TWO ARE HELD IN LEAF THEFT

White Men Jailed Here Confess to Stealing Tobacco From Speight Farm

Dave Hyman was held in the county jail today awaiting trial at the next sitting of criminal court on a charge of stealing tobacco from the farm of Louis and Oscar Speight, several miles from this city.

Hyman was taken into custody here yesterday after Walter Lee Dail previously had been arrested in connection with the same case. Dail was nabbed as he drove into a tobacco warehouse night before last with the tobacco, and Hyman was arrested on the streets yesterday afternoon.

They are alleged to have stolen about 556 pounds of tobacco valued at $158.

In addition, police said the two men had confessed to stealing two automobile wheels and tires, a motor and a rumber seat from an automobile in Greene county. Chief George Clark notified Greene county authorities of the theft and asked them to attempt to locate the owners. The automobile driven by Dail at the time of the arrest was being held at the local police station pending settlement of the case.

Both men were given preliminary hearing before Magistrate John Ivey Smith today and were bound over to the next session of criminal court. They were unable to provide bail and were remanded to jail. They were said to have confessed to stealing the tobacco and automobile parts.

THINKS CONGRESS WILL STAND BY ROOSEVELT

Durham, Dec. 13.—Congressman William B. Umstead, returning recently to Durham from Washington, does not think that President Roosevelt will have to deal with a hostile Congress unless the appearance of the situation changes. Mr. Umstead said that the President's measures have been the sort to incite opposition, especially from big business. He is confident, however that the vast majority of the Democrats are still solidly behind the President and will see him through.

He said that the people of the country are back of President Roosevelt and that they regard him as a leader of merit, the sort of leader with the ability to bring about a workable program for recovery.

URGE PUBLIC TO BUY AUTO PLATES NOW

Mayor Seeks to Speed Sales and Get More Money in The City's Coffers

Buy your city automobile license tags now and help the city meet its obligations the first of this year, Mayor R. C. Flanagan urged automobile owners today.

Tags went on sale the first of the month and all car owners must buy before January 1 if they hope to drive their cars without trouble from the police.

The mayor, like Governor Ehringhouse, believed that by buying now instead of waiting until after this year's licenses expire, automobile drivers will give the treasury quite a boost up to the first of the year.

Licenses are being sold at the City Hall this year instead of through the N. C. Automobile Association as was the case last year. Numbers of the new tags have already appeared on cars, but they are not going as fast as the city authorities would like, and this is the reason the mayor called attention to the importance of buying now instead of waiting until after the old licenses expire.

The charges consisted mainly of violations of the prohibition law, larceny, assault, and traffic regulations. Judge Dink James presided.

A case that excited more interest than the remainder of the docket was that of Marshall Hardee, charged with assault with a deadly weapon, who was fined $25 and cost by Judge James for contempt of court, with his case being continued until the next sitting of court.

The contempt charge was brought when it was established that Hardee smelled of whiskey. Hearing of the case had proceeded only a short time when the hall was called.

Judge James ordered the defendant to be placed in jail until the fine was paid, and needless to say, Hardee made arrangements to pay before he reached jail.

General Davis, colored, charged with larceny, was sentenced to 90 days on the roads.

Other cases given hearing were: Fannie Howard and Jim Willoughby, colored, possession of whiskey for sale, judgment suspended on payment of cost.

Leon Barfield, driving drunk, $50 and cost and license revoked 90 days.

Pate O'Neal, colored, assault with a deadly weapon, four months on the roads.

Leroy John, larceny, four months on the roads.

Joe Speight and Mahalle Galloway, colored, whiskey for sale $25 and cost each. Notice of appeal was filed under bond of $50 each.

Heber Henby, colored, larceny six months on the roads.

Jimmie Boone, reckless driving and hit and run, $50 and cost. Appeal filed to superior court.

Will Bryant, possession of whiskey, $25 fine.

Almond Nobels, colored, assault with a deadly weapon, sixty days on the roads.

Walter Summerlin, liquor for sale $100 and cost.

Don Smith, hit and run, judgment suspended.

Pete Pitt, assault with a deadly weapon, six months on the roads.

Charlie Dail, driving drunk, $50 and cost.

Joe Williams, operation slot machine, $25 and cost.

To Continue C. W. A. Washington, Dec. 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt will continue the Civil Works Administration until next spring, but in his study of the budget he had not reached decision on the nature of public works to be proposed for next year. The President was informed today by Harry Hopkins, civil works administrator, that 4,000,000 men would be on the C. W. A. payroll by spring.

Funds are available to carry on this program only until February 15 and Mrs. Roosevelt has decided to ask for an additional $350,000,000 to permit tapering off of the work between March 1 and May 1, when it will be ended.

In continuation of his persuasion of the budget for the new year the President did not reach the public works items. It was said in all probability no decision would be reached on this point for a couple of weeks and possibly not until the next session of Congress, when it can be determined more definitely how much money is needed.

The President had been going into these matters in the course of conversations with Louis Douglas, secretary of the budget, and Henry Morgenthau.

It was stated today at the White House that there is no dispute or row between the director of the budget and the treasury on the budget.

LARGE MAIL HAUL MADE AT DETROIT

Mail Believed Valued At $19,000 Taken From Alfred Street Branch

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Drilling a hole through eighteen inches of brick and mortar, thieves last night stole registered mail of undetermined value and $19,000 in postage stamps from the Alfred Street Branch postoffice.

Police who investigated the robbery, said they could find no evidence of forcible entrance to the building and assumed one of the robbers concealed himself in the building when it closed for the night. The theft was discovered by a clerk who opened the office this morning. The loot, postoffice authorities said, included 58 pieces of registered mail.

John S. Stackpole, superintendent of mails, said the value of the registered mail could run as high as $58,000 and a maximum of $1,000 for each envelope. He did not believe, however, the amount would reach half the amount.

The police theory was that several men were admitted to the building sometime during the night. A hole large enough to admit a small man was broken through the rear of the office vault. Through this, they said, one of the thieves entered the vault and passed out the loot.

URGENT EARLY MAILING HERE

Postmaster Munford Seeks to Speed up Postal Deliveries in This Office

Do your Christmas mailing early. This appeal was sent out today by Postmaster H. R. Munford as postal employes turned their attention to the laborious task of handling thousands of pieces of mail to pass through the local office during the holidays.

Mr. Munford said the rush had already started but it is not expected to reach its height until next week when last minute patrons will begin a frantic effort to get their mailing done.

If everybody would start mailing letters, cards and packages earlier the rush around Christmas would not be nearly so great, the postmaster said, as he bent every effort to meet the increasing demands made in every department of the office.

Patrons can help speed up parcel post deliveries by answering dock-bills promptly the postmaster said, as he pointed to the numerous delays experienced in this department through such causes.

Santa Claus has more to offer this year than he has in many a day and this is going to result in increased work for postal employes as they attempt to dispatch mail and make deliveries as quickly as possible.

By mailing early, the postmaster said, postal workers will be given a chance to enjoy some of the amenities of the holidays, but if this is not done they will be completely swamped when Santa Claus comes flying by with joys for everybody.

DON'T GAMBLE IN YOUR BUYING

The wise buyers unless they happen to be qualified experts in the particular fields in which they are making purchases, buy labels. They buy names which they know stand for quality and integrity—reputations gained over many years through the production of an article or a service of unvarying excellence.

That's true of food products, of clothes, watches, furniture, automobiles or other articles. We have learned that it's usually better to pay a little more, when it is necessary, to get something we know to be the best, than to buy something a salesman represents as being "just as good." Most of us have had sad experiences with products and services falling in the latter category. We have found them to be expensive at any price.

The wisest buying plan is to buy advertised merchandise and from merchants who themselves advertise and are willing to guarantee the quality of their wares.

CRUEL TREATMENT OF PRISONER CHARGED

Bakersville, Dec. 12.—(AP)—A warrant charging mistreatment of a prisoner, while superintendent of the State convict camp at Spruce Pine, was issued Monday for L. M. Thorneburg, former superintendent of the camp.

Officers are seeking Thorneburg, but he had not yet been located. District Solicitor John R. Jones, of North Wilkesboro, acting on a letter received from Dennis Deavis, of Asheville, a prisoner at the camp, requested W. G. Honeycutt, sheriff of Mitchell County, to make an investigation and if the facts alleged were ascertained to be true, to issue a warrant. Following an investigation, Sheriff Honeycutt today swore out a warrant for Thorneburg.

The sheriff said that Reavis and Llod Wyatte, the latter of Spruce Pine, was getting the better of the fight when Superintendent Thorneburg came upon the scene. It is alleged that the superintendent handcuffed Reavis' hands behind his back and compelled Wyatte to beat Reavis in the face with his fist. Thorneburg is also alleged to have hit Reavis a number of blows in the face with his fist. This occurred three weeks ago, the sheriff said.

It is also alleged that Thorneburg following the attack upon Reavis handcuffed the latter to a cage for twelve hours. Thorneburg was relieved of his duties ten days ago.

FORBIDDEN VALLEY by William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS: Having beaten off a small band of Khasovs Indians, Curt flies to Vancouver for further action about Ralph and Sonya Volkov, who are bound on a dangerous mission to the Canadian Northwest but will not tell what it is. Curt himself is tracking down Igor Karalich, a wealthy creek who has taken refuge in the Indian country. Curt is searching for A. R. Martin, his subordinate in the Royal Mounted, when Art Frisker's telephone call to him has a line on Ralph Nichols.

SURPRISE FOR CURT

"HAD no trouble with Nichols; didn't have to go farther than the telephone book to place him," continued Baldwin. "He's lived here in Vancouver most of his life, I find. McGill graduate, staff captain overseas, got a V.C. at Vimy. For the last ten years he's been with a city construction company. They head architect now. Bachelor quarters at the Fraser Club. Nothing out of the ordinary about him that I could dig up, and I've been digging some."

"What about the other person?" "I've got you a bang-up lead to work on. Just talked to a couple of Nichols' friends who've met several times. Her name's Volkov, Sonya Volkov. Lives in Victoria, teaches in a private school, and secretary for the Emigré Society of Canada. That's all I was able to find out, but I've located a party here who knows her very well, and I think he can give you a lot of details about her. Shall I zip around for you in the staff car? . . . Good, I'll be there in twenty minutes."

Volkov, Sonya Volkov—Curt repeated the strange name to himself as he went back to the porch. At least he knew her name now, and within an hour he was going to find out something about her life, her background. After that she could never quite vanish from him.

He rejoined Martin outside. While they waited, A-K remarked casually: "Did you know that Laydon, the head of the Provincial Police, is going to be relieved this coming fall?" "Is that so? Who's taking his place?" "You."

Curt's cigarette dropped from his fingers. "If you want it, I've been doing some quiet investigating and I know the lay of the land. A dozen political hangers-on are after the job, but the Premier doesn't want that kind. He phoned me yesterday and asked when you could come to see him for a personal conference. I can tell you positively that if you want the job I've got enough support lined up to swing it for you."

"No!" he waved Curt's interruption aside—"don't thank me, I'm not doing this because you and I happen to be friends but because I consider you the best available man for the job."

Curt smiled nothing to do with the effect she was in. He saw it as another attempt of duty to keep him from retreating to the far North; another of the invisible bonds that were being thrown around him. But still he did not refuse it outright, then and there.

Baldwin came, and they started down town. Parking in a section of dingy stores, Baldwin took him up a creaky stairway and knocked at an apartment. A young man, a stocky hazel-eyed foreigner, opened the door, saw them, and bowed politely. "Meister Baldwin? My father he expect you and your friend, Kum in, pliz?" He led them into a small sitting room and stepped out to get his father.

fully. "Mr. Plekhanov, as my friend here told you, I'm a government agent gathering data about the various foreign associations in this country. Our object is altogether friendly; we're merely making records of their personnel and activities. Miss Volkov is secretary of your society, and I'd like to find out a few facts about her. My friend tells me that you know her quite well."

"Yes, I know Princess Sonya for twelve years, and her father before that."

"Princess Sonya—?" "Her father is Prince Stepan Volkov."

Curt caught his breath sharply. "Princess?" he managed. "A courtesy title?"

Plekhanov smiled, a bit condescendingly. "You know very little about Russian heraldry, friend. The Volkovs are an old Kiev nobility, one of the oldest in the Empire." He told his son, "Bring our guests the picture that Prince Stepan gave us."

Curt whistled beneath his breath. Sonya's father a prince? He had suspected the son was well-born. But he had never imagined that her blood was quite so blue, and she herself had not once hinted that she was of noble birth.

"You mentioned her father—does he live here in Canada?" "At Victoria. And her brother is."

"When Prince Stepan first came over, he accepted work in a lumber yard as a grader of timber. Like any common muzhik, Plekhanov made a gesture of shame at his countryman's lack of pride. "He rose in his employment; he is some official now, and Carl is a field expert for the company. For a time Sonya was governess in a rich family at Victoria. Now she is teaching language in a private school."

THE son handed Curt a photo, a medium-sized studio portrait. With a queer mixture of feelings Curt looked at the picture of Sonya's father. At his first glance he saw Sonya's resemblance to him—her stubborn determination and that proud poise to her head came natural—he could see the traits in every line of her father's face.

Santa's Answer

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER The next morning Willy Nilly typed a letter waiting for him from Santa Claus. This was what it said: "Dear Willy Nilly: It would indeed be a great help to me if you and your animal friends came to my work shop."

"I'll meet you just where you say tomorrow evening. I am looking forward to seeing all of you. "Your affectionate friend, "Santa Claus."

Willy Nilly jumped up and down with joy. His animal friends had never seen the little man happier. "He says we may go! Santa Claus is expecting us. He is going to meet us!" Willy Nilly shouted.

"Now we must get out the automobile Two-Ways as soon as we've closed up everything here, for we'll be away quite a little while."

Top Notch went around crowing: "We're going to visit Santa Claus!" Christopher Columbus Crow cawed: "I'll be the only Crow to discover where Santa Claus lives."

The Ducks and Chickens quacked and shouted: "All aboard for Santa's work shop. Quack, quack, quack, cheers, cheers, cheers."

Rip, the Dog, wagged his tail and jumped around barking and shouting—making believe he was Santa: "Good dog, Rip!"

Willy Nilly was busy locking windows, and now he was getting warm shawls and sweaters and carrying them out to his automobile Two-Ways.

The WORLD of STAMPS

By QUINTON JAMES Italy's Holy year issue of stamps has just arrived on this side of the Atlantic.

Five of the seven stamps are intended for regular postage, while two others are for airmail. Values range from 50 centimes to 2.55 lire for postage, with 50 and 75 centimes for airmails. The airmails bear an additional charge of 25 and 50 centimes, while the 2.55 lire postage has 2.50 lire in addition.

The various designs depict the Holy year observance.

New Charity Set.

Switzerland's annual charity issue for 1933 contains four stamps, upon three of which are pictured young women typical of that country. The five centime is green, the 10 is purple, the 20 is red brown and the 30 is blue. The first charity issue of this country was put out in 1913, and a new set has appeared at 12-month intervals ever since, except in 1914.

Interest in "Inverts"

One of the reactions of the recent auction of the Hind collection of U. S. stamps has been a renewed interest in "inverts," those stamps on which the center design was printed upside down through an error.

At this sale probably the world's outstanding "invert," a block of four 1918 24-cent U. S. airmails with the upside down centers sold for $12,100, the buyer being Hugh M. Clark.

Since the Hind sale he has become the owner of two additional "inverts," the one and two-cent of the U. S. Pan-American issue. The price of the form was $175 and the latter $1,650.

Now that the Hind sale has passed into history, collectors say the fact has been impressed upon them more than ever that only good copies of stamps will bring the high prices. They say that an analysis of the sale shows that in many instances, where condition was not so good, prices were considerably lower than expected, indicating that that not nearly as great a sum had been obtained for the collection as a whole as was originally paid out in assembling it. The sale brought around $230,000.

New Books

By JOHN SELBY

New York—It is rapidly becoming impossible to keep up with the book business. In addition to those times of one of another sort mentioned last week as having to do with legal liquor, there now appears another set.

The most hilarious, indeed the only one intended to be humorous, that comes to mind is "The Drunk's Blue Given Book," which has been compiled and given the world by Norman Anthony and Otto Soslaw. It is quite mad, and often really funny in addition. But it is not, as compilers of Christmas book lists so often say, "for Aunt Mementable."

In addition, there are two books in the serious class, both being hurried through a graining press by the same publisher.

One is by Julian Street, whose "Where Paris Cines" is one of the few books on food and wine in Paris that it both reliable and amusing. Mr. Street's new one is called "Wines," and should contain the ripe experience of an accomplished diner.

And the other is a reissue, brought up to date, of one of the famous books of the past—"Jack Manual." It contains more than a thousand recipes, and is the work of J. A. Grubusko, who in the old days was wine steward at the Plaza Hotel, a-sec manager of the old Knickerbocker's bars.

About Albert

J. B. Priestley is quite likely to pick a young, lower middle class Englishman as an hero. And he is quite likely to use him as a means of satirizing something.

So with "Albert," the hero of "Albert Goes Through." The book is as slight as a book well could be, but not unamusing. Albert is a movie fan, vastly enamored of a certain celluloid heroine. He is, indeed, so enamoured that he goes to see her latest film when he should be home nursing a bad cold or something similar.

Albert falls ill in the theater, and has a delirious dream. He is the hero of a string of movies, and before he wakes up in the manager's office he has afforded his greater opportunity to poke fun at almost all the standard varieties of celluloid entertainment. Obviously, in a book of this type, there must be both point and love interest.

Mr. Priestley's point apparently is that a little experience will cure almost anyone of a desire to live the life of a movie hero. And the love interest has to do with a girl named Nellie.

Curious Novel

"Yesterday's Burdens" is ostensibly a novel, and actually almost everything else but—which does not mean that it is not thoroughly worth the attention of the reading public.

Robert Coates has presumably written the history of a man named Henderson, who pops in and out of corn in a "killet." Apparently Mr. Coates has read and admired Andre Gide's "The Counterfeiters," for his idea is a version of the Frenchman's idea. "Yesterday's Burdens" is a sort of long essay about writing a novel, with bits of the story tossed in here and there.

It bounces back and forth between New York and the Housatonic valley, and is altogether unpredictable and fascinating.

Christina, the Christmas Doll

Out from a cloud of smoke stepped a tiny old woman.

SYNOPSIS: Santa returns to Toyland one Christmas morning with a white woolly dog. He finds that Mrs. Santa has made a doll, "Christina." The Queen of Fairies gives the dog a magic collar.

Chapter 3 THE WITCH'S VISIT

When Santa gets back to Toyland after filling all our stockings he takes a little vacation. He rides around the beautiful white North Pole behind his reindeer.

He watches Mrs. Santa make candied apples. He even makes snowballs and throws them into the sky where his friend the North Wind, blows them apart into white puffs of snow.

This year was particularly merry, because there were Christina and the white woolly dog. They went everywhere with Santa, and even sat on doll high chairs at the dinner table.

But when Santa could smell the Spring on the winds he set to work. Fairies got out their needles to make doll dresses. Elves began hammering away at toy wagons and trains. Such a bustle! Santa was making toys for the next Christmas.

Down at the end of the huge Toyshop was a great, open fireplace where the fairy cooks tend a good-smelling oven in which ginger cookies are baked. They make dozens each day and store them in cupboards.

But suddenly this year the fire seemed to go out all the time. The cookies in the oven would spoil, and the fairies would have to start all over.

This worried Christina, and the white woolly dog just sat nearby with his tail limp on the floor. Then one afternoon late the fire went out and from a cloud of smoke stepped a tiny old woman.

"Stop making fires," she demanded. "My bats live in this chimney now."

She was a witch and the fairies screamed tiny screams. But the woolly dog was brave. He scampered up and said "Woof-woof."

New York Cotton

New York cotton futures opened quiet unchanged to two higher with steeper Liverpool cables offset by liquidation.

There was a little Southern selling the opening but offerings were light and prices held steady on moderate trade and commission house demand.

March sold up from 10.10 to 10.14 with the general list showing advances of 2 to 4 points at the end of the first half hour except for December which was easy.

Cotton worked lower in a very quiet market later in the morning. At midday March was around 10.08 with the general list showing losses of about 1 to 5 points.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Trading further cooled with weather in financial markets today and stock and staples while not too heavy appeared to be unable to attract any support from speculative forces.

The dollar cut no unusual capers in foreign exchange dealings as the domestic gold price again was unchanged, but it moved up more than two cents in terms of sterling and 400 in relation to francs.

Wheat sagged at cent a bushel at one time and other cereals were lower.

Cotton and various commodities were barely steady. U. S. Government securities were a bit firmer but speculation bonds lagged.

The list turned lower under selling that extended in later dealings. Transfers were 1,400,000 shares.
