Automobiles Are Responsible For Majority Deaths

YOUNG WOMAN MISSING FROM HOME IN S. C.

Two Youths Killed When Their Bicycle Is Hit by Car Near Hudson; Son of Lenoir Manufacturer Held Under Bond; Hit and Run Drivers Responsible For two Other Deaths

(By The Associated Press) Gunfire and traffic accidents took fifteen lives and injured a large number in the Carolinas over the week-end. A girl was strangely missing. Automobile accidents took the majority of lives, but a railroad switch engine boosted the casualty list.

A wide search was under way for Rosa Warren, 18, who has been missing from her Statesboro, S. C., home since yesterday. Her parents could not explain her absence.

Rush Winfrey, of Oak Ridge, was in jail at Greensboro charged with murdering Paul Young during an argument in which Winfrey was stabbed and shot.

L. A. Fields, night watchman at Troy, was in a hospital suffering from gunshot wounds in the face inflicted by an unidentified person he spied in the act of robbing a store safe.

Clyde Short, 15, and Finley Peller, 17, were killed when a bicycle on which they were riding was hit by an automobile near Hudson, N. C. The driver of the car, Peddie Brockhill, 21, son of a Lenoir manufacturer, was released under bond of $2,500 pending an investigation.

Injuries received a few hours earlier in an automobile accident proved fatal to J. Colle Edwards, 34-year-old farmer at Albemarle, N. C.

A hit-and-run driver struck down and killed F. W. Wafford, 60-year-old jeweler at Roanoke Rapids as he was crossing the street in front of his home. Percy Whitaker, 22-year-old negro, was jailed and charged with being the driver of the car.

A hit-and-run driver struck down and killed Timken Lanier, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lanier, near Rocky Mount.

SAINT NICK HERE TONIGHT

Jolly Old Gentleman To Make Appearance in Business District at 7:30

Santa Claus, dressed in time-honored costume, will appear on the streets of Greenville tonight at 7:30 o'clock to inaugurate the opening of stores at night for the convenience of Christmas shoppers.

The jolly old gentleman will appear under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, and the big pack he will carry will contain gifts for number of persons in the crowd expected to throng the business district.

While some stores stayed open last week to take care of the demands of their patrons, the opening period did not become effective until today, and every store will be found open and blazing with Christmas lights tonight.

The business district has been more extensively decorated for the Yuletide this year than ever before, and stores have left nothing undone to make their display windows and interiors as attractive and appealing as possible.

Then, also, stocks are more complete than they have been in years, and most discriminating shopper will be sure to find something to suit his or her taste.

This is the first time that Saint Nick has ushered in the night-shopping season, and hundreds of children and grown-ups were expected to visit the business district and see what the old boy has to offer this year.

SANFORD DECKED OUT FOR CHRISTMAS FETE

Sanford, N. C., Dec. 18.—The stores and streets of Sanford have taken on the holiday spirit, with the most elaborate decorations ever been here. At the center of five street intersections in the business district enormous Christmas trees have been placed, and at intervals of every few feet on the sidewalks are artistically decorated trees. This, together with the Christmas decorations in the store windows make the appearance of the business section particularly attractive.

With more money in circulation than at any time for the past several years, the holiday shoppers are crowding the stores. The merchants report that business is unusually good.

Lindberghs At Charleston. Charleston, S. C., Dec. 18.—(AP)—First sighted off the quarantine station on James Island, and then at Fort Moultrie on the opposite side of Charleston harbor, the Lindberghs headed north toward the navy yards, circled the naval reservation visited before by the Flying Colonel, and dropped down to a graceful landing in the Cooper river at 2:10 o'clock today. He tied up at the mooring mast at 2:45.

Navy yard attaches who were unadvised in advance of the visit were on the quiet after hearing they had taken off from Miami. They had visited here before.

COX SLAIN BY BULLETS FROM AYERS' PISTOL

Ballistic Expert Reports on Examination of Bullets in Murder Case

Two bullets taken from the body of Floyd Cox, filling station employe, who was murdered on the old Stokes road Wednesday night, two weeks ago, were reported today to have been fired from a pistol owned by Huber Ayers, young white man held in connection with the slaying.

Lieut. J. H. Fowler, ballistic expert of Washington City, to whom the bullets were submitted several days ago, has wired Sheriff Whitehurst that both bullets were fired from the suspected gun—that which officers said they found in Ayers possession shortly after the slaying.

One of the bullets was removed from the dead man's chest before he was buried. This was carried to Washington last week by Sheriff Whitehurst. When he returned it was decided the second bullet would be necessary to complete the chain of evidence. Coroner A. A. Ellwanger ordered the body exhumed and the second bullet was removed from the slain man's head.

Sheriff Whitehurst told the coroner's jury shortly after the slaying that the bullet first removed from the body was of the same caliber as the gun found in Ayers' possession. He expressed the same opinion about the second bullet and his belief was upheld by the report on the projectiles.

The sheriff also told the coroner that footprints found at the scene of the murder corresponding with those of Ayers.

Ayers vigorously denied any knowledge of the slaying until he was informed of it next day.

TWO WOMEN IN RUM CASE

Negresses Jailed Here Over Week-End for Selling Liquor at County Home

Dora Little and Maria Little, colored, were in jail here today charged with selling whiskey to inmates of the county home.

They were taken into custody over the week-end following complaints to officers that trustees and other inmates of the county home were obtaining liquor from the two women.

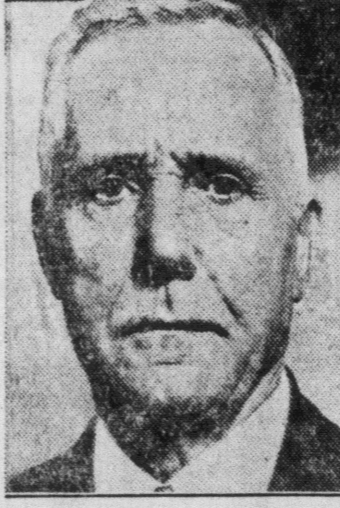

Sheriff Sam Whitehurst said a gallon of whiskey was found at the home of the two prisoners when a search was made of the premises.

They were brought to Greenville and placed in the county jail to await hearing at the regular session of county court tomorrow.

MARRIAGES IN PITT PICK UP

Rush to the Altar Revived Over Week-End With Prospects Of New Record

The marriage boom which has been under way in this section for the past two months continued today with unabated zeal and records in the office of Register of Deeds J. C. Gaskins indicate an all time record will be established for this month.

Thirteen couples applied for license to wed over the week-end with colored people leading the race by a small majority. Fifty-eight licenses have already been issued this month as against 86 for December of last year, and with one more week to go before Christmas and still another before the dawn of a new year, it was very evident a new record would be set.

One hundred and thirty-four licenses were issued during November as against 65 for the corresponding month the previous year.

This shattered records for that month as far back as the register of deeds could remember and indicated what Pitt county people are really doing in the way of love-making.

It may be the new deal spirit of the present national administration causing this rush to the altar, but whatever it is, one thing is sure—the people believe in it and hope to get hold of enough money to enable two to live as well as one if not as cheaply.

Those applying for licenses to wed over the week-end were: Claude Ward of Elizabeth City to Miss Hester Grist, of Baden.

W. B. Hales to Miss Letha Boyd both of Grimesland.

W. B. Braddy to Miss Lizzie Jenkins, Greenville.

Robert Allison to Miss Lizzie Sheppard, of Beaufort.

Wade Ward to Miss Annie Hooker, Greenville.

Colored Jenkins Lee to Clancy Edwards, Greenville.

Theodore Johnson to Evelyn Robinson, Farmville.

James Worsley to Maggie Stanton, Bethel.

James Dixon to Mittie Greenman, Farmville.

MORE RELIEF LABOR PUT TO WORK IN PITT

Increased Number of Workmen Employed On Various Projects Of County Today

Increased numbers of men went to work on the projects in Pitt County today with indications that pay-rolls would be much larger by the end of the week.

Five hundred checks went out to the relief cause the end of last week, and with increased projects half absorbed, it was expected many more men would find their way to relief jobs this week.

Seventy men were put to work on Green's Mill run this morning. This is one of the principal drainage projects affecting this immediate section. The ditch extends from beyond the Winterville road to the river, and it was believed proper drainage would be conducive to improvement of health in the sections affected.

Work was continued today on preliminary work looking to the construction of a culvert in the Cotanche Street area, and the number of workmen was expected to be increased. Work on the swimming pool to be built in the ravine in front of the High School also was scheduled to begin soon.

A score or more other projects were under way in various parts of the county at this time and will be rushed to completion as soon as possible.

K. T. Futrell, Civil Works Administrator for this county, said last week he hoped to assure Pitt County's quota of over a thousand men within the next several days as sufficient projects had already been approved to make this possible.

The giant health program, carrying appropriations of $40,000, was also scheduled to get under way this week. It is a county-wide project, and will provide work for scores of carpenters. The program provides for the erection of 4,000 privies wherever the need is found necessary.

LINDBERGH'S OFF FOR N. Y.

Colonel and Wife Expected to Attempt Non-Stop Flight to The East

Miami, Fla., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh took off for New York at 9:48 (E. S. T.) this morning on the last leg of their 28,000 mile tour which carried them across the Atlantic twice.

While no announcement was made that the Lindberghs planned a non-stop flight to the East, belief that this was their intention was strengthened because the plane was loaded with more than 400 gallons of gasoline, enough fuel to carry them more than 1,600 miles.

Commenting on conditions in this part of the county, the Congressman said he was gratified over the upward turn of the economic situation. He attributed the improvement to the tremendous effort of the Federal Government to raise prices for commodities, increase employment and broaden the purchasing power of the nation.

He expressed himself as highly gratified over the success of the tobacco production campaign and declared growers should receive direct benefit during the next two years by closely co-operating with the government plan to reduce production, relieve world congestion and raise prices.

Depositors of the old Farmers Bank here will receive a 5 per cent payment, making a total of 15 per cent paid since the liquidating process got under way.

Other banks to receive dividends are: Farmers Bank, Belhaven, 5 per cent, total 35 per cent; Citizens Bank, Farmville, 10 per cent, total 10 per cent; Bank of Balhaysen, 5 per cent, total 65 per cent; Bank of Grifton 10 per cent, total 45 per cent.

Governor Ehringhaus, of North Carolina, declined to say whether he would request the closing of the Asheville market.

Indefinite suspension of tobacco sales Ripley, the largest burley market in Ohio, was announced, and the manager of four loose leaf warehouses at Madison, Ind., said he would follow the lead of Kentucky.

CONGRESSMAN WARREN HERE

Washington Man and His Secretary Spend Short Time in City Today

Congressman Lindsay C. Warren and his secretary, Herbert C. Bonner, of Washington, were in Greenville today on a brief visit.

Mr. Warren has been confined to his home in Washington for some time as a result of a sprained ankle and this was his first visit to Greenville since the accident. While still unable to walk without the assistance of a cane, his condition is greatly improved.

Congressman Warren said that with the convening of Congress he would again introduce the seed bill seeking direct loans to farmers in the preparation of next year's crop. He said he had some doubt about the measure passing, but expressed belief it was needed by the growers.

The seed loan bill which was effective this year was introduced by Mr. Warren, and it was largely through his efforts that it had successful passage.

Commenting on conditions in this part of the county, the Congressman said he was gratified over the upward turn of the economic situation. He attributed the improvement to the tremendous effort of the Federal Government to raise prices for commodities, increase employment and broaden the purchasing power of the nation.

He expressed himself as highly gratified over the success of the tobacco production campaign and declared growers should receive direct benefit during the next two years by closely co-operating with the government plan to reduce production, relieve world congestion and raise prices.

NEEDED AGAIN

Asked about the crop seed loan for another year, Congressman Lindsay C. Warren, who introduced the bill that made it possible for farmers to get government loans this year, stated today that he had already prepared a bill to be introduced the first day of the new Congress to provide for similar loans for next year.

Without the seed loans this year a great number of our farmers would have been unable to produce a crop and the same will be the case next year. While the seed loan and the next year's crop reduction programs made better prices for the farmers this fall, most of them have used their surplus money to pay back debts, tax taxes, etc., in an effort to get on their feet again and certainly the crop loans another year or maybe for the next two years would be a great aid in bringing complete business recovery to Eastern North Carolina.

The government wants business recovery and in view of the fact that close to 100 per cent of the seed loans have been repaid it is evident that making these loans is a good investment for the government in the way of bettering conditions.

In view of the establishment of the Agricultural Loan Corporations, and like agencies, Congressman Warren expressed belief that there might be some doubt of getting this legislation for direct loans through again for the coming year, but certainly we hope that his efforts will be successful for we are sure that the farmers are going to need it to produce next year's crop.

FORBIDDEN VALLEY by William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS: The greatest blow of Curt Tennison's life comes when he discovers that Sonya Volkov, whom he has saved from death in the Canadian wilderness at the hands of the dangerous Klondike Indians, was secretly trying to reach Igor Karakhan. For Curt is tracking down Karakhan, who is a millionaire, and a crook. Sonya just has met Teeste Le Noir, Karakhan's contact man, and persuaded him to carry a letter to his chief.

Chapter 21

SONYA'S LETTER

A FEW final instructions from Sonya and grants of assent from LeNoir and their brief meeting ended. Sonya refloated her canoe and crossed to camp. LeNoir walked back through the willows to his own craft and vanished toward the mainland shore.

After they had gone, Curt got up, shaky and cold, with that terrible coldness which had come over him when he first heard Paul's report. As he stared at the dark channel which had swallowed her canoe, all his previous questions about her trip, all the puzzling aspects of it which had so baffled him, became brutally clear.

In Victoria she had known Karakhan, had been attracted by his brilliance, had fallen under the spell of his magnetic personality, as Helen Matheson and others had done. And after his disappearance she had started searching for him, to be with him again.

Somehow she had found out in a general way where he was hiding and had persuaded Ralph to come north with her. The pretense of the scientific work, her passionate determination in the face of every danger, her secrecy, defended so tightly—all that was clear enough to him now. He understood, too, why she had staved him off; it was a friend's act, to save him pain.

Stumbling through the brush to the island tip, he swam back across the channel, took off his clothes and wrung them out and dressed again. He fumbled in his pocket and got out Paul's copy of Sonya's letter. He still dreaded to read it, but now he had heard, his hope in her integrity still flickered. She might have lied to the 'breed.

HE made a fold of a blanket to hide the glare of his flash and laid the letter inside. Except for the salutation and a few stray words, it was all in French, the courtly French of one educated Russian to another.

Loubemetz Moy: I know what a shock of surprise this will give you—to learn I am seeking you and am so near. Please, please don't become instantly angry. I have not endangered you by this letter.

In everything I have said and done I have taken the utmost care to guard your safety, I had to come, as one must breathe to live. Why did you go away so suddenly, without a word to me or even a hint of where we might later be together again? Days and weeks with no message from you—I nearly came to think that you had forgotten your 'little puritan', but I would not allow myself to believe that. Oh, it was lonely in Victoria, with you gone, with Carl and Father gone so long to Windyrock.

Your sharp disappearance was an awakening for me—an unbearable realization of what I had lost when you went. I knew you would have taken me with you for a time I lived upon the hope that you might be able to send me word of where you were; but when the slow weeks passed and no word came, my word dropped from my hands and I began searching for you.

I would have come to you even if the path led back across all the horrors of those earlier years. You are demanding to know how I found out where you went. It was a task of black discouragement. No one else, certainly none of those stupid police, could ever have followed your trail, but I knew you were acquainted with Jim Gunnar, who is dead now and his lips sealed; and he told me, guardedly, that you were hiding somewhere in the Liliuats.

It was my intention to make friends with the Klondikes, and find you through them, but then I took the notion that LeNoir was in your service, and the guess proved right.

For the rest, this LeNoir will tell you of the party I am with and my situation. I have arranged to meet him and he will bring me to you. . . . When Paul lay down in his tent that night, he intended to go back out and join his partner as soon as Curt returned from the willow island. But two days and nights of guarding the camp all alone had tired him more than he realized, and he dropped off to sleep in spite of himself.

It was long after sunrise the next morning when he woke up. He stepped outside the tent and looked around. On the other side of the boulders François and Jocka sat off by themselves, smoking stolidly. Sonya had breakfast almost ready, and Ralph was trying to help her.

THE camp scene was peaceful and ordinary, as on a dozen other mornings, with no suggestion of treachery abroad; but its peacefulness was ghastly to Paul, knowing as he did that one member of the party was on her way to join Karakhan and last night had connived with the vicious Le Noir, who had tried three times to kill Curt and himself.

Curt was not about. His canoe also was gone. Somewhat alarmed, Paul took the binoculars and swept the lake. On a pine island near the iskitimwah mouth he saw Curt's canoe upturned on the landwash. He understood.

Sonya came over to the tent, bareheaded in the slant morning sun. Her eyes showed signs of sleeplessness, but in her gaze Paul saw no trace of guilt or shame, only a comradely friendship as she smiled good morning.

"Paul, where's Curt?" Paul steeled himself against her witchery. She seemed so splendid a girl to write that letter! Karakhan and to betray men who had been her loyal friends, but he knew what he knew.

"He'll be back after a while, I suppose." Sonya's eyes opened wider at his sharp tone.

"Did you sleep well last night, Paul?" she asked casually. Paul smiled grimly to himself. It was an innocent-seeming question, as clever as a well-set pitarmian snare.

"I slept very well," he answered her, as poker-faced as she. "One does, after two nights awake."

"Won't you come and have breakfast?" she invited. His unfriendliness hurt her, and she tried to be nice to him.

"Thanks," Paul refused. He felt that he could eat no breakfast that she had prepared. Not after what she had done to his partner. "When I want breakfast, I'll get it."

"Why Paul!" she exclaimed, surprised and wounded at his rebuff. "What's the matter?"

Paul took a pleasure in turning on his heel and walking away. She deserved, he thought, to do some worrying about how much he knew.

Getting Curt's rod and tackle, he paddled north to a rocky headland and killed three hours by pretending to fish in the swirling shallows.

Christina, the Christmas Doll by Sigrid Arne

SYNOPSIS: Christina, a doll, is held prisoner in the castle of the One-Legged Giant. But the ice and snow fairies searching for her find the castle and plan her rescue.

CHAPTER VII CHRISTINA ESCAPES

Just imagine how brave those tiny fairies were to enter that castle of the One-Legged Giant of the Mountain. They were so tiny and he and his men were so huge. But they had promised Santa Claus they would rescue Christina, the Christmas Doll, from the witch who had stolen her.

So they peked into the giant's throne room and laid their plans while they hid in a pair of boots some giant had left in the hall.

"First of all, we must look for some way to escape after we have the doll," said one very wise ice fairy.

"That's easy," said a little snowman. "There is a chimney with no fire in it just behind the giant. We can go up that."

"Fine," said the ice fairy. "Now we must cause some big excitement so the One-Legged Giant will forget about Christina for the minute. But how can we do that?"

"Sh-sh! See that big lazy-bones sitting near the door," whispered a snow man. "Let's take our snow-coats and slip them down his neck. They'll melt and he'll yell, and none of the giants will know what to make of it."

"Fine," laughed all the little fairies. And that's just what they did. They climbed ever so softly up the back of the giant's chair and one after the other they dropped a chilly snow coat or ice cap down his back. Up jumped the giant. He shouted and squirmed and turned and tried to stick up his hand down his back.

All the other giants ran toward him, and from his throne the One-Legged Giant looked on annoyed at the commotion. Finally he put Christina on the arm of his chair and hobbled across the room.

"What's all this?" he blustered as he went.

That was all the little fairies needed. They whisked around the shadowy corners of the room, grabbed Christina's hands and with a whir of their tiny wings they were sailing out into the night sky before the doll could say, "My gracious!"

First she was frightened. But in the light of the stars she could see the merry round cheeks of the snow men and the glitter of the ice fairies who were shaking with laughter.

"Oh, goody, goody," cried Christina. "Are we going back to Santa Claus?"

"Quick as a snowflake melts in a candle flame," sang the little fairies and off they flew with the doll.

Riding With Santa by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Willy Nilly and his animal friends were shivering with the cold. They were miserable, too, because they had not met Santa.

"I'm afraid Christopher is lost now," Willy Nilly thought, but he did not say this aloud. It had seemed so long waiting that he felt that the Crow could have made the flight back and forth several times if the snow had not been too much for him.

At last they heard the faint sound of sleigh bells. Then the sound became clearer.

"Santa Claus, quack, quack!" shouted the Ducks.

"Santa Claus, cock-a-doodle-do!" crowed Top Notch.

"Santa Claus, bow-wow-wow!" barked Rip, the Dog.

"Santa Claus!" exclaimed Willy Nilly.

The reindeer came dashing through the snow. They could not as yet be seen, but their bells jingled in the snowy air.

At last the sleigh drove up near the automobile, and they all jumped into the sleigh—not caring what happened to the car when they could be with Santa Claus.

They could hardly see him in the snowy light, but they could see him well enough to be sure that he was none other than Santa. There was certainly no mistaking that dear, jolly, wonderful person!

Now they heard Santa's merry voice: "All ready, my fine reindeer. Off for the work shop!"

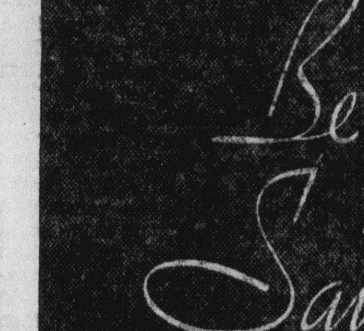

How warm they felt now and how happy, and how exciting it was to be dashing through the snow—riding with Santa Claus!

End Of Century Club Meets.
The End of the Century Club held their regular meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert H. Wright, with Mrs. M. K. Fort as assisting hostess. The home was beautifully decorated throughout with holly abundant; with red berries, giving the Christmas spirit to each member and guest on entrance. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. J. B. Spilman, and a short business session followed. The program for the afternoon was in charge of the hostess.

Mrs. Wright introduced Mrs. J. H. Rose who gave a Stage Guild play "Dust of the Road" by Kenneth Sawyer Goodman. This portrayed the real meaning of what life is when following the steps pointed out to us by the Christ Child.

Mrs. Rose read this play beautifully and each member and guest felt they had received a real message of Christmas.

As Mrs. Rose concluded her part of the program, eight young ladies from the college sang several Christmas carols, closing with that beautiful number "Silent Night." They were accompanied by Miss Kuykendall of the college faculty. At the close of the program we were invited into the dining room for refreshments.

The table was lovely with its snow white cover and white tree decorated with silver bells and lighted white tapers added their mellow glow.

Mrs. J. L. Fleming served ice cream, and Mrs. J. B. Spilman poured coffee. Nuts, mints and assorted cakes were served by Miss Mary Wright and the hostesses. Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Marianna Murphy, Mrs. A. W. Fleischmann, Mrs. G. R. Combs, Mrs. R. C. Deal, Mrs. E. L. Henderson, Mrs. Guy Smith, Miss Gusie Kuykendall, Mrs. J. H. Rose, Mrs. Fort and Mrs. Chamness of Cleveland, Ohio.—Reported.

Sees Advance In Frigidaire Prices Soon

This Christmas season, already made brighter by increased business during the fall, presents buying opportunities which may never again return, according to Jesse Smith of the Smith Electric Company, Frigidaire dealer, who revealed that on January 1 there will be a price increase on the product of his company.

"Frigidaire has delayed this price increase as long as possible," Mr. Smith said, "because of its desire for this Christmas to be a happy one for everybody. Reports to us indicate that a large portion of holiday buying in goods of a useful nature.

"Material and labor costs in manufacturing Frigidaire have increased decidedly, but officials of the company decided this price would not become effective until after Christmas at the present low prices.

"There is a long pent-up demand for useful articles for the household that is being released this holiday season. This is noted particularly in the household equipment field where the seasonal demand is sharp. Hundreds of 'Christmas package' orders are coming in with instructions for delivery on Christmas.

"A study of this trend in buying indicates that household equipment has been more or less neglected during the past several years and there now is a definite move toward replacement. Old-fashioned means of refrigeration are being replaced with electric refrigeration.

"All of this means, of course, that the wheels of industry are being kept moving, that work is being given to more persons, resulting in a freeing up of the buying that has been so long held back."

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—Official markets as a whole failed to exhibit an exuberance today following the lifting of the domestic gold rate a tickle an ounce and prices generally were nervous and irregular.

The small lift of the gold figure furnished little surprise to speculative circles and inflationary implications of the rise brought no rush for equities or commodities.

Stocks pointed lower with some specialties were heavy. Grains and cotton were only a little better, although silver and rubber were firm, both sterling and French franc moved up around four cents and .05 of a cent respectively.

U. S. Government Securities sagged and corporate bonds were besitant.

New York Cotton

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—Cotton futures opened steady to seven higher on steeper Liverpool cables the advance in the government gold price and higher foreign exchange.

The advance was checked by continued near month liquidations with little southern selling and realizing and selling up to 10.17 for March or about 8 higher, prices reacted three or four from the best. The market at the end of the first half hour was comparatively steady at advances of four points.

There was some further near month liquidation later in the morning but the general business remained quiet. Offerings were light and after easing off to 10.13 for March or within four points of Saturday's closing prices held steady. The market at midday was three to five higher.
