Charges Long And Overton Unfit To Sit In Senate

SENATE BODY BEGINS PROBE IN LA. SHAKEUP

New Orleans Political Boss Hurls Charges During Stormy Session Marked by Yells From Spectators; Head of Government Investigation Says Impartial Hearing to be Given Political Bosses

New Orleans, Nov. 15.—(AP)—The special United States Senate Committee looking into the election of Senator John H. Overton today heard charges that both Overton and his colleague, Senator Huey Long, were unfit to sit in the Senate.

The charge was made by Francis Williams, New Orleans political leader, who took the stand in yesterday's uproarious session punctuated by yells from spectators and threats of contempt charges by members of the committee.

While the stormy session was in progress Senator Tom Connally, Democrat of Texas, committee chairman, advised here and said the government committee would conduct an impartial hearing, and that it would not be intimidated by anybody inside or outside of Louisiana.

For two days the probe has been held by Senators M. M. Logan, Democrat of Kentucky, and Elbert Thomas, Democrat of Utah, as a sub-committee.

Senator Logan, who acted as chairman of the sub-committee, sought to quell the disturbances caused by spectators with threat of contempt charges, but that only added fuel to the fire.

LEAF SALES LIGHTER HERE

Warehouses Expected To Clear Floors of Tobacco About 3 o'Clock Today

Sales were lighter on the local tobacco market today and indications pointed to completion of work by 3 o'clock this afternoon when warehouse floors will be cleared in preparation for heavier offerings of bright leaf tomorrow.

The market has enjoyed over a million pound bright leaf sale every day for the last month or so, and although there was probably over that amount on the market today tobaccoists were confident of completing work earlier than usual.

The price situation, which developed unusual strength some time ago, continued to hold its own on the Greenville market yesterday and 1,174,432 pounds of leaf were disposed of for $226,065.65 at an average of $19.25 per hundred pounds.

Reports of sales over the weekend still found Greenville in the lead of price averages and total poundage, and the end of this week was expected to see another definite advantage to the credit of the local market.

Farmers have been bringing their tobacco to market in increasing amounts since the upward trend in the price situation was first noted and this situation was expected to continue until the holiday season when the major part of the crop will be disposed of. Pilgrimage to the local market was expected to be heavy during the intervening time and facilities here were speeded up from day to day to take care of the situation.

KRESEL FACES TERM IN JAIL IN BANK CRASH

New York Lawyer Convicted of Misappropriating $2,000,000 by High Court

New York, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Isador Kresel, the fiery little lawyer who in 1930 crusaded with Samuel Seabury against corruption in magistrates' court, was convicted of aiding and abetting in the misappropriation of $2,000,000 in funds with affiliates of the defunct Bank of the United States.

The eminent attorney—he has often been called one of the most talented criminal counsels—was emotionless when shortly before 7 a. m. the Supreme Court which for two months had heard testimony, returned a verdict.

Nine indictments originally charged Kresel in connection with failure of the Bank of the United States.

There was a charge of perjury in which he was acquitted. Kresel was a director and counsel for the Bank of the United States. Bernard K. Marcus, president of the bank and Saul Singer, vice-president, are serving sentences in Sing Sing following their conviction on charges growing out of the bank's failure.

PUSH PLANS IN ROLL CALL

Intensive Red Cross Membership Drive to Be Staged in Pitt Next Tuesday

Organization was being perfected today for an extensive drive for new members in the annual Red Cross Roll Call which opened Armistice Day and will continue through Thanksgiving Day. It was announced today by S. G. Wilkerson, roll call chairman.

Organizations have either been perfected in various parts of the county, and Thursday of next week an intensive canvass will be made for members to the Red Cross.

Various clubs and organizations will sponsor the drive in all parts of the county, and Mr. Wilkerson expressed belief the campaign would be one of the most successful of years.

In Greenville the Kiwanis Club will sponsor the drive in the business district, and the college, tobacco men and Junior Women's Club will have charge of the drive in other parts of the city.

Advertising matter dealing with the roll call will be placed in display windows of business houses tomorrow so that the public may be well acquainted with facts in connection with the campaign to enlist new members for the Red Cross.

W. J. Bundy is chairman of the Red Cross of this county. He announced plans for the roll call several days ago, and since that time has been conferring with Mr. Wilkerson in an effort to get everything lined up for the campaign in time for the sweeping drive next Thursday.

The public will be urged to join and help this great army of mercy continue to reach out and carry relief to communities stricken by catastrophe. Its work in recent years has been of the highest type, and only recently the coastal region of North Carolina felt the result of its efforts when the tropical storm did such damage to fishing villages.

Head of Agriculture Would Also Reduce Production Next Several Years

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace believes the United States should adopt a policy of reduced tariff, curbed production or a compromise between the two, and stick to it for ten or fifteen years "even though certain people are hurt."

Winding up his swing through the Mid-West in behalf of the program with an address here last night, Wallace said adjustment and a planned course will be necessary regardless of the policy and visualized a standard of living two or three times that which we had in 1929 as a possibility.

Next Year's Acreage Of Irish Potatoes to Be Talked at Bethel Meeting

Potato growers in the Bethel section will assemble in the auditorium of the Bethel High School Thursday morning, November 16, at 10:30 o'clock, for the purpose of discussing next year's acreage and marketing of Irish potatoes.

A. F. Mercker, secretary of Interstate Early Potato Committee, and E. B. Morrow, State Horticulturist, will be present and discuss the outlook for the 1934 crop.

Every farmer interested in growing Irish potatoes is urged to attend this meeting. Codes, marketing agreements and acreage reduction will be discussed.

If farmers are to receive the opportunity for better prices on their products through the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, it will be necessary for them to come together and co-operate with the Federal Government in their plans.

POLICE BEGIN INVESTIGATION IMMEDIATELY

Registered Mail Pouch and Four Other Bags Taken From Truck in Heart Of City; Postal Authorities Unable to Say Just What Pouches Contained; No Clue as to Identity of Bandits

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Four armed men with two machine guns held up a mail truck on West Third Street here today near the heart of the city and escaped with one registered mail pouch and four pouches of first-class mail.

Police squads took up a close chase immediately, but first reports said they did not even have the make of the automobile used by the bandits as a clue.

Postoffice authorities said they would not be able to say for some time just what the mail pouches contained.

The mail truck was driven by Timmer Honeycutt and a mail clerk named Koontz was with him.

The postal employees said the bandit car blocked the truck and that they were covered with two machine guns before they realized the danger.

PROBE PARROT FEVER IN PITT

Health Authorities Check up on Birds Distributed by Circus In This Section

Dr. R. S. McGeachy, director of the Pitt County Department of Health, went to Farmville this morning to investigate the possible prevalence of parrot fever in the Farmville community and a full report of his findings was expected to be made in the near future.

The investigation followed receipt of information from the State Health Department that a traveling circus known as Bruce Shows was carrying birds infected with psittacosis about the country distributing them in various towns which they visit.

This information was conveyed to the State Health Department by the United States Department of Health. The statement said the circus was reported to have exhibited in Kinston, October 20, and later at Farmville in this county.

The circus was discovered exhibiting in Washington under the name of Empire Shows, the report said, and carried about fifty canaries and a few parrots.

Parrots or parakeets and love birds are the most prolific sources of parrot fever, the statement said, and all birds given away by the show were ordered destroyed.

One human case at Richmond, Va., the report advised, gives history of contact with birds of this nature.

In view of the fact that the birds were ordered destroyed, Dr. McGeachy said, such action should be taken immediately upon discovery that any of those carried by the circus are found in the Farmville community or any other part of the county.

Persons who obtained birds from this source should get in touch with the Health Department and help decrease the chance of human infection in this county.

CAROLINA TO MEET DUKE ON SATURDAY

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 15.—Some of the most brilliant line play of the season is expected when Freddie Crawford, Duke's All-American tackle, meets George Brandt, Bill Collins and Eddie Kahn, who form the strong right side of Carolina's line, in the State championship game at Durham Saturday afternoon.

The three Tar Heels are all husky battlers and polished performers, all of them having been regulars on the eleven which started against Duke last year. If anybody can stop the charging Crawford, Carolina supporters figure it in these boys.

Collins, who plays tackle opposite Crawford, has just returned from injured row, strengthening the Carolina line greatly. A brother of the head coach, he is remembered especially for the superb game he played against Georgia Tech after he had broken one of the small bones in his wrist.

Although his wrist has not regained full strength, Trainer Quinlan has expressed the opinion that he will be able to play without risk, and the big strapper is raring to go. It will be next to the last game Bill will play for Carolina and for brother Chuck, and he is anxious to make it one of his best.

Brandt, who gave one of the finest exhibitions of defensive end play ever seen in the State when the team's last met, weighs 170 pounds, Kahn, a fast, hard-charging guard, scales 190. Collins is a 200-pounder.

George Barclay, Carolina's sensational performer at guard and a leading candidate for All-Southern and All-American honors, will be pitted against Jack Dunlop and Gus Turner, Duke's strong right guard and tackle, in another feature line duel. On defense, of course, Barclay backs up the line and will have the whole of Duke's strong backfield to combat.

With Collins back in the line-up, the Tar Heels are enabled to groom two separate lines for the big test against the Duke forward wall, which outplayed Tennessee and Auburn, two of the best lines in the South, and which has been said by Coach Collins to be the best line he has seen in his eight years in North Carolina.

Carolina's first-string line, which featured in limiting State to the low net gain from scrimmage of 80 yards and in holding Wake Forest to six first downs, averages 188 pounds and lists a letterman at every position except center, where "Bebe" Daniel, who was All-Southern in high school, holds sway.

Moore and Barwick, ends; Evans and Furrer, tackles; Joyce and Stephens, guards, and Gardner, center, comprise the second line defense of sophomores and juniors, which average 181 pounds.

be found with a miler who can travel that fast. Bonthron's racing judgment against Lovelock was not particularly of the best. Instead of chasing the paces, at least, with the British star, Bonthron took headlong charge and as a consequence was unable to match Lovelock's "kick" in the stretch.

To prove his reservoir of stamina was still abundant, however, Bonthron came back the same afternoon to run a smashing half-mile in 1:53.

Big Three

One of the outstanding matters of sporting rivalry unsettled this year concerns which is the greater miler: Bonthron of Princeton or Glenn Cunningham of Kansas.

Gene Venzke, the Pennsylvania sophomore and still the world indoor mile record-holder, may have to be reckoned with again this coming winter, but he is not quite up to the Bonthron-Cunningham pace, on the basis of 1933 performance.

The WORLD OF STAMPS

By QUINLAN JAMES

Another set of stamps is being added to the constantly growing list of South American issues. The latest is from Bolivia, ranging from two to 25 centavos.

Somewhat similar to the country's of 1919 and 1927 with the country's coat of arms as the central figure, the design has been considerably modified and amplified. Colors are light green for two-centavo, light blue for the five-cent, and the 10, purple for the 15 and dark blue for the 25.

Here and There

Poland is issuing a stamp marking the fifteenth anniversary of the restoration of that country. It shows the Polish "independence cross" on a red background, with a value of 30 groschen, which is approximately four cents in American money. It is to be used for domestic postage.

Sweden is changing the color of its current 120-ore stamp from black to a bright mauve.

Face denominations of Brazilian stamps, often puzzling to collectors because of the high figures used, are not so mysterious when translated in to U. S. money. For instance, a 1,000 reis stamp is equivalent to approximately five cents, the value of a single reis being approximately one-hundredth of a cent.

As a rule, stamp collecting does not seem to include governmental-issued postcards, particularly in the United States. This may be because interest seems to center in those stamps known as adhesives, which can be removed from envelopes.

This same condition is true of U. S. Envelopes—those stamps impressed directly upon envelopes—although to not nearly so great an extent. However many collectors ignore envelopes as well as postcards.

Russian Balloons

Russia's newest stamps, a set of three commemorating the recent stratosphere flight which broke the world altitude record, have shown up on this side of the Atlantic.

The stamps are long and narrow this design being adopted to give a full length drawing of the stratosphere balloon. Across the top is 19,000 m, the height in meters reached by the balloon, while down one side is the inscription "U. S. S. R. 30-9-33" the figures giving the date of the flight, September 30, 1933. Values are five, 10 and 20 kopecks.

LITERATURE DEPARTMENT WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

The Literature Department of the Woman's Club met on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 14, at the home of Mrs. P. G. Dennis. Mrs. Darden presided.

The program was ably handled by Miss Frances Wahl, who gave the first of the series of travel talks which will engage the department's attention for the year. Miss Wahl's subject was "Travel Through France with Hueffer and Gibbons," and through her delightful interpretation of these authors the group spent a most enjoyable hour viewing some of the least known aspects of the life in rural France. The Frenchman's love of his native village and country, the close unity of French family life, the remarkable swiftness with which France recovers from disaster, France's never lessening fear of Germany, and the feeling of the French toward paying of the war debts, were topics which Miss Wahl treated with great sympathy and understanding.

The hostess, Mrs. Dennis, served appetizing peach shortcake at the close of the program.

At this meeting the department decided to celebrate Book Week by donating a book of children's literature to the public library.—Reported.

Mrs. Winstead, Mrs. Paul Campbell of Wilmington, and Mrs. Garland Brown of Chicago, were presented with lovely gifts. Mrs. J. L. Fleming, Mrs. M. L. Wright, and Mrs. M. K. Round Table Club Meeting

The Round Table Club met on Tuesday afternoon with Miss Nellie Denny as hostess, at the home of Mrs. H. E. Austin.

New books recently bought for circulation among club members were distributed. These books will be given to the public library in June.

Members voted to contribute $20 at once to the library for the purchase of books for children—in recognition of book week.

Members also voted to contribute five dollars to the Christmas fund for our soldiers at Oteen, through the local Legion Auxiliary.

Mrs. E. B. Higgs discussed the subject "Recent Economic Trends in the United States." Her treatment of this subject was clear, concise, and of necessity, condensed, in order to cover the many phases involved. Among the trends discussed were the N. R. A. and opposition by capitalists, that of banks, inflation, the going of the gold standard, the buying of gold by the government, agriculture, and a summary of conditions which might follow unless individuals stand firmly behind President Roosevelt in his heroic effort to steer us successfully past this change through which we are moving.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Austin and Mrs. R. G. Fitzgerald, served a delicious sweet course.—Reported.

MR. TURNER SPEAKS AT THE COLLEGE

Freddie Turner, a native of England, who is the only student at East Carolina Teachers College from another country, made a most interesting talk on his country's flag at the assembly hour this morning, giving in vivid style the history of the flag, and its symbolism.

He made his audience realize the extent of the British Empire by telling them this flag flies over one-third of the earth's surface. He called the countries coming directly under the flag the children of England, and the American states, the forty-eight grandchildren. He said England was prouder of none of her grandchildren than of North Carolina. He called himself an internationalist rather than a nationalist. He concluded by showing that the cross is a symbol of Christianity that binds together all countries and races with true internationalism.

The students were especially interested in his description of the English flag. The Union Jack is a combination of two flags. The first flag of a white background and red cross, which he showed the students, was a symbol of King George. In 1804, the Scottish flag of blue background and white cross was combined with the banner of King George and thus the English flag became a combination of two flags. Later this banner was combined with the flag of Ireland. The English flag then is not only a combination of two flags but of three, the colors being red, white and blue.

water plants, has been loaned, just for this week.

New books are on the tables and story hours are held each afternoon. Numbers of children are in the library practically all the time it is open.

The afternoon programs are very attractive. Monday afternoon children from the primary grades heard the following stories:

Snipp, Snapp, Snum and the Magic Horse, by Ruth Hood Morton, Selma.

The Cat and the Parrot, by Dorothy Brooks, Franklin, Va.

The Run-a-way Train, by Isabelle Suiter, Rocky Mount.

The Tongue-cut Sparrow, by Blanche Chappel, Candor.

The Castle of Fortune, by Sue Moell, Timberlake.

On Tuesday grammar grade children, 64 of them, enjoyed Patsy and the Leprecaun, told by Loula Mae Barker, Greenville; The Happy Prince, by Elizabeth Denny, Wilson; and an Uncle Remus story by Esther Pridgen, Edm City. After the stories, Mattie Cotton, Scotland Neck, gave out contest sheets containing questions, the answers to which are names of books and book characters. The children were invited to come to the library and fill out these sheets so that they might be returned at their next story hour.

Story hour for grades 1, 2 and 3 this afternoon at 3:30; grades 4, 5, 6 and 7 tomorrow afternoon at the same hour.

The Explanation

Osborn countered: "One heart was the correct bid over one diamond. I certainly would not have let the bidding die after opening it. In response to your one heart bid I would have called two clubs.

"From then on there were several methods of procedure. You could have bid five hearts, and with three

Tips on CONTRACT

ONE STRONG SUIT

By Tom O'Neil

If partner opens the bidding and you have a strong suit with the tops it is well to proceed slowly instead of leaping to game. There should be no doubt that the original bidder will keep the auction open so that an invitation to a slam contract can be extended. An immediate leap to game may cause the opener to pass.

Lewis Osborn, New York bridge-master, gave a lesson to partner after the following hand:

DEALER NORTH		EAST
♠ A 4 3	♥ 8	♠ J 10 8	♥ 9 5 4
♦ A 10 5 2	♣ A 6 4	♦ K 9 7	♣ K 10 8 5 2
WEST
♠ K Q 9 6 2	♥ 7 3	♦ 7 5	♣ 8 4
♠ J 6 3	♥ J 6 3	♦ J 9 7	♣ K 3

Osborn, North, offered a diamond. South leaped to four hearts, and there the auction ended. South took every trick and was much disappointed when he did not have a grand slam bonus to add to the honor pointage.

"I showed you a remarkable heart suit," he told Osborn. "Why didn't you bid five clubs over four hearts? Having the king of clubs, I then would have bid six hearts, and you, with the aces of spades, clubs and diamonds, then could have gone safely to seven hearts."

Osborn countered: "One heart was the correct bid over one diamond. I certainly would not have let the bidding die after opening it. In response to your one heart bid I would have called two clubs.

"From then on there were several methods of procedure. You could have bid five hearts, and with three aces I would have gone to seven. Or you could have bid four hearts. I would have called four no trump and you could have gone to seven hearts.

"But the four-heart bid immediately over one diamond told me nothing except that your hand was good for nothing except hearts as a trump and that you had a long string of them.

"They might even have been eight to the queen-knave, in which case you might, of course, have lost tricks to the ace and the king. My diamonds and clubs were not solid. There were two losing spades in my hand. Conceivably you might have difficulty even in making four hearts.

"Again, I could have assumed your heart suit was headed by the king and queen or the ace-queen, and these still could be losers. An immediate leap to four hearts crowds the bidding so that information cannot be exchanged, while a call of one heart over my opening diamond permits further bidding on my part at a low level. Once I name clubs the protected king of clubs in your hand becomes highly important. But a bid of five clubs over an immediate bid of four hearts is a leap in the dark."

EW HANOVER COUNTY 14TH IN LETTUCE CROP

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—(AP)—New Hanover County, North Carolina, a truck-growing center ranks seventeenth in acreage and fourteenth in crop value in the production of lettuce.

THEY GET THEIR MAN (Pathfinder)

Story-tellers the world over have regaled their listeners and readers with hair-raising and true narratives of such splendid police bodies as the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, now called the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who for many years have covered the white wastes of Canada's frozen Northland with an almost perfect record.

The placing of the crime of kidnaping under federal jurisdiction, however, and the prompt arrest and conviction of supposedly immune gangs of desperadoes, now serving life sentences, has shown the American public what the underworld has long known—don't monkey with Uncle Sam!

Sell Tobacco In Greenville—Best Market In the State

FORBIDDEN VALLEY

By William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS: After a winter of wolf hunting by airplane in the sub-Arctic, Curt Tennyson returns to Greenville to find a message from his former chief in the Mounted Police, A. K. Marlin, asking that Curt not "tie up" with anything before they meet. Curt goes to Marlin's hotel room, sees his daughter, Rosalie Marlin, and this time to breakfast with A-K. A-K is amazed to find that Curt already knows the history of Igor Karakhan, the international crook who has evaded the police for 9 months. Curt looks over Karakhan's record, and photographs of him.

Chapter Three

CURT REFUSES

CURT glanced at the enaps, two of them full-length; and studied one enlarged bust photo. He had seen the Russian personally on half a dozen occasions, but not close enough to observe him very well. He was struck by the intelligence and dynamic power of Karakhan. A man of forty, tall and commanding, he did not look Russian at all; his handsome manly features had nothing of the usual Slav broadness. His dark eyes, staring straight into Curt's, were smiling a faint sardonic smile. Except for a lustful expression about his mouth, he gave no suggestion of the crime trail that he had tracked across two continents.

the Cossack and wiping that sardonic smile off his face. Marlin stirred his coffee musingly. "Curt, I wouldn't be asking this of you if the case was just ordinary. But it's an international affair, and besides that it goes a lot deeper than merely capturing and punishing a criminal. You and I know that when some person makes a fat haul by theft or graft or shady deal, and gets by with it—we know what a pernicious influence it has on the man in the street. It breaks down his respect for law."

Curt saw the force of the argument, but it did not move him. Moments ago he had made his decision. He would not take the job. He was going back down north. "I'll think about it, A-K," he said evasively, "and—uh, let you know." A-K shrugged his shoulders, the only show of his bitter disappointment. He knew that Curt was refusing him.

In a way he did not blame Curt. Those seven years had been harsh years, a big fraction of a man's lifetime; and he thoroughly understood Curt's wish to go north again. His year down there had been happy, and he had richly deserved it. Yet the refusal hurt. Not only because he had been banking heavily while Curt had not known at all. Karakhan was a lion Cossack, born of the best nobility parents. Joining the army at an early age, he rose by sheer brilliance and became a colonel in the Imperial Guard at twenty-five.

As an aide to General Sukhomlinov, he had taken in his share of Sukhomlinov's war graft during those times when the Russian armies were struggling pitifully in the Galician swamps, with Ludendorff's gray hosts in front of them and traitors in the high places behind.

"We got that data from the Soviet G.P.U.," A-K explained. "They want him as badly as we do. You see, his game in Vancouver was to pose as an agent of the Soviet foreign trade commission. With his Russian background and all, he put it over in easy style. He cleaned up a million that we know of, and his haul must have totaled twice that much; some of those firms won't admit they were defrauded, for fear they'd lose prestige. Last September, on the sixteenth, or seventeenth, he cashed in and vanished like a puff of smoke."

CURT understood that A-K wanted him to run Karakhan down and arrest him. After so brazen a crime, the man's clean get-away must have dealt a serious blow to the reputation of the Royal Mounted. And no doubt A-K, like all decent-thinking men, considered that Karakhan's reckoning for the long trail of human suffering, death and ruined lives that lay behind him, was due and overdue.

As he looked out into the sun-splashed court, Curt felt a challenge in pitting himself against this international criminal who had outgeneraled the police of half a dozen nations; and he was proud that the heads of the Mounted should have turned to him, an outsider now when all other recourses had failed. Personally he despised Karakhan with a hinge of loathing; and in fancy he imagined himself nailing the record contained several facts. Curt saw the force of the argument, but it did not move him. Moments ago he had made his decision. He would not take the job. He was going back down north.

on Curt to get Karakhan, but because it showed him so clearly that Curt had changed a lot since his Police days. He appeared uncertain of himself, wavering between the careless selfish freedom of his new life and the earnest responsibility of the old.

In the last few weeks he had been quietly working to secure Curt one of the best positions in the province, a work which would give him scope for his abilities. If he was to see Tennyson established in that position, it had to be quickly.

Curt turned from the north window. "Yes." "That's the time! Better make it high, wide and handsome, and soak up all the sociability you can while you're back in civilization. It's your last chance till snow flies, you know." (Copyright, 1933, William B. Mowery)

Curt makes a momentous decision, tomorrow.

Sundown Stories

The Parachutes

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"There are two parachutes in the plane," Christopher cried. "Here! Take them!" He pointed with one wing to the place where they were. He told the Bears how to put them on, showing them above the noise of the engine. Then he told them to crawl out to the edge of the plane and jump.

"From this height?" asked Jelly Bear. "I could never do that!" "You must!" commander Christopher. "I've told you just what to do. Honey Bear must do the same. I have my own wings if I need them. I'll stay with the plane as long as necessary as I don't want to have it smashed. It's not mine."

"I'd feel as though I were jumping straight down to the earth," said Honey Bear in a frightened, growling voice. "Your parachute will take you down safely," said Christopher. "I know I'll just drop and land with a great crash and be squashed to pieces," said Honey Bear.

"Nonsense," said Christopher Columbus Crow. But in his Crow heart he was nervous. He did not know whether the Bears were too heavy for the parachutes. He did not even know whether the parachutes would open.

In fear and trembling Jelly Bear and Honey Bear strapped on the parachutes as Christopher had told them to do. Now they were ready to jump. Would the parachutes open? That was the all-important question.

Grandpa Grouchy Galump

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Christopher took a long breath. It seemed as if the parachutes were not going to open. Then—like the greatest wonder in the world—they did! Jelly Bear and Honey Bear were floating safely down to the earth.

Without their weight the plane behaved better and Christopher managed to get it to the ground without accident just as the Bears were landing not far from their own cave. Willy Nilly was rushing toward them. So was Top Notch, the Rooster, so was Rip, the Dog, and so were the Ducks.

"Jelly Bear! Honey Bear! You're safe," they shouted and crowded and barked and quacked.

"Christopher saved us," growled Jelly Bear gratefully. "We'll all have a wonderful supper," said Willy Nilly, "to celebrate the return of our dear Bears."

And such a supper as it was! They had everything they wanted to eat. After supper was over and the lamp was lighted Willy Nilly got out a big bowl and filled it with water. Then he got some soap and some pipes and they all blew soap bubbles. What fun they had, and what amazing bubbles Rip could make, when all of a sudden there was a loud rap at the door.

"What in the world can that be, and who is calling on us at this hour of the night?" Willy Nilly asked. He opened the door.

There stood Grandpa Grouchy Galump with his gun!

Tomorrow—Willy Nilly's Plea

publishing a new world's record for long delay jumps. The parachute is now on display at the Greenville City.

Many well known pilots of North Carolina are expected to participate, and owing to the large crowd that is expected, those desiring to take a ride in an airplane will find the price more than reasonable. All ships in the circus are government licensed and all pilots are transport pilots with thousands of hours in the air.

They will be a small admission charge at the field, the receipts to go to the parachute jumper for his part of the entertainment as his salary.

Adequate parking space has been arranged for on the field to accommodate about two thousand cars, and offering good visibility for all events, there being no charge for automobiles on the field. A large attendance is expected.

Type 14 is produced mostly in southern Georgia—a few million pounds in northern Florida and Alabama. U. S. Type 31 includes what is called White Burley tobacco. It was first produced by George Webb in 1864. It is light in color and body, and is milder than the Burley used for pipes. U. S. Type 32, Maryland tobacco, is noted for its "burn". In this respect Maryland excels most other tobaccos. These are the kinds of home-grown tobaccos used for making Chesterfield Cigarettes. Then Chesterfield adds aromatic Turkish tobacco to give just the right seasoning or spice. Chesterfield ages these tobaccos for 30 months—2 1/2 years—to make sure that they are milder and taste better.

Whitley's Greater Flying Circus Here Over Week-End

The Whitley Greater flying circus will be in Greenville over the coming week end and offer many thrills to those who come to the Fleming Farm, which is located 1-2 miles from the Greenville city limits on the Bethel highway, where a landing field is being graded to permit the landing of the five or more airplanes. The ships are expected to land either Friday afternoon or early Saturday morning, and will offer a variety of entertainment on the two days of their stay in our city.

Formation and stunt flying will be one of the attractions. The wing-walking and daredevil stunts of Lt. DeAlmos, which are always performed without the protection of the customary parachute are something never to be forgotten. The outstanding feature of the show however will be the sensational record delay parachute jumps both on Saturday as well as on Sunday by Lt. E. DeAlmos, world's premier parachute jumper and movie stunt man, who at the present time holds all known records for parachute jumping, crowning his achievements at the world's fair in Chicago this year by leaving a plane at the height of 18000 feet and falling better than two miles before releasing the parachute, es-

NEW CHARGES FACE LABOR BOARD IN S. C.

Labor Council Head Says State Industrial Board Will Not Hear Complaints

Greenville, S. C., Nov. 15.—(AP)—J. L. Sowers, head of the Greenville Trade and Labor Council, today charged the State Industrial Board of the NRA had declined to hear charges that textile plants were fighting union workers.

Sowers' statement was made in reply to one E. B. Geer of the National Relations Commission, that local leaders had resented the general indictment against the industry either offering to cite special instances.

Geer yesterday demanded specific charges and court action by labor leaders instead of the blanket charges which were sent to President Roosevelt. General Johnson of the NRA and Miss Frances Perkins that the mills were violating the NRA codes.

"If Mr. Geer can help us we will only be too glad," Sowers said. "We have been seeking an opportunity for five weeks to present these charges, but Mr. H. H. Willis, chairman of the State Industrial Board, has not given us a hearing. Perhaps Mr. Geer knows why. We do not."

Greenville, S. C., Nov. 15.—(AP)—H. H. Willis, chairman of the South Carolina Industrial Board, said today that Greenville labor leaders had not made complaint in regard to violating of the collective bargaining clause of the NRA by textile mills.

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Cotton futures steady, five to nine points higher on steeper Liverpool cables and commission house buying which were partially offset by some active selling on the unchanged government gold prices. The initial demand was supplied by realizing or liquidation, and after selling to 10.01 for December and 10.46 for May at the opening prices eased off 12 points from the best. There was considerable trade and commission house buying and the market was steady to within a point or two either way of yesterday's closing quotations at the end of the first half hour.

Volume tapered off later in the morning. At midday December was around 10.06 and May 10.83, or about three to four points lower.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Financial markets continued under the spell of the revised dollards today and most traders and investors appeared to be as highly confused as in recent sessions.

Although the R. F. C. held the gold price to yesterday's rate of 335.56 an ounce, the American monetary unit dropped to a new low level foreign exchange.

Sterling soared to $5.41, another post-war peak, and French francs jumped to 6.55, also a new high.

Stocks, grains, cotton and other commodities dipped and rallied narrowly with business at about one-half yesterday's volume. Federal bonds again lagged and corporation issues were mixed as foreign gold obligations maintained their advance.

While American Telephone declared the regular quarterly dividend according to expectation, the stock was unchanged. National Distillers and American Alcohol got up a point each.
