POLICEMAN IS SLAIN IN $10,000 BANK ROBBERY

Congress Asked For Big Sum To Carry On Relief Activity

MILLIONS ARE BEING SOUGHT FOR THE CWA

$500,000,000 Also Will be Asked For Direct Relief; Funds Near End and Expect to Give Out in May; Appropriations Committee Admonishes House To Remember Indirect Relief Is Not Relief

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—(AP)—An immediate appropriation of $450,000,000 to carry on the Civil Works program and its 4,000,000 employees, and $500,000,000 for direct relief, was recommended to the House today by its appropriations committee.

The committee revealed an accounting by Harry L. Hopkins, CWA and Relief Administrator, that even with the Civil Works request $100,000,000 higher than originally intended, it was improbable the program would last through May.

Hopkins told the committee that unless immediate action was taken the $400,000,000 originally allotted for CWA would be exhausted on February 9, and there would be no funds for the huge pay-roll.

The present rate of expenditures, he said, was about $70,000,000 a week.

In its formal report the Appropriations Committee admonished the House to remember that these relief measures are not a permanent policy of the Federal Government, and added: "They are temporary and only an extreme emergency justified them." Summarizing their direct and indirect aid furnished by the relief campaign as supplemented by State and local money and Federal Reserve activity, it provides relief for between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 people.

NASHVILLE ATTORNEY UNDER INDICTMENT

Rocky Mount, N. C., Feb. 2.—Leon T. Vaughan, Nashville attorney, faced two embezzlement charges in Nash court last night after true bills were returned to a Nash County grand jury.

In one of the indictments Vaughan is charged with the embezzlement of $1,000 from Mrs. Florence Bissette, for whom he was attorney. The other indictment charges him with embezzlement of approximately $150 belonging to Mary Reavis, negro girl for whom he was legal guardian.

Vaughan, meanwhile, was free under bond. Trial on both counts was slated for the next term of Nash County Criminal Court in March. The January term ended yesterday too soon for airing of the charges this week.

Vaughan is well-known in Rocky Mount where he has in the past had considerable legal practice. He was at one time chairman of the Nash County Democratic Executive Committee.

Conviction on such charges would serve automatically to disbar an attorney so convicted from the legal profession in North Carolina.

BUSINESS MEN TO HELP SAVE CLUB HOME

Local business men will come to the financial aid of the Greenville woman's Club in order that the club might save its beautiful home, pictured above. Since this building was bought by the club several years ago it has become a community center for the city and county. A group of business men last night pledged $1,000 to apply on the debts against the building and agreed to help raise a fund sufficient to reduce the indebtedness to a figure that would permit the club to carry on.

Business Men Help Save Beautiful Club Building on Third-Green Streets

Local business men will come to the financial aid of the Woman's Club to enable the saving of the beautiful club building on the corner of Third and Greene streets now being used as a community building for the city and county.

Financial difficulties of the club were placed before a group of business men at a special meeting last night. Heads of city and county organizations set forth the value of the club building not only as a community center showing that it is not only used by the city but by farm women, 4-H club girls and other organizations.

Full discussion of the condition of the club took place. After naming a committee of business men to work out plans and assist in the drive to raise funds and relieve the distress of those present. The total indebtedness of the club building is approximately $7,500 and the committee hopes through their effort to be able to cut the debt down to a point that the club will be able to retire the balance through the regular income.

The business men's committee is composed of E. G. Flanagan, chairman; B. B. Sugg, J. K. Brown, C. W. Shuff, Dr. R. S. McGeachy, J. S. Ficklen, W. H. Woolard and R. M. Garrett.

A committee from the club headed by Mrs. W. I. Wooten will assist the business men's committee in carrying out the work. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, a former president, will be ex-officio chairman of the joint committee.

Tempest Booms British Fishing

Plymouth, Eng.—(AP)—A winter gale battered the coast here but blew good for the fishing fleet which landed 1,500,000 herring over night, the largest catch in a year. When the tempest came the herring moved up from the deep water and the fleet, working in the teeth of the storm, cashed in.

Late News Flashes From Over World

Postpone Appropriations. Washington, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The House leaders today decided to postpone until Monday consideration of the $950,000,000 CWA relief appropriations. No word was given immediately but it was understood the measure would be taken up Monday under a rule forbidding amendment. Had the resolution been brought before the floor today it would have been subject to amendment and a number of members had indicated they wanted to increase total appropriations so as to assure longer extension of the CWA. #### U. S. BEGINS MONEY TALKS WITH BRITAIN

Washington, Feb. 2.—(AP)—A series of private money talks with Great Britain were indicated today to be either under way or about to begin as officials here investigated action in London and Paris to determine its own course. In the intricate web of European government high finance authorities saw the possibility that might determine the future of President Roosevelt's dollar program.

Reaction abroad yesterday to the $40.96 per cent devaluation, the price for gold, were not considered highly satisfactory here. High sources conceded the gold policy could be hampered by a French embargo on heavy sources of the world market supply and similar acts against America's $35 an ounce price.

Officials watched for movements which might affect the gold standard position and continued heavy strain from Paris and London.

Los Angeles, Calif.—(AP)—A mother alley cat and her brood of five kittens will not go abroad after all.

Meows coming from a large mail deposit box received the attention of a passerby, who notified the sheriff, who in turn notified a postal inspector.

When the box was opened the mother kitten walked forth proudly at the head of five new kittens.

In some manner a mailing tag had become attached to her neck.

AMERICANS PARDONED IN ASSAULT CASE

Four Citizens of United States to Receive Freedom from Spanish Jail.

Madrid, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The Sixth Section of the Supreme Court today approved a governmental pardon for four Americans serving jail terms in Palma, Mallorca for assaulting civil guards.

The Americans are Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood, of West Springfield, Mass.; Roger Meade, of New York, and Edmund Boldgett, of Stamford, Conn.

They were sent to jail last month after a long legal battle in which a consecutive court martial acquitted them, a military auditor overruled the acquittal and the Supreme Court upheld the military order. They were sentenced to six months and a day in jail.

The pardon approval was the result of intercession in their behalf by Claude G. Bowers, Ambassador of the United States.

The pardon for the Americans now lacks only the official sanction of the Supreme Court to which the Sixth Section referred it. Officials said it was a probably this would be secured tomorrow before the entire court and that pardon was certain.

DEFER REPORT ON AIRPORT AND ARMORY

Committees Inform Aldermen They Have Not Yet Been Able to Get Site

Definite action on the proposed armory and airport for Greenville was deferred by the Board of Aldermen and meeting in regular session last night because the committees in charge of the two projects signified they were not ready to report.

The committee appointed at a previous session of the board have been busy the last several days seeking sites for the armory and airport, but it was said last night they had been unable to obtain locations of a desirable nature.

The mayor informed the board that members of the committee desired sometime longer in which to complete the work and would report at the earliest opportunity.

When the sites are decided upon, the board will then be able to ask the CWA for funds with which to build the two projects, but until then that time they will have to mark time and await action of the committee.

The proposed armory will serve as a home for the National Guards and meeting place for the American Legion, Boy Scouts and other such organizations.

With exception of discussion of these two projects and a report on the condition of the city for the first six months of the fiscal year, the meeting was confined to regular routine business.

The report of the City Clerk showed the city in splendid condition in a financial way, due largely to improvement in tax collections. It was stated that collections were much better than had been anticipated and the city probably would be able to finish the year with a clean slate like it did this year.

OBTAIN NO TRACE OF MACEFFILED ROBBERS

Tarboro, N. C., Feb. 2.—The efforts of the officers to locate the robbers who robbed the Maceffiled bank of $50 so far have been unsuccessful, notwithstanding they have exhausted every means possible.

Deputy Sheriff C. E. Prigden and Night Watchman W. A. Moore made a brave fight against the bandits and thereby saved the bank from being looted.

It is believed that the bandits who operated here were the same ones who later in the morning attempted the robbery in Virginia, Va. There, it is said, they obtained only fifty cents. A brown automobile is said to have figured in both attempts and the methods used were the same at both places.

$170,000 IS TAKEN FROM MESSENGERS

Robber Band Forces Bank Messengers to Give up Sacks of Money in Jersey.

Pennsgrove, N. J., Feb. 2.—(AP)—A band of robbers today held up two messengers of the Pennsgrove National Bank and stole $170,000.

The messengers were within a few steps of the bank at Main and First Streets when they were forced to the wall of an adjoining building and robbed of two sacks containing money in cash.

The two messengers were on their way to the bank with the two sacks and as they neared the bank the robbers stepped out from their automobile parked nearby, pointed pistols at the messengers, grabbed the sacks, returned to the car and sped off.

The money was intended to meet pay-rolls of factories in this town.

E. C. WILLIAMS PASSES AWAY

Dies at His Home on Paris Avenue This Morning After Years Of Bad Health

Elisha Clay Williams, 72-year-old Greenville man, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. T. I. Moore, on Paris avenue, this morning at four o'clock, after several years of declining health.

Funeral services will be held from the home tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock, conducted by Rev. W. A. Ryan, pastor of the Eighth Street Christian Church, assisted by Rev. J. A. McIver, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church. Interment will follow in Cherry Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Williams was born in Wilson county, February 7, 1862, and moved to Greenville about 42 years ago. He was a prominent landowner, farmer and contractor, but retired several years ago on account of declining health. He was married to Miss Nellie Godwin of Greenville, in 1888, and to this union eight children were born. Mrs. Williams preceded him to the grave thirteen years ago.

The deceased had been a member of the Presbyterian Church since his youth and manifested much interest in the work of the denomination as a whole, as well as the local church. He was beloved by a wide circle of friends who received news of his death with sorrow.

Surviving are eight children: A. C. Williams, Washington, N. C.; E. C. Williams, Jr., and Robert King Williams, Greenville; five daughters, Mrs. T. I. Moore and Miss Luann Williams, of Greenville; Mrs. A. C. Fletcher, Cottdale; Mrs. Preston Gardner and Mrs. L. E. Baker of Fountain; one sister, (Continued on page four)

SKATING WILL BE HALTED ON MAIN STREETS

Aldermen Ask Parents and Children to Help Reduce Practice in Business Area

Unless skating in the business district is halted immediately, the Board of Aldermen is planning drastic action probably eliminating skating entirely.

This statement was made this morning by Mayor Roy C. Flanagan after the matter was discussed at considerable length by the aldermen last night.

Mayor Flanagan said the board appealed to both parents and children to co-operate in eliminating skating on streets in the business district and thereby remove the danger to skaters and pedestrians.

There is a law prohibiting skating uptown, and unless the practice is stopped, the mayor declared, the legislation will be drastically enforced, with the possibility that skating might be halted on all streets of the city.

Not long ago, the mayor stated, a youthful skater was killed at Wilmington when struck by an automobile. He said the board hoped to avoid such a distressing death here, and would be forced to act at once if parents and children do not co-operate with them.

It was suggested during the meeting that the Woman's Club or some other organization be asked to obtain permission to use a warehouse for the young skaters. If that is done, the mayor said, the city would agree to furnish lights each Friday evening so that all youngsters might have a jolly good time. The skaters could also enjoy the pastime in the afternoon if such an arrangement could be made.

But one thing the board is determined to do—stop skating in the business district—and if co-operation is lacking, police will be instructed to go into action.

NEGRO ON MISSING LIST: IS PROBABLY DROWNED

Washington, N. C., Feb. 2.—Will Tucker, negro, age 21, has been missing since Saturday afternoon when he set out in a rowboat which was tied to a wharf in Tranter's Creek. It was reported at the local sheriff's office Thursday. The boat was found early Thursday hung on a snag approximately three-quarters of a mile from the place where the boat was tied.

The boat was the property of Robert Griffin, who had asked the negro to move it to a point further down the creek.

Griffin came to the city Thursday to report the negro missing and returned to the creek to begin search for the body as it was thought that Tucker was probably drowned.

Tucker lived near Wharton's station.

UNDERTAKE TO STOP BOOTLEGGING OF GAS

Goldboro, N. C., Feb. 2.—Three large trucks were stopped in the Goldboro section Wednesday by R. R. Glover, highway patrolman, each loaded with three automobiles for the local market, the tanks of each of the nine automobiles being filled with gas. The patrolman collected 6 1-4 cents a gallon for all the gas they were hauling into the State. Efforts are being made in this section to stop automobile bootlegging from bootlegging gasoline into the section without paying the State tax on it.

It has been found here that automobiles are being hauled into the section, their tanks filled in States where there is no gas tax, and then the gas is sold here at a profit.

TWO BANKERS FORCED INTO BANDITS' CAR

Bandits Armed With Sub-Machine Gun Rob Bank of Needham, Force Two Employees Into Car to Protect Them; One Man Jumps To Safety; Other Put Out of Car Three Miles From Town

Needham, Mass., Feb. 2.—(AP)—One policeman was slain, three others men shot and $10,000 taken from the Needham Trust Company today by four bandits, two of them armed with what bank employees described as sub-machine guns.

Forbes McLeod, policeman, shot through the stomach as he assisted the bank's burglar alarm. As the bandits fled, the men shot by them compelled Donald McLaughlin, treasurer, and John Robinson, bank clerk, to climb on the running board of the car to protect them against possible pursuit.

Robinson jumped as the car sped through the streets and escaped uninjured as two bandits fired upon him. McIntosh was thrown out of the machine three miles from town.

Besides McLeod, the men shot by the bandits were Walter Bartholomew, 70-year-old bank attendant; Frank Haddock, policeman; and Timothy McCoughlin, greener.

Bartholomew was filled by a bullet wound as the bandits entered the bank. He tried to intercept the bandit's car as it sped through Needham Heights, and McCoughlin, stationed at a nearby fire house, struck down as he ran to Haddock's assistance. All the victims were taken to the Needham Hospital.

McLeod was shot through the stomach as he raced to the bank in response to the sounding of the institution's burglar alarm.

U. S. DEFICIT STILL SWELLING

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.—(AP)—The government ended the seventh month of the fiscal year with cash outlay of $7,602,449,624 and deficit of $1,825,588,176.

This leaves $7,454,829,000 for spending between now and June to fulfill President Roosevelt's estimates that "aggressive" governmental outlays this year will reach $11,000,000,000.

These figures of the government's financial condition at the close of January were accomplished by Treasury assurances that it still plans to meet cash needs by borrowing rather than spending any of the huge gold profit on routine government expenses.

IT IS A COMMUNITY ASSET

The fine spirit shown by a group of local business men last night in agreeing to come to the financial aid of the Woman's Club in order to save the club building is most commendable, and we are sure that when the matter is brought to our people individually all will be glad to help.

The Woman's Club home here is filling an important place not only for this city but for the county as well. The building is now being used as a community center by the various women's farm organizations of the county as well as by various local civic clubs, and to permit this valuable property to pass from use into private hands is unthinkable at this time.

We bespeak in advance the success of this movement to aid the Woman's Club to save its home.

IF SO, WHAT OF IT?

(News and Observer)

Representative Hamilton Fish, Republican of New York, said in Congress yesterday, in an attack on the administration's devaluation of the dollar, that it "amounted to a 40 per cent conscription of wealth."

If it is that, does wealth oppose it? Fifteen years ago when this nation was fighting a war with a foreign power, men were conscripted by the government to fight for their country.

In the present financial chaos, the country resorts to a conscription of wealth, such a course would be entirely proper. It would be a monstrous thing if human lives could be conscripted but private fortunes were held inviolate even at a time of national need.

Only those who hold property rights superior to human rights will be stirred with the indignation which Congressman Fish sought to arouse by referring to a conscription of wealth. Mr. Fish may not know it, but the people of this country are quite as ready for wealth as they are for their sons and brothers to be conscripted for the national defense.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C.—The "brain trust" has undergone a vast change since the first days of the Roosevelt administration, but its influence in government affairs still is important.

The position of Professor Warren of Cornell as monetary adviser to the President is a striking example of professional influence on affairs of state.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, is not alone in relying on professors for advice and information. Members of his cabinet have taken their cue from him and are coming more and more to rely on "brain trusters."

There's Secretary Morgenthau of the Treasury, for example. Recently before a hard-boiled congressional appropriations committee, he asked for $100,000 without batting an eye to employ experts outside of the classified service to help him run his department.

In Search of Counsel

Members of Congress as a whole have shown no particular love for the college professors, but Morgenthau's argument seemed to have impressed them.

The Secretary was free in his admission that there were a lot of Treasury matters about which he knows little. He wanted men around him who possessed specialized knowledge.

He mentioned the income tax for illustration. Not so long ago he induced Professor McNeill of Columbia University to give up $11,500 a year for an $8,000 job in the Treasury to pass on the big tax cases before they came across the secretary's desk.

More recently he has asked the president of the American Institute of Architects to suggest two or three men to come to Washington to make a study of the supervising architect's office prior to drastic expansion.

He hopes to inaugurate shortly a study of the importing and handling of opium in this country.

Piece-Work "Braintrusting"

Morgenthau's idea is to recruit his private "brain trust" a sabbatical professor, or some other outside expert come in to do a particular job. When he had completed that task he would return to his regular duties.

During his stay in Washington he would return to his regular duties. The Secretary became wedded to the idea when he was governor of the Farm Credit Administration. He asked Congress to give him eight $10,000-a-year men and he would produce results.

"You gave it to me then," he told the committee. "Give it to me now and I'll do as well as I did with FCA."

Washington, D. C.—However commanding the administration's advantage may have appeared as Congress—its initial opening flurry past—buckled down to business, ahead lay something that might produce a snarl.

Steering committees at both ends of the Capitol had placed just behind the special liquor tax measures the plan to grant the White House authority to work out new export markets for farm stuffs by "hoss-trade" negotiations as to tariffs and related matters with other countries.

That was done on the heels of Mr. Roosevelt's pre-session conference with party congressional leaders, indicating that he rated the framing of new bi-lateral trade agreements as the urgent next step in his agricultural program.

An Irritating Word

Tariff is always a fighting word to Congress. If anybody had suggested throwing the question of tariff rates into this session of Congress for revisions, perhaps Speaker Rainey and Senate Leader Robinson would never have committed themselves to predictions that the Congress could quit between the middle of April and June 1.

Rates are not directly involved now in the administration's tariff plans. That may ease the situation. Nobody knows better than Rainey what happens when rate revisions are undertaken. He has had a hand in the making of every tariff bill in the last two decades or more.

The question is whether the mere proposal to grant the President powers of negotiation which would involve rates will not stir up a hornet's nest of protest among those who fear their own domestic markets might be hit.

Making Waste Slowly

President Roosevelt's efforts to speed Congress to an early adjournment apparently will have little effect on the Senate and its traditionally leisurely way of doing business.

The Senate was in session probably less than two hours during the week in which Congress assembled. After a short session on Thursday lasting one hour and sixteen minutes, Senators closed up shop for the week.

The House drove on through with the liquor tax bill, completing consideration of it before adjourning.

BLOND GODDESS by Herbert Jensen

SYNOPSIS: Janice Kent, the movie star, with her press agent and photographer, has arrived in Yucatan to make a picture in the jungle. At Merida they are met by Don Manuel Ortega, who is the man suspected of an attempted abduction of Janice in Hollywood, who says he will guide them to their "hunting" grounds. Frank Grahame, rejected suitor of Janice's, just has escaped death at Ortega's hands, and also a journey into the jungle to look for his friend Bill Langton, aviator who has disappeared.

Chapter 22 IN THE JUNGLE

"WE WILL take burros and horses along," continued Ortega, "and when you have finished your pictures, we can push on to the coast. I have a launch there, at my hacienda, and I will take you south to Belize where the United Fruit boats stop. From there you may sail to Cuba. You have plenty of money?"

"Enough," said Greene shortly. Ortega shrugged. "I would suggest you take enough," he said. "If you carry drafts I can arrange to-morrow to have them cashed for you." His glance appraised the diamonds on Janice's fingers and at her throat. "It is not wise to wear jewels in these times. You had better hide them."

"Will this trip be safe?" asked the girl.

Ortega smiled slightly. "Well," said Mr. Greene, "let's get going."

They filed out of the car. Several soldiers helped them with their boxes. Ortega made arrangements to have them taken to an hotel. Mr. Greene admitted to Janice, rather grudgingly, that Ortega certainly could get things done.

Janice did not reply. She was too tired from the long day and the excitement to take much interest in what was going on about her. She noted, however, that Ortega kept close to her, rather too close she thought, but perhaps it was only his zeal to see that she was made comfortable.

SHE stood waiting for her coach. It was poorly illuminated before the station. People moved restlessly about her—natives, women with shawls about their heads, children who whimpered, soldiers with stolid, sullen faces, whose metallic equipment clinked and rattled as they moved.

It was then that she observed the man who leaned against a post in the station entrance. Almost a pure Indian type she thought, taking in the dark skin, the beaked nose, and wide cheek-bones. A shock of coarse black hair fell over his forehead. He seemed to be staring toward her, yet not at her.

She turned toward Ortega, who was at her elbow. He was looking directly at the Indian. Ortega nodded his head. His lips were parted in a half smile, which vanished as he became conscious of Janice's interest.

"A poor fellow," he said suavely. "A sort of servant of mine, from my hacienda."

Janice wondered. Then, as the coach drew up beside her, she dismissed the matter from her mind. She assured herself that the slight feeling of uneasiness that persisted was due to her fatigue, or her unfamiliarity with these strange surroundings.

Still, the Indian who had stared at Ortega at the station had not looked like a servant. There had been something imperious in his gaze,—something that is seen in the look of one used to command—powerful, insistent,—cruel. His character seemed to be expressed by his nose—beaked like a hawk's or a vulture's.

GRAHAME made a last slash with his machete and dropped it among the tangle of jungle creepers at his feet. He drew tobacco and papers from his breast pocket, and while rolling his cigaret watched the tolling figure beside him. Sweat glistened on Juan's bronze face, the muscles rippled under his shirt as he swung his heavy knife.

"Let's cut back to the trail, muchacho," said Grahame.

The lad paused doubtfully. "But we may meet the men who come for the arms," he replied.

"Almost," said Grahame, "it would be better than this."

"As you say, I am willing." He grimaced at his blistered hands and smiled. "It is better to die swiftly with a bullet than to expire slowly from too much work."

Grahame chuckled. "Spoken like a true son of Mexico."

"Nevertheless," he continued, "we should be able to tell from the trail whether they have passed toward the hacienda or not. Also, they may have returned with the cases. In that event, we can keep behind them."

People moved restlessly about Janice.

"Bueno," agreed Juan. "Good. The trail lies three kilometers to the south behind that small hill."

They were about forty kilometers in from the coast. Roughly the direction of the trail was south-west. They had been nearly two weeks journeying to reach this point, keeping always off the main trail.

At times their way was easy, when the jungle opened into broad grassy savannas. At other points they were forced to plunge into leech-glutted bogs where every step was a supreme effort.

They skirted the small hill that Juan had noticed. Soon they stood upon a narrow path that twisted southward, a truly Indian trail that looped and swung around trees and swamps,—never ran straight.

Juan preceded Grahame as they strode along. Their packs were humped high upon their shoulders. Each carried a rifle, taken from Ortega's landed cases. Occasionally Juan pointed to the right or left of the trail, calling Grahame's attention to freshly severed vines.

"They have passed this way toward the coast. I can not tell whether they have returned."

They walked for several hours. The trail dipped toward a swamp, and Grahame noticed that at the point it crossed the bog, tree trunks and branches had been thrown to give a firm footing. Juan uttered an exclamation and hurried forward.

"I can tell you more now," said the boy. "They are behind us. They have not returned. See—The mud is trampled. The footprints go all in one direction. A very large party too,—perhaps half a hundred, perhaps more."

They stood at the edge of the swamp that stretched about two hundred yards ahead of them. Thoughtfully they examined the footprints.

"It's the side trail again for us, son," said Grahame. "At least until the footing is dry. It would be telling 'em too much if we crossed here. We don't know how far they are behind us. If they see our prints here they'd send a party ahead to catch us."

President Roosevelt's efforts to speed Congress to an early adjournment apparently will have little effect on the Senate and its traditionally leisurely way of doing business.

The Senate was in session probably less than two hours during the week in which Congress assembled. After a short session on Thursday lasting one hour and sixteen minutes, Senators closed up shop for the week.

The House drove on through with the liquor tax bill, completing consideration of it before adjourning.

would return to his regular duties. During his stay in Washington he would return to his regular duties. The Secretary became wedded to the idea when he was governor of the Farm Credit Administration. He asked Congress to give him eight $10,000-a-year men and he would produce results.

"You gave it to me then," he told the committee. "Give it to me now and I'll do as well as I did with FCA."

Washington, D. C.—However commanding the administration's advantage may have appeared as Congress—its initial opening flurry past—buckled down to business, ahead lay something that might produce a snarl.

Steering committees at both ends of the Capitol had placed just behind the special liquor tax measures the plan to grant the White House authority to work out new export markets for farm stuffs by "hoss-trade" negotiations as to tariffs and related matters with other countries.

That was done on the heels of Mr. Roosevelt's pre-session conference with party congressional leaders, indicating that he rated the framing of new bi-lateral trade agreements as the urgent next step in his agricultural program.

An Irritating Word

Tariff is always a fighting word to Congress. If anybody had suggested throwing the question of tariff rates into this session of Congress for revisions, perhaps Speaker Rainey and Senate Leader Robinson would never have committed themselves to predictions that the Congress could quit between the middle of April and June 1.

Rates are not directly involved now in the administration's tariff plans. That may ease the situation. Nobody knows better than Rainey what happens when rate revisions are undertaken. He has had a hand in the making of every tariff bill in the last two decades or more.

The question is whether the mere proposal to grant the President powers of negotiation which would involve rates will not stir up a hornet's nest of protest among those who fear their own domestic markets might be hit.

New Highway Map Is Ready

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 2.—A new issue of the Carolinas Highway map showing the status or highway conditions in North and South Carolina is of December it just off the press, according to an announcement today by Coleman W. Roberts, president of the club.

The new map, which is considerably larger than the one published by the club for the past two years, shows the boundaries of each county in the two States.

The map is said to be the most accurate and authentic since the North Carolina State Highway Commission published its last map for public distribution in October, 1932. South Carolina revises its State map monthly.

The point Carolinas map was developed by the Carolina Motor Club several years ago at considerable expense, and every effort is made to keep it accurate and thoroughly up-to-date. The map is revised every few months.

More than fifty Carolina Motor Club officers throughout North and South Carolina have been supplied with the new map.

FORTY DAYS BAD WEATHER IS PREDICTED

Ground-Hog Sees His Shadow and Darts Back Into Ground to Await Better Days

If the signs of the times are right, this part of the country is in for forty days more of hard weather.

Mr. Ground Hog, said to be a weather harbinger, poked his nose out of the ground this morning and faced the most blinding sunshine he probably ever saw. Then he ducked back into his place of hibernation where he will remain until the bad weather he foresaw is over.

This, according to a claim as old as the hills, means this section is in for six weeks of real winter weather. Had the hog not seen his shadow, everything would have been rosy for he would have probed about the country to get the early spring his emergence would indicate.

Lots of people don't believe much in the ground-hog theory; neither did Greenville people until the last three or four years when the tiny rodent proved unmistakably that his prognostications are not entirely a fallacy. He darted back into the ground last year, and hardly had he buried his snout good-bye to the north wind brought in some of the most stinging weather this county has known in many a day.

Coming on the heels of the coldest snap the county has had, the predictions of the ground-hog were not received with elation here today. In fact, many a good man would have been glad to have sent Mr. Hog to the great beyond as he poked his sensitive little nose out of the ground this morning. But since that did not happen, we might as well lay in plenty of fuel, keep heavy clothes at arm's reach and prepare for what most certainly seems to be inevitable—if we believe the woodchuck.

Gold Bloc Awry But Italy Keeps Lira Anchored

By JOHN LLOYD Rome.—(AP)—Frank admission that plans for a united front of European gold countries have gone awry, has been made by Fascist spokesmen.

Yet Italy, they say, remains convinced that money depreciation would only add to the country's difficulties; hence there is no thought of cutting the lira loose from its gold anchor.

Locks to the Future Guido Jung, Minister of Finance, said to the Senate a few days ago:

"When the series of monetary adventures ends and wisdom returns, the world will look to the money that remained on the gold basis as the most trustworthy standards in the work of reconstruction."

Speaking for Premier Mussolini before the National Foreign Trade Council, Alberto Asquini, under-secretary of corporations, acknowledged that efforts to achieve a multilateral agreement to solidify the gold bloc which balked the world economic conference at London, had been fruitless.

Painful nature Of the countries which were to form the gold bloc, Italy has declared a moratorium on her debts to France, Switzerland, Holland and Poland are continuing on individual contingent systems, he pointed out. Italy, therefore, had

My Beauty Hint

By PEGGY MOSELEY (Screen Actress) The purpose of make-up is to accentuate, and that is why it should be used moderately. Keep in mind the subject of lighting. If you are to be seen in daylight, then a more exaggerated style of make-up may be used. But if you are to be seen in an artificial light, tone down your make-up. No make-up at all is better than a too garish tone. ## Has To Say About Our Fertilizers

Greenville, N. C., January 27, 1934.

Greenville Fertilizer Company, Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sirs:

For the past two years I have used your Greenville Tobacco Special, 8-3-5, with light meal body. All Sulfate of Potash, and I thought you would be interested to know the results of my 1933 crops.

On my individual tobacco crop, consisting of 14 acres, I used 1000 lbs. per acre, which gave me yield of 17,302 lbs. or average of 1,236 lbs. per acre, exclusive of scrap. My 14 acres sold for $3,545.60. The results of my tenants' crops, I am giving you below.

G. T. Corbett—8 Acres—Yield 8,886 lbs. Sold for $1,768.40.
 Jack Brown—5 Acres—Yield 5,936 lbs. Sold for $1,127.65.
 Capp Little—7 Acres—Yield 7,040 lbs. Sold for $1,405.75

If I had been able to have marketed my entire crop during October and November, in my opinion, it would have brought considerably more money. A large part of my tobacco was sold after Christmas. I recommend your goods to those who are seeking large yield and quality crops. Last year you supplied my tenants through your Service Plan, and I commend your Service Plan, which was most satisfactory to me.

Yours very truly,

"They talk about Babe Ruth as a manager in 1936," comments Carl Mays, one-time member of the Yankees' five-star pitching staff, in a farming bee with L. H. Gregory, the Oregon Observer. "Well, I'm here to say he will make one of the best managers baseball ever saw. He simply can't miss and that still would apply if by then he absolutely is through as an active player and does all his managing from the bench."

"Not only does Babe Ruth know baseball and how to play it, and how to teach it in every department, but he is the type that ball players like and will hustle for automatically."

"Babe is one of those fellows who could give a man a terrific bawling out for some misplay, saying sharp things and meaning every word of them, and yet 30 seconds later look the player quizzically in the eye and break out laughing—and sure to get a laugh in return."

"Consequently any ball club he manages will be constantly on its toes, yet there will be no factional jealousies and hard feelings."

Objection!
It's difficult to understand how Billy Petrolle, in folding his old blanket about his shoulders and passing from the ring, can rate Jimmy McLaurin no better than fifth among all the men he has fought and, in addition, toss a large bouquet of asparagus at the baby-faced Irishman.

Billy puts Christopher Battalino, Tony Cannoneri, Barney Ross and Ray Miller above McLaurin, in that order, and there's no disputing he has the first-hand information on which to base his fistic judgments.

It's true, too, that Petrolle, in the winter of 1930, gave McLaurin a terrific lacing in ten rounds that had a Madison Square Garden crowd in a frenzy. But Jimmy came back that night, after being floored early and almost knocked out, to give one of the greatest performances of his career under fire. The following year McLaurin twice outpointed Petrolle by wide margins in New York.

It's also true, as Petrolle suggests, that a number of "soft" chins were sacrificed on the McLaurin altar of popularity but who among the champions and headliners of his weight wanted to tackle Jimmy in his punching prime? Very few, indeed, outside of Petrolle. Lightweight and, later, welterweight titleholders gave McLaurin a wide berth. When he finally got one of them into the ring at Los Angeles, Young Corbett III, McLaurin scored a one-round knockout.

It is the opinion in this corner, all things considered, that McLaurin is the hardest hitter and smartest fighter of his poundage that we have had in the last ten years.

Wood Burners
The Hamms of St. Paul have been showing the bowlers how to knock wood. In fact, they have been pounding the pins dizzy this winter in the Twin Cities League. To show that it was no fluke when they rolled up a three-game total of 3,554 one evening, they came back within a week with an aggregate of 3,535.

An average of 235-plus per game for each of the five men gives an idea of how "hot" the Hamms can get on the alleys. The star of their latest pin-spilling spurge, Ossie hRegogna, posted high single game of 268 and high three-game total of 782, which is eight pins better than the all-time ABC record for the singles.

Turk Rightist Sees Red In Kemal Party

Amkara.—(AP)—Just as Turkey is adopting a five-year industrial plan, a cry of communism has risen within the people's party. This is Mustafa Kemal's party, the only political organization allowed in Turkey.

One group of this party, led by Mahmud Bey, influential deputy of Siirt, publicly stigmatizes as communistic the aims of what amounts to a left group of the same party. The stigmatized group includes prominent deputies and other government officials, including the director of the press, Vedat Nedim Rey.

Real Communism Seen
Mahmud Bey says in the official daily "Milliet" that the aims of the left group, as expressed in their organ "Kadro," do not resemble communism, but are communism itself.

The "Kadro" group, he claims, wants Turkey's five-year plan to constitute a monopoly by the state of all major means of production and transportation and of both heavy and light industries. This group would leave to private initiative nothing but small primitive work-shops.

Mahmud Bey's attack against "the communists" which was to run in a series of articles in the "Milliet," ceased abruptly after publication of the second article. Who silenced him is one of the mysteries surround the whole affair.

Premier's Stand Uncertain
That Ismet Pasha, prime minister, advocates a system of state capitalism is known from the published statements. But just how strong are the forces of the right within the party pulling for private capitalism are not publicly apparent.

No authorized statements regarding details of the industrial plan have been made. According to a reliable source, however, it is certain that the government plans to create and run three textile mills.

It also plans extensive developments of coal mines at Zonguldak and of sulphur production, and is sending a group of young Turks to Italy to specialize in the latter field.

New York Cotton

New York, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady unchanged to point lower as a result of indifferent Liverpool cables, fair trade demand and liquidation.

Business was quiet at the start, and while trading became a little more active, later fluctuations were narrow. Orders were evenly divided with scattered liquidation absorbed by trade buying sufficient to give the market a steady undertone.

Many contracts after selling at 11.54 at the start rallied to 11.59 and were ruling around 11.64 at the end of the first half hour when active months were about unchanged to one point higher.

The rally from the opening declined to 11.54 for May with active months generally showing advances of about five to nine points in this spurt during the first half hour.

N. Y. Stock Market

STOCKS
New York, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The new and smaller gold dollar acted sentimental in foreign exchange dealings today and stocks were inclined to steam their advancing enthusiasm notwithstanding sizable purchases of gold abroad by New York banks and the supporting $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund and on the trend the British pound which dropped about six cents in terms of the U. S. unit and other leading European currencies were heavy.

Grains and other commodities offered little aid to equities, but cotton was steady. Bonds again moved ahead.

Selling in some of the alcohols following word from Washington that the Department of Justice had begun an investigation of complaints of an alleged liquor trust.

Metals and a number of securities were firm, but profit-taking was followed by industrials, including aircraft and alcohol shares. Trading was active, but under the record total of the previous session. Transfers were 3,000,000 shares.
