

EDWARD C. BREMER RELEASED BY HIS ABDUCTORS

TWO DAYS OF RIOTING AND TERROR BROUGHT TO AN END IN PARIS

NEW CABINET EXPECTED TO ACT BY NIGHT

Premier Doumergue Immediately Begins Work to Carry Out His Program; Last Night's Rioting Conducted by Communists and Hoodlums; Premier - Designate Receives Tumultuous Welcome.

Paris, Feb. 8. (AP)—Premier-designate Gaston Doumergue whose new cabinet may be formed by tonight...

The 71-year-old former president and France's new man of the hour took only fifteen minutes after his arrival today to tell President Lebrun what he meant to do.

Then he immediately started to carry out his program. On all sides it was admitted that the nation was close to civil war and revolution in the bitter fighting between rioters and mounted guards which swept Paris.

Today as reinforced ranks of laborers went forward with cleaning up the debris left by last night's riot, the riot dead were counted at twelve and those injured and wounded went into the thousands.

Edouard Daladier, who resigned as Premier with his cabinet yesterday in the hope of avoiding further disorders, urged that martial law be declared in a midnight session with President Lebrun, it was learned today.

The president refused and thus the Minister's resignation was forced. Veterans of the Nationalist Union told Lebrun Tuesday they had gone unarmed in their demonstration against police and troops, but threatened to renew the attack with rifles, swords and even machine guns.

The veterans left last night's rioting to Communists and hoodlums. These groups, police were confident, they could control if unexpected further disorders occurred.

Doumergue, who received a tumultuous welcome from thousands when he arrived this morning, began his work of forming a so-called cabinet of premiers at noon.

PUSH DRIVE AGAINST NAZI IN AUSTRIA

Police Occupy Socialist Centers as Government Drive Enters New Phase.

Vienna, Feb. 8. (AP)—Steel helmeted police with bayonets fixed occupied Socialist centers in Vienna today as the Austrian's government's drive against Nazi and Socialists entered a new phase.

Soldiers joined Vienna police in taking over a number of buildings, including that in which the Socialist newspaper, Arbeiter Zeitung, is published.

The newspaper building was heavily guarded. An Associated Press man attempted to enter and was told he might if he desired, but that no one was being permitted to leave.

Later army lorries with troops began throwing cordons around the whole district in which Socialist activities are centered to forestall possible Nazi reprisals.

The idea behind the new turn of events is to show the political element that Maximism can be exterminated without help of the Nazi.

ROBBERS FAIL TO BREAK SAFE

Unsuccessful Attempt Made to Enter Safe at Blades Motor Co. Last Night

Police today were seeking what they described as an "amateur" burglar who last night made an unsuccessful attempt to enter the safe of the Blades Motor Company on Washington Street.

Believed to have entered the building through a rear window, the thief battered off the hinges to the safe before giving up the job as a bad one. The safe, N. C. Brooks, manager of the firm said, was damaged to the extent of $50 or more.

The robber was careful not to leave any trace behind him, as everything used in the attempt to enter the safe was carried away with him.

The safe was entered by robbers several weeks ago and over $100 was reported missing. A safe belonging to the same firm in New Bern was broken into before the robbery here and a much larger sum of money was missed.

Officers said the first robbery here was the work of professionals, but last night there was every trace that the burglar lacked experience.

The attempted robbery was discovered when employees began work this morning.

LEE COUNTY CALLS IN $20,000 ISSUE OF SCRIP

Sanford, Feb. 8.—The Lee County Board of Commissioners, at the monthly meeting yesterday, called for payment on March 1, the $20,000 issue of Lee county scrip due April 1, 1934.

The scrip was issued April 1, 1932 under a special act of the General Assembly authorizing the county to pledge as security for payment, uncollected taxes due in previous years. Enough of the past due taxes have been collected to allow the county to pay the scrip with interest before maturity, thus saving the county one-half of one per cent interest of the six per cent which the scrip bears.

Issuance of the scrip proved a great help to the people of the county during the "lean months" last spring and summer.

TWO PERSONS ASK AID FOR WOMAN'S CLUB

Dr. McGeachy and 4-H Club Girl Appeal For Financial Aid of Club Here

Appeals for the Woman's Club came from two directions today—Dr. R. S. McGeachy, director of the Pitt County Department of Health, and Miss Doris Nichols, one of the leaders in the 4-H girl movement in this county.

Each asked support of the citizenship in helping the Woman's Club retire an indebtedness on the local club building. Dr. McGeachy declared he had found the club women every ready to help in public movements and urged financial support of the public. Miss Nichols said the club had proven a great source of help in 4-H Club activities.

The two appeals follow: "Few people have as good an opportunity to evaluate the work of the various civic organizations of a community as have public health and welfare workers, and I wish to heartily commend to the people of Greenville and Pitt County the remarkable work done by the Greenville Woman's Club. The Woman's Club was the first organization in the county to send a delegation to me as health officer to assure me of the desire of the club and the members as individuals to co-operate with the Health Department in any way possible, and I have found them ever ready to do all in their power to advance health in Greenville and Pitt County. I sincerely hope the business men of the community will rally to their support and thus enable the good women to do even a greater work in the future."

"R. S. McGEACHY, M. D., Health Officer."

"The 4-H girls of Pitt County wish to extend our thanks to the Woman's Club and to the citizens of Greenville for the co-operation, which has so whole-heartedly been given us during the past year."

"Especially we wish to thank the members of the Woman's Club for the use of their building, which has always been at our disposal whenever we desired to have a combined meeting of the several groups in the county. We have used the building so often that we have come to think of it as being our headquarters."

"The members of the Woman's Club have always been eager to give freely of their time and assistance whenever an occasion arose. They have aided us many times during the past year, and were instrumental in making 1933 successful for us."

"It is the sincere wish of every 4-H Club member that the people of Pitt County will come to the assistance of one of our worthwhile organizations and aid them in keeping the building, which serves not only as their headquarters, but also as a community center."

"DORIS NICHOLS, 4-Club Girl."

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8. (AP)—Department of Justice officials indicated today that the search for the abductors of Edward G. Bremer, wealthy St. Paul banker, would be intensified now that he had been returned alive.

This was disclosed today as details of the return of Bremer were coming into the office of Edward Hoover, director of investigation of the Justice Department. He would not see newspapers.

DOWN-AND-OUT FARMERS WILL GET GOV. HELP

Government Offers To Finance Tenants If Proper Land is Provided

The federal government is now offering the "down-and-out" tenant farmer a chance to make good in North Carolina by financing the production of this year's crop. It was reported today by J. T. Bland, director of the federal re-employment bureau here.

The bureau today was making an effort to obtain homes for farmers without places to farm, and called on all farm owners who have extra land to get in touch with the office and help the government provide homes for the down-and-out farmers striving to make a living.

Mr. Bland said they had between 25 and 30 farm applicants on their list at this time and that the majority of them were receiving aid through the Welfare Department.

North Carolina, Mr. Bland said, is the only state where the new financing program is being conducted. It is an experiment on the part of the government to provide places for farmers without homes or land on which to farm, so that they may be able to provide for themselves in years to come.

Landlords who offer land for this purpose will also be required to provide suitable housing accommodations. The farm agent will direct such farming activities and pass on the amount of money found necessary for each individual tenant.

By reason of the reduction of acreage of principal farm crops, Mr. Bland said hundreds of farmers had been thrown out of work in this part of the state and that something must be done to provide work for them. He urged that any landlord wishing to do his part in the new federal program get in touch with the unemployment office and let it be known how many tenants he can use.

GOVERNMENT BEGINS DRIVE ON KIDNAPERS

Prominent St. Paul Bank Owner Given Freedom After Being Held 23 Days; Ransom is Reported Paid for His Release at Rochester, Minn.; Doctor Describes His Condition as Being Good.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8. (AP)—Department of Justice officials indicated today that the search for the abductors of Edward G. Bremer, wealthy St. Paul banker, would be intensified now that he had been returned alive.

This was disclosed today as details of the return of Bremer were coming into the office of Edward Hoover, director of investigation of the Justice Department. He would not see newspapers.

Many high in official life in Washington were happy at the return of the young man as his family is well-known to President Roosevelt and others here.

St. Paul, Feb. 8. (AP)—Weak and exhausted, Edward G. Bremer, wealthy St. Paul banker, was at home today, freed about 8 o'clock last night by the kidnaping gang which held him twenty-three days for $300,000 ransom.

A physician, called to the Bremer home today to examine the banker, described his physical condition as "good."

He had suffered a beating about the head, presumably when his wife seized. His automobile found shortly afterward was profusely bloodied with blood.

Dr. J. M. Sprafkin, the examining physician, said afterward a ransom had been paid but he did not know how much.

Bremer's captors, who numbered six or seven, close friends said, released him near Rochester, Minn., 65 miles south of here. He was taken loose by three men in a small sedan, they said.

The 37-year-old president-staid member of the Commercial State Bank, whose life fear had been expressed, was uninjured.

The banker, friends said, took a bus from Rochester to St. Paul, Minn., and went to his father's home in a taxicab.

Friends said his eyes had been taped during the twenty-three days of his imprisonment.

First announcement of his release was made by Warner Hann, chief of the Department of Justice office.

DEATH ON THE RADIATOR

About one out of every ten of the automobiles that use the public streets and highways, should wear as an emblem a large, staring death's head.

It wouldn't be a pretty sight. But it would be an accurate symbol. Ten per cent of motorists are responsible for our gigantic death and injury toll.

They drive cars with defective brakes and steering mechanisms and poor lights. They cut in and out of traffic, missing oncoming cars by an eyelash and feeling a thrill of achievement while doing it.

And—every year—they leave behind them 30,000 corpses and hundreds of thousands of injured persons whose sole offense was that they happened to be present when the reckless driver was taking one of the chances he didn't get away with.

Yes, there should be the emblem of death on a long line of automobiles which otherwise look no different than any other cars of their kind. This suggestion may make some of the reckless drivers think twice before running a risk the next time.

Chapter 27

FRANK EXPLORES

The sun had sunk below the horizon. Cautiously he slid into the open outside the ruin. Ahead, where the column of pursuers had gone, he made out a white object above the tree tops.

He drew forth his binoculars and adjusted them. It was the house atop the pyramid reflecting from its altitude the sun. He was closer to the city than he thought, not more than a mile or two.

He heard a rustle behind him. He whirled, gun in hand. The shadows had lengthened, and semi-obscurity shrouded the ground. The sound was not repeated, but he believed he saw a shadow fade and disappear at the jungle's edge.

An iguana, as large as a cat, drifted across the rocks ahead of him. Doubtfully he holstered his pistol, and withdrew into the ruin. Time enough to enter the city after dark; meanwhile he would get some badly-needed sleep.

The squeaking of bats and the soft whispering of their wings awakened Frank. He glanced at the illuminated dial of his watch; it was a little after midnight. He stretched the stiffness from his limbs. He adjusted his clothing as best he could in the darkness, and tightened his belt. He was very hungry.

He stepped into the open and followed in the tracks of the party that had passed the ruin during the afternoon. As he approached the city the trees thinned and gave him scanty cover.

Ahead, he saw a light, a dull glow, that he guessed from its height to be a fire of some kind atop the big pyramid. This was confirmed as he approached the huge mass. He wondered at the lack of edifices on this side.

Doubtfully he gauged the height of the moon, speculating if the two hours light remaining were likely to be more of a help than a hindrance. He was grateful for the dim illumination a few minutes later when he stepped into the shadow of the pyramid.

He stopped, rigid with astonishment. There, ahead of him, almost at his feet was the white disk of the moon! It took a few seconds for an explanation of this eerie phenomenon to penetrate his mind. It was the moon, reflected in a pool of water.

As his gaze adjusted itself to the correct focus, he made out the dim bulk of the pyramid reflected below the lopsided shield that was the moon.

It was a cenote! One of those huge cavernous openings that abound throughout the Yucatan peninsula, where the roof of rock, ages ago, had fallen into a natural subterranean reservoir.

Graham dropped to his hands and knees and crawled to the edge. The brink was sharp and the sides almost perpendicular. It made a sort of lake sun scores of feet below the surface of the surrounding terrain. The cenote was a rough oval, a hundred yards long, with a breadth spanned of about two-thirds that distance.

The pyramid abutted against the farther end, looming like a grim sentinel of past ages.

HE stepped away from the edge and progressed with infinite caution to the base of the structure. The moon was somewhat behind him, shining upon the massed stone. He saw to his surprise that the pyramid had been constructed so that this side reared itself in a smooth perpendicular line from the lip of the cenote.

It would be a terrible fall, thought the American, from the truncated top of the pyramid. An object hurled from that height would have an uninterrupted plunge to the surface of the water.

He rounded the corner away from the pool, and guiding himself with one hand touching the masonry, approached the center of the sharply sloping side. He was in deep shadow. At the center the heave-stone steps began.

He climbed a little way, and rested, listening for sounds of human beings. He progressed slowly but assured himself that no one was about. At the top he peered over the edge.

The stage was flung with huge blocks of stone, and in the center stood the temple-house, built squarely. It was much larger than it had seemed from the plain below. There was no opening at the side facing Grahame, but he observed that a glow came from around a corner,—the exposure facing the sheer drop to the cenote.

He knew that there was a doorway facing eastward, toward the small ruined pyramid at the edge of the city, from which point he had made his observations of the previous day.

In the center of the light from the western door, and standing halfway toward the edge, was a huge slab of stone supported as a pedestal, waist-high, by four smaller stones at the corners. It was evidently an altar of some sort. Even in the dim light Grahame saw that it was covered with elaborate carvings. The surface of the slab seemed to slope toward the brink.

With swift certainty he covered the space between the stair's top and the shadowy corner of the house. A glance assured him that the altar side of the house was unoccupied. He slipped within the doorway. There was a corridor ahead, and at the end of it there showed a glimpse of star-studded sky,—the eastern door.

SEEMINGLY there was no one about. He penetrated farther into the place. At the middle he found that another corridor, blind at both ends, bisected the other. At the intersection a stone brazier burned, throwing smoky shadows about.

He turned to the left, and proceeded toward the end. On each side were doorways, evidently the entrances to the rooms that lined this pyramid-house.

He paused. Dark lumps lay before two of the doorways. He heard the sound of human beings breathing evenly. The red light from the central urn threw stabbing flashes about the walls and he caught glimpses of reflected light upon the metallic equipment of the sleeping guards.

He retreated softly, and stole down the corridor to the opposite end. There were no guards before the doorway.

He nodded his head and compressed his lips. He returned into the left corridor and approached the end until he stood over the sleepers. He reached under his arm. His automatic gleamed dimly in the fitful light.

Silently, like a cat compressing itself for a spring, he bent over. His left hand closed accurately upon a throat. A whisper died with the pressure of his finger muscles; he brought the barrel of the gun down upon the spot over the ear.

Grahame made an unintelligible sound in his throat and reached for the other's neck. There was a whistling of the guard's breath as he essayed a shout and he writhed within the sudden grasp. His back bowed and he pounded at the American's face with his fist.

Grahame threw his leg forward and pressed the man's arm to his side. Again he chopped down the barrel of his pistol, and the figure collapsed to the stone.

He paused, holding his breath. There was no sound but the sputtering of the central urn.

A glance at his watch told him that it was nearing three o'clock. It would be getting light soon and there was little time to lose if he were to find Janice, and get down the pyramid into his hiding place.

He was feeling faint from lack of food, and his imagination was beginning to play tricks with his sense of smell. He would have sworn that he smelled food, ever since he had topped the pyramid.

He found that the doors of these side rooms were casually fastened,—rough wooden pegs pinning a metal latch. The doors were wooden. He lifted the peg and pushing open the nearer one he entered. There was a lamp burning dimly in the room he entered.

At the farther end he made out a pallet and a figure reclining upon it. He approached the figure; his shadow bounded about the stone walls like a huge misshapen phantom. He bent over the couch; almost he exclaimed aloud.

The wide-open eyes of Janice Kent, their blue irises glowing with a dark contempt, stared at him. He watched them widen in astonishment. Her lips parted, as if she were about to speak, but his palm swiftly covered her mouth.

"Don't speak," he cautioned in the barest of whispers.

Tomorrow, Janice complicates their escape.

quiet around his home town of Uvalde, Texas, while Washington was being turned upside down, and postponed his return to the capital until the last minute.

Once here it has been much the same—only, instead of hunting and fishing, he amuses himself by thinking up excuses for not attending social functions except those he can't possibly avoid.

Washington, D. C.—Fireworks aplenty are promised in the Senate when the name of George C. Matthews, of Wisconsin, is presented for confirmation as a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

Mathews was appointed by President Roosevelt after William E. Humphrey, a Republican, was eased out a short while ago presumably because the White House wanted a man in the position whose mind was more likely to run along with that of the administration, particularly as to enforcement of NRA codes.

Humphrey took his case to the courts where a decision still is pending. Republican Senators have served notice they will have a lot to say about the matter when Mathews' name comes before the Senate. It is too good a talking point and involves too good an opportunity for Democratic embarrassment for Republicans to overlook it.

The Commission Steps Up Other considerations aside from those purely political enter into the question.

The Federal Trade Commission under the new administration has assumed a position of steadily increasing importance. It has been elevated from the status of just another government bureau to a position of influence and prestige.

The present Congress gave it a new lease on life when it charged the Commission with the duty of administering the securities law. Under the NRA the Commission is set up as a virtual grand jury of enforcement in industry. The long-awaited stock market expansion of its duties and powers.

When the case is opened in the Senate, therefore, aside from the purely partisan issues raised, there will be a lot said about what the President really wants the Commission to do.

It is possible that the Mathews-Humphrey incident may prove of great importance in testing Congressional sentiment now on the President's plans for a "managed national economy."

Battle Lines Forming The Mathews nomination will bring about an impressive alignment of forces in the Senate. Republican stalwarts like Fess, of Ohio; McNary, of Oregon, Republican leader, and Vandenberg, of Michigan, will attempt to make it unpleasant for the Democrats.

Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader; Clark, of Missouri, and others on the Democratic side, may be expected to have a lot to say in defense of the President's move and against Humphrey.

As for the White House, the administration, fortified by the Department of Justice, appears confident of its legal position.

Winterville P. T. A. Meets

The Parents-Teacher Association of Winterville met Tuesday night in the school auditorium, with a very good attendance.

During the business session of the meeting, the chairman of the ways and means committee reported that they were preparing to give the play, "Wanted, a Man," in a short time, the date to be announced later. The cast of this play is to be selected from the family and the townfolk. We are expecting this play to be a great success.

It was also announced that a one-act play and some special by the Glee Club will be given in the auditorium here Friday night.

The program for the night was in the form of a debate by six high school boys. N. T. Cox, Oswald Hodges, Clayton Stokes, Darwin Waters, Wayland Sermons and Ben Harris. The subject was "Resolved that the United States Should Have Free Trade." The spirited argument by the boys on both sides showed that much thought, under the direction of Miss Wyllette Culbreath, had been given the subject both for and against the question. The Judge, Mrs. J. R. Carroll, Mr. R. T. Cox and Mr. M. T. Spier, commended all the debaters but decided in favor of the negative.

Most everyone likes debates and we hope the boys and girls will give us the opportunity to listen to more of their debates in the near future. The meeting adjourned to meet at next regular meeting time which is Tuesday night after first Sunday.—Reported.

According to reports received from the commanding officer, U. S. Naval Training Station, Norfolk, Va., two North Carolina boys who were enlisted in the U. S. Navy last October at the main recruiting station, Raleigh, have been selected as "honor man" of their respective platoons.

Willard E. Jenkins, apprentice seaman, U. S. N., and James T. Keel, apprentice seaman U. S. N., are the men so honored by their commanding officer.

Jenkins and Keel were received at the training station on October 25 and have just completed their 12 weeks period of recruit training during which period they were given instructions in infantry and artillery drills, rowing, signalling, swimming and seamanship. During the training period the men are marked according to their appearance, attitude, military bearing, promptness and willingness in obedience to orders and as a result of excellent marks Jenkins and Keel were named "honor man," the highest honor awarded during recruiting training.

Conoco Travel Bureau Predicts Tourist Increase

"More tourists will visit this section during 1934, and more money will be spent in local business establishments by visiting motorists than during either of the past two years."

Such was the prediction made here by Marshall Dana, commander of a roomy red, green and white Conoco Travel Bureau bus which called into town Wednesday, stopping long enough to allow its personnel to inspect local points of scenic and historical interest and check over the tourist assistance now being rendered by Conoco service stations here.

Mr. Dana said that one reason why an increase in vacation travel to this area seems probable is the fact that 1933 statistics compiled by the Conoco Travel Bureau indicate a decidedly encouraging trend.

The Conoco Travel Bureau, Mr. Dana explained, has grown, in four years' time, from a small branch serving a few hundred people to the largest organization of its type in America. It was founded by Continental in response to the demands of motor vacationists and everyday travelers who wish to be certain they are taking direct, trouble-free routes to their destinations and yet see the most interesting sights found in the country they journey through.

The bureau's second major aim is to increase tourist travel to all of the nation's scenic regions. Through approximately 18,000 company and dealer service stations and hundreds of newspapers, hotels and chambers of commerce, the bureau is distributing attractive maps and literature featuring the interesting points in America.

This unusual service, to which every motorist is entitled without spending a cent—even for postage—goes farther than literature distribution. In the bureau's central offices in Denver, more than a hundred carefully trained employees consult daily reports from every state in the union; note even the shortest detours, and incorporate this information into the routes they mark on all maps sent out.

Officials accompanying Mr. Dana were D. W. Hall of the Continental Oil Co., Richmond, Va.; J. H. Wright, J. L. Hales and W. H. Williams of the National Oil Co., and John Richards, driver.

"Depopulation" Project Talked At Kinston Meet

Representatives of the State Department of Conservation and Development, Agricultural Extension workers, Chambers of Commerce in Eastern Carolina, civic clubs, county commissioners, city officials and the press are being called into a sectional meeting at Kinston today, at the Kinston Hotel, to discuss plans for securing appropriations from the $25,000,000 recently set aside for uses in a campaign to "depopulate" the congested centers and bring the population to less densely populated sections where they can make a living, according to an announcement made by President Guy Elliott of the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce, and Secretary N. G. Bartlett.

The officials of the sectional organization have been working on plans for this meeting for the past two weeks. Director Hopkins has been requested to send a representative to this meeting to get first-hand information as to the real possibilities in Eastern Carolina for such developments. The meeting is open to the public and it is hoped by the officials of the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce that a representative group will be present from every section of the East.

There will be no "set" speaker, the sponsors announced, but all information available will be at hand to aid in the formation of a working program for this development.

Possessions Ready To Greet President

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The tropics are calling nautical-minded President Roosevelt and if he can finish with Congress in time he will be off soon after April 1 on a 15,000-mile cruise to America's outlying possessions.

Preparations already are proceeding.

ROCKY MOUNT HIGH TO PLAY HERE FRIDAY

The local High School boys basketball team will bring their home season nearer to its close Friday night when they meet the fast quint representing Rocky Mount High. This is a return game with Rocky Mount. The locals were defeated there January 11. Since then Greenville has improved somewhat, and a real battle is expected in this game.

The local quint has won only three games this year. They defeated Washington, New Bern and Kinston. These were the teams that were supposed to win from. However, Rocky Mount has shown very much improvement since early in the season, and the locals have a very good chance to turn the tables on them.

This will be the next to last home game for the boys this season. February 20 Washington will be played here. February 13 a game will be played in Kinston. This will end the season, unless the local enter the tri-county tournament that will be staged here the latter part of February.

The tournament will have teams from Pitt, Lenoir and Beaufort counties. Both boys and girls will participate. The games will be staged at the High School and at East Carolina Teachers College. It is believed that at least twenty teams will be entered.

Getting back to the Rocky Mount game. In order that the fans will be able to see the college play Campbell, the High School will start at 7:30 o'clock. The college game will probably start at 8:30 o'clock. This will give everyone a chance to see both games.

LOCALS LOSE TO RALEIGH, SCORE 35-5

By JIMMIE WEATHERS
Raleigh's High School basketball Purple Hurricane last night topped the Greenville High School quint, 34 to 5, in Broughton High School gymnasium last night.

The visitors made only two field goals, both in the second half. It was the second successive interscholastic game here in which the local has held an opposing team to a pair of field goals. Rocky Mount High were treated to a similar dose last week.

Reginald Goodwin, big center, made eight points to lead the home team's tallying last night. Fuller and Wood turned in fine floor play. Billy Staton, little forward, was best for Greenville.

The Raleigh cagers head into Western North Carolina today on a two-game trip. They play at Lexington High tonight and at High Point School gymnasium in Raleigh.

Last night's line-ups: Raleigh—Holding (2), Fuller (6), Andrews (6), Peatross, Honeycutt and Joslin, forwards; Goodwin (8) and Riddle, centers; Chappell (2), Celey (2), Uase (4) and Wood (4), guards.

Greenville—N. Warren, Pierce, W. Warren and Staten (2), forwards; Parks (1) and Wells, centers; Carroll, Hardee (2), Wilson and Clark, guards.

Teachers Win From Ry. Mount

The E. C. T. C. girls won their first home game of the season here last night. Both teams played a close guarded game. The Rocky Mount sextet led at the half by the score of 3-2. When the Ramblers of E. C. T. C. went back in for the last half they fought to win, and the score gradually but surely advanced and when the whistle blew the score was 10-5 in favor of E. C. T. C.

Bragg, Sinclair and Register, accounted for scoring for E. C. T. C. The Rocky Mount girls divided their points pretty evenly among their forwards.

Campbell Will Play Here Friday

Friday night Campbell College will come here ready for bloody war. They will be seeing red in spite of the trouncing that they have already given E. C. T. C. this year, as they have not yet recovered from the spanking the East Carolina "Gridgers" gave them last fall.

Waldron, Ridenhour, and possibly Kapelle will be out of the game Friday on account of illness, but their places will be filled by able substitutes.

In spite of the fact that E. C. T. C. has just returned from an unsuccessful four-game trip, they will be able and ready for a lively scrap. The squad received many compliments while on the trip upon their splendid sportsmanship and excellent team work.

New York Cotton

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened fairly steady, two points higher to four points lower with trade buying and liquidation. There was some trader buying at the opening. This was supplied by liquidation and selling and the market eased. May selling down from 12.05 to 11.94, making declines of 9 to 14 points on active positions.

Offerings tapered off at the end, declines and prices stiffened a few points on the recovery, and a trade buying with market showing declines of five to seven points at the end of the first half hour.

Prices later just about recovered the earlier losses. The market at midday was quiet and steady, unchanged to three points lower.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Stocks continued in the grip of a selling urge today and orderly realizing was the rule. Depressing news was scare an dthe majority of market analysts attributed further reactions to tendencies almost wholly to technical causes.

The Paris rare-up appeared to be dying down and the progress of business and industry was viewed as satisfactory. The ticker tape occasionally lagged behind floor transactions, but the activity was considerably under that of yesterday.

Foreign exchanges were again firm in relations to the dollar. Grains and other commodities were a bit heavy, but cotton steadied after early recessions. Domestic bonds were in moderate demand. Stocks checked their downward trend with a lively rally in the late trading. Forenoon losses of fractions to more than two points were largely cancelled and many shares advanced for gains. Transfers here 3,200,000 shares.

Today In Congress.
Washington, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Independents of both parties allied themselves in the Senate this afternoon in a determined attempt to boost the $450,000,000 CWA fund to $2,000,000,000. The Roosevelt line showed no indication of wavering.

A "you help me and I will help you" attitude in the House, meanwhile, led to approval of one tiny bill after another.

National problems were sidetracked there for the once legislative topics of importance to individuals and communities.

The mortality rate on such measures was lower than customary, the pace approximating 30 or more an hour.

Cutting, Republican of New Mexico, and Costigan of Colorado, paying scant respect to party labels, as usual joined joined for the massive CWA fund in the relief bill that already totaled $950,000,000 as passed by the House. Of that sum $500,000,000 would be for direct relief.

"The history of these times," contended Cuttings, "will show that the boom in the plumage of the Roosevelt administration was the CWA."

Indications that the history possibly will show a shady chapter was seen in some quarters at the capital for the grand jury probe going on into alleged conspiracy to defraud the government on army contracts. There was no expectation of immediate indictment by developments next week.

Postmaster Confirmed

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—(AP)—The Civil Service Commission certified to Postmaster General Farley today the following were eligible for postmasters: Mount Olive, Jack Barfield, Daniel Kornegay and Ben Summerell.

Condemn Telephone Property

Henderson, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The city of Henderson today instituted condemnation proceedings to obtain possession of the Carolina Telephone & Telegraph Company properties here.

The move was made as an outgrowth of the dispute with the telephone company over renewal of its franchise.

A petition was filed with the clerk of Superior court but the city attorneys said the city was prepared to pay a reasonable price for the telephone company's equipment other than its building. It added that the company had refused to give it an inventory of its properties and also had refused to name a price for them.

At present the local properties of the telephone company are being operated by J. H. Bridgers of the municipal waterworks as receiver.

HOBO IN HOSPITAL WITH SEVERE BRUISES

Sanford, N. C., Feb. 8.—John Bulkley, white, age about 50, "a night of the road," is in Lee County Hospital, with severe bruises and possibly internal injuries received yesterday when he fell from the top of a car in a Seaboard Air Line freight train.

When picked up, Bulkley smelled quite strongly of liquor and evidently was under influence of it. Hospital attaches have not been able as yet to get the man's home address, as he has not sobered up sufficiently to give an intelligent account of himself.

Hints On Flavors

A piece of garlic added to the French dressing.

An equal quantity of whipped cream added to mayonnaise.

Since that time representatives of the Highway Commission have been here to survey the work and provide specifications for contractors who participate in the bidding.

PASQUOTANK COUNTY TO HAVE BLOODHOUND

Elizabeth City, Feb. 8.—A bloodhound for trailing criminals will be available in Pasquotank county under a deal made by the board of commissioners Monday with "Hurricane" Branch of Norfolk, whereby the county will keep the dog and run him on a 50-50 basis. In other words, 50 per cent of the money charged for the dog in tracking down a fugitive will go to the county and 50 per cent to Branch.

The dog will be brought to Elizabeth City, according to Sheriff Charles Carmine, as soon as a suitable dog house can be built in the jail yard.

TWELVE DIVORCES GRANTED IN ONE DAY

Asheville, Feb. 8.—A record for granting divorces in one day was made today in Superior Court by Judge Michael Schenck when he signed judgments granting divorces in 12 cases. All of them but one were granted on the grounds of two years' separation under the new state law passed by the last Legislature. The exception was a case in which the complainant charged infidelity against her husband.

Teacherage Burns

Conway, N. C., Feb. 8.—The teacherage of the Conway High School was completely destroyed by fire a few days ago. Several of the high school teachers who had gone to their bedrooms on the second floor discovered that the entire attic was enveloped in flames. The strong wind soon caused the flames to spread to all portions of the wooden building. The teachers lost practically all clothing and trunks.

Sundown Stories

Their Hero
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Christopher Columbus Crow opened his eyes.

"What!" he exclaimed, though in a weak voice, "you're all crying!"

"We thought the battle with the Owl had killed you in the end," said Top Notch. "Are you all right?"

"Does any place hurt?" asked Willy Nilly.

"I'm perfectly all right," Christopher answered, "but I was so tired out from the battle that I guess I just went to pieces when I got here."

"You took the time to tell us the Owl had gone away forever," said Top Notch admiringly.

"Yes, he has gone," said Christopher. "None of you must worry about me. My wings are tired from using them so hard. After a little rest I'll feel better than ever. I needed the exercise." And tired though he was he gave a cawing chuckle.

"Never did I think," he continued, and the familiar gleam and twinkle came back in Christopher's eyes, "that I'd make you all cry because you loved me so much."

"Well, well, I guess I can play lots of pranks and do a great deal of mischief after this. You'll all feel that you can excuse me!"

"Now, now, Christopher," smiled Willy Nilly.

"Our hero!" And the others shouted and harked and quacked:

"Our hero!" Then Willy Nilly took Christopher on his shoulder and, marching around the shop, they all sang: "Christopher is our hero, our hero, our hero! Christopher Columbus Crow!"

Tomorrow—"Go! Stop!"
