NO TAX ON LIVE HOGS

Farmers who are being fooled into selling their hogs for a cent to a cent and a half below the market price when told that otherwise the processing tax will fall upon them, are just being gypped out of what is due them, according to the warning issued by the local farm department today.

It is reported by one farmer that he was told by the purchaser of his live hogs that if the full market price of five cents a pound was paid for the hogs, he (the farmer) would have to bear the process tax, but if he would sell at three and a half cents a pound the purchaser would gladly relieve him of the trouble of the tax and take care of it himself (the buyer).

Attention is called to the fact that the processing tax was adopted by the government to aid the farmer rather than to hurt him and there is no such thing as a process tax on the sale of live hogs. Of course, when the purchaser slaughters these hogs for sale the process tax goes into effect, but this is a tax against the processor rather than against the farmer. Farmers would do well not to be talked into selling their live hogs for less than the market in such manner.

Colonel Lindbergh sees fit to criticize President Roosevelt for his action in cancelling the air mail contracts.
If we recollect correctly, recently there was a lot in the papers about the colonel being handed a big block of stock in some of the companies now being denied further government contracts.
In such a case his present complaint will be taken with a grain of salt.

PRAISES C. W. A.
It is with interest that I take this time to write a few words about the C. W. A. I don't know how I do appreciate the President for taking so much interest in the "people." It wasn't for the C. W. A. there are lots of people know would have to work for 40 to 50 cents a day and feed a family. Some say the C. W. A. has too much money, but I don't think so. Just look at what you have to pay. I read a piece in the paper some time back where a man said there was nothing in the C. W. A. but negroes and trashy white people, but that man is entirely mistaken. I know some nice people that have to work. I am working on the C. W. A. myself, but it is because I have to. I was farming and getting along fine until they came around signing up the tobacco.

Well, when my landlord signed up he threw me out of a crop, and if it wasn't for the good old C. W. A. where would I be?

POLITICS at random

By REYON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

The administration plan to adjourn Congress in May is causing much grumbling in scattered Washington sectors, but thus far the Roosevelt leaders are standing pat.
The President himself is said by these leaders to feel that the uncer-tainities attending a Congressional session should be removed from the recovery picture as soon as practicable.

Those members of the Senate and House who disagree are saying it is bad enough to have the whole legislative program written at the White House, without letting the President impose the crowning achievement of telling Congress when to go home.

Suffering In Secret
But they say this privately, almost all of them. They realize there is little they can do about it. More than one member has told his friends that he has found Mr. Roosevelt more popular in his district than he himself is—and this is a campaign year.

So the grumbling means little in terms of roll calls. The House debate on the CWA appropriation bill shows numerous dissenters, but the 382-to-1 vote demonstrated how feeble were these protests, even in the breasts of the protests. It is the consensus that Mr. Roosevelt can get adjournment whenever he wants it.

The question seems to be how far he will think it wise to give in, as a matter of diplomacy and not of necessity.

A Cruel Prospect
One rallying point of those who oppose early adjournment is the fact that such a procedure would kill the last chance for members to get through their "private bills"—measures to grant a pension here and a few dollars' damages there, back in the home districts.

At the special session last year there was no such chance. Now the chance this year is fading; the House has opened the door to passage of some such bills, but it means nothing unless the Senate acts too, and the Senate calendar already is overcrowded.

Some members have just given up.
One, who stirred up a lot of noise some time back in introducing a bill especially favored in his district, was asked recently what its prospects were.
"Oh, that?" he replied. "Why, I got all the glory I ever expected out of it when I introduced it. I never thought it would get anywhere."

On the Other Hand— Pressure for a longer session is being exerted also by brain trusters who are not for such proposals as a reciprocal tariff, unemployment insurance and stock market regulation.

But perhaps the most significant urge of all arises out of the civil works problem.
Suppose Congress quits on May 1, leaving only a limited amount available for civil works. Suppose the tapering-off process proposed by Mr.
Roosevelt stirs such a loud popular campaign-year clamor that it is expedient that the tapering off be stopped.

Without Congress here to appropriate more billions, where will the administration be and where will the Democrats who are running for re-election be?
That is what is worrying a lot of people in Washington. The President will hear plenty about it before he makes his final decision.

NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE

County offer for sale at public auction for cash the property described in said deed of trust as follows:

BLOND GODDESS A New Serial by Herbert Jensen

SYNOPSIS: Frank Grahame, in the Yucatan jungle on a hunt for Bill Langton, his mission arborist and, rescues instead Janice-Kent, the movie star, and Grahame, her lover, is sent to the United States by the sublevedos, at the top of an ancient Mayan pyramid. But almost immediately, the natives recapture the party, and severely wound Frank into the bargain. He awakes, a prisoner, with Greene by his side. They explore their cell.

Chapter 30
THE MESSAGE

HIGH above them were two windows, one on each adjacent wall. Frank guessed that this was either a corner room, or that the cell abutted upon a courtyard. The window-openings were barred, as was the square orifice in the studded door.

He approached the door and studied it. He lifted his fist and struck it.

"What are you trying to do?"
asked Greene.

"Get somebody here, and tell 'em we want water."

"No good. I tried that while you were 'bye bye."

Grahame unlaced a boot. "If at first you don't succeed," he said tugging at the heel, "make some more noise."

He pounded the door with his boot-heel. After a period he heard a voice outside the door ask him in Spanish what he wanted.

"Water!"
The voice spat some reply, and they heard the man's soft footsteps retreating.

Grahame redoubled his pounding. Soon the voice spoke again and Grahame replied in voluble Spanish.

"What are you telling him?"
Greene asked curiously.

"Telling 'im we'll die without food and water, and that he'll catch the devil if he lets us."

The man without seemed to hesitate before replying, then, muttering, shuffled away. Grahame smiled.
"Bet you a dime we get the water."

The minutes sped away. An hour passed. The heat within the closed room was stifling. While the pain in his head diminished, Grahame doubted if he were capable of any great effort. His right arm and shoulder were worse than useless, he knew.

There seemed scant chance of making a break for freedom from this situation. It would take a miracle to alter their circumstances for the better. He wondered how long they would keep them here, and for what ultimate purpose.

They seemed, these savage people, utterly ruthless about the lives of their male victims. His thoughts instinctively refused to dwell on Janice's fate. He knew too well what might happen to her.

Many of the warriors had white skins, sun-bronzed to be sure, but undoubtedly white. The eyes of some of them were blue, and their hair yellow.

He thought, too, of Hollywood, which by now had assumed the status almost of a heavenly abode to him.

HE WONDERED just why he had walked out of Janice's house that night after she had so curtly refused him. He even wondered whether she had refused him, or whether the slap she had dealt him was rather the result of over-strung nerves.

In any case, it was obvious that his action had been responsible for most of what had come since. For evidently if he had talked it out with Janice that night they might at least have come to some agreement that would have made it possible for him to continue with Myberg.

And had he continued with My-berg he would have been a member of the company that had been sent to Mexico, and thus would have been able to protect Janice at every step. Or at least to try to protect her.

He would certainly never have permitted the company to advance blind into the most dangerous part of Mexico. He might very well have brought it into the wilds, it is true, but certainly not under the "protection" of Ortega.

"Hindsight is better than foresight," he quoted grimly to himself as he looked about his cell.

The whole debacle had been the result of a girl's slap—and a man's stunned pride. The rancor of the one had gone, but the consequences of the other remained.

He wondered again at the fidelity of Juan, the chance that had brought the boy to him, and whether the youth was by now safely out of the territory of the bloodthirsty sublevedos.

NO USE, he gasped. "I'm too heavy for you, and I can't get high enough to drag up with my left arm. Let me stand there and you do the climbing."

"It's going to hurt you," replied Greene doubtfully.

Grahame wiped the perspiration from his eyes.

"You should have been a dentist," he grinned, and placed himself against the wall.

The smaller man put his foot in Grahame's belt and struggled, so that he had both feet upon
Grahame, the pain in his torn back muscles was exquisite.

"It's open country," Greene spoke swiftly. "We could get through this window if we could cut the bars. I can see the base of the great pyramid off to the left about a quarter of a mile. There's a lot of buildings like this one, some larger, some smaller.

"Say . . ." His tone was incredulous. "Here is a funny one. Someone has scratched a lot of words on the sill. I guess you'd call it . . . under the bars here. It says—"
"Never mind," muttered Grahame hoarsely. "Can't hold you up much longer."

"Just a minute more," pleaded Greene. "It's dated only a few months ago. December 15th. It's signed . . . it's signed . . . by all that's holy, its signed by Langton, who fell in the ocean last year!
Grahame . . ."

The blood left Grahame's head.
He felt new strength flowing into him. The pain even, seemed to abate as he heard the little man's voice cry out that there was a message scratched on the stone sill of the barred opening, by Langton.

"What does it say?"
"December 18. Log covering trip until mid-day December 15 will be found in map case on ship. Storm passed and visibility became good about four P. M. Gas almost exhausted, when sighted ruins. Ship undamaged in landing. Taken here by armed natives three days ago.
My guard tells me I am to be sacrificed by the ahkin—the high-priest —on the central pyramid and thrown into the cenote."

"December 19. Ahkin here today.
Was taken to ship. Am to teach them to fly. They are sending runners for gasoline. For good-behavior they let me take some food from the ship—chocolate bars, chewing gum and pop back here."

"December 20. No use. Guard says tomorrow some festival begins and I am to die. It would not be so bad if these people were ignorant Indians, but some are as white as I am. I will copy a message and put it in a bottle. Perhaps goodbye!"

"That's all," said Mr. Greene. He slid down to the floor. "I found this up there." He extended his hand.
Within it was a fragment of glass.

"Probably Langton scratched his message with this. Busted a bottle and used the pieces. They said his message was written in blood, and he used another glass splinter for that I guess," Grahame frowned.

Hair 'Piled Up' On Head Paris Coiffure Mandate

By RITA FERRIS (Associated Press Fashion Editor). Paris.—(AP)—"Pile your hair on top of your head" is the slogan for the smartest evening coiffures.

The fashion grandmother loved, with the hair swept up from the back of the neck and pinned in a mass of frivolous ringlets on top, is back in the mode. Curis riot across the crown of the smartest heads, and at least half the coiffures again.

Bob Tied On Curl. Many tricks are used to accent the coiffure. One blow: Parisian ties a little black velvet bow to one curl; another fastens a diamond dart against her piled-up ringlets.

Around the feet the hair is simply dressed—softly waved and swept gently back. Dark haired beauties and "red heads" sometimes pull a little curl out over the cheek or temple to add to the piquant effect.

Coronet Braids Another. Coronet braids are another high-line hair dress affected by smart continental these evenings. They are a glorified version of the old-fashioned "switch" braided loosely and worn across the top of the head like a coronet.

"Windswept" is the decree for chic daytime coiffures. The hair is waved softly back from the forehead, swept across the top of the ears and into a little cluster of short curls or a fall at the back.

Serenity is Order. The new coiffures with their demure for neater neckline and less hair over foreheads have had their effect on faces too. "Serenity" is the edict, and a "smooth untroubled brow" is the new order.

For evening wear gladioms continue in vogue. Combs of beaten gold or silver, carved coral or amber, ribbons of brilliants or silver fillets are seen.

Evening hats are much in vogue too. One of the smartest is of black horsehair in the form of a cap topped on the crown with a halo of the same transparent fabric and worn well back. Another of black grosgrain ribbon has a halo brim which frames the face.

Divided Skirts Favored Smart Sport Wear

By RITA FERRIS (Associated Press Fashion Editor). Paris.—(AP)—Divided skirts are the latest note in sports clothes.

Golf clothes, skating skirts and other costumes ready for practical sports wear appear with bifurcated skirts. Some of them may be buttoned and re-buttoned to make either a trouser-like model for active sports wear or a simple little skirt for the street.

Most of them are from ten to twelve inches from the ground.

Blouses Give Bright Note. Vionnet shows in her latest collections trim sports suit designed with tailored divided skirts. One combines a jacket and bifurcated skirt of light brown with a pink jersey blouse, the other unites a dark brown wool suit with an orange blouse.

Dilkusha (the Princess de Rohan) displays skating skirts slit and buttoned together at the bottom to form a divided skirt. When the wearer wishes they may be unbuttoned and re-buttoned down the back and front to form a street costume.

Patou Likes Plus Fours. Plus fours are Patou's favorite for sports wear. He makes suits of dark green and black waterproof woolen with neat little Norfolk jackets and baggy trousers reminiscent of the golf course.

With them go ski caps with flaps which may be tied up over the head or down over the ears for warmth.

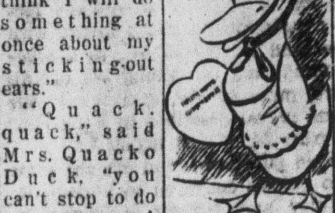

The scarfs which go with these costumes are generally bright in tone, giving a vivid contrast to the suit itself.

Sundown Stories

Making Valentines

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER. "Of course," began Willy Nilly, the little gnome-like man who lived with his animal friends in Puddle Muddle. "I should finish my chores first of all. But now that I have the adhesive tape I think I will do something at once about my stick in 'gout' ears."

"That's true," sighed Willy Nilly. "Well, Valentine's day will be here so soon that it will soon be over! All right, let's get to work on the valentines."

So Willy Nilly went over to the big box that held things just for fun and got out pieces of cardboard, red paper, some red pencils, a box of red hearts, and then his scissors.

Top Notch, the Rooster, Rip, the Dog, Christopher Columbus Crow, the Ducks and Willy Nilly all began to think of verses they would write.

At last Top Notch took the red pencil and, using a piece of cardboard which Willy Nilly had cut out in the shape of a heart, he wrote in his scratching Rooster fashion this verse:

"My Valentine need never fear that we object to a pointed ear. We're really all for Willy Nilly. Though my rhyme may sound quite silly."

Then Mrs. Quacko Duck wrote: "Quack, quack, quack for old St. Valentine. But love for Willy Nilly ends this line."

They were all as busy as they could be, pasting, cutting, writing.

Tomorrow—"More Valentines"

Freak False Fire Alarm

The United States had a gold coin standard. These nations have a gold bullion standard. Up until last March, an individual here could take his currency to the Treasury and exchange it for gold coin.

In France the cheapest gold he can get is a gold bar worth thousands of francs.

America now is on an international bullion standard; if the market of the world get together and decide what the value of their currencies shall be in terms of gold, the United States probably would change to a similar gold bullion standard.

Washington, D. C.—The administration's request for additional millions to keep the CWA payroll alive offered political sharpshooters in the Senate an opportunity they long have awaited.

The House shoved the appropriation through with something like 40 minutes of debate, but Senators showed no disposition for such speed.

Critics of the administration leveled their guns at everything from the way Postmaster General Farley distributes postage on down the line. It was the nearest thing to a political slugfest witnessed in the Senate thus far in the session.

Some of the Republican stalwarts, notably Feas, of Ohio, smarting under revelations made by the Black air mail investigating committee, were out to even scores. Charges of graft and chiseling in CWA afforded them something on which to proceed.

The going got so rough at one time that McNary, of Oregon, the Republican floor leader, felt it necessary to whisper to Robinson, of Indiana, who had the floor, to put a stop to it by refusing to yield to other Senators.

Tense, Tenser, Tensest. Although it probably is too early to suggest that senatorial nerves are becoming frayed from the grating of the session, it is true that the atmosphere around the capital daily becomes more electric.

At the present there are eight Federal investigations under way. They range from inquiries into air-mail contracts to alleged excess profits paid for Army and Navy airplanes.

Names of former officials high in government affairs are being dragged into these investigations. One already has been arrested by the Senate for alleged destruction of wanted documents. There are hints that other startling things are yet to come.

Hard to Dodge. No one escapes entirely in such times. Republicans retaliate for Democratic slouching and Democrats for Republican insinuations. Scenes like that during debate on the CWA appropriation in the Senate crop up regularly and increase in intensity and hard feelings.

This is what the President doubtless has in mind when he insists that Congress get through with its work and go home as quickly as possible. It is why the leaders in both Houses are pushing for an early adjournment.

Temper become less ragged back home than they do here in Washington.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

Within a month after Jack Westrope finished the 1933 season with 302 victories to his credit, the best record by an American jockey in twenty-five years, a new riding sensation has replaced him in the headlines—youthful Earl Porter of Geneva, Illinois.

Porter is the latest in the spring of remarkable young riders who have booted their way rapidly to the top in recent racing seasons. Cherubic Hank Mills, only lately forced out of competition by the weight problem; Johnny Gilbert, leading 1932 rider, and Westrope have contributed to the achievements of a new generation of American jockeys—successors to the group headed by Earl Sande, Linus (Pony) McAtee and Lavender Fator.

He may not be able to keep up the pace, but Porter started on the new year within a string of victories calculated to challenge Westrope's mark. The serious youngster rode forty-two winners in January and began the short month of February with four successive victories at Hialeah.

Around the stables young Porter is considered a thorough horseman, level-headed and with a build that gives him few worries about his weight. He is small-boned and does not take on poundage readily, as Mills did. He has the confidence of Hirsch Jacobs, the trainer who has a reputation for changing riders oftener than any rival handler of horses, with the result that Earl is getting the consistent nod from his mentor. Porter's current success is all the more noteworthy because he had scarcely a month worth mentioning in three years he was apprenticed to R. B. Allen.

Comeback of a Book
One more sign of returning better times will be the revival of baseball's famous "Little Red Book" this year, the suspension of which two years ago added gray hairs to the boys who keep track of the major league proceedings and record performances.

Thanks to the philanthropic spirit of John Arnold Heydler, president of the National League, who dug into his own pocket to make the job possible this year, the "Little Red Book" will be brought up-to-date by Charles D. White, the statistician who labored for years to double-check, revise and standardize baseball records over a fifty-year period. Over a period of years, White has corresponded with telegraph operators in Montana, cow-punchers in Texas and, perhaps, even oracles in Delphi to straighten out most points in the old-time box-scores and records.

Still in the Air
Youth and endurance finally prevailed in the cross-country tennis tour of 22-year-old Bill Tilden, plus a neat profit to all concerned and a good build-up for the forthcoming international series with the French professionals, Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa.

Vines demonstrated he has the power to cope with the old master's skill and tactical resources. This was, in a way, not so surprising as the fact that even at the end of the long trail, Tilden still had enough stuff to take a record 22-21 set from the Californian in a five-set match. Then, too, Big Bill turned an ankle in one of their contests on the coast and thus leaves open the argument as to individual superiority for the time being, even though Vines romped off with eight out of thirteen decisions.

Two Coast Crews Already Priming For Poughkeepsie
Berkeley, Calif.—(AP)—With fourteen boats working out daily on California waters and a squad of more than 200 rowing candidates out at Washington, the crew training season on the West coast has gotten away to a favorable start.

University of California at Los Angeles still is wrestling with the problem, after once having decided to discontinue rowing as a university-financed sport, and a definite announcement is expected soon.

Huskies Look Powerful
Ky Ebright's Golden Bears have confined their workouts to training quarters until just recently, but Coal Al Ulbrichson's Huskies have been on the water for more than two weeks and reports from the North are that the winners of the national regatta at Long Beach last year are beginning to show the condition that made them unbeatable.

Ebright has told his California oarsmen their appearance at Poughkeepsie this year depends on the showing made against Washington on April 13. If they take a "shelacking" from their time-honored rivals, the "university feels it would not be justified in incurring the expense of an Eastern trip under existing conditions," said a spokesman for the institution.

Won Last Regatta
"We were delighted to know the Poughkeepsie event, with all its old time glory and traditions, is to be resumed," he said, "but unless our crews can hold their own with Washington, we do not feel we would be justified in sending them East, although we are anxious to defend the title won at the last Poughkeepsie regatta."

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

New Orleans, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The cotton market opened actively higher although New York was closed for Lincoln's birthday. First trades here showed gains of three to 13 points due to readjustment to the advance in Chicago Saturday. After the local market had active trade buying March advanced to 12.32, May to 12.55 and July 12.72 or 5 net up for March and 12 to 14 on later months. These quotations established new season's highs for the eighth successive session. As Liverpool was weak prices soon eased on realization. May dropping to 12.45, July to 12.60, down 10 to 12 from the opening but still two or three above the previous close. The market continued active all the morning. Following the dip due to Liverpool cables late month prices here rallied again on active demand and short covering. May trading up to 12.53 and July 12.69 and October 12.89 or eight to nine up from the low and 11 to 13 above Saturday's close.

$40,000,000 For Farmers.
Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Forty million dollars for quick crop loans to farmers who co-operate in the acreage reduction plans was practically written into law today by the House acceptance of the compromise with the Senate which is expected to do likewise. The same spirit did not prevail for the Senate amendment to the relief CWA measure, however, the House rejecting the provision for appointment by the President and confirmation by the Senate of state relief directors. This sent the bill back to the Senate where the amendment was proposed by McCarran, Democrat, Nevada. It was turned down by the House on the grounds that it would make political offices of the jobs.

Lid Off In Austria.
Vienna, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The political power house of Austria blew up today with a Socialist's general strike and government reprisal costing upward of fifty lives as bloody fights raged in Vienna, Linz, Graz and finally spread to the munitions center of Feyer, Bruckandermur and Eggenber. At least ten persons were killed in street fighting in Vienna. From 31 to 42, according to various unofficial reports, lost their lives in the battles in Linz in which hand grenades, machine guns and even artillery howitzers were used.

Try To 'Play British But Tunes Smack Of American Jazz'
By OSCAR LEIDING
London.—(AP)—John Bull's entertainers are playing and singing more British—but with a flavor that is distinctly American.

The crescendo of American jazz, which lifted the roofs over dance halls, the variety stage and night clubs in its hey-day, shook the pride of British musicians.

It gave them an incentive to see what they could do and today, though they admit the much of what they are doing is in imitation of American entertainment, British tunes are on the up-grade.

Seek "Sweet" Tunes
Partly, it is explained, tastes are continually changing and the current trend is away from "hot" tunes, which are distinctly American, to "sweet" tunes, which are more typically British.

American ways, however, maintain a strong popularity. The American crooner finds his or her counterpart here in a British crooner—albeit with sometimes an undercurrent of Lancashire accent.

There is a crop of British blues singers and one of the most successful purveyors of negro melodies is as English as John Bull. Her secret is that she was taught by an American negro.

Leading American dance bands still set a British audience wild but labor regulations make their visits few and far between and not of long duration.

Recruit Bands in Canada.
As a result, many English band leaders who seek to deliver a true American ban music have drawn on Canada for the backbone of their groups.

Whether a band is English to the core or has an empire stamp, the personal preferences of the leader dictate whether American or English tunes are given the emphasis.

An example of the comparative treatment of English and American tunes is furnished by Henry Hall, leader of the British Broadcasting Corporation's dance orchestra.

Where, in the past, there was an overwhelming preponderance of American tunes, his programs now are 47 per cent American, 47 per cent British and 6 per cent continental.

Irish War On Jazz
An added explanation of the British trend is the rise of British-made films which has put many lyric and music writers to work to supply a domestic market long eclipsed by Hollywood.

Meanwhile, in the Irish Free State a campaign against jazz has spread from the radio to the dance halls. Judges, priests and police are combining to combat what they declare to be one of the greatest evils with which the country is faced.

Traditional Irish dancing is booming in rural areas and the Gaelic League is arranging with film companies to produce movies demonstrating various figure dances. Hand-shredded ahnd ahnd ahnd ahnd books on Irish dancing also are being published.

A Washington Day Book

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, D. C.—Senator Hugo Black, of Alabama, may fall heir to the mantle of former Senator Tom Walsh, of Montana, as the Senate's No. 1 investigator before he gets through looking into ocean and air mail contracts.

Those who have watched the slender, soft-spoken Southerner adroitly day questioning witnesses before his special committee and later before the Senate when William P. MacCracken former Assistant Secretary of Commerce for aeronautics, was under arrest, are convinced that his work has only begun.

Seldom has the Senate given one the attention it gave him when he arose to outline his face against MacCracken. For almost two hours Senators heard him present his evidence. At the request of Senator Joseph Robinson, the Democratic leader, interruptions were delayed until after he had concluded.

Patient Persistence
Although it started out as just another Senate investigation, Black has developed his air mail probe into what promises to be one of the most significant moves taken on Capitol Hill for years.

And he has done it by patient and persistent digging, attention to details, and thoroughness.

This was the Walsh way. Had it not been that the Montana Senator refused to be hurried, insisted that the most minor details be sifted thoroughly, the Teapot Dome scandals might have gone unexposed.

To many who heard Black outline the MacCracken case it seemed that he could have anything he chose to recommend to the Senate. He was careful, however, to avoid any suggestion on behalf of the committee as to what course should be followed.

It was up to the Senators themselves to decide. Neither he nor his committee chose to be regarded as prosecutors.

MacCracken There
MacCracken was an interested spectator (incidentally, at his own show, although he was not brought before the bar of the Senate.

He sat in a reserved gallery on the Republican side of the chamber, flanked on either side by his own counsel. Two Department of Justice men sat near him.

The Senate sergeant-at-arms personally conducted him and his party to the gallery a few minutes before Senator Black began his speech.

Baker's lot; thence South, with said Baker's line 100 feet; thence East 921-2 feet to the Bank of Fountain line; thence North 100 feet to the beginning; this being the same lot upon which the said R. A. Gardner & Company are now doing business.

Terms of sale: Cash. The purchaser will be required to make a deposit of 10 per cent of the purchase bid, pending the confirmation of said sale by Hon. R. W. Herring, U. S. Referee in Bankruptcy, said sale being subject to immediate confirmation without notice. All of said property will be sold subject to the taxes due upon the same.

This the 31st day of Jan., 1934.

W. L. WHEDBEE, Trustee in Bankruptcy of Robert Allen Gardner, Dennis Robert Mercer, James Albert Mercer and R. A. Gardner & Company, Bankrupts.

They Satisfy

... people know it!

Same thing with a good cigarette or a good wood-fire. All you need is a light. And all you want is a cigarette that keeps tasting right whether you smoke one or a dozen. That's what people like about Chesterfields. You can count on them. They're milder—and they taste better. In two words, they satisfy. That says it.
