War Department Secret Brought Into The "Open"

REVEAL PLAN FOR MOBILIZING U. S. INDUSTRY

Assistant Secretary Woodring Declares Emergency Agencies Closely Resemble Contemplated Setup For Industrial Mobilization; Congress To Attempt To Get National Defense Secrets

Washington, Jan. 25.—(AP)—One of the War department's semi-secrets was brought partially into the open today with a statement by Assistant Secretary Woodring that President Roosevelt's creation of emergency agencies closely resembled the early contemplated setup for industrial mobilization.

Woodring's prepared address before the Women's Patriotic conference on National Defense by coincidence followed the disclosure of a move on Capitol Hill of have the army and navy take congress into their confidence on secret plans for defending the nation in case of attack.

Chairman McSwain, of the House Military committee, plans to ask the committee today to give a preferred status to his resolution for a survey by congress of the defense system. He explained it was the constitutional duty of congress to maintain a suitable army and navy but that without more insight into official secrets legislators could not know whether they were doing their duty.

LUMBER PLANT IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

Wilson, Jan. 25.—The lumber and wood working plant of the Williams Lumber Company in South Wilson was badly damaged by fire Tuesday night.

Not only was the building badly injured but the large number of wood working machines, and the stock of timber in process of manipulation was damaged by fire and water. Mr. Williams is uncertain as to what the loss will be, but thinks it will be around $40,000 with about half enough insurance to cover.

Three alarms were sent in. The first at 10:30, the second at one o'clock and the third at 5 o'clock yesterday morning.

The fire is supposed to have started in a hot box around a planer on the lower floor and was put on the firemen thought, but later on in the night the top of the plant which is built of wood, was found to be covered in flames, and it is presumed that it crept up the many conveyors which carry the shavings to the boiler room where they feed the big boilers that furnish steam for the engines.

Columbus, Ohio.—(AP)—Many an architect has dreamed of the day when a 175-story skyscraper would be a reality, but a Columbus restaurant worker has spent 972 hours designing one!

His design, which he calls "NRA Landing Towers," would cover an area six square blocks. It would be topped by airplane landing fields and a dirigible mooring masts.

House Rules Committee to Confer on Negroes Being Barred From House Cafe

Washington, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The delicate question facing the house—will negroes be allowed to eat in its restaurants?—today was tangled in parliamentary procedure and far from settled.

Oscar DePriest, negro Republican from Illinois, started to bring the question before the house yesterday but at the request of Speaker Rainey decided to delay until after a conference tomorrow with the Republican Leader Snell of New York.

DePriest had before the rules committee today a resolution for a committee to determine by what authority Chairman Warren, of N. C., of the accounts committee, barred negroes from the house restaurant. Chairman Pugh, of the rules committee, is a fellow chairman of Warren.

CWA PAYROLL BOOSTED HERE

Longer Hours For Supervisors and Timekeepers Increase Fund

The Civil Works Administration payroll in this county, which was drastically reduced by a recent government order cutting the number of hours of work of the various workers, was given a slight boost today by another order received from Raleigh by K. T. Futrell, local CWA director.

Mr. Futrell stated the new order provides that supervisors and timekeepers on the various projects throughout the county be allowed to work 30 hours instead of 24, as recently ordered. This, it was said, will result in an increase of about $300 in the entire payroll this week.

The payroll this week will be around $12,500. Mr. Futrell said, as against approximately $15,000 the previous week.

CARSON WILL FACE TRIAL HERE FRIDAY

True Bill Returned Against Slayer of E. L. Simons at Bethel Last Year

Allan Carson, 25-year-old Bethel filling station operator, was scheduled to go on trial for his life in criminal court here tomorrow, charged with the slaying of E. L. Simons, at Bethel, the middle of last November.

The grand jury returned a true bill in the case yesterday, and Carson, who has been at liberty under bond since a few days after the slaying, was ordered to appear for trial Friday.

The killing, said to have been the outgrowth of ill feeling over a bad check for 88 cents which Simons gave to the filling station operator, took place at Carson's station and in the presence of his father, who is night policeman of Bethel.

According to information made public by officers, shortly after the slaying, Simons, in company with Policeman Carson, went to the filling station in an effort to settle for the check. When they arrived at the station, Policeman Carson was said to have told Simons to remain on the outside while he went into the building to see about the matter.

Instead of doing as he was told, Simons followed the policeman into the building and was allegedly shot down by Carson in an ensuing argument. He staggered to the front of the station and dropped dead.

Carson was immediately taken into custody but was later released under bond.

Simons was the son-in-law of Chief of Police Martin of Bethel.

BIG CROWDS AT REVIVAL

Interest Increasing In Pentecostal Series of Services In Progress Here

Interest in the revival now in progress at the Pentecostal Holiness Church continues to grow, and the attendance is increasing each evening.

Rev. Paul F. Beacham, president of the Holmes Bible and Missionary Institute, in Greenville, S. C., also pastor of the Holmes Memorial Church in that city, is the visiting minister.

"The Product of the Heavenly Wisdom," was the subject of the sermon last night. Mr. Beacham used the definition or description of the wisdom which comes down from above given in James 3:17 to illustrate and enforce his message.

The minister declared: "All of the features attributed to this heavenly wisdom constitute the elements of the character of a thorough Christian. There are six positive qualities and two negatives which make a well rounded out Christian. This wisdom is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, easy to be entreated, full of mercy, and good fruits; but it is utterly void of partiality and hypocrisy. The sympathetic consideration and active benevolence of the true followers of Jesus Christ, is for all men without respect of persons and he does not need a false face. He would be glad for even an enemy to see all in his heart, for there is only peace and good will toward all men."

It is desired by the pastor, Rev. John W. Berry and the entire church that the community take advantage of these services which will continue only one week. A hearty welcome and blessing awaits you.

BALLISTIC EXPERT IN AYERS CASE

The fate of Heber Ayers, 30-year-old Greenville township man, on trial for his life in criminal court here today for the alleged slaying of Floyd Cox, on the old Stokes road during the latter part of December, apparently hung on the testimony of Lieut. Fowler, ballistic expert of Washington, D. C., who remained on the witness stand this morning and part of the afternoon.

It was Fowler who reported that two bullets taken from the body of Cox, who was believed slain for over $100 in cash he was said to have had in his pockets at the time of his death, were fired from the pistol allegedly found in possession of Ayres when he was taken into custody by Sheriff Whitehurst shortly after the slaying.

Lieut. Fowler demonstrated the methods used by his department in checking up on projectiles fired from pistols, and gave an actual demonstration before the jury, this afternoon shortly after court reconvened from the noon recess.

The order for the demonstration was issued by Judge Frank A. Daniels to establish whether or not Fowler could make good his contention that bullets fired from all guns had different markings.

Bullets were fired from two guns in full view of the jury and then Fowler was to report to the court the result of his test during the afternoon.

The case which was begun yesterday morning, promised to consume the rest of the afternoon and the greater part of tomorrow. In fact, the state was not expected to rest until late this afternoon when the defense will begin the introduction of evidence.

Two important witnesses examined yesterday afternoon were Miss Della Everett, sweetheart of the slain man, and Sheriff Sam Whitehurst, who conducted the investigation.

The vessel exploded and sank a few minutes after the blast. Only 34 persons escaped.

FIRE CLAIMS THREE LIVES NEAR STOKES

Negro Children Perish In Flames Which Destroy Home of Cora Roberson

Three negroes, children of Cora Roberson, were burned to death when they were trapped by flames which destroyed their home near Stokes last night about 12 o'clock. It was revealed today by M. H. Whichard, on whose farm the building was located.

The blaze, believed to have been of incendiary origin, was being investigated by officers today, and it was indicated arrests might take place during the day.

The three victims, J. R., 16; Curtis, 14, and Louise, 9, were believed to have been overcome by smoke as they slept in the attic of the home. The bodies were found lying near a window through which another member of the family jumped to safety.

Mr. Whichard said ten people were sleeping in the building, four in the attic and six on the first floor, but all managed to escape except the three in the attic, who were believed to have been so suffocated when awakened that they were unable to get further than the window where they collapsed. Another girl reported sleeping on the same floor escaped by jumping through a window.

Mr. Whichard said the fire was believed to have originated in the dining-room and that both this room and the kitchen were ablaze when he saw the flames from his home a short distance away.

He said he rushed to the house and awakened members of the family on the first floor in time for them to make their way to safety. The mother, frantic when the three children trapped on the second floor failed to escape, attempted to rush into the flaming building, but was checked by neighbors who rushed to the scene and attempted in the rescue.

The entire building was destroyed at a cost of several hundred dollars.

It was understood the three children would be buried in a single grave near the scene of the tragedy sometime today.

C. W. HOWARD NAMED HEAD LEAF BOARD

Other Officers of Tobacco Board of Trade Elected at Annual Meeting

C. W. Howard, president of the Greenville Tobacco Company, was elected president of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade at the annual meeting of the organization at Person-Garrett tobacco factory this morning. He succeeds R. M. Garrett, who served for two years.

Other officers elected were R. C. Stokes, vice-president; H. A. Bost, secretary; and K. W. Cobb, supervisor and treasurer.

The new president has been prominently identified with the local market for the last several years, and his choice as head of the organization was received with interest.

The market made great progress during the two years' administration of Mr. Garrett, leading all other markets of the belt in the sale of the greatest crop produced in this section of the country. He was highly commended by board members for the effort he displayed in the development of the market, the largest bright leaf sales center in the world.

Mr. Stokes is buying manager for the American Supplies, Inc., and has been connected with the market for a number of years.

Mr. Bost has served the board for the last four years, and has been in the thick of the fight to keep the market at the front of the great industry.

Mr. Cobb has been supervisor of sales and treasurer for the last twelve years and it was due largely to his direction of publicity campaigns from year to year, backed by the splendid service of the market, that sales and prices here have been able to remain in the forefront of all bright leaf sales centers.

Selection of officers was the only matter considered by the board today.

A wild boar weighing about 400 pounds was killed by a hunter in the San Jacinto Mountains at Beaumont, Calif.

NEGRO RAPIST WANTS BODY BROUGHT HOME

Jim Green Tells Officer He Wants to be Buried in Pitt After Electrocution

Expressing a desire that his body be brought back to Pitt County for burial, Jim Greene, negro rapist, was placed behind the bars on Death Row at State Prison in Raleigh yesterday.

Green, who was sentenced to the electric chair in Criminal Court here Tuesday for criminally attacking Miss Marie House, sixteen-year-old Greenville young woman, made his final request to Preston Pierce, who delivered the negro to the warden at the State Penitentiary about noon.

Pierce also said Green, who is scheduled to die April 25 between the hours of 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., made a second confession of one of the most revolting crimes in the annals of the county.

The first confession was made to Sheriff Whitehurst and other officers shortly after Green was taken into custody near Black Jack. Pierce said the admission yesterday was identical with the first one.

Green was found guilty by a jury in criminal court about 5:40 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and Judge Daniels immediately sentenced him to death in the electric chair.

NEGRO HELD IN RUM CASE

Willis Little Bound Over to Superior Court For Prohibition Violation

Willis Little, colored, described by police as a "walking blind tiger," was being held in the county jail today for Superior court action on a charge of violating the prohibition law.

He was taken into custody on First street Tuesday by Policeman Brewer. The officer said he found about a quart of whiskey in possession of the negro.

Given hearing in police court yesterday, Little was bound over to Superior court. He was unable to give bond and was transferred from the city jail to the county jail to await final court action.

The Colusa County, Cal., rice crop for 1933 was valued at $1,141,000, which was an increase of $560,000 over 1932.

FINDS MANY OFFICERS IN LAW BUSINESS

New List Of National Committeemen Expected To Contain Number New Names When Check Is Complete; Action Taken At Suggestion Of President Roosevelt To Determine Status Of Men Holding Office

Washington, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Postmaster General Farley quietly engaged at the president's order in reorganizing the Democratic national committee today had before him a committee list showing about a score of members who hold either appointive or elective offices or have been practicing law here.

Quietly the Democratic chairman has been placing figurative pencil marks down the list either approving or disapproving all memberships. Eight vacancies now exist on the committee, some through resignation. Other resignations are expected.

Most of the committee members holding public office are checked almost automatically by Farley as far outside the limitation as set by Mr. Roosevelt. Recently the President spoke against the practice of appointing members having law offices here. It appeared probable today that an entire official line-up would be named by Farley showing many of the names now on the committee but also many new ones.

Farley himself has indicated that when he can be spared from the National Committee he would like to devote his entire time to Postmaster General.

Long before the Roosevelt expression of displeasure came, O. Max Gardner, committeeman from North Carolina, resigned and started the ball to rolling. He told the President he felt he could not retain membership while conducting law cases against the government here.

JUROR BRANDS NEGRO AS PURSE-SNATCHER

Greensboro, Jan. 24.—The Guilford court saw an unusual spectacle yesterday when Dale Pledge, juror, rose in the box and pointed to James Coleman, negro, on trial for practicing the badger game and declared:

"I know that fellow; I saw him snatch a negro woman's purse three weeks ago."

Pledge had previously gone through the routine of saying he did not know the defendant. A retrial was ordered and Coleman was at once tried over again. He got four years in state's prison after admitting that he had committed robberies in four or five cities.

GIVE IT TIME TO HATCH

As pointed out by the Pathfinder, those who have been criticizing the NRA would do well to give the egg time to hatch. Large eggs, the magazine points out, take longer to hatch than small ones and certainly the NRA is one of the large and important eggs in the nest of plans for economic recovery of the country. Don't be like the little child that wants to push the hen off the nest to look at and shake the eggs during the process of incubation, thereby spoiling the whole thing, the Pathfinder warns. Recovery plans in this country are now in the process of incubation and if given time the final hatch will no doubt be recovery for our nation.

Those who are criticizing the NRA because recovery is not coming as fast as they think it should would do well not to upset the whole scheme by tampering with the nest before the period of incubation has passed.

LASSING OUT RUINS A PROMISING COWBOY

Fort Pierce, Fla.—(AP)—The cowboy business just about brought death to Paul Collins, aged ten, and henceforth some other fellows will have to perpetuate traditions of the old West.
 Stationed by the highway, the youngster lassoed everything that came in sight, including an automobile.
 His rope was tied around his wrist and when the loop caught the bumper of the passing car Paul was jerked off his feet and away he went.
 The injuries were superficial, and Cowboy Collins was able to limp home, but he left his lasso behind.

NEW 'AUTO' DEVICE KILLS OFF HOPPERS BY ELECTROCUTION

Mandan, N. D.—(AP)—A lot of grasshoppers in this section are doomed to death by electrocution.
 The lethal device invented by Clinton Martensen of nearby Ryder, consists chiefly of closely woven wires mounted on a frame placed on the front end of an automobile.
 The wires are charged with electricity taken from the generator or battery, and the hoppers go to their deaths as they hit the wires.
 Driving a car through an infested field, Martensen has dealt out instant death to thousands of the pests.

BLOND GODDESS
 A New Serial by Herbert Jensen

Chapter 15
LANGTON AGAIN
FINALLY Janice got Winslow on the wire.
 "Spin," she said breathlessly. "It's about Frank. He was here and —"
 "You mauled him plenty. He came to see me," Winslow's voice was remote, faintly accusing. "Frank's a swell guy. He's not like us. He can't take it... yet. You shouldn't have —"
 "Oh, Spin, I know! I know! I've tried to get him on the phone, but he's out or won't answer. I don't know what to do. I think I'm in love — I like him very much. I —"
 She heard Winslow's disgusted snort. He said in an even voice that was dimly bitter, "You don't know how you feel. You haven't got a legitimate emotion; with you it comes in cans. It's your mess. I hope you love him. I hope somehow he marries you. And then I hope he'll beat hell out of you!"
 She heard the receiver slam. Tears sprang to her eyes. She threw herself on the chaise longue and sobbed. It was two o'clock in the morning when she made her last call. There was no answer.
 In complete exhaustion she fell asleep at last upon the chaise longue. Her final impression was the shadow of her guard who patrolled the lawn — her employer's insurance that his star would not be molested.

FRANK had walked aimlessly away from Janice Kent's house with no particular destination in mind. He was sorely hurt and bewildered. All that old basic shyness that had been — before he knew Janice — knit in his attitude toward women, had returned in full effect.
 Until this moment the relation of the sexes had seemed very simple and uncomplicated. Women had certain outstanding characteristics: love of home and of children; they were gentle and dependent. One asked the girl he loved to marry him, and she accepted or declined; that was all.
 He knew she loved Janice; he believed that she returned this emotion at least in part. The test had failed; to him there was no recourse.
 His walk brought him near Spin Winslow's place. He saw the stunt flyer for a brief interval. At first he made no reference to Janice. He simply told his friend that he was going away; he was going to prowling about on his own account to see if he could discover what had really happened to Bill Langton.
 But Spin was not deceived. "If at first you don't succeed," he said quizzically, "take another slap on the snout. You get used —"
 Frank's face flushed a dull red. He could not prevent the unconscious jerking of his hand toward his cheek.
 The flyer whistled softly. "Sorry, old man," he said gently. "Didn't mean — I'm a clumsy fool."
 It didn't matter, Frank told him in a dull voice. He'd just asked Janice to marry him and she had refused him.
 "I came to tell you I'm going away, Spin. I can't stick it out. Yellow, maybe; but I can't take this sort of a beating. I couldn't work on the set with her for months — seeing her, talking with her, thinking about her..."
 He took up his hat and walked to the door. "So long, Spin. Explain to Myberg I'm called south. Happy landings."
 Later he found himself walking deserted streets. He was unconscious of time. In the froth of his memory were dim jungle paths, mental scenes of warm-washed beaches spotted with lavender shadows of leaning coco-palms. Finally he went to his apartment.
 It was very late. He lay down on his bed without troubling to undress. He would wait for daylight. Closing his eyes he hoped to conjure up thoughts of salt on his lips, and that he sailed over warm seas into tropic dusk.
 But Janice's face smiled at him. She was in his arms. He caught the fragrance of her hair; he tasted the daintiness of her lips.
 With a smothered curse he sat upright.
 He packed his trunk and his bag. The sun was an hour over the horizon when he phoned for a taxi. By ten he was installed in a Pullman compartment of the train the man in the ticket office had told him made the best connection at Laredo for Vera Cruz.

 By his side was a sheaf of newspapers, most of which contained press despatches of transcripts from the Hydrographic Bulletin, published at Washington, D. C. The transcript was what later became known to the world as the famous Langton Bottle Paper.

Bottles containing data to aid in the determination of and to add to the knowledge of current drifts were thrown overboard and recovered as follows:
 First position not given. Recovered on January 2, 1934, at center of sand bank East Triangle, off the coast of Yucatan, Mexico, in (approximately) lat. 20° 55' N., long. 92° 13' West. Paper in bad condition from sea water. Fragments believed to be in the handwriting of William Langton.
 The writing (said the papers) had been definitely established as Langton's. Upon further examination of the document the belief was expressed that the pigment used in the writing was human blood. This fact was to be confirmed by laboratory analysis.
 The bottle itself — an ordinary "pop" bottle — seemed to indicate to some that the paper was a hoax — a tragic hoax, if true.
 However it was pointed out that the bottle and the beverage it contained was largely exported, particularly into South American countries and that it would not have been unusual for Langton to have taken a supply with him when he began that ill-fated flight. Further, handwriting experts denied any possibility of a hoax.
 The paper itself was a torn-open cablegram envelope. No address appeared on the reverse side. Langton may have carried a supply with him on the plane.
 The message — what could be deciphered — was meager. The first portion was fairly legible; it told that bearings had been lost about a hundred miles south of Belize in British Honduras. It referred to the hurricane, and of his attempt to make Belize for a landing.
 The legibility faded swiftly here. The word "native" was made out. And startlingly vivid, almost as if the emotion of the writer had been concentrated in those four words was the fragment, "I die tomorrow morning."

SINCE the general theory appeared to be that Langton had gone down at sea; since it was concluded that the message had been written with a splinter and blood from a wound, this was interpreted to mean that Langton had hoped that some native craft would pick him up, and that by estimating the rate at which his wreckage was sinking he would die by "tomorrow morning."
 Frank Grahame put down the paper he was reading and gazed out at the countryside flashing by. To him that interpretation made no sense. No one in the middle of a storm lashed ocean, hanging on to what was left of an aeroplane could possibly figure with any accuracy a rate of sinking, even had that person — assumed to be wounded and desperate — thought of it in the first place.
 He recalled his own theory: that Langton had gone down in the jungle back of the coast. It was puzzling, he admitted to himself, that the drift bottle had been picked out of the sea beyond the north coast of Yucatan; yet supposing that it had floated around from the east coast, Langton could not possibly have set the bottle adrift down some interior point since that coast had no rivers! Still, maps of that coast were known to be inaccurate. The country was little explored. Perhaps there was a river or two that topographers had missed — if a topographer had ever been there. Frank thought not.
 Once in the smoking room of a "banana boat" enroute to Havana, Frank had talked with an unnaturally tanned young man with a nervous manner. Later, when remembering the incident, he suspected that the young man traveled in an official capacity of some sort, — probably a Navy gum-shoe, or, to be more exact, a Department of Justice operative.
 This gentleman whose eyes looked tired behind his bleached eyelashes had said something about Quintana Roo — about natives who perched in tree-forks above the trails, with their throwing sticks ready, and whose only agreeable trait was patience.
 He said that he knew of only one white man who had been through that particular strip, that lies between Merida, the capital of Yucatan, and Puerto Morelos on the coast opposite the island of Cozumel.
 (Copyright, 1934, by Herbert Jensen)

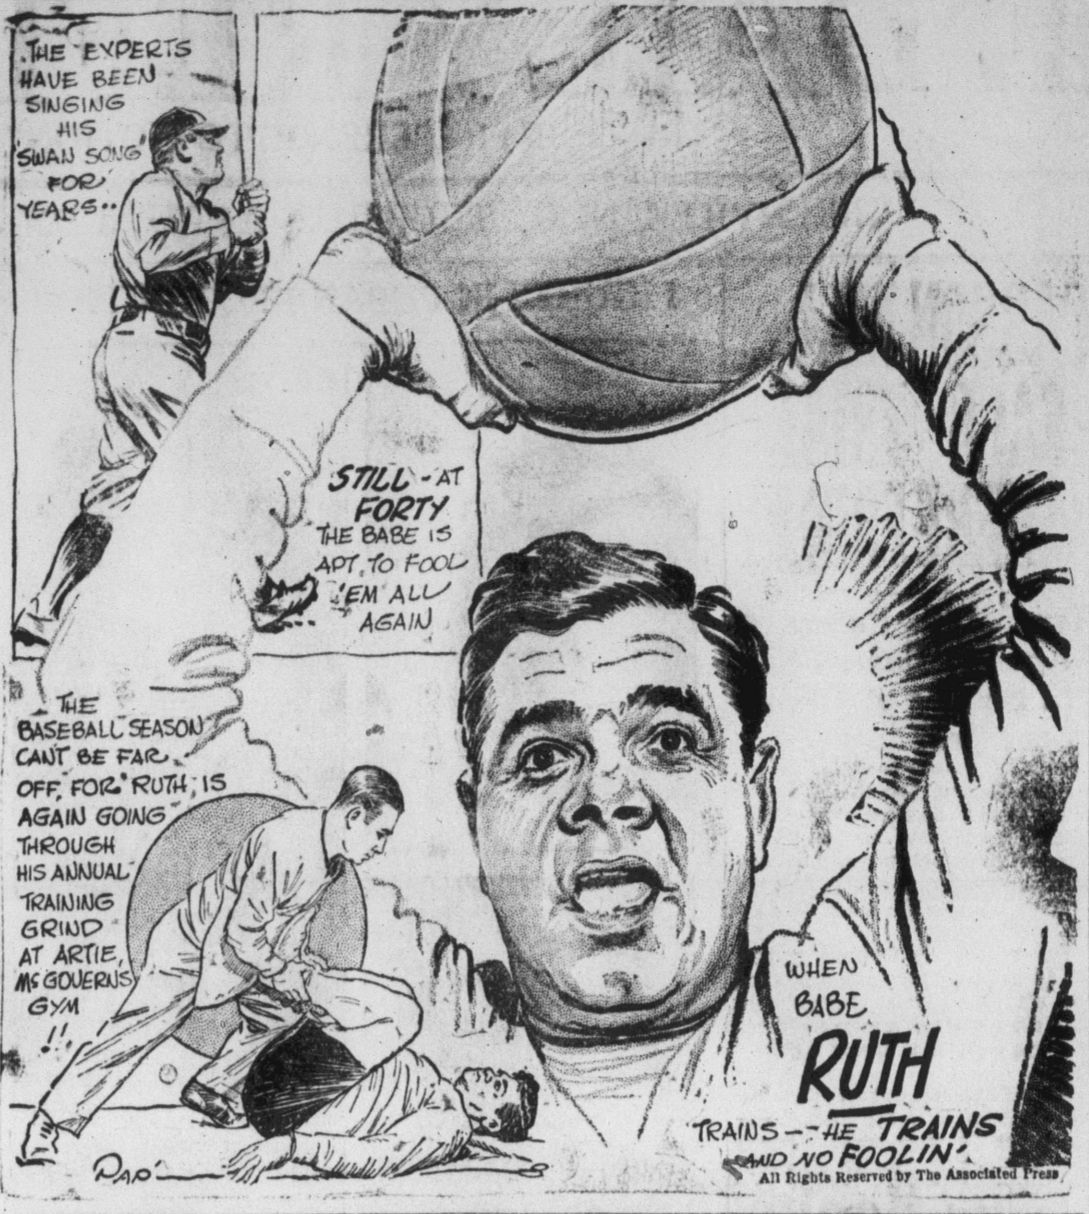

Tomorrow, Frank jumps off into the unknown.

Coroner D. W. Biggs and Sheriff P. S. Kornegay, called to the scene, summoned a jury to view the body and will resume the inquest today at 10 a. m. at the home of Willis Jacobs. Cummings, arrested by Policeman Norman McRaine, of Red Springs, was drunk and said he knew nothing of the shooting.
 E. J. Cook, of Holdenville, Okla., caught a snapping turtle weighing 87 pounds on an ordinary hook and line.

RALEIGH HIGH PLAYS LOCALS HERE TONIGHT

The local hiffs will have as their opponents for tonight's basketball attraction, the strong quint from Raleigh High School. The game starts at 7:30 o'clock.

Raleigh has lost only to Durham this year, 23-11. Last week they defeated Wilmington 23-7. The latter lost to Rocky Mount, 21-18. This comparison indicates the strength of the team that Greenville facts tonight.

The locals have defeated New Bern, Washington and Kinston. In doing so they presented a stalwart defense, but lacked offensive strength. If Raleigh is to be defeated tonight, then a vast improvement must be made in this.

Reports coming from Raleigh indicate that they have their best team in three years. They have three regulars from last year's first team. In Chappell they have one of the finest guards in High School ball in the State. Goodwin, their 6-2 center, was captain of football, and is reported to have adapted himself quite well to the cage game. In Holding, they have one of the State's best forwards. Andrews and Page round out their starting team.

In the Kinston game Coach Hewlett used a new combination. This quietest showed fine defensive play, but bore offense is needed. So tonight's line-up will be again shifted.

The starting line-ups as announced by Coach Gregson, of Raleigh, and Howlett, of Greenville, are:

HUGE LIQUOR FACTORY FOUND NEAR EDENTON

Edenton, N. C., Jan. 25.—A giant liquor factory was demolished with dynamite and axes by Federal and local officers eight miles from Edenton Sunday afternoon. The plant was running full blast, but theologians escaped.

The still had a steam rig with a ten-horsepower boiler and a system where seventy-five gallons of raw whiskey could be distilled per hour. It was located in the woods on the Indian Trail road. Besides the still itself, many barrels of raw material were destroyed and fifty-eight jugs of whiskey. It was one of the largest stills destroyed in Chowan County for many years.

GIVEN SIXTY DAYS FOR SELLING RUM TO BOY

Smithfield, N. C., Jan. 24.—Bootleggers are going to fare badly if the practice of selling liquor to young boys continues, as was evidenced in the trial in the Recorder's Court Tuesday when Willie Hill, a 47-year-old farmer of the Sanders' Chapel section, was convicted of selling liquor to Wilton Pace, 17-year-old son of W. M. Pace.

The defendant was sentenced to serve sixty days on the roads and an earnest appeal by the defendant's counsel failed to save him from the sentence.

HIGH GIRLS TO TAKE ON ELIZ. CITY

The local high school girl tossers will display their wares to the home folks in their initial home game of the season, Friday night at 7:30 in the high school auditorium.

Elizabeth City is the invading foe, and reports coming from there indicate that they are good.

The locals have played Rocky Mount and Washington. They were defeated by the former 29-23, and by Washington 23-12. However, in both games, they played great second half ball, and with hard work in their last game they are in great shape for the game and the fans will see a fine girls' team in action. They play good, fast basket-ball and fans who do not enjoy girls' games should turn out to see this team in action.

Miss Langston, of the high school faculty, has worked hard and has done a great piece of work in developing green material into a formidable aggregation. Every one should turn out and give their team support Friday night.

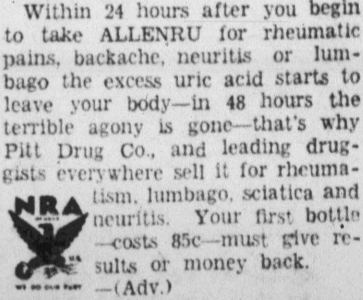

CAKE OR CUSTARD DONE? SIMPLE TESTS TELL YOU

To test a baked custard spear it with a knife. If the knife is clean the custard is ready to be taken out of the oven. To see whether a cake is done, take a bristle out of the broom (thoroughly cleaning it with boiling water). Then dry the bristle and put it in the cake. If the cake sticks to it, let the baking continue; but if not, you know the cake is ready.

RHEUMATISM CRIPPLES HIM NO MORE

Off to work goes Father — mother laughs with joy — the kids are happy and no wonder.

Three weeks ago he was nearly a cripple — the piercing rheumatic pains, backache, neuritis or lumbago the excess uric acid starts to leave your body — in 48 hours the terrible agony is gone — that's why Pitt Drug Co., and leading druggists everywhere sell it for rheumatism, a tism, lumbago, sciatica and neuritis. Your first bottle — costs 85c — must give results or money back.

CHILEAN NITRATE WAS FIRST USED BY SOUTHERN FARMERS WHEN ANDREW JACKSON (OLD HICKORY) WAS PRESIDENT (1829-1837)

Fascinating Facts of NATURE

In the shadow of the Andes Mountains, Nature stored the world's supply of Chilean Natural Nitrate.

Nature is your friend. She made your land. She makes your seeds. She created the three plant foods that are the sinew of farming in the South — potash, phosphate, CHILEAN NATURAL NITRATE, the one and only natural nitrate fertilizer.

"HAS IT GOT IMPURITIES?"

Chilean NATURAL NITRATE

CHILEAN NITRATE IS ONE OF FEW THINGS IN THE WORLD THAT EXCELS BECAUSE OF ITS IMPURITIES. REASON — "IMPURITIES" SUCH AS IODINE, POTASSIUM, SODIUM, CALCIUM, BORON, MAGNESIUM ARE NATURAL PLANT FOODS IN THEMSELVES.

The only nitrogen that comes from the ground.

Among the features that follow the Uncle Remus Stories on the program to be presented at East Carolina Teachers College, on next Monday, matinee and night, by the Tony Sarg Marionettes, will be a dance, a band, and several other skits. There are many puppet shows now throughout the country, but none that can take the place of Tony Sarg's, and there is just one company of his. As much care is taken in the selection and training of the puppeteers as in the designing, making, and costuming of the puppets. The same man has been in charge of the company of dolls and people for the fifteen years they have been delighting the public.

RELIEF WORKER HELD ON WHISKEY CHARGE

Smithfield, Jan. 25.—(AP)—A new field for making contacts with those desiring to buy liquor was unfolded before the recorder's court Wednesday, when Henry Jernigan, a white man who lives in Selma, was placed upon trial charged with the illegal possession of liquor. The defendant was adjudged guilty, and being unable to pay a fine of $25 and the costs, he was sentenced to serve 60 days upon the roads, from which judgment he appealed to the Superior Court.

This defendant, a one-armed man, has been at work with the relief forces around Selma, and the officers charged that the defendant worked with and made the acquaintance of men disposed to drink during the work hours of the day and at nights he trafficked in liquor.

ALLEGED MURDERER TRIES TO KILL SELF

Greensboro, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Rush Winfrey, facing trial today for the murder of Paul Young, last night tried suicide in his jail cell in the county building by slashing his throat and left wrist with a razor blade. He was reported in serious condition today, but is given fair chance to recover.

A special venire of 50 had been called for today for selection of a trial jury. The court, however, had to order the case continued.

New Books

By JOHN SELBY

New York—Michel Corday's "The Paris Front" seems important for a curious reason. It is a war book, but it is written by a Frenchman who was middle-aged when the war broke out, and was stayed at home and thought instead of going into the trenches to bleed.

It really is not a book at all, but a literal transcription of M. Corday's diary, in which he set down day by day what the people at home were doing and thinking about the war.

M. Corday was not a pacifist, but he was not a killer. He knew many important people, and put into his diary their reactions as well as his own. One of them, Clemenceau, figure rather badly in the book.

All in all, "The Paris Front" completes the picture of wartime France as perhaps no other book could.

A Boat

To the landsman, and perhaps to most sailors, Erling Tembs' decision to sail round the world in a 40-foot boat seems foolhardy—because when Mr. Tembs was ready to start he did not have even a sextant!

He is a Norwegian novelist, had bought his pilot cutter with the royalties from a novel.

Before he was out of the North Sea he and his wife were almost wrecked. The English Channel brought two more narrow escapes. In the Canary Islands their first child was born; in New Zealand the family was increased again. And on the coast of New Zealand their boat was lost.

It sounds a little mad, but "The Cruise of the Teddy" makes fascinating reading.

Billions

The Stillmans, father and son, have been drawn full length by John K. Winkler in his latest volume on financial titans—"The First Billion."

Mr. Winkler is one of our leading exponents of "popular biography," choosing to write in a style that once in a while reminds the reader of the sensational wing of the daily press. He emphasizes the odd features of his story, particularly domestic habits of the elder Stillman, and certain colorful events in the life of his son.

But there also is a good deal about the National City Bank and its history, and about the Stillman allies, especially William Rockefeller.

And for those to whom chills and horror are essential, there is "The Cadaver of Gideon Wyck," by Alexander Laing. Mr. Laing's book is cleverly put together, advancing from grisly detail with stealthy tread.

From these horrors one turns almost with relief to a strange little book by Laura Adams Arner and Sidney Arner called "Cactus." Mr. and Mrs. Arner have illustrated and described fifty forms of cacti, especially for the collector thereof.

Christopher's Search

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Christopher! Christopher Columbus Crow!" called Willy Nilly, and Christopher, who had been flying overhead, came down to the ground and into Willy Nilly's house.

He was surprised when he saw Grandpa Grouchy Galump, and was about to rush out again when Willy Nilly said:

"Grandpa Galump lost a gold ring in his garden before the blizzard and he thinks it is there, buried in the snow. He says that if you find it he'll give you a nice reward."

"Caw, caw, I'll find it," said Christopher so promptly that Willy Nilly feared perhaps he already had it. But he went right over to Grandpa Grouchy Galump's garden, and Willy Nilly noticed that he did not return to his nest.

"My place is not nearly finished," Willy Nilly said to himself after they were gone, "but I think I'll put on my top boots and go over and see if Christopher is really searching for the ring!"

There was Christopher, pushing aside the snow and working as Willy Nilly had never seen him work.

"I want the reward," said Christopher, "and I'm going to search as long as I can. I won't try to rid the whole garden of snow, but Grandpa says it should be just around here."

Willy Nilly went back home. Grandpa Grouchy Galump was in his house. All of a sudden, in the sunlight, Christopher saw the gold ring in the little patch of earth he had cleared of snow. It was such a pretty ring. Should Christopher keep it or would the reward be better? He wondered.

Tomorrow—"The Reward"

Another Term Held Vital To F. D. R.'s Plan

By ELLIOTT CLAY

(Chief of Bureau, Associated Press, Washington)

Intimate friends of President Roosevelt are saying now that the program of social revolution and permanent economic reform probably will await full materialization only if and when he is elected to a second term.

They think the four years for which he was elected in 1932 will be occupied chiefly with emergency handling of the recovery policies. His own budget message, in which he named 1936 as the first year of restored prosperity, coincides with that suggestion.

When he runs for re-election in 1936, as everyone expects him to, his friends look for him to promise that a second term would be dedicated to the building of that new order which he has made thus far, only generalized references.

It is the belief of many in the administration that such current projects as stock market regulation, banking reform and even limited nationalization of NRA principles merely nibble at the sort of permanent readjustment Mr. Roosevelt has in mind.

That he will want to go much further toward the curbing of wealth, once the emergency is past, is taken

Easy Pleasant Way TO LOSE FAT

How would you like to lose 15 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent abdomen and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh—then get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts which will last you four weeks. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water every morning and when you have finished the contents of this first bottle weigh yourself again.

After that you'll want to walk around and say to your friends—"One 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts is worth one hundred dollars of any fat person's money."

Leading druggists America over sell Kruschen Salts—You can always get it at Pitt Drug Co.—(Adv.)

Personal Adjustment

Further readjustment of personnel on the staffs of several important government agencies appears likely. Some of the emergency administrative reductions and consolidations are in prospect. A beginning already has been made in NRA and AAA. The White House will try to cut expenses below budget authorizations.

Besides, those who are out of sympathy with recent Roosevelt moves, particularly on such matters as currency, will be politely shown the door unless they voluntarily get out. The treasury realignments are indicated. It still is a subject of speculation among associates of Budget Director Douglas whether he will go or stay.

Gold-Buying Program

There is a tendency in well-informed quarters to concede privately that the gold-buying program has not produced the results hoped for. Commodity prices have not risen sensationally; the world exchange situation remains muddled, with France sticking stubbornly to the gold standard; agitation for more inflation on the one hand and for stabilization on the other continues.

Officials no longer watch breathlessly to see the effect of each day's gold price announcement; that figure itself is left stationary for weeks at a time. The experiment today is distinctly in the background of attention.

By the same token, some new attack on the currency problem, from a different angle, seems more and more certain for the near future. Most discussion centers around silver.

Hopkins Wins Favor

The man who appears to have risen fastest in the good graces of the White House recently is Harry Hopkins, the young New Yorker who administers relief, civil works and surplus commodity purchases.

He is handling three jobs, any one of which might be regarded as massive in his own, and he has contributed materially to several other recent Presidential departures. Like Henry Morgenthau, Jr., he sits right in the inner Roosevelt circle.

That Republican National Committee deficit of around $200,000 looks ridiculously small when the Treasury is red-inking in millions, but no one need think it isn't causing worry among party stalwarts.

Few party organizations ever prayed more earnestly for the appearance on an angel than the Republican are praying now.

HUGE TROUT CATCHES MADE ON THE COAST

Washington, N. C., Jan. 25.—(AP)—The largest catches of grey and speckled trout ever received in Washington have come from Hatteras and Ocracoke during the last few days. On Tuesday 400 boxes of trout, containing 40,000 pounds were brought on boats here from these two points.

Local dealers state that the Gulf Stream is working close inland and is causing large numbers of trout to be caught. The trout weighed two to four pounds each.

CENSUS HEAD IN INTERVIEW

D. W. Lupton, of Seventh District, Appreciative of Support Accorded Him

D. W. Lupton, Supervisor of the Seventh North Carolina Census Bureau District, is an authorized interview with a representative of The Daily Reflector today, desired especially to express his appreciation to the various newspapers throughout the Seventh District for their cooperation in making the business census a success.

Particularly also does Mr. Lupton wish to express his appreciation of the whole-hearted co-operation he has been given by the various Chambers of Commerce and business men throughout the seventeen counties comprising his district. The Chambers of Commerce and the business men have readily grasped the idea of the value of the business census and no difficulty has been experienced in obtaining the information desired by the Census Bureau from the prominent and responsible business men of each county.

Some misunderstanding has prevailed as to what kind of a project the Business Census is. This project is not a CWA or PWA affair, but originates in the Department of Commerce, in the Bureau of Census, at Washington, D. C., and is an independent project, being a continuation along somewhat new lines of standard census work.

Heretofore great difficulty has been experienced in getting to the various CWA headquarters in each county on time the Census Bureau's weekly pay-roll, Mr. Lupton states that hereafter the pay-rolls from his office will be made up and sent out in ample time for the enumerators in each county to receive their pay on Saturday from CWA headquarters.

While the work of this Bureau is an independent Federal project, under present regulations, it is provided that the enumerators shall come from CWA rolls, and consequently their pay is received from the CWA disbursing agencies in each county.

On January 22, Supervisor Lupton was notified by Washington City authorities to cut the working hours of enumerators from 39 to 30 per week, which of course, results in a corresponding reduction of pay per week, although the rate per schedule remains the same. Before the number of working hours were cut, from 250 to 300 schedules were coming in daily. On January 18 all of the enumerators throughout the seventeen counties, which counties are subdivided into districts, had been appointed and were at work. Following is a list of the enumerators throughout the district and their addresses:

 Delaware.
 "Robbery," the Republican named the money measure. "Hideous," he insisted was the nature of its implications.
 He further denounced the proposition as being beyond the constitution, in a very lengthy speech.
 It already was evident that once the voting begins the roll call tally will be on respector of party lines.
 Senatorial wisacres were going slow in naming names in predicting the outcome as they waited knowing that things happen without warning in the Senate at times and perhaps a vote would be unexpected.
 Material for another word scrap on the Senate floor later was collected by the committee testimony by Senator Reed, (R., Pa.) and Edward Haynes, American Legion commander, for loosening of the economy act to provide another $40,000,000 for veterans benefits and removal of alleged inequities of the military service men. Administration leaders are believed to be opposed to such new legislation.
 Enactment of the farm credit re-financing bill guaranteeing the principal of two billion dollars of farm mortgage bonds neared when the House and Senate conferees agreed on all provisions of the measure already passed by both branches.
 Representative Byrns, Democratic leader, told newsmen the Denver subscription of the treasury's billion dollar security issue indicates general confidence in the President's program.
 "Since there is confidence," he said, he could not now see such a pressing need for immediate enactment of the dollar evaluation bill before the Senate, although the stabilization funds would be very beneficial on the unpredictable nature of the Senate whim was based on the slender hope of some that the monetary bill would be approved during the day, or tomorrow at least.

To Set Cannon Case For Trial

Washington, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Leslie G. Garnett, Washington's new district attorney said today the District of Columbia Superior court would be asked to set the case for trial of Bishop James Cannon and Mrs. Ada Burroughs "as soon as I have completed a study of the record."

Garnett's announcement squelched a suggestion by Robert Michell, Cannon's attorney that the government might as well drop the corrupt practice case against the churchman and his secretary since the Supreme court of the United States threw out courts in the indictment which changed specific failure to report contributions.

Cannon and Miss Burroughs are charged with conspirate to violate the corrupt practices act by failing to report certain contributions received in 1928 to the campaign to defeat Al Smith, democratic presidential nominee in the South.

Approve Tax Revision

Washington, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The house ways and means committee today approved revision of the income tax rate designed to bring in $36,000,000 annually in revenue. The committee established a flat four per cent normal income tax rate on net income of $4,000, eliminating the 8 per cent levy on net incomes of $6,000 and more but substituted a surtax beginning on incomes of over $4,000 net less reduction for family and single persons exemption. Chairman Doughton, Dem., of N. C., announced the remainder of the items would be voted on tomorrow or Monday with a view to having the committee finally report the measure in full about next week.

CHURCH STAIRWAY YIELDS LOST PORTUGUESE CRUIFIX

Lisbon.—(AP)—The two hundred-year-old mystery of the disappearance on what sixteenth century writers described as "the most perfect figure of the crucified Christ" has been solved.

It has been discovered in a niche of a staircase in the ancient church of St. Anthony at Coimbra where it was placed about 200 years ago.

The figure was carved in ivory by Joao de Rauac, whose works are in many churches in Portugal and France.

WHEN COOKING VEGETABLES REMEMBER THESE RULES

For the young housewife—and others too—a safe rule is the old-fashioned one that all vegetables which grow under the ground should be cooked in cold water. While all growing above should be cooked in boiling water.

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened fairly steady, six to eight points decline on lower Liverpool cables, liquidation and foreign selling. Initial offerings were taken by trade and commission house buying and prices steadied a point or two and liquidation continued. Fluctuations were narrow and irregular. At the end of the first half hour March, after having rallied from 11.04 to 11.08, was selling around 11.03, active months showing losses of six to eight points. The market gradually sagged, March working down to 11.02 and July to 11.30, making declines of about nine to twelve points. A little more trade buying developed at these prices and the market was steady, but in a point or two of the lowest at midday.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Financial markets were spiritless today. Stocks followed a rather dull routine in the early hours and prices of some of the recently buoyant leaders were disposed to ease a trifle under profit-taking flurries. There was nothing unusually heavy. Some specialties shifted their following and managed to move up fractionally to around a point. Several so-called pools were posted to be operating, but information about these was vague. Buying of gold and the sale of dollars in London by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York did not seem to affect the firmness of the American monetary unit which pushed up a cent or more in relations to sterling. Silver futures were a little heavy, but rubber exhibited strength.

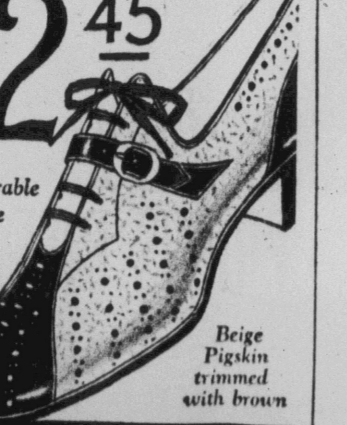

Transfers were 2,000,000 shares.

 home until about 9:30 the night of the slaying and that he had $130 in cash in his pocket at the time. She told of discussing marriage plans, revealing that they had planned to be married at an early date. Sheriff Whitehurst, who declared that tracks found at the scene of the crime corresponded with those of Ayers, presented shoes which he said belonged to the defendant. He declared they positively fitted the tracks discovered at the scene of the crime. Only a few cents in change was found on the ground near Cox's body, he stated.

Sam Everett, another witness, told of being at the filling station about a mile from Greenville where Cox was employed the night of the crime. He said he was there until 12:15 and that when he left only Ayers and Cox were in the building.

It was shortly after midnight that Cox was believed to have been killed, his body left in the woods a short distance from the road and his automobile left parked on the road.

Ayers has vigorously denied that he had any knowledge of the crime until next day, and said the bullets found missing from his revolver were fired at a dog.

MISSION IN INDIA STARTED BY THREE HAS STAFF OF 1,000

Boston, Mass.—(AP)—In one hundred years the American madura mission, south India, has increased its staff from three workers to more than one thousand. The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions reports.

The mission was founded in the winter of 1834 by three men—Henry Richard Hoisington, of Vergennes, Vermont; William Todd, Marcellus, New York, and Levi Spaulding, Jaffrey, New Hampshire—who sailed from Massachusetts to India in an ice freighter.

Today it has fifty-nine missionaries and more than one thousand Indian Christian pastors, teachers and helpers, and among its institutions a college, trade and high schools, hospitals; including one for lepers, and dispensaries.
