REBELLION OF SOCIALISTS CRUSHED IN VIENNA

Other Powers Keeping Eye On Disorders In Austria

INDICATIONS CIVIL WAR IS NOT OVER YET

Workers in Czecho-Slovakia Strike in Sympathy With Socialists in Austria; Scores Hurt in Rioting in New York City; Three Thousand People Take Part in Demonstration in Nations' Metropolis

(By The Associated Press) Other European governments, with one eye fixed on their internal affairs, watched Austria with their other eye today.

The government of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss appeared to be controlling the situation in Vienna, but the stubborn resistance of the Socialists in the provinces indicated the civil war in Austria was by no means ended.

In France Premier Gaston Doumergue sought favorable action from Parliament on his budget measures with as little political bickering as possible.

Rioting in which dozens were bruised and at least a score of men knocked down, followed the first demonstration in New York in sympathy with Austrian revolutionists.

CANVASS FOR FUNDS TO AID CLUB WOMEN

Committee Busy This Week Attempting to Obtain Fund to Lift Debt

The campaign to raise $7,500 for lifting the indebtedness of the Woman's Club building has been in progress here since last Tuesday, but it was not known today how much had been obtained because the committees making the canvass for funds have not reported.

It was stated this morning that a report of contributors would be available for Saturday afternoon's paper.

The campaign was launched at a supper given by the club women on February 1, and at the time $1,000 was pledged to the cause, and plans for the campaign now being waged were discussed.

Eight of those attending the meeting agreed to give $100 each and eight others pledged $25 each, making a total of $1,000.

The club house has served as something of a community center for the last several years, and in view of the inability of the club women to meet their financial obligations as they pertained to the building, civic leaders immediately started the movement to raise the necessary money to lift the debt.

Those pledging $100 each at the initial meeting were: B. B. Sugg, E. G. Flanagan, J. J. White, G. V. Smith, Kiwanis Club, W. H. Woodard, W. I. Wooten, J. B. Kittrell.

Those pledging $25 each were: Mrs. W. A. Darden, L. A. Stroud, C. W. Shuff, D. M. Clark, E. L. Baker, S. M. Crisp, D. J. Whitchard, Jr., J. Key Brown.

RUSH SANITARY PROGRAM HERE

Four Hundred of Four Thousand Privies Erected in Various Parts of County

Approximately 4000 had been paid out in the county-wide sanitation program which has been underway here the last several weeks. E. B. Roach, district State supervisor of sanitation, who has been here the last several days inspecting the work, stated today.

The total appropriation for this work is $38,000 and the entire sum will be paid out before the campaign is complete. Sixty-six men are employed at this time, but the number is expected to be increased to 271 as soon as laborers become available, Mr. Roach said.

The program calls for the erection of 4,000 privies in small towns and rural areas. Up to this time, the supervisor said, 100 have been completed.

In connection for the $4,000 paid out for labor, Mr. Roach said that approximately $6,000 had been expended by persons on whose premises the privies have been erected. This amount was paid out for materials. The $4,000, a CWA fund, was paid for labor alone.

The campaign is being conducted under direction of Dr. R. S. MeGeachy, director of the Pitt County Department of Health, and Charles Martin, of Ayden, county sanitary supervisor.

The State supervisor said he was highly gratified over the progress which had been made up to now, and expected work to be pushed forward more rapidly as soon as more labor becomes available.

BRITTIN WILL SERVE PRISON TERM AT ONCE

Former Airways Executive Ready to Beg Sentence Imposed by Senate Now

Washington, Feb. 15.—(AP)—L. H. Brittin, vice-president of Northwest Airways, was said today by his attorney to plan to begin serving immediately the ten-day jail sentence imposed by the Senate for contempt in his air mail probe.

What action William MacCracken former assistant secretary of commerce, who was also sentenced to ten days, plans to take was not made known.

Brittin was reported as being tired of the contest and although still believing himself innocent, offered to serve the sentence and end the matter instead of appealing to the courts.

Later bail for $5,000 for MacCracken's release was fixed by Justice O'Donohue of the District of Columbia Supreme Court. He said granting of bail would be based on the stipulation that there be an agreement between MacCracken and the Senate sergeant-at-arms calling for MacCracken to surrender in event that a court of last resort upholding the justice in discharging a writ of habeas corpus.

Both United States Attorney Leslie Garnet and Frank Hogan, counsel for MacCracken, expressed satisfaction with this condition. Hogan would not say whether he would appeal at once.

She was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends who received intelligence of her death with sorrow.

MOUTH HEALTH SURVEY FEB. 20

State Dental Society To Conduct Survey In Various Schools Of The State

Members of the North Carolina Dental Society will make a Mouth Health Survey of the public schools of the State on Tuesday, February 20th, and Thursday, February 22. These gentlemen are giving their time without any remuneration, but as their contribution toward improving the health conditions of our children.

It is expected that 700 dentists will visit the schools on these two days and during this time they will inspect the mouth of at least two hundred thousand children for dental defects. This is the greatest concerted effort ever to be undertaken in two days' time in the health annals of the State.

It is reported that undernourished ranks first is the physical defects of our school children, and, inasmuch as undernourishment is reflected in the mouth of the child by improper development of the teeth, the dentist has an unusual opportunity to find if this is true.

If the child is found to have dental defects, the parent will be notified of such conditions. It is hoped that they will take the child to their regular dentist and have those conditions corrected.

This survey will be conducted in the Farmville and Fountain schools by Dr. C. R. Riddick and Paul E. Jones, in the Bell Arthur, Falkland and Belvoir schools by Drs. M. B. Massey and A. M. Schultz, in the Grimes and Pacolus schools by Drs. B. McE. Johnson and Paul Fitzgibbon, and who will be out of their offices on the dates of February 20 and 22.

BIG CROWDS GET DOLLAR DAY VALUES

Stores Thronged With Shoppers Here During Semi-Annual Trade Event

Semi-annual Dollar Day was under way in Greenville today and shoppers thronged the business district taking advantage of the hundreds of bargains which participating merchant had to offer.

Many of the stores were jammed with customers during the morning hours and the situation was expected to be decidedly more pronounced during the afternoon—when most of the housewives have an opportunity to make a pilgrimage to the shopping center.

The values today were equal, if not superior, to those of recent years, and the shoppers, many of them coming from a radius of several miles, were buying liberally.

Many of the bargains being offered today cannot be replaced for the price for which they are being sold, and this added impetus to the buying movement as shoppers, aware of the continued advance of prices, attempted to get their share of the offerings.

Twenty-one merchants were taking part in the trade event, always the most important of the year, and each had provided proper window decorations to attract attention of the thousands who will visit the business during the day.

By reason of improved prices paid for the principal crops of the section this year and the tremendous sums being poured into the community through the emergency relief program, people were in better position to take advantage of Dollar Day this year than in several past years.

One merchant remarked he not only had the crowds, but that he also had the shoppers, which is just as important to the merchants as the values are to the buyers.

CIVIL COURT OPENS MONDAY

Number of Cases Scheduled to be Given Hearing During One Week Term

A one-week term of civil Superior Court will convene in this city next Monday morning with Judge Frank A. Daniels, of Goldsboro, presiding.

The calendar, which was completed by members of the bar the first of the week, was in the hands of the printers today and probably will be ready for delivery by tomorrow at the latest.

Approximately forty cases are set for hearing during the term, and barring loss of time in some long-drawn-out issues, the major part of the calendar is expected to be disposed of.

Judge Daniels presided over the civil-criminal term of court here two weeks ago and considerable work was accomplished, especially in the criminal session when scores of important issues were checked off the docket.

Judge Daniels, who will retire from the bench after completion of his time in December, will appear here for the last time during May. He is scheduled to conduct separate terms here during the spring, and it was expected the number of cases now awaiting hearing would be cut down sharply.

MARSH DRAINAGE WORK SUDDENLY IS SUSPENDED

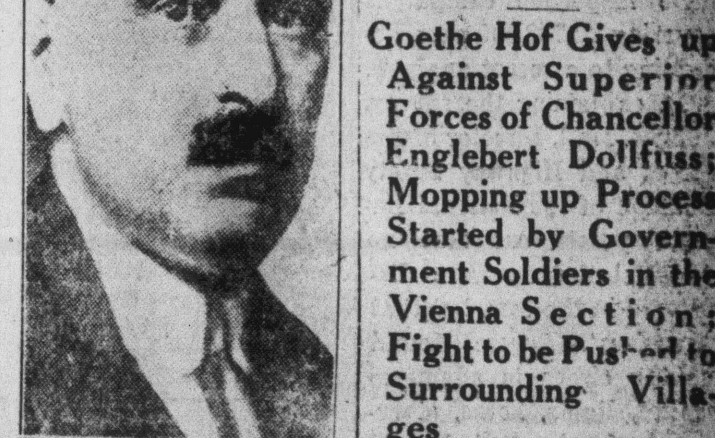

New Bern, N. C., Feb. 15.—Without advance warning, all salt marsh drainage work has been suddenly halted in the section, effective today, according to a telegram received from Dr. R. W. Leiby, State supervisor, who said the project had been cancelled as Federal work and suggested that it be resumed as a State project.

Immediately Mrs. John D. Whitford, CWA head, took the matter up with Mrs. Thomas O'Berry, State Administrator, who promised to do all possible to have the work approved as a State project in the next few days.

There were 230 men employed on the project in this county, started two months ago.

ROOSEVELT IN FAVOR OF NEW COTTON PLAN

Bankhead Says President Approves of Compulsory Control Of Cotton Acreage

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Senator Bankhead (Democrat) of Alabama, told the House Agriculture Committee today President Roosevelt is "very strongly" in favor of the principle of his bill for compulsory control of cotton production.

Bankhead previously told the committee that after Johnston's opposition to the compulsory cotton production control had caused a 50-point break in the cotton market in 30 minutes after Johnston testified Tuesday, Johnston is AAA cotton expert.

All through the Socialist setting marked the "mopping up" of government troops. Wearing helmets and with bayonets fixed they operated systematically, moving through the section like the dice on a board, cleaning up opposition square by square. The majority of the men who previously had fought from the windows from Goethe Hof retreated across the ice of canals and fled to the country where it was assumed they sought to join their more successful brothers in arms.

It was indicated the government might try to move through the villages where Socialists are still fighting in the mopping up process that is being carried on in Vienna—then concentrate its forces for a campaign against Linz where the Socialists are in control.

Another Socialist was sentenced to death by court-martial today. He is the third to be condemned to the gallows since the outbreak of civil war.

COTTON DRIVE ENDS TONIGHT

Around 1,500 Contracts Expected to Be in Farm Office by Closing Hour

The cotton acreage reduction campaign, which has been in progress in this and other parts of the country the last several weeks, will be brought to a close tonight.

B. F. Arnold, head of the Pitt County Farm Department, said today he expected 1,500 contracts would be in the hands of committee men by midnight when the drive is supposed to close.

Over 1,200 contracts had been received by the department this morning, and committeemen report they had several others to report during the day.

The signing of contracts picked up sharply the latter part of last week. Mr. Arnold said and those who have been slow in signing were expected to put their names on the dotted line today.

The campaign is an effort on the part of the Federal government to reduce production and relieve the congested condition of the world market. Cotton prices rose rapidly following announcement of the campaign last year and the market continued to show life today.

Goethe Hof Gives up Against Superior Forces of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss; Mopping up Process Started by Government Soldiers in the Vienna Section; Fight to be Pushed to Surrounding Villages

Vienna, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The socialist rebellion against the appointment of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss collapsed in the capital today, but the Socialists continued to fight in the provinces where in some localities they appeared to be warring against the government troops.

Two thousand Socialists surrendered in a group at Lasherg on the southern outskirts of Vienna. Prince Ernest Von Stamborg, son and vice-chancellor of Austria, and leader of the Fascist Heimwehr was reported surrounded with his men in Styria.

But troops were dispatched from Vienna in an attempt to cut off machine gun nests which rained fire on the city.

The Viennese section of the rebel force definitely in the hands of the government after the Goethe Hof, a giant Socialist apartment building, surrendered to superior forces. Government troops which had shelled the building with artillery when a wicked machine gunfire rolled off their attacks, marched in to find the Goethe Hof garrison was only women and children.

All through the Socialist setting marked the "mopping up" of government troops. Wearing helmets and with bayonets fixed they operated systematically, moving through the section like the dice on a board, cleaning up opposition square by square. The majority of the men who previously had fought from the windows from Goethe Hof retreated across the ice of canals and fled to the country where it was assumed they sought to join their more successful brothers in arms.

RETURN TRUE BILL IN TRAFFIC KILLING

Smithfield, N. C., Feb. 15.—The grand jury Tuesday afternoon returned a true bill of indictment against E. R. Howell, a white farmer who lives near Kenly, in which he is charged with the felonious killing of Joshua Crumpler, on the night of October 27, 1931.

The case was called for trial at the last criminal term of court, but upon the defendant being arraigned, he moved to quash the bill of indictment, and his motion was sustained by the court.

The State charges this defendant with having run over the deceased with an automobile, on Highway No. 22, near Kenly. The case is set for the first thing upon convening of court Thursday morning and present indications are that the case will be fought vigorously on both sides.

DRIVE A SAFE CAR

Nearly 75 per cent of motor cars on roads today have defects which increase hazards of driving, according to figures of 42 state motor vehicle inspection campaigns covering 22,702,000 cars, according to a recent analysis.

In explaining the survey, John J. Hall, Director of the Street and Highway Safety Division of the National Bureau, points out that no structural defects were discovered in the cars, but that three-fourths were found lacking either in adequate brakes, lights, horns, steering mechanism, windshield wipers, rear vision mirrors or safe tires. Worst of all was the condition of brakes—nearly 40 per cent being unsafe.

Obviously the condition calls for correction. No matter how safely a motorist drives, if his brakes fail, if his vision is obscured, if his lights do not show the road ahead, he is exposed to an accident every time he operates his car. It is not wise to belittle any of the hazards involved. In a hazardous chain of circumstances a defective windshield wiper can be just as dangerous as a loose wheel. Drivers who have formed a habit of overhauling their automobiles periodically are rarely responsible for accidents, said Mr. Hall.

Careless drivers, on the other hand, often pay a price for neglect that would meet necessary repair bills many times over, and if a few judgments are rendered against them, the bill will total the full price of several automobiles.

Some states have found that the best method of insuring safe automobile mechanical condition is by means of compulsory inspection laws. They are supported in their view by safety organizations of nation-wide reputation. Such laws have operated not only to improve individual car safety, but to increase employment and to stimulate business. In any event, the moral of this story is: Drive a safe car.

BLOND GODDESS A New Serial By Herbert Jensen

SYNOPSIS: Frank Grahame, Janice Kent, the movie star, and Greene, her press agent, all are condemned by their captors, the cruel subjugators of the Yucatan, to death next day. In the middle of the night, Grahame is awakened by an object thrown into the cell he and Greene occupy. There is a messenger—from Juan, the Mexican boy he had supposedly sent back to the coast the day before.

Chapter 33 ESCAPE PLAN

FRANK scanned the message quickly, a new hope rising tumultuously in his breast. He awakened his companion. In a low voice he read the note aloud, translating roughly in to English.

"Get this Greene: Very estimable sir, and my friend: the talk within the city is that you and another man and a lady are to be sacrificed to Yum-Chac at the pyramid tomorrow in the morning. It is with little hope I write you, but I have secured the extra pistol and some cartridges from our packs which were in the ahkin's dwelling place. I did not get to the coast, for which please excuse me. I followed you to the small ruin where you slept. I watched you go into the city and return with the other man and the beautiful lady."

"I heard the young rascal. Thought it was a lizard." There was a tightness in his throat as he chuckled at Juan's naive compliment to Janice's beauty.

"He says also, I saw these subvadores capture you. Excuse me for being of no help. I hoped to come into the city and make effective your release later. This I cannot do as your prison is very well guarded. There is an aeroplane in the central plaza. There are boxes of gasoline nearby. This knowledge may be of use to you."

"After you read this, throw the stone out to me and I will tie to it two pistols. Juan Piedra?" "Who's Juan Piedra?" asked Greene.

Frank's voice was soft. "A very courageous and loyal young man. A Mexican lad who came with me from the coast."

"There was a moisture in Frank's eyes as he tossed the stone through the window opening. "It's a chance in a thousand," he commented as he drew the cord, heavy with the pistols through the bars. "Thank God for Juan . . . the young idiot. Perhaps, tomorrow, we may make a break, and shoot our way to the ship."

"If we could do that, and stand them off long enough to gas the bus and warm the engine, we might get away. Langton's message on the wall said his landing was okay, so the crate's in good shape anyway. What luck that there's gas. They probably brought it from Merida. Wonder if it's high test?"

Greene asked, "Was this Juan the ace you had up your sleeve when you threatened Ortega that you'd get him if he didn't get Janice out of this?"

Frank shook his head. "Sorry if I raised your hopes on that one. I was blinding. I just had some idea that I might seal a message and send it out like Billy Langton did. But as soon as I said it I knew it would be practically impossible. Even if I got hold of a bottle and could seal it, chances would all be against any one finding it as they did Billy's."

He talked swiftly, formulating plans after plan, discarding some as too hopelessly impractical, accepting others as secondary ones, in case they break for the airplane was impossible.

"BEST talk it all over," he said, "so we can act upon whatever comes best at the time. At the very least we die. Get that guy Ortega, Greene, if it's the last thing you do."

"Don't worry," replied Greene. "I'll be to interfere with that when Jimbo too."

"Here . . . see if you can lift me up to the window." Hope gave him strength that had not been his when he attempted to climb that afternoon. Clinging to the bars with his sound arm, he called softly.

"Senor!" Juan's voice came from under the window.

"Is the airplane guarded?"

"No, senor."

"Do you think you could go there and pour one or two cases into the tank? You will find the tank-cap in the hood just back of the engine. Put two or three more cases in the cockpit as far back as you can."

"I will try, senor."

world stamps, and he could qualify easily as a philatelic expert.

Since 1923 the President has confined his collecting to the issues of the Americas, and is reported to have gathered fine copies of Mexican, Argentine, Peruvian, Cuban, Panamanian, Colombian and Haitian stamps. Included are many rarities from other Latin American countries.

His collection was started by his mother when she was in her teens and turned over to him when he was eight. It originally was founded on Hongkong stamps of 1852 to 1870, used to bring letters home from China to Mrs. James Roosevelt while

"Good boy, Juan. Don't get caught. It is not that important. Come back here when you are finished and throw two stones through the window. If I throw them back, then I will want to talk with you again. If I do not, then go away from here and don't come back. Make the coast if you can and tell the authorities what you know."

"Bueno, senor. Good."

They waited two hours, fretting with impatience. Just as Grahame had decided that something had happened to the boy, a stone tinkled against a bar in the window and fell into the cell. A moment later another bounced on the floor and rolled across it.

"The kid did it!" exclaimed Grahame. "Have we anything to say to him before he goes?"

Greene pondered. Grahame stood with the two stones in his hand, ready to return them to Juan through the window. Greene opened his mouth to speak when without came the sound of a scuffle, and a sharp cry.

"Senor!" The word floated like a wail of hopelessness through the barred window. Grahame's face became a mask of distress.

"They've got him!" Grene cried out hoarsely.

"Lift me up!" His tone was bitter. There throbbed in his breast a great wretchedness that Juan had come to grief through his last effort on their behalf.

As his face rose above the sill he heard a thud, the rattle of metallic accoutrements and the sound of a man breathing deeply.

"Juan," he called, caring not how loud his cry sounded in the night. "Juan!"

"Silencio." A new, harsher voice spoke from below. "The Bat will have another heart to feed upon tomorrow!"

Juan did not answer. Grahame slid back to the floor. Despondency overcame him—a blanket of anguish. Juan, the laughing, joking lad whose Catholic concern humorously congratulated Grahame that he was not of the Faith, since then it would not matter were Frank to die unshriven, was captive.

Juan the loyal, would be a sacrifice by Cama-zotz, the Bat, to Yum-Chac.

THE sound of many feet padding in the corridor, and the clanking of metal, awoke Grahame. His shoulder hurt him, but he felt at the bandaging with a glow of satisfaction—for concealed within the rough swathing that once had been Greene's undershirt, was the thick lump of his automatic.

His companion had tied it there before they had stretched themselves on their benches to spend in rest what remained of the night. It was accessible to his left hand, and could be gotten at with little trouble.

Greene had hidden the other in his waistband under the shirt. When his coat was buttoned, Grahame believed that it would not be detected. Sooner or later they could expect to have their clothes torn from them, but that again, depended upon what use they made of their guns.

A few minutes later Grahame had his first sight of Janice since the fight of the previous day. The corridor was packed with guards, and her white helmet showed above the heads of the natives.

They were small men, these jungle people. Grahame eyed them scientifically, as a boxer studies his prospective opponent. They were pushed toward Janice; evidently the party was to be reunited for the final scene.

Grahame stared at the girl anxiously. It would be horrible if she had been mistreated, but as her glance met his his tensed muscles relaxed with relief.

Her face was pale, but composed. About the eyes were traces of fatigue, but the eyes themselves seemed to glow with calm courage.

The American permitted himself a wayward thought of admiration and of compliment, as he faced her. It was unbelievable, but typically feminine, that she could be so coolly self-possessed.

Her skin was clean and fresh as if she had recently bathed; the collar that flared away from her throat over the lapels of her trim khaki coat was spotlessly white. Even the boots that laced her calves, gleamed dully as if polished. She appeared as though she were about to step out into the sun for a morning's canter.

ner parents lived in China.

During his term as Assistant Secretary of the Navy from 1913-1920 the President specialized somewhat in Haiti and is said to have nearly every stamp issued by that country. The hobby was a life-saver for the President in his long illness from 1921 and 1924. It offered something to keep his time occupied interestingly.

The entire collection was brought to Washington when Mr. Roosevelt became President, and he frequently is found late at night at his desk busy with his stamps.

Netherlands Beauty A stamp beauty in the way of a surcharge, has appeared from the Netherlands. Lettered in gold, six of the current postage have been over-printed for special use on behalf of the international court of justice. Having an official classification, they are available for mail use to members and officials of the court only. Thus those obtainable by collectors bear a pre-cancel or the regular postmark, although having the original gum. The values are one and one-half, two and one-half, seven and one-half, 12 1-2, 15, and 30 cents.

Congo Airmails

Further indication of the growing use of the airmail comes from the far off Belgian colony of Congo in the announcement of a new airmail set containing nine stamps and ranging from one-half francs to 50 francs in value.

Only one other airmail set has been issued by Congo, the first of 1920 having four values, with the addition of two more values in 1930. The design consists of a huge modern airplane flying over the plains of Congo, with mountains in the distance.

Just a note

Notation is made of the fact that cataloguers have decided not to chronicle one of the newest double surcharges of Nicaragua. It is that issue of regular postage having an original over-print and revaluation for interior air-mail and again surcharged in blue script for district use.

Austrians 'Better Germans,' Dallfuss Backers Tell Nazis

Vienna.—(AP)—It's a case of German against German in Austria, with the League of Nations in the imminent role of referee.

Bitter denunciations are hurled across the border that separates the jurisdiction of Vienna from that of Berlin, but it runs down to an argument as to who is the better German—the one who says:

"Germany is my fatherland and Austria my motherland; one folk, one reich," or the one who answers:

"We Austrians are the better Germans, and Austria is really the last stronghold of Germanic 'kultur'."

Opposed to Union

Engelbert Dollfuss, the "little Napoleon" who is waging a determined fight against Hitlerism and the fight against Hitlerism and the movement for "anschluss," or political union of Austria with Germany, says patriot Austrians must fight to the last ditch for the independence of their homeland. But not because Austrians are Austrians and German are Germans.

"We Austrians Germans," he has said, "are so naturally, so matter-of-fact German that we never have thought it necessary to talk about it. We Austrians have the great and holy mission of demonstrating to the world that there are Germans in the Alps and in the Danube basin who stands for German culture with methods practiced elsewhere."

'Rome' of German Art

And Dollfuss followers, expanding their leader's ideas, claim that German poetry was born on the banks of the Danube, that the burghtheater in Vienna was the first home of German drama, that the Christmas carol, "Stille Nacht," was written by two Austrians in Vienna and that even the music of the German national anthem was composed by an Austrian—Joseph Haydn.

All the more reason, rejoice the Hitlerites, for admitting that Germany and Austria are "one folk, one reich."

"And how about the great statesman who now leads Germany?" they ask. "Isn't Hitler himself an Austrian, born and educated in this country? In fact, wasn't his Austrian birth long flung up to him in Germany until he achieved citizenship there?"

Nazi View 'Treason'

Talking about "one folk, one reich," is plain treason, answer the Dollfuss followers. "Austria is a sovereign state, and patriotic Germans of Austria must be loyal first to Austria."

"But why," counter the Hitlerites, "is it treason for Austrians to be proud of a countryman who has rallied all Germany to his standard of a new life? The real patriots here are not those who reject this new life, but those who welcome it."

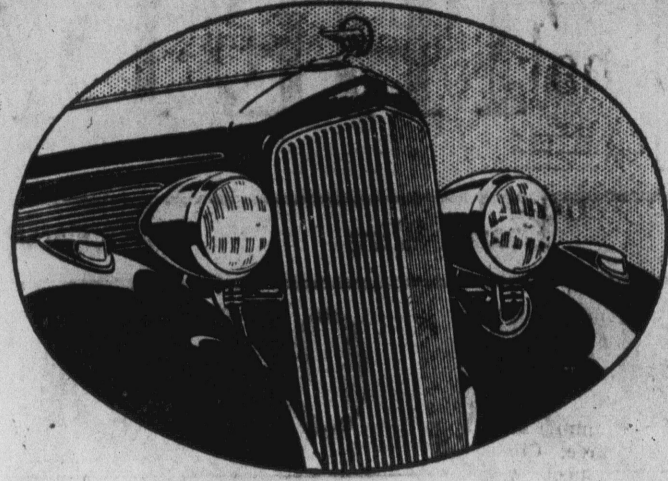

Thus they agree that Austria is German and should remain so. The real struggle is whether the Dollfussite is a better German than the Hitlerite, whether the life here should be kept separate from the closely molded existence which is being worked out north of the Austrian border.

If You Get Up Nights Make This 25c Test

Lax the bladder as you would the bowels. Drive out impurities and excessive acids that cause irritation, burning and frequent desire. Get a 25 cent box of BUKETS, the bladder laxative, from any drug store. After four days if you are not relieved of getting up nights, go back and get your money. BUKETS, containing buchu leaves, juniper oil, etc. acts pleasantly and effectively on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. If you are bothered with backache, leg pains caused from bladder disorders you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. Pitt Drug Co. says BUKETS is a best seller.—(Adv.)

Why doesn't everybody buy the new Pontiac?

The other day, in the deepest sincerity, an owner said to us—"Why doesn't everybody buy the new Pontiac?" Do you know what prompted this question? This owner had simply learned what we have known since we built this car, namely— that if everybody were completely familiar with the advantages of owning the new Pontiac, almost everybody would want it. Suppose, briefly, that everybody knew— that Pontiac is really a big car, with a wheelbase of 117 inches, and a Fisher body that is most generously roomy— that Pontiac has a big, smooth, powerful straight eight engine—really the equal, in every way, of the very finest power plants— that Pontiac has "Knee-Action" wheels as developed by General Motors, which are far different from the independent springing devices offered on other cars in the field— that Pontiac has big, smooth, powerful Bendix mechanical brakes—unexcelled by any, brakes for safety and ease of action—

MRS. WHITE GIVES DINNER FOR GRANDCHILDREN

One of the most enjoyable and elaborate of the St. Valentine parties was the dinner last evening when Mrs. H. A. White was hostess honoring her granddaughter and five grandsons.

The home of Mrs. White on Greene street, was very attractive with hearts, cupid and other suggestions of Valentine Day. The dining room was lovely with garlands of hearts and shaded lights.

The table was centered with a silver bowl of red carnations surrounded by dancing Valentines, flanked by red candles in silver holders, with a shower of hearts from the center light. Places were marked with Valentines and dainty baskets of cherry hearts.

A tempting course dinner was served to the honor guests, little Miss Josie Barnes White, Master Julian J. White, Jr., Masters Herbert White, Bill Jr., Jimmie and Bobbie Lee, and to little Misses Elizabeth Sugr, Ruby Taylor and Flora Webb.

Favors were Valentine hearts and horns.

Surprise Birthday Party.

It was quite a surprise to Tom as the guests began to assemble. After several games were played, the birthday cake was cut, in which was a prize, Jack Moye being the lucky one to get the slice with the prize.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. A. R. Cannon, Misses Ruby Stocks and Dell Cannon, served tempting candy and jello.

About 9:30 the guests departed, declaring a good time and wishing Tom many more happy birthdays.

Those attending were: Vera Stocks, Wilma Cozart's Peggy West, Marjha Minges, R. O. Everette, Holly VanDyke, Hort Minger, Edgar Denton, Bill Bilbro, Jessie Munford Jack Moye, Charles Moye, Denney Page and J. D. Wilson.

This will recall to many the days when all America was singing during and soon after the World War. There were a number of these sings held at the college and groups from all over the county contributed to the programs.

New Books

By JOHN SELEY Gertrude Stein is more in the news at the moment than she has been for thirty years, thanks to the world premiere of her prankish opera, "Four Saints in Three Acts," recently at Hartford, Conn.

So that it is no surprise to find a publisher offering us an American edition of Miss Stein's "The Making of Americans." The book has been published abroad, but in a small edition. And it lay in manuscript for quite some time before that publication.

Even with the help of publicity, it is difficult to imagine the public's working up any vast enthusiasm for the book. Not that it is "incomprehensible"—quite the opposite. Almost any person with an eighth grade knowledge could understand at least the literal text.

What would, it is probable, stand chiefly in the way of a popular success for "The Making of Americans" is its incredible length. Miss Stein is out to tell the story of an American family. Before she begins and even long after she has begun, she pauses for pages at a time to tell us what she is doing, she tells why she is doing it, many times. And so on.

One cannot help feeling at times a glorious sense of the sound of words in this book. Sometimes it seems more like music than literature, and sometimes it seems to those who do not subscribe to the Stein formula—like gravel. Nevertheless, it is amusing to have Miss Stein with us.

Two Famous Women Prof. J. E. Neale has succumbed to the urge to put Elizabeth on paper, which urge seems to attack most English writers at least once in a lifetime.

His excuse is that this year is the four hundredth anniversary of Elizabeth's birth—which serves as well as any.

Actually Professor Neale's "Queen Elizabeth" is a most attractive version of the story. It has the proper feeling of truth about it with out being cluttered with the apparatus of scholarship, and it has, too, a most engaging frankness. When Elizabeth told a lie, Professor Neale calls it a lie. Further, he has a great sense of humor, without which no man should try to tell Elizabeth's story.

The Peacemaker

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER "Now we've had enough of quarreling!" shouted Willy Nilly above the angry voices of the others.

But they were still jabbering. "I know you sent me that one," Christopher told Top Notch. "You're jealous of my discoveries."

"You had no business to send me the one you did," crowed Top Notch. "Valentines should be pretty and sweet."

"Too bad you didn't think of that before!" cawed Christopher. "I'm not a gossip," Mrs. Quacko was saying. But at last Willy Nilly quieted them, and they all sat down to a fine meal he had prepared.

"Now," he said, "as soon as I clear up this place I am going to use the adhesive tape I have and fasten back my sticking-out ears."

Willy Nilly set to work at once, and then he cleaned the pantry which was in great disorder.

When he came back into the room Christopher was about to leave in a terrific hurry.

"Why are you in such a rush, Christopher?" Willy Nilly asked. "Oh, I'm not," cawed Christopher, in a jerky tone of voice. "I just thought—I just thought—well, I do need to attend to my nest and I felt that perhaps—yes, I know that I should—well, I'll be going!"

"What is the matter, Christopher?" Willy Nilly asked. "You haven't anything very particular to do and yet you're in such haste."

And then Willy Nilly noticed why Christopher wanted to get away.

of Josephine. At any rate, there is very little of it in his "Josephine, Wife of Napoleon." Mr. Rheinhardt is more than serious about this rather light woman. He has told the story logically, but there are those who will not agree with his statement of "fact" in some instances.

And either his translator or he himself has allowed some jumbled paragraphs to be included.

One of those long and rich English novels just has come from the typewriter of C. Hutchinson, under the title of "The Unforgotten Prisoner."

Mr. Hutchinson writes as if he never had heard of the supposer rush of modern life. His story begins traditionally enough, with a misstep on the part of an English canon's son that results in the birth of a boy in Germany. And there the conventionalities cease.

The book is a fine study of war-time stresses, particularly in their effect on youth. Klaus is the boy in question, and ultimately Klaus' English "uncle" is the man set opposite Klaus by Hutchinson. It is unfair to tell what happened, but it is no exaggeration to say that the reader of average sensitivity will be sincerely sorry when he has finished the novel.

CRAMMER HAS BEEN BUSY TWO WEEKS IN ROBERSON

Lumberton, N. C., Feb. 14—Stiff fences, particular against prohibition law violators and those convicted of manslaughter and murder, were handed out by Judge E. H. Cramer of Southport at a two-week original term of court for Robeson County which has just ended.

As a result of the term, five people were sent to State's Prison in Beleigh and twenty-six were carried to prison camps near Lumberton and Fayetteville to begin terms. Eight white prisoners were taken to Fayetteville, the Indian and negroes being retained here.

Others, who appealed, are in jail. Judge Cramer kept court going a full day every day during the term and held eight night sessions. A larger number of cases, several of

BOTTLE-FED PUPS LIVE; OTHERS IN LITTER DIE

Charleston, S. C.—(AP)—There are plenty of bottle-fed babies thriving—and also there are bottle-fed dogs.

J. Lawrence Collins, Charleston sportsman, has two fine pointers which never knew a mother's care and he believes they are even more robust than pups raised in nature's way.

Their dam gave birth to twelve puppies, far more than any dog could mother. And so her master took six from her at two days old.

Collins obtained two of them and with the help of his wife, fed them warm cow's milk mixed with sugar and butter out of a bottle—just like they were babies.

They thrived from the start. In the meantime, three of the six that remained with the mother died, as did the other four given away.

SECOND GENERATION TEAM PLANNED BY MAT MENTOR

Ames, Ia.—(AP)—Hugo Otopalik, successful wrestling coach at Iowa State College and of the 1932 American Olympic grappling team, is dreaming of an all star "second generation" mat team sometime in the early 1930's.

In the first fourteen days of the year 1934 he received notices from four of his former mat pupils, each announcing parenthood to a baby boy!

The proud papas are Orlo Hursch, 27, of Fairmont, Minn.; Harold Boyvery, 25, of Seattle, Wash.; Ralph Goodale, 29, of Marshalltown, Ia., and Pete Mehinger, senior at the University of Kansas and member of the last Olympic wrestling team.

High Boxers To Meet Edenton Friday Night

Boxing fans, as well as all sport loving fans will be given an opportunity to see a real amateur boxing meet Friday night of this week...

This sport is a recent addition to the athletic activities of Greenville high school. Last year it was taken up for the first time...

Since Christmas, Bob Forbes has been drilling a rather small group of candidates for boxing. None of these boys have ever boxed before...

Edenton has had several meets this year, and has been quite anxious to meet Greenville. This indicates that they are confident of having a good team.

High school boxing contains all the thrills and excitement that is found in a real pro game. While the boys won't be as smart as the higher-ups, they will be in there trying for a victory...

Greenville's team will be chosen from the following candidates: Cox, Parrish, Siz, Eilers, Mines, Simpson, Joe Williams, John Williams, Fleming and Gaylord...

The first fight will get under way at 7.45. The meet had been advertised to start at 7.30 but this was an error. It will be staged in the high school auditorium.

College Girls Still Winning

E. C. T. C. sextet is a hundred per cent good so far. They have won five straight games, the fifth win coming last night when they defeated Chowan College...

The E. C. T. C. sextet will close the season next Tuesday night when they meet Chowan College again at Chowan. We are hoping Askew, who has been out of the last two games, will be able to enter into the last contest.

These thefts were apparently committed by two or more men using a light car with a pick-up body or a light trailer and judging from the tracks leading from the Hayes farm they went into Highway No. 1 at Ridgeway headed south.

With the exception, of aircraft which further reflected the air mail controversy, most groups advanced fractionally to around two points. Various specialists' found good followings.

The activity was more pronounced. Cotton got up about $1 a bale, grains were steady. Bonds moved up moderately.

New highs for the past year or more were reached by shares of Montgomery-Ward, American Can, and some others with advances of a point or more. The late tone was firm.

Transfers were 2,900,000 shares. At the close of the evidence, Squire Anderson bound David Hines to Irrell Superior Court under a $4,000 bond, charged with manslaughter. Lane Woodfin was discharged.

New York Cotton

New York, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, 3 to 8 higher on domestic and foreign trade buying and the firmness in the spot market.

The opening advance met some further realizing or liquidation which sent prices back to about yesterday's closing quotations right after the call. Many contracts after selling off from 12.70 to 12.22 were holding at 12.26 at the end of the first half hour with active months showing advances of 3 to 7 points.

The market firmed up later in the morning. There was a renewal of trade and commission house demands on the advance to 12.42 for May and 12.77 for October or 19 to 22 points net higher. Further realizing or liquidation was encountered at this level but the market at midday was steady at reactions of 5 or 6 points at the best.

Washington Daybook

By HESBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C.—Twenty years private secretary to United States Senators before he became sergeant-at-arms of the Senate have taught Chesley W. Jurney of Texas much about senatorial dignity and austerity.

He was all prepared, therefore, when the Senate ordered him to go out and find William P. McCracken, Jr., assistant secretary of commerce under President Hoover, and bring him before that body on a charge of contempt.

Jurney could have had someone else do the job as he wished. Rules of the Senate empower him to appoint special deputies for such tasks, but he elected to do it in person.

It's not often such an opportunity befalls a sergeant-at-arms of the Senate. Most of his time is spent in more or less routine on the Senate side of the Capitol. He is the senate's major domo.

Dressing Up His Job Jurney has brought anew meaning to his title, however, since he left the employ of Senator Copeland, of New York last March to become sergeant-at-arms. For sartorial elegance and dignified demeanor he compares favorably with any Senator.

His frock coat is as impressive as that of Ashurst, of Arizona. His choice of cravats is as distinctive as that of McNary, of Oregon.

When he left Capitol Hill in quest of McCracken he was in a black morning coat and gray striped trousers, a black ten-gallon hat was on his head and a red carnation in his buttonhole.

Earlier in the day Senator McCado had had a bunch of movie stars as his luncheon guests at the Capitol and had asked Jurney to show them around. Since he had been impeccably attired for this occasion, the McCracken incident fitted in perfectly.

Knows Ins and Outs Jurney boasts he has been connected continuously with Congress for 36 years. For six years he served as secretary to a member of the House before moving to the Senate.

For ten years he was with Senator Culbertson, of Texas, serving also as clerk of the Senate committee on the judiciary for six years during Democratic control under Woodrow Wilson. He was Senator Copeland's secretary for ten years.

In 1932 he made a bid for political office in his own right by running as a candidate at large for the House in Texas. He was defeated, but not before his "band wagon"—a truck equipped with the latest in political campaign equipment—had traveled from the Sabine River to the Panhandle.

Dollar Moves Narrowly (By Associated Press) The dollar moved narrowly in terms of other currencies in the foreign exchange markets today.

In Paris the dollar finished at near 6.52 cents to the franc after holding close to that figure through the trading hours and in the French currency advanced 1 1/4 of a cent to 6.53 3/4 cents.

Raleigh Leads Finals Chapel Hill, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Raleigh went into a half point lead in the State high school boxing tournament as the semi-final bouts were run off with Greensboro and Wilson tied for second place.

Two Killed in Wreck Henderson, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Two women were killed and Mayor Geo. Dowling of Audobon, N. J., and his wife and daughter, Mrs. Robert Kirkland of Philadelphia, were injured in Vance county last night.

The women killed were identified as Mrs. George Baumister and Mrs. Arthur Braslin both of West Brighton, Staten Island.

Dowling who is about 60 years old and his wife each suffered broken legs and body lacerations.

Mrs. Kirkland suffered leg, arm and wrist fractures. Mrs. Baumister and Mrs. Braslin were in a small coupe which collided with the Dowling auto. They were brought to a hospital here but the women died without regaining consciousness.

Officers today had learned no details of the accident except that it occurred between Kittrell and the Tar river bridge.

Deaths from influenza during 1933 were nearly twice as many in London and the great towns of England and Wales as in 1932, the total being 11,434 compared with 5,732.
