Japan Declares Her Naval Power Better Than U. S.

DIET CHECKS ON STRENGTH OF AMERICA

Admiral Osumi, Head of Navy, Says Japan Will Have Superior Strength in Cruisers, Destroyers and Submarines at End of 1936; No Other Power Mentioned in His Report But United States

Tokyo, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Admiral Mineo Osumi, Minister of the Navy, stated to the House of Representatives today that Japan's strength of cruisers, destroyers and submarines will be slightly superior to that of the United States at the end of 1936.

The admiral's statement was presented in response to questions about the relative sea power of America and Japan.

The admiral did not mention any other power, but confined himself to a comparison of the Japanese and United States navies at the end of 1936 when the present naval treaties may possibly expire.

The figure assumed completion of the present Japanese naval program for which appropriations in the 1934-1935 budget are up for discussion of the Diet as well as the United States program as approved by the United States Congress, exclusive of the Vinson bill.

When Hill drove into Kinston officers examined the horse and found that partly-cast shoes had cut its ankles, inflicting painful injuries. Hills was arrested and held for recorder's court.

Late News Flashes From Over World

Today In Congress. Washington, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Two contrasting undercurrents in Congress burst to the surface today in a manner that forbade a necessity for administration reconsideration of returning more than a third of the federal pay cut and of hope to placate patronage demands. A committee of senators favored re-ordering the five per cent pay cut effective tomorrow, and another third of the 15 per cent slash in July. President Roosevelt advocated that only the one-third be put back in July. More legislative dickerings is due before any decision.

CITY HONORS PRESIDENT AT BIRTHDAY BALL

Nearly Two Thousand People Attend Gala Event at Teachers College

Greenville and Pitt County people last night joined the rest of the country in paying tribute to President Franklin D. Roosevelt with a birthday ball given in the Campus Building of East Carolina Teachers College.

The affair, generally agreed to be one of the best ever given here, was attended by a crowd estimated at nearly two thousand. Part of this number sat in the spacious balconies and watched the entrancing ballroom scene below and the remainder whirled about the floor as thousands of others were doing in other parts of the country.

The building had been beautifully decorated with pine, and national colors, and a huge imitation birthday cake, brilliantly lighted, adorned the stage. The cake, a three-decker was electrically lighted, and was the cynosure of all eyes throughout the evening.

Music was provided by Eddie Poole's orchestra of State College and the two figures of the evening were led by Mr. and Mrs. J. B. James.

Promptly at 11:20 o'clock the dance was halted for the address by President Roosevelt from Washington City. The President thanked the nation for the tribute paid him, and declared it was "the happiest time of his life."

He told of the wonderful work being done at Warm Springs, Ga., for children suffering from infantile paralysis and declared the main purpose of the ball was to raise funds to help the institution render greater service to the nation in this respect.

The address came to the crowd through a radio which had been installed on the stage several feet above the dance floor, and was plainly audible in every section of the building.

The huge auditorium, one of the largest in this part of the State, never formed a more entrancing appearance than it did last night with brilliantly costumed men and women swaying to the dance numbers rendered by the orchestra seated on the stage. It was one of the most orderly and genuinely happy affairs ever witnessed here and was truly in keeping with the spirit of the occasion, honoring as it did the 52nd birthday of one of the greatest Presidents the nation has ever had.

If it made Mr. Roosevelt happy to be thus honored in 5,000 cities and towns of the nation, then it evidently made the people much happier to have a part in paying this tribute to him. Smiles wreathed every face during the evening and the spirit of good-will which has emanated from the White House since the inauguration of Mr. Roosevelt was in evidence everywhere. The dancers felt like they had the President himself with them, evidently taking him at his word when he told them over the radio that he hoped his spirit would be at every party and ball given in his honor.

Although the total amount of money raised here had not been determined today, a full check was being made of ticket sales in the various towns and it was expected the amount would be known by nightfall. This money will be turned over to the Warm Springs Foundation and will be used in helping mend frail little bodies and get them in condition to go out into the world and become useful citizens.

Readings are made each morning at 8 o'clock. The observer said indications were that the mercury would begin climbing sometime today and that more comfortable temperatures would be the order of the day tomorrow.

The temperature yesterday lacked one degree of reaching the lowest mark ever recorded here, Mr. Clark said, and was three degrees colder than the coldest period last winter.

Bursting water pipes and radiators were evident on all sides yesterday, and similar occurrences were noted today.

While the cold seige brought discomfort to the entire community, cold dealers who had been suffering for lack of business because of the spring-like temperatures which had prevailed since the holidays, were jubilant and coal-laden trucks rumbled from one part of the city to the other, filling urgent demands of the citizenship.

The cold snap rode into the community on winds of almost gale-like proportions Sunday night and when the city awoke yesterday morning and sniffed the frigid air, it was with reluctance that warm beds were left for the biting temperatures that held the outside world in their grip.

It may be days before milder temperatures return, but the community has the word of the weather man that moderation may be expected today with the mercury rising above freezing point.

Weather conditions were little better yesterday, but the workers cleared as much marshland as on any day since the project was begun.

Three Men Are Found Dead In Ship's Gondola

Injured In Capture

London, Jan. 31.—(AP)—A message to the British News Agency said today the three occupants of the Russian stratosphere balloon "Osoaviakhim" were found dead in their gondola at the village of Potiuski, U. S. S. R.

Moscow, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Reports that a sudden windfall had dismembered the Soviet "Osoaviakhim" and dashed its crew of three men to death, filtered into Moscow today. The reports were not immediately confirmed.

The balloonists apparently were attempting to land at the time of the reported disaster after having climbed to an altitude of 67,585 feet. That height, if correct, was the highest record ever reached by man. The unconfirmed story of the tragedy said the wind had wrecked the gondola and that the bag and the men had dropped to the ground, killing them instantly.

Nothing had been heard from the balloon since last night when they sent a wireless message it was trying to find a landing place in a heavy fog.

NATION PAYS FINE TRIBUTE TO ROOSEVELT

Chief Executive Honored at 5,000 Dances In All Sections of The Country

(By The Associated Press) America danced into the dawn today to give its President the "happiest birthday" he has ever known. After the ball was over—the 6,000 or more balls that were held in every State and Territory of the Union—a fund that may reach $2,000,000 was held forth to the President for the benefit of sufferers from infantile paralysis. Figures that are official will not be available for several days, for the committee in New York, which directed the amazing party honoring the anniversary of Franklin Delano Roosevelt's birthday, asked the thousands of committees in telegraphic orders to include attendance statistics.

A canvass by The Associated Press today showed that celebrants numbered more than a million and that receipts would exceed $1,000,000. Democracy keyed the night.

Swells in tall coats and lumberjacks in flannel shirts, lovely ladies with jewels about their necks, Indian squaws with babies on their backs, white man and negro, Eskimo—all danced at the President's birthday party which had forty-eight States and Alaska for its floor.

WOUNDED MAN SHOWS SOME IMPROVEMENT

Washington, N. C., Jan. 31.—Sam Ricks, age 53, well known farmer of Route 3, Washington, who was shot in both legs Monday around 1 o'clock by Gotha Leggett, aged 25, showed a slight improvement last night. He is confined to the Tayloe Hospital where he was carried several hours after the shooting.

Ricks was practically pulseless through the day, but was given a blood transfusion late yesterday. Blood was furnished by Willie Carraway, a neighbor. Since then Ricks has rallied slightly. It is possible to operate his right leg will be amputated above the knee today or Thursday.

After the shooting Mr. Ricks lay in the middle of the road about a quarter of a mile from his home until found by Dave S. Langley, a neighbor. He lost a quantity of blood.

COLD HALTS CWA PROJECTS

Construction Work in This County Given Temporary Setback This Week

The cold wave which has swept over this section of the State the last two days has cut into activities of the Civil Works administration projects in virtually all sections of the county. K. T. Futrell, local administrator, made known today.

Construction work which had been making good progress in all sections has been temporarily halted because of the frigid temperatures. Mr. Futrell said, but will be resumed as early as possible. He said the workers would be permitted to make up hours lost because of the cold.

Only one new project had been approved in this county the last few days, the administrator said. This called for continuation of drainage on Contentine Creek in Farmville and Beaver Dam Townships. The cost of this project was estimated at $3,000.

While the weekly pay-roll of CWA workers has been reduced because of curtailed hours, around $13,000 was paid out here last week.

PNEUMATIC-TIRED TRACTORS REDUCE OPERATING COSTS

Lincoln, Neb.—(AP)—Approval of pneumatic rubber tires for farm machinery—in place of steel rims and lugs—is hailed by a University of Nebraska expert as "revolutionizing" farming procedure in some respects.

Prof. C. W. Smith, after noting results of tests by rubber-tired tractors and other machines on the proving grounds of the agricultural college here and in the corn and hay fields of real dirt farmers, said the balloon tires enabled tractors to cover more ground in a given time and use slightly less fuel.

 Chapter 20
MEXICAN MOVIE
HORATIO GREENE was disconsolate. For the first time in his life he felt somewhat at a loss. Mexico was uncivilized and not at all helpful.
 Everything had gone wrong that day and indications were that the balance of the afternoon would be equally baffling. Janice was fretful with him in the heat of the tropic afternoon. Hogarth, the director, had damned him for an ass because his Spanish had not been adequate for the Progreso customs officials who had pawed over their cameras and equipment.
 And this despite the official permissions he had secured in Mexico City en route to Yucatan. McGrath, the production manager, should have done that. McGrath should have been at the dock to meet them, McGrath, who had taken a previous boat, should have done a thousand and one things he had not done, and now everything was balled up.
 "I'll bet," he rapped at Hogarth, "that he never was here at all. I'll bet he's swilling beer in some joint back in Tia Juana, or some other place a couple of thousand miles away."
 "Yeah?" said Hogarth wearily. "What's beer in Spanish?"
 "Corveza," snapped Mr. Greene. "God knows what it is in this dialect."
 Hogarth strolled off. "Hey, where're you going?" called Mr. Greene. "We're not through with these boxes yet."
 Down the street a ramshackle sign hung out into the street. In crude but unmistakable letters it read "Corveza." Hogarth was headed toward that sign. Evidently he had learned his first word in Spanish and was making use of the knowledge.
 Green turned wearily to his boxes. Later he visited Janice at the American Consulate where he had left her. She was sitting dreadingly on the veranda, in a broken-backed wicker chair.
 "Consul back yet?"
 "No. I don't think he's coming either. This place looks as if it had been closed for weeks. Did you find McGrath?"
 Mr. Greene exploded.
 "Please," asked Janice.
 "Excuse me," apologized Mr. Greene. "I'm all hot and bothered. Damn this country. Nothing goes right. Nobody knows where McGrath is. Nobody ever heard of him. I got all our stuff in the customs house and they sock me plenty duty."
 "I went to a place they call a bank and they refused to cash my drafts, so finally I went to a sort of grocery store and the fellow told me—he speaks pretty good English—to hunt a dude up who was last seen walking toward a wharf."
 "It took two hours to find him, but he cashed my drafts all right. That's the only break got. Hogarth and the two camera-men are getting drunk at some bar, waiting until the train starts for Merida."
 "Is that where the ruins are?"
 "No. That's the capital of this country or state or whatever it is. We make our headquarters there. The ruins are a day's ride farther on. Why they wanted to come to this country I over my head. They can build sets better and cheaper than this location will cost."
 "McGrath and Hogarth felt that we wanted authentic and accurate backgrounds."
 "Those fat heads! The only thing authentic they wanted was the liquor."
A REEDY and phlegmy whistle sounded. Mr. Greene mopped his face with a wet handkerchief and observed that they'd better get going as the train was coming. They took them to Merida, an hour's ride from the coast.
 "If it's all right when we work at the ruins," he grumbled, "we'll need asbestos grease-paint. The Kleenex got no use on the sun."
 They boarded the train. The day was cooling, the approach of dusk and the short quick shower that spattered them as they loaded the boxes, made the air appreciably more comfortable.
 three-year limit only if a two-thirds majority of each House was prepared to ride down a presidential veto of a repeal measure. After the limit expired the slightest sort of majority in either House could block re-enactment of the legislation.
 As the bill went roaring through the House it was permanent legislation. Short of presidential assent or a veto revolt in both Houses it would have been on the books to stay, the machinery for managing the currency of which the President had been thinking for months. Yet Mr. Roosevelt accepted almost casually the time limit proposal.

NOT TOO LATE TO CONTRIBUTE

Realizing that the cold weather last night kept a great many people from attending the President's Birthday Ball here, who had intended being on hand to aid in the Warm Springs Endowment Fund as a birthday tribute to the President, the committee has decided to hold the fund over for a few days in order that persons who could not attend but desired to contribute to help swell the fund might be given opportunity to do so.
 Complete figures were not available this morning but indications were that so far the net amount from last night's ball will run close to the $500 mark. If you were not able to attend the dance but feel that you would like to add to this fund before it is sent in we urge you to forward your donation, no matter how large or how small, to this paper or to W. W. Lee, treasurer, at once. Already some persons who could not attend the dance have today come in and donated $1.50, the price of a dance ticket. We are sure that as an admirer of the President and being naturally interested in the great work being done by the Warm Springs Foundation in the treatment of infantile paralysis, you will want to contribute to this fund. Get your contributions in at once. All such donations will be acknowledged through the columns of this paper.

POLITICS

By BYRON PRICE
 (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)
 Washington, D. C.—There is more being done in the Senate to pin a time limit on the administration's monetary bill than appears on the surface.
 Three years from now, when that limit expires, Mr. Roosevelt's present terms in office will be over. That suggests the question of setting up a permanent managed currency policy, to which the President is committed, may be projected into his re-election campaign.
 In the face of that deduction and indications he could have ridden rough-shod over all Senate banking committee amendments had he so desired Mr. Roosevelt elected to accept the time limit without a fight. At the same time he set his face against the committee's other major suggested change vesting control of the huge stabilization fund operations in a board rather than the Secretary of the Treasury.
 Of the two amendments it would appear on casual examination that the second, the one the President resisted, was least important from his viewpoint.
 The proposed board of five would include four of his own appointees. It is hardly conceivable that presidential will would not dominate the board's action at ever turn.
 The time limit clause on the bill is a different matter. Under it power is a different matter. Under it power to carry out the radical changes by Congress within the

As For Compromising—

If the Senate situation had been such as to compel a compromise on the time limit to get the bill through at all, the President's action could readily be understood.
 There is another aspect to it. House members felt that if the administration had no objection to the time limit it might as well have been written in by the House, giving administration forces there whatever political benefit might come out of such action. But White House word to the House was to put it through as is, an act that was done

A Bit Far Fetched

It appears that the question of political expediency did not enter into the President's calculations unless it can be maintained that the time clause was originally left out of the monetary bill to afford a basis for compromise with Senate objectors.
 That is a bit far-fetched. What seems far more likely is that Mr. Roosevelt is so supremely confident of benefits to the country at large to flow out of his monetary proposals within much less than three years that he has no doubts about permanent legislation.
 The President's acceptance of the monetary bill time limit looms more as a graceful Rooseveltian gesture to the Senate than anything else.

I did not have a good taste in my mouth. I believed this trouble came from constipation. I used Black-Draught until my complexion and other trouble cleared up. ROUND TABLE CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. ROSE

On Tuesday afternoon the Round Table Club met at the Third street field house with Mrs. J. H. Rose as hostess.

The club room was decorated with blooming plants and cut flowers and an open wood fire added to its cheerfulness.

The meeting was opened by the hostess, who is president, and she welcomed Mrs. G. R. Combs, Mrs. W. W. Morgan, Mrs. Bruton and Mrs. Burkhead, the last two of Candor, N. C., who are house guests of Mrs. R. G. Fitzgerald.

At the conclusion of business, Mrs. H. E. Austin very ably read an interesting paper prepared by Mrs. H. L. Carr on "New Orleans."

This city was first an Indian portage, then a French outpost to extend the prosperous fur trade for New France in America. Now it is commercially known as the second port in the United States as to the tonnage of its foreign imports and exports.

Not only does this city appeal to the historian, but also to the physician, because of its wonderful hospitals and unsurpassed laboratories for the study of tropical diseases.

The famous "Mardi Gras" held annually, brings thousands of visitors to this city. History, rather than industry appeals to the visitor.

Many of its citizens are French who live in a separate section of the city, which is most interesting to visitors.

At the close of this interesting paper the hostess served a salad course with tea.—Reported.

SCULPTURES FROM WORLD-WIDE COMPETITION TO BE SHOWN HERE

Mrs. Savage's third grade of the Training School will sponsor an exhibit of soap carvings to be held at Sheppard Memorial Library Feb. 3rd to 10th.

This exhibit is composed of a group of about 75 pieces of soap sculptures selected from among the 2,000 entries in the ninth annual competition for small sculptures in white soap. Several of the prize winning pieces, selected recently in New York City by a jury including prominent artists, are in the group to be shown. Entries in this year's competition included the work of sculptors, young and old, amateur and professional, from every section of the United States and foreign countries.

For the past eight years, the national soap sculpture committee, sponsor of the annual competitions, has been fostering artistic expression in young and old through the use of white soap as a medium for sculpture. In addition to attracting the keen interest of professional sculptors, soap sculpture has been widely praised by educational leaders and has become an integral part of the art courses of many public and private schools throughout the country.

Fred Turner Will Study At Virginia School

Frederick Turner, a student of the East Carolina Teachers' College and assistant at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, has received official notification that he has been accepted as a member of the fall class at the Episcopal Theological Seminary at Alexandria, Va. Mr. Turner is a native of Newbury, England. He came to the United States several years ago with the American Church Army.

In this his work was of such a high order that he was invited by Bishop Darst of the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina to return to this country to enter the Episcopal ministry from this Diocese. For the past two years he has served the Episcopal Church in several mission fields in East Carolina. Last summer he entered East Carolina Teachers College and began his duties as an assistant at St. Paul's Church, Greenville. Through the past months he has become greatly beloved by the people of Greenville generally. He has assisted in several of the churches of the community at various times, and is at present helping at the Presbyterian Church until they secure their new pastor.

Mr. Turner will return to England for a brief vacation this spring and then will return to this country to take up his studies at the seminary this fall. The people of the community will be glad to hear of the opportunity that has come to Mr. Turner to further prepare himself for the profession he has chosen for himself.

TELLS OF MARK OF CHRISTIANS

Rev. Paul Beacham Continues Sermons At Pentecostal Church Here

The marks of a real Christian was the topic discussed by Rev. Paul F. Beacham last night at the revival in progress at Pentecostal Holiness Church. The sermon was based upon the words: "In this the children of God are manifest, and the children of the devil; whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother." (1 John 3:10). The minister said: "Some portions of the Bible are difficult to interpretation and application, but it is not necessary of one to be a theologian to understand this text. By this it is easily seen who is on the Lord's side."

In this exegesis of the text, Mr. Beacham pointed out the contrast between the Christian of God and the children of the devil. Said he: "To deny the existence and distinction of the two classes, it is to react upon the integrity and authority of Scriptures. God is righteous. His children have His nature and strive to imitate Him. Satan is the originator of sin; accordingly he that commits sin is of the devil. The manner in which the Bible makes the distinction is very serious. It is general and universal without respect to nationality or position. No mental ground is left for anyone; every man is either a child of God or a child of the devil. So death brings all men to a level, the soul departs to the temple above, as is sent forth with the workers of iniquity. This distinction involves the highest honor, and the deepest shame and disgrace; the greatest privilege, and the most damaging disadvantages. Everything in the universe must eventually contribute to the good of God's people; and all things will ultimately work against those who refuse to become His children through faith in Jesus Christ.

"There is the future manifestation of the children of God," continued the minister, "but the text has to do with the present. Not only are God's people known to Him, but to the world and to themselves. The sinner knows himself as well, and the servant of Christ knows just as conscious that he is a sinner. When one becomes a child of God, the moral and spiritual change is so radical that it can only be expressed in terms of a new birth. Such a change is certainly manifest."

Finally, the minister declared, "the evidence is so clear that there is no place left for uncertainty. In that it is stated negatively, we understand that positive evil is not necessary to condemn. He that doeth not righteousness is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother."

The service tonight will close the series, and the pastor of the church hopes it will be well attended.

Improvements Completed By Blount-Harvey

Blount-Harvey Company today announced completion of improvements to various departments of their store at the corner of Evans and Fourth Streets.

The improvements affect the shoe department, children's department, hosiery department and mezzanine.

The shoe department has been enlarged and remodeled with a side entrance on Fourth Street. Above this entrance an electric Neon sign has been installed adding to the attractiveness of the building. The department is now a separate unit, making it more accessible to the thousands who patronize the department each year. The department is under the management of E. W. Griffin, who has been in the shoe business here the last fifteen years. He is assisted by Burke Stancill, also experienced in this line. New brands of shoes have been stocked, making it possible for the most discriminating shoppers to supply their needs.

The children's department on the third floor also has been enlarged with the addition of new fixtures. The department caters to boys from two to six years of age, and to girls from two to fourteen years.

The hosiery department is now next to the shoe department with a complete new stock of the latest creations in this field. The children's hosiery department is separate and distinct from the other unit.

On the mezzanine an entirely new stock is in evidence, making it possible for shoppers to find more things than ever before carried in this section of the building.

The public is cordially invited to visit and note the improvements which not only add to the appearance of the building but expedite the sale of the thousands of things carried in stock by the popular firm.

He will also give attention to general repairing.

Mr. Stauffer was connected with Best's for a number of years and only recently installed Lauters' jewelry department.

He extends a cordial invitation to his many friends to visit him and inspect the new stock.

Top Notch's Story

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
"Whatever do you mean by saying, 'Wicked yellow eyes?'" Willy Nilly asked Top Notch.

"Why are you trembling?" asked Mrs. Quacko Duck, who had arrived with the other Ducks to have some supper.

"You're a 'traid cat,'" cawed Christopher Columbus Crow.

"I'm not a 'traid cat,'" cawed Top Notch excitedly. "I'm a brave and splendid Rooster, but I would be afraid if you had seen what I had seen." And Top Notch trembled some more.

"You're a 'traid cat,' caw, caw," said Christopher Columbus Crow.

"You're a 'traid cat, quack quack," quacked all the Ducks.

"Hush! All of you, hush!" shouted Willy Nilly. "If anyone is afraid, he is afraid and there are no two ways about it. But what we should do is to hear Top Notch's story and then maybe we will prove to him that he need not be afraid. Don't tease him, but let's help him," the little man said.

Top Notch was feeling very miserable. Not only was he thoroughly frightened, but the other Puddle Muddle creatures were making fun of him and he did not want to be considered a coward.

"I was a little late in leaving the barnyard," he began, "and it was dark when I came along."

"Fraid cat," they all began to shout once more, but Willy Nilly cawed at them, and Top Notch continued in a high, nervous voice:

"And in the darkness I saw two wicked-looking yellow eyes."

"You've gone crazy!" they shouted, but they were beginning to feel a bit uneasy themselves.

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 31.—Cotton futures opened fairly steady, five to five points lower under liquidation, lower foreign exchange and uncertainty over the acreage cut program. Trading was moderately active at the start. The decline met fair buying by the trade with covering and moderate commission house demands. After selling off to 11.444 for May at the start, prices steadied a point or two and the market was irregular during the first half hour with fluctuations narrow. Trading was quite later with the market evidently inclined to await further developments either with reference to the crop control program or monetary policies. At midday May was around 11.47, and active months were within two or three points of yesterday's closing quotations.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The lively antics of yesterday's boom time stock market gave way today to cautious contemplation which found profit-taking quiet popular. The fast moving equities of the previous session showed resistance to the cashing in process of the early hours, but some of these turned heavy later. At the same time the volume transactions dwindled on the decline. Bonds were also subjected to moderate realizing and the dollar was firm in relation to sterling notwithstanding further indications of gold purchasers in London. Wheat lost about a cent. Cotton was barely steady and other commodities were a trifle hesitant. Some of the utilities and alcohol shares held small gains. Transfers were 3,000,000 shares.

Late News Flashes

(Continued from Page One) Advocates of a sales tax to buttress the treasury were revamped by the House ways and means committee in one of the several actions that bore directly on the Roosevelt program. The all important committee action against the Browder proposal for a 2-1-2 per cent manufacturers sales tax provided the significant news of the day there. The decision by a substantial majority just about doomed this bill for this session. Insult Must Leave Greece. Washington, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The State Department was advised today by the American legation in Athens that the Greek government would expel Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, at midnight tonight, when his police permit expires. The department cablegram was sent from Athens by the American minister. It was said the foreign office immediately informed the legation that the permit would not be extended after midnight. William Phillips, under-secretary of state, refused to comment on what action the United States would take when Insull left Greece.

Macclesfield Bank Robbed. Tarboro, N. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Three bandits robbed the Bank of Macclesfield of $56 today and escaped after a gun battle with two officers who wounded one of them. C. G. Pridden, deputy sheriff, and Walter Moore, night watchman at the little town twelve miles from here, saw the bandits drive up to the bank about 1 a. m., drag tools from their car and pry open the front door. The officer went to the top of a building across the street and began firing into the building. As the bandits ran out, one of them fell apparently wounded. His companion picked him up, put him into their car, and fled, firing back at Moore and Pridden.

Navy Gets Ship Contract. Washington, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The coast guard today awarded to the navy contract totaling $11,520,000 for the construction of seven new cutters. The cutters, a modified type of gunboat, will have two thousand tons displacement of 324 feet length—two will be built at the New York navy yard, four at Philadelphia and one at Charleston.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER. Washington, D. C.—It wouldn't be a surprise to Washington should Republicans in Congress attempt to apply pressure to force some sort of an investigation into Civil Works administration activities. A start in that direction has been made in the House. Gifford, of Massachusetts, ranking Republican of the committee on expenditures in executive departments, has demanded that this committee call the CWA administrator before it for an accounting. Democrats are expected to continue opposing such a move. Republicans desire a "cheap show" is the way Cochran, of Mississippi, chairman of the committee, expresses it. He has said flatly he is willing to go "fishing" with Gifford at any time, but first he must prove he has the right "bait." A congressional committee may not hold CWA up to the light, but it seems certain criticisms leveled at Hopkins' outfit are in for an airing. Before Congress appropriates the additional millions asked by the President, a lot of questions will be asked before the money is granted.

Professor Fess. One of the most spirited attacks on the President's new monetary program in the Senate was made by Fess, of Ohio, one of the few remaining members of the Republican "Old Guard." Fess reserved some of his choicest sarcasm for the group of collegial professors who advise with President Roosevelt. He left no doubt as to what he thought of professors in politics. Yet the Senator sets down in his official biography: "Professor of history, Ohio Northern University; dean of college of law; vice-president Ohio Northern University; graduate student and lecturer, University of Chicago; president of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio."

Diplomatic Chuckles. They're chuckling over this one in Latin-American diplomatic circles: After Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, handed Tammany a drubbing in the city elections last year he cruised to Panama for a vacation. Antonio C. Gonzales is U. S. Minister to that country, appointed by President Roosevelt. Gonzales is an ardent Tammanyite, and reports came that during the New York mayor's visit there was a little coolness—that everything didn't go off strictly according to protocol, as they say in diplomatic circles. At any rate, that was the story investigated by a Panama newspaper, which then headlined: "Tammany Politics Invades Heart of Latin-America."

INDIA'S CASTE SYSTEM HIT BY BARODA REFORM BILLS. Bombay.—(AP)—The Maharajah Gaekwar of Baroda, a widely traveled man and a leader in the fight against oppressive customs, has struck a blow at the caste system. He has introduced a reform entitled "caste tryanny removal bills." The reform is aimed particularly at the custom which forces a man, often against his will, to spend money lavishly on the occasion of his daughter's marriage. The bill also removes the ban on foreign travel, which forbids a Brahmin to cross the "kala pani" ("black waters"), the term for the sea.

Indian Wants Buggy. Anadarko, Okla.—(AP)—Gone are the days when newly rich redmen bought hearses as the ultra in automotive luxury. Jack Watchman-sookwat, an elderly Comanche, recently asked the Indian agency here to buy him a buggy.

Free Action for all 4 wheels plus the safety of a front axle and comfort of Cantilever Springs

A great deal of thought is being given today to springs. Various experiments are being tried in an effort to get independent action for an automobile's front wheels. All of which is simply another tribute to the soundness of Ford engineering and the Ford V-8 for 1934. When you drive this car you get free action not only for the front wheels—but for all 4 wheels. Ford transverse cantilever springs provide individual suspension for both front and rear axles. In the new Ford these springs have been made more flexible. This type of construction is not experimental and has the advantage of comfort plus the proved safety of a front axle. This new Ford combines V-8 power with gasoline economy—20 miles to the gallon at a speed of 45 miles per hour, in exhaustive road runs. It will do 80 miles an hour without difficulty. At 50 or 60 miles per hour it is actually running at ease! This reserve power means acceleration unequalled by practically any other make of American automobile, regardless of cost. Before you buy any car at any price, drive the new Ford V-8 for 1934.
