Cold Wave Causes Several Deaths In United States

SOUTHLAND IN THE GRIP OF ICY BLAST

Temperature in Parts Of North Carolina Reach Zero Mark; Chicago, Hardest Hit City of The Country, Feeds Thousands of Homeless Persons; Seven Deaths Reported There

(By The Associated Press)
Many sections of the Carolinas had the coldest weather in years today. The coldest report in the two States was from Caesar's Head, S. C., where there was an official reading of two below zero.

Asheville reported zero mercury early this morning, and on the opposite end of the State extremely hard freezes were recorded at Wilmington, Hatteras and other coastal points.

Wilmington had a reading of ten and Hatteras 16.

The mercury in Raleigh dropped to 8, the coldest day since the reading January 6, 1924.

The weather man said there were indications of continued cold, though though the temperature probably would go low tonight and early tomorrow as they did in most places last night.

Elizabeth City had a low of 8 degrees at 4 o'clock this morning. Fair skies and slowly rising temperatures were in evidence there.

Goldboro had an official low during the night of 8 degrees.

Lumberton reported six above, the coldest mark in seventeen years, and at Anderson, S. C., it was 10 degrees.

Durham had 5 above, the coldest mark there since the official record started in 1919.

(By The Associated Press)
The traditional "Sunny South" had its bright sunshine today, but along with it the coldest weather of the winter.

Apparently the coldest wave that has gripped the country was in sight as the Southerners shivered in low temperature as far as the Gulf of Mexico.

In the northwest temperatures were milder, and it was predicted to be warmer for part of the Central States during the day and for the East tomorrow.

In Chicago, apparently the hardest hit of the country's big cities, seven deaths were attributed to the cold snap and some 13,484 homeless men seeking relief from the seven below zero weather were driven to the shelter of the relief commission. Elsewhere there were additional lists of persons whose death were blamed on the cold.

INVESTIGATE FIRES BELIEVED INCENDIARY

Lexington, N. C., Jan. 30.—County officers were today investigating clues following the burning last night of a farm house belonging to Walter Hughes, farmer, about ten miles east of here. A barn on the same farm was burned Friday night, the latter fire following after the premises had been partially vacated by a tenant. Bloodhounds early this morning followed a trail some distance to where evidences showed an automobile had been stopped. Some of the tenant's belongings were lost in the barn fire. Officers indicated a motive of revenge is suspected with the guilty parties seizing their chance when the tenant vacated.

NEGRO GIRL FATALLY WOUNDED AT DANCE

Wilson, N. C., Jan. 30.—At a negro dance in Spring Hill Township Saturday night, Bill Rogers, 19, accidentally shot his sweetheart, Essie May Clay, 13. The injured girl was rushed to Wilson and died in the Mercy Hospital early Sunday morning.

One of the party desiring to dance with Rogers' girl, Rogers became enraged and whipped out a pistol, and while attempting to disarm him the girl was shot.

Today the people of the nation are wishing their leader, President Roosevelt, a happy birthday. The occasion is being celebrated at some 5,000 birthday balls from coast to coast.

Late News Flashes From Over World

To Control Stock Market.
Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Dis-trust of foreign powers and determination for federal control of the stock market were freely evidenced by the House today in Congress as the House today approved for speeding naval limits.

Sparting with its plans for deeper study of the stock market the Senate bank committee decided first to draft a control bill. If the President, which is almost sure of enactment, but lacking that there is no sure way of telling.

The Treasury recoiled to the Senate, which was listening to Senator Long for some time on Louisiana politics—that overdue war debts exceed $300,000,000.

Representative Britten, (R., Ill.) insisted in the House that European powers "are going to gyp America. Deceit is their diplomacy." He was arguing for the Vinson bill, already sure of passage.

Politics punctured the day, there being signs of rebellion among the House committees against taking administration orders. "Knowing" (Continued on page four)

SOVIET BAG SETS RECORD IN THE AIR

Moscow, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A Soviet civil aviation stratosphere balloon which took off on an unannounced ascension today was reported in a message from its crew to have reached a record height of 20,600 meters, or 67,585 feet.

The balloon was known as the Ozarkhim and attained the altitude at 11:59. Moscow time, or 4:29 a. m. Eastern Standard Time, a radio message from the bag said. The descent was being planned immediately.

At that position the temperature was reported at the time to be between 33 and 49 degrees below zero, or four below on the inside.

The message said all was well, and was flashed from the balloon to be followed by the additional word that visibility was so poor that they could not determine their exact position.

An airplane was dispatched from the Moscow military airport to help the crew locate their position.

TWO NEGROES SHOOT IT OUT, BOTH IN JAIL

Sanford, N. C., Jan. 30.—John Ford, Sanford negro who was shot by Wesley Phelps, policeman in Jonesboro early Saturday morning died at Lee County Hospital Sunday afternoon. Emanuel Burnett, negro, also of Sanford, who was shot by the officer at the same time, is recovering and will, it is thought, be able to leave the hospital shortly.

According to reports, the officer found the two men seated in a Buick car near Dixon's Filling Station in Jonesboro. He opened the door and ordered them to throw up their hands. Phelps claims that instead of complying, one of the men was apparently reaching for a gun when he opened fire on them. Ford was shot in the stomach and liver. Burnett's wound is not serious, so it is thought.

Robert Barrett Probably Seriously Injured in Young War Here Yesterday

Two negroes who "shot it out" in settlement of a dispute here yesterday were in the city jail today, one with severe shotgun wounds and the other without injuries.

They are Robert Barrett and Leroy Moseley. Barrett bore shotgun wounds in the face and arms, and while his condition was described as serious, physicians said he would recover barring complications. Barrett, according to information provided by arresting officers, went to Moseley's home to settle an alleged dispute over whiskey and opened fire with a pistol when Moseley appeared.

Moseley didn't like the sound of bullets whistling so close to his anatomy, so he dodged back into the house, procured his old reliable shotgun, stepped back to the door and let Barrett have it—a full charge of bird shot.

The charge found its mark and the next thing Barrett knew he was on his way to a doctor's office to have his wounds treated. Then both he and Moseley were carried down to the city hall to await court action.

NEW BILLIONS TO BE POURED INTO RELIEF

New Machinery For Emergency Program Rapidly Shaping up At Capital

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—(AP)—New machinery that may extend billions, altering in its course the nation's industrial and agricultural key, today advanced, in part, beyond the blueprint stage in the administration laboratory.

Among the developing plans were: A movement to shift hundreds of thousands unemployed from communities where once blooming industries have left them stranded into the open country or smaller communities where industries are moving.

A half billion dollar emergency program to aid the dairy industry throughout the country and to help cattlemen to locate principally in the West.

A new effort for modernization of homes that the Federal Home Loan organization hopes will send hundreds of millions into such channels for construction of new dwellings.

Movement on Capitol Hill to speed the appropriation of $950,000,000 for carrying on the Civil Works program at least until spring and providing fresh direct relief funds.

The mapping there and at the Labor Department of an unemployment insurance bill designed in the words of Secretary Perkins to do away with bread lines.

Consideration of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration of the possibility of applying compulsory program depending on further developments.

As word of these various developments of relief plans came from the Federal departments and agencies, the administration also prepared a swift devaluation of the dollar and the yielding of a two billion dollar stabilization fund.

New Monetary Bill Will Be Signed Today

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt will sign the devaluation bill at 3:30 o'clock today and promptly move to take over the nation's gold supply.

SHOT BY POLICEMAN, DIES FROM INJURIES

Sanford, N. C., Jan. 30.—John Ford, Sanford negro who was shot by Wesley Phelps, policeman in Jonesboro early Saturday morning died at Lee County Hospital Sunday afternoon. Emanuel Burnett, negro, also of Sanford, who was shot by the officer at the same time, is recovering and will, it is thought, be able to leave the hospital shortly.

According to reports, the officer found the two men seated in a Buick car near Dixon's Filling Station in Jonesboro. He opened the door and ordered them to throw up their hands. Phelps claims that instead of complying, one of the men was apparently reaching for a gun when he opened fire on them. Ford was shot in the stomach and liver. Burnett's wound is not serious, so it is thought.

A coroner's jury as been summoned by Dr. J. F. Foster, Lee County coroner, to investigate the shooting.

COAST BUFFETED BY NORTHWEST WINDS

Manteo, N. C., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Manteo winds of gale force buffeted the North Carolina coast today from Cape Henry to Hatteras, interfering with shipping and sending small craft to shelter.

The tug Barrenfork of Charleston, S. C., with one barge in tow, was anchored two miles off shore about ten miles north of Cape Hatteras tonight waiting for the wind and sea to subside. During the day the wind reached a velocity of forty-eight miles per hour.

The temperature at 7 p. m. was down to 18 degrees.

ROTARIES HONOR DEAD LEADERS

Former Presidents Ex-tolled at Regular Meeting of Club Here Last Night

Rotarians meeting in weekly session last night paid tribute to dead presidents of the local organization, and then heard a report on the Roosevelt Birthday Ball to be given at the Campus Building of East Carolina Teachers College here tonight.

The presidents lauded in brief addresses by various members of the club were Dr. C. J. Ellen, S. B. Underwood and W. L. Hall, each of whom served for the usual term of one year during the early life of the club.

Achievements of the officials were recalled and their examples were held up as a goal for the entire membership.

"Honest John Bryant" Kittrell, who is a member of the committee arranging for the Roosevelt ball here tonight, told of the progress that has been made in the campaign to induce large attendance and then urged every member of the club to be present.

President Roosevelt has accomplished much toward putting the nation back on the road to recovery. Mr. Kittrell told the Rotarians, and it is nothing but right that the nation should set aside the evening for paying honor to the illustrious son.

In addition to this purpose, he said, the ball is given as a means of raising funds for the Warm Springs Foundation for cripples. Everybody has heard something of the wonderful work being accomplished at the institution, he stated, and the more money raised through the ball, the greater will be the work of the institution in years to come. Plans for the annual celebration of the birthday of Rotary were discussed and the outlook for one of the greatest celebrations in years was in evidence.

SMITHFIELD BANK TO HAVE KINSTON BRANCH

Kinston, N. C., Jan. 30.—Announcement was made today that the First Citizens Bank and Trust Company of Smithfield will open a branch here, probably within a week. Permit for the branch was issued at Raleigh.

The bank, thirty-five years old, has resources of between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000. Kinston will be the largest town in the system. Branches have been operated some time at Dunn, Benson, Clinton, Louisburg, and one or two other places.

It is understood the quarters of the defunct Farmers and Merchants Bank will be used. They are among the handsomest in the section.

ROOSEVELT TO BE HONORED AT BALL TONIGHT

Brilliant Social Event To be Given at College Beginning at 9:30

President Franklin D. Roosevelt will be signally honored in Greenville tonight at the ball to be given in his honor in the Campus building of East Carolina Teachers College.

Arrangements for the ball have been under way here the last several days, and when the dance gets in swing tonight at 9:30 o'clock thousands of people are expected to be on hand to help pay tribute to the President—the most picturesque character of the age.

While the dance is being given in honor of the 52nd birthday of the President, there is another purpose attached to it—that of raising funds for Warm Springs Foundation for cripples, at Warm Springs, Ga., an institution founded by the President for the healing of those suffering from infantile paralysis.

This cause is dear to the heart of Mr. Roosevelt because of the fact that he was cured there himself, and it is his purpose now to create a great fund so that the institution may be able to operate along more extensive lines and care for more persons suffering from this cause.

The ball here will be of an informal nature and it will not be necessary for those attending to attire themselves in conventional evening dress. The committee passed on this important matter the latter part of last week so that everybody, whether they had proper clothing or not, could help honor the President in the most fitting way possible.

The Campus building has been attractively decorated for the ball and will be a thing of splendor tonight when the native sons and daughters of Pitt gather there to pay tribute to one of the greatest Presidents the nation has ever had.

Eddie Poole's orchestra of State College will provide music for the affair and this assures everybody of a treat. Other interesting features will be provided during the evening. Principal among them will be the radio address by President Roosevelt, prominent party leaders and radio and stage stars.

Tickets have been on sale here and in other sections of the county for the last several days, and while no definite report has been received it was believed hundreds have been disposed of.

Ample accommodations have been provided for spectators, and persons who do not want to dance need not feel they will be all by themselves, because indications are there will be plenty looking on at the dance from vantage points in the spacious building.

COUNTY COURT SITTING HERE

Numbers of Cases Clutter Docket as Work is Started During Morning

Sitting for the first time in two weeks, County Court, with Judge Dink James presiding, delved into a docket of approximately twenty-five cases this morning with indications that work would be completed during the late afternoon or early tomorrow.

The court was unable to sit the last two weeks on account of the civil and criminal terms of Superior Court presided over by Judge Frank A. Daniels, of Goldsboro, and numbers of cases cluttered up the docket during the period of idleness.

The majority of actions scheduled for consideration today consist of charges of violation of the prohibition law, reckless driving and larceny. Most of the cases were sent up from police court here, but several came from the mayor's court in other towns of the county.

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 30.—(AP)—A band of men early today lynched Robert Johnson, negro, held for investigation for an alleged attack on a white woman.

DOLLAR DAY NEXT MONTH

Semi-Annual Sale Event to be Given by Local Merchants in February

Semi-annual "Dollar Day"—a day of unheard-of values for shoppers of this part of the State, will be observed in Greenville next month. It was decided at a meeting of local merchants recently.

Although the definite date for the great sales event was not set, it was said at the time this would be decided upon within the next few days.

"Dollar Day" takes place here during the latter part of the winter and summer and always draws thousands of people from the surrounding trade territory. Merchants vie with one another to see which can put out the best values, and this year is expected to be no exception.

An increasing number of merchants were expected to take part in Dollar Day this year, and that means more values than ever offered here before will be available to the thousand of shoppers expected to attend.

COLDEST TIME IN YEARS HERE

Temperature This Morning Was Three Degrees Lower Than Last Winter

Greenville and Pitt county people shivered today in a temperature just one point less than the lowest record ever established here. E. T. Clark, government weather observer, stated this morning. The temperature stood at 9 above zero when the government bureau reading was made this morning, just one degree less than the lowest record established here several years ago. Mr. Clark said.

The coldest snap recorded here last winter, the weather man said, was 12 degrees above, lacking exactly three degrees being as cold as it was this morning when the citizenship poked their noses from under the cover, sniffed the frigid air, and ducked back into bed to get up nerve enough to make an emergence.

Coming on the heels of several days marked by spring-like temperatures, the cold snap caused considerable discomfort among the populace, and joy to the hearts of coal dealers, who have been doing land office business the last two days.

Old Man Winter rode into the community on a stiff wind Sunday night. The gale rattled windows and insecurely constructed houses, and caused wisecracks to wag their heads oracularly while predicting that "things were going to change." The weather man had been predicting the coming cold snap for several days and when it actually got here it was a whiff.

THOUSANDS OF MESSAGES ARE DELIVERED

Six Thousand Balls to Be Given in Honor Of The President Tonight; Roosevelt To Observe Occasion With The Same Old Party to Friends At The White House Tonight

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Even as other happy boys and men, President Roosevelt indulged in a birthday party—but one that swelled into national proportions as have few similar occasions.

More than 75,000 birthday greeting cards descended upon the White House. With mail and letters arriving by the basket loads, the President's aides said the number probably would total 100,000. Six thousand balls were being planned elsewhere.

Mr. Roosevelt had arranged for his own party. It will be as usual—with his close buddies of the 1923 Vice - Presidential campaign and members of his official staff.

Forty-two days the gang of 1923 has been planning for the yearly party, but the President was informed by the torrent of greetings that the rest of the country was taking a part, too, and he arranged to send them his personal greetings over the radio tonight at 11:20 (E. S. T.).

In the intimacy of the White House family, Mrs. Roosevelt and family set up today the big white cake with its 52 candles for the same old party the President has had for the last thirteen years.

BIRD SEASON EXPIRES 1ST

Hunters Violating Law will be Severely Punished. Game Warden Says

The bird season will expire in this county February 1, and persons who are found guilty of violation will be subject to court action. It was stated this morning by Cecil Jones, county game warden.

The warden said the law applied to all game birds and rabbits—and particularly to that most popular of all birds—the quail.

Several persons have been arrested in the county this year for hunting without license, Jones said, and they were carried into court and taxed with fines.

The entire county will be closely checked for violators of the game law when the hunting season expires, the warden said, and those found guilty of violation of the law will be dealt with to the fullest extent.

YEARS NO OBSTACLE TO JUDGE DANIELS

Judge Frank A. Daniels, presiding in Pitt County criminal court last week, showed clearly that youth is not always necessary if work is to be accomplished. Despite his more than 70 years Judge Daniels disposed of more than forty cases last week, one of the cases consuming a full day's time of the court and another taking three days, leaving only two days for disposition of the other cases.

"When is a man too old for usefulness?" is a topic that is often discussed, but Judge Daniels despite his years, is proving everywhere he goes that as a judge he can still render valuable service to his state.

SEE NORTH CAROLINA FIRST

"If our own people would learn to patronize to a larger degree these playgrounds of the coast, or the mountains, or the sandhills, it would not only be possible to build up the various projects in marked fashion, but a still greater number of people from elsewhere would be attracted to them. All of us believe in living at home and trading at home—it's equally good policy to play at home," says Carl Gerch in last week's issue of The State.

We agreed heartily with you, Carl, and would like to add a suggestion for a real campaign among North Carolinians to "See North Carolina First." Not only does our state have playgrounds to meet most any fancy, but from the coast to the mountains the state is rich in history, to say nothing of its scenic beauty. It should be a part of the education of every child and grown-up in North Carolina to visit each of the state's historic spots, likewise view the state's scenic wonders in order to know just how grand a state in which they live.

DRIVER OF DEATH CAR UNDER $2,500 BONDS

Salisbury, N. C., Jan. 30.—A jury under Coroner Tatum this afternoon investigated the death of Miss Effie Hartwell, of Concord, who was fatally injured Saturday when a coupe in which she and three other young people were riding ran into a parked truck on a street in China Grove. The jury ordered C. G. Harris, a young man of Concord, held for grand jury investigation. Harris was driving the coupe. He gave a $2,500 bond and was released.

BLOND GODDESS

A New Serial by Herbert Jensen

SYNOPSIS: Don Juan takes his bride, Frank Grahame, to his hiding place on the coast of France, and is explaining his "method," which is one of the "old-fashioned" ways of the "old-fashioned" type. Frank does not care, he is interested in trying to find his friend Bill Hamilton, the man who is supposed to have crossed some months before to the north coast, and to forgetting James Kent, the movie star, who may be coming to Mexico to make a picture, but who recently rejected Frank's proposal of marriage.

Chapter 19 NIGHT ATTACK

"WHAT cargo is that?" asked Grahame, idly, still pondering on the strangeness of this subofficial transaction.

"Cocaine," said Ortega. "It is very profitable. From Progress it is taken to the United States."

They were seated at the table smoking over the remnants of their meal. Grahame threw his cigarette stub away.

"I am not interested in dope running," he said. "But I would like to investigate the country back of here. You need not be concerned," he continued, half contemptuously as he saw Ortega's face darken. "You'll tangle yourself up sooner or later. No need for me to interfere."

Ortega rose and stood facing Grahame. Dawn was faintly tinging the ragged tops of the palm-trees back of the clearing when a dark figure drifted across the open space and disappeared into the shack that housed the American. Grahame lay in his hammock breathing evenly.

The figure approached the hammock and leaned over the recumbent man. There was a cry and a scuffle and Grahame's long arms shot out and gripped the stranger by the throat and wrist.

Still holding to the wrist, he snapped on his flashlight.

"It is I—Juan!" The whisper was hoarse and agitated. "Turn out your light, for the love of God!"

Grahame snapped the switch and dropped the light to the hammock. His free hand travelled over Juan. The boy's sheath knife was in its case.

"What is it?" he asked. He released the wrist he held.

"Ortega and Pedro. They stopped the launch at the mouth of the lagoon and are coming back over the trail to kill you. Don Raoul says you are an American spy. They left me at the launch, but I know a shorter way, and ran here to warn you."

"Why didn't you enter boldly?" "They may have gotten here before me, and would have killed me, too," replied the boy simply. Frank suppressed a chuckle.

Ortega's hand flashed to his holster.

hame. Through the open door came the sounds of his two companions as they busied themselves stacking the cases in an adjoining shack.

"You will leave with me in the morning," said Ortega distinctly. His hands hung loosely at his sides. Grahame remained seated, but hitched his chair around so that his feet were clear of the table.

"I stay here."

"As you will." The Mexican's hand flashed to his holster. Grahame lashed forward with his leg. Ortega cried out in pain as the toe of the heavy boot snapped against his wrist. His gun dropped to the floor and Grahame covered it with his foot.

"Next time," said Grahame, "you'll be really sorry."

He picked up the heavy revolver and tossed it on the table. Ortega glowered at him, his teeth bared in a half snarl. He held his wrist tightly with his other hand.

Grahame took up the revolver from the table and slipped it into his pocket. He strode to the door and turned. "I'm sleeping with your cargo tonight." He smiled a little grimly. "In the event I don't see you in the morning, adios."

HE GATHERED his dunnage at the launch and took it to the building where the arms were stacked. He unrolled his hammock and lashed it in place. He lay down fully dressed with his automatic ready beneath his hand and his flashlight in the other.

He could see a light glowing through the thatch from the other building, and heard the voices of the three as a low mumble. Later he heard them moving about outside.

The engine of the launch coughed and settled to a steady throbbing. Evidently they were not waiting for the morning's light to leave by. His thought was confirmed when he heard the slow grind of the reverse gear, and the quick chug of the launch under way.

The beat of the engine lessened, then grew fainter as distance swallowed his sound.

Grahame relaxed and closed his eyes. He dozed fitfully, however, his mind restless and wary. Fitfully he slept.

TWO figures loomed in the square made by the doorway, but about five yards distant from it.

Grahame threw himself from the hammock as two guns spat flame. He heard the thud of the bullets hitting the cases, then his own gun began to jump in his hand.

Above the crashes he heard one of the men cry out, then both melted from his gun sights. He jumped to the doorway. The two were fleeing toward the clearing's edge. He sighted on the back of the larger of the fleeing men, then lowered his gun.

He shrugged his shoulders and turned to the boy standing beside him.

"How are you, Juan?" he asked, throwing an arm over the lad's shoulders.

"I am all right." He drew a deep breath. "But very frightened, señor."

Frank grinned. "Well, so was I. But I suspect not half so much as our two friends."

He looked at the boy appraisingly, who gazed back at him with candid eyes. Despite the young fellow's assurance that he had been afraid, there was no trace of timidity in that straightforward look.

Frank said, "How old are you, Juan?"

"Sixteen, señor."

"Do you know the jungle back there?" He waved his arm in a direction away from the coast. "Have you ever been in there?"

"A little, señor. To shoot deer, or to trap the wild turkey."

"Would you go in there with me—even if it will take weeks to go only a few miles?"

Juan said thoughtfully: "It is very dangerous, señor. I would advise you not to go."

Vaguely Frank was disappointed. He said heartily: "Then you would rather not go with me. But that is all right. Here . . . I will give you some money, muchacho, for what you did for me this night, and you can head back toward the coast when you wish."

Again Juan gave him that level look.

"I did not say I would not go, señor. I said that it was dangerous."

STRIKE MAKES DINERS GO HUNGRY

All because M. Andre Fourgout, a chef, was discharged, some 600 waiters, bus boys, cooks and helpers went out on strike at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria in New York and temporarily deprived diners of their food. The union backing the chef said it wanted greater recognition and there was a threat of the strike spreading. Shown above are strike pickets. (Associated Press Photo)

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, D. C.—Washington observers are wondering if the famed "Roosevelt luck" will weather the storm which now seems to be gathering in intensity in the Senate over ratification of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty.

Debate on the treaty has been rocking along in the Senate now for days seemingly without much progress.

Indications are, however, that the administration will start applying pressure from now on in attempt to obtain the necessary two-thirds vote to put the treaty over.

Opponents of the treaty are getting ready for a determined fight, too. At the start they were confident that were a vote to be taken the treaty could be defeated easily. Now they are not so sure.

Their early confidence was based on the belief that the President's interest was merely casual; that there was little danger of the White House stepping in and waging an intensive fight for ratification.

But F. D. R. Is Active

It is being rumored about, however, that Mr. Roosevelt is prepared to use his influence to the limit in behalf of the treaty. It also has been hinted that recalcitrant Senators are being called to the White House and being told personally by the President how eager he is that the treaty be ratified.

The President's interest in the St. Lawrence waterway is of long standing. Shortly after his nomination for the Presidency last year he startled politicians of both parties by asking that President Hoover grant him an interview in Washington for the purpose of settling questions holding up the project. He suggested to Hoover the importance of securing "early and final action" for the project already has been too long delayed.

New Strategy Possible

If the President is to enter on a campaign of personal persuasion in behalf of the treaty, more than likely there will be a shift in the opposition's strategy.

The plan of stalling for time until interest in the treaty so subsides that a final vote could be avoided probably will be scrapped. All members of the opposition entertain a healthy respect for the Roosevelt power of persuasion. They know that if he gets a head start on them it might be difficult to stop him.

Some observers, therefore, believe that opponents of the treaty will attempt to push ahead with as much speed as possible and so load down the pact with reservations that, even if passed, Canada would refuse to accept it.

Strengthened By Cardui

"Just after the birth of my son, I was weak and nervous," writes Mrs. W. H. Hannon, of Tulsa, Okla. "My back ached, I didn't get my strength back until I had taken Cardui. It seemed to build me up and give me strength. I was less nervous. Since that time, I was irregular. Not knowing anything better than Cardui, that is what I took, with good results. It settled my nerves, built up my strength. I have a good color, do all my work and feel fine thanks to Cardui."

In Appreciation.

Counteracting the great vacancy which has continued to persist in spite of the passage of brief time, we feel that we to public homage to one who has exercised such a wholesome influence on our community and so stimulating an effect on our personal lives as Mr. G. B. W. Hadley has done. He has left behind him an empty role in the drama of Christian living which will be hard to fill again. But the exalting personality of this man would have us strive continually toward higher achievements. Truly, his life has not been lived in vain. As reaper of a fine family, as citizen of Greenville, as steward of the church, as co-worker in all worthy undertakings, Mr. Hadley has set the ideal. We strive to attain it; we persist in our endeavors; we fix our gaze and attention on the higher values of life, pursuing them seemingly in vain at times; we acknowledge our own inadequacies. All this. Yet somehow we, who have watched a fellow-citizen attain victory in his other endeavors and more difficult fights of life, are made aware of the possibility of such attainment. Such has been Mr. Hadley's influence.

Here was a man who did not strive to become famous, but by his ever ready help and sagacious advice to anyone who sought his counsel, he won immortality in the minds of all his associates. Surely he may have said, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith."

We extend our heartfelt sympathy to those of his personal circle of friends and especially to his wife and family. May God enable them and our entire community to realize the great truth—that we have not lost; we have merely been momentarily deprived of his personal contact and resulting stimulation. We have witnessed a life with a purpose; we have beheld the goal attained; we have marveled. We have seen that man is not a subject to the whims of the Fates and the physical universe, but that through striving he can conquer, vindicate, and, in turn, be exalted. We have witnessed the invincible combination of work and faith in God and humanity. Let us in one accord acknowledge our gratitude to God for such an exemplary life and strive to complete again the cast of life's drama so that the crusade against crime, suffering, poverty, illiteracy, and civic degeneracy may be continued—unabated but more fervently devoted to the highest ideals typified by the life of George B. W. Hadley.

First Church of Christ, Scientist.

"Truth" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, January 28.

The golden text was from Deut. 32:4: "He is the Rock, his work is perfect; for all his ways are judgment; a God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is he."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands. Serve the Lord with gladness; come before his presence with singing; for the Lord is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations." (Ps. 1, 2, 3).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The author subscribed to an orthodox creed in early youth, and tried to adhere to it until she caught the first gleam of that interpenetrating God as above mortal sense. This view rebuked human beliefs, and gave the spiritual import, expressed through Science, of all that proceeds from the divine Mind. Since then her highest creed has been divine Science, which, reduced to human apprehension, she has named Christian Science. This Science teaches man that God is the only life, and that this Life is Truth and Love; that God is to be understood, adored, and admonstrated; that divine Truth casts out suppositional error and heals the sick."

The World of Stamps

By QUINCY JAMES

Locked in a vault day and night there is in New York probably one of the world's outstanding stamp collections.

A stamp reference library, it is in daily use by the comparatively few who know the combination to the vault, but so valuable is it regarded that the doors are open only long enough for the inspector to look up the stamp about which he desires to obtain data.

Comprehensive

The collection is in approximately 80 volumes, bound in the finest of morocco. Each volume is of the loose leaf variety, containing unprinted pages upon which the stamps and information about them are placed in order. The stamps are on one side of the page, and various countries and their colonies often take up more than one volume.

Originally the collection belonged to John N. Luff, of New York, but fourteen years ago it was purchased by the Scott Company, in whose vaults it now rests. Technically Mr. Luff still is in charge of the collection as a "general librarian."

Much of the data, in pencilled notations, was gathered and written therein by him. Now in his 72nd year, he is regarded as one of the greatest living philatelists.

Mr. Luff began collecting so long ago that he has almost forgotten the date.

While this "master" collection contains many of the rare stamps of the world, both of the nineteenth and twentieth century—not all of them are there by any means because, of some, there are only a copy or two known—its greatest value lies in the reference information it makes available.

Where the rare stamps are not present there are photographs of the original copies, clear and sharp for checking purposes. In numerous instances, too, there are whole sheets of stamps, or photographs of them.

Every country which has issued stamps, including the United States,

Sundown Stories

Wicked Yellow Eyes

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Before long," said Willy Nilly, "I must manage in some way to drag my automobile Two-Ways out of that snow bank where we were stuck before we visited Santa Claus. I haven't as yet finished putting the house in order; and if I put a new wick in an old lamp from the cellar we can have one to take the place of the lamp that was smashed in the storm."

"As it is now," said Rip, "I have to carry the upstairs lamp wherever we want to go in the house. Then I simply must not put off attending to my sticking-out, pointed ears."

"It tires me to hear of all you must do," said Christopher Columbus Crow. "I believe I'll fly around the countryside for a change."

"I do believe you'd work better if you were left to yourself," said Top Notch.

"I'll go over and hear what the news is in the next barnyard. After all, it is a treat for everyone when I go visiting, for I come back and tell the news."

"I might be of some help to you," said Rip. "But," he added quickly, "as he longed for a ramp, 'I'd probably only be in the way.'"

"Yes," agreed Willy Nilly, "all of you go along and have a good time. Only don't get into trouble or I'll ever finish my chores."

Willy Nilly fixed the lamp and made the place look fairly neat, but there was still a great deal to do. As it became dark he felt he had worked hard enough and was glad when the others came back for supper. Only Top Notch was very late and he came in trembling.

"Wicked yellow eyes," was all that he could say.

Tomorrow—"Top Notch's Story"

in the reference information it makes available.

Where the rare stamps are not present there are photographs of the original copies, clear and sharp for checking purposes. In numerous instances, too, there are whole sheets of stamps, or photographs of them.

Every country which has issued stamps, including the United States, is represented from the first stamps to date.

Among some of the unusual copies in the group are the rare Moldavian stamps comprising the early issues of Rumania and the "Hawker" air mail post of Newfoundland, representing the first stamp ever issued for use on mail in a trans-Atlantic flight.

The Moldavian stamps, issue in 1858, show the coat of arms, consisting of a Bull's head above a post horn, the 31-parale stamp of the set being catalogued at $5.500. The "Hawker" airpost, rated at $1,000 today, was issued in April, 1919.

In addition the collection contains the postpaid Mauritius 1 mte early, intermediate and late stages of the plate from which they were printed.

It requires no crystal-gazing, of course, to note that Dartmouth football will follow the intricate outlines of the Warner System this fall under the new coaching regime headed by Earl (Red) Blaik, erstwhile Army strategist, assisted by the popular "Fats" Ellinger and Andy Gustafson.

Gustafson played under Warner at Pittsburgh before "Pop" went out to Stanford. Blaik and Ellinger joined Major Ralph I. Sasse when the Army staff took a personal course of instruction from Warner prior to installing the wingback vogue at West Point. Two straight shellacks absorbed at the hands of Stanford teams satisfied the soldier strategists that it was the type of offense they wanted.

They have done pretty well with it ever since at West Point, with Blaik schooling the backs and kickers while Ellinger devoted his talents to fast, low-charging lines.

No doubt Dartmouth men, who have yet to see their team beat Yale, made due note of the neatness and dispatch with which Army teams bearing the Blaik-Ellinger coaching stamp disposed of the Elis in the past two seasons.

Together Again
The addition of Marchmont Schwartz to the University of Chicago football coaching staff under Clark Shaughnessy marks the curious crossing again of two trails that diverged in the Old South.

Down around his home in Bay St. Louis, Miss. Schwartz acquired a schoolboy reputation on the gridiron. In the natural course of events he was attracted to Loyola University, at New Orleans, where Shaughnessy was the head coach. Marchmont had not been doing his stuff for long with the freshmen before one of the alert scouting outposts of Notre Dame had him under observation.

Soon it developed that Schwartz was anxious to prepare himself for a law career. Where better to pursue the intricacies of Blackstone, while also practicing the elusive art of the pigskin, than at Notre Dame? So Marchmont packed his grip, took a train for South Bend, became the climax runner of Knute Rockne's last team and made the All-America line-up of 1930-1931.

Now, with a law degree and a thorough football education, Schwartz can pay the interest on an obligation to his old coach, who did not stand in the way of the small town star who wanted to make good in the big leagues of football.

Shake-Up For Cornell?
The economic experiment of giving the games back to the boys has been followed at Cornell University by undergraduate agitation for a wholesale shake-up in the athletic system. While Yale's alumni have been the most vociferous element in the demands for a new deal in athletics at New Haven, the Cornell Daily Sun, student newspaper, has taken the initiative in a campaign to oust the present regime in favor of a new director of athletics who will revise and revive Cornell's sports operations.

Championship trophies cluttered up Cornell's premises until about ten years ago. Big Red teams have declined since then, for the most part, except for the rowing revival that led to a Poughkeepsie varsity victory in 1930, after a long lapse. Cornell hasn't had a really formidable eleven since George Pfann's unbeaten 1923 team, a winning cross-country squad since 1921, an outdoor track championship team since 1919 or a basketball title-holder since 1924.

Late News Flashes

one representative called it. Democratic leaders of both congressional branches seized upon a speech of Ogden Mills, former secretary of the treasury, for criticism. Robinson of Arkansas, of the Senate, called it a harbinger of the Republican presidential candidacy. Arm waving Huey Long in the Senate at length assailed charges of the committee on the security of politics in Louisiana, saying the committee had found Overton "as clean as the angel ghost." Encouraging facts were given in the joint bill to make cattle a basic commodity under the farm act and the Vinson-Trammel treaty naval measure, the former given formal approval in the House, and the latter the same boost in the Senate. The monetary decision was quelled for the time being because of the Roosevelt bill becoming law this afternoon with the President's signature.

Ice Front Disrupting
Bay Whale, Antarctic—By way of Makay Radio—The four mile ice front of the Bay of Whales, where Admiral Byrd and his antarctic expedition are on attempting to land supplies for winter camp from the Flagship appeared to be disrupting.

Insull Gets 10-day Extension
Athens, Greece, Jan. 30—(AP)—The ministry of interior indicated today that Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities operator would be given a ten day extension of his permit to remain in Greece when it expired at midnight tomorrow. What official decision has been taken was not announced but the minister of the interior said he believed the extension would be accorded. His statement followed conference withheld with Premier Teldaris.

Tells of Plane Trip

Washington, Jan. 30—(AP)—James A. Farley, postmaster General and Chairman of the Democratic National Committee told senate investigators of a trip to Texas by himself and others in a plane owned by a mail contractor. But said he never would do it again. Appearing before the air mail inquiry committee to testify concerning the alleged absence of record of Walter Brown, former postmaster general, he was subjected to sharp cross by Senator Austin Representative from Vermont minority member. Farley said he wasn't responsible for the details of what happened after he commissioned a gentleman from Texas in the department to arrange the trip.

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 29—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady four to six advance on higher Liverpool cables and commission house and trade buying.

There appeared to be some after buying of foreign accounts. The advance extended to 11.45 for March and 11.77 for July contracts during the early trading while May sold up to 11.16 or 8 to 10 higher.

This carried the market back 4 points of the mid-January high which attracted considerable realizing. Little southern selling was reported but offerings were sufficient to cause moderate reactions. After selling off from 11.45 to 11.33 March rallied to 11.41 and was holding around 11.38 with the general list showing advances of two to six points.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 30—(AP)—Stocks dipped into high-gear today and the upward trading rush in the early hours attained a momentum equal to some of the sessions of the 1933 spring-summer revival.

Bids by the rails and industrials share groups were pushed to two or more before profit-taking touched down some of the extreme gains. The advances was variously attributed to final action to the President's gold bill with its inflationary implications on the one hand and dollar stabilization on the other.

Increased demand for favorite issues put the ticker seven minutes behind transactions at one time and trading in the first two hours exceeded 2,000,000 shares. Grains, cotton and other commodities did not take part in the demonstration, although most were fairly steady. The dollar held to a narrow groove in foreign exchange dealings. Bonds were mildly improved.

The late tone was firm and advances of one to two or more were shown by some issues.

New Books

By JOHN SELBY
New York—At least two publications this week are of real importance.

Most esoteric is that of "Ulysses," James Joyce's twelve-year-old masterpiece. "Ulysses" has been, of course, bootlegged in this country for years, and pirated editions have been produced for sale (sub rosa). Now a judge has decided the book is not pornographic, and may be exposed for sale.

The literati know the book well. Many of them have stolen one or another idea, or said a dozen from it. "Steam of consciousness" has been made a literary by-word by Joyce, and whole literary styles have been taken from it. Now the general public is to have its chance. It will be very amusing indeed to see what effect this story of a Dublin day will have; what Mr. and Mrs. Jones of Sauk Center will think of Rudolph Bloom's musings, for example.

Work of Art

The other high important event is the publication of Sinclair Lewis' new "Work of Art," first novel since "Ann Wickers," which was released with tremendous drum-thumping last year. The new book is, many readers will feel, much more effective in every way than its rather strained and redundant predecessor.

It is also another example of the unpredictableness of Mr. Lewis. He now is treating sympathetically a type he has castigated to whom time—namely, the man to whom business is a passion. Myron Weagle is the name, and Myron is a hotel man.

Myron loves keeping a hotel. It is a sort of holy office to him, and he works at it with the absorption of which one might expect only a poet or a great musician of Mr. Lewis' previous novels.

Ora Weagle, his brother, is a poet, and a literary hack, and the writer of a successful novel, and finally the recipient of fame and fortune from the radio and the movies. Yet Ora does not satisfy Mr. Lewis.

Indeed, he introduces Ora in the course of an adolescent poetic frenzy on the red tin roof of his father's small Connecticut hotel, and he is sarcastic about him throughout. This represents a considerable change of attitude on Mr. Lewis' part, which also is probably important.

But the book as a whole is Mr. Lewis on his most entertaining and impish level, which is more important yet. Even the thousands of words about hotel keeping are lively reading.

Great Artists

Three biographies of great artists also are out this week, the one that hits closest home being John Tasker Howard's painstaking and often entertaining story of Stephen Foster's life.

Another is "Paderewski," a long biography of the great Polish pianist-statesman by his more than admiring friend, the late Charles Phillips. And the third is Maurice Barling's "Sarah Bernhardt," in which Mr. Barling confines himself (generally speaking) to the artistic career of the actress, and passes over many of the details of her private life.

Just to change the subject completely, one might mention "Whiskey," by Aeneas MacDonald. There have been enough books on wines lately to fill a good-sized wine cellar; this is the only one on whiskey to have come to this desk. It tells all about the subject, too. Lastly, Irvin's Cobb's daughter, Elisabeth, blossoms out as a novelist with "She Was a Lady." She takes her heroine through some interesting experience, makes her an estrienne in a small-town circus and the come-on half of the old badger game partnership, but in the end falls back on the old suspense getter: What to tell the man she loves about her past?

How Are YOUR Nerves?

Whatever your job or position in life, healthy nerves are worth any effort. Yet with many of us jangled, irritated nerves are only too well known!

Check up on your habits—your eating, your sleeping, your recreation, and your smoking. Countless people have turned to Camels and are enjoying a new freedom from jangled nerves. And they are urging their friends to join them!

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand.

You'll like the taste... the remarkable mildness... of Camel's choice-quality tobaccos. And you can enjoy Camels steadily... hour after hour... without nervous irritation, or the aftertaste associated with the flat or "sweet" type of cigarette.

So change to mild, rich, good-tasting Camels, they never get on your nerves... never tire your taste.

"MOTHERS NEED HEALTHY NERVES, TOO, MISS WIGGINS."

Mrs. F. R. Bruce, Larchmont, N. Y. Mother, says: "Healthy nerves are important to me, too. Meeting infinite demands with patience and unruffled nerves—that's a mother's job. And one who is 'on edge' with nerves cannot create a happy home. Smoking is one of my chief enjoyments. I have found that the choice, more expensive tobacco used in Camels never upset my nerves—and I prefer their rich, mild flavor."

Miss Mary Wiggins, America's most daring Stunt Girl, says: "I have to be sure my nerves are healthy to do my stunts. As to smoking, I've found that Camels are milder, better in flavor, and do not give me 'edgy' nerves, even when I am smoking a lot."
