PITT COUNTY ALL SET FOR OBSERVING CHRISTMAS

SEEKS SPEEDY TERMINATION OF LEAF DRIVE

Governor Declares Complete Sign up Necessary To Success of Campaign

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Governor Ehringhaus today appealed for a speedy conclusion of the five-cured tobacco reduction in North Carolina, and declared a complete sign-up of growers was essential to the program.

Under the plan farmers are being asked to reduce their 1934 production by 30 per cent for which they will receive government rental benefits.

"I wish to urge all growers who have not yet signed contracts for reduction of their weed crop next year to do so at once," the governor said, "so that the full benefits of the program can be provided without delay."

Governor Ehringhaus warned that in the event only 60 or 70 per cent could enter into the government contracts there would not only be danger of "price demoralization next year, but of an immediate and great price falling before disposition of the present crop."

The governor said the program was the Federal Government's response to the appeal by growers for help should growers fail to do their part. They would be in poor position to appeal to the government again for help when prices touch bottom.

NAZI TAIL LIGHTS GUARD MARCHERS TRAINING AT NIGHT

Berlin.—(AP)—Because of the number of nazis injured or killed on night marches along German roads by automobilists driving their cars into the marching columns, an order has gone out that the rear rank man on the left carry a red light.

The Traffic Watch of Berlin-Braunberg suggested the man be equipped with a tail light hung from his belt or fastened to his shoulders and the other men in the last rank be given red glass crystals which reflect the head lights of an automobile.

Considerable night marching is throughout the reich not only by storm troops but also by the Nazi unions.

PENILESS, RAGGED, HE RETURNS TO CASWELL

Kinston, Dec. 22.—A former inmate of the Caswell Training School State institution for mental defectives here, has returned after attending a college in Michigan two years.

The youth made high grades in his studies, according to attendants at the schools. He tired of college however, and went to work. He lost his job and could not find another. He returned to the South, and showed up at the institution here penniless and ragged. He made him self at home.

No effort was made to get rid of him. He made himself useful around the buildings, earning his keep.

The youth recently applied for a position as attendant. He was informed there was no place open. The records show he had a high school rating, with excellent grades before he entered college.

Alabama, with a negro population of 944,834, has only four negro lawyers, the Bureau of Census reports.

Carr would serve the Eastern District and Higgins the Middle District. In making his recommendations Senator Bailey advised the Department of Justice that Carr would recommend appointment of D. M. Strimfield, of Fayetteville, and Colonel John Hill Manning, of Raleigh, as his assistants. The Senator said Higgins would recommend the appointment of Brice Holt, of Greensboro, and Robert McNeill, of Mocksville, as his assistants.

Collie Gives Fire Alarm

Kinston, N. C.—(AP)—Robert Howard's collie is both alarm clock and fire alarm. Each morning at daybreak, says Howard, the dog scratches at his door. WIDE SEARCH FOR SLAYERS IS FRUITLESS

Sampson County Officers Fail To Apprehend Men Who Killed Gas Station Man

Clinton, N. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Persistent efforts by Sampson County officers to apprehend three negroes, one of whom shot and fatally wounded Howard Jernigan, 24-year-old filling station operator last night, proved fruitless today.

Sheriff Lester C. Parker expressed the belief the men he wanted were three of the four negroes who escaped from the county jail at Weldon yesterday. He said their description answered that of the Jernigan assailants.

Jernigan died today in a hospital at Erwin. He was shot after the three negroes drove up to his station and had their car filled with gasoline. A check-up revealed the car had been stolen in Fremont about dusk Thursday.

URGES SANE SHOOTING OF FIREWORKS

Chief of Police Clark Warns Against Promiscuity in Use of Pop-Crackers

Promiscuity in the handling of fireworks will be dealt with severely here, George Clark, chief of police, said yesterday afternoon in commenting on the shooting or firecrackers on the principal business streets of the city.

Attention of the police head was called to the throwing of firecrackers under automobiles while they were in motion and other inconsistencies of the kind, and he declared that anybody found guilty of such an offense would be dealt with severely.

Heretofore considerable latitude has been allowed in the handling of firecrackers, but this year with traffic congestion in the business district heavier than it has ever been before, police have been instructed to keep close tab on celebrants and see that they use fireworks in discretion.

The throwing of explosives under automobiles where congestion is pronounced might easily cause a serious traffic accident or fire loss, and it was for this reason that Chief Clark urged the sane handling of fireworks during Christmas-tide.

Persons who feel the urge to use popcrackers in the celebration of the Yuletide should either set on the outskirts of town or in their own yards, and those who do so may rest assured of little interference from the police unless their shooting is sufficient to cause complaints from neighbors.

The police want everybody to enjoy Christmas, but they desire the celebration to continue without loss of life or injury, and the warning which Chief Clark issued yesterday afternoon was given in the spirit of the utmost consideration with an eye for a safe and sane observance of the season of "Peace on earth, good-will toward all men."

Turk Archives Open To Serbs

Belgrade.—(AP)—A clause in the new Turco-Yugoslavian amity pact permitting Serb scholars to search Istanbul archives, has encouraged local historians to believe that now there may be solved the question of the real renaissance of architecture, many Serb authorities claiming that it took place in medieval Serbia, then under Turkish domination.

STABILIZING OF GOLD HOPE OF PRESIDENT

Washington Studies Latest Expression of Roosevelt On Exchange Issue

Washington, U. C., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Convinced that the new Roosevelt silver stabilization move had virtually forestalled extreme inflationary legislation at the coming Congressional session, the capital tonight turned to studying a Presidential expression of hope that the action might soon be extended to other media of exchange—presumably gold.

President Roosevelt told newsmen he was anxious that the nations of the world get together some day or other a fundamental currency basis as they had on silver. The immediate interpretation was that he referred to stabilization of gold bank currencies, but he gave no indication of how soon he thought such action might be feasible.

LOCAL LEAF MART STILL IN THE LEAD

Greenville Continues To Hold Definite Lead Over Markets Of This Belt

When the bright leaf tobacco markets closed for observance of the Christmas holidays, Greenville continued to hold the lead in total poundage disposed of this season, it was indicated by official reports published in the Western Tobacco Journal.

Wilson, which for the last two years has been Greenville's nearest competitor, still was running a close race for honors, but Greenville remained in definite lead.

The official report of sales including the day the market closed for the holidays, gave Greenville 68,063,746 pounds. The previous season sales amounted to 39,444,170 pounds.

The Wilson figures, which did not include the final day's sales, were given at 66,446,576 pounds.

The markets will re-open after celebration of the holidays on January 8, and with a considerable quantity of tobacco remaining to be sold in this immediate section, it was expected that Greenville's total poundage would run beyond 72,000,000 pounds, the record high mark reached several years ago.

The market had paid out nearly $12,000,000 when work was suspended for the holidays, about three times as much as was paid for the entire crop last year.

MONEY HID UNDER MATTRESS IS STOLEN

Reidsville, N. C., Dec. 22.—A darling child walked into a bedroom in the home of Lester V. Stokes, just west of town, Tuesday evening while the family was at supper, and stole $224 from its cache between the bedsprings and mattress.

Mr. and Mrs. Stokes, their daughter, Mrs. J. O. Roach, and Mr. Roach were in the kitchen at the back of the house. They had gone there to dine at 5:15. At 5:55 they returned to the front of the house. The money was gone. There were no clues except some finger-prints on the French windows of the bedroom, through which the unknown robber made his exit, and these were practically useless under the circumstances.

The family has no idea who took the money. Whoever it was came in the unlocked front door, went out the bedroom, knew or discovered the money was placed under the mattress of the bed and took it. There were two fifty dollar bills, five twenty-dollar bills, two "tens" and four "ones." It was in a woman's handbag.

This is a season when peace and good will pervade the entire nation and the paper joins its advertisers in extending the best wishes for a happy holiday season.

RUSH TO ALTAR STILL ON HERE

Seven Licenses Issued Here Yesterday With Month's Total Reaching 111

The rush to the altar which has been under way here the last two months continued with undiminished fervor yesterday with indications that it would reach a climax today when the courthouse closes for observance of the Christmas holidays.

The last three days has seen record issuance of licenses even for this season of the year, and employees of the office of the Register of Deeds were looking forward to handling the largest business today of any single day in years.

Thursday saw the issuance of ten licenses and the day before an even dozen. Yesterday even before the closing of the office of the Register of Deeds seven applicants had applied for legal permission to indulge in matrimonial felicity. Two of the couples were white, whereas the day before nine of the ten couples were white.

Prior to that time, however, it had been about three to one in favor of colored people, and it was believed the average would figure out at that rate the end of the year.

October witnessed the largest issuance of licenses in the history of the county when 131 couples applied for licenses to wed.

November also set something of a record when 86 licenses were chalked up.

With 111 licenses having been issued up to yesterday afternoon, it was believed December not only would equal all past records, but establish an entirely new mark.

Those applying for licenses to wed yesterday were: Ernest Corbett to Miss Mary Jones, both of Edgecombe County.

William Moore, of Farmville, to Miss Eloise Hyde, of Greenville.

Arthur Wooten to Roase Lee, both of Pitt County.

J. A. Dupree to Elizabeth Cate, of Falkland.

Larry McCoy to Ruby Powell, of Craven County.

Oscar Little to Elizabeth Daniels, Pictolus Township.

HEAVY TRADE REPORTED IN MANY LINES

Increased Sums of Money From Tobacco and Unemployment Funds Enable More Liberal Purchases Than in Years; Special Programs to be Presented in Various Churches Sunday; Final Rush to Come Today and Then Saint Nicholas

With everything settled but the last-minute rush, Greenville and Pitt County people today turned their attention to the celebration of the Christmas holidays.

The city and several surrounding towns were gaily decorated for the coming of the season of "Peace on earth, good-will toward all men," and there was every indication the celebration this year would be the most widespread in years.

In fact, if the prevalence of more money and shopping are conducive to happy Yuletide, then the people of this section are going to have it. Shopping has been continuing at a lively clip here the last two weeks, and it was expected to reach its climax today—the last day before the actual arrival of Old Saint Nicholas, the Patron Saint of millions of children in all parts of the universe.

The reason for all of this buying is that the tobacco market has paid out nearly three times as much for this year's crop as it did for last season. With the season not yet ended, total sales have brought growers in the neighborhood of $12,000,000, whereas last year hardly $5,000 had been paid out for the entire season.

There is a vast difference between the two sums, and the differentiation is largely responsible for much of the buying. However, there is another contributory factor that must not be overlooked—the unemployment program of the government to put more money in the hands of the jobless and increase their purchasing power.

Today, for instance, virtually 900 men who have been without work for months, were paid approximately $11,000 in government funds for work on public works projects throughout the county. It isn't such a large sum of money, to be sure, but placed in the hands of people who in many instances have been dependent upon the public for support, it is a tremendous factor in making Christmas decidedly brighter than it has been in years.

Streets and business homes are decorated so that they form an appropriate setting for the Yuletide, and when Old Santa Claus actually slides down chimneys of the hundreds of homes here he will find everybody in a receptive mood, happy in the fact that they have something to look forward to in the form of a more rosy economic horizon.

Virtually all of the churches elsewhere have held or are planning special programs in keeping with the spirit

TEN LITTLE PIGS WENT TO MARKET—BUT PAIRS FIRST

Veaz, Texas.—(AP)—Anna Lea Poe's pigs went to market eventually, as all fat little pigs do sooner or later.

Even when they went to market Anna Lea's pigs brought a premium—almost double the market price—all of which resulted in her first venture into pork production being an outstanding success.

While attending the Amarillo fat stock show last March Anna Lea got the inspiration to become a 4-H Club member, and so she went home and bought a gilt.

Blue ribbon awards at the Texas State Fair, Panhandle-South Plains Fair and Amarillo Tri-State Fair proved the quality of her porkers.

Anna Lea recommends a diet of skimmed milk and milo maize for fast-growing pigs.

ASSUMPTIONS By Tom O'Neil

When a player is in a difficult contract, at times the only hope of success lies in assuming an arrangement of cards in the hands of opponents which would permit success.

Bids by opponents, especially opening bids and doubles, may indicate key cards so that the assumption can be tempered somewhat with certainty.

An excellent example comes from New London, Connecticut, in a hand played by Mrs. Florence Fitch Osborn.

A bridge hand diagram showing North, West, East, and South cards. North: AK54, J105, 3. West: J93, 87, A7654, J94. East: AQ106, K96, KQJ82, K10. South: 872, AQ632, 109, 732.

East made an opening bid of one diamond. Mrs. Osborn, seated South, naturally passed.

West opened the ace of diamonds, and Mrs. Osborn took stock.

She reflected that East's opening bid and double without possession of the ace of diamonds and the lack of strength shown in West's bidding must mean that East had the kind of clubs, the king of hearts and probably the queen of spades.

Evidently the club finesse would lose and the heart finesse win. If so, she figured out a way to make the contract on the assumption that East held only one club besides the king.

After West took his ace of diamonds he shifted to the spade three, which was taken in the North hand with the king.

East led with his last spade, but Mrs. Osborn won with the ace and took the rest of the tricks after a spade lead, ruffed South.

Came now the test of the assumption as to the club doubleton. The lead of the ace of clubs, followed by a low club, put East in the lead.

South allowed to hold in order that West should not get the lead.

If the queen were taken in the North hand immediately, anything that could be led from North could be taken by the opponents and the king of hearts would make.

East led with his last spade, but Mrs. Osborn won with the ace and took the rest of the tricks after a spade lead, ruffed South.

South allowed to hold in order that West should not get the lead.

Garden Club Meets. The December meeting of the Garden Club was held on Friday afternoon, December 15th, at the home of Mrs. J. K. Brown.

At the request of the Chamber of Commerce, a committee was appointed to judge the decorations of homes competing for the prize offered.

Mrs. T. E. Hooker was appointed to keep the club scrapbook.

A delightful Christmas program "The Story of the Christmas Rose," a Belgian folk tale, by Mrs. Wiley Brown, "Christmas Carols and Histories," by Mrs. J. K. Brown. "A Christmas Wish," poem by Mrs. T. E. Hooker.

Christmas carols were sung by Misses Sawyer and Clark, accompanied by Mrs. Hooker.

Tea and sandwiches were served by the hostess—Reported.

Round Table Club Meets. The Round Table Club met on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 19, at the home of Mrs. R. L. Smith, with 15 members present.

Books were exchanged and a short business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. J. H. Rose.

Mrs. R. G. Fitzgerald gave the paper of the afternoon, "Down the Mississippi," in a most entertaining manner. A map was displayed showing the rise of the Father of Waters, literally "out of the ground"—followed its course as it divided nine states and received the tributaries from twice as many.

A glimpse was given of commerce on the river and the different types of boats, from shanty boats and steam packets to show boats and palatial passenger steamers. The rampant "Old Man River" and his destructive force was told of, and the efforts of government and individuals to stay his fury by the building of dykes and levees. The river town of Hannibal, Mo., was mentioned, the home of Mark Twain, whose early life was spent on the Mississippi, and who wrote of it with such fascination. Other cities on its banks were mentioned—St. Louis, old, individual and independent, regarding the river as "Old Muddy." New Orleans, the little Paris of the South, which received the name of "Crescent City" from its location in the bend of the river as it enters the Gulf of Mexico. Here is the center of the ever increasing river trade, and the remnant of an old culture and aristocracy.

Plans are under consideration at present by the government, to extend the facilities or river commerce by a through waterway from the Great Lakes to the Gulf.

A delicious sweet course was served by the hostess, after which the guests were presented to the very unique doll family which Mrs. Smith has gathered together from the four corners of the earth.

Coffee was served in the dining room by Mrs. William Tyson, Mrs. R. L. Coleman and Miss Jane Hall—in a real Christmas setting of snow covered Christmas trees lighted by white candles—and revealing the manger scene in miniature as the shepherds and sheep and wise men followed the guiding star of Bethlehem.

This will be one of the most pleasantly remembered of the year's meetings.—Reported.

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

In our enthusiastic observance of the Christmas holidays let us not forget the real meaning of Christmas. We celebrate Christmas as the birthday of Jesus Christ and it is to be hoped that our celebration will be keeping with the occasion.
This year Christmas Day is preceded by the Sabbath which is a most fitting time for our people to attend the church services and hear again the story of the Christ child in word and song and re-dedicate their lives to his service.

Emulation of Christ's example of doing for others and bringing happiness to them is the surest way for each of us to get the most happiness out of this Christmas season.

ELKIN DEPOSITORS TO RECEIVE THIRD DIVIDEND

Elkin, N. C., Dec. 22.—The Elkin
National Bank will pay a dividend of 1-2 per cent immediately, according to announcement by W. H.
Stradlin, the receiver. Mr. Stradlin made repeated efforts to secure a dividend check from Washington early in the month, but the Treasury Department is under terrible pressure just now—so much so that Mr. Stradlin feels the depositors are especially fortunate in that the department allowed the checks to be signed for Elkin, out of turn, at which they might be available for Christmas.

This is the third dividend paid by the Elkin National Bank, and make total of 20 per cent paid to creditors to date.

ORGANIZED GERMAN WOMEN TO BE 'REGIMENTED'

Berlin (AP)—In the future, all Germany's organized women will be regimented in a large organization, the "Frauenwerk" corresponding to the mammoth "Labor Front" of laborers, employees, and employers and to similar units for professional men, artisans, and all tradesmen.

"There are too many women's clubs in Germany," said Dr. Krum-pholtz, appointed by Hitler to reorganize German womanhood along 12 lines, announcing the "Frauenwerk" at Dortmund.

"However," he added, "it won't be necessary to force a change on our men. The victorious idea of national socialism is bound to conquer their hearts."

The addition of three new units to the California State park system will bring the area of State-owned parks to 285,000 acres.

lumber.

FORBIDDEN VALLEY

by William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS: Sonya Volkov has deserted Curt Tension and his partner, Paul, and is being taken by Treat LeGore to join Igor Kor-shak in the latter's wilderness refuge in northwestern Canada.
Korshak is the crook Curt is trailing, and Sonya is the girl Curt loves. Suddenly the Klondike Indians surround Curt's island camp, and the little party runs for a rock shelter, hoping to beat off the attacked Ralph Nichols who had entered the wilderness with Sonya, remained behind when she left.

Chapter 36 BATTLE

"RALPH!" Curt yelled at him.
"What're you doing? Get in here with us!"

"Don't have any gun!" Ralph called over his shoulder. "Got to get gun!"

"Let it go. They'll cut you off!"

But Ralph courageously went on.
Flinging themselves behind the rock shelter, the two of them turned their rifles toward the canoes to the south.

Curt dropped a handful of clips into Paul's pocket. "Aim low, Paul.
Bounce your slugs off the water. We can't hope to hit the men, but we can tear holes through those canoes and sink 'em."

They emptied their magazines at the six craft. The range was too long for dark shooting, and the moon reflection was wrong. The canoes came straight in and skimmed into the shallows. Retreating, Curt and Paul blasted into them again, frantically trying to knock them back. One canoe turned broadside and sank, but the two occupants leaped out and splashed ashore; and the other five canoes drove on in unchecked.

Jumping to shelter on the island,
the Klondikes began sizzling arrows at the rifle flashes, to cover the landing of the other parties.

Ralph came running out of the dark with rifle, belt gun and three cartridges in his hands.

"I got 'em!" he panted. "Couldn't have helped out if I hadn't gone and—"

His rejoicing ended in an agonized gasp. Within two steps of the barricade he suddenly stumbled and flunk up his arms. The gun and cartridges dropped with a clatter. Pitching forward with all the momentum of his dash, he smashed head-on against a rock, rolled over and lay still.

Curt vaulted over the barricade, grabbed him, lifted him into the shelter. "Ralph!" he cried, kneeling down and shaking his limp conscience. "Ralph didn't die!" and then Curt saw a hand driven arrow protruding from his back, and a stream of blood trickling from his mouth.

The suddenness of the blow struck Curt dumb. He shook Ralph's arm again but got no response. Dead or dying—he did not know.

The five canoes to the west were less than a hundred yards off. Paul had got the range. He was ratcheting his bullets off the ripples with a withering effect. One canoe wobbled crazily and collapsed. In another a figure leaped up and toppled overboard.

"Look north!" Paul cried. "Keep those back. I'll handle them!"

For the first time Curt noticed that three canoes were skirting in toward the upper tip. At his first shot a figure rose up in the leading canoe and shouted a command. The voice sounded to him like Tenn-Og's.

"Damn you!"—the thought flashed through his mind—"we pelted you up and treated you white, when your buddies ran away and left you; and now you're leading men to spear us. I'll get you anyway!" He poured a whole clip of vengeful bullets at the figure. The Klondike "hill stood up," waving his arms and shouting orders. The other two craft stopped and began milling about uncertainly. As Curt snapped in another clip, swearing swearingly at missing Tenn-Og, all three of the canoes veered around and skimmed back out of sight.

THEIR sudden flight astonished him: he had hit nobody, done no damage that he could see.

He laid it to cowardice, and whipped to help Paul again.

Of the five canoes to the west, Paul had collapsed one, knocked a man out of a second and sent it drifting helplessly, and had sunk a third in the shallows. Together he and Curt ran a burst at the other two. They sank both of them in the space of five seconds, but the men jumped out into the water, sprang ashore and joined their confederates.

Grabbing their automatics, Curt and Paul tensed themselves for the hand-to-hand fight.

"Keep down!" Curt snapped, as Paul rose up to see better. "Don't expose yourself. We've got a chance to win this."

The arrows dwindled and stopped.

Christina, the Christmas Doll

by Sigrid Anne

"Here's to Christina," said the toy soldier captain, raising his cup of milk.

SYNOPSIS: Christina, a doll that has been invisible because of a magic bracelet is freed by a little mole who made it. As she starts back to Toyland with the white woolly dog the mole gives her a gift for Santa Claus.

CHAPTER XII
THE TOYS LEAVE TOYLAND

When Christina and the white woolly dog arrived back at Toyland, it was Christmas Eve early in the morning.

Already Santa's big sleigh was pulled up in front of the Toyshop door, and the elves were busily filling it with bags that bulged with the loveliest toys. There were jumping jacks sticking out of one bag, toy trains out of another, baby dolls from another and big, grown-up dolls from another.

Mrs. Santa was putting peppermint candy sticks in every nook and cranny she could find, and inside the frannies were tying bonnets on the last of the dolls.

Santa was puffing on his pipe when Christina and the woolly dog drove up. They stepped out of their coach, and it vanished, and they ran in to Santa:

"For goodness sakes. Here they are," Santa shouted to Mrs. Santa. "I just felt you would be back today."

"And look what we brought you," said Christina. She pulled out the little gold chain. "Mister Mole, who lives in the pine woods, sent it to you."

"Just the thing," just the thing," said Santa. "You know, I was puffing on my pipe trying to think what I could send to a little girl who is ill. The fairies just told me about her today. Now she'll have a gold chain to wear while she lies in bed."

Everybody was so happy. Christmas Eve is such an exciting day in Toyland, because all the toys are looking forward to being gifts.

So Santa just announced he would not leave unless Mrs. Santa made a party. She hurried back into the kitchen and trooped back into the Toyshop with tiny, tiny cranberry tarts on trays, and then they all had doll cups full of milk.

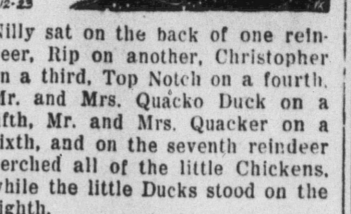

Sundown Stories

The Reindeer Ride

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"I can't take you home in my sleigh," Santa told his Puddle Muddle visitors, "as I have to keep right on filling it with presents until it is time for me to leave, but I thought each of my reindeer would carry one or more of you on his back." Such shouts of delight greeted this speech of Santa's.

Now they were bundled up in their sweaters and shawls. Willy

Nilly sat on the back of one reindeer, Rip on another, Christopher on a third, Top Notch on a fourth, Mr. and Mrs. Quacko Duck on a fifth, Mr. and Mrs. Quacker on a sixth, and on the seventh reindeer perched all of the little Chickens, while the little Ducks stood on the eighth.

They all held on to the reindeers' antlers to be safe, for they knew they would travel quickly.

With good-byes and Merry Christmases they were off, and through the frosty air and over the snowy land they went so quickly that in a very little while they were back in Puddle Muddle.

They had no time to offer sugar to the reindeer as they had planned; for at once the reindeer were off again for the North Pole and their big treat of the year.

Willy Nilly started the fire, but after everyone was warm he let it go out so it would be cool for Santa to come down the chimney.

He hung up the stockings and then went out for a Christmas tree which would be all ready for Santa to trim.

"Oh, dear," sighed Top Notch. "I can hardly wait another moment." It was just what they all felt.

Monday—"Christmas Day."

Christmas Day

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

The great day had arrived at last in Puddle Muddle.

The tree was decorated with candles, popcorn, candy animals, tinsel and presents.

"Why, there is one of those candy roosters I saw in Santa's party!" exclaimed Top Notch. "My! There is certainly nothing so handsome as a rooster."

He took out his little mirror and looked at himself, then at the tree rooster, shaking his red crown happily.

"Let's see what is in the stockings!" shouted Willy Nilly. Over the mantelpiece were the stockings Willy Nilly had saved from the year before and which he had hung up on Christmas Eve for Santa Claus to fill.

There was a box of grain in Top Notch's stocking and a lovely bunch of bones tied with red ribbon in Rip's. There were delicious seeds for all the Ducks and dried corn for Christopher Columbus Crow.

There was a package of adhesive tape in Willy Nilly's stocking and socks and a new cap, and there were many other little presents.

Later in the day they went over to see the Bears, but found them fast, fast asleep. Santa had not forgotten to leave candy animals for them, and Willy Nilly knew that Jelly and Honey Bear would eat them quickly when they awoke.

Then they all went back to Willy Nilly's and had their Christmas dinner. After dinner Christopher Columbus Crow discovered two more boxes—one addressed to Willy Nilly and the other "To the Puddle Muddlers from Santa Claus." What could these presents be?

Tonorrow—"Fire!"

"UNTO YOU A SAVIOUR IS BORN"

And she brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.

And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

—St. Luke, 2:7-20.

POLITICALLY DYNAMIC '33 CRAMS ACTION IN SEQUEL TO 1932's RESTLESSNESS

By BRYON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

Politically, Dynamic 1933 has been the true child and heir of Restless 1932. It has translated into swift, bold action the discontent and protest of the era it succeeded. Political traditions have tumbled in the process.

It comes to its end with men debating whether its work has been done wisely. Whatever the answer to that, 1933 must live in fame as the year when the turning was made—dramatically, fatefully.

Four distinct periods tell the story: President Hoover's dying administration, struggling fitfully against the downward spiral of depression, passed out on March 4 amid a political and economic cataclysm.

Rallying a discouraged people, President Roosevelt received from Congress, almost by unanimous consent, such sweeping powers as no other peace-time President had known.

Administration Steps Out
Then, as party lines were forgotten in an "Era of Good Feeling," the new administration launched on a series of enterprises touching almost every explosive element of political controversy, but touching them all with momentary immunity. Some doubted, but were silent.

Finally, in late fall, open controversy was reborn. Some—including four Western governors who had supported Mr. Roosevelt—condemned his policies as too conservative. Some—including Al Smith—condemned them as too radical. The Republican National Committee awoke from a long quiet to sound a call to arms.

So the year ends amid political confusion. Mr. Roosevelt stands resolute, apparently confident the bipartisan coalition which elected him has not suffered material losses. His enemies are vocal and hopeful but unorganized, as yet, recognizing no one leader or group of leaders.

Political Lines Shift
What has it all meant in terms of political policy? Inescapably, it has meant a tremendous shift away from the orthodox, toward that political "left" which mythically represents the opposite to conservatism.

At Washington, business has been brought under codes and licenses; the gold standard has been suspended; wages and prices no longer are a matter of "rugged individualism"; farm "benefits" of many kinds have become commonplace; millions have been transferred from charity allowances to the government payroll.

City Machines Beaten
New York has elected as mayor a one-time Socialist. Tammany is down, so are the Vane machine in Pittsburgh, and many a lesser political dynasty.

A few old-timers, including the Republican National Committee, hold the line of traditional conservatism, hoping the currents of 1933 will be reversed in another gigantic swing of the pendulum. Will 1934 justify that hope?

FITT COUNTY ALL SET FOR OBSERVING CHRISTMAS

of the occasion. The majority of these services will be held Sunday, and hundreds of people were expected to fill the churches and witness the presentation of scenes and music reminding of that eventful period over nineteen hundred years ago when the Christ Child was born bringing with Him the hope of immortality to all people.

Stores which have been holding open the past week or so to take care of the demands of holiday shoppers will remain open tonight to supply the needs of last-minute shoppers, and when at last their doors swing to a close, Greenville will have laid aside everything for the holidays and will only await the coming of St. Nick to climax the season of eager anticipation.

TIDE OF REVOLT SLOWLY EBBS IN LATIN AMERICA

By HENRY W. BAGLEY
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

The tide of revolution which swept Latin America in 1932 was at low ebb in 1933, yet three republics experienced changes in administration.

An August revolt overthrew President Gedardo Machado in Cuba and quickly was followed by another uprising which ousted his successor, Carlos Manuel de Cespedes and installed Ramon Grau y San Martin as chief executive. He still holds office despite lack of recognition by leading powers, including the United States.

Peru, Ecuador Change
In Peru an assassin's bullet removed Luis M. Sanchez Cerro as president. General Oscar Benavides assumed the office. His position is reported as insecure but an iron-clad censorship keeps the outside world uninformed.

More peaceably, President Martinez Mera of Ecuador was ousted by a senate vote on October 10 and Dr. Abe'rdo Montalvo was named to succeed him. Elections in mid-December made Velasco Ibarra chief executive.

There were two cases of international warfare. A Columbian-Peruvian dispute over territory near the headwaters of the Amazon caused hostilities, but the fighting quickly ceased. The League of Nations sent a commission of inquiry. Then Ecuador claimed she was entitled to a voice in any settlement of the dispute and the negotiations promise to be prolonged.

War Puzzles Parley
The Paraguayan-Bolivian war in the Gran Chaco continued throughout the year, being marked by pronounced Paraguayan successes in December. It held on despite efforts to stop it emanating from the League of Nations, the Argentina-Brazil-Chile-Peru conciliation combination and the "Washington neutrals."

It formed a puzzling question, too, for the seventh Pan-American conference which assembled in Montevideo on December 3.

A concrete step taken at Montevideo was the decision to hold a Pan-American commercial parley at Santiago, Chile, early next summer to discuss Mexico's proposal for a moratorium on foreign debts, both private and governmental.

Peace Pact Popular
Argentina launched a multi-lateral anti-war pact which quickly attracted the signatures of a dozen or more nations. Italy signed it, as did the Netherlands. Like the latter country, Great Britain and France have colonial possessions in Latin America.
