FRENCH CABINET PLANNING TO RESIGN AT ONCE

Fate Of Heber Ayers Now In Hands Of Jury Here; Expect Decision Today

JUDGE MAKES JURY CHARGE THIS MORNING

Judge Daniels Tells Jurors They Can Either Find Defendant Guilty Of First Or Second Degree Murder; Jury Had Not Reached Decision at 6 O'Clock This Evening

The fate of Heber Ayers, 30-year-old white man, charged with the slaying and robbery of Floyd Cox several miles north of this city the middle of December, was in the hands of a Pitt County jury today.

The case was received by the jury about 11 o'clock following a charge by Judge Frank A. Daniels that consumed the greater part of an hour.

Judge Daniels told the jury they should find the defendant guilty either of first degree or second degree murder. Ayers was tried on a first degree charge.

The case was started Wednesday morning and argument was completed by State's Attorney D. M. Clark late yesterday afternoon.

Judge Daniels ordered that the jury be held over until this morning to receive his charge.

In making the final plea for the State, Solicitor Clark asked for a verdict of first degree. He based his contention on the fact that evidence of the government ballistic expert, who declared Cox was killed by two bullets from the gun found in Ayers' possession, was sufficient to prove his guilt.

The ballistic expert yesterday morning demonstrated his expertise before the court when he identified six bullets fired from two guns in the grand jury room, and then was backed up by two witnesses who marked the bullets.

The defense based its plea on the fact that all evidence was of a circumstantial nature, and the alibi of Ayers that he left the filling station where Cox was employed before the building was closed for business and went to the home of his brother and remained there all night.

Ayers also continued the bullets missing from the gun were fired at a dog.

Floyd Cox, who was reported to have had $130 in his possession, was believed to have been slain shortly after midnight. His body was found a short distance from the old Stokes road about 7 o'clock the next morning. Only a small amount of change was found on the ground.

Taken into custody two days later, Ayers vigorously denied knowledge of the crime, saying he did not char of it until the morning after it happened.

Late News Flashes From Over World

French Cabinet Resigns
Paris, France, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Premier Camille Chautemps and his cabinet resigned today and Royalists were massed with thousands of police packed into the huge De L'Opera.

The mob rioted despite all precaution which the authorities of Paris mustered to prevent demonstration.

The battling monarchists plowed into the ranks of the gendarmes. Previous the head of the police force had announced his precaution would nip in the bud future riots, but the solid ranks of the police broke on the record attack.

Sec. Wallace Sees Compulsion As Means of Disciplining Farmers
Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—(AP)—With the voluntary cotton acreage reduction campaign scheduled to end Wednesday, Secretary Wallace made it plain today that the administration consideration of possibly compulsory legislation was not a confession that it expected the sign-up drive to fall short of its mark.

At the same time the farm administration indicated an extension of time for signing the contracts might be granted in those areas where the drive started late and where contract blanks were not distributed at the start of the campaign.

The compulsory referred to by Secretary Wallace included the Bankhead bill to license guns and a lot production quota to individual farmers and a proposal by Cully A. Cobb, chief of the administration cotton section, to place a prohibitive tax on all guns above a fixed allotment.

"The voluntary approach," Secretary Wallace said, "has not yet had much time to operate. No one can say there is much in the voluntary principle of the present adjustment act which appeals to me. Discussion of the Bankhead bill is in no sense a confession that the voluntary acreage reduction plan will not be a success."

At the same time President Roosevelt and the Senate leaders from the cotton belt indicated some method for compulsory reduction of the South's greatest crop may be necessary not simply to insure success of the acreage reduction program but more of disciplinary measure for farmers who refuse to take part in the voluntary movement.

Stir Created By Switch From Civilians To Army Men In Some Areas
Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Army engineers were lined up today to take over partial direction of the embattled Civil Works program following an administration decision to answer protests with a cut of military discipline.

Receiving more rejections and few resignations even as he acted Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, went ahead with his proposal to install military engineers in several key cities.

Asked if the measure was taken because of charges of graft and political favoritism that has been received from 45 states, Hopkins replied: "This was not the complete basis of action." He added to news men that it would be a "fair assumption" that army men would be placed at some point where there is an investigation.

Immediately there were rejections. Following discussion that Lt. Col. Dan R. Sultan, Chicago district engineer, would take charge in Cook county, Illinois, there came a blanket resignation from civil directors of state and county civil works.

Robert Dunham, in charge there, was wired by Hopkins that the wholesale withdrawal was in protest against the implication that those in charge were not only lacking in ability but also in proper sense of obligation.

Hopkins had no immediate comment but indicated more would be said shortly in explanation of the displacing of civilians with army officers.

LEAF SALES REACH GOAL IN GREENVILLE

Market Poundage Figure Today Stood at 72,000,000 Pounds For The Season

Sales stood at the 72,000,000 pound mark on the local tobacco market today with indications that the figure would go well above this level by the time the market closes for the season at the expiration of sales next Tuesday.

This was the goal set by tobaccoists for this year. It is an all-time record for the market, just slightly above the nearly 72,000,000 mark established several years ago.

The official report of K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sale, issued yesterday afternoon, showed the market this year had sold 70,166,670 pounds of tobacco for a total sum of $11,736,429.42, at an average of $16.72 per hundred pounds.

In addition, the market handled 1,777,818 pounds of scrap tobacco, which brought 2 1-2 cents a pound, or a total of $44,445.45, bringing total market sales to 71,944,488, for which growers received $11,780,874.87. Sales for week 376,042 pounds for $52,626.69 at an average of $13.99 per hundred pounds.

Farmers who have not yet sold the last of their crop were urged to get busy at once and do so in view of the fact that the market closes at the expiration of sales next Tuesday. The price situation has held up remarkably well in view of the low grades which predominated sales the last several days. Farmers have been advised to re-work the remainder of the crop and be in position to receive higher prices for their offerings.

WATERS ON STRIKE IN N.Y.

Kitchen Help Also Joins In Walkout In Number Of Big City Hotels

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—A strike of waiters and kitchen help had spread through most of New York's hotels today.

Called by the Amalgamated Hotel and Restaurant Workers Union which claimed membership of 30,000 the strike was seen as "a test of the NRA by Norman Thomas, socialist leader."

He addressed a mass meeting last night. The number of workers out was hard to determine. The union refused to make any estimates until later today. A survey compiled by statements by hotel management last night showed 663 out.

The answer to most of the hotels to demands of the union which set a deadline of 5 p. m. for their acceptance was to recruit reserves. In other hotels room captains and other workers served food prepared by reduced kitchen forces.

Guests at the Park Central were ready for the last course when the waiters walked out and a number went to the kitchen and got their own dinner.

Approve Fund For Repairs To Waterway
Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The war department announced today it had approved an allotment of $30,000 for the repair of damage to the waterway from Norfolk to Beaufort.

The fund will be expended repairing damage caused by a severe storm on August 23 and Sept. 16, 1933 when the area about great bridge log was washed out.

TINY BLIGHT AIDS AUSTRALIA IN WAR ON PRICKLY PEAR
Melbourne, Australia.—(AP)—Helped by a tiny blight with a long name—cactoblastis cactorum—Australia is winning a war against the deadly prickly pear.

Over an area of 60,000,000 acres the tiny blight has attracted the enemy, and there is definite prospect that the pest will be exterminated in Australia within a comparatively short time.

In the last two years more than 8,000,000 acres of land previously affected by the pear have been opened for permanent settlement in Queensland.

GRAND JURY ASKS BETTER BUS DRIVERS

Demands That Reckless and Careless Operation of School Buses Be Halted

Recommendations that the Board of Education give attention to charges of reckless and careless driving of school buses in this county were made by the six months' grand jury of criminal court in its report handed to Judge Frank A. Daniels this morning about 11 o'clock.

In calling attention to complaints filed with them regarding utter disregard for the safety of children, the jurors urged "that the superintendent of the Board of Education see that this matter is taken care of at once, and instruct all drivers that further violations will not be tolerated."

Several other recommendations were made by the jury after visiting various county departments and institutions. Attention was called to the fact that the tax office had no one employed to look after outside tax collections, and that lack of deputies had increased the work of the sheriff's office to such extent that the sheriff was unable to properly care for it.

It was recommended that somebody be placed in immediate charge of outside collections and that additional help be given the sheriff in view of the importance of full and complete law-enforcement.

The report in detail follows: "To His Honor Frank A. Daniels, Judge Presiding at the January Term of Superior Court:

"We, the Grand Jury of this term of court respectfully submit the following report:

"We investigated all bills presented to this body and passed on same in accordance to the evidence.

"We inspected the prison camp and found same in a sanitary and excellent condition. We commend Mr. Manly Sellers for his untiring efforts in making this a model camp. We feel the Prison Camp reflects credit not only to the county but the State as well.

"We visited the County Home and upon our investigation we are pleased to report that we found the inmates well provided for. We inspected the inmates' bedrooms and also bath-rooms and toilets and found all of these in a sanitary and excellent condition. We commend Mr. Joe Harris, the superintendent, for his very efficient and kind treatment toward the inmates, as all expressed their appreciation for his untiring efforts in making their last days as comfortable as is humanly possible to do so.

"We wish further to commend Mrs. Neva Allen for her untiring efforts in looking after the inmates, at all times, and supervising the cooking of meals and being sure that they are served in an appetizing manner.

"We inspected all the county officers and upon investigation we found all well kept and under efficient management. Upon inquiry we were informed that at the present (Continued on Page Two)

BALL HERE TO BE INFORMAL LEADERS RULE

Conventional "Full Dress" Will Not Be Necessary For President's Ball

The ball to be given here next Tuesday evening in honor of the birthday of President Roosevelt will be informal and both dancers and spectators may attend without wearing the conventional "full dress."

This dance committee decided to make the affair informal here yesterday after numerous complaints had reached them that So-and-So would not be able to attend because they didn't have a dress suit and no money to buy one.

The committee, which had recently ruled that the dance should be formal, immediately got their heads together at a special meeting yesterday and decided the boys without dress suits should also be given the privilege of doing their bit by the ball given in honor of the President in an effort to raise money for the Warm Springs Foundation for cripples.

With this important decision out of the way, ticket sales for the ball, which will be staged in the Campus Building at East Carolina Teachers College from 9:30 until 2 o'clock Tuesday evening, are expected to show a gratifying spurt during the next day or so. In fact, members of the committee are expected to receive a wide patronage from surrounding towns and communities where similar balls will not be held.

In addition to the dance, President Roosevelt will speak over a radio hookup and dancers in the five thousand cities of the nation will be given an opportunity of hearing him as well as several celebrities of the stage, screen and political field.

Music for the dance will be provided by Eddie Poole's orchestra of State College, and this is additional assurance of the most brilliant affair of the kind ever held here.

The college auditorium will be brilliantly decorated for the occasion and the scene will be one of splendid pageantry.

SIX LAWYERS IN JAM HERE

Commissioner Of Revenue Takes Action For Non-Payment Of Taxes

A. J. Maxwell, Commissioner of Revenue, secured judgments against six attorneys of Pitt County at the January term of court. The attorneys had failed to pay the State their privilege tax under Section 109 of the Revenue Act.

Judge Daniels instructed the Clerk of the Court to issue a rule requiring the attorneys to show cause why they should not be deprived of license to practice their profession for failure to pay their professional tax. The rule will be served by the sheriff upon the attorneys twenty days before the next term of court, and if at the next term of court the attorneys fail to show sufficient cause, the judge will suspend their license until the tax and cost has been paid.

The order of suspension will be binding upon all courts, board and commissions having authority of law in this State with respect to the granting or continuing the practice of law.

NEGRO JAILED ON RUM CHARGE

William Henry Burroughs And 34 Gallon Booze Seized In Raid Today

William H. Burroughs was jailed here early today after officers raided his home on Chest Street and nabbed 34 gallons of corn whiskey.

The raid was staged under direction of Chief of Police George Clark and took the alleged bootlegger so completely by surprise that he did not have time to hide his evidence.

He probably will be given preliminary hearing some time today and bound over to the next sitting of County Court.

Police described Burroughs as an old enemy of the prohibition law. He has served one term in a Federal penitentiary and one in State's Prison for similar violations.

The seizure was one of the largest made among the bootlegging element in sometime. The liquor was carried to the confiscated cell at the city hall where it probably will go down the gutter in a view days at the order of Mayor Flanagan.

BYRD PARTY IN DANGER

Commander Expresses Apprehension For 43 Men Marooned By Crumbling Ice

Bay of Whales, Antarctica.—(By Way of Mackay Radio)—Jan. 27.—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd expressed apprehension today for the safety of pressure camps and forty-three men of the second Antarctic expedition marooned by disintegration of the vast ice shelf covering the bay.

In addition to the forty-three men at the camp, the temporary supply base four and a half miles south of the edge of the ice, four others were at Little America cut off from their comrades.

With the temperature at a little below freezing the ice was disintegrating everywhere and the whole front of the bay flooring, eight miles across, was crumbling.

DECISION TO QUIT COMES AFTER CONFAB

Effort To Consolidate Strength In Chamber Fails and Premier Decides To Step Down; Veteran Minister of Finance Submits His Resignation To The Premier

Paris, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Premier Camille Chautemps announced today that his cabinet would resign after a ministerial meeting planned for mid-afternoon to avoid further mud baths in Tuesday's Chamber of Deputies' debate on the Bayonne Bank scandal.

The decision to resign was reached after the hectic series of conferences in which Chautemps attempted to consolidate strength to risk possible overthrow in the Chamber Tuesday rather than engineer a quick withdrawal.

Earlier today Eugene Talmay, veteran Minister of Justice, submitted his resignation to the Premier.

POLICE SEEK AUTO THIEF

Kinston Woman Injured In Automobile Stolen Here Last Night; Driver Flees

Mrs. Susie Martin, of Kinston, was confined in the local hospital today suffering from injuries which she sustained early today when an automobile in which she was riding was wrecked on the Greenville-Winterville highway about a mile from the city.

Mrs. Martin was reported to have been badly broken up in the crash, and police were seeking Mack Potter, who disappeared immediately following the wreck.

Chief of Police George Clark said the automobile had been identified as the property of John Page, Greenville man. The machine was stolen last night, but officers did not know of it until they were called to investigate the wreck this morning.

Mrs. Martin was so badly injured that she was unable to talk at first and aid police in identifying the driver. However, his name was obtained today and an effort was being made to nab him in another city where he was believed to have gone.

Chapter 17
ON THE BOAT

SOMETIME later a little mestiza girl skipped around the corner and stopped short at the sight of the huddle that had been the dog.

"Chiquito!" she cried. Her childish treble broke. Tears streamed from her eyes as she fell beside the little body. Dust, dog and all she gathered into her arms and knelt there swaying and weeping.

Grahame, strolling around the corner toward the wharves, caught sight of the small tragedy before him. He threw away his cigar and lifted the child to her feet. She still clung to the dog.

"What is it?" he exclaimed in Spanish, brushing the dust from the little girl's dress.

There was a fresh flood of tears. "My little dog! My child. My angel. Dead!"

Grahame glanced swiftly at the bullet wounds and growled, "Who did it?"

"I don't know," sobs wrenched her breast.

"There, there," he said soothingly. "We will take your child home and bury him fittingly. Here..." He pressed a peso into her hand. "This will buy a wreath and a prayer from the padre." He lifted the child, who still clutched her pet in her arms, to his own, and strode toward the house she pointed out.

"He was so young," quavered the girl.

The town was stirring from its daily siesta, as a little later, Grahame continued his interrupted walk to the wharves. He identified the launch that was to take him down the coast, by his luggage piled upon the deck.

Two men were indolently coiling ropes, and a figure sat on the deck house surrounded with oily rags and cleaning a revolver.

"Senor Ortega" asked Grahame.

"At your service," replied the man brushing the rags aside.

The American stared at the gun. "When do we leave?"

"Whenever you wish. Immediately."

Grahame leaped down to the launch's deck. He looked again at the revolver. "Was it you that I heard shooting in the town a little while ago?"

Don Raoul hesitated. "No," he replied. "I have been here for hours."

The two men paused with their rope-coiling and glanced at Ortega. One of them grinned and turned his head. Don Raoul spoke to them sharply and one went below while the other loosed the lines that held the craft to the wharf. From below came the sound of the engine coughing into activity.

An hour later the Progreso light-house was a hazy point astern, and the Tuxcan coast a low line to the starboard as they pushed against the Gulf current.

Grahame and Ortega lounged in the cockpit, smoking and idly watching a school of porpoise roll through the waves ahead.

BEFORE they had gotten under way Frank, struck by the coincidence of names, had asked this Don Raoul Ortega if he were the one who had been in the United States a few weeks before in Hollywood.

Also he had anticipated the answer. Ortega is a common name in Mexico; so again is Raoul—which is the Latin for Ralph. Nor was he disappointed.

The man had shrugged. "A relative, perhaps. Half the gentlemen in Mexico, I think, are related. Why do you ask? Some friend of yours?"

Frank had filled his pipe and lighted it. "No friend of mine," he answered. "But I would like to ask him some questions..." that he might find difficult to answer."

Ortega had given him a flickering glance. He smiled a curiously reticent smile.

"What did you say your name was, senor?"

"I didn't say," answered Grahame abruptly.

He did not like Don Raoul. There was something sinister—evasive—about the big Mexican.

But it was fortunate that he was able to get this transportation around Cape Catoche, and down the coast of Quintana Roo.

The Progresso port officer had told him that morning that the light-house tender would not be making that trip for weeks yet, but that Don

THEY ate just before dusk, the inevitable beans and rice, with slabs of a delicious mackerel-like fish one of the crew had hauled aboard from a troll-line. Grahame spread his blanket in the bow of the launch and rolled himself within it. Ortega seated himself in the cockpit with the two that composed the crew and the American could hear their voices above the chug of the engine, talking between themselves.

Drowsily he wondered why they had set out no running lights but decided that the traffic in that part of the coast warranted no such protection.

He wondered about that point again the next day. They had been sailing within a quarter of a mile of the coast when Ortega pointed astern. The crew followed his gesture with their gaze, and Grahame noticed a smudge of smoke over the distant horizon.

Immediately the helm was put over and the launch headed for the beach and a point where the surf diminished. There were no orders given, but one of the men went below and the exhaust of the engine immediately picked up.

As they approached the shore Grahame noted that the beach swept back into the opening of a lagoon that stretched back paralleling the beach. Mangroves hid the launch from the sea. They stopped the engine and threw over the anchor.

Grahame was curious. The three men seemed unperturbed and watched the smoke come closer until the steamer unquestionably became outlined as an old-time gunboat plowing along at no great speed two miles off shore. Grahame believed he could make out the flag it flew as Mexican. He asked Ortega about this.

"A gunboat surely," he replied. "Mexican."

"And we avoid it?"

Ortega shrugged. One could not tell, he explained, what the military might do. They had so little to do that they might stop them and search the launch. It was often done. It was a bother and a great annoyance, so it was better to avoid the meeting.

"But even if they searched you, what could they find?"

Juan, the younger member of the crew laughed, and Ortega's face wrinkled with a sort of subdued mirth.

"They would find occupation, perhaps."

Grahame learns an important fact, Monday.

Christopher's Revenge
 By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Here's a beautiful, bright marble for you," Grandpa told Christopher.

"Is that all I get for finding your ring?" asked Christopher, but Grandpa was not good at understanding Crow talk. He did think, however, that the Crow was not very much pleased.

But Christopher said nothing more. He would have his revenge on Grandpa. He would go and tell Rip and Top Notch; and he had an idea in his Crow head. Oh, yes, Christopher was thinking quickly.

"Listen," he said as he saw Top Notch and Rip sunning themselves on Willy Nilly's porch, "that mean old Grandpa Grouchy Galump gave me only one dull marble after all my trouble. And he promised me a nice reward, too. But I'm going to have my revenge. Do you want to see what I'm going to do?"

Top Notch and Rip were excited and interested.

"I'm going to take that marble and wrap it up in snow and throw it down from a tree the first time I see Grandpa Grouchy Galump go out of his house," said Christopher. So he put a little wet snow around the marble and then he perched in a tree while Rip and Top Notch hid behind other trees.

Pretty soon Grandpa came out. "Caw, caw!" cawed Christopher. Grandpa Grouchy Galump looked up. Down went the marble and hit Grandpa in the middle of the forehead and the wet snow went right down his neck.

"I had my revenge," Christopher thought happily even though he knew he was in trouble now.

time our tax office had no one employed to look after the collections on the outside of the office. We feel that this is a very important work and that someone should be placed immediately in charge of these outside collections. Sheriff Whitehurst informed the Grand Jury, upon our inquiry, that with only one deputy there was more work than they could do, and he was in need of another deputy, realizing the importance of our law-enforcement, we recommend that this additional help be given him.

"We inspected the County Jail and found same in a rather unsanitary condition. The plumbing was out of working order, and some of the commodes when flushed would hang up, causing the water to run over, resulting in water standing on the floor in some few places. We urge that this situation be attended to at once.

"We inspected also the two toilets just outside the jail yard, and we regret to say that we found these toilets in an unspeakable and shameful condition. We urgently recommend that they either be put in a more sanitary condition or else be torn down. The condition of these toilets is a reflection on our town, county and State.

"We have had several complaints made to us in regard to the drivers of our school buses; several instances of their carelessness and reckless driving and their utter disregard for the safety of the school children. In one instance a father went to the professor of one of the schools and pleaded with him to appoint another driver, which request has been ignored. We urge that this matter be taken care of at once, and instruct all drivers that further violations will not be tolerated.

"We wish to extend our appreciation to the Presiding Judge, Frank A. Daniels, and the Solicitor and other officers of the court, for their courtesies and co-operation at this term of court.

"This report is respectfully submitted by the Grand Jury for the January, 1934, term of court.

ROOSEVELT HIS INSPIRATION

(Miami, Okla., News Record)

In a certain middle-western hospital lies a policeman, paralyzed from the hips to the toes. He has been there for nearly three years, ever since he fought a gun battle with a bandit and got a bullet in the spine. For a long time he has been deeply despondent—as who, in his case, would not be?

But now he is beginning to feel hopeful again; and it all happens because someone gave him a fancy, ornate kind of clock which bears a little statue of Franklin D. Roosevelt standing at the helm of a ship. The cripple copper explains it like this:

"One day I happened to notice Roosevelt there, and I began to think."

"Here," I said to myself, "is the greatest man in the world. And just look at the handicaps he overcame. Why, once his legs were as weak as mine. And now look at him."

"So I figured to myself, if a fellow like that could get well and then go on to do the things Roosevelt has done, then there was hope for me. You know, the more I thought about Roosevelt, the stronger I became."

"I don't even feel any pain any more, and it won't be long before I'm out of here."

"I used to think that inspiration and that stuff was a lot of baloney. That was before I got this clock and started thinking."

It would be hard to find a better illustration of the power which a good example can have; and it is interesting to see how far-reaching the effects of a brave man's fight can be.

When a man comes to grips with pain and weakness and utter discouragement, as Mr. Roosevelt did more than a decade ago, and faces them down and licks them to a frazzle and goes on his way as if he never had seen them, he doesn't win his fight for himself alone.

He may think so at the time, but there's more to it than that. This world is so constructed that a fight like that echoes for a long time.

It's a long way from a beaten vice-presidential candidate suffering from infantile paralysis in 1921 to a wounded policeman getting a new supply of hope and courage in 1933; but the connection is direct, after all.

The greatest victory Franklin Roosevelt ever won was his victory over his own body; and a victory like that keeps on working along after the fight is finished.

For it is a demonstration that what happens to a man's muscle and bones and sinews is not, after all, so very important—so long as he keeps alive that indomitable spark of fearless determination in his own heart.

HOLD SERVICES HERE

INTEREST IN REVIVAL HERE

Pentecostal Holiness Church Services Are Drawing Large Crowd Every Day

Gratification over increasing interest in the series of services at the Pentecostal Holiness Church here was expressed today by the pastor, Rev. Paul F. Beacham, of Greenville, S. C., who is conducting the services.

The minister based his message yesterday evening on the words of Jesus addressed to a few of His disciples who had fished all night without realizing any success: "Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find." (John 21:6.) He said, in part:

"These men who experienced in the fishing game everything in the natural was in the supernatural, but they had utterly failed. They obeyed the commandment of the Christ. It was contrary to their experience and judgment as fishermen, but when they were graciously rewarded, their success may be taken as an example of what always happens when one renders unquestioning obedience to God's word. This experience must have been a great inspiration and encouragement to those men in subsequent days, when they were confronted with apparent failure, and it is written for our instruction.

"The blessing we desire and seek is nearer than we think. It is only necessary to obey the voice of the divine Master, and cast the net on the right side and we shall find. He may instruct us different to the way we expect and have been doing, but we expect and have been doing, but it is our part to obey and His to fulfill His promise. The peace, assurance and spiritual victory you desire is in reach of every one, but can never be realized until we are ready to take the Lord according to His word," the minister declared.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, D. C.—The best information at the present is that it will be at least a month—maybe longer—before President Roosevelt takes up with Congress the vexing question of war debts.

In his opening message to Congress, the President promised a report "later in regard to debts." He gave no hint as to what "later" meant.

Contrast in Methods
The caution which which the administration has approached this question as contrasted with the boldness and frankness displayed toward so many other problems has puzzled Washington observers no little.

He has struck boldly and unhesitatingly toward a solution of the monetary problem. He was brutally frank in outlining to Congress in his budget message the financial status of the government. Over the most persistent pleas he has been heard, his stand that economy and efficiency must be maintained.

Yet coming down to the matter of war debts, administration spokesmen have remained aloof and evasive.

Officials of State Department Discuss Their Problems Here

Officials of the State Department of Revenue, Harry McMullen, Director of Assessments and Collections; J. R. Collier, Field Supervisor, and A. E. Beddingfield, Chief Income Tax, met in Greenville, with Deputy Commissioners of Revenue, in charge of eastern counties attending as follows:

Harry McMullen, Raleigh; A. E. Beddingfield, Raleigh; J. R. Collier, Raleigh; W. T. Ferebee, Elizabeth City; R. F. Tuttle, Edenton; J. C. Herring, Weldon; Edward James, Robersonville; A. B. Ritter, Washington; J. D. Langston, Jr., Plymouth; Carl Moore, New Bern; A. N. Shaw, Kingston; N. F. Rowe, Morehead City, and Tom Hollingsworth, Greenville.

This meeting is a part of a State made program to bring about a strict collection and enforcement of all taxes levied by the State, particularly the sales tax, income tax and license taxes. In this meeting the attending officials urged the strict and impartial enforcement of all revenue laws and discuss in detail applications of tax provisions and departmental rulings.

By reason of the enlarged field organization of the Revenue Department, the deputies present were advised that complete returns and collections from all liable for taxes due the State was the very definite program of the State.

A complete and detailed check up of all merchants will be made in the next ten days to determine what merchants have failed to file sales tax returns which all merchants must file for the first six months period which occurred on December 31, 1933.

The next annual income tax returns will be due to be filed by March 15. A "school" was commenced by officials to prepare the deputies to aid taxpayers in making these returns. New provisions contained in the 1933 income tax law were fully discussed and considered.

liquor for revenue bill a provision providing for heavy excise taxes on imports from nations in default on their war debts, world reached the Capitol that Mr. Roosevelt was opposed to the move and the Senate reversed itself.

Belief that the provision would hamper the President in tariff bargaining rather than a direct war debt expression from the White House cause Senator's to do an about face.

Here's One Explanation
Why a different type of Roosevelt strategy on this issue than that employed in regard to everything else? Many observers favor this as the most probable solution:

No one understands and appreciates better than Mr. Roosevelt the attitude of the people as a whole on this question. The nation, they say, is wedded to the "they must pay" idea which has thrown the whole question of war debt out of proportion.

This attitude was evidence in both House and Senate from the start of the present session. Harsh words were spoken by members of the House against those nations which have defaulted, although in the end threats of reprisals were dissipated. The same was true in the Senate.

Mr. Roosevelt has shown himself too keen a judge of popular moods not to sense this particular one.

Hence, the caution and unwillingness to plunge headlong into such dangerous water.

Contrast in Methods
The caution which which the administration has approached this question as contrasted with the boldness and frankness displayed toward so many other problems has puzzled Washington observers no little.

He has struck boldly and unhesitatingly toward a solution of the monetary problem. He was brutally frank in outlining to Congress in his budget message the financial status of the government. Over the most persistent pleas he has been heard, his stand that economy and efficiency must be maintained.

Yet coming down to the matter of war debts, administration spokesmen have remained aloof and evasive.

The owner of the "Chicago Restaurant" promised to blot out the offending name. So, similarly, did other owners along the Grand Rue of Pera, who had been sporting signs such as "Artistic Cinema" and "Moscow Cafe."

inter-departmental committee in a report made public today by the senate banking committee. Chairman Fletcher gave out the letters from Secretary Roper, chairman of the committee, recommending regulatory legislation to the president.

George Martin Lott, Jr., in some respects the most logical successor to the role of stormy petrel in American amateur tennis, seems to have begun the new year with a characteristic rush, calculated to emphasize (a) his right to a place higher than tenth on the U. S. ranking list, and (b) his advisability for singles as well as doubles responsibility in the forthcoming Davis Cup campaign.

One question Lott's doubles ability. In fact, he probably is the best doubles player in the world, on the basis of his 1933 performances with assorted partner, including Johnny Van Ryn in the Davis Cup matches and Lester Stoefer, the tall Californian, in the national championships.

Lott is temperamental, but he has the shots and he possesses a rare combative spirit. It is entirely within his powers, should his January performances in Florida and Canada serve as a criterion, to justify his selection for the dual role of a Tilden in this year's Davis Cup quest.

The Chicagoan has the benefit of considerably more international experience than any other singles prospects, including Frank Shields, Sidney Wood and Lester Stoefer. On his good days he is likely to take any one of these three youngsters over the hurdles. And he is a campaigner of the old school.

Lott undoubtedly toyed with the idea of turning pro after last season. The future probably looked a trifle uncertain for him in amateur tennis, but he couldn't get Tilden, with his old "pal," Big Bill Tilden, and he likely won't. Meanwhile, it appears that with Vines in the pro ranks and Wilmer Allison passing out of the Davis Cup picture, the call of new opportunity in 1934 has been heard by Master Lott.

"This year I am going to keep it up," remarked Lott, by way of confirmation, after he won the Miami Billmore tournament. "I don't know, myself, why I lose interest in singles during the summer season, but I don't think it will happen again. Anyway, I've got more incentive this year, and it will be fun to see what happens."

Most of the experts now think that all it will be this year—fun for our lads and victory for either the British or Australians in the Davis Cup play. That's why Lott may be projected into a very good spot. There will be no over-confidence whatever in the American ranks and it is just possible, barely possible, that Lott & Company might strike a few good days at the right time.
