Negro Admits Attack On Two White Persons

JIM GREEN IS SPIRITED TO UNNAMED JAIL

Man Held For Criminal Assault On Young White Woman, Makes Written Confession Of Crime To Sheriff Whitehurst; Verifies Statement He Hit Woman's Escort Over Head With Club and Then Criminally Assaulted Her Twice

Sheriff Sam Whitehurst disclosed today that Jim Green, 25-year-old negro arrested in Pactolus Township yesterday on a charge of attacking Steve Edwards and Miss Marie House, four miles east of Greenville Sunday night, had made a written confession of the crime.

The negro was swished away to an unnamed jail immediately following his arrest yesterday morning shortly after 10 o'clock and will be held there until he faces trial in the next session of criminal court, the sheriff said.

After hitting Edwards in the head with a heavy club, the negro jumped into Edwards' car, forced Miss House to remain in the car, and criminally assaulted her twice after driving several miles from where Edwards was left.

The young woman was found in Pactolus Township the next day and told officers she had been attacked twice. The negro verified the statement in his written admission to the sheriff. Edwards came to Greenville where fourteen stitches were taken in his head.

Green, after attacking Miss House the second time, left her lying in the road. Shortly afterwards the gas in the car gave out and he abandoned the machine. He then went to the home of a negro where he was captured yesterday morning.

He said he had been drinking and lay down to sober up the night of the crime. When he awakened he entered a road where he said he met a man and a girl in an automobile. He said the man ordered him to leave and then struck him. He struck at the man, but immediately left, got a heavy oak stick and returned.

He stated the man again got out of the car and advanced toward him. This time he struck the man over the head with the club, ordered the girl to get in the car, promising to carry her to a nearby service station.

When the car reached the station, he stated, the girl attempted to get out, but he pulled her back into the seat. He then drove into the woods and attacked the girl the first time in spite of stout resistance. Several miles further down the road he again pulled into the woods and told the girl to get out. He threatened her again with bodily harm if she did not do as he commanded. She refused to yield and he said he hit her over the head with a pop bottle and attacked her again.

Then he left her lying in the road, got in the car and sped away. Shortly afterwards the gas gave out and he went to the home of Dave Eunn, where he was arrested Tuesday by Sheriff Whitehurst who had been searching for the negro since the crime was committed.

LOCAL OFFICE TO REGISTER FARM LABOR

Farmers Who Need Labor and Farm Laborers Are Urged To Register

J. T. Bland, manager of the Pitt county re-employment office, announces that his office is now ready to register landlords and farmers who are in need of farm labor of any kind. Likewise, families desiring to rent a farm and unemployed farm labor are urged to register.

Families who left farms for work in towns or factories and are now interested in going back to the farm are urged, Mr. Bland said, to register and give the government a chance to help them find the kind of employment they prefer.

There may be some families applying for far placement who do not have enough food and clothing to "run" them until the crop is made. Under certain conditions, provision will be made to extend help to such families, he said.

Greenville Banking & Trust Co. Announces Increase Of Capital

The stockholders of the Greenville Banking and Trust Company held their thirty-third annual meeting at Sheppard Memorial Library in Greenville, Tuesday, January 9, 1934, at 2 p. m., with E. C. Flanagan, president of the bank, presiding. There were 1,556 1-4 shares of stock represented in person and by proxy out of a total outstanding of 1,875.

With an overwhelming majority the stockholders voted to increase the capital stock to $500,000, which with their present surplus profits and reserves of $90,000, gives them capital assets of more than $570,500, which is the largest capital investment of any bank in this section.

The stockholders were advised by their executive vice-president, W. H. Woodard, that their present capital was not in proper proportion to their deposits, and also that to operate their branches, he thought it advisable to have a capital structure in excess of $500,000. With this amount of capital standing back of every dollar deposited, together with memberships in the Federal Insurance Corporation, should certainly be attractive to depositors.

The bank again paid an annual dividend, which has been paid without interruption since their organization. J. H. Waldrop, cashier, in his report of operations for 1933, stated that the bank had earned $27,544.46, or 14 1/2 per cent, and after paying the dividend the balance had been carried to surplus and undivided profit account. His report showed deposits of $2,835,945.88, which was an increase of more than 86 per cent over the close of last year. He stated that the amount in surplus, profit and reserve account at the close of 1933 was greater than at any period in the history of the bank.

The board of directors composed of A. W. Ange, M. O. Blount, C. S. Carr, J. S. Ficklen, E. G. Flanagan, A. M. Moseley, R. C. Moxe, L. C. Skinner, J. A. Staton, N. O. Warren, J. J. White, and W. H. Woodard was re-elected. Immediately following the stockholders' meeting, the directors met and re-elected the same officers.

E. G. Flanagan, president; W. H. Woodard, executive vice-president; M. O. Blount, vice-president; J. H. Waldrop, cashier; A. J. Moore, assistant cashier; M. L. Cowell, assistant cashier; B. F. Patrick, cashier, Dickinson Avenue branch; S. C. assistant cashier, Bethel; J. E. Edies, cashier, and R. L. Whiteley, words, cashier, Belhaven; V. N. Whitehurst, cashier, Snow Hill.

MAYOR URGES SUPPORT OF BIG BALL HERE

Says Dance January 30 To Be Launched In Honor of President Roosevelt

Mayor R. C. Flanagan today put his stamp of approval on the Roosevelt Ball to be given here January 30 and urged the public to support the cause launched in behalf of raising funds for the Warm Springs Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Mayor Flanagan's statement follows: "There will be held on January 30, 1934, in the Campus Building of the Eastern Carolina Teachers College in Greenville, N. C., a Birthday Ball for President Franklin D. Roosevelt, honoring the President and at the same time raising a fund for an institution that is very near the President's heart, and that is the Warm Springs Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Warm Springs, Ga."

"The wise men of the country have decided that in no other way can a more fitting tribute be paid to our great President than to make this contribution in a spirit of love to him on his 52nd birthday.

"Please bear in mind one thing, and that is that this is not a Greenville ball, but a ball held in Greenville in one of the finest buildings in Eastern North Carolina, which building would not be available but for the patriotic and loving purpose that this occasion serves in the shape of a testimonial from the people in this section that has received so much and so many benefits from the fine actions of President Roosevelt and his administrators, and we feel that this is an opportunity which the whole community should be glad to join in and not only have a very pleasant evening together, but be very happy to make this small contribution to so great and worthy a cause and in the name of so wonderful a man as the President.

"At this time I want to call your attention to an editorial from the New York Times which explains in a few words what we are trying to (Continued on Page Three)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—(AP)—A debt-laden independent office supply bill, its total slashed to $559,000,000, of which $546,000,000 would go to the Veterans' Bureau, was reported by the House Appropriations Committee today.

The charges were filed on behalf of the mayor by his new commissioner of accounts, Paul Blachshere, long a foe of the old city administration and now conducting an exhaustive inquiry into its acts.

Lemmerman was accused of receiving $930 as brokerage from the owners of the bridge for consummating a lease for the Bridge Authority offices. The rental for the office in the financial district was fixed at $24,000.

There was a total of 1,690 unemployed people on the roll of the County Re-employment Bureau here today, it was reported by J. T. Bland, manager of the bureau.

The report showed a total registration of 2,727 since the bureau began operation last September with total placements of 663. Of this number 587 were placed on Civil Works Administration projects, and 41 on Public Works Administration jobs.

Georgia claims to have been the first State to pass a vital statistics law, requiring the registration of births. The statute was enacted in 1823.

FIRST SPECIAL MESSAGE SENT TO CONGRESS

President Proposes That Government Guarantee Principal Of $2,000,000,000 In Bonds For Refinancing Farm Mortgages; Would Back Securities With Credit Of Government and Official Property

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—(AP)—President Roosevelt in his first special message to Congress today proposed that the government guarantee the principal of the $2,000,000,000 in bonds for refinancing farm mortgages.

The Senate and House were acquainted with the brief message with the President's conviction that the house has the moral responsibility to guarantee these issues. He pointed out that the action would recommend putting the bonds on par with Treasury securities.

"It is true," he said, "that technically the responsibility of the government will be incurred by the amount of $2,000,000,000, but it seems in every way right that we fully acknowledge that amount already to be moral obligation.

"In any event the securities to be offered are backed not only by the credit of the government but by all fiscal property of very definite value."

The Democratic leaders of the Senate and House expressed no doubt that they would be able to get the legislation wanted. Bills to that end have already been sought and action was to be asked without delay.

Later in the day the President planned to send a message proposing immediate completion of a treaty with Canada for development of the St. Lawrence River waterway and ask that the farm credit measure be set up with a corporation of $200,000,000 capital to administer the farm credit loan.

Governor Myers of the Farm Credit Administration would head the board of governors of the corporation.

MRS. KILGO HOSTESS TO SANS SOUCI BOOK CLUB

Mrs. J. L. Kilgo was a charming hostess to the members of her book club Tuesday afternoon at her home on Ninth street.

In the library and living room the decorations were featured by early spring flowers and the open fire in the library lent a note of cheer and hospitality.

Mrs. S. T. White, the president of the club, asked for the roll call, to which seventeen members responded, and a special guest for the afternoon was Mrs. Zeigler, Mrs. Waldrop's mother. After the business was transacted the books were exchanged by the librarian.

Mrs. W. L. Best was in charge of the program and presented a splendid paper on "First Ladies of the Land." She discussed the lives of those she thought would be of most interest to us—beginning with Martha Washington and ending with the present mistress of the White House, Mrs. Roosevelt. It was interesting to learn some of the characteristics of them and in which way they fitted most ably as a President's wife—Dolly Madison, Frances Cleveland and Mrs. Roosevelt—being ideal and charming hostesses in every way and Mary Todd Lincoln being no doubt one of the most misjudged and unhappy First Ladies.

Current events were led by Mrs. Key Brown, who told many instructive facts about Russia.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Rose and her two attractive daughters, Louise and Suzanne, served a delicious salad course.—Reported.

Tables were placed for luncheon in the sun room and dining room, in a colorful setting of Japanese Hawthorne and the first breath of spring. Places were marked for the guests with silver-wedding bells, and the place for the honor guest by a lovely corsage. The tables were centered with novelty vases of Hawthorne, which were later cut for table prizes. The hostesses served a delectable plate luncheon.

Following luncheon, bridge was played and a number of progressions were enjoyed. Mrs. John L. Winstead was given a beaded bag for high score; Miss Wright's gift was after-dinner coffee cups in her selected pattern, and Mrs. Staunton Harvey, a recent bride, was presented novelty pictures. Table prizes were cut by Mrs. R. H. Wright, Miss Mary Lou White, Miss Laura Overton, Miss Florence Taft, Miss Mary James Lipscomb and Miss Frances Moseley.

IN APPRECIATION

I tried to count my friends, one day—
Since that day have I walked in awe.
I stopped my counting in dismay,
For stretching far, in long array,
Full friends and friends I saw,
And then I said, all chokingly,
And faint with weight of happiness,
"Dear God, I pray that I may be
The one they think me—nothing less.
Oh, let me be until life ends,
The one they think me, these, my friends."
MRS. W. S. HARDEN.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

"God" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, January 7.

The Golden Text was from Isaiah 37:16: "O Lord of hosts, God of Israel, that dwellest between the cherubims, thou art the God, even thou alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth; thou hast made heaven and earth."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "O God, thou art my God; earnestly I seek thee; my soul thirsteth for thee; in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is; To see thy power and thy glory, so as I have seen thee in the sanctuary." (Ps. 63:1-2).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus said: 'These signs shall follow them that believe... they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.' Who believes him? He was addressing his disciples, yet he did not say, 'These signs shall follow you,' but them—'them that believe' in all time to come. Here the word hands is used metaphorically, as in the text, 'The right hand of the Lord is exalted.' It expresses spiritual power; otherwise the healing could not have been done spiritually."

SPONAR RAPS MODERN LIFE

Present Conditions Scored in Sermon At St. Peter's Catholic Church

Greenville last night listened to one of the most telling indictments of present conditions, social and religious, that has ever been delivered in this community. The Rev. Leo Sponar, M. A., speaking at St. Peter's Catholic Church, on the "Moorings of Society," showed that those moorings have lost their anchorage and are drifting helplessly out into the swift currents of destruction. The Fourth and Fifth Commandments of God are the pivots supporting society, without which civilized organization cannot long endure. The first of these two pre-supposes obedience and authority exacting that obedience; now, this age has brought rightly styled—"The Age of the Obdient Parent," for the children do the fiddling and the parent dance accordingly; the same thing holds largely for the school, in which noble teachers are utterly at the mercy of willful pupils who have been pampered and petted and whose foolish parents are ready to swoop down upon the teacher who dares to employ sound and sane discipline. Government and officials return at the mercy of the organized gangster and even of the private citizen. In religion things are little better; for there is no authority in most of the churches; this is for the most part due to the principle of private interpretation, which in its logical sequence is simply moral and intellectual suicide, at which stage we have practically arrived.

The greatest good in the physical order is life of body; still we are recklessly killing thousands each week. Suicide is on the increase in spite of our culture, so-called, while we may charitably suppose that many are not sane when committing this act of violence, still many are responsible in causing because of the immoral habits that led to such a fearful climax. Murder, at one time so terrible in our eyes, is ordinary occurrence now; our news items teem with them. Why? We shall see shortly.

We have organized killing and we do nothing effective about it. Why? We shall see shortly. The speaker met a man who boasted that he had never cursed or taken a drink; but he came into a town and joined a mob who took a man whom he had never seen before and strung him up for a supposed crime, then went to town and had the coroner declare suicide; he is a good sample of the kind of citizen that forms the maudlin mob, guilty of the disgraceful violence of lynching, which some of our leaders in high places, civil and religious, have sanctioned. Why this? We shall see shortly; for it is worse still. In almost every community there are people whose sacred profession dedicates them to the preservation and enhancing of life, but who hide behind that profession to ply the trade of murder, whose hands and arms are red to the elbows with blood, blood not of the gangsters, but of the most innocent and defenceless, that of the unborn; we send a man to the gallows or chair for one murder, committed in a moment of rage, very well; but we allow doctor so and so, or mid-wife so and so, to drive fine automobiles and wear splendid furs, purchased in blood of many murders, and we do nothing but smile and honor them. And why? Why? Because there are so many hundreds of thousands of so-called fathers and mothers, married and unmarried among us, who hire these human hyenas to do their killing for them and who dare not open their bloody mouths.

We need not, then be surprised at the frightful things happening on all sides; we shall see more terrible things multiplied around us, as the aftermath of the flagrant teaching in most schools, that these unmentionable things are justifiers for economic or social reasons; "What we sow, we shall reap." Therefore, the warning is being sounded. "Touht all are invited to hear the Rev. Leo Sponar speak on "The Shame of It."

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Pierce and family of Farmville, were here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Langley and son, Watt, of Crisp, were here Sunday.

Miss Mattie Smith of near Fountain, is teaching the third grade here now.

The Falkland Parent-Teacher Association will meet at the school building on Thursday night.

Rev. H. M. Wilson, our pastor, preached a splendid new year's sermon on Sunday night, "Forgetting the things that are behind, reach forward."

We are glad to learn that Edward Mayo, who has undergone an operation for appendicitis, is getting on nicely in Pitt Community Hospital.

Friends of P. G. Mayo will regret to learn that he is no better, but gradually growing weaker.

CALLS FOR REDUCTION IN CAR LICENSE FEES

Salisbury, N. C., Jan. 10.—(AP)—D. Kizziam, register of deeds for Rowan County, admits that he may have overlooked the dust on the windshield, but he states that everything about an automobile is taxed in North Carolina except the air in the tires and the water in the radiator.

His contention is embodied in a petition for a 50 per cent reduction in North Carolina automobile license fees, which he has drawn for presentation to the 1935 Legislature.

The plea is being kept in his office here, and callers during the year will be given opportunity to sign it.

Dutch Mason Is Beheaded In Germany

Leipzig, Germany, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Marinus Van De Lubbe, 24-year-old Dutch stone mason, was beheaded today for firing the German Reichstag building in Berlin last February.

He had repeatedly confessed setting fire to the building but steadfastly refused to divulge whether he had had an accomplice. Van De Lubbe had been under sentence of death since December 24 when the Supreme Court convicted him and acquitted four co-defendants.

William M. Boehmer estimates he walked 50,000 miles in the thirty years he was employed as a mail carrier in Alameda, Calif.

If Congress complies with the President's request made in his message today for legislation that would guarantee principal as well as interest of the Farm and Home Loan bonds, no doubt the action will speed up this form of loans and mean the saving of many homes for the present owners.

THE PRESIDENT'S BALL

With the reputation that the average public dance in this section has, we would not think of boosting one, but it is a pleasure to urge people to take part in the coming Roosevelt Birthday Ball, to be held in this city January 30. The affair is to be in honor of the birthday of President Roosevelt and the proceeds from the net will go to the Warm Springs Endowment Fund to be used in the treatment of infantile paralysis. We are sure that the affair here is to be conducted on the highest possible line and in keeping with the high purposes for which it is to be held and to credit the community.

BLOND GODDESS by Herbert Jensen

SYNOPSIS: Frank Grahame, while waiting to see the great Meyer, movie executive, about a Mexican picture, sees a startling blond on the window of the office. He cuts his appointment, and finds footprints on the lawn outside the office. He watches Janice Kent, movie star, drive away from the office in her car and watches a second car follow it. On an impulse he orders a taxi to follow the two cars. The taxi driver loses the car, but tells Grahame he believes he knows where they went.

Chapter Two THE FIGHT

GRAHAME shrugged slightly and relaxed. He took a newspaper from his overcoat pocket and read a line or two here and there. Street lights, flashing by, gave indifferent illumination. There was a story about Langton who had crashed into a West Indian hurricane some months before. Some new theory, thought Grahame, that the famous flyer had not died in that storm. Poor Bill Langton, why didn't they let his name alone? He was gone and that was the end to it.

Grahame began to feel impatient. The brief evening rain had passed, leaving the pavements with a treacherous sheen. Grahame stirred forward in his seat. He saw that they were swinging into the hairpin that big man's eyes went blank. He pitched toward Grahame, who stepped sideways to let him fall. Grahame looked at the girl. Her eyes, he noticed, were blue and wide; her hair was the color of coiled gold.

He felt suddenly bareheaded and embarrassed, and looked for his hat. He found it, spotted and crushed, beneath the figure of the recumbent man. Pushing it into some semblance of its original shape, thoughtfully he surveyed it a moment, and placed it on his head.

He rubbed his right knuckles with the palm of his left hand. He cleared his throat. "Well—" he began inane, when the motorcycles arrived.

The police kicked the stands behind the wheels, and approached. One of them opened a notebook. "Whoopee?" he suggested wearily. "Names, please. How'd it happen. Is the man dead?"

Grahame explained. Once, while he talked, he looked toward the black car for confirmation, and saw that although the girl's face was hidden in the shadow her head nodded briskly. He said nothing of having followed the cars from the studio, but began his statement as from the time his headlights had flashed upon the two cars at the curb. "And so," he concluded, "I hit him."

"That guy's just back from South America."

is the juncture of Laurel and Hollywood boulevards.

The cab lost its footing upon the slick crown. It skidded for a sickening split second. The headlights' glare swirled across stucco house-fronts, then flashed upon the lacquered surfaces of two cars at the farther curb.

Grahame dropped the newspaper he held in his lap. He clutched at the door handle. In that brief camera-snap glimpse Grahame saw that there had been an accident. Figures of men had been moving about the cars.

With a sense of shock he realized that one had been a black-limousine and the other tan in color. He lifted his hand to rap on the panel. As he did so, the cab's rubber found traction. Brakes squealed. He jerked at the door handle.

He ran back toward the cars. One he saw was a black and gold-trimmed limousine halfway on the sidewalk and against a hydrant. The tan nose of a nondescript car was against the sleek side of the other like a slug against ebony. A trail, yards behind it, showed where tires had slid over the pavement.

As he approached, Grahame's mind registered two facts: he would have sworn that he'd seen four figures outlined against the tan car—here were but two—a large man who lurched toward a little one.

Grahame's driver had turned his cab so that the headlights glowed upon the scene. The little man—a Japanese in dark uniform and cap—was retreating; the aggressor advanced with chin outthrust, and an arm drawn backward in a gesture unmistakable. A girl—Grahame's eyes widened at her beauty—leaned forward from the rear seat of the black and gold car. Her fingertips were pressed against her mouth.

"Hold on!" called Grahame.

The large man pivoted toward Grahame. Small eyes, set in a face heavy and sullen, blinked in the glare. The man's arm lashed forward. Grahame averted his head, spoiled the timing of the blow. He dodged with a vicious right paw swift and as sure as a lion's drip. Knuckles slapped against bone. The

THE policeman looked thoughtfully at the slumbering stranger, and back at Grahame, and said, "Uhuh. What's your name?" "Grahame, F. A. Grahame."

The officer frowned and wet the tip of his pencil.

His companion, who had completed an inspection of the cars, offered, "That's the guy who just come back from South America."

The book snapped shut. The girl allowed the light to fall upon her face, and leaned forward toward the men.

"Frank Grahame!" she exclaimed. "Oh, I knew you were someone important!"

"Hello, Miss Kent," said the officer.

Grahame looked quickly at the girl. Of course he recognized her now. Janice Kent. Really, she was much more beautiful than her pictures showed her. He was conscious at once of two unrelated thoughts: that photography was an inadequate art, and that hereafter there would be real satisfaction to write on official documents, "permanent residence: Hollywood."

He observed that the police had lifted the half-conscious man to the sidewalk, and were shoving the tan car away from the black one.

"It's only your paintwork damaged," said the officer of the notebook to the Japanese. "Better take Miss Kent home now. We'll take care of him." He pointed to the driver of the tan car who was leaning against the lamp-post surveying the scene with stupid eyes.

"Grahame... report at the precinct station... tomorrow will do. Send your driver down, too, Miss Kent."

"Would you mind seeing me home, Mr. Grahame?" asked the girl softly.

The man from the cab took the bill Grahame extended, him and walked back toward his car. Grahame got in beside the girl. A few minutes later the car purred smoothly toward Beverly Hills.

The girl pressed her gloved fingers upon Grahame's coat sleeve. "Thank you... very much," she said.

Tomorrow, Grahame finds a strange reticence in Janice Kent's behavior.

Sundown Stories

The Great Beast By MARY GRAHAM BONNER Mrs. Quacko scooped up some water from a puddle on the floor, but Top Notch had partly recovered from his fright.

"Oh," he said, "it's a creature with horns and it's enormous. I couldn't tell what the rest of it looked like but I could see that its body went on and on."

"I'm sure it could knock the whole house down." And Top Notch shivered.

"There, there," soothed Willy Nilly. "I don't believe it could knock the house down."

"I'm going to speak to the creature through the keyhole. We've all been so miserable and have had so much happen that perhaps we're more nervous than we should be. Maybe it's large but gentle."

"Not with those horns," said Top Notch.

"But a deer has horns and it isn't dangerous," said Willy Nilly. "If it's an animal I'm not afraid at all. Yes, I'll talk to the creature."

So Willy Nilly put his mouth to the keyhole and said:

"I'm Willy Nilly. Who are you, out there? Won't you tell us?"

With Willy Nilly's knowledge of the language of all animals he felt that he would be able to recognize the voice.

Then Willy Nilly put his ear to the keyhole and the answer that came back made Willy Nilly roar with laughter.

"I'll let you right in," he said, and he opened the door.

When Top Notch and Rip and Christopher and the Ducks saw the creature they could hardly believe their eyes.

Black-Draught For Gas After Meals

"About five years ago, I suffered at my stomach quite a good deal," writes Mr. M. H. Venable, of Persia, Tenn. "I would smother, have a lot of gas, and bloat. A friend asked me why I didn't take Black-Draught. I took little doses after meals and my stomach trouble was over and has not come back. Now I only take a dose every once in a while."

SPORT PLANTS

The revival of the vogue for playing managers this year in point where at least eight of the total of sixteen will be full of part-time participants in the active chores, is not entirely due to the economical desire of the magnates to combine two jobs in one for 1934.

This is, of course, a factor to be considered when it is possible to invest a combination of duties in such able workmen as Bill Terry, Joe Cronin, Mickey Cochrane and Jimmy Wilson, the new-selected leader of the Phillies, but the trend in baseball pilots is also a logical application of accumulated talent.

The men now moving into positions of authority, where Connie Mack alone remains to occupy the patriarchal chair, are all products of post-war playing greatness. They form a new generation of leaders, yet to be fully tested but nevertheless well-equipped in experience and ability.

They represent the first major shift to the player-manager idea since Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, Christy Mathewson and Eddie Collins, to mention a few of the pre-war heroes, tried on the tozas of leaders in the closing stages of their careers.

Sophomore Group
The new class in big league managers, in effect, is a sophomore group, with eight pilots averaging only slightly over a year's experience apiece. The two backstops in the class, Mickey Cochrane and Jimmy Wilson, really classify as freshmen, since they have had no actual managerial experience.

They are counter-balanced by the relatively seasoned part-time leaders, Lew Fonseca, going into his third year with the White Sox, and Rogers Hornsby, beginning his first full season at the helm of the St. Louis Browns, but with about three years' combined managerial experience with the Boston Braves and Chicago Cubs behind him. Fonseca and Hornsby qualify as "player" managers only because they can step into the pinches with potent bats.

Bill Terry and Joe Cronin, last year's world series rivals, have had only one full season apiece, although Terry laid the groundwork for his success by succeeding John McGraw early in 1932.

Frankie Frisch, who replaced Gabby Street in charge of the Cardinals the latter part of 1933, and Charley Grimm, who was named Hornsby's successor late in the 1932 campaign, complete the list.

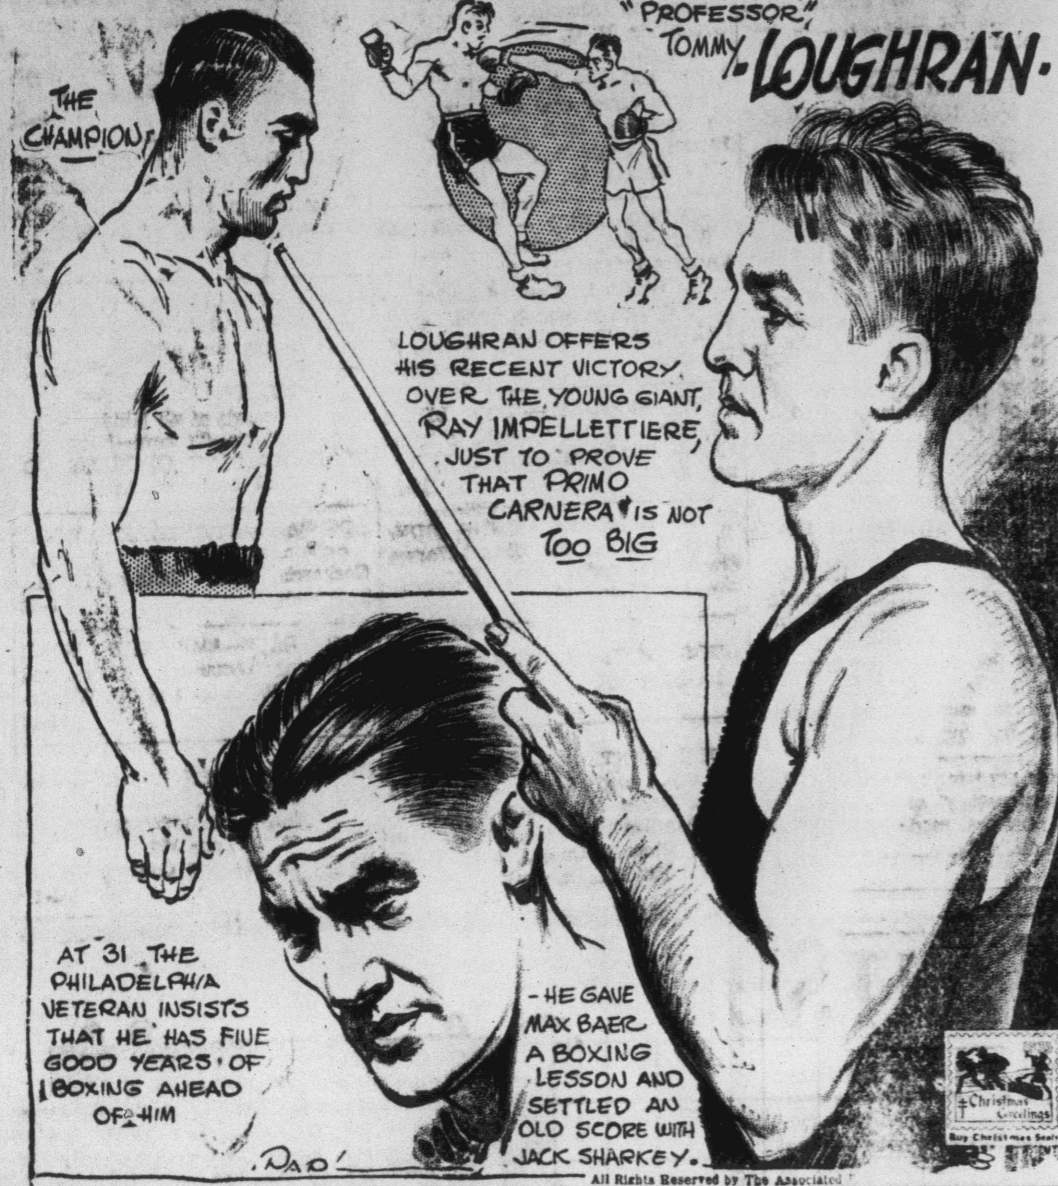

Age in Experience
Climax can be reached by the balance of power in the playing managers by adopting the new fashion, but not the weight of age.

Connie Mack's thirty-three years as manager of the Athletics, plus two previous seasons when he piloted the Pittsburgh Nationals, give the bench pilot a dominant margin. One of the youngest of the non-playing managers, Bucky Harris, newly installed in charge of the Red Sox, is entitled to a ten-year service stripe. Veterans like Joe McCarthy of the Yankees and Bill McKechnie of the Braves, his contract renewed for another five years, help run up the total so that the average span of experience for seven bench managers is around eight years.

Perhaps no figure in American college sports experienced a more poignant pang of feeling than Parke Hill Davis, Princeton, '33, upon reading the charge of Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace that our universities not only have failed to develop or produce leadership but that "our college life has expressed its vitality in such rackets as organized football."

To Mr. Davis, a giant of a man whose athletic experience and memories go back to the days of Heflinger and Muldoon, this must have seemed like the blow from a blunt instrument in the dark.

A lawyer in Easton, Pa., Mr. Davis has devoted much of a lifetime to the tabulation of football records and analysis of its history, following long service as a coach and rules-maker. He played and coached at Princeton. He founded football at Wisconsin. He originated a number of the standard regulations of the gridiron code. Now, as the game's more or less official historian, he has to his credit the authorship and compilation of an amazing amount of information.

Having all this in mind, and I say, Mr. Davis must have trembled with indignation, born of the knowledge that he has personally compiled page after page of the names of Presidents and Cabinet men, Congressmen and Senators, generals and admirals, governors and mayors, prelates and college presidents, figures high in the judiciary, finance and industry—all with a background of football playing experience of connection with the game.

"Our Racketeers"
I have seen this list many times. It has grown, of course, with the years and the increasing industry of research of Mr. Davis. I have another copy of it before me. Its customary heading of "Graduates of the Gridiron" is supplemented in pencil with the ironic words, "Our Racketeers."

The first name on the list is that of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who played tackle and fullback at Groton School and on informal class teams while he was studying at Harvard.

There follows the names of four other Presidents—Woodrow Wilson who coached football at Princeton and also Wesleyan; Calvin Coolidge, who helped coach one year at Amherst and is likewise identified as "informal counselor of Parke Davis"; Theodore Roosevelt, the elder, who was vitally interested in the reform of football rules in 1905; and Herbert Hoover, manager of the Stanford football team in 1894.

Great names fairly swarm over the remaining pages. It is impressive company and it seems, as Mr. Davis so consistently has pointed out to emphasize the qualities of leadership or ability stimulated by the greatest of college sports.

Big Men, All
Chief Justice Stone played guard at Amherst. The late Gen. Leonard Wood was a halfback at Georgia Tech. Senator George Wharton Pepper played in the Pennsylvania line. Former Ambassador Robert Bacon was a Harvard captain and halfback.

Vance McCormick, chairman of the war-time Trade Board, was captain and quarterback at Yale. Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, played guard for Old Eli. Secretary Denn was a captain and tackle at Nebraska. John Reed Kilpatrick, head of Madison Square Garden, was All-America end at Yale. Willie Weston, of Michigan, and Wally Steffen, of Chicago, other famous All-Americans, are judges.

Warden Humanizing Prison With Games

By HAMILTON FARON
Moundsville, W. Va., (AP)—The creed that "confidence begets confidence" is humanizing West Virginia's penitentiary and building up a new system of discipline.

Following in natural course are greater personal liberties for convicts and a happier spirit behind the ivy-clad walls reminiscent of a college rather than a prison.

Team Makes Road Trips
A football team that plays all of its games outside the penitentiary and is accompanied on road trips by a cheering section and a 40-piece band is the most spectacular of the many developments.

Back of the walls, psychology is rapidly replacing force as the accepted means of maintaining discipline.

Dr. McClintic says that generally convicts may be grouped into three classes, anti-social, mentally deficient and normal, each requiring different treatment.

Develops Normal Types
He calls for special attention to the normal types whom he terms "the hopeful group from the point of view of reform." It is from that group that the football team, the band and the cheering sections are recruited.

Likewise the normal group contributes most of the talent for the penitentiary's annual musical show. At least one member of the cast has attained professional recognition.

Scarcely consideration is being given to suggestions that the revue go on tour this year. The band is available for concerts on the road.

his efforts with those of his fellow. The first football team was made up solely of men who had previous college or high school gridiron experience. Team members are attained professional recognition.

As to interest in the revue—of the most disappointed inmates this year was a negro removed from the chorus because dancing slippers just aren't made in size 11.

Hopes To Stir Citizens
Explaining the unprecedented road trips by the band and the football teams, Dr. McClintic said: "It is a law of human nature that confidence begets confidence, so by showing that we have confidence in these boys we appeal so strongly to their sense of self-respect that they will go the limit to prove our confidence well founded."

Also, he says the tours are expected to "awaken the citizens from their lethargy that steps may be taken to provide for segregation of the three mental classes and for the social rehabilitation of the normal group." He advocates a penal farm for normal types.

OUTDOOR ICE BATH!
THIS 93-YEAR-OLD TAKES ONE DAILY
Melburn, Ky., (AP)—Hale and hearty at 93, Dr. J. T. Sutton, physician, attributes his longevity to roller skating, bicycle riding and a daily plunge into cold water, even if he has to break the ice.

An enthusiast for fresh air and outdoor living, he wears summer clothes in winter and sleeps with little cover, even in the coldest weather.

Most every morning finds him astride his cycle for a jaunt into the country or skating with children of the neighborhood. His daily math is taken in a barrel outdoors with nothing to break the chilling sweep of winter winds.

Dr. Sutton was a surgeon in the Confederate Army.

IOWA STATE GOING GREAT!
CONTRAST IS WHAT COUNTS
Ames, Ia., (AP)—Maybe a three-year football percentage of 47.8 isn't exactly setting the grid world on fire, but it seems pretty good to Iowa State College fans.

A debate on the war debt broke out in the Senate when Senator Clark of Missouri, offered an amendment to the House liquor bill to place excise taxes a certain per cent on liquors from nations behind in war debt payments to this country.

The Senate was acquainted with the fact that Mr. Roosevelt plans soon to ask $1,166,000,000 additional to carry the emergency program from now until June. This is in line with his budget message.

With railroad legislation due for debate, it became known today that the President favors establishment by the railroads of sinking funds to pay off their tremendous mortgage indebtedness.

Committees of both Senate and House collected reams of evidence on parried questions including the administration of the postoffice department under Walter Brown prior to March 4, and the Sanders-Kemp contest for a House seat.

Ask Smaller Sum For Federal Offices Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—(AP)—The Appropriations Committee asked the House today to appropriate $566,435,000 to finance sixteen independent Federal agencies for the next fiscal year.

It appended to the independent office appropriations bill provisions to extend the economy act estimating that this would result in savings of $160,000,000 in the whole budget year.

Quietest Dresser's Suit Is "Loud" By HOWARD BLAKESLEE (Associate Press Service Editor) Cambridge, Mass.—(AP)—The fact that a suit of clothes creaks with every movement of the body is revealed by a super-sound detector at the Harvard University physics laboratory.

When this super-sound listener is turned on in a room perfectly quiet to the ear, the air is filled with noises. They are super-sounds, air waves vibrating at 20,000 or more a second, too high to be audible to the human ear.

Silence Is Its "Racket" The noises arise apparently from every kind of motion, however slight, and are super-sounds the creaking of a good suit of clothes is among the noisiest.

"Grrump," goes the racket of the flaxing fabric and keeps up this sound as long as the arm is in motion. Light a match, and above the soft flare which is audible to the ear the super-sound instrument picks up another noise resembling the distant rumble of a street-car.

Rubbing the palms of the hands together emits a stream of these sounds. Tearing a piece of paper sounds like a far-off machine gun-fire.

Sh-h! Quiet, Please A roomful of men trying to remain entire quiet registers on the super-sound device like the noises of a herd of elephants.

This detector, designed by Dr. G. W. Pierce, Rumford professor of physics, in part of an extensive investigation of super-sounds. In the air these inaudible waves travel farther than ordinary sounds. They also are transmitted by the other substances which carry normal sound, suggesting possible uses for signalling. In water they can be heard nearly ten miles.

Music Transmission Possible Music can be transmitted over a specially arranged super-sound beam. For this, Dr. Pierce uses the inaudible sound of a Galton whistle, which sends out vibrations at the rate of about 25,000 a second. When the listening device is tuned to the whistle it makes a high, clear note.

But when a phonograph record is connected electrically with the whistle, the clear note modulates to carry faithfully ever variation in sound of a full orchestra.

These modulations are all in super-sound frequencies, so that the music cannot be heard except when the listening device is cut in to receive the whistle and reduce its high frequencies to the audible range.

By cutting nine miles from the highway between San Francisco and Los Angeles the highway department eliminated 539 curves.

Washington, N. C., Jan. 10.—(AP)—The Amarillo College Badgers, State Junior College gridiron champions, really covered some ground in playing their 1933 schedule.

For seven games away from home the Badgers traveled an average of more than 800 miles—a mileage total comparable to that covered by the Columbia Lions in going across the continent to the Rose Bowl and back to New York.

The round trip to Beaumont to play Lamar College in the semifinals totaled 1,466 miles. The Badgers added 1,170 miles more to play Marshall College for the championship.

Washington, N. C., Jan. 10.—Judgments in the case of Harry Wescott, John Small school principal, charged with "excessive assaulting" Joe Wells, nine-year-old pupil enrolled at the school, was deferred by Judge John A. Mayo, presiding at the Tuesday Recorder's Court session, until Friday morning.

Judge Mayo, following the hearing of the case which was concluded after 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, ordered that the principal, together with the Wells boys' father, appear before him on Friday morning of this week at which time the decision relative to the judgment would be announced.

According to the evidence brought out during the hearing of the case, Wescott, using a leather strap, injured the boy when administering punishment for the suspected larceny of a knife.

Burlington, N. C., Jan. 10.—L. C. Williams, manager of the local re-employment office, planned to tighten the administration strings today to prevent abuses which he has observed in a number of instances.

Mr. Williams said that it has come to his attention that in a number of cases people have quit jobs to register for CWA jobs in the hope of getting something better. The purpose of the plan is defeated, he said, when those already employed seek to change.

UNEMPLOYED MAN TURNS TO TRAPPING

Wilson, N. C., Jan. 10.—J. T. Wallston, residing near the Wilson County Club, failing to find employment at one thing, invariably tries something else. Rather than sit down and hold his hands, concluded to try his luck at trapping.

Beginning December 1 and continuing through the month, he set traps in Wiggin's mill pond and caught two hundred muskrats, three minks, and three coons. Their pelts sold for a total of $146.75. The muskrat skins brought $1.25, the minks $18, and the coon skins $3.75.
