by carrying out public projects now.

WEED PRICES STILL GOOD

Yesterday's sales brought the season's total poundage above 39 millions, with nearly $6,000,000 being paid out for the season so far.

Today's sales were somewhat heavier than yesterday, and prices were reported good, and indicating a higher average.

URGE CITIZENS NOT TO FORGET OWN PROBLEMS

Governor Ehringhaus Delivers Address at NRA Rally at Fayetteville

Lumberton, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Governor J. C. Ehringhaus today urged citizens of this section not to forget their own state and its problems when they rejoice with the balance of the nation over returning prosperity, which is being brought about by President Roosevelt's Recovery Act.

The governor reviewed a lengthy NRA parade and later addressed a mass meeting of citizens.

"In the battle to overcome the most paralyzing economic distress known in more than a century," the governor said, "it is significant that we fight in the spirit of the crusader at war, willing and eager to make every sacrifice to the end that our country's good name and welfare be preserved."

"North Carolina as a state and its individual citizens, are doing their part in putting across the NRA campaign," the governor continued.

In his address Governor Ehringhaus touched on taxation, and told of the relief given farm and home owners by the legislature.

Gold Prices Up Again Today

Washington, Nov. 2.—(AP)—A price of $32.36 per ounce was established today by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for purchases of gold, which is about 25 cents above the present world market price.

The figure was established on the basis of opening prices in London today for the dollar, which was quoted at $4.82 to the pound.

EPILEPTIC DROWNS IN 18 INCHES OF WATER

New Bern, N. C., Nov. 2.—Eddie Temple, 35, of Bachelor, was drowned near his home late yesterday when he fell from a boat where he was working on a net. GOLD BUYING POLICY BRINGS MORE MINING

Higher Prices Bring About Increased Activities in Mining Industry

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—Those charged with keeping an eye on Uncle Sam's gold are watching with more than a casual interest in his mint receipts since inauguration of the President's new gold policy.

The country's gold production is roughly around $50,000,000 a year. Last year 2,507,527 ounces of the metal valued at $50,621,500 were mined in the various domestic fields.

The rate at which this gold finds its way into Treasury vaults has fluctuated widely month by month this year. Starting off with receipts of 115,188 ounces in January, the peak of 187,694 ounces was reached in March.

April and May receipts drifted back nearer the January figure. In June, however, a low of 64,445 ounces was reported. Both the July and the August receipts were below 100,000 ounces.

In September they began to climb again. Receipts of 105,985 ounces were reported, a gain of 19,720 ounces over the August figure.

The reason for this fluctuation from month to month is difficult to determine. Many factors enter into it.

It is interesting to note, however, in connection with the increase of September, that it was on September 8 that the Treasury fixed the price of gold at $29.62 an ounce.

Before that date all gold was subject to the government decree that an ounce of gold was worth no more and no less than $20.67 regardless of fluctuating commodity costs.

The higher price, in the opinion of some experts, caused the release of new gold. Now that the President has embarked on a policy which enables the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to buy at an even higher price, the flow may be even greater.

Already there are indications of increased production. Reports of mining revival come in from all of the country.

Officials of the Bureau of Mines in Washington anticipate an increase in production. Just how much of an increase there will be they will not predict.

But they point to such statements as that made by Governor Rolph, of California, that there is sufficient placer mining ground in his State to furnish subsistence for 300,000 men.

Also they point to the fact that heretofore mine production has been gauged by the margin of profit possible at $20.67 an ounce. With the base advanced at the will of the President, and with the R. F. C. in the market for newly-mined gold, the incentive for increased production will lure many.

PRESIDENT MOVING MORE SLOWLY NOW

Price Says Nerve-Frazzling Work is Order of the Day in Washington

By BRYON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

Eight months in office, the Roosevelt administration is showing those signs of change which overtake every new regime at Washington as it gathers experience.

Toward inflation, toward the credit problem, and toward many other questions, the President is proceeding with a caution and deliberation which were not so apparent in his quick thrusts and surprise decisions just after March 4.

This does not mean that he has lost confidence in the outcome. Confidence seems to be with him an abiding quality.

It does mean that he is beginning to gauge more precisely the opposition and the difficulties.

There is another reason why some of the affability so pronounced in Washington after inauguration is fading out.

Long, nerve-frazzling work days are the rule not only for President Roosevelt, but for many subordinates.

One secretary, tied down to his office day and night, did not hear until afterward that one of his small children had undergone a minor operation.

Another of the most-trusted, reporting to the President completion of a trying assignment, was asked if he didn't need a vacation, and replied eagerly he did.

"All right," said Mr. Roosevelt. "I will give you one. There's a job down at NRA that has proved especially hard to handle. I wish you'd take it over."

The delay in getting public works and some other projects under way, even with the expenditure of so much energy, has not surprised those who know how many formalities are required by law in connection with governmental action.

Most people call it "red tape." Others prefer "safeguards."

A government department has been buying a small tract of land near the Canadian border. The first negotiations fell through. Re-inspection by this and that official have followed over a period of months.

The other day this note came to Washington from the owner: "Some more people were here yesterday looking over the land. So far as I can determine, everyone in Washington has been here now except Senator Borah and General Pershing. Can't you hurry them up so we can get this thing settled?"

Days of legal research preceded the President's announcement of the new Deposit Liquidation Board, set up to aid in loaning deposits frozen in closed banks.

Some officials thought at first they could establish a "central bank" to do this, but they found legislation would be necessary.

Then it was proposed to create a government "corporation." That, too went on the rocks when the lawyers studied the case.

Finally the official designation shrunk to mere "Board." Mr. Roosevelt being advised he had authority to set up boards to deal with such matters. But the board plans to perform many other functions of a central bank, just the same.

Twenty Men at Work on Highway Projects

Goldsboro, N. C., Nov. 2.—Work on the Broadhurst bridge road, a nine-mile stretch from Broadhurst bridge in Wayne County to the Duplin County line, got under way a few days ago and twenty men are now at work on the project. It was stated that as soon as the surveying was completed many other men from the ex-service and relief classes will be given work.

It had been announced that work on this project would be given through the re-employment office in Goldsboro. B. K. Ward, in charge of this office, stated that the office is being swamped with applications for this work, and warns men not to leave the farms or to quit other jobs hoping to get work on this project, since the work will be given entirely to ex-service men and to men who have no work and would otherwise be on the relief rolls.

FRIZELLE TO SPEAK HERE ON ARMISTICE DAY

Elaborate Program Planned For Legion Celebration of the Day Here

Plans for the approaching November 11, Armistice Day, program were completed last night at a meeting of the various committees of the American Legion. The speaker for the occasion will be Judge J. Paul Frizzelle, of Snow Hill.

The committee in charge of the parade, consisting of J. H. Waldrop, Sheriff Whitehurst, Lester Jones and J. S. Elliott, reported that the parade will form at the Coast Line depot at 10 o'clock and move down Dickinson Avenue and East Fifth Street to the college auditorium where the exercises will be held. Also there will be music by the High School orchestra under the direction of Mr. Robeson.

In the parade will be the Legionnaires, members of the Legion Auxiliary, Boy Scouts, High School seniors of the county and city, High School band, and the local National Guard Battery.

Following the exercises in the auditorium, there will be a barbecue in the basement of the campus building of East Carolina Teachers College. This barbecue is for all ex-soldiers of Pitt County. The Board of Aldermen of the city and County Commissioners together have for years provided the funds for this occasion.

The last event of the day's program will be a football game to be played at the Third Street Stadium, under the sponsorship of the local Post of the American Legion. The game will be played between East Carolina Teachers College and Campbell College. The Athletic Committee of the Legion, consisting of Dave Moore, H. H. Duncan, W. W. Lee, M. J. Moye, F. A. Jordan and J. Hicks Corey have charge of the game, and will shortly put on an advance ticket sale.

The Membership Drive Campaign, under the direction of Battalion Commander J. B. Kittredge, reported last night that the local Post now has 151 paid-up members. Last year the Post had only 114. The largest membership which the Post has had was 205. Efforts are now being made to see to it that by November 11 the Post will have at least one more member than it has ever had. The company commanders, namely, F. L. Goodson, A. B. Corey, Coon Williams and Ray Harrison, are ably supporting the battalion commander in this major offensive, and on November 11 are expecting to report their objective has been reached.

THE ONLY WAY OUT

Now comes announcement from Washington that the government is working out its plans for the second tobacco sign-up for reduced acreage which was a part of the sign-up that took place here during the tobacco holiday and it is to be hoped that when given the opportunity to sign these new contracts the growers will lose no time in putting their names on the dotted lines. But for the recent sign-up and the government action in the tobacco price situation it is our belief that the growers would have received far less than they are now getting for their tobacco, and it goes without saying that if the growers do not come through now everything will be all off in the future. Through the government efforts already the season's average is approaching the parity price and with about half the crop yet to be sold it is hoped that full parity will be reached.

The growers are to be paid for each acre they retire from cultivation, which should be an added inducement to them to sign the contracts, and we predict the success of the sign-up is already assured, which means controlled acreage in the future and living prices for the farmers.

Outrageous Fortune

by Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS: Jim Riddell finds in a secret cache at Hale Place, his boyhood home, the Van Berg emeralds. Evidence points to the fact that he has stolen them, yet he has no memory either of theft, or of anything else that happened in the last six weeks. The emeralds are snatched from his hand; he grapples with the intruder, chases him to the station, and loses him. Now he has gone to Ledlington to try to pick up the trail. He meets Min, sister-in-law of Nesta Riddell. Nesta not only says he stole the emeralds, but that he is her husband. Min tells Jim she has not known him long.

Chapter 40

IMPORTANT NEWS

"WERE not old friends?"

"Oh, no," said Min again.

"Min—when did you meet me first?"

He got a round blue stare.

"Oh, you know."

"I'm afraid I don't. Shall we turn and walk back again? I don't suppose anyone knows us, but you never can tell. And now—when did you meet me first?"

"Oh, but you do know that—you can't have forgotten so soon!"

"So soon?"

"It's not a week," said Min. "You can't have forgotten!"

Jim felt a rising excitement.

"Not a week? Do you mean you

"You are!"

She nodded again solemnly.

"All right, we'd better take another turn, and you shall tell me all about it. Who's the man?"

"I don't know if I ought."

Jim didn't know either. He only knew that he was bound to get it out of her if he could. He said gravely:

"You've got to tell me."

She twisted the handles of her basket.

"I've never been a mischief-maker."

"You won't be making mischief."

She gave him a frightened glance curiously mingled with virtuous pride.

"Throwing stones up at her window, and long past midnight!" she said.

"A man threw stones up at Nesta's window last night?"

Min gulped and nodded again.

"I heard the pebbles against the glass, and I saw him under the other window—Nesta's. And he said her name—just Nesta, not Mrs. Riddell at all. And then he said, 'Come down.'"

"So soon?"

"I SEE. Then Nesta went out?"

Min nodded.

"I hoped it was you, and that you were making it up."

"Nesta must have known her own husband!"

never saw me before Nesta brought me from that hospital at Elston?"

"No, never." She looked up at him with an air of childlike candor.

"Then it was Nesta who told you I was Jim Riddell?"

"But she couldn't have made a mistake. She must have known—her own husband—"

Jim asked abruptly:

"Hadn't Tom met me either?"

"Oh, no."

So that was that. Jim felt as if a heavy paving-stone had been lifted off his back. If it was only Nesta who identified him as Jim Riddell, he was prepared to lay very long odds that he wasn't Jim Riddell.

They reached the end of the colonnade once more.

"I mustn't keep you," he said. Min blushed again.

"Oh, won't you please come back with me and just see her? You don't know what may't come of it if you go on staying away. Won't you please come back?"

That very delicate extra sense which sometimes warns, and sometimes discerns things of which we have no evidence, became suddenly active in Jim. Instead of saying goodbye he turned and began to walk slowly back along the colonnade.

MIN, flushed and encouraged, moved beside him with small quick steps. Married people oughtn't to live separate, mother always said. She found she was saying this out loud:

"Mother always says—"

"Well?" said Jim. That odd unclassified sense was alert and waiting.

"I don't hardly like to."

"Oh come—you were going to tell me what your mother says. I'm sure you can manage that."

"Mother always says married folk should stick close, because if they don't—"

"Yes—if they don't?"

"There's room for a third between them."

Jim got a hunch.

"My dear Min, are you trying to warn me?"

They had reached the corner again. Min stopped and faced him, nodding.

"When did you find out that it wasn't me?"

"When she came back. She opened the door and came in. It was beginning to get light, and I could see enough to know that it wasn't you."

"What happened?" said Jim.

"She went to the gate again, and gave him something."

"She gave him something? You're sure it wasn't the other way about?"

"I think it was money," said Min.

He was wondering whether it was the Van Berg emeralds that had changed hands over the gate of Haploot at three o'clock in the morning. For this was what he thought his hunch had done for him—he thought it had brought him back on the track of his burglar.

The train he had missed and last night's burglar had caught, would have reached Ledlington a very nice time to allow of Nesta being serenaded with a handful of pebbles.

But in that case the man who had taken the emeralds must have known exactly what it was that he had snatched in the Blue Room. And he hadn't come there blind. He had come there to get the emeralds.

"You heard something?"

Min nodded.

"Nesta said, 'It's all I've got'—and something about keeping money in the house."

"Is that all you heard?"

She shook her head.

"No—he said—at least he said a lot more than what I'm telling you—but all mumbly like as if he'd got something in his mouth."

Jim restrained himself.

"What did he say?"

"He said, 'Don't be late,'" said Min with a gasp.

Don't be late. . . . And he spoke as if he had something in his mouth. Perhaps it was a gap in his upper jaw—perhaps it wasn't. Jim's head whirled with possibilities.

"Anything more?" he asked.

"He went off, and she came in."

He got no more out of her than that.

At the lower end of the colonnade they parted.

He crossed the square and went into the library.

How Cardui Helped

Lady Get Stronger

"I was in a weak condition when I started to use Cardui," writes Mrs. Oscar West, of Dayton, Texas. "I found it helped me greatly. My appetite was poor and I had lost weight. It was an effort for me to do my work. I felt tired all the time. I read that other women took Cardui as a tonic, so I decided it would help me. It strengthened me and increased my appetite, and I felt better than I had in a long time. I think it is a great medicine for weak women."

GREENVILLE TOBACCO MARKET REPORT

GREENVILLE CONTINUES TO LEAD ALL MARKETS IN THE BRIGHT LEAF BELT IN BOTH POUNDS AND PRICES.

Market Sold Monday 1,487,914 Pounds for $312,160.16

AVERAGE $20.98

Now is the time to market your good and fancy tobaccos.

Better Grades Selling up to 77 Cents

Prices Now Highest Of Season

The official published report (and tobacco growers should consider only official reports) show that Greenville market is leading all bright leaf markets in number of pounds sold and in prices paid for tobacco.

A larger number of growers from distant counties are now patronizing the Greenville market than any time since the market was established, and they know it is paying them to sell here, some of them traveling over 100 miles.

The reason for the phenomenal record Greenville market has made and is at present making, is the fine spirit being manifested by the Greenville Tobacco Byers who are determined that no market shall excel Greenville in prices paid for every grade of tobacco.

The Board of Trade does not permit under penalty of $50.00 fine, any warehouseman to reserve floor space for anyone. The principle of first come first served under the By-Law must be carried out.

Tune in on Greenville's Radio Station WEED every day (except Sunday) at 9:45 A. M., 12:45 P. M. and 4:45 P. M. for latest tobacco market reports. Will find it on your dial around 142 or 1420.

FEATURES HOUDINI JACKING BOX ESCAPE

Lippincott, well known mystery entertainer, will appear at the high school auditorium here, sponsored by the Athletic Association, Monday night of next week.

Featured in his program is the jacking box escape, made famous by the late Harry Houdini.

The box Lippincott will use here was built by a local firm and is now on display near Five Points. A committee from the audience will inspect the box and re-nail it before the magician is nailed in. He promises to escape in less than one minute, no matter how well he is nailed in, or the box roped and chained.

Lippincott shows many recommendations from leading schools and colleges through the South who are loud in their praise, both as to the man's ability and the large crowds he drew.

The school's share of the proceeds will be used for the purchase of athletic equipment.

LOCAL HIGH TO PLAY IN TARBORO FRI.

Coming through last week's encounter with Ayden High in good shape, the locals are busy at work in preparation for this week's important game with Tarboro.

Tarboro has been defeated but once this season; Elizabeth City defeating them 10 to 0 in Elizabeth City. They have scored 183 points in five games. In Burnette and Thomas have two of the best backs in Eastern North Carolina. These boys will have to be watched closely, as both are fast and big.

However, Greenville showed more power and offensive strength last week than any this year, and a continued improvement should be shown in this week's game.

Although the underdogs in the pre-game forecast, Tarboro will know there's been a ball game, and as the old "dope bucket" has been used so many times this season, anything may happen.

Coach Hewlett and twenty-seven players will leave at 1:15 for the game. The starting time will be 3:30 o'clock. Those making the trip are: Wilson, McAdams, Hodges, Carroll, E. T. Forbes, Jack Forbes, Price, Saad, Eilers, Dunn, Vinson, Brewer, Kittrell, She, Hutton, Haten, Cox, W. Warren, C. Warren, Moore, Clark, Summerell, Brooks, Smith, Joyner, Coart, Parrish and Manager Ernest Clark.

An opponent for next week has not been definitely scheduled. It is hoped that one of the Northeastern Conference team will be played.

The locals are quite anxious to play Kinston, New Bern and Washington. Negotiations are pending with these teams, and it is hoped that at least two of them can be played. Anyhow, there will be a game here next Friday, November 10, with a good team as the invader.

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steadier one to five higher in response to steeper Liverpool cables, and advance in American gold prices and higher foreign exchange. There was moderate demand from stock houses and traders at the opening but it was supplied by southern selling or realizing and after advancing to 9.99 for December and 9.93 for May at the start, prices sagged slightly. At the end of the half-hour the market was quiet within a point or two of yesterday's close. Prices fluctuated within a narrow range later in the morning and the market at midday was dull, barely steady, with prices net unchanged to three points lower.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Stocks and staples stepped gingerly but generally firm today in a market in which caution was the watchword as traders and investors kept their eyes and ears turned toward Washington. The volume of shares transferred during the early hours was only slightly ahead of that of yesterday.

This slow motion picture disclosed the ticker tape only moving occasionally and many silent board rooms almost deserted of traders. While there were few buyers offerings were also scarce.

The grains rose and dipped intermittently and the dollar continued to point downward in foreign exchange dealings. Bonds showed signs of recovery. There were skepticism expressions in banking circles regarding reports of currency agreements between the United States and Great Britain whereby the former would be permitted to buy in foreign markets in moderate quantities without interference by the Bank of England.

Dullness gripped the list in the late dealings. Transfers approximated 1,050,000 shares.

Nutting

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
"Now," said Willy Nilly, "we've got plenty of space in Puddle Muddle. There are woods and walks all around here too; so let's keep away from Grandpa and Grandma Galump. Grandma will probably be too startled at Top Notch's escape to do anything about it, but they're not friendly neighbors."

All the animals nodded. They knew the Galumps were anything but friendly and it gave them an uneasy feeling to have them for such near neighbors, and yet the danger of going over on the Galumps' property appealed to them.

"I've got to lay in more of a supply of food for the winter," said Willy Nilly.

"Then I'd better keep out of the way," said Jelly Bear, "and so had Honey Bear. We remember how we had a feast the last time you did that. We'll go nutting."

So Willy Nilly set to work and Jelly and Honey Bear went for nuts.

"We have to eat plenty to store up strength and fat for the winter," growled Jelly Bear, as he ate more and more.

"That's what we have to do," agreed Honey Bear, growing happily as she ate as many as she could.

"Growl, growl, I've just thought of something," said Jelly Bear. "But I don't know whether we dare."

"Oh dear," shivered Honey Bear, "is it very dangerous?"

"I fear it is," said Jelly Bear. "But we could get many more nuts if we were lucky."

"Let's risk the danger," growled Honey Bear.

The Thomas amendment to the law authorized the acceptance of debt payment in this medium required that the silver thus received be made the backing for certificates. The process of assaying the metal received has just been completed. The next step would be the engraving for the certificates. There is no statement yet as to what denomination the certificates will be.

Dynamite Cheese Factory
Milwaukee Nov 2.—(AP)—A dynamite bomb today demolished the cheese factory of El Bley near Port Washington, Wis. which followed the blast completely destroyed the factory.

Chief Peter J. Jung said there was no doubt that the blast was set off by strike pickets. It was the fourth bombing of cheese factories since the beginning of the strike but the Bley plant was the first to be completely destroyed. Bley estimated the damage at $15,000.

FARMER FATALLY HURT; ASSAILANT IS JAILED

Morganton, N. C., Nov. 2.—W. A. Stamey, 41-year-old farmer, was lodged in jail today without bond pending preliminary investigation into the fatal injury at 10 o'clock this morning of Frank Carswell, 45, who died in a local hospital this afternoon of a fractured skull.

Carswell, father of seven children, probably will be buried today. Stamey told officers Carswell, who lived a mile from his home on Highway 78, about eight miles from Morganton, approached him and without warning, threw rocks at him. Stamey arose to his feet as Carswell allegedly hurled another stone and picked up a one-inch plank, striking Carswell across the head. An officer was summoned and Carswell was taken to a hospital.

Beat this for ECONOMY!

Low depreciation costs.
17 to 20 miles to the gallon.
17% to 59% lower parts cost.

"Am using my new Ford V-8 partly for business, and find it invaluable not alone for its speed, but because it is amazingly economical. Am averaging more than 18 miles to the gallon. I couldn't have made a better investment."
—(Signed) PHIL L. GOODSON, Greenville, N. C.

"Of course I'd like to have the power and flexibility of an 8-cylinder car—but doesn't it cost more for gasoline?" ... that's what some people have asked us.

The answer to that is simple. The new Ford V-8 will easily give from 17 to 20 miles to the gallon. Actually in an official test made by the American Automobile Association on the Mt. Vernon Highway, the new Ford V-8 averaged 22.8 miles per gallon for more than 5,000 miles. But that's not the only economy of owning a Ford. Parts cost much less than with any other low priced car—from 17% to 59% less, in fact! You can replace a Ford wire wheel for only $4.45. For less than $50.00 you can install an entirely new motor—including labor cost!

In addition, when you come to trade in your car, you'll find a Ford has cost you less to own because there is more value left after use.

We believe that Ford economy has never been equalled—and it's as true of this new, luxurious "8" as it was of the 4-cylinder Ford. Get the facts on automobile costs and you will choose a Ford V-8 for economy as well as performance.

A wide variety of colors and models—prices $490 and up. F.O.B. Detroit.

The remarkable economy of the Ford V-8 has been proved by dozens of official test runs throughout America. In a recent run of 4,947 miles around Richmond, Va., an average of 21.42 miles per gallon was maintained. In Wake County, N. C., 18 1/2 miles per gallon were secured on a similar test of 1937 miles. Other tests showed economy as great as 22.5 miles per gallon.

Follow the trend to the "8"—and your Car won't be outdated next year
