ROTES PLAN FOR NEW YEAR

Ambitious Program Outlined For 1934 at Weekly Meeting Here Last Night

Greenville Rotarians have lots of ambitions and aspirations for the new year, it was revealed at the regular meeting of the organization last night when Dr. Herbert ReBarber, chairman of the program committee, gave each member an opportunity to express some of his wishes for the new year.

Even the most clam-like member of the club had something to say when he was told he had the floor and the outcome of the venture to obtain suggestions proved exactly what the program chairman desired.

Some of the clubmen probably were more reticent than others, but there was a plethora of suggestions and regardless of what the club actually does there will be no doubt as to what individual members wish to do.

Some wanted more music, others more oratory, but it was left to Claude Gaskins, the member with a perfect attendance record, to express a desire for more ladies' nights. His proposal probably was one of the most popular of the evening and the chairman of the program committee will find no shortage of material when he runs short on program plans.

K. W. Cobb presided over the meeting and told of the work of the various committees during the new year. He said the club's objectives this year were the most ambitious in years and each committee head is urged to do his part in putting them into effect.

RACE TO WED PUSHED INTO THE NEW YEAR

Cupid Continues Assault on Lovelorn in Pitt With New Applications to Wed

After establishing an all time record in Pitt county last year, Dan Cupid continued his devastating work among the lovelorn of Pitt county yesterday with indications that he would halt his activities until he had sent virtually all "eligible" to the altar during the new year.

Although his pillaging tendencies were somewhat limited New Year's day as compared with the fast and furious pace in evidence in December it was indicated he had further business to transact in Pitt when three couples applied at the office of the register of deeds yesterday to obtain license to marry.

Of course, the figure was small when put up against the ten and twelve applications recorded several days in December, but in the opinion of those who watch the marriage license "market" it was indicative of the little god of love is not yet satisfied with what he has done and plans to keep going until he fills the double harness bill.

The report for 1933 showed 744 persons obtained license to marry in Pitt county during the year, with 168 of the applications coming during December, always the best month of the year for this kind of business.

The record, in the opinion of Register of Deeds J. C. Gaskins, shattered those of all previous years and sets a mark which future years will find difficult to excel.

One of the couples obtaining licenses here yesterday was white and the remainder colored. Applicants have about three to one in favor of the colored race for the last year, but during December it is possible the percentage was lower.

Those receiving licenses here yesterday were: Jack Tripp to Miss Mildred James, both of Greenville.

Colored: Theroeus Jones to Eldora Cox, both of Ayden; Sam Joyner to Effie Joyner, Farmville.

FREE SILVER ADVOCATES PUSH ACTION

President Assured of Support of Party Members Following Three Hour Conference Last Night; His Wishes Expected to Shape Lines of Session; Republicans to Withhold Any Immediate Concerted Attack

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Appeals for support of Rooseveltian policies sounded a heavy overtone in both wings of the Capitol on today's eve of the regular sitting of the Seventy-third Congress—a session nevertheless packing some hint of fireworks before it ends.

Hot debate, in fact, may not be long delayed. Free silver coinage, its advocates hoping to make bi-metalism a major issue today, hinted they might rush this question forward immediately should there be any fuss in the starting of the legislative machinery.

Congressional eyes turned often toward the White House where the President polished his legislative requests. Leaders conceded his wishes would shape the lines of the coming session. He apparently was assured following a three-hour White House conference last night of full support of the Democrats for a series of budget recommendations that may contain some surprises.

Meanwhile, Republican leaders say they intend to withhold any immediate concerted attack on the program and set about rebuilding the G. O. P. lines.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, Senate Republican leader, last night announced a swift move in this direction. He named a committee of nine to look toward the Senate's fall campaign.

WATCH U. S. RUM MARKET

European Nations Give Attention to America as Liquor Quotas Give Out

London, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The exhaustion of some liquor quotas for the United States centered the attention of European nations anew today upon the American liquor market.

The size of the liquor quotas is of much more interest to many European governments than were immigration quotas a few years ago.

European governments have one thing in common in liquor control. They exact huge sums for the State. The measures are almost as various as the national revenues where manufacture and sale of liquor is concentrated entirely in the hands of the state of Belgium where the state sells no liquor but capitalizes on its duty.

Britain has a combination of two systems for which she exacts heavy revenue for licenses for the producer and users and by excise and customs duties she has a small experiment in the state purchase and manufacture of the liquor trade.

France as the world's greatest wine drinking country taxes wine and exacts heavy tribute from liquor and pure alcohol which all together produce $2,000,000,000 francs, or about $120,000,000 annually for the treasury.

1934 ON ROLLER SKATES

In view of the number of pairs of skates Santa Claus left in this community with the resultant number of children skating on streets, sidewalks, and paved highways, we believe the following warning by the Industrial News Review is most timely and we pass it on to our readers:

Having hooted out miniature golf and Eugene hats, the country has been ripe for a new fad. The palm of popular acclaim is placed upon the sport of roller skating.

Parks playgrounds and sidewalks have swarmed with enthusiasts. Operators of commercial rinks report a bonanza crop, and such games as "snap the whip," imported to popularity.

Staters have spilled over into the streets, choosing the well-paved arterial highways which seem as well adapted to the sport as the avenues.

According to a survey of the situation made by the National Bureau of Casualty and Survey Underwriters, accidents due to roller skating are from two to five times more frequent now than a year ago.

Although they were caught unprepared by the rapid spread of the craze, many cities are attempting to cope with the problems by forbidding skaters to use main streets and thoroughfares.

Winter will doubtless put a crimp in the sport for the next few months but since roller skating is an excellent and economical exercise, it may in the spring become even more popular.

CWA GIVES JOBS TO 1,175 IN BEAUFORT COUNTY

Washington, N. C., Jan. 2.—Although Beaufort County's allotment for unemployed under the Civil Works Administration is 673, enough projects have been approved in Raleigh for this county to put 1,175 men and women to work, it was revealed today.

All projects drafted are sent to the office of Mrs. I. P. Hodges, superintendent of the Beaufort County Public Welfare Department, who is local administrator of the Civil Works Commission.

The projects are sent to Raleigh for approval or disapproval and then returned to Mrs. Hodges' office. Mrs. Hodges then requisitions the re-employment office, of which James A. Hackney is manager, for the required number of men to work on the project.

Within the next several days it is thought that the quota will be filled and those in charge of this work are endeavoring to get all the unemployed in this section on jobs as quickly as possible.

FORBIDDEN VALLEY by William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS: Sonya Yeltov who has undergone incredible hardships to reach and kill Ivan Karakhan, tells how she knows he was responsible for the deaths of her father and brother.

Chapter 43 FAILURE

SONYA'S voice broke. For a moment she seemed on the verge of going to pieces. But she steadied herself, dashed the tears from her eyes, and her right hand crept inside her blouse.

It was genuinely news to Karakhan that her two menkin had been put to death by the secret police. He had indeed sent them to Vladivostok with forged papers on a nonexistent deal, as she said; and he had written the police anonymously that they were coming, so that they would be arrested.

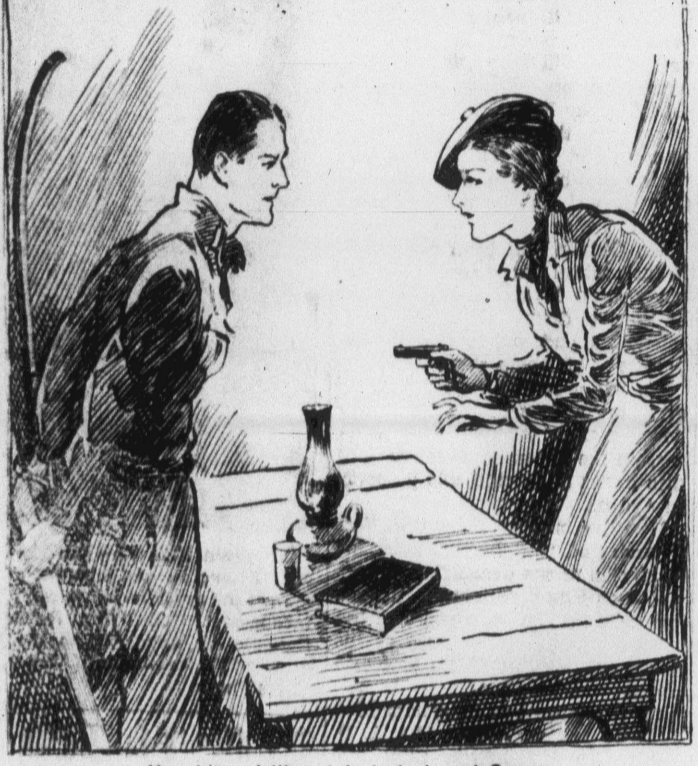

In the critical days just before he cashed in on his huge swindle, the Soviet agents had become suspicious that something was wrong in their trading with western Canada; but by pointing their suspicions at the Volkov men and sending those two across to the Siberian port, he had made a gesture, as though to some ally of his who had crept up to the window and was training a gun on her.

"Don't!" he cried. "Don't shoot!" The ruse would never have caught Curt Tennyson. But Sonya was on the first man hunt of her life; and for all the brilliancy of that hunt she knew nothing of the subtleties which come only from desperate experience.

In the throbbing stillness Karakhan stood over her, breathing heavily, looking down at her white face. As he regarded her he understood something of the passionate devotion and loyalty which had turned Sonya into a cold-furied vengeance of a girl and sent her on her hunt.

When he saw that she was merely stunned, he picked her up lightly, carried her over to the bunk, tied her hands and feet securely with gained time to close out his affairs and vanish. "I can't imagine what you're talking about," he denied, not in any hope of shaking Sonya's knowledge, but to win a few minutes and adjust himself to this stupefying turn.

"You didn't send them over to Vladivostok, did you?" Sonya spiked his denial. "You didn't inform the police privately that father and Carl were the ones who were posing as government officials? You didn't cover your own thieving operations by turning suspicion to them?"

"An old refugee who lives in Vladivostok and used to know my father, found out about it and wrote me from Harbin. Their business associates don't know it, even now. The police don't know a whisper about their death." She made a gesture of contempt at the stumbling ineptitude of the police.

In the face of death, the nearest that death had ever brushed him, Karakhan was shaken with a cringing terror. He was at her mercy, and she had no mercy.

"Sonya, I'm sorry about your father and brother." In a frantic effort to stave off his doom, he seized upon almost any plea. "Won't you let me explain exactly the extent of my guilt?"

He folded his hands behind his back, apparently as a show of helplessness, but his fingers closed over the iron-tipped ski staff against the wall. Even so, he dared not move. Sonya held only a second's advantage, but for him that second was the difference between life and death.

"Let me explain your guilt?" she met his plea. "Anything can be explained. Judas explained. And so did Pontius Pilate." Her hand came out of her blouse gripping a small black automatic.

Karakhan deliberately looked past her, at the window behind. With a superb control of his expression, he turned over a new leaf, I'm going to have backbone."

"Quack, quack, it's much easier the way I turned over the leaf," said little Quacky. "And when the spring comes I'll find a brand new leaf and turn that over, why don't you wait until the spring, too, Willy Nilly?"

"Oh, dear, oh, dear," sighed Willy Nilly, "can't I even make you all start off anew at the very first of the year?"

"Listen!" barkingly interrupted Rip, the Dog, "did you hear that noise?"

"So you came here to kill me, sweetheart," he said, in Russian. "I should have known. But better late than never. Now what shall I do to you in return, before I go away from here? You are thinking I will harm you. Not at all. Instead, I am going to allow you your freedom. In short, I am going to leave you here."

He paused to enjoy the effect of his words upon Sonya. He watched the blood ebb from her face, saw a terror come into her eyes in place of her defiance a few moments ago.

"You won't lack attention, little one," he added, with a wolfish smile on his mouth. "LeNoir and the Indian will be fighting over you in an hour from now. You probably would prefer LeNoir, but personally I think the Indian will win—he has a whole clan behind him. But either way, sweetheart, it will be a long, long time before you see a white face again."

Turning A Leaf

All was very peaceful in Puddle Muddle. Willy Nilly, the little gnome-like man, smiled to himself, for the "Extra!" had made his animal friends forget their anger.

"Well," Willy Nilly began, as he stroked his right side whisker, "now that we have a new year, I am certainly going to turn over a new leaf."

"I'll do that too," quacked little Quacky Duck, and he went over to a vase that held some autumn leaves, pulled off one, and let it fall to the ground. Then he turned it over once and quackingly exclaimed:

"I've turned over a leaf! Quack, quack, I couldn't turn over a new leaf, as there are no new leaves at this time of the year. Willy Nilly, even you won't be able to turn over a new leaf. It's impossible."

Willy Nilly laughed. "I don't mean a new leaf in that way. I mean that I'm not going to put off doing my chores any more. No matter what anyone else asks me to do I am going to refuse. I am going to improve. That's what I mean by turning over a new leaf, I'm going to have backbone."

"Quack, quack, it's much easier the way I turned over the leaf," said little Quacky. "And when the spring comes I'll find a brand new leaf and turn that over, why don't you wait until the spring, too, Willy Nilly?"

"Oh, dear, oh, dear," sighed Willy Nilly, "can't I even make you all start off anew at the very first of the year?"

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST
"Christ Jesus" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, scientist, on Sunday, December 31.

The Golden Text was from Micah 5:2, "Thou, Bethshem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me;

College Reopens For Spring Term
East Carolina Teachers College reopened today for the winter term, with the prospects for enrollment a little in advance of that of last fall. Today is devoted to the registration of students. Class work will begin at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The number of new students will probably offset the number of old ones that will not return.

At the close of the winter term there were four who received the A. B. degree—Misses Temperance Garis, Margaret Griffin, Virginia Jenkins and Mildred T. Foushee. Two who received diplomas for the completion of the two-year normal school course, Misses Ruth Arnold and Margaret Lucas.

Most of the teachers whose homes are not in Greenville spent the holidays out of town, but practically all have returned.

LET'S GO SWIMMIN'! HERE'S WHAT TO WEAR

While some are shoveling snow others are splashing about at southern resorts. Among the "others" are these attractive young ladies at Miami, Fla., whose costumes are worth more than passing notice because they are the very latest in beach attire.

because the Lord hath appointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound; To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they might be called trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord, that he might be glorified" (Isaiah 61:1, 3).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christ is the true idea voicing good, the divine message from God to men speaking to the human consciousness. The Christ is incorporeal, spiritual—yes, the divine image and likeness, dispelling the illusions of the senses; the Way, the Truth, and the Life, healing the sick and casting out evils, destroying sin, disease, and death" (p. 322).

FARMER TAKES POISON, ALCOHOLISM RESULT
Washington, N. C., Jan. 2.—Nat. Cherry, well-known farmer of Route 2, Williamston, is in a serious condition in the Taylor Hospital as the result of taking four bichloride of mercury tablets on Thursday night.

He is said to have been away from his home for the past two weeks and to have been drinking more than usual.

Late Thursday he went to a local hospital and asked to buy bichloride tablets, stating a sore leg needed to be bathed with the solution. He was refused by the nurse, who later was ordered by physicians to let Mr. Cherry have the tablets.

About 9:30 o'clock that night he went to the local police station and complained of feeling ill and asked for a place to lie down. In a short while he admitted having taken four tablets and stated he wished to die and did not wish to be bothered. He was taken to the Taylor Hospital and the contents of his stomach pumped out. He is regarded as a good citizen when not drinking. He has a wife and several children.

He is said to have found sentiment strongly in favor of raising that Mrs. Farnell remain in the office there. She was Pamlico Welfare Officer before being named CWA head. Some suggestion was heard that an out-of-the-country administrator be named.

President Enters 34 In Good Health

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, D. C. —(AP)—After ten months of perhaps one of the hardest grinds ever suffered by a President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, enters the new year in as good, if not better, physical condition than when he was inaugurated last March 4.

Lieut.-Commander Ross T. McIntire, the Navy physician who guards his health, declares that, considering the unending grind to which his patient has been subjected, he has never seen a man who has reacted with such keen enjoyment.

There has been no let-up in the demands made on the President since the day he was inaugurated. Work has followed him wherever he has gone.

The nearest approach to a complete rest he has had since entering the White House was when he returned to Washington from Hyde Park early in September on Vincent Astor's yacht Naumkah. Even then the Navy's warlike contact with him.

Mr. Roosevelt continues to swim as his chief form of exercise and relaxation. He averages three or four times a week splashing around in the White House swimming pool.

He has undergone periodic physical examinations since March 4 to keep tab on his physical condition.

Mr. Roosevelt's day starts at 8:30, when he breakfasts. Often his secretary is present. He arrives at his office at 11 except on Wednesday, when he gets there at 10:30 o'clock.

He lunches around 1:15 at his desk. At 6 o'clock or a little after he returns to the White House either for a swim or rest. He retires around midnight.

Tells How Cardui Stopped Cramping

"Several years ago, when I was younger, I was advised to take Cardui for cramping and irregular trouble," writes Mrs. Estler L. Dodson, of Lowry City, Mo. "It helped me and stopped the cramping. I feel that my good health is due to Cardui, and I can certainly recommend it to other women."

When womanly aches and pains and cramps are due to a weak, run-down condition, take Cardui. Sold at drug stores.

UNC QUINT WILL BATTLE TIGAR CREW

Chapel Hill, Jan. 2.—The University of North Carolina will parade forth its current bidders for basketball glory in the Tin Can Wednesday night when the White Phantoms meet Clemson in the first Southern Conference game of the season.

The Tar Heels, who made an early return from the Christmas holidays to prepare themselves for the shooting of Vergil Weathers and Snooks Aitken, flashy forwards, and the dazzling floorwork of Captain Dave McCachren, All-Conference guard.

As a freshman last year Jim McCachren gave much promise, especially on defense where his ability to dribble and to pass the ball from difficult positions made him the key man to the Tar Baby's attack.

On the second club, the Tar Heels will have Morrie Long and Melvin Nelson, forwards; Earle Beale, center; and George Brandt and Earnest Blood, guards. Long, Beale and Brandt are monogram men, Nelson a sophomore, and Blood, one of last year's seniors.

SPORT SLANTS By ALAN GOULD

No one needs to be reminded that Southern California is good on the gridiron. The Trojans, especially in the last half dozen years, have piled up an impressive record under the coaching of Howard Jones, an old Yale star who, incidentally, would be the answer to all the players and anguish now manifest in New Haven, but for the fact that he prefers the climate, the emoluments and the freedom of personal operation in the House of Troy.

As far as that goes, Yale knew H. H. Jones was good when he coached a Big Ten championship team East in 1922 to hand a 6 to 0 beating to the Elis, then coached by his brother, T. A. D. Jones.

Howard Jones, turning his back on the East, followed the well-known pioneer advice and went to Southern California, where his team for the past nine years have turned in the most consistently good performances of any in the Far West, if not the entire country.

While I haven't all the records at hand, I doubt if the Trojans have lost more than a half dozen games altogether to opponents outside the conference in the same period. They dropped three to Notre Dame before Rockne died. They have also been beaten by St. Mary's, but have not lost a Rose Bowl engagement in four starts.

The University of Tennessee's football teams, which have just completed nine years under the guidance of Bob Neyland, also have a wonderful record. On percentage it is superior to that of Southern California, but the Volunteers have by no means met and beaten the class of competition in which the Trojans have mingled.

Tennessee, from 1925 to 1933 inclusive, has a record of 72 victories, seven defeats and six ties for a winning percentage of .874. They lost two games in Neyland's first season, 1925, and dropped three decisions this year, so that over a seven-year stretch from 1926 to 1932 inclusive, the Vols showed the amazing record of only two setbacks, one at the hands of Vanderbilt in 1926 and the other by Alabama in 1930, as against 61 victories and five ties. Their loss to Duke early in 1933 was the first defeat in 27 games.

Comparable to these achievements was the record of Notre Dame under Rockne over a nine-year post-war period, 1919 to 1927 inclusive. The Ramblers of that period piled up 78 victories as against seven defeats, of which three were administered by Nebraska, and three tie games for a percentage of .836.

SEEKS NO INCREASE IN NEWSPRINT PRICE

New York, Jan. 2.—(AP)—A. R. Graustein, president of the International Paper and Power Company, said today that newspaper prices are now below those prevailing in 1932 and no immediate increase is expected. "Certainly no increase is expected before April 1," he said, "but the adoption of the newsprint code and the formation of the Newsprint Export Manufacturers' Association of Canada have imparted a distinctly better tone to the market for that product."

Cost of Living In Decline First Time Since April

New York.—(AP)—Indications of resistance in the first part of December to the lowering of business activity during November is reported by the Conference of Statisticians in Industry of the National Industrial Conference Board.

Public works construction was the only important field of increased activity in November and the first part of December, the board reports and industrial production declined more than seasonably in November. Automobile output dropped in November, but new model production firmed the chart line in December.

Total distribution of commodities last month was not up to seasonal expectations, freight shipments declined slightly less than seasonal, department store sales were off contrary to expectations, the report indicates. Store prices advanced less than one-half of one per cent to an average of 23.8 per cent over April and 19 per cent over November a year ago. Wholesale commodity prices showed a slight net decline. "The cost of living in November showed the first decline since April," the board reports.
