STATE OF ALARM DECLARED TO EXIST IN SPAIN

Action Follows Slaying Of 20 Persons During Disorders By Extremists

HUNDREDS ARE ALSO WOUNDED IN NORTHEAST

State of Alarm Follows State of prevention Declared Sunday; Disorders Believed Caused by Leftists Group as Result of Parliamentary Election; Cabinet Called into Session To Consider Situation

Madrid, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Premier Diego Martinez Barrios declared a state of alarm throughout Spain today following the death of at least 20 persons and the wounding of hundreds in extremists revolutionary disorders in the northeast.

"A state of alarm" is the next thing to martial law and supersedes the state of prevention declared Sunday which placed assault guards and other national police forces on the alert in preparation for the convening parliament yesterday.

The disorders were believed to have been instituted by disgruntled adherents of the Leftists group as the result of the parliamentary election landslide last month.

Apparently the actual convening of parliament was the signal for the outbreak of rioting.

Broad daylight brought comparative tranquility following a night of terrorism in the northeast. Authorities moved immediately to check the casualties and the extent of the property damage which is believed to be large.

The cabinet was called into session shortly before noon supposedly to discuss the situation.

The survey of how far the disorders had spread was slow and difficult because terrorists had destroyed most of the telephone lines in areas where they operated. The Central Telephone exchange reported that approximately 150 of its circuits were put out of commission by the vandals.

Even the international service was interrupted by the severance of main trunk lines in several places.

CITY SEEKS TO SELL WHISKEY

Hearing on Court Order Expected to Settle Augusta's Ordinance Issue

Augusta, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Whether liquor will flow under the sanction of a city ordinance in defiance of the Georgia bone dry law will be decided December 15 at a hearing on a temporary court order restraining the issuance of licenses to prospective dealers.

Judge A. L. Franklin in Superior court yesterday granted a temporary injunction and set the date for the hearing at which he will decide whether to make the order permanent. The hearing will be held 15 days in advance of the scheduled time for the ordinance to become effective.

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Colonel Luke Lea, former United States Senator, and his oldest son, Luke Lea, Jr., fighting their extradition to North Carolina, lost in the Tennessee Supreme court here today.

$500 STOCK OF WHISKEY IS CAPTURED

Whiskey valued at $500 was captured by county officers at Fountain yesterday and Walter Sumrell, white, was being held in jail today awaiting trial on a charge of violating the prohibition law.

Officers said the whiskey was found stored in a trap under the smokehouse at Sumrell's home. There were twenty-nine cases and one barrel of the beverage and this would have gone a long way toward supplying the thirsty followers of John Barleycorn during the holidays.

At present day values, officers said the seizure would bring $500 if placed on the open market.

Sumrell was brought to Greenville and confined in jail to await trial at the regular session of county court next Tuesday.

The capture was one of the largest, if not the largest, made here in several weeks, and certainly the most important since national repeal of the dry law.

Large cargoes of whiskey were expected to continue to fall into the hands of the law from now on through the holiday season as bootleggers attempt to take care of the thirst of their patrons in various parts of the state. Officers also were expecting to bring runners attempting to bring bottled in bond whiskey into the state from surrounding wet states, and indications are that numbers will fall into the dragnet put out for such violators.

GARDNER GOES WITH TEXTILE COMMITTEE

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The cotton textile industry committee has secured the services in Washington of O. Max Gardner, former governor of North Carolina. George A. Sloan, chairman of the committee, said yesterday.

Sloan said there were difficult problems facing the industry and that detached and constructive advice from lawyers with a broad industrial background was considered important. Gardner is himself a textile manufacturer.

MOVE TO GET NEW PROJECTS FOR THIS CITY

Committees Named Last Night to Obtain More Civil Works in Greenville

New Civil Works Administration projects for Greenville were discussed at an enthusiastic meeting held in the city hall last night and committees were named to handle proposals of this kind to be presented in the near future.

Several projects that would prove of great benefit to Greenville at this time were considered along with a tubercular sanatorium for Pitt county, to be owned and operated by this and surrounding counties interested in reducing the severe toll being taken by the disease at this time.

A central committee composed of R. I. Powell, B. W. Moseley, Mayor R. C. Flanagan, W. H. Woodard and D. J. Whichard, Jr. was named to hear individuals or organization representatives on public works projects and to see that such proposals are given immediate attention by the Civil Works board here and at Raleigh.

A second committee comprising J. H. Waldrop, M. K. Blount and Dr. W. I. Wooten was selected to determine paving projects needed by the city and to see that they are presented to the proper authorities.

J. B. Kittrell, Mrs. J. L. Hassell and Mrs. J. B. Spilman constituted a third committee to study the tubercular situation in this and surrounding counties and to outline plans for securing a tubercular sanatorium for the county or for an institution to be owned and operated by Pitt and adjoining counties.

Public works projects considered were:

Extension of payment on east and west Third street; widening of the dam on the north side of Tar river as a safety measure against floods; beautification of property along the river dam; draining projects about the city, with a view to mosquito control; cleaning up of the south banks of Tar river to improve unsightly appearance; providing of sidewalks in sections of town that do not have any and improvement of worn out pavement.

The meeting was called yesterday by Senator A. B. Corey of the local Civil Works committee, and numbers of citizens interested in obtaining additional funds for improvements necessary to the city and community were present and entered into the discussions in an interested manner.

MILL STRIKE COMES TO END

Silk Mill Strikers at Asheville Decide to Return to Work Monday Morning

Asheboro, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Employees of the Cetwick Silk Mills who have been on strike seven weeks voted unanimously at a meeting here today to return to work Monday.

A strike committee and the management had previously reached an agreement for ending the strike and conditions were explained to the strikers and accepted by them.

In substance the agreement is an assurance from the management that all rights and privileges of the employees under the NRA act will be observed. The workers contended they struck because of NRA violations by the mill.

Late News Flashes From Over World

LINDBERGH TO FLY THROUGH THE INTERIOR

Para, Brazil, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh decided today to fly into the interior of Brazil tomorrow.

The flying colonel's future goal was Manaus, more than 800 miles inland on the Amazon river.

He planned to leave that point Monday to return to the United States by the way of Trinidad, Porto Rico and Miami.

It was not indicated whether he would fly overland from Manaus on his homeward journey or return to the sea coast by the way of the Amazon. The shortest overland flight to the coast would require him to pilot the big airplane in which he and his wife recently made a trans-Atlantic flight over 600 miles of jungle.

DEATH CLAIMS PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR HERE

Rev. W. S. Harden Succumbs to Heart Attack at Ninth St. Home Early Today

Rev. W. S. Harden, pastor of the Presbyterian church here for the last ten years, died this morning at 3:30 o'clock at his home on Ninth street after an illness of two days. Death resulted from an attack of the heart which he suffered last Thursday morning. His condition was so serious from the outset that attending physicians held but little hope for his recovery.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock by members of the Greenville Ministerial Association, assisted by the ministers of Albermarle Presbytery of which the deceased was Stated Clerk. The remains will be taken to Griffin, Ga., for burial Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Although news of his illness had spread throughout the city, his death was received with profound shock by the thousands who knew him and loved him for the fine work he has done in behalf of improvement of the moral and spiritual life of the city. He was never too busy or too tired to strike out vigorously and boldly against things he believed to be inimical to the community's welfare, and led many fights for civic betterment.

Because of interest in his work and the people he loved and labored with so tirelessly, he was one of the most beloved men of the community and his consecrated and conscientious service will forever remain a guiding light for the feet of those who loved and respected him for his fearless fight for the truth.

He came to Greenville from Columbia, S. C., in April, 1923, as pastor of the Presbyterian church, and saw the denomination grow in number.

Two Killed in Train Wreck
Chillicothe, Ohio, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Two men were killed and four others injured today when the sportsman's crack flier of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad was derailed one mile northeast of here.

Railroad officials said they believed two or possibly three more train riders were buried beneath the wreckage.

The train was derailed at a curve near the edge of town. From all appearances railroad officials said the track which is constructed on shale bed slid out from under the engine as it went around the curve. A small embankment kept the train from going into the river.

NATIONAL TAX SYSTEM GETS MUCH FAVOR

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The administration has opened the way for congress to establish a national taxation system which the federal government would collect the revenue and divide it between the national treasury, states and political subdivisions.

The inter-departmental committee set up by President Roosevelt to study alcoholic beverage taxation has suggested to congress that 20 per cent of the total federal receipts on liquor be returned to states to prevent double levies.

This is in line, officials and members of congress claim, with the president's plan to confer with governors for the purpose of eliminating not only the "double tax" on liquor but that other commodities and articles.

HEBER AYERS HELD IN COX MURDER HERE

Young White Man Ordered Held For Criminal Court After Inquest

Heber Ayers, young white man residing on the north side of Tar river about a mile from Greenville, was being held in jail here today in connection with the murder of Floyd Cox, filling station employee who was found shot to death early Thursday morning on the old Greenville-Stokes road, several miles from the city.

Ayers was taken into custody for an inquest held by O'Conner A. A. Ewanger yesterday afternoon, which the jury reached a verdict that Cox came to his death from pistol wounds and that there was sufficient circumstantial evidence against Ayers to cause him to be held for grand jury action at the next term of criminal superior court without bond.

Sheriff Sam Whitehurst, who had direct charge of the investigation of the murder, was the main witness at the inquest. He stated that tracks found at the scene of the crime were identical with those of Ayers. He also said that his examination of a pistol owned by Ayers had been found to be of the same calibre as the bullets found in the dead man's body.

Cox, employe of the filling station operated on the Greenville-Bethel highway by his half-brother, Herbert Cox was reported to have left the filling station Wednesday at midnight with about $100 cash in his pockets. Next morning his body was found in the woods a short distance from the old Stokes road with bullet wounds in the head and chest. A small amount of change was found scattered around on the ground.

After the investigation, Sheriff Whitehurst said he believed robbery was the motive for the slaying.

Ayers, officers said, lives about seventy yards from the filling station where Cox worked. He vigorously denied any knowledge of the slaying until informed of it next day and said one of two bullets missing from his pistol had been fired at a dog.

Local Market Near 64,000,000 Pounds With Completion of Week's Work Friday

Sales on the Greenville tobacco market today were drawing near the 64,000,000 pound mark, it was indicated this morning in the regular weekly report of sales made public by K. W. Cobb, market supervisor.

To be exact the market had sold 63,906,792 pounds of tobacco when sales were completed yesterday afternoon and $10,764,192.52 had been paid out to the farmers of this and surrounding communities. The average was given as $16.84 per hundred pounds.

For the week, the report showed the market handled 4,123,768 pounds for which farmers received $765,434.88. The average was 18.56 per hundred pounds.

For the same date last season the market had sold 38,910,380 pounds of weed and farmers had received $4,728,489.89 with an average of $12.15 per hundred pounds.

The corresponding week last year 862,094 pounds of tobacco were handled and farmers had been paid $93,843.39 at an average of $10.89 per hundred pounds.

The sales yesterday was one of the heaviest of the week but floors were cleared in preparation for heavier offerings next week.

Figures for yesterday were 1,108,460 pounds for $200,802.77 at an average of $18.12 per hundred pounds.

With the market closing for the Christmas holidays on December 15 farmers have been urged to market their tobacco rapidly during the intervening time.

HOURLY PARKING LAW IS TO BE INVOKED HERE

As a means of creating more parking space for visitors to Greenville during the holiday season, the one hour parking law will be enforced today on the Evans street and Dickinson avenue from now until January 1.

The Board of Aldermen in monthly session Thursday evening instructed Chief of Police George Clark to see that the legislation is strictly enforced and that the two streets are kept as clear as possible during the holidays for the convenience of the thousands of people expected to do their Christmas shopping here.

The board made a direct appeal to store owners and employes to make some other arrangements about the parking of their cars. Instead of parking the machines on the two main business arteries, business folks were urged to either leave the cars at home or park them around in some back lot or side street so they will not interfere with visitors finding adequate parking space.

Although the one hour parking law has been in effect for several years, it has not been strictly enforced recently for convenience of the business population and those who find it necessary to spend considerable time in the business section.

It was also said that all cars must be off the streets after 1 o'clock at night to give the street cleaning department a chance to tidy up things. During the summer months brooms have been used by the department but the street sweeper is to be put back on the job immediately and this makes it necessary that all obstructions be off the street.

Cars left on paved streets at night after 1 o'clock will find tags on them the next morning or ring owners to appear before the mayor and explain why they failed to abide by the law.

Decorate for Holidays Here

Decorations for the Christmas holidays were being placed along principal business streets today under the direction of the Water & Light Commission which for the last several years has had charge of providing electrical decorations for the festive season.

Forces of workmen were busy yesterday hanging strings of busy-colored lights across intersections of business streets and this work probably will be completed sometime next week.

The most outstanding of the decorations will be the large Christmas tree to be erected at Five Points early next week. This will be decorated with hundreds of lights and may be seen for a good distance along the five intersecting streets.

Santa Claus probably will make his appearance under the Christmas tree Christmas Eve night and give the kiddies of the city the thrill of their young lives.

Numbers of business houses have placed lights on the fronts of their buildings and scores of homes were expected to follow a similar plan during the next several days.

Electrically lighted Christmas trees were expected to be used in profusion in the business district and in homes and these will add much to the general street decorations.

Persons interested in helping beautify the city for the holidays have been urged to provide themselves with trees and lights and other things necessary to brighten up things for the coming of Old Saint Nick.

REV. W. S. HARDEN

News of the death of Rev.
W. S. Harden here this morning was received with profound regret by his hundreds of friends throughout this city and county. During his ten years here as pastor of the Presbyterian Church
Mr. Harden not only made hosts of friends but wielded wide influence in the city and county in his work for the Kingdom of God. Words cannot describe nor add to the glory of such a life as that of Mr. Harden, but at his passing we express deep regret. We are glad, however, that our community
had the opportunity of having him a part of it for the past ten years for even though he now leaves us
his wide influence for good will continue to be felt here.

With just one more week
of the tobacco market before the Christmas holidays
we urge the growers to market what of their crop they can before the holidays begin.

Again we say, get at your Christmas shopping. There are just two more weeks left and those who wait for the last minute more than likely will be disappointed by the depletion of stocks. Then, too, everyone should try to get their shopping over before the last minute in order that those who must serve in the stores may complete their tasks early enough to likewise enjoy the holidays.

CHAPTER 23
NIGHT ATTACK

FIFTY yards away a canoe stopped and hovered motionless. A figure stood up in it and stared down toward the island. For perhaps five minutes the craft hovered there.
Then it slowly backed away, blurred
to nothingness, disappeared.
"Spying on our camp?" Curt breathed to himself.
Gradually the pink glow faded
from the mountain peaks. A big cloud hovered in sight over the eastern range. Curt watched it anxiously, afraid it would come on west and blot out the moon and plunge the lake into darkness just when he and Paul might have to beat off an attack.

Moccasined footsteps came up the west landwash. Paul, he thought,
A moving blur shaped itself to a human figure. Then he saw it was not Paul.
A dozen steps away the figure stopped, looked around for him.
"Sonya," he called quietly.
She came on to the little barricade. "Is one allowed to talk to the guard?" she asked whimsically. She crouched down with him. "I brought you some of my blankets and a tincup of coffee. I baked enough sand of the fire to heat this, but I didn't expose the coals."

Curt squeezed her hand. "It was sweet of you—all the trouble, dear.
But you'd better take the blanket.
This mountain air gets chilly when a person isn't moving around." He put the blanket about her shoulders.
"Thanks, Curt. The air does have a bite in it."
She did not free her hand or object to his endearing word. Her nearness and that shock of golden-brown hair so close to his shoulder almost robbed him of his restraint.

"Tired?" he asked gently.
"A little."
He put his arm around her and made her struggle against him.
"Isn't that better, dear?"
"Lots, Curt! But then she caught herself up and admitted more cautiously, "I mean—lots better than the cold rocks."

His lips touched her hair, her forehead. "Sonya, look up at me."
"Don't, Curt—please—!" a whisper of protest from her as he sought her lips. She would not allow him. "Dear, you must not!" She reached up her hand and touched his hair, feeling her fingers over
it. "You're so good, you're so sweet and generous—I'd have invented a hundred ways to say
'Paul—to me? Why Sonya, you couldn't do that!'"

"But I could! You'll want me—you're a friend, and I don't—can't—let a wish we could continue to be with the good friends we have been."

Curt started a little. "Can't?"
he repeated. "Do you mean that you—can't be more than a friend?"
"Please Curt, I'd rather not talk about it."

"You've never told me anything at all about yourself. I don't even know your name, your real name."

"Where you came from, or where you're going when this trip's
over, that's fair, Sonya?"
"Very possibly unfair. I've treated you pretty all along, Curt. But I can't tell you that. When this trip is over, I can afford to be honest. I don't blame you for asking questions, but I think I'll stick to the rocks down there."

"Please don't," Curt begged.
"See, I'm not tired, but I feel back ache and far away from him, alone with her own thoughts. He seemed shut out by a granite wall of aloof-ness. For days he had been vaguely aware of some barrier between them, now he felt it forthly and unmistakably. "Curt"—had she really meant that portentous little word?"
Moccasined footsteps again, quick footsteps very near the sentry
box. Sonya hastily freed herself, and drew apart from him.

willow island. They lifted out four canoes, and they're over in that brush."

The news startled Curt.
"Only four canoes?" he asked.
"Only four. I think they are carrying two men apiece. One turned broadside to the moon's reflection and I saw it distinctly. It carried just two."

"That means we've only got eight men to deal with. Those eight we saw today. We ought to stand them off without much trouble." After a few moments' thought, he directed:
"You go back to your post, Paul. If they start across, try to stop 'em by shooting over their heads. If they keep coming on, ricochet your bullets through their canoes. I'll stay here and watch for others. They may be planning to box us from two sides.
If that party over there is the only one, I'll help you turn 'em around and head 'em the other way."

When Paul had left, he suggested:
"I'd better take you back to the boulders, Sonya. It's safer there.
We'll likely have some swift work for a minute or two."
"I'd rather stay here, if you'll let me. I can help, too, if it comes to a real fight."

Her hand crept inside her blouse,
and came out with some black metallic object. Curt saw it was a small automatic, a little purse-size thing, but nevertheless an effective weapon for close work. Once on a portage when he had lifted her down from a pile of windfall he had felt something hard beneath her blouse.
It must have been this same gun.
She must carry it with her all the time now.

ON THE willow island he saw nothing, heard nothing. The minutes dragged by interminably.
He almost wished the fight would start. Anything was better than waiting, waiting.

The big cloud had drifted on out from the eastern range till it was only a little distance from the moon. But a strong up-current from the valley had seized it and it hovered uncertainly, sending out feathery wisps this way and that.

Down toward the camp a patterned noise suddenly arose. It sounded as though the tents and canoes were being pelted with small stones.
Sonya touched his arm. "Curt,
what's that?"

"Arrows! They're shooting up our camp. You see, they expected to kill or wound part of us before we got out of our blankets."

"Why," Sonya gasped, "you must've known—that's why you made us stay away from the tents!"
"I didn't know they'd do it, but I suspected they might, so I played safe."

The patter of arrows kept up for two or three minutes, then stopped.
"Maybe they think they killed us
all or that we sneaked away before they got here," Sonya suggested.
"That's an idea. I'd better let 'em know we're still around, or they might come across to investigate."

He called down to Paul, using the Jargon so that the Klosshees would understand:
"Are the mosquitoes bad there with you, friend? It seems to me that a whole flock of them are buzzling out of those willows yonder."

Paul took the hint and answered, with a scornful laugh: "They are bad, yes; but their buzzing does not annoy me much. They are nothing for a man to worry about."

FORBIDDEN VALLEY
by William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS: Just before reaching the land of the dangerous Klosshees Indians in the Canadian Northwest, Curt Tennison and Paul St. Clair, trailing the international crook, Ipor Karakhan, join parties with Sonya and Ralph Nichols. The Nichols are on a missionary mission they will not discuss. The party just has beaten off an attack by the Indians, but an unfortunate shot by one of its guides has eliminated all possibility of making friends. Curt is interested in Sonya, but she will not listen to his pleas.

CHAPTER 24
ERRAND OF MERCY

WHEN they got down to camp
they found the place badly shot
up. Arrows bristled in the canoes, stuck out of the packs and sleeping bags, and both tents had been riddled.

Paul went into his tent for a flashlight and came out, holding his left arm queerly. "Give me a hand
with this, partner?"

"What's the trouble?"
"One of those mosquitoes bit me."
Curt leaned forward. "Good Lord!" An arrow was sticking in Paul's left forearm. It had struck him just below the elbow and passed clear through, the head standing out two inches on the other side.

"Paul! Why didn't you tell me about this before? When did it happen?"
"When I was going back to those boulders to make Francois and Jocku quit shooting."

Curt whirled around in a rage and looked for the two guides. But they had wisely sidled away into the dark.

"Did it break your arm, Paul?"
"No. It slid between the bones.
Pull it out, won't you?"
"It's going to hurt, Paul. Can you stand it?"

Paul braced his foot against Curt's. Sonya steadied his arm.
With a firm pull Curt drew out the arrow, as gently as he could. A spasm of pain swept across the young Canadian's face, but he did not say a word. A trickle of blood followed, surprisingly little for so bad a wound.

"We ought to be thankful it didn't hit that large artery in there, Paul.
I'll fix this up properly, and then you want to take care of it till it starts to heal. A wound like that can be ugly if it gets infected."

While he was bandaging Paul's arm he heard a low groaning sound
from somewhere out in the night.
A moment later it came again, more distinctly.

"Why, it's somebody hurt, in pain!" Sonya exclaimed. "Paul, did you catch the direction?"
"Over on that willow island."

"Then it must be the man they shot! Those others thought he was dead and left him."

between the eyes and not get killed instantly. The fellow certainly was hard-fighting grizzlies and surviving a shot in the head!

He brought water and washed
the Indian's face. A granite pebble, no larger than a pea, was lodged in the forehead wound. Curt pried
it out with his knife point, examined
the wound and the granite pebble, and suddenly understood what had happened to the Klosshees.

One of those heavy Winchester bullets had splatted into the gravel
in front of him, kicked that stone
against his head, and knocked him senseless. Stretched out limp, with a hole between his eyes—no wonder the others had thought him dead!

The cold water on the Klosshees'
face brought him to in a few moments. When he saw that a white man was bending over him, his eyes turned suddenly cold. His glance fell upon the hunting knife in Curt's hand, and his expression changed to a stony tight-lipped defiance. "Too weak to move, he merely stared up at his enemy, and waited.

"Why's he looking at you that way, Curt?" Sonya asked. She had stooped down to hold the flash.

"Good heavens, he thinks I'm going to kill him!" He hastily pocketed his knife. "Well, he's certainly a stolcal cuss!"

HE spoke in the Jargon to the Indian. "Don't be afraid. I am friend. I hear you say hurt-cri, and I come over here. I take you now to my tepee and make you no-sick. You understand I am friend?"

The Indian's look slowly changed to bewilderment. He had expected the white-skin to gloat over him before finishing him off, and the stranger was speaking in tones of sympathy and kindness!

"What name you?" Curt asked.
"Hal-se-Tenn-Ogshamowam."

Curt smiled. "S'pose I call you Tenn-Og, huh? Now we take you to tepee."

In the tent he gave the Klosshees
a drink of diluted brandy to brace him,
and then began dressing the wounds.
The shoulder bullet had gone almost entirely through. Curt extracted it, stopped the bleeding, bandaged the wound, and stuck a cross of plaster
on the forehead cut.

Feeling stronger, Tenn-Og leaned back against a pack, watching the three.

RUSSIAN CHORUS AT COLLEGE MONDAY EVENING

The concert at East Carolina Teachers College by the Slaviansky Russian Chorus on Monday evening will be in the Campus building at eight o'clock.

The chorus is composed of twelve or fifteen Russian men and women who will appear in gorgeous costumes. Their program includes not only folk songs but other kinds of music. This is one of the finest of the Russian choruses that brought to the American public Russian music and made the world appreciate the Russians as musicians.

The father of the present conductor started the organization with a double quartet and had them sing the songs he himself collected from the peasants. They have been in America time and again, but this is their first appearance here.

D. A. R. Meet.

Mrs. C. W. Harvey and Mrs. Ed Harvey entertained the Colonel Alexander McAllister chapter D. A. R., at the home of the former, Friday afternoon, December 8.

Mrs. Murphy, the regent, presided. This being a joint meeting of November and December the regent brought interesting "Thoughts On Thanksgiving and Christmas," closing with this thought: "Spare our woods for perches, beauty, decorate a living tree, and above all, endeavor to discover and observe the real spirit of Christmas, which is to know and do the will of Him, whose birthday we celebrate."

Dr. W. A. Ryan, pastor of the Christian Church, was introduced and spoke on "Some Changes in Our Social and Economic Groups." We were made to see the urgent need of developing a world conscience and a world neighborliness. A beautiful birthday cake, all white, with red candles, was placed in the center of the dining table, while Mrs. Paul Holden of Snow Hill, recited "Every Day is a Birthday," causing every one to enjoy the chapter birthday all the more by the privilege of sending $5.00 to Constitution Hall at Washington, D. C., and $5.00 to Crossmore, our mountain school.

Amid a setting of beautiful Christmas decorations, enhanced by the spirit of true hospitality, the chapter enjoyed a sumptuous repast served by the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Cary Warren, Mrs. Robert Wright and Mrs. P. G. Dennis. —Reported.

CHILD FATALLY SHOT IN GAME OF INDIAN

Marion, Dec. 9.—Lillie Mae Whitson's 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Whitson, while playing Indian with a group of children in the home about 7 o'clock Thursday evening, A .22 calibre rifle, supposed to be unloaded and harmless, was used in making a raid by David Freeman, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Freeman of the same community and relatives of the Whitsons.

The children had taken refuge under a bed from the Indian, and when David innocently pointed the gun at them and called surrender, the family were startled by a report from the gun. The bullet penetrated the body of the little girl and resulted in death before a physician could be summoned to the home. The grief stricken parents said the gun had not been used for some time and they had no idea it was loaded when the children took it for play.

BRIT DISAGREES ON PENDING LIQUOR CASES

Asheville, Dec. 8.—(AP)—James J. Britt, Asheville attorney who was chief counsel for the enforcement of prohibition for the United States government for ten years, Thursday said he "thoroughly disagreed" with Federal Judge Johnson J. Hayes of Greensboro and E. Yates Webb of Shelby in their views that pending cases against federal liquor law violators would have to be dropped.

Mr. Britt stated "ther is room to doubt, as to whether the national prohibition act . . . is repealed short of an act of Congress" in giving his views on dismissal of liquor cases now pending. Mr. Britt explained that no court can so annul the termination of a statute as to have all cases tried to date.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Stock market specialties were given a whirl in today brief session and gains of one to three or more points accompanied further improvements in trading sentiment.

Late profit taking was absorbed and the more active issues worked higher. The close was firm.

Transfers were 800,000 shares.

There was a gain no alteration of the domestic gold rate and the dollar followed quiet and steady routine in foreign exchange dealings.

Wheat at midday was up around a cent a bushel and other cereals improved.

Cotton was also better.

Secondary bonds were again in demand but U S Government securities were a trifle soft.

The street again heard rumors of an early pronouncement by the president of the governmental fiscal policy and conference at the White House between the chief executive and fiscal experts was seen by some market commentators as prelude to early decision relating to dollar devaluation and the gold rate.

There was wide guesses as to just what these possible decisions might be.

speeded because of the situation in Virginia where Gov. Pollard has ordered a marketing holiday on dark-fire cured markets because of low prices.

Details of the program will be announced between now and next week.

The 1934 control program is expected to be similar to the one now our for flue cured tobacco.

Under this method fire cured growers would be paid rental for the acreage they taken out of production and receive benefits if this does not bring prices to a high level.

Leas Appeal to Supreme Court.
Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Col. Luke Lea and Luke Lea, Jr. lost in the Tennessee Supreme court today in their fight to prevent extradition to North Carolina, but immediately made plans for carrying their case to the U. S. supreme court.

Pending that action they were ordered released under bond of $20,000 each.

All members of the state supreme court concurred in upholding action of criminal court Judge John Cunningham at Clarksville, who had sustained the North Carolina demurrer to the Lea petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

Asked for a statement Col. Lea said: "Any statement from us will come through counsel."

He made no other comment.

Businesslike Top Notch

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"When you ask me where the keys are, you mean the keys to the pantries, I suppose?" crowed Top Notch. Willy Nilly nodded. "Certainly I know about them."

"So you're the guilty one?" cawed Christopher Columbus Crow.

"Guilty?" cried Top Notch. "Remember to whom you are speaking, Christopher, and do not judge others by yourself. I am a superior Rooster. I think of things ahead of time."

Top Notch took out his little mirror and looked at himself admiringly.

"Ah, yes," he continued. "I show in my face that I have not only looks but intelligence."

"Oh, don't be so vain," said Willy Nilly, "but tell me, are the keys safe? Has anyone been in the pantries? Is any food gone?"

"My dear Willy Nilly, I cannot answer so many questions at once. I shall answer them one at a time. Yes, the keys are safe. No, no one has been in the pantries. The food is all there."

"I thought that as long as those Bears were awake it was just as well to keep the keys hidden. I dug a nice place for their safe keeping in the ground beneath my shed, and there they are. I shall get them at once."

He came back followed by all the other Puddle Fuddle animals. Suddenly Willy Nilly had a wonderful idea. He was immensely excited about it.

"I have a great plan," he told them. "Wait until you hear it and you'll agree with me!"

viating state banking laws were both in the court room to hear the case decided.

"Of course I will continue my fight in this case until it is finally determined," Mr. Brummitt said.

Nettles told reporters he and Brummitt planned to leave for North Carolina immediately after a conference with adversary counsel regarding certain details of the Lea appeal to the U. S. Supreme court.

All seats in the court room were filled and the crowd lined up against the wall and in doorways as the case was decided.
