SPECULATION AS TO RETURN NORMAN DAVIS

Stay Here Will be Short if He is to Get Back to Geneva by December 4

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—Opinions in Washington informed circles are divided on the significance of Norman H. Davis' return from Geneva to this country just a month prior to the resumption of the Disarmament Conference on December 4.

America's chief delegate to the parley says the date of his return to Geneva depends on developments there.

It was regarded as significant, however, by some observers in the capital that Hugh Wilson, Ambassador to Switzerland, was left in charge at Geneva. Wilson, a career diplomat, has had experience in this sort of thing for years. Since 1927 he has followed and participated actively in the work of the preparatory disarmament commission.

The fact was not overlooked, either, that it was Hugh Wilson who remained on the spot at Geneva when disarmament took a long recess in 1932.

He may be preparing to "dig in" for another long siege of waiting.

No Time To Lose
It is evident if Davis hopes to get back to Geneva by the time the conference is resumed that he must make every minute count. The requirements imposed by distance will not permit much delay.

There are those, however, who see nothing unusual in his decision to come back and talk over the situation with President Roosevelt.

The disarmament conference is in such a snarl that he might consider it the wisest thing to consult the President as to future moves, even if it is necessary to make a flying trip to Washington and back in a matter of days.

Undoubtedly his position would be strengthened in the eye of the other delegates were he to go into the conference on December 4 armed with oral instructions from the White House.

Earmarks of Diplomacy
Some profess to see in Davis' decision to return to Washington a skillful bit of diplomacy.

Before leaving Geneva he made it plain that whether he came back in a hurry or not would depend on developments there. This is directly in line with the policy of the United States from the start—letting Europe move first.

As it is, if the countries of Europe—principally Great Britain and France—are desirous of having him back by the December meeting he has given them an added incentive to get busy and move toward a solution of the German problem on the basis of a negotiated disarmament favored by the American policy.

FARM STRIKE IN MID-WEST MORE SERIOUS

One Killed and Several Injured Yesterday. To Use Troops If Necessary

(By The Associated Press)
The farm strike situation was a "fleeing tempest" today, with troops standing by in Iowa awaiting a call to arms, as General Hugh S. Johnson, Federal Recovery Administrator, returned to his Middle West speaking tour.

There was a bright spot, however, in the industrial situation, when John W. Moore, of New York, technical adviser of the National Board of Arbitration, last night said he hoped a general coal strike, thwarted Saturday, would send the miners back to their jobs.

One farm picket was killed and several injured yesterday at Dakota City, Iowa.

In Wisconsin 40 thousand pounds of milk were destroyed and the highways strewn with nails and glass to halt the movement of products to market.

The governor of Iowa said he would call out troops if necessary. Eight car-loads of cattle were turned loose by strikers at Lawton, Iowa.

WAR CLOUDS HOVER OVER S. AMERICA

Bolivia and Paraguay Continue Skirmishes In The Grand Chaco Area

(By The Associated Press)
Heedless of the efforts of the League of Nations Conciliation Committee, the armies of Bolivia and Paraguay continued today in thrusting at each other in the Grand Chaco.

Fighting was confined to small scale attacks, however, in the area by the Yala roadhead reaching to the Paraguay River, the boundary line that has caused international bickerings for more than 60 years.

Paraguayans maintained that a Bolivian regiment was virtually annihilated in the fighting and claimed their gains included another half mile in the Poza Favorita sector near Huata. Bulletins from the Bolivian war office declare that the Paraguayans in the war zone as minor.

Cartoonist Knocked Out At Hollywood

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Peter Arno, New York cartoonist, was knocked out in an exchange of fistuffs in the fashionable Embassy Club early today.

The argument allegedly was started by Drexel Biddle Steele, actor and member of a prominent Philadelphia family, but Steele said the knock-out blow was struck by Gordon Butler.

Sally O'Neal, film actress, accompanied Arno to the club, and was reported to have been the unwilling cause of the fight, said by witnesses who ended the altercation by raping Steele over the head with a chair. Miss O'Neal denied that she was knocked out in an exchange of fistuffs in the fashionable Embassy Club early today.

Steele said Arno, took exception to his attention to Miss O'Neal as she passed the table where the couple were sitting. The trouble started, Steele asserted, "when Arno got up and made a pass at me."

Sees Recovery Set-Up Facing Vital Question

(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)
The question is raised sharply by various phases of the recovery program is carrying the administration rapidly toward a fundamental decision of the old question: Shall we have more or less of direct government control of private business and of the every-day affairs of national life?

The question is raised sharply by the proposal of Gerard Swope to reorganize the industrial set-up under a self-governing national chamber of commerce. It is raised by the emergence of a new stage of the farm relief experiment, making it necessary to begin planning for long-term rather than immediate results.

All along the line, the same problem is coming home with greater or lesser force as it relates to other features of this recovery plan.

Toward Permanent Planning

When the various projects were launched last summer, no one took the trouble to inquire very deeply into the basic principles involved. Haste was the compelling force then, and the whole question was whether an emergency bridge could be thrown together, out of whatever sort of materials, to meet the need of the moment.

Now Washington is going on toward permanent planning. Both the administration and its critics are thinking more of the bricks and mortar, and whether they are of enduring quality. Already the accusation has been made that in its permanent phases the recovery plan is too suggestive of state socialism, too sweeping in its regimentation and control of private affairs.

How far to go in that direction is the fundamental question Mr. Roosevelt and his advisers soon must decide.

One way of looking at the Swope plan is to regard it as a protest against certain features of the NRA unforeseen when the plan was conceived.

It was the expectation of the business men who helped to draft the law that the trade association, not the government, would be the source of authority.

So strongly was that idea held by important business leaders that at least one of them, active in the writing of the recovery act, was greatly astonished when General Johnson began insisting that certain things be written into codes, and hinting that the government would do its own enforcing, with a firm hand.

Evidently General Johnson is ready now to recede somewhat, and to hand a greater share of self-government back to industry. That may or may not indicate an administrative determination to lighten the grip of government control generally. The point is so important that further developments will be awaited eagerly by every business man.

A Choice of Path

The same question arises with respect to agriculture. It has become quite apparent that the plan of voluntary curtailment of production has not produced the results its advocates hope for. The President must decide now whether to go on to compulsion.

Will it be possible to have more compulsion in agriculture, and less compulsion in business, and still preserve any sort of economic balance?

Many economists doubt it seriously. They believe Mr. Roosevelt will choose one pathway or the other, and stand or fall by the result.

U. S. PROTESTS GREEK ACTION IN INSULL CASE

Government Denounces Extradition Treaty With Greece As Worthless

Athens, Greece, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Denouncing the extradition treaty as worthless, in view of the Greek refusal to act favorably in its demand for the return of Sampel Insull, Sr., a strong United States protest note was handed by Lincoln Macveagh, the American Minister, to the Greek Foreign Ministry today.

The protest expressed astonishment at the appeal court's refusal to allow Insull to be extradited.

Premier Tsaldis, in an interview, replied that he had requested the Ministry of Justice to go through the files in the Insull case again and determine if anything had escaped the court's attention. He expressed the opinion that Greek justice stands as the highest, and expressed regret that the United States continued persistent in its attitude.

SIX STATES TO VOTE TUESDAY ON DRY ISSUE

Fate of National Prohibition Likely to be Decided at Polls Tomorrow

(By The Associated Press)
Six States decide tomorrow whether prohibition will be expunged from the Federal Constitution the first week in December.

The Roosevelt administration confidently believes it will.

Postmaster-General James A. Farley predicted in his New York speech that "this great victory will be completed Tuesday."

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, chairman of the Woman's National Committee for Law-Enforcement, however, asserted that if the women "go to the polls and vote, repeal will be frustrated."

States voting tomorrow are Pennsylvania, Ohio, North and South Carolina, Utah and Kentucky. Only three of these States need to elect a majority of anti-prohibition delegates to the State conventions set for the first of December.

Says Carolinas Will Vote Dry

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Saying it was "clearly indicated" that North Carolina will go dry tomorrow, Dr. C. E. Burtis, State dry leader today predicted that South Carolina would "stand with her sister State" if the anti-repeal vote turns out.

"Late advices from North Carolina clearly indicate that State will go dry," the State secretary of dry forces said.

TWO DRY LEADERS SPEAK AT KINSTON

Kinston, Nov. 6.—Mrs. J. M. Hobbgood, of Farmville, a vice-president of the central committee of the State dry forces, and Maj. W. A. Graham, superintendent of local schools, in speeches here this afternoon urged a dry vote in Tuesday's repeal election. They addressed a meeting in the "Disciples" church presided over by J. Herman Canady, chairman of Lenoir county's organization of drys.

Should North Carolina vote in favor of repeal would interpret the action as approval of saloons, stated Mrs. Hobbgood. She connected prohibition with progress, repeal with destruction.

Major Graham said repeal would have deplorable effects on youth.

DISMISS SLOT MACHINE CASES

Judge Frizzelle Denies Operation of Machines Are Not Illegal

The slot machine hearing before Judge J. Paul Frizzelle sitting in chambers here Saturday resulted in the dismissal of a series of cases against L. B. McCormick, owner and distributor of the machines, and business men in whose establishment the machines are operated.

Several months ago a grand jury in this county ordered arrest of operators of slot machines on the ground that they were gambling devices, and a large number of such warrants were issued. Before the next term of court at which the cases were to be heard, the warrants and papers in the cases disappeared from the clerk's office, and later the cases were quashed without action.

The hearing Saturday was a new group of cases brought as a test, and by agreement both the State and defendants permitted the case to be disposed of by the judge without jury. While it was admitted that gambling can be done on the machines by persons so inclined, it was testified that the machines primarily were vending machines paying out value received in mints for every coin placed in the machines, and that the machines were placed in the various business houses solely for the purpose. Some of the machines were placed on display for the information of the court, and it was testified that the checks therefrom were of no redeemable value and the receipts of same could not be considered gambling.

After the case had been argued by attorneys for both sides, the judge ruled that the machines were vending devices and dismissed the case.

Another week of the tobacco season has passed and the Greenville market has shown additional gains in pounds and prices. The new list of patrons added to the Greenville market from week to week is evidence that the superiority of the Greenville market is becoming more widely known.

EDUCATION WEEK

This is national education week and a good time for us to take stock of our schools and see just what we are doing for our children. The future safety of our nation depends upon the ability and good citizenship of our present children and the generation yet unborn and the best way to assure this future is to make sure that the children have the opportunity to become good citizens through a proper education.

IS IT GAMBLING?

In dismissing the slot machine cases on the ground that the machines themselves were vending machines and not gambling devices, of course Judge Frizelle no doubt was carrying out the technical letter of the law, but unless we are much mistaken the great majority of slot machines operated in this county would have little or no attraction but for the fact that they are games of chance. If you take the trouble to watch the crowds that hang around and play these machines you will be convinced that they are not just being played for a package of mints, as was the testimony before the court.

Outrageous Fortune by Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS: Jim Bond is in a dangerous predicament. He must prove himself an honest man to the police. He has been accused of stealing a car. He has been accused of stealing a car. He has been accused of stealing a car.

Chapter 43 CAROLINE'S STORY

By the clock tower was morning into darkness. Jim frowned in the dark. This dangle of headlights, with its succeeding darkness, was going to make it most frightfully difficult to spot Neta.

She put up her face, and he kissed her. They had always kissed one another, but this was a different kiss. They were both trembling.

Caroline clung to him.

Caroline clung to him. After a moment he got hold of himself. He said, "You mustn't!" and tried to put her away. She pressed closer. "Jim—do you love me—really?" "I haven't got any right to."

"CAROLINE, you've got to go home. I'm here on a job, and you mustn't hinder me. I haven't time to tell you about it. I'm waiting to see if Neta comes out. If she does, I've got to follow her. I think she's going to meet the man who's got the emeralds."

"Jim," said Caroline. "Oh, Jim darling, do let me help! You see, if you get into the car, we can stand in a good dark place between the lamp-posts in Sandringham Drive and watch the house. You'll miss her if you stay here. It's all quite simple and if you won't do it with me, I shall just go off and do it by myself."

For a moment his grasp tightened. Then he took his hands away and said, "All right—we'd better hurry."

"I feel like a toy balloon—all floaty! Oh, Jim—isn't it fun?" Jim took her by the shoulder and shook her.

"Now look here, Caroline—this is a job. You're not to talk nonsense, and you're not to smuggle, and you're not to betray Jim darling."

Caroline sat as far away from him as she could. "I'm not speaking."

"Now I'll tell you what I'm doing here. You'd better be prepared for a bit of a shock. The emeralds were at Hale Park, in the Blue Room. What I want to know is—did you ever tell anyone—anyone."

Nine mules, two horses, one Durant automobile, 15 tons of hay, 35 barrels of corn, all harness, farming implements and one lot of tobacco sticks. Said property will be sold separately and as a whole.

mind—about the hiding place behind the shield?" "No, I didn't," said Caroline.

"Then I must have put the damned things there myself." "You couldn't have," said Caroline in a deep sure voice.

"I don't know. It wasn't you. Now, Jim, listen—because I've seen Susie Van Berg, and I've got to tell you what she said. It's—it's not very good news, Jim."

"She told him about Susie. When she had finished, Jim said quietly, 'That puts the lid on—doesn't it? I suppose I did it. I can't believe it, but I suppose I did do it.'"

Caroline caught her breath. She went on quickly. "There's something else. After I left Susie I lost my way. That frightful storm was right overhead. I blundered into someone's room. There was a screen in front of the door, so they didn't see me."

"Who is 'they'?" said Jim. "Neta and that cousin of hers who is housekeeper there—Caroline Bussell."

He said, "Well?" "They were doing a sort of magic with a bowl of ink, like crystal gazing. The Bussell woman is rather frightening. She picked up the bowl of ink, and put it on her lap and looked into it."

"Well?" "I hated it! And then of a sudden Neta asked her where the emeralds were, and she described the Blue Room."

"Well, they were there all right," said Jim. "Did she say anything about the shield?"

"No, she didn't. She called out suddenly, 'He's alive! Did you know that he was alive?' And the bowl tilted and all the ink upset. I ran away."

He leaned forward and took her by the wrist. "Whom were they talking about?" "I don't know."

Jim let go of her wrist and sat back. "I don't think she meant me," he said in a slow controlled voice. (Copyright, 1933, J. B. Lippincott Co.)

FORBIDDEN VALLEY

A SERIAL by William Byron Mowery

Starts Monday, November 13

CURT TENNYSON plunged into the Canadian wilderness to track down IGOR KARAKHAN, an international crook—and found the most alluringly beautiful woman he ever met.

SONYA NICHOLS had no place in the dangerous, rugged country in which CURT sought his quarry. Her fragile beauty was in strange contrast with the impressive savagery of their surroundings. But CURT soon learned that SONYA'S Madonna-like face hid a secret that threatened to crash his dreams of love and romance, that she might be an enemy luring him into a trap.

CURT discovered with a shock that SONYA, too, was headed for KARAKHAN'S hiding-place on a mission she refused to reveal or explain but that implied all too strongly a romance in which CURT was not to share.

William Byron Mowery tells the story in masterful style, an exciting drama in the Northwest, packed with action, suspense and climaxes.

One Sure Way to End Coughs and Colds

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, and attacks the seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion. (adv.)
