JAPAN AND RUSSIA EXCHANGE SHARP PROTESTS

Report Firing On Austro-German Border Both Charging Planes Flying Over Their Area

FEAR OF MORE VIOLENCE IS FELT IN VIENNA

Austrian Nazi Demand That They Be Taken Into Government or face Renewed Fight; High Officials Make it Plain They Will Meet Violence with Violence.

Vienna, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Tension aroused by fear of possible disorders with the expiration of the Nazi ultimatum to the government was heightened today by belated reports of shooting on the Austro-German border.

Government leaders said they expected no sensational developments as result of the ultimatum delivered February 19 by Theodore Hasek, exiled leader of the Austrian Nazi. In a speech broadcast from Munich Hasek gave Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss until noon today to take the Austrian Nazi into the government or face a renewed fight.

Despite these assertions that they feared no violence, high officials made it plain that any outbreaks would be met with force. Heimwehr leaders had declared "we in the Heimwehr Fascist home guards will meet any attacks" with weapons in hand with the same violence with which we repulsed the Bolsheviks.

Chancellor Dollfuss denied that there was movement of the last few days through Austria has any connection with the ultimatum.

NRA LISTENS TO ITS CRITICS

Hugh Johnson Steps Out to Take More Lambasting From Public Today.

Washington, Feb. 28.—(AP)—The NRA belabored lustily in the first session of Hugh Johnson's great roundup of criticism, stepped out today to take some more.

Five separate hearings of complaints went on at all blast with a hundred men and women lined up to take the places of the more than a score who yesterday denounced and suggested changes.—Hearing at the NRA a barrage of what Johnson termed "dead cats."

Officials hoped for something new except in a few conspicuous instances they held yesterday's session had brought forth the same dead cats that had been thrown before.

ANOTHER MAD DOG APPEARS IN THIS CITY

Police Report Slaying Several Dogs Yesterday in War on Rabid Animals

Several dogs were slain in Greenville yesterday as officers carried out the order to shoot all canines running at large on city streets.
Chief of Police George Clark reported this morning that another rabid dog was reported seen on Fourth street near the high school last night, but that the animal escaped after being given chase. He warned all owners of dogs to keep the animals off the streets and help protect human life from the menace of hydrophobia.

Several dogs were reported to have been bitten by a rabid animal in the western part of the city the day before, and it was because of this that orders were issued for the shooting of all dogs caught on the streets of the city.
Chief Clark said positively that the order would be rigidly enforced as his men attempt to throw a safeguard around human life, and asked the cooperation of dog owners in helping to keep canines off the street.

BOOTLEG KING DIES IN WRECK AT FARMVILLE

William White Of This City Injured As His Car Is Hit By Rum Runner's Sedan

R. G. (Dick) Roycroft known as "The King of the Bootleggers," was instantly killed in Farmville last night when his liquor-laden car collided with another machine as officers were chasing him through town. Roycroft formerly of Raleigh lately centered his operations in Durham.

Roycroft, at the wheel of an allegedly stolen car, was thrown to the pavement as his machine swerved into a telephone pole following the collision. His head was badly crushed.

A young woman in the car with Roycroft, who identified herself as Dorothy Allison, Durham, escaped uninjured and witnesses said they saw a second man jump from the car and escape.

Roycroft's machine, a light sedan was laden with 16 cases of liquor. The car's lights were not burning, officers said, Roycroft having turned them off in attempting to elude the police.

Officers Field and Reddin, night police of Farmville, were chasing Roycroft at break-neck speed through local streets when the bootlegger's car and one driven by William White, of this city, crashed at the intersection of George and Wilson streets. White was painfully hurt but his injuries were not considered serious.

White was on his way to Wilson to meet a train. Roycroft was headed in the general direction of Kingston. The crash occurred at 7:30 p. m.

Officers have not established the identity of the man said to have escaped from the Roycroft car.

Police in Farmville had been notified that a stolen car was headed in that direction from here. They "jumped" Roycroft on the edge of town and had chased him for several blocks when the crash occurred.

Moving to Raleigh from Durham several years ago, Roycroft built up a liquor business in the Capital City, which earned for him the title "King of Bootleggers." He was constantly in trouble with officers, but always managed to get out of the city and State courts with fines and suspended sentences.

Federal officers caught him in a general roundup of bootleggers in Raleigh about three years ago and he was sentenced to 18 months in the Atlanta prison. He was released a year ago.

Upon his return he set up headquarters again in Durham and officers there had been experiencing difficulties in attempting to break up his activities.

Roycroft is a member of a well-known Durham family.
William White, son of S. T. White operator of White's Stores, was brought to his home here shortly after the wreck. An examination showed that although painfully hurt, his injuries were not believed to be serious. He suffered mainly from bruises and shock. He was taken to the hospital here this afternoon for more thorough examination.

SCHOOL BUILDING IS DESTROYED BY BLAZE

Rocky Mount, Feb. 28.—The grammar school of the Rocky Mount Mills, attended by several hundred children whose parents are employed in the textile plant, was gutted by fire early yesterday.
Hyman L. Battle, manager of the mills, which owned the school, said today the damage would probably amount to between $6,000 and $7,000. He said the loss was partially covered by insurance.
Percy Ellen, truck driver, was carried to the hospital with a burned arm which had nearly become frozen as he played a stream of water on the building. His condition was not considered serious and physicians said he would regain the use of the arm.

Mercury Reported Moving Upward At 10 O'clock; Warmer Weather Promised

It was four degrees colder in Greenville this morning than it was yesterday morning but the mercury was gradually pushing upward with indications of much more comfortable temperatures by nightfall.

B. T. Clark, local weather observer, said the 8 o'clock reading this morning showed a temperature of 14 degrees as against 18 yesterday morning at the same hour.
The mercury went down to 9 degrees in a cold spell several days ago.
Mr. Clark said the probable 8:30 o'clock was 25 degrees, indicating that the promise of the warmer man for more comfortable weather today was being fulfilled.
Frozen radiators and water pipes continued to be the order of the day and plumbers as during the previous cold spell had all they could do and then were not able to meet the demands of their patrons.
Coal dealers, who have been doing landoffice business ever since the groundhog ducked back into the ground, continued to enjoy liberal trade.

MAN WANTED HERE IN AUTO THEFT NABBED

Farmville police did not know they were chasing Dick Roycroft, "King of Bootleggers," when the Durham man was killed in an automobile collision at Farmville last night. It was revealed today by Chief of Police George Clark of Greenville.

Mr. Clark said he had notified Farmville officers to be on the lookout for a stolen car from this city, and that they were chasing what they believed to be that car when Roycroft's automobile collided with a machine driven by William White of Greenville, and then crashed into a telephone pole, causing the death of the alleged rum runner.

Joseph Gurganus, 26, object of the hunt of Farmville officers, was arrested in Rocky Mount last night at 10 o'clock and was being returned to Greenville today to face charges of stealing an automobile and paying $1,000 for a license to drive it.

The man was arrested at 10 o'clock and was being returned to Greenville today to face charges of stealing an automobile and paying $1,000 for a license to drive it.

Police immediately notified Farmville officers to be on the lookout for the machine and driver. Shortly afterward a machine answering the description of the car stolen here was spotted by Farmville policemen. They gave chase and the car, with lights off, crashed into the White car killing Roycroft instantly. White escaped with minor injuries.

CORONER ENDS INQUIRY INTO MURDER HERE

Jury Declares John Gurganus Came To Death At Hands Of Person Unknown

A coroner's jury under the direction of Coroner A. A. Elwanger completed today its investigation into the death of John Gurganus, whose bullet-ridden body was found in the fill alongside the highway dam on Tar river Sunday February 18. It was made known this afternoon.

In view of the fact that it had no definite clue upon which to base the inquiry, the jury returned a decision that Gurganus came to his death by three bullets fired into his body by a person or persons unknown to its members.

The jury started the investigation immediately after Gurganus' slaying was discovered and decided to complete their task today in the face of incomplete evidence.
Coroner Elwanger said they were unable to determine whether Gurganus was killed and then carried to the river fill and dumped out or whether he was shot there. He said police officers on the face where three bullets were fired provided no solution to this phase of the slaying.

Although officers instituted a search for Matthew Harrington, a person of the slain man, for questioning in the case, no news of his whereabouts had been received today.

It was presumed Harrington, who borrowed an automobile here the day before the slaying, left for New York. Police said he sent a telegram in Washington to a girl in New York advising her that he was planning to return to the metropolis.
No motive for the slaying has yet been advanced by officers but it was said that an unrelenting search for Harrington would be maintained.

Twenty cases were disposed of in County Court here yesterday. It was the first sitting of the court in two weeks by reason of the one-week term of Superior Court which came to a close here Saturday.

News OF THE Day IN Pictures

The most picturesque ceremonies in the enthronement of the last of the Manchu rulers will be the new emperor's sacrifice to heaven at dawn on an "Altar of Heaven" copied from the sumptuous marble structure at Peiping where Pu-Yi's ancestors sacrificed for centuries. Standing atop a triple-tiered shrine made of native Manchurian earth on a plain near Hsinking, the new ruler will place on tables sacrificial offerings of Manchurian fruit, grain and vegetables. Highest Manchukuo officials will occupy the first terrace of the altar. On the ground at either side of the steps will be musicians with instruments the same as those used in the worship of Confucius. Behind the musicians will be Manchukuo officials of the first and second grade. Above is an artist's conception of this part of the enthronement ceremonies. It is based on a diagram made by an Associated Press correspondent from official plans of the "Altar of Heaven" as worked out by Pu-Yi, and also on photographs of the Peiping model.

Henry Pu-Yi, 29, last of the 300-year-old Ching dynasty who ascended the throne when he was only a baby and was forced to abdicate in the revolution that made China a republic, will become the emperor of the Japanese-advised state of Manchukuo on March 1. The enthronement will take place at Hsinking, capital of Manchukuo, amid scenes of elaborate oriental pageantry. (Associated Press Photo)

Delicate health will prevent the new ruler's 28-year-old consort, Yueh Hua, or "Moon Flower," from taking part in the ceremonies. Pu-Yi selected the flower-like lady for a bride from a photograph when he was 14 and she 13. The installation of her husband as ruler of the newest empire automatically raises this daughter of a Manchu businessman to the dignity of queenhood. (Associated Press Photo)

Starts MONDAY, MARCH 5—A NEW DAILY SERIAL

Judith Lane

by JEANNE BOWMAN

"The last will and testament of Tom Bevin"—Judith dimly heard the words by which her former employer made her the heiress to five million dollars, gave her control of his far-flung enterprises and threw on her slim shoulders a cruel burden.

Her hand held Tom Bevin's last request, private instructions for administering his affairs. Judith knew it meant strife, heartbreak and perhaps an end to the romance with Norman Dale. For somehow, Judith sensed that her husband would not be at her side in the bitter finish-fight with the Bevin family, a widow and daughter grasping for a dead man's dollars and willing to let his ideals crumble to dust.

Around this situation, JEANNE BOWMAN has written a dramatic story of the girl who was willing to sacrifice home, husband and friends, risk disgrace and failure—because she was loyal to a trust.

POLITICS at random

By EYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

The administration's national planning project is seen by some brain-trusters as the capstone of the entire Rooseveltian edifice of new and stupendous ideas.

What the newly created cabinet committee of planners is setting out to do, seemingly, is to draw up a program for the reorganization of about everything.

The enterprise is so vast it is difficult for the human mind to grasp it, or even find an adequate name for it.

The vague advance notices of the new plan deal with such terms as name only a few of many—as decentralization of industry, shifting about of agricultural production, abolition of unemployment, remodeling of transportation. Fifty years is spoken of casually as the period required to carry the project into effect.

Individually, these are big subjects. Lumped together in a single plan, they assume proportions which make NRA, Civil Works and all of the other more or less isolated current undertakings look small by comparison.

TVA As 'Small Model'

The present inclination of the new planners is to take the existing Tennessee Valley-Muscle Shoals development as a sort of half-way small-scale model.

Rivers are to be made navigable, dams and power plants built, marginal lands retired from production and being Lot No. 6 in the Lennin and William Hardee division allotted to Sheppard Wilson and containing 10.47 acres by actual survey as shown by map of said survey made by W. C. Dresbach, C. E., January, 1923.

THIRD TRACT: Lying and being in Chicod Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, and adjoining and new lands reclaimed by drainage, great areas reforested, laborers moved in large numbers from factory to farm and their families installed in new and better homes.

The whole face of nature is to be changed, the whole fabric of economic relationship unravelled and woven in a new pattern. The old order of industrial struggle and class conflict is to be transformed into an era of happiness and prosperity for all.

Many a public man in the past has talked about such a new day as this, never really dreaming it could be attained. Mr. Roosevelt really thinks it can be, and he is undertaking it.

Will it work? Will coal miners and mill workers stay on the farm after they have been put there? Will new production from reclaimed acres more than undo the good accomplished by retirement of worn-out acres? Will the public credit stand the strain of so mammoth a continuing program of public works?

These and a thousand other questions, ask themselves, but the planners are not deterred.

Redistribution of Wealth?

Probably the biggest question of all in many minds is whether the new plan will not involve, inevitably an actual, definite redistribution of wealth.

Mr. Roosevelt has kept his views on that subject to himself since he entered the White House. Some of his best personal and official friends do not know his mind; but more than one of them believe that eventually redistribution of wealth, in one way or another, is a part of his purpose.

At any rate, his support of the new planning movement shows that he is nowhere near the end of his program for economic change. He expects, and will try to accomplish far greater readjustments in the national life than any which have taken place up to now.

Sundown Stories

Without Sight By MARY GRAHAM BONNER Top Notch, the Rooster, Christopher Columbus Crow and Rip, the Dog, were very sad when they saw the two Bear cubs. They had expected they would be lovable and interesting looking little cubs, but they weren't much at all. The Ducks were surprised that the Bears could be so happy about themselves—little Ducks were always so cunning and sweet.

It was lucky, thought the Puddle Muddlers, that Jelly and Honey Bear were pleased with these little furlers, shapeless things. Willy Nilly had an idea what they were thinking, and so he said: "I don't suppose they will have much fur for six weeks or so, will they?"

"Oh, no," agreed Honey Bear, "the little darlings are so young now."

"It will be fun to watch them grow," continued Willy Nilly. "Before we know it they'll be regular cubs."

The Puddle Muddlers felt relieved. So the cubs would not look like this for long!

"Have you named them?" asked Willy Nilly.

"Oh, yes," answered Honey Bear. "We're calling the smaller of the two Juniper Bear. We think it's such a nice big name for such a little baby Bear. And we're calling the other one Blacky, as our family name, of course, is that of Black Bear."

"Do you suppose they like us?" Rip, the Dog, asked. "They're not paying any attention to us, so maybe they don't," he ended sadly.

"They can't see," replied Honey Bear. "What?" asked Rip. This, he thought, was terrible.

THE 1934 line of Chevrolet trucks—truck-built for truck service all the way through—feature the Blue-Flame engine—a great new development that will be welcomed by every truck buyer in America. Here are the remarkable facts: The new Chevrolet trucks are even bigger than last year's models—bigger in bodies, with stronger, heavier frames, huskier transmissions and rear axles, and larger brakes. They will deliver more power. They will haul bigger loads than ever. Yet, thanks to the new Blue-Flame engine, operating costs are actually lower than before—and that means the lowest in the hauling field. LOCAL GIRL CAGERS TAKE TARS IN TOW

Girl cagers of Greenville High school last night trounced Tarboro high girls to the tune of 35 to 22 in what was described as one of the most interesting games played on the local court this season.

Etheridge starred for Greenville, piling up a total of 14 points. Bryan led the visiting aggregation with 12 points to her credit.

Both teams exhibited plenty of skill but Greenville was able to find the basket more frequently than the visitors and emerged with the big end of the score.

The lineup follows:

The president tendered his resignation at that time, but it was not accepted. Today it was learned that J. A. Moritz, chairman of the board had accepted the resignation of Dr. Schaffer following a meeting yesterday.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

The conclusion of the fistie experts that Max Smeling is through as a heavyweight championship contender may be quiet correct, but the explanation of his decisive defeat at the hands of young Steve Hamas seems at least equally due to the fact the former Penn State all-round athletic star is a better smarter boxer than many have given him credit for being.

Hamas, from the time he was knocking the boys loose from their moorings in college rings, demonstrated he packed a terrific wallop. He looked like a championship prospect when he first turned pro but it soon developed he was handicapped by a "football knee" and lacked the speedy footwork expected from a youngster. For this reason, among others, Steve continued to be just another good "club" fighter, a youthful trial horse going nowhere in particular.

Like Tommy Loughran, however, Hamas now seems to have taken advantage of belated opportunity. The current state of heavyweight boxing affairs is made to order for a sturdy youngpuncher of the type of the Passaic product. He's willing and able to fight. He is not handicapped, now at least by too many hangers-on, too many managers or too much spotlight. And he is still young enough to make up for lost time, under the astute direction of old Charley Harvey, the man who piloted Tom Heeny to a heavyweight title bout with Gene Tunney in 1928.

Where To Rate Max?

"How good was Max Smeling?" ask those who seem a trifle baffled by the swift decent of the good-natured, black-haired young German who looked like the best heavyweight in the game two or four years ago.

It is easy to figure this one was over-rated, that he simply was the best of a poor crop, and that's where near the facts. Nevertheless,

It is impossible to toss out the German's early fights in this country when ambitious and necessity combined to spur him on, or to eliminate the impression of ability he displayed in whipping such good men as Johnny Rinsko and Young Strubling. Schmeling stopped both something no other heavyweight ever achieved, and clearly was the victim of a bad decision when he lost the heavyweight title to Jack Sharkey in 1932.

On the other hand Schmeling unquestionably was the beneficiary of a lousy decision when he was awarded the heavyweight crown on a tie in his bout with Sharkey in 1930 at the Yankee stadium. As boxing goes the German was strictly a plebeian. His methods, more unorthodox than scientific or spectacular, looked good or bad according to the type of fighter he opposed. He undoubtedly suffered from the effects of being rushed into the championship by accident and edict, rather than by his own personal superiority.

He changed his style, married, fought less frequently and lost the fine edge of fighting spirit through restful habits of living. All this combined to effect his ring powers, at his best not particularly dominating, but it took Hamas to make the situation clear to our second-sighters. Prior to the Philadelphia fight, the world along tin-ear alley was that a "new Schmeling" was about to tear loose, pound poor Steve into a pulp and chase Primo Carnera back to Italy.

Then There's The Kingfish

Meanwhile it would be an excellent idea to toss King Levinsky into the ring with Hamas in the near future.

The suspicion that the Kingfish went down as a substitute for Max Bear was aroused by his exhibition against young Charley Hamas recently in Madison Square Garden. The Garden is willing to match Levinsky and Hamas if the Kingfish disposes of Walter Nantz on March 9.

The possibility of a match between Bear and Hamas, as the last two conquerors of Schmeling may develop, but it would be a better idea for Steve to keep busy in the ring, instead of waiting for Max to be pried from the song and dance circuit.

Walstonburg Wins in Tourney Here

Walstonburg's second half comeback to defeat Grimesland in the finale of Class B competition for boys' teams were the main feature of the quartet of championship games which Monday night concluded Greenville's first district basketball tournament.

The tourney, which drew nearly two score teams from throughout this section, was a decided success. And officials are hopeful of conducting a similar event next year.

The Walstonburg boys, trailing by four points—12 to 8—at the intermission, came back strong in the second half to catch up with Grimesland and then go on to a 24 to 19 victory. It was the only game of the finals in which the team trailing at half time came through with a victory. The Walstonburg team, composed principally of first-year players, is coached by Principal J. B. Hancy.

Walstonburg had won its way to the finals by eliminating Patches 311-8, Stokes 22-18, and Farm Life 29 to 25. Grimesland had reached the finals by defeating Bethel 17-12 and Jamesville, 20-19. Grimesland had a by in the first round. In the championship battle, J. L. Jones made 11 points to feature for Walstonburg. Fleming and Proctor made six each to divide scoring honors for Grimesland.

The closest final margin in the championship battle was the 21-18 decision by which New Bern defeated Mt. Olive for the Class A title among boys' teams. The most decisive victory was Washington's 21-10 triumph over Mount Olive in Class A girls' finals. Jamesville girls defeated Pink Hill, 24-19 in the finals of Class B play for girls.

The tournament was sponsored by Greenville High School and the municipality and was run off smoothly throughout the three days of play. Andy Hewlett, coach of Greenville High, was director of the meet.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

We are now nearing the 1934 planting season and an intelligent fertilization and application of same is of the most importance at this time. We are glad to announce to our friends and customers that the past few years we have been mixing our fertilizer for our own crops and the results have been so gratifying, we are offering them to the public. We have installed a mixer at Greenville, N. C., and have purchased the best cured materials that money can buy to make our BLOUNT'S NEW DEAL, PREMIUM and WORTH MORE BRANDS.

Following are testimonials from some of those who have been using our brands:

I have raised tobacco for many years and have used various kinds of fertilizer. However, in 1933, I used exclusively BLOUNT'S NEW DEAL 3-8-3 and it made me the best tobacco that I have ever raised. My tobacco crop was the talk of the neighborhood. It gives me great pleasure to recommend this fertilizer to those who want to buy the best. T. C. WHITLEY (Pitt County.) Rt. No. 4, Greenville, N. C.	"I have used many makes of fertilizer for past 18 years but BLOUNT'S NEW DEAL for tobacco (3-8-3) did better for me last year than any tobacco fertilizer I have ever used. We had a severe drought but my tobacco did not burn, ripened well and cured fine. We had 42 acres and averaged 1100 pounds to the acre of fine quality tobacco. I can recommend BLOUNT'S home-made mixture for either tobacco, cotton or corn. F. B. BRILEY (Pitt County), R. F. D., Bethel, N. C.	I used your home-made BLOUNT'S NEW DEAL 3-8-3 tobacco fertilizer on a portion of my crop for the year 1933. I would not use a lot of BLOUNT'S NEW DEAL as I felt I had been using the best fertilizer that money could buy. However, where I used the NEW DEAL fertilizer, my tobacco stood the drought better, ripened well and cured brighter and made approximately 200 lbs. more to the acre than where I used my favorite make. I can gladly recommend it to anyone who wants to buy a well balanced fertilizer. I shall use BLOUNT'S NEW DEAL under all of my tobacco for 1934. L. L. BROWN, (Pitt County) R. F. D., Bethel, N. C.	I had 35 acres of tobacco under my supervision and we used BLOUNT'S NEW DEAL 3-8-3 home made mixture under our tobacco with the exception of a few acres where we experimented with other companies' tobacco fertilizer. I can truthfully say that NEW DEAL is the best balanced fertilizer I have ever used. Our crop grew off uniform, ripened well and had a smooth quality. Our yield was 1000 pounds to the acre and sold well. I can recommend BLOUNT'S home-made mixture for either tobacco, cotton or corn. JOE BRILEY (Edgecombe County)	We used your NEW DEAL FERTILIZER under 25 acres of tobacco and 40 acres of cotton and the result was very satisfactory. Even though our season was very dry, our tobacco held up remarkably well, did not burn, grew uniform and smooth and we had a crop of good quality tobacco. Our crop of tobacco averaged well over the parity price and yielded 1000 pounds per acre. I expect to use BLOUNT'S NEW DEAL FERTILIZER under my crop this year. W. B. BRILEY, (Martin County) Hassel, N. C.

New York, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened from 10 to 14 higher on relatively better Liverpool cables and on trade and commission house buying.

Trading was quiet with fluctuations after the opening were irregular and within a narrow range. The market fluctuated in a four or five point range during the remainder of the morning with the undertone steady.

May contracts sold up from 12.05 to 12.10 and at around midday was quoted at 12.08 with the general market about 10 to 15 higher.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Financial markets looked toward March today with some degree of complacency and prices generally maintained steady to firm tone.

Although stocks turned dull after an early expansion of activity the list showed gains of fractions to around two points. Better Washington news and other upturn in steel and electric power outlook drying up of liquidation helped to brighten the equity picture.

While grains were only a little better than even during the early hours, silver and rubber again pointed higher and cotton improved.

Bonds were steady. A last hour selling flurry virtually canceled their improvement recorded in the quiet early upturn of stocks.

Transfer approximated 1,300,000 shares.

Continue Air Mail Probe.

Washington, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Ernest W. Smoot, son of former Senator Smoot of Utah, told Senate air mail probes today that he represented the Western Air Express in Washington in 1930 while receiving $3,325 a year as clerk of the Senate finance committee.

Smoot agreed with James G. Woolley, former vice-president of Western Air Express, that his job had been to keep in touch with the comptroller general who had held up payments on trans-continental mail contracts and to contact members of the House post-office committee.

"You were in the employ of the Senate finance committee at the time?" Chairman Black asked.

"I think I was," Smoot replied. Woolley told the committee yesterday his firm hired Ernest Smoot as a Washington representative when a contract was held up.

Ferrell Not To Die Friday.

Raleigh, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Clyde Ferrell, Durham man, sentenced to be electrocuted Friday for murder, will not be electrocuted that day but that Theodore Cooper, convicted as hired assassin in Durham will likely go to his death this week.

Ferrell's attorneys have perfected an appeal to Supreme Court from the refusal of Judge Walter Small to grant the condemned man a new trial on grounds of new evidence. The Supreme Court had already upheld the conviction of Ferrell.

Cooper, his death date set for March 2 in a reprieve granted him by the governor, will apparently be electrocuted Friday as his attorney today notified Edwin Gill, parole commissioner, that an appeal to the United States Supreme Court had been abandoned.

Cooper's death date had been automatically postponed by the appeal to the high court but Gill said withdrawal of the appeal again set the execution for this Friday.

BLOND GODDESS

A New Serial by Herbert Jensen

SYNOPSIS: Frank Grahame, the explorer, is taking a desperate chance to save his three companions in misery. He is floating down an underground river in Yucatan, trying to reach the coast before the rainy season fills the valley in which the party is imprisoned.

Chapter 44 THE PLUNGE

SWIFTER plunged the current. The cavern seemed wider, but the roof was lower. A down-projecting stalactite struck his head. Half stunned, he struggled to keep his hands above his head to guard against a repetition.

He was thrown against wall projections, and sucked away into the greedy current. He became dazed with an ever-increasing dizziness. It was an effort to breathe with the spray lashing his face.

His arms ached with the effort of upholding them. He put his elbows upon the top of his life-jacket and clasped his hands above his head. He realized that he was growing weak with the buffeting.

But the minutes, he knew, were slipping into precious hours. Soon he would be spewed into the daylight—in the quiet waters of some mangrove-fringed lagoon that joined the sea.

Gray daylight showed above him! He was being shot downstream between crevice-bung walls. But half-conscious, he realized that although he was in the main channel the width of it was diminishing.

The stream was branching variously. A danger lay in that. Sucked into one of the branches he might be forced into a swamp from which he might not be able to extricate himself.

He must keep to the main channel at all costs! Only the main channel would have water-force enough to have cut through the swamps to the sea.

Suddenly he shouted with hope. Ahead, glimpsed on either side of a jutting spire of rock that thrust upward from the seething water about it, were low grass-covered banks backed with palmetto and mangroves. Further on was a turquoise blueness. The sea!

Frank's nostrils twitched with the tang of beach kelp rotting in the sun. That flaming disc burst, as he looked, through a layer of clouds lying low above the horizon. It was nearing sunset.

As the current twisted him toward the divided channel, he felt a tugging at his legs, an inexorable suction that pulled his feet away from the surface current while the buoyancy of the life-belt tended to float it toward the peaceful lagoon.

Subconsciously he struggled a little as if the attempt could relieve his legs of some clinging, unseen menace. The suction pulled harder.

Sudden realization swept him. The underground river discharged here at sea level; but also it plunged into the hidden chasm that could have no outlet except in the floor under that glittering turquoise sea ahead!

Frantic now, he flailed his arms. He kicked and thrashed with his legs. Striving to free himself of the life-belt so that he could flatten himself on the surface and swim to the safety that was now just a few yards away, he found that the fiber knots were swollen beyond loosening.

The breath gasped in his lungs. Deeper the suction pulled him. He was spun about in the inflexible grip of a whirlpool.

Lower he sank. He clawed for a support that was denied him. Down he was dragged into a vortex. He felt the waters closing about his head.

Gasping for a last despairing breath, he was shot down into a great funnel. A crashing and roaring sound filled his ears. His body was hammered and flailed against the rough sides of this terrible aqueduct. His lungs were on fire—no, they were bursting.

There was a blinding flash on the mirror behind his eyes. Then the darkness of oblivion.

JANICE KENT walked slowly back to the little clearing where their ever-burning fire smoked amid its rocky bed. She seated herself upon the back-log and stared apathetically at the glowing embers.

Something had gone dead within her—something that in dying had left a void that yet was capable of aching. Her mind was too confused for analysis but that very confusion released a swarm of queer mental

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington.—(AP)—Some members of the Senate, Democrats among them, are beginning to show resentment at what they term the high-handed way in which the House forces their hand.

Young Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, son of a former speaker of the House, became so incensed recently at the House's insistence on deleting certain amendments to the $950,000,000 CWA appropriation bill, that he felt it necessary to say:

"... It (the House) has ceased to be a representative body. It is operating under a system of gag rules which would make Nick Longworth bluish, Thomas B. Reed turn green with envy, and 'Uncle Joe' Cannon be astounded at his own moderation."

The father probably would have reprimanded his son for that statement were he alive today. While Champ Clark was speaker he insisted that representatives had no right to criticize senators nor senators members of the House.

What irritates Senator Clark and some of the others is that the House Democrats have the majority to put through anything.

While in most instances such a situation is to be regarded as a god-send by good Democrats, there are times when it proves to be a source of irritation to some. It did in the case of the CWA appropriation. Clark, McCarran of Nevada and some other senators were supporting an amendment which would have empowered the senate to confirm state administrators of CWA money. It passed the Senate by something like a 2 to 1 vote.

In conference with the House, however, over the Senate's insistence, the former refused to accept such a proviso.

There's not much danger for the administration in situations such as this. Joe Robinson, the Democratic leader, and his aides stood squarely behind the House in the controversy.

Senators may complain and criticize the House for its refusal to give in, but with the strong and compact organization on the other side of the capitol, resistance in most cases is futile.

You hear a lot today about balanced diet... and there's something too in the way tobaccos are balanced that makes a cigarette milder and makes it taste better. I keep coming back to that statement on the back of the Chesterfield package—
