Winter Sweeps Over America; Relief Forecast

ZERO WEATHER REPORTED IN SOME SECTIONS

Much of The Atlantic Seaboard And Middle West in Grip of Cold Which Started In Alaska and Canada; Temperature Drops 60 Degrees at Asheville in 24 Hours

(By The Associated Press) Winter had a corner on the weather market in vast stretches of the country today as a spring-like temperature gave way to quotations near or below the zero mark.

Beginning in Alaska and the Canadian northwest, the first cold wave of the new year struck in the Middle West on the wings of a gale Sunday and by last night had blown over much of the Atlantic seaboard. But the weather man predicted relief was on the way and probably would arrive by tomorrow.

So effective and widespread was the frigid blast that even the Sunny South reported feeling its icy breath. Cold waves were forecast for today or tonight in north Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Maryland, Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky.

In Chicago where the wind averaged forty miles an hour Sunday, the mercury dropped from 44 degrees above zero at dawn to zero by nightfall, and a few hours later an official four below zero was reported at the Municipal Airport.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 29.—(AP)—North Carolina shivered in the most severe cold wave of the winter today and colder was predicted for the mountain sections. A blustery wind which swept from one end of the State to the other late yesterday sent the mercury scurrying in barometers in near-record fashion.

The mercury read 71 degrees at 4 o'clock yesterday and dropped to 24 at 3 o'clock today and went down to 18 there by 9 o'clock when it began to move up again.

Lee A. Denson in charge of the U. S. Weather Bureau here said the weather would be even colder tomorrow with Raleigh probably getting a low of from 10 to 12 degrees tonight.

INSULL SEEKS TO REMAIN IN GREECE; SICK

Former Chicago Utilities Operator Asks For 15-Day Extension of Time

Athens, Greece, Jan. 29.—(AP)—A formal appeal which he hoped would give Samuel Insull, Sr., former Chicago utilities operator, from five to fifteen more days haven in Greece, was submitted today to the Minister of the Interior by P. Rhalis, Insull's lawyer.

The appeal was based on what he claimed to be Insull's bad health and was accompanied by a certificate from a private physician which said the patient's health did not permit him to travel. A copy of the certificate was submitted yesterday.

ITALIAN MAIL PLANE DOWN

Trans-Atlantic Machine Crashes Near Foteleza, Brazil, Early Today

Foteleza, Brazil, Jan. 29.—Italy's premier trans-Atlantic mail plane crashed on the beach twelve miles south of here today and was found by a Pan-American Airways mail and passenger plane which reports its pilot believed three of the four Italian fliers escaped death.

The wreckage of the airplane was sighted at about 7 a. m. by Bert Saur, pilot of the American airliner. He was unable to land the airliner filled with passengers and mail bound for the United States but circled low above the sight of the disaster. He reported by radio he saw three men standing beside the smashed ship. His message indicated the plane had not caught fire. The Italian plans which left early Saturday morning was due at Buenos Aires today.

BEACH HOTEL DESTROYED BY FIRE SUNDAY

Several Other Buildings at Wrightsville Also Wrecked By Blaze

Wilmington, N. C., Jan. 29.—(AP)—A third of Wrightsville Beach lay in ashes today, destroyed by fire which rode through the summer resort, ten miles from here, on the wings of a gale.

Even before the community had taken full stock of the loss, estimated at $500,000 to $1,000,000, plans were under way for rebuilding. A hundred and three buildings, including the 162-room Oceanic Hotel, was destroyed by the fire yesterday.

While the ashes still smoked, Mayor J. H. Taylor called a meeting of the board of aldermen for today to discuss plans for rebuilding. He said he was considering asking the Civil Works Administration for workmen to clear away the debris.

Mayor Taylor estimated the loss was $500,000. An official of the Tidewater Power Company, which own the hotel and several buildings, estimated the loss in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. A survey made by the Wilmington News with Luther Rogers, contractor, placed the loss at 728,500.

Late News Flashes From Over World

To Provide Plans For Navy. Washington, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The House naval committee today voted to give the President blanket authority to provide an airplane contingent for the navy commensurate with treaty limits, the fleet involving 1,182 new planes costing $95,000,000. An amendment providing only for the general authority without specifying the number of planes or time of building will be offered tomorrow by Chairman Vinson of Georgia, when the House takes up the supply bill to provide for building the fleet to treaty limits.

The committee without an objecting vote, approved the amendment after Admiral William Standley read letters from the budget director explaining this was considerable more advisable than to specify the number of planes to be built by years. Admiral Standley and Rear Admiral Ernest J. King explained to the committee that 2,184 planes in (Continued on page four).

Former Minister of War Will Attempt to Form Sort of Safety Government to Restore Public Confidence; Two Other Statesmen Decline Offer of Premiership Because of Age And Ill Health

Paris, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier was entrusted today with the task of forming a sort of public safety cabinet for a vigorous cleaning of the financial scandal and restitution of shaken public confidence in the government.

The new cabinet will supplant that of Camille Chautemps which resigned Saturday. Daladier, Minister of War in the Chautemps cabinet and former Premier, was summoned to Elysees palace by President Lebrun today and after two hours had declined to accept the Premiership.

Seventy-one-year-old Gaston Doumergue, former President, declined to accede to the President's request yesterday. He said he was too old. Then Lebrun turned to Jules Ferry, but he refused to attempt to form a government which could restore political tranquility as asked by President Lebrun because of ill health.

HOUGH SPEAKS TO BAPTISTS

Superintendent of Kennedy Memorial Baptist Church

J. C. Hough, superintendent of Kennedy Memorial Home, institution operated by North Carolina Baptists at Kinston, spoke at Memorial Baptist Church yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. He outlined the Baptist orphanage system in this state, and gave a graphic portrayal of what is being done to provide for these children.

Mr. Hough described the care of orphans as one of the most vital considerations of the present day and appealed for support of the program looking to their care. He said it was impossible to say to what heights the motherless or fatherless children handled in such institutions would rise, and declared they should be given every consideration possible as they develop into young men and women.

Mr. Hough was accompanied to Greenville by Dr. B. W. Spillman, one of the most prominent ministers of the denomination, and who also has been active in calling attention to the work of Kennedy Memorial Home. Others accompanying Dr. Hough were the following young women of the home: Misses Eunice Carson, Mariah Byrd, Louise Evans, Margie Beard, Mildred Gurley, Esther Frye, Rosie Willis, Frances Gattis and Virginia Frye. While in the city they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Spillman.

LEAF MARKET TO CLOSE HERE ON TUESDAY

Closing To Mark the End of one of the Most Successful Seasons in History

The curtain will be rung down on the tobacco season here tomorrow when the Greenville tobacco market closes following completion of sales.

Only small amounts of the bright leaf were being offered today and sales were expected to be light the final day. But this will be sufficient to enable the market to eclipse the old record of nearly 72,000,000 pounds established years ago.

At conclusion of work last Saturday sales were standing on the threshold of the 72,000,000 pound mark, and offerings today and tomorrow are expected to take it well above the figure. The closing of the market will bring to an end one of the most successful seasons in the market's history.

The price situation developed considerable strength after the enforced price holiday, and the market up to (Continued on page three)

MAN HELD ON RUM CHARGE

Quantity of Liquor Taken in Raid of Filling Station Near City Saturday

J. I. Diddy operator of a filling station on the Greenville-Farmville road about five miles from this city, was arrested by county officers Saturday afternoon on a charge of possession of liquor for the purpose of sale.

He was taken into custody when the officers raided the filling station and found what was described as a "quantity" of whiskey in the building.

Diddy was brought here and confined in the county jail to await trial in County Court tomorrow or next day. Several members of the illicit whiskey traffic have been rounded up by county officers in raids during the last two weeks and numbers found their way to the roads in the recent term of criminal court which came to a close Saturday night.

CITY ALL SET FOR BIG BALL HERE TUESDAY

President Roosevelt to Be honored at Informal Dance at College

People of Greenville and surrounding communities were turning their attention today to preparations for the most important social function here in history—the Roosevelt birthday ball to be given in the Campus building of East Carolina Teachers College tomorrow night. The dance is scheduled to get under way at 9:30 and will be concluded at 2 o'clock.

Of an informal nature, the ball is expected to attract hundreds of people from this and surrounding communities where similar events will not be held. It is given in honor of the birthday of the President and to raise funds for the Warm Springs Foundation for cripples—a purpose dear to the heart of the chief executive.

The dance will climax days of eager anticipation marked by addresses from prominent men in this and surrounding towns, who appreciating the fine service the President has rendered the nation and attempting to render persons suffering from infantile paralysis, have appealed to the public to attend the ball in large number and help to boost the financial return.

In view of the fact that numbers of persons would be unable to attend on account of lack of proper dress, the ball committee met the latter part of last week and decided to make the dance informal. Music will be provided by Eddie Poole's orchestra of State College, one of the best known musical organizations in this section of the state.

JUDGE LAUDS PITT SHERIFF

Sam Whitehurst Commended For Part In Preventing Disorder In Assault Case

Sheriff Sam Whitehurst was commended by Judge Frank A. Daniels in the closing session of criminal court here Saturday afternoon for the fine part which the officer played in preventing an outbreak of disorders in the detention and trial of Jim Green, negro, convicted of the charge of criminally attacking Miss Marie House near Greenville, during January.

The words of praise came as Judge Daniels was thanking court officials and members of the bar for the fine spirit of co-operation which had been displayed by them during the term of court.

Commenting briefly on the tense feeling caused by the crime, Judge Daniels commended the sheriff for discouragement of violence. He said the officer's appeal to those directly interested in the case and others angered by the seriousness of the crime, permitted the law to take its course and probably prevented mob action.

It was reported that a mob sought the negro while he was being held at Williamston in preparation for transfer to Raleigh, but no further action of this kind was reported.

The sheriff appealed to relatives of the young woman not to interfere in the process of the law. He was heeded and throughout the trial here there was not the slightest indication of mob spirit. The best of order was maintained at the courthouse and at no time was there any indication of a demonstration.

THOMAS TURNER MAY SEEK SOLICITORSHIP

High Point, N. C., Jan. 29.—Thos. Turner, Jr., who recently announced he would not be a candidate to succeed himself in the General Assembly in which he served two terms from Guilford County, probably will run for Solicitor of the Twelfth Judicial District in the Democratic primary.

Mr. Turner has said that he will make the race if the incumbent, H. L. Koonitz, of Greensboro, does not run, but that if Mr. Koonitz seeks reelection he will not oppose him. Also in the race are George A. Younce, who resigned the post following the death of Sheriff J. A. Leonard for whose murder Younce was later acquitted; P. V. Crichton, of Lexington and possibly Gaston A. Johnson, of this city, who was defeated for the post two years ago.

THIEVES DRIVE AUTO FROM FORD SHOWROOM

Rockingham, Jan. 29.—Choosy automobile thieves have invaded Rockingham. Used cars that can be stolen from curbs do not appeal to them. Sometime around 3 a. m. Saturday they broke into the show room of H. A. Lee, Jr., and drove off with a brand new Ford coach. Local officers last night had not been able to obtain any trace of the car or thieves.

L-Y-L-A-H, PLEASE

Tomorrow night the 52nd birthday of President Franklin D. Roosevelt will be celebrated here at a ball to be held in the Campus building of Teachers College, the proceeds from the ball to be donated to the Warm Springs Endowment for the treatment of infantile paralysis.

Already much has been said about the affair and we do not feel that it is necessary to call it to your attention again, but here is just one request that the committee in charge would like to make.

It seems of late that most public dances here and in this section have been the scenes of much drinking, and certainly it is to be hoped that such will not be the case at the President's Birthday Ball here tomorrow night.

If President Roosevelt was having a personal birthday party tomorrow night and invited you to attend, certainly you would not carry a flask of liquor on your hip and deem it necessary to go out every few minutes to take a drink in order to enjoy the party.

While he cannot be present in person at tomorrow night's celebration here, the party is strictly in honor of our great President and for a cause that is close to his heart.

Of course, the large majority of persons who attend a function of this kind would not think of bringing liquor with them, but it will take only a very small minority to ruin the evening for all those present and bring disgrace upon an affair that is to honor our President and should be a credit to the city and section, and it is to this minority that we make this plea, L-Y-L-A-H. Leave Your Liquor At Home, Please.

POLITICS

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

In dealing with the NRA-Federal Trade Commission row and the veterans' compensation issue, President Roosevelt has given fresh proof that he may when to compromise.

More and more it is recognized in Washington that a large part of his influence over Congress arises from exactly that trait. Concededly an expert in assessing popular and political trends, he has succeeded thus far in avoiding entirely the impossible legislative situations which have plagued so many Presidents.

Commission Disappointed The Federal Trade Commission fire has been smoldering for a long time. The President took notice of it only when it began to appear that it might break into a spectacular conflagration.

When the national industrial recovery act was drafted, some of its authors felt the administering body should be the Trade Commission, which had been negotiating for years

BLOND GODDESS A New Serial by Herbert Jensen

SYNOPSIS: Frank Grahame, explorer, is sailing down the west coast of Yucatan in the launch of Don Egoz Ortega, who is, he suspects, the man who tried to kidnap Janice Kent, movie star, a few weeks before in Hollywood. Grahame is conducting a one-man search for Bill Lawson, aviator, who crashed months ago on the Yucatan coast. Frank has proposed to Janice and been refused. Ortega just has explained why he dodged a Mexican gunboat.

Chapter 18 QUARREL

ORTEGA glanced toward the firmly battered hatch. The young man laughed again. "I knew the gunboat was in these waters. I have a friend in the customs."

Grahame watched the vessel head toward the distant horizon. It occurred to him that Ortega's explanation was rather weak; also that he did not seem anxious whether Grahame believed it or not. The attitude of the big Mexican and his crew had been one of reserve the previous day; today it seemed that they felt toward him a new familiarity.

Perhaps Grahame's indifference toward Ortega's inference that there was good reason for his wanting to evade civilization had something to do with their affability. It did not perturb him at all. If Ortega's operations were illegal, they did not concern him, and it was none of his business.

At dusk they continued their journey. Once in the night Grahame was awakened by the stopping of the engine. For a half hour they rocked motionlessly on the sea as the lights of a steamer passed a mile or two distant, in the opposite direction. Grahame shrewdly suspected it was the gunboat patrolling back the way it had come.

The next day they rounded Cape Catache and sailed south. They passed some low-lying islands, and once several miles to their left a fruit liner overtook them and steamed on. It looked like a white gull hovering at horizon-level.

The day was uneventful. The crew took turns at the wheel, and Grahame and Ortega sat on the deck house and smoked. Grahame asked the big man when they would be at the island and was answered that it would be tomorrow. In the afternoon perhaps, Ortega seemed to be pondering.

"I was thinking," he said, "that your island would not be the place you want to go. It would be safer on the mainland."

Grahame smiled. "You told me it was unsafe on the mainland."

"But I have been thinking. I could use you at my hacienda. It would be hard work, often. And you could make some money."

"I have plenty of money." He caught Ortega looking at him appraisingly. "Still a man can always use more money."

Why not go with Ortega, he thought. After all, his idea was not to remain at the island, but to use it as a base at which he could make inquiries as to the mainland back of the coast.

Those that sailed along these barren beaches must be acquainted with many queer types that wanted nothing better than to go unrecognized and unquestioned.

"What is the interior like behind your place?" he asked.

Ortega shrugged his shoulders. "Nobody knows. No one has ever been there. Very dangerous."

GRAHAME made his decision. "I'll go with you to your hacienda," he said. "I won't promise to work for you, until I look it over. If I decide not to stay, I will pay you for my lodging and leave. All right?"

Ortega nodded and smiled a little as he looked at Grahame. "All right," he said.

Ahead of the launch a patch about a hundred yards in circumference showed yellow against the blue of the surrounding sea. Grahame thought it was a reef until the launch headed into it and stopped. The crew threw canvas buckets overboard and hauled them in brimming with clear water.

That night Grahame thought of Janice. It should have been that the distance that separated her from him would also tend to keep his thoughts of her equally far away. But it was not so. Her eyes, swept by their long lashes, looked directly at him.

He would have liked to have reached out and touched her shining hair. It was senseless to think about it. Here he was down along the coast of Quintana Roo, trying to forget her.

Excitement, adventure, were the caustics to apply to the wound she had dealt him. There was something in that country beyond the dull shore line that outsiders were not supposed to see. He was going in to look.

Langton's plane, buffeted by the southern hurricane, might have crashed in there. It was not beyond reasonable theory. Quintana Roo contained thousands of square miles that had not been inhabited since the dim centuries when pagan priests caused tall pyramids to be erected to their bloody gods. The wreckage of Langton's plane might well be hidden in there.

There might be other things hidden. He was going in soon to see.

THE launch slid between the roots of mangroves that gripped the shores of a lagoon which was like a narrow river except that the water was salt. They chugged along until they were two or three miles inland from the coast, when the passage widened into a lake several hundred yards in circumference.

They edged inward toward a small wharf extending at water level several yards into the lake. The water's edge back of the wharf had been cleared and in the clearing were several flimsy buildings of palm-batch. The launch was tied up at the wharf and the hatch unbuttoned.

Grahame helped with the unloading. As the first case slid from the deck to the pier he uttered an exclamation. The size and weight of the case was unmistakable.

Ortega and his two helpers paused to watch him.

"Someone is going hunting, I see," he remarked dryly.

Ortega's reply was equally ironic. "In this country," he said, "there is always hunting."

The unloading was accomplished without further comment. Grahame estimated that in the cargo there were cases containing at least two hundred rifles and a substantial amount of ammunition. Sufficient, certainly, to equip quite a little army, as numbers went in these countries.

He was puzzled, however, to know what a band of men bent on making trouble could do in this isolated part of Mexico. In the first place, the territory hereabouts was uninhabited according to all reports. Even if the man-power were available, it would be impractical for them to strike through the jungles to the nearest civilized state, which was Yucatan.

Furthermore, it would not be strategic to dominate Yucatan, since that state was isolated, more or less, from Mexico proper. Grahame knew enough of revolutions and their technique, to appreciate that element. Why, then, this warlike equipment landed at this point?

Ortega brought up the subject that evening. "There are Indians in the interior here that wish equipment with which to defend themselves. I know what you are thinking. You think because you have heard rumors of revolution in Mexico, that these guns are for the revolutionists."

"It is not so. True, there is a revolution brewing just now,—that is why I avoided the gunboat the other day. They are on the watch for smuggled arms and it would be embarrassing for me to be searched. But this cargo is to be used solely for defense. I have brought many such. I have been well paid."

"How do they pay you?"

"With gold," replied Ortega shortly, "and other goods. In the morning we will leave and go farther south. I wish to pick up another cargo, and return to Progreso. When I return here, these cases will be gone and the payment will be in a place I know of."

"I would like to talk to these people who come for your shipment."

Ortega's voice was harsh when he answered. "You cannot do that. Even I never see them—only one man, whom I meet south of here at Puerto Morelos. It is there I pick up my other cargo that I take to Progreso."

Although he never said so, many of the veterans' organization leaders had a notion during the 1932 campaign that Mr. Roosevelt, as President, would incline toward a liberalization of payments to former soldiers, possibly even favoring the cash bonus.

They were bitterly disappointed when he asked Congress to cut off millions of dollars in these allowances as a part of this economy program. The Republicans saw that and took quick advantage of it.

This was the one question on which, during the special session, the Republicans rallied 100 per cent of their strength, including the insurgents, against the President.

Mr. Roosevelt recognized the possible significance of such an alignment, and compromised. Now he has compromised again, revising his veterans' allowance estimate upward by some $20,000,000, just at a time when Republican leaders were threatening to revive the issue in a big way.

His latest action indicates clearly that he foresaw real trouble in Congress, and acted in advance to forestall any serious strain on the power of his leadership.

Some believe that, as matters now stand, the President has overestimated his influence with respect to the St. Lawrence treaty.

A good many chapters of that situation remain to be written, however.

Free Action for all 4 wheels.

plus the safety of a front axle and comfort of Cantilever Springs

A GREAT deal of thought is being given today to springs. Various experiments are being tried in an effort to get independent action for an automobile's front wheels. All of which is simply another tribute to the soundness of Ford engineering and the Ford V-8 for 1934. When you drive this car you get free action not only for the front wheels—but for all 4 wheels. Ford springs provide individual transverse cantilever suspension for both front and rear axles. In the new Ford these springs have been made more flexible. This type of construction is not experimental and has the advantage of unequalled comfort plus the proved safety of a front axle. This new Ford combines V-8 power with gasoline economy—20 miles to the gallon at a speed of 45 miles per hour, in exhaustive road runs. It will do 80 miles an hour without difficulty. At 50 or 60 miles per hour it is actually running at ease! This reserve power means acceleration unequalled by practically any other make of American automobile, regardless of cost. Before you buy ANY car at ANY price, drive the Ford V-8 for 1934.

UNC CAGERS CRIPPLED BY SICK PLAYER

Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 29.—Ivan Glace, regular center on the North Carolina basketball team, was in the University Infirmary today with a severe cold and a temperature of 101, making it highly improbable that he will be available to the team for its northern trip the first part of next week.

Glace's passing leaves the White Phantoms without a single tall center, only stands 6 feet 1 as compared with the 6 feet 4 inches of the lanky Glace, who has played some stellar ball this season, but was somewhat handicapped by his cold in the games with State and V. P. I. this week.

The loss of one of the centers is a particularly heavy blow, this being the position at which the Tar Heels are shortest in material. Bill Rankin, freshman center last year, was declared ineligible scholastically, and George Brandt, another letter candidate, had to drop basketball due to the press of his studies, leaving Glace and Beale the only two men available.

Herman Snyder, one of the leading candidates for fullback on the Carolina eleven, underwent an operation for appendicitis in Durham hospital yesterday, and may be lost to the squad for the remainder of the winter practice, it was learned today.

Breaking into the line-up in the middle of the last season, the hard-hitting 190-pounder, soon distinguished himself at line-busting and at backing up the line, and at the close of the season, rated as a near-regular. With his 180 pounds of weight and his rugged frame, the Monroe boy stood a good chance of meeting the new Coach Snavely's requirement for a big, driving fullback.

Being laid up for winter practice would not ordinarily be such a handicap to a veteran performer, but this year, when Coach Snavely is installing a complete new system, it assumes a new and added importance. Tar Heels supporters are hoping against hope that the big in at least the last few weeks of the fullback will be able to take part in at least the last few weeks of the off-season work.

DUKE CAGERS RESUME PLAY TUES. NIGHT

Durham, N. C., Jan. 29.—Duke University's cagers celebrate the end of mid-term examinations tomorrow night in Duke gym by meeting the Washington and Lee Generals in a Southern Conference basketball game.

Washington and Lee's biggest accomplishment this season was their victory over the University of Virginia quint which made such a fine impression on its recent trip into North Carolina, giving Carolina, Duke and N. C. State the bitterest of battles although bowing to each one.

Joe Sawyers, elusive halfback in football and a prominent track figure, has been leading the Generals from his forward position. Charlie Smith, center, and Chip Jones, guard, are another pair of fine performers. Washington and Lee will offer against Duke. Wilson at forward and Steinberg at guard complete the Generals' line-up.

An interesting sidelight to the affair will be the coaches of the two aggregations. Coach Cy Young of the Blue Devils are rated the two greatest athletes in Washington and Lee's history. In football Young was one of the greatest punters and drop-kickers in the country while Cameron was a line-smashing fullback of All-Southern calibre. Both were star basketballers.

The lay-off from practices during the exam period has been of great help to the Blue Devils. The epidemic of foot trouble has been stopped and the Duke cagers will enter the game with the Generals again in perfect physical condition.

It will be the first of two important games for the Blue Devil this week. After tomorrow night's encounter they will have several days to prepare for their encounter at Chapel Hill Saturday night with North Carolina State's biggest cage ncounter thus far this season.

Ample space has been set aside for spectators and those who can't dance or don't want to dance, were urged to attend and help honor one of the greatest chief executives the nation has ever had.

AYERS GIVEN 25-30 YEARS IN STATES PEN

 until the next morning. The charge consumed the greater part of an hour.

Cox, who was employed at a filling station owned by his half-brother, about a mile north of Greenville, was found shot to death on the old Stokes road. He was believed to have had $130 in his pockets when he left the service station about midnight December 7.

Two days later Ayers was arrested following an investigation by Sheriff Sam Whitehurst. A pistol was found under Ayers' bed. He admitted the gun belonged to him.

Two bullets taken from the dead man's body by officers were said to have been fired from Ayers' gun.

The sheriff also said tracks corresponding with Ayers' shoes were found at the scene of the crime, but only a few cents in change was ever recovered.

The ballistic expert, Lieut. J. A. Fowler, testified in the trial Friday. His testimony was one of the highlights of the hearing and proved the most important thing in connection with conviction of the defendant. He not only told the jury the bullets taken from Cox's body were fired from the gun, but backed up his statement with a demonstration of his skill in the courtroom.

Six bullets fired in the grand jury room were positively identified by the expert, and his statement was corroborated by two men who kept track of the bullets as they were fired.

Ayers contended he left the filling station before Cox closed for business and went to the home of his brother, a short distance away and spent the night. The brother testified that Ayers came to his home, but was unable to say whether he spent the night. As to the bullets missing from the gun found under his bed, Ayers said he fired one at a dog and the other at something else.

Cox's fiancée testified she was with him until about 9:30 o'clock the night of the slaying and that he had $130 in his possession at the time. They discussed marrying at an early date, she said.

Several other witnesses were presented by both State and defense. The case was one of the most interesting heard here in many a day and the courtroom was packed to overflowing each day.

Decrease Farm Loans.
 Washington, Jan. 29.—(AP)—A drop from $100,000,000 to $45,000,000 in the amount to be sought for crop production loans next year was agreed upon today between Chairman Smith of the Senate agriculture committee and W. I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration.

The regular amount was opposed by the administration.

Although Governor Myers said he was without authority to agree to any proposal the twenty-five senators and representatives attending the conference gave support to the Smith plan.

They also agreed that the interest rate should be 5 1/2 per cent, the same as last year, with an inspection fee of 50 cents for each loan application examined.

Individual loans would be limited to $250 with the administration having authority to allow large individual loans when it can be shown that $250 is not sufficient.

Man Kills His Mother.

Rocky Mount, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Claude W. Smith, 26, young Nash county farmer, was being held in the Nashville jail today charged with fatally wounding his mother, Mrs. W. T. Smith, 47, the mother of seven children, in Nash county today after an argument over use of the family car.

According to Deputy Sheriff J. H. Griffin, who investigated the shooting and arrested the boy, Smith seized a shotgun after he had been denied the right to use his father's car, and fired through the glass front door of his father's house, the load taking effect in the face of his mother. She died in a few minutes.

Griffin said that the boy was under the influence of liquor at the time. Young Smith is said to have fought with his father earlier in the day and showed signs of having been badly beaten, the officer said.

HEIGHT FOR MARINE ENLISTMENT REDUCED

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 29.—The minimum height for enlistment in the United States Marine Corps has been reduced from 68 to 64 inches, according to an announcement by Lieutenant-Colonel A. B. Drum, officer in charge of the Savannah office.

The acceptance of high school graduates for general service will continue at the Marine Office, Post-office Building, Savannah, Ga., during the month of February. A limited number of boys between the ages of 17 and 18 who have completed the eighth grade will also be accepted to learn the drum and trumpet.

A Marine has plenty of time for reading, recreation, sports and self-improvement. He has an equal chance to build up his body with athletics, or to improve his mind with study. His chief pride is in his efficiency as a military man.

Applications will be mailed from the Savannah office upon request to young men of this section who desire service with the U. S. Marines.

Professor to Supervise Farm Home Architecture

Manhattan, Kas.—(AP)—If the farm home architecture of the near future manifests important changes, something of the handiwork of Prof. H. E. Wichers of Kansas State College may show up in it.

Professor Wichers has been borrowed by the Federal Government for the job of national supervising architect, co-ordinating the work of sixteen district architectural offices in drawing farm housing plans adapted to the needs of the various sections.

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Futures opened firm, seven to ten points higher on active trade and commission house buying owing to the passage of the gold bill and in absence of heavy buying.

The opening demand carried the market up to 11.41 for May, making advances of about nine to twelve points on active months. But after the first spurt demand tapered off and the market became quiet. Offsetting were light, but prices reacted three or four points from the best and showed gains of six to eight points at the end of the first half hour.

The realizing attracted by the opening advances was absorbed on reactions of four to five points.

Prices eased late in the morning with May selling up to 11.43 and the general list showing advances of 12 to 13 points.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Stocks and staples looked on the bright side of the market today and prices maintained a steady to firm tone.

Shares of some of the rubber, metal, oil and tobacco companies moved up under varying influences. The activity was not much more pronounced than in Friday's session. There was intermittent profit-taking, but this failed to unsettle the list as a whole. Grains and cotton improved.

Wheat got up a cent or more a mushel at one time. The dollar was somewhat reactionary losing around two cents in terms of sterling. Bonds were quiet. Equities were not stirred unduly by the Senate's overwhelming approval Saturday of the administration money measure. The vote had already been taken for granted. Just how much stock may have discounted the action was a matter of conjecture. Late advances of one to two or more points were shown by several issues.

Transfers were 3,000,000 shares.

HORSE RADISH SAUCE ADDS FLAVOR TO FISH DISHES

Horseradish sauce improves whatever your fish dish may be. And if you find it difficult to get the smell of fish off your hands, a little dry mustard will do the trick. Washing soda in the water helps in cleaning the pan and the utensils you have used in cooking the fish—but do not use soda if your pan is aluminum.

 American tourists have trouble entering Italian cathedrals when wearing short-sleeved dresses. Consistent with this the Archbishop of Pisa has just noticed some nude figures on the great fresco of his cathedral, and has ordered that his ladies be draped.
