Wealthy N. Y. Stock Broker Disappears From His Home

J. LIVERMAN BELIEVED TO BE KIDNAPED

Trace of "Boy Plunger" Since 3 o'clock Yesterday Afternoon; His Wife Informs Police She Believes He Has Been Abducted; Department of Justice To Take Part in Search

New York, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Jesse L. Liverman, wealthy stock market operator, was missing today under circumstances that led his wife to tell authorities she believed him kidnaped.

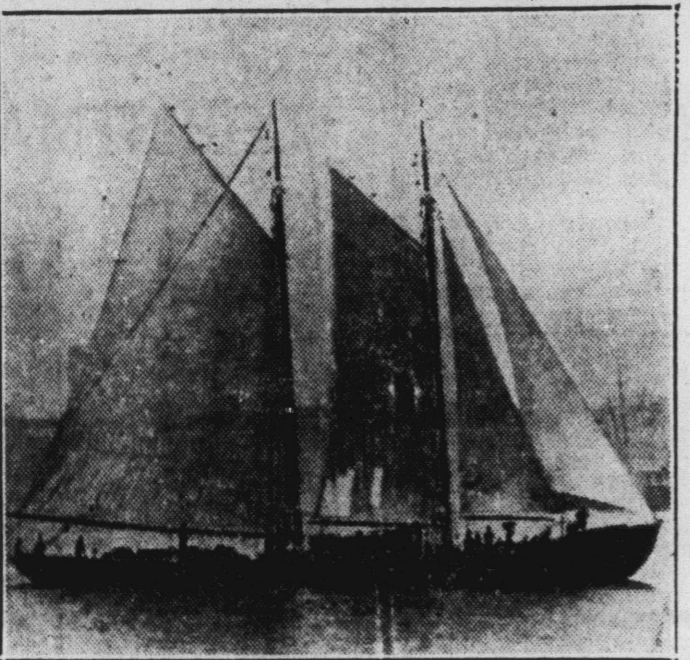

There has been no trace since 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon of the man whose spectacular operations in Wall Street earned him the title of the "boy plunger" in his younger days.

The Department of Justice today ordered its bureau of investigation, which handles kidnaping cases, to look on the case in co-operation with New York police.

Mrs. Liverman, distraught, and waiting for some word at her Park Avenue home, first communicated with police last midnight to tell them she thought her husband had been abducted.

Liverman, she said, invariably telephoned her when he was away. She last heard from him when he returned at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon upon his return to his office.

LOCAL BANK BUYS CITY'S $7,500 NOTE

Government Commission Announces Sale Of Note to State Bank and Trust Co.

The City of Greenville was notified today by the State Government Commission that the town's note for $7,500 was sold to the State Bank and Trust Company of Greenville at par and accrued interest with a premium of 7%.

The money is to be used in the construction of a swimming pool and culvert recently approved by the Civil Works Administration along with a Federal appropriation for the purpose.

The rate of interest is not quite 4 per cent and shows, city officials said, that the city is today borrowing money at a cheaper rate than any time in its history in spite of conditions in the financial world.

Gratification was expressed that the note was purchased by a local institution at a rate of interest lower than all other bids. The low rate, it was stated, is due to the excellent financial condition of the city, made possible by the loyalty of its citizens in giving their financial support by paying taxes and economy in the operation of government.

The note, it was stated, was made to July 1, and it is expected that with the same loyalty prevailing in the payment of taxes, the note will be paid out of back taxes without any levy being made in next year's budget.

The two projects will cost around $29,000. All of the expense will be defrayed by funds from the Civil Works Administration except the $7,500 provided by the city through the sale of the note.

Work on the culvert is already under way, and building of the swimming pool was expected to begin within the next several days.

MORE CWA PROJECTS DEBATED AT SANFORD

Sanford, Dec. 19.—Now that the municipal golf course for Sanford has been given approval by Mrs. Thomas O'Berry, State chairman of the Civil Works Administration, plans for a swimming pool, an airport and a community center are being discussed here. The Rotary and Kiwanis clubs have given approval to the propositions, and have appointed committees to push the plans.

The golf course will be built on a plot of land containing 110 acres owned by the Wilkins Corporation and located just north of the city limits. The corporation will donate half of the plot, and has put a reasonable price on the remainder according to real estate dealers here.

Work of the Civilian Conservation Corps in Washington and Oregon was appraised at $5,321,663 by the forest service.

BEGIN WORK ON SANITARY PROJECT HERE

Department of Health Announces Beginning of $38,000 Health Program

One of the most extensive sanitary programs in the history of the county, calling for an expenditure of $38,000 in Civil Works Administration funds, get under way in Pitt county this week.

It will affect the construction of 4,000 privies in various parts of the county, and it is possible the number will be increased before the campaign is over.

Dr. R. S. McGeachy, director of the Pitt County Department of Health, today issued a statement, calling for the co-operation of the public in an effort to make Pitt county a model county from the standpoint of health and sanitation.

His statement, which also gives facts relative to the campaign follows: "The Health Department wishes to call the attention of the citizens of Pitt County to the fact that the work on the sanitary project (privy construction) is just getting under way, and will be pushed as rapidly as is consistent with good work. The law requires all homes not connected with city sewers and all homes in towns and villages where there is no public sewer system, to either have a sanitary toilet or a private water works and septic tank.

Under this project all that is required of the property owners is that they furnish material and the health officer sincerely hopes that a great many of the citizens of the county that are not required by law to build a toilet will avail themselves of this opportunity to build toilets at a saving of about 33-1/3 per cent and he especially asks those who are building new rural homes to get plans and specifications from his office and construct approved toilets.

Where it is possible to do so, an old toilet will be remodeled to meet the legal requirements and in this way much money will be saved. Let us all work together to make Pitt County the model county of the State from a point of health and sanitation.

HIGH RATING FOR SCHOOLS

Colored Institution Here Leads the State In Educational Tests This Week

Colored schools of Greenville came in for honors this week with announcement that they had topped all other schools of the state in educational tests completed several weeks ago.

C. M. Epps, principal of the local schools, announced this week that his schools made a score of 140 in tests on English, History and Natural Science. Although the schools ranked some lower on mathematics, Epps said the rating was very satisfactory and reflected much credit on the students taking part in the tests.

The largest cities of the state also took part in the tests conducted through the State Department of Education and the fact that Greenville obtained the highest ranking caused considerable elation among the colored school faculty and student body.

BLANKET CODE FOR JOBLESS IS RENEWED

President Announces Continuing General Code Four Months Longer

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—President Roosevelt announced today a renewal of the blanket re-employment code for four months after January 1. In continuing the general code, he told a press conference that the fair competition agreement now covers 70 per cent of all employees who eventually will be covered by codes.

The blanket re-employment agreement was put up as a means of taking in a greater majority of employees pending the establishment of the industrial codes.

LOSES HAND, RESULT OF TOYING WITH OLD GUN

Wilson, Dec. 20.—As a result of being injured while handling an old gun, it was necessary to amputate the hand of Jesse Skinner, 18-year-old employee of the P. D. Gold Publishing Company, and the son of Jesse Skinner of this city.

The load of shot so maimed his right hand that it was necessary to remove it, and some of the shot entered the shin and the right side of his face. The young man lost his left eye a year or more ago, and the load of shot came near piercing the remaining optic.

Late News Flashes From Over World

Three Killed. Raleigh, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Three young men of the New Light section of Wake county were killed last night in an automobile wreck 21 miles north of here, and another youth is expected to die of injuries received in the crash and from exposure as he lay under the demolished machine for seven hours.

Herman Potts, youthful driver of the car, was pinned under the wreckage from 11:30 last night until 6:30 this morning. It was bitterly cold and raining most of the time.

The Wake county sheriff's office said he was taken to his home in the New Light section and a doctor said there was no hope for his life. All of the men had been drinking, officers said.

BOGUS MONEY APPEARS HERE

Counterfeit $20 Bills Reported by U. S. Marshal in This Section

United States Marshal B. F. Buck today warned the public to be on the lookout for counterfeit $20 bills.

He said numbers of bills of this denomination had appeared in this section, and told of an incident where a man was paid $180 in the bogus money.

The marshal urged storekeepers and individuals also to be on their guard against spurious money, and to immediately report any that comes into their possession.

This is the first report received of bogus money since the circulation of a few $10 bills in and around Greenville several months ago, although pieces of bad silver are passing off quite frequently.

MILITARY DOCUMENTS ARE FOUND

Espionage Service Reported to Reach Into The French Ministry of Marines Itself; Robert Switz Alleged Ring Leader, Taken Without A Fight; Five Women Also Taken With The Band

Paris, Dec. 20.—(AP)—An American salesman and his wife and a naturalized Canadian couple were under arrest today charged by French police of heading an alleged espionage service reaching into the French Ministry of Marines itself.

Ten arrests in all were made and the police said one other leader who they did not name escaped.

The American salesman was described by police as Robert Switz, 28, and born in East Orange, N. J.

He was arrested without a fight, and police said they believed him to be the chief of the band or ten persons, including five women, all of whom are held.

Previously the police announced they had made eighteen arrests, but later they indicated eight had been released temporarily, although being kept under surveillance.

The gendarmes said they found 1,900 francs in Switz's room and a number of military documents. They said others of the alleged ring were with the band when they were caught.

Arrested with Switz, who was said to have been born October 28, 1904, was his wife, described as the former Marjorie Tilly, born September 5, 1911, in New York.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Passport information on file in the State Department is held confidential, and it was impossible immediately to secure any official data on Mr. and Mrs. Robert Switz, American couple, arrested in an alleged spy ring in France.

NRA BOARD IS PLANNED FOR LITTLE MAN

Complaints of Lack Of Fair Deal in Little Business Getting Consideration

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—The administration is considering the creation of a NRA board to consider complaints from the independent and small businesses that they are not getting a square deal under the fair price code.

Several groups of independent Senators who have been outspoken recently against the administration of the Recovery Act have been invited to serve on the board. They are reserving their decision as to whether the board's power would be broad enough to permit the re-opening of codes already in operation.

The same senatorial sources understand that President Roosevelt has approved of these ideas of the board that will do for the little man in business what the National Labor Board is doing for labor under the NRA, but the extent of the power to be given such an agency remains to be determined.

JOB DISTRIBUTION DIFFICULT IN DARE

Manteo, N. C., Dec. 20.—A fair distribution of jobs that has been made possible under CWA projects is being made in Dare County. It is thought, every section of the county now has a project going and labor is being divided so as to give calls to a proportionate number from each neighborhood.

Due to the geographical divisions in this county, it has been rather difficult to apportion jobs equally to each section. Men from Mann's Harbor or East Lake could not be given jobs on Nags' Head road or Coast Guard work. Such would cause them to have to pay two ferry tolls and two bridge tolls per day, or they would have to pitch camp and stay near the job or pay board.

The same is true of other sections.

A robber, firing three shots at this intended victim, hit a button of a wash register in Seattle, Wash., and made it ring. He fled.

STATE SEEKS SUCCESSOR TO CLIPPER SMITH

College Station, Raleigh, Dec. 20.—The athletic council of N. C. State college meets here this afternoon to consider a successor to John P. "Clipper" Smith as head coach of football at the institution.

T. S. Johnson, professor of industry at State and acting chairman of the council, said a successor to Smith would not be named today, but that the long list of candidates would be narrowed for further investigation.

Some of the most prominent men mentioned for the job are Hank Anderson, until recently head coach at Notre Dame; Andy Gustafson, backfield coach at Pittsburgh and former head coach at V. P. I.; E. B. LeNair, head coach at Bluefield College in West Virginia; Jack McDowell, head coach at Rollins College in Florida; Butch Slaughter, line coach at Virginia and former line coach at State and Bob Warren, freshman coach at State.

It may be that the council will change its mind and elect Smith's successor today as winter football drills are scheduled to begin January 15 and the new coach will probably want a week or more to prepare for the off-season work.

Serving on the council with Johnson will be Dr. Ray R. Sermon, athletic director; Dr. A. J. Wilson, chairman of the faculty athletic council, representing the faculty; and Dave Clark, Charlotte; T. I. Bland, Raleigh; and W. D. Seifert, Weidert, representing the alumni. Johnson is acting as chairman of the council in the absence of Dr. E. C. Brooks, president of the college, who is ill at his home.

The council met Monday of last week and at that time voted not to renew the contract of Clipper Smith for another year. Their action brought forth protest from the State College Mnoogram Club, the student body and many alumni. However, the council said their action was final and Smith would not be re-instated.

For a while it appeared that Frank Rees, Smith's assistant would be elevated to position of head coach, but opposition to him following the ousting of Smith became too strong and his chances for the post are considered slight.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

It was during the world series that I last had the opportunity to discuss fistie matters with Tommy Loughran, the eminent exponent of the left jab, and the hero of one of the ring's foremost comebacks and as square a guy as ever had his ears scrambled.

This was not long after Thomas had won a decision over his old foe, Jack Sharkey. In fact, he not only won the "duke" but he mustered sufficient power behind one heavy wallop to dump Sharkey on the floor. Thomas was still beaming broadly at the recollection of this when I encountered him. It was almost no bother at all for him to elaborate as follows:

"If I never did another thing in the ring, that punch, the one that knocked Sharkey down, made everything worth all the struggle. I didn't make any money out of the fight, but it was worth it just to settle an old account with Jack. In fact, I can almost say I would have been willing to fight a half dozen free bouts just to be assured that opportunity."

"Somehow or other I have gotten back some of my old speed and punch. Maybe I am just kidding myself, but I still think I can whip most of the fellows who get themselves billed nowadays as heavy-weight errors. At least I am willing to try, and you won't hear old man Loughran's boy squawk if he gets the worst of it."

Poetic Justice

Subsequently, as it developed, Loughran was not only willing but able to take on the prize ring's prize specimen, outside of Dr. Preem himself, and dispose of him on points under extraordinary circumstances in New York.

I refer to Ray Impellittere, the 255-pound young giant who dropped at ten-round decision to Loughran after the referee attempted to halt the bout in the sixth round and award the big fellow a technical knockout because an uppercut happened to open a nasty gash in Tommy's mouth.

There was some poetic justice in the action of Brigadier General Phelan, who ordered the fight continued.

It will be recalled that Loughran was the victim of a weird knockout by Sharkey at the Yankee Stadium one balmy evening three or four years ago. A vicious blow landed high on Tommy's temple. It did not floor him, but sent his sleep-walking, in the course of which he suggested to Referee Lou Magnolia that he be given time to sit down and rest before resuming hostilities. At this moment, while Loughran was chatting with Magnolia and his back turned, Sharkey was barely prevented from leaping upon Tommy to finish the kill.

The circumstances of that evening were what made triumph over Sharkey in Philadelphia all the sweeter to Loughran.

Boxing's Gain

Loughran has now been matched with Max Schmelling in a bout that should furnish some of the best heavyweight entertainment the boys have had this year.

Tommy has been boxing steadily since 1919, but he is only 31 and though no longer the speed king of the heavyweights, he still possesses the skill and experience to make most of the big and bigger pugilists look like novices.

Connie Mack's five-star final disbursement sale of baseball ivory, while primarily due to the embarrassing financial circumstances of the Athletics, is likewise the most signal development so far in the attempt to give better balance to the clubs of the American League.

I have no doubt this thought and aim was very much in mind when Mack consulted his associates about the business of unloading on of the greatest player collections in the game. It is fair to assume, for example, that the Yankees and possibly Cleveland would bid higher for the services of Grove and Cochrane than any other clubs in the league. Perhaps Mack got what he wanted or demanded, anyway, in the cash features of the transactions, but it is also a fact he benefited the American League by enabling Detroit to get the type of playing leader it desires and Boston to take title to the best pitching arm in the league.

Grove and Cochrane, the greatest big league battery since Mathewson and Bresnahan, are the pair Mack will miss. He has up and coming replacements for the others. Shibe Park patrons will miss Max Bishop's penetrating fog-horn voice, but they can hardly shed and teams over the passing of Rube Walberg and George Earnshaw, who together won only fourteen and lost twenty-three games last season, whereas Grove turned in twenty-four victories and was the work-house of the staff.

One of Greatest There can be no under-estimation of the real value of Grove. He belongs with the great pitchers of all time. For consistency of performance under pressure he has no superior and few equals.

Newspapermen sometimes found Grove a bit surly or at least a tough customer to interview. He entertained a few if any fancy theories about life in general or baseball in particular. Naturally big and strong, he had no occasion to be temperamental. Rarely has his arm ever bothered him. For seven consecutive years he has won twenty or more games for the A's. In six of the last eight seasons he has led the American League pitchers in effectiveness.

Going on 34 years of age, George still has plenty of great pitching left in his system. Some of the old fire may be gone from his high hard one, but his control is still good. He has averaged participating in forty-five games per season for nine consecutive years. He will be a boon to the Red Sox from the standpoint alone of not being among their opponents for 1934.

Good Replacements

As for the A's, we repeat, the big shake-up will not make much difference except in the passing of Grove and Cochrane.

The outfit of Cramer, Johnson and Coleman, all big rang fellows, did pretty well last season. The infield with which the A's finished the 1933 campaign, consisting of Fox, Williams, McNair and Higgins, apparently will be intact for next year. Charley Berry, the backstoy obtained from the White Cox and a former Lafayette All-American football end, will have a promising co-worker in Madjeski.

There will be a number of young fellows eager to do the pitching chores, but it may take two or three of them to replace Grove, the one-man staff.

CHARGED WITH KICKING YOUNG GIRL EMPLOYEE

Greensboro, Dec. 20.—Victor Levy, owner of the Greensboro Manufacturing Company, which employs several hundred people in making pajamas, was tried in city court today for assault on Willie Parker, 15, an employe of the mill he is charged with kicking in the back. The court withheld its decision in the matter until December 19.

The girl said that by order of the foreman she was sitting on a pile of pajamas doing some trimming when she was kicked suddenly from behind by Levy and ordered to get up and never be found again sitting at her work. Dr. A. K. Mance told of treating her for bruised spot on her back. Levy denied kicking the girl but admitted touching her with his shoe.

Students registered at the Alaska School of Mines for the winter's mining course ranged in ages from 18 to 65 years.

Mrs. Laughinghouse Celebrates 95th Birthday Sunday

Mrs. Fiffa Laughinghouse celebrated her 95th birthday last Sunday at a dinner given at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mac Smith, near Shelmerdine.

The dinner, spread in picnic style on a table in the yard, was enjoyed by immediate members of the family and a few friends.

Mrs. Laughinghouse is believed to be the oldest woman in Pitt County. She is comparatively active for her years, and takes an active interest in the topics of the day.

She was twice married. Her first husband was Church Adams. The wedding took place in 1853. Mr. Adams was killed in the Civil War. To this union one child, Mrs. Susie Taylor, was born.

In 1868 she was married to Fernie Laughinghouse, who died about 20 years ago. To this union was born four children, J. H. Laughinghouse, Mrs. Mack Smith, Mrs. Victoria Adams, and Mrs. Maggie Lewis, all of the Shelmerdine community.

She has twenty-seven grandchildren living and fifty-nine great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Laughinghouse was the recipient of many presents and congratulations. The day, balmy like springtime, was an ideal one for the occasion, and numbers of pictures were made of the gathering and Mrs. Laughinghouse. All children of the family were present.

FOR A SAFE CHRISTMAS

Fires—Falls—Fun. Here are the three great accident hazards of Christmas. Each year they take a toll in life, health and property, that is the more horrible because it can be so easily avoided.

Of them all, fire is perhaps the greatest and most common hazard. Special rules, simple enough in themselves, and yet often broken, apply to the holiday season. Candles should not be used either on the tree or in windows. All tree decorations should be non-inflammable. Those made of celluloid, cotton and paper should be avoided or kept at a sizeable distance from flame.

Electric lights for the tree should be of good make, and of not more than one fireproof candle power. The wiring should be carefully inspected before it is used. Lastly, the tree should be kept away from any fireplace and should be removed from the house within the week following Christmas. After that, the needles dry out and become highly inflammable.

Care and caution will eliminate the "holiday falls." Under the heading of fun hazards are listed accidents caused by dangerous toys and unwise methods of celebrating. Sharp knives, tin horns with ragged corners, air rifles, tool kits containing sharp instruments—these and similar articles, when given to children too small to use them properly, invite disaster.

It's easy to have a safe Christmas—and it's a lot more fun. Plan yours that way.

PUBLIC FORUM

OUR READERS ARE INVITED TO USE THIS COLUMN FOR DISCUSSING PROBLEMS OF INTEREST TO THIS COMMUNITY. IN ALL CASES NAMES MUST ACCOMPANY ANY COMMUNICATION.

Please Make Your Discussion As Short As Possible.

A WORD ABOUT MR. HARDEN Several years ago during an unusually dry spell of weather, I was attracted by an article in the News and Observer Open Forum calling the attention of Christians to the need of prayer for rain that crops might be saved, and other distress averted; the article was signed by W. S. Harden, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Greenville, N. C.

I was so interested in his earnest appeal for an acknowledgement of God's all-merciful providence and His promise to hear and answer the prayers of his children that I wrote Mr. Harden.

Sometime after that—three years, last September—I went to see Mr. Harden and told him of our great need for preaching and Sunday school. He came out to the school house here and preached for us the first Sunday afternoon in October, 1930. The next Sunday afternoon, through his influence, W. C. Dresbach and Jesse Chambers came and organized a Sunday school.

From that first appointment three years ago Mr. Harden had not missed one service here except a short while each summer when he was away on a much needed vacation.

Every first Sunday afternoon he was here inspiring us with faith, hope and a determination to carry on through the dark days of depression and almost despair. All this just for the great love he had for the Master's work—not one penny of material compensation. Although our loving Father has called him to come up higher, and removed him from our earthly sight, his work here will live forever.

GIFT SUGGESTIONS

FORBIDDEN VALLEY by William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS: Igor Karakhan, wealthy crook hiding in the wild Canadian Northwest, is overjoyed to receive a letter from Sonya Volkov saying she is loving him. But Curt Tyson, who is trailing Karakhan, has seen a copy of the letter and it has killed his love for Sonya, whom he has written in the wilderness. Curt, embittered, plans to follow Sonya to Karakhan. And Karakhan congratulates himself on his luck.

Chapter 33 THE DEPARTURE

AFTER LeNoir had gone to sleep, Karakhan left the cabin and walked down the lake shore, unconsciously seeking the open where walls did not limit his mood.

He could hardly yet believe his good fortune. He had never dreamed Sonya was searching for him or even that she liked him well enough to join him. He could easily imagine it, Helen Mathieson or others like her, but not of Sonya Volkov.

In the course of his dealings with her father and brother at Victoria, he had met her and immediately thrown over the Mathieson girl for her; but she had proved the most elusive creature of his wide experience. At times he had even been a little afraid of her—and now she was actually coming to him.

He believed he understood those six weeks. Her letter, especially one sentence of it, explained her aloofness there in Victoria. She'd been playing a girl's shy game with him, leading him on, perhaps feeling herself hampered by the presence of her father and brother; but after he had dropped from sight... "Your disappearance was an awakening for me, an unbearable realization of what I had lost." No coyness there, but a cry of sheer longing for him!

A mile down the lake shore he came to a small cove, screened by sweeping pines—a beautiful little retreat with its tinkle of water and scent of cloudberry blossoms. Leaning against a lichened rock, he watched a pair of Harlequin ducks P. Tyson, dated April 2nd 1914, and duly recorded in Book B-11 page 89 of Pitt County Registry, and which was further conveyed on November 27th 1915 by said Ferrell, Morton and Flanagan to W. H. Long and by W. H. Long and wife to R. C. Flanagan and by R. C. Flanagan and wife Helen Flanagan and N. O. Santa's Postman

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"You see," explained Santa Claus to his Puddle Muddle friends, "Great Boy goes back and forth with my special mail box at the North Pole, which is not far from here, and gathers the letters that are sent there."

Santa opened the letters—quantities and quantities of them—and wrote down the names on enormous lists he had hanging on his walls with the addresses and what each boy and girl wanted.

"Here's a little girl who wants a woolly bear for herself and who says that she has a new little brother and she thinks he'd like one to take care of him when he's out riding in his carriage," Santa said.

"Why don't you make two bears to look like our Jelly and Honey Bear," suggested Willy Nilly. "They are sound asleep back in their cave, and I'm sure they won't stir until the mild weather comes."

"That's a good idea," answered Santa. "Just tell me what they look like!"

So Rip described the Bears to Santa, and he made two bears which looked absurdly like Jelly and Honey Bear.

Now the time was getting shorter and they all worked for all they were worth.

Great Boy went back and forth for letters, and sometimes Santa dashed down to all the children's houses of an evening to pick up letters that had been left by fireplaces and on mantelpieces for him.

All the Puddle Muddlers waited on Santa, handing him tools and then putting the finished toys on helms, while Willy Nilly, the little man, marked the name in front of each toy so that they would go to those who had asked for them.

Hints

(By MARY GRAHAM BONNER)

"Today," announced Santa Claus to his visitors, "is finishing-up day. There are still some dolls with out heads, and some trains without engines, and airplanes without propellers, and automobiles without wheels. I finish up everything today."

"I wouldn't care to own a set of trains," barked Rip, the Dog, "nearly so much as I would enjoy a bunch of bones. Do you remember last year you left me a bunch of bones? Santa? I was so very much pleased."

"Indeed, I do remember," smiled Santa, and he patted Rip and called him, "Good Dog." Oh, how happy this made Rip.

Santa was looking at Great Boy who was opening his mouth and smiling a dog smile as though he understood just what Santa was thinking, but could not say before Rip.

Then Great Boy wagged his tail and disappeared from the room. He was going to make sure that Rip's bunch of bones was ready.

"I wouldn't care to own a little toy airplane," said Christopher Columbus Crow, "as I have my own wings, but I must admit I would like some dried corn if any one should ask me."

"I'll ask you," said Santa, and he laughed a great hearty laugh. "I don't care about toy automobiles," said Top Notch, "but I am very fond of grain and seeds. I have been a good Rooster this year too."

"I'm sure of it," agreed Santa Claus. And they all gave Santa a very good idea of what they wanted.

Credit Control Guards Public In Duce's Plan

By ANDRUE BERDING Rome.—(AP)—Government financing of industry is proceeding apace in Italy, while both manufacturers and bankers look on with much wonderment as to its eventual development.

Many of them envisage the day when all the public's investment in industrial activities will be made through the medium of the government.

Mussolini's recent decree permitting the State to guarantee not only the principal but also a modest rate of interest on the bond issues of private companies puts the finishing touch to a ten-year movement in this direction.

Treasury in Control There exist in Italy fifteen public utility financing corporations established for national purposes and supervised by the Minister of Finance, who is represented on their governing bodies by a majority of votes.

These semi-official financing institutions are indeed a characteristic manifestation of Fascist economic policies.

These institutions were either founded or reorganized by the State to finance all kinds of industrial and agricultural activity. They include the Bank of Naples, the Bank of Sicily, the St. Paul's Credit Institute of Turin, credit consortiums for public works, utilities and agricultural improvement, the Instituto Mobiliare Italiano and the Industrial Reconstruction Institute.

The last two are the most important. The issue short or long-term credit. Mussolini's latest decree extending the government's guarantee of principal and interest to private corporation bonds entrusts the Industrial Reconstruction Institute with examining and recommending the companies to be favored.

Guards Public's Investments The capital and reserves of the fifteen banks and institutes is 3,678,942,334 lire, more than $193,000,000 at par. Half of this is distributed among the bank of Naples and Sicily and the St. Paul's Institute, all historic foundations.

The Association of Italian Corporations report says: "A credit system has thus been built up which relieves the deposit banks of the duty of financing business and which provides for the needs of all branches of production, toward which it directs the flow of national savings."

"The investing public thus enjoys the protection afforded by the supervision and control exercised by the government not only over the bookkeeping and administrative methods, but over the character of the business transacted, while the ratio of investments assigned to the different activities can be regulated with due regard to the national interest."

New Books

By JOHN SELBY New York.—Curiously enough, two plays, or rather one play and a musical show, are up for consideration this week.

One is Sidney Kingsley's "Men in White," which just has been published. It is, as might be guessed from the title, a play about doctors and hospitals (and, of course, nurses), and it has had one of the big successes of the current season in New York.

Mr. Kingsley has taken his play very seriously, even to the extent of including footnotes giving his sources and certain comment in the published version.

Truth to tell, the "love interest" all plays must have is here a little less convincing than the parts dealing with this sacrifices and perjuries of certain members of the profession.

The young Doctor Ferguson is made a thoroughly fine young man, almost a paragon of the medical virtues, and then is permitted to ruin the life of one fine, if ignorant, young woman and fall in love with another whose stupidity is almost too complete to be true.

In spite of which most readers will decide that Mr. Kingsley has made his chief point.

Wintergreen Again The only musical show currently dignified by publication of its "text" in "Let 'Em Eat Cake," which is the sequel to "Of Thee I Sing."

Following a great success with a sequel in precisely the same vein is dangerous. In this case the effort to make two posies grow where only one grew before has resulted in substituting the hoe for the garden trowel, and the axe for the pruning shears in several scenes. What was satire in the original becomes derision in its successor.

Yet "Let 'Em Eat Cake" is funny a large part of the time, especially the caustic scene in the Union League Club, which is full of barbs, but barbs that snag laughs rather than tear skin. Wintergreen is back, this time running a revolution and a factory to supply the necessary blue shirts of the revolutionists.

Christina, the Christmas Doll

"Well, where's Christina?" asked Santa as the fairies flew into his workshop.

SYNOPSIS: Christina, a doll from Toyland is rescued by the ice and snow fairies from the One-Legged Giant. But she is made invisible by a naughty queen who wanted the doll to go back to her kingdom.

CHAPTER IX THE MAGIC BRACELET Christina and the fairies were so frightened after the naughty queen left them. The fairies couldn't see the doll, and yet they could hear her talk.

"Never mind, Christina," consoled a little snow man. "Just take our hand as you did before and we'll fly back to Santa for help."

"What? What's this?" exclaimed Santa as the fairies entered. "Here, I am Santa," said the doll. "What's this?" exclaimed Santa. He looked and looked where Christina was standing, but he couldn't see her.

"Dear me, dear me," cried Christina. And the fairies told Santa the sad story. All the toys listened and then there was such a to-do. They wept and they all tried to see the doll.

"Woo! woo!" barked the white woolly dog. "She's my special playmate abroad again, as gillible and futile as of old. The show is the product of extensive collaboration. George S. Kaufman and Morrie Ryskind are responsible for the lines, Ira Gershwin for the lyrics, and George Gershwin for the music. Alas, the music is not included in the published version."

Julia Peterskin It is quite possible that "Roll, Jordan, Roll" will become a standard reference work when writers of the future want to learn of the Southern negro.

Julia Peterskin writes the text, a generous text. Some seventy photographs taken by Doris Ullmann on Mrs. Peterskin's Carolina plantation do the rest.

Perhaps the best single feature of the work is that Mrs. Peterskin, most of whose published work has been fiction, this time has held herself to doing a good job of reporting.

And perhaps next best is the fact that she has kept the same viewpoint throughout, which is that of one who knows and understands negroes, and has avoided any suggestion of patronizing manner.

New York Cotton

New York, Dec. 20.—(AP)—New York cotton futures opened fairly steady three to four lower in response to disappointing Liverpool cables and under January liquidation. There was not much southern selling in evidence, while the trade was moderate buying and there was little covering which absorbed initial offerings. After selling off to 10.08 at the start March stepped up to 10.11 and active selling moves were ruling about unchanged to two lower at the end of the first half hour. There was some scattered liquidation of sympathy with action of wheat and stock market and decline in foreign exchange. At midday March was around 10.06 with general list showing decline of 6 to 8 points.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Stocks broke sharply today under a selling avalanche that swept quoted values down one to as much as nine points. The relapse followed weakness of union bag and paper which dropped nine and it was reported the stock exchange authorities were inquiring to recent activity in the issue. Liquidation by nervous traders in addition to increase in short operations were unsettled in the list and at one time the ticker tape lagged from four minutes behind floor transactions. With the gold price still unchanged the dollar advanced five cents in terms of sterling and nearly one tenth of cent in relation to the French franc, wheat yielded more than two cents a bushel and other commodities were hesitant. Late losses ranged from one to around five points but a few issues were heavier. Transfers were 2,300,000 shares.

Doughton told newsmen he would call an executive session of his committee Friday with a view to drafting the measure. Name Changing Made Game

Moscow.—(AP)—Changing of names has become such a popular recreational game that officials have been forced to raise the price for the service in an effort to control it. It now costs sixty-one roubles compared to the nominal three roubles charged before. But despite the raise, it is estimated that more than 500 annually will continue the practice in Moscow alone.

Armed with a self-respect they never enjoyed in Czarist days, hundreds of workers and peasants now consider offensive nicknames given their ancestors by masters and landlords in the time of serfdom and which have been handed down to them as middle names.

So when Krasnostanov ("red pants") wishes to be known as Orlov ("eagle"), Polovinkin ("half a man") as Korolev ("king") or Durakov ("fool") as Umnov ("wise"), the government encourages them to change. Likewise, it likes to see them abandon names with a religious meaning such as occurred recently when Dakonov ("deacon") changed to Volny ("liberty") and Bogoiavlenskaya ("appearance of God") switched hers to Komsomolova ("young communist"). All that is necessary is to register intention at the vital statistics bureau, pay the fee and wait three months for the careful check that determines whether there is any criminal purpose in the desire to change identities. A daily column is devoted to the publication of such changes in the official newspaper Izvestia.

In recent months, however, abuses of the practice were noted in floods of applications, chiefly from women, who merely didn't like their first names. Dina, Anna and Maria wanted to be, respectively, Thekla, Maria and Anna.

One man, Ervoev Fedorov, both a good Russian name, wished to be known hereafter as Rene Reed, motivated probably by foreign motion pictures.

So the government hopes by the increased charge to discourage caprice.
