After Taking Machine Gun From Guard at Crown Point "Escape Proof" Penitentiary, Mid-West Desperado Threatens Way Out; Awaiting Trial For Series of Robberies And Slayings; Henchmen in Ohio Closely Guarded

Proton, Ill., March 3.—(AP)—John L. Dillinger and Herbert Youngblood, who escaped today from the county jail at Crown Point, freed Deputy Sheriff George Blount and Edward Sager, garage employe, when they had taken them as hostages here today.

Crown Point, Ind., March 3.—(AP)—At the point of a wooden pistol he had whittled out in his cell, John Dillinger, America's most murderous outlaw, broke out of the Lake County jail.

With the fake pistol he forced jail attaches to surrender him and a negro convict accomplice confiscated two machine guns from the prison armory, commandeered an automobile and sped away toward Chicago with Deputy Sheriff George Blount and Edward Sager, employe of a main street garage, where the car was obtained.

Crown Point, Ind., March 3.—(AP)—John Dillinger, killer and bank robber escaped from the county jail here today.

Dillinger was reported to be in an automobile and headed for Chicago about 60 miles away.

Jail attaches said Dillinger seized a machine gun from a guard and threatened his way out of the model "escape proof" Lake county jail.

He was facing trial for murder in the machine gunning of policemen in a bank robbery two months ago while Dillinger and a band of outlaw fugitives from the Indiana State prison were terrorizing the Midwest with bank robberies and killings.

Immediately after Dillinger escaped at 9:30 a. m., the county jail was locked under order of Mrs. Lillian Holley, woman sheriff of Lake county in charge of the jail, who (Continued On Page Four)

PLANCORN-HOG DRIVE MONDAY

Education Campaign To Get Under Way In Pitt County Next Week

Beginning Monday an educational program will be launched in this county in connection with the government's efforts to reduce hog production. E. F. Arnold, director of the Pitt County Farm Department said today.

Mr. Arnold said growers will be instructed as to what is necessary for them to do before they can enter into a contract with the government. Blanks will be furnished for their signatures.

Any farmer who has sold as many as 15 or 20 hogs a year will be eligible to enter into the contract, he said. The government will pay at the rate of $15 a head for 25 per cent less hogs than formerly produced.

Farmers who engage in hog raising may obtain further information regarding the campaign through the farm office.

The corn-hog campaign will be conducted in all parts of the nation where hogs are grown in an effort to obtain a 25 per cent reduction in next year's meat supply. It is a move on the part of the government to reduce annual output and thereby stimulate prices.

Nearly $1,000 Taken From Safe At Shelby

Shelby, March 3.—Almost one thousand dollars in small bills was taken from the office safe of the Dover mill here early yesterday morning, Shelby police revealed today.

The burglars entered the mill by forcing a window and attacked the large safety vault with crowbars. Breaking the lock they entered the room and cracked the smaller safe.

Ezell Gaunt who lives near the office, said he heard noises about 3 o'clock and a mill worker who was on a late shift said he heard a car drive away from the office about that time.

Detectives from Charlotte were called and declared numerous clear finger prints had been made.

The pay roll at the mill is distributed on Thursday but is never kept over night in the office. Mill officials said it was unusual to have even $1,000 in cash in the safe.

PUSH HEARING FOR MAN HELD AS MURDERER

Attorneys For Matthew Harrington Ask Hearing by Next Wednesday

No developments of any importance had taken place today in the case of Matthew Harrington, 23-year-old Pitt county young man, held in connection with the slaying of his stepfather, John Gurganus, on the night of February 17.

Colonel Albion Dunn, who with Rodman and Rodman, of Washington, has been retained by Harrington, said this morning that they would ask for a preliminary hearing for their client not later than next Wednesday. He said if this was not granted, habeas corpus proceedings would be instituted.

The attorneys were permitted to confer with their client, who was transferred to the Farmville jail yesterday morning, late yesterday afternoon.

Harrington surrendered to Sheriff Rumble at Washington Friday night and was immediately brought to Greenville and turned over to Sheriff Sam Whitehurst. He remained in jail here until yesterday morning when he was transferred to Farmville to give officers a better chance of continuing the investigation.

Harrington was said to have told officers he returned to Washington from New York immediately upon learning that he was wanted in connection with the case. The automobile he purportedly borrowed here Saturday morning before Gurganus' body was found in the Tar river causeway fill Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, was stolen, officers said he told them.

In addition to declaring his innocence of the crime, young Harrington, who has lived in New York the last several years, declined to make any further statement.

Col. Dunn declared emphatically that unless a hearing was granted by next Wednesday at the latest, he would immediately start habeas corpus proceedings to force such action.

MRS. STEPP BOUND OVER

Woman Held on Liquor Charge Remanded to Jail After Preliminary Hearing

Mrs. Mollie Stepp, 45-year-old white woman, arrested by police here yesterday morning with seven half gallons of whiskey in her possession, was given preliminary hearing in police court this morning and bound over to the next sitting of county court. She was unable to give bond and was remanded to jail to await final court action.

Mrs. Stepp, a widow, and mother of several children, was taken into custody when police raided her home on the northern end of Summit street.

She was immediately taken to the police station, and when reproved by Chief of Police George Clark for having so much whiskey in her possession, declared she had it for medicinal use.

She told the chief of police she suffered from the asthma and found that whiskey gave her relief. The officers decided such a large amount of liquor was more than necessary for the asthma or any other kind of illness, and ordered her confined in jail.

The woman is said to have been on charity for sometime, and was recently held on a charge of larceny.

Two Are Arrested In Hammer Killing

Monroe, March 2.—(AP)—Union county officers were holding today two Negroes, Rob Henry and Tom Gaston, in connection with the sledge-hammer slaying last Tuesday of J. E. Williams, 52-year-old Waxhaw night watchman.

NEW MEMBERS ADDED TO CLUB

Ed Hearne, N. Y. Entertainer, Highlight Of Kiwanis Program Last Night

Three new members were inducted into the Kiwanis club at the regular meeting of the organization at the Woman's club last night.

They were Rev. G. R. Combs, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, Joe Norman and Ralph Pendergraft. They were presented by W. A. Darden who outlined the ideals of Kiwanis and declared it to be a mighty force in cementing friendly relations among men in all walks of life.

Preceding the induction ceremonies, always of an impressive nature, members who had been absent for sometime along with a number of guests were presented.

Among these were J. C. Galloway, of Grimesland, who has been in Pasquotank county the last year helping the government carry out its relief program, and George Woodward, who has been sojourning in Florida two or three months for the sake of his health.

Mr. Galloway said he had returned to Greenville to continue helping growers with loans through the new organization recently set up here, and Mr. Woodward advised the Kiwanians to go down on the Indian River in Florida if they wanted to have a good time along with improved health.

Ed Hearne, local young man, who went to New York some years ago and scored a distinct success on the stage, displayed some of his talent to the club. Costumed like a woman, and displaying all of the affections of a dizzy blond, the entertainer presented several impersonations of leading radio stars that drew considerable applause.

In addition to his stage duties, Ed finds time to operate a night club on Long Island, N. Y. The way he plays the part of a woman would fool his best friend and some members of the Kiwanis club may be forgiven for smiling benevolently upon the young entertainer before they were informed that he belongs to the masculine gender.

Dr. R. S. McGeachy presided over the session and the usual club singing was in charge of Mrs. R. A. Tyson, Jr., club musical director. G. V. Smith was in charge of the program.

Woman Fatally Burned Warming At Fireplace

Gatesville, March 3.—Lee Jones of Sandy Cross, went into his 80-year-old mother's room Tuesday morning about 10 o'clock and built her a fire. It was bitter cold, and the aged woman leaned over to warm at the open fireplace.

Her son went into another room to attend his wife who was ill. He soon returned to his mother's room on an errand and found the room full of smoke and fire.

Jones wheeled back to his wife's room and carried her to safety. He then ran into his mother's room to find her lying on a bed with her clothing in flames. He carried her outside but it was too late, for she was dying from burns.

Roosevelt Seeks Measure For Handling War Debts

Late News Flashes From Over World

Woan Doctor Convicted. Greenwood, Miss., March 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Sarah Ruth Dean, 36-year-old baby specialist, today was convicted of the alleged "poison whiskey" highball death of Dr. John Preston Kennedy, 41-year-old surgeon by a jury which fixed punishment at life imprisonment at hard labor.

The jur deliberated 13 hours and 52 minutes, reporting at 10:57 a. m. Obviously shocked, the woman heard the verdict read with hands clenched in her lap. She tried to smile as she arose to go to the waiting room but broke into sobs as she swept out of the court room followed by women relatives and her attorneys.

Half an hour later she was composed and smiling as she returned to stand before Judge F. S. Davis for sentence.

"The jury has found you guilty of murder and fixed your punishment," the judge said gravely. "It now becomes my duty to sentence you to spend the rest of your life at hard labor in the state penitentiary."

"That is the verdict of the jury. I have no discretion in the matter." The judge asked if she had anything to say.

The smile suddenly gone from her lips, Dr. Dean looked at her attorneys, then shook her head, keeping silent.

INSULL MUST LEAVE GREECE

Athens, Greece, March 3.—(AP)—The Foreign Minister today notified the Minister of the Interior that Sam uel Insull, Sr., former Chicago utilities operator, must leave Greece.

The notification said that the final extension of Insull's permit to remain in the country had expired.

Insull previously had gained repeated extension of the permit by which he remained in Greece safe from United States government authorities who sought his extradition to face trial on charges of embezzlement and grand larceny in connection with the collapse of his middle-west utilities organization.

Whether Insull will go to the United States will not immediately be ascertained. He merely is expelled from Greece and now may go to whatever country he will receive him.

It was said today he may be headed for Syria.

The action of the Foreign Minister in ordering the expulsion of Insull followed two court actions brought by the United States to require his extradition from Greece.

Insull won both trials, the Greek court ruling he was not extraditable under the terms of the extradition treaty.

Diplomatic pressure was brought to bear by the United States and today's order was regarded as due largely to the Greek government's desire to maintain the most cordial relations between the two countries. It was understood that Insull was not notified immediately of the government decision. In any case he seemed to be ignoring the fact that extension of his permit expired today.

FILLED-IN 40-FOOT WELL 'CLEANS' SELF OVERNIGHT

Anakarko, Okla.—(AP)—After filling up an old 40-foot well on the grounds of an Indian school with tons of rock, dirt and cement CWA workers returned the next day to inspect the job. To their amazement, the forty-foot hole was there again, the well having cleaned itself completely.

Investigation showed an underground channel of large proportions at the bottom of the well. The well was then covered over.

CHAMBERLAIN READY TO AID U. S. AIRMAIL

Well Known Flier Would Put Flying Mail On a Business Basis

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—Clearance E. Chamberlain, internationally known aviator today pledged his cooperation to Postmaster James W. Farley with what he called efforts to change conditions of the air mail transport system from organized octopus to business.

His telegram, made public by Farley said that commercial air fliers had been successful in building up a belief that contract carriers were a bad policy.

Commenting on the fact that the army is on the job, Chamberlain said "If army pilots don't know how to fly at night between to fixed fields chartered on their course, they had better learn. The biggest job in war will be to fly at night from landing fields to moving vessels and deposit bombs and return to their base."

Rumors of sabotage in army planes flying the mail meanwhile was not being taken seriously by Sec. Dem. He called them "absurd" and denied reports of an investigation being made.

NEGRO HELD IN ROBBERY CASE

Elijah Small, of Beaufort County, Held For Robbing Truck Here

A 23-year-old negro was held in jail here today as officers attempted to link him with a series of robberies occurring in this community during the last few weeks.

Elijah Small, of Beaufort county, was taken into custody by police shortly before daybreak on a charge of robbing a truck belonging to Smith-Herring Company here last Thursday night.

Chief of Police George Clark said the negro had virtually admitted stealing a quantity of cigarettes, snuff, tobacco and chewing gum from the truck as it was parked in front of the place of business near the A. C. L. passenger station.

Part of the loot was recovered and search was continued today for the remainder.

Chief Clark said the negro completed an 18-month road sentence in Beaufort county about a month ago. Belief was expressed that he was connected with a series of minor robberies in this community during the last several weeks.

Some of the goods obtained from the Smith-Herring Company was sold to various people, and it was through these sales that police were able to take the negro into custody.

ANOTHER CWA CUT IN OFFING

Additional Men To Be Dropped From The Payroll Here Last of Next Week

Another reduction of CWA workers is scheduled to take place the latter part of next week, K. T. Futrell, director of local government organization, said today.

Although informed that the cut was pending, Mr. Futrell said he did not know how many men would be affected in this territory. However it is scheduled to become effective March 9.

Two hundred and eighty two men were dropped off the payroll yesterday, leaving only about 500 men to resume work next Monday morning out of over 1,100 who were on the job when the working force was at its peak. The payroll last week was $11,500.

Mr. Futrell said he received instructions today that each project in the future would be assigned a certain number of man hours, and that this would cause a general speeding up of the various programs by getting the most out of every laborer. This applies to construction activity such as swimming pools, schools and community buildings.

He had not been advised how many hours would be assigned the various projects but expected to be notified of this within the next day or so.

The sanitary program started some time ago will be continued at full speed ahead until the present supply of material is used up. The object of the campaign is to erect four thousand privies in all sections of the county. A considerable number of buildings have already been erected and a big supply of material yet remains to be used, it was said.

Gladys Johnson Passes Away In Grimesland Area

Funeral services were conducted from the late home this afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. I. J. Strawbridge, pastor of the Simpson Methodist church, and burial will be made in the Union Chapel churchyard in Beaufort county.

PRIVATE AIR ROUTES ALSO BEING SOUGHT

Two Major Problems To be Presented Before Congress Closes; Plans and Problems a-plenty Face President as he Prepares to Enter Second Year of His Administration

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, about to enter the second year of the "New Deal" era, had two major steps in mind before congress adjourns.

One would press for legislation to handle the war debt situation, that problem which is so delicate politically and internationally.

Another would re-establish privately operated air mail system shorn by what critics of the system have called "abuses."

Looking forward, the second twelve months of the administration seem now to promise no such laws as tumbled into the congressional hopper since Mr. Roosevelt took office a year ago and promised action.

Plans and problems a-plenty are already under debate. Congress is at work on the presidential recommendation that vital security exchange be regulated.

A cabinet committee is studying economic and social planning on a nation-wide scale. The program has begun in the Tennessee valley.

Large shifts of population are eventually contemplated.

A Roosevelt request for wider powers to negotiate tariff treaties with other nations by raising or lowering tariffs as much as fifty per cent is still causing turbulence in congress.

In his suggestion, congress is contemplating a federal commission to centralize communications.

Before congress also are proposals to place all crops under compulsory control. A major revision of the NRA starts Monday.

In the past year's upheaval not even that fundamental document the constitution remained unchanged. Prohibition was repealed and the lame duck session of congress abolished.

TO PROTECT THE TREES

Realizing the value of trees to any community the Sans Souci Book Club of this city has started a movement for the protection of trees in this city and the city administration and all civic organizations will be asked to aid in the movement. The Board of Aldermen at a meeting this week adopted an ordinance preventing the cutting of any trees in the city until the matter has first been passed upon by a Tree Committee which is the first step in the protection program. Not only will the movement seek to protect trees we now have but will include the planting of trees in spots where they are needed and will add to the beauty of the city. It goes without saying that every organization and every individual citizen should be glad to co-operate in this movement.

GET TOGETHER, BRETHREN

(Williamston Enterprise) We are not speaking for or against the sales tax; simply asking for a little more harmony in the figures. Governor Ehringhaus has recently been quoted as saying the sales tax saved the credit of the state and the public schools, which, if true, is certainly a fortunate thing for both the state government and for the children of the state. On the other hand, Mr. Maxwell, in upholding the virtues of the sales tax with figures, shows that the sales tax amounts to about $6,000,000 annually and saves property taxpayers of a burden of $10,000,000.

The thing that puzzles us is how the loss of $4,000,000 in taxes saves anything. Certainly, it cannot help us pay debts or boost our credit, for everybody knows the state can pay more debts and more interest with $10,000,000 than with $6,000,000. Even the dullest pupil will not miss that point.

It looks more to us like the school teachers are the sufferers. They have patiently borne the heat and burden of the day by absorbing as a net loss the same amount that the people have saved.

Of course, some people may be willing to starve the school teachers to death and destroy the schools rather than pay any kind of tax. However, most people want schools and are willing to pay any reasonable tax to preserve them.

We are not kicking the sales tax, the land tax, the gas tax, or any other kind of tax. What we want to know is how, by losing $4,000,000 in tax revenue, we increase and improve our schools? Get together, brethren.

Chapter 47

REUNION IN YUCATAN

IF VOICES may exist without visible, corporeal authority, then these voices were undoubtedly disembodied.

This ethereal dialogue was in Spanish. One voice was smoothly cadenced, soft with the accent of one using his native tongue. The other ghost voice was harsh—undoubtedly masculine also—it spoke abruptly, extravagantly, accented like a foreigner's, and laden with bookish polysyllables.

The abrupt voice said, "Miracles, my young friend, are out of fashion. True, perhaps the Virgin did appear to the poor peon at Guadalupe. But that was nearly four hundred years ago. Today—as it did then—it takes two to make a miracle. One to perform it, and at least one, certainly, to believe it."

The voice coughed complacently, and continued, "That's sound philosophy. While it is not original with me, it might well have been. I have written cleverer things."

"No, miracles are unfashionable. The wisdom of the public is a terrible thing. Could I perform a miracle—and I do not say that I cannot—that would be the result? The public would put its tongue in its cheek, it would slyly pull down that publicity men should be confined to asylums!" The voice ended upon a note of grievance.

The softer voice chuckled. "You seem hurt, senior, that people no longer are so stupid."

"But they are!" exclaimed the other voice with emphasis. "I have matters to write about—marvelous matters—that should astound the world. But will I ever be permitted to write about them as only I can write about them? No! Certainly not! I shall be told that they are too extraordinary. Nobody would believe me!"

A gust of wind, a sound like a spattering cascade of rain obliterated the voices for a moment. The blackness was split with a flare of lightning vividly sustained. The figure of a man stirred in a corner of the dark enclosure. He seemed half buried in swaths of palm leaves. His clothing, a mass of wet rags, clung to his powerful frame. His hair was black and damp, beard-stubble served but to accentuate the strength of his jaws and chin. He pushed himself to his hands and knees.

The voice with the foreign accent again took advantage of a lull in the thunder. "Juan, my boy, you should consider yourself lucky that you're not a genius. Believe me, I suffer more because of my talents than I do from my faults, although if I do say it myself—

"Zowie! What a crash that was! Look at that flash! ... Juan! He's conscious! Stir up the fire, Frank! Frank! It's me, Frank, Horatio Greene—"

Excitedly Juan was blowing upon the near dead embers of a fire. Greene feverishly hauled dried palm leaves and driftwood toward him. A small flame broke out; then the fire flared up.

Frank Grahame sat upright upon the heap of palm leaves. He shook his head as if to clear it. For an instant he stared at the two anxious faces turned toward him, one dark and drawn with concern—the Mexican boy, Juan—the other white but gaunt and stubbled with weeks of unshaved beard.

A Tired grin spread over the face of Grahame. "Hello, genius," he chuckled hoarsely. "Don't let me interrupt. You were speaking of miracles. Answer me this one, Greene; am I here—and alive—and you, and Juan?"

Greene answered with an excited laugh. "Sure," he exclaimed. "A cinch! Juan and I were just talking about it. We picked you out of the sea this afternoon. Thought sure you'd gone by by. But—"

Rapidly he explained. When he and Juan had upset the ceremony on the pyramid top, and had plunged into the depths below, they had been sucked into the downstream cavern. They had lost sight of the high priest after they had struck the surface of the pool.

Clinging to driftwood they had floated during a day and a night, passing in the darkness the cenote-valley where Janice and he had found Laogon. They drifted down the underground river to the spot where Frank on the previous day had crawled out to the jungle for that brief pause in his journey.

Instead of floating the remainder of the distance, as Grahame had done, he made their way on foot through the jungle to the coast. Here they had been for several days hoping to signal a fishing craft that might take them to civilization, where they could secure help and return—if it were not too late—to lend assistance to Janice and Billy. The previous evening, on a crude raft they had constructed of driftwood, they had paddled out to the well of fresh water that bubbled in the sea. They had discovered Grahame floating—his balsam-wood life jacket keeping his head above the water.

At first they had thought him drowned but finally they decided he was unconscious from exhaustion. When the downpour had become steady they sought shelter in this abandoned fishing hut.

Frank told them his story. He explained how vital it was that they secure help and return to the valley in the jungle. Dawn found them staring soberly at the heaped ashes and coals of their fire. They had exhausted every possibility that involved the three of them returning to the cenote-valley. They realized that they could do nothing by themselves; they must get outside help somehow. Juan told them that during the rainy season the jungle was almost impassable to travel afoot.

AT THAT comment Frank stared thoughtfully through the doorway that was just beginning to show a patch of lightened sky. During the following two days Greene kept up a continual rapid fire chatter. The little man, Frank realized, was on the verge of a breakdown. The hardships he had gone through were unaccustomed ones.

Moreover he could see that the plight of his employer and the fate of the motion picture party was constantly on his mind and his inane chatter was more to keep his mind from the subject than for personal amusement.

On the morning of the third day, Frank, sitting out at the end of a sandy promontory that jutted into the sea heard the sound of a motor. Visibility was bad. Suddenly, in the north he saw the outline of a plane against the mist. His shout brought his two companions running toward him. The three danced and waved upon the sand.

"He's got to see us!" screamed Greene. "It's the mail plane to Cozumel! There won't be another for days!"

The plane droned on. The three castaways caught up palm fronds and waved them. Greene circled his ragged jacket about his head. The airship kept to its course.

Long after the ship disappeared into the southern mist they waved and shouted mechanically. Finally exhausted, they sat upon the sand and stared at each other miserably. They were too discouraged to hunt for the conch shell-fish that were exposed at low tide, and which had provided them with scanty nourishment. Once, miles at sea, a white steamer passed north bound. They stared at it hungrily.

It was late in the afternoon when Frank lifted his head. There was an unbelieving look in his eyes. Suddenly Juan imitated him. Greene scrambled to his feet.

"It's the plane! Hear it! It's—" The plane—it looked like the one that had passed in the morning—was returning. It was flying lower and closer inshore. Suddenly it dropped and zoomed. Banking in toward them the engine gave a series of staccato roars—as if it was signalling acknowledgment to the three wild men who danced upon the beach.

It swerved away back toward the south; then banking again it headed upwind toward them. Waves splashed beneath its pontoons. With spinning propellers it drifted to a stop a few yards out from the beach. Frank was already in the water swimming toward the craft. He hauled himself up over the pontoons. The helmeted pilot observed him quizzically.

"You three guys have been on my conscience all afternoon. But I was carrying mail. What's on your mind? Say . . . you speak English?"

Frank, gasping for breath, strove to answer. The pilot called out in a louder tone, "You hablo English, Hombre? What's—"

Greene splashing toward them called, "Keep your shirt on, mister. Sure he speaks English, I invented it, and taught him how. That's Frank Grahame a little out of breath!"

The pilot's jaw dropped. "Grahame . . . my God! Why . . . the whole United States is looking for you and—where've you been, man?"

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, March 3—(AP)—After a brief upward flurry following the opening stocks tumbled dull in today's abbreviated session.

Aside from a few specialties prices change were narrow. The close was about steady.

The turn over approximated 750,000 shares was the smallest since early January. The speculative enthusiasm that appeared yesterday seemed to have waned considerably.

Financial observers pointed out that the equity market was in an era of supply which might be difficult to negotiate.

every slice of bread which has no butter.

A PLEDGE: "At least one hundred glasses of jelly from every unit."

More information concerning the plans for this project as it will be carried out in North Carolina will be announced in the very near future.

The following are letters of appreciation for the Christmas gifts sent by the Auxiliary to the men at Green Veterans Administration Hospital.

From a hospital bed where a boy has been for years:

"Every time I crackle that dollar bill in my bed shirt-pocket, I am so happy. My heart crackles, too, and I say, 'God bless you in your errands of mercy.'" Another experience: "Dear Lady: The sex were beauties but I haven't any legs. Do you care? I traded them for a red necktie and I'll say I look swell."

And this, "It was very thoughtful of the ladies to remember the patients here with such practical generosity."

"The dollar bill and your greeting card found their way to my bed but, as I happened to be in possession of holiday funds, I passed the money on to another patient in the ward, reserving to myself, however, the pleasure of writing you these lines of appreciation."

"You may have the satisfaction of knowing that the ultimate recipient of your gift is a married man whose wife and two children, I understand, are all victims of tuberculosis and to whom every penny is of great importance. This disposition of your present is, I am sure, as you would have directed it."

"With best wishes for 1934 to you and the Auxiliary, I beg to remain, 'Sincerely yours.'"

SANS SOUCI CLUB MAKES APPEAL FOR TREES

At a meeting of the Sans Souci Club this week there was a discussion of the need for more particular interest in the trees of our town.

There was a prevailing sentiment that our trees should be regarded as among our most treasured possessions; that they should be valued for their own beauty and for their beauty as an asset to Greenville, for what they add in shade, backgrounds and skyline to the appearance of any town cannot be estimated.

That trees have real monetary worth, we all know, for they definitely enhance the value and desirability of all residential lots and town effects, and in proportion to the amount expended for their planting and care, are the most worthwhile improvements that can be invested in.

As March is tree-planting and tree-awakening time, this club felt that it would be a splendid thing if during this month Greenville might begin the move of becoming more enthusiastically "tree-minded."

That as a town, her people might develop an enduring interest, love and appreciation of their trees, an interest that would make them protect in every possible way those already here and to plant others where they are needed.

In order to accomplish something definite toward this end, the Sans Souci Club decided to attend the Alderman's meeting and to solicit the aid and interest of the city fathers. They found a most pleasing and co-operative spirit on the part of the mayor and his associates and immediate action was taken to have committees appointed and some definite lines of pursuit mapped out. It was at once decided that the approach to the hospital should be beautified and that the town would do what it could in improving the street and walks leading there.

Greenville is appreciative of the splendid work done by the Woman's Club last spring in planting trees and it is to be hoped that there can be a permanent united effort on the part of the town officers, all club units, and individuals of Greenville to plant and preserve trees that will give beauty and pleasure, shade and shelter, not only to us of today, but to the unborn generations.

SENIOR-NORMAL CLASS OF COLLEGE GIVE PLAYS BEFORE LARGE AUDIENCE
Playing to a crowded house for one night instead of the usual two the Senior-Normal class of the college entertained an appreciative audience last night in the Austin Auditorium, by the presentation of three one-act dramas, "Pink And Patches," by Margaret Bland; "Winners All," by Ida Ehrlich, and "The Wedding," by John Kirkpatrick.

W. L. BEST, Opt. D.
Complete Eye Examination
FITTING OF GLASSES

The three plays were very different in type. In "Pink and Patches" a local color study of mountain people, Julia Mae Bordeaux played the part of the little mountain girl who "hated brown, hated calico and hated patches," and whose hope of a pink dress was disappointed.

George Willard was her stolid twin; Heba Winstead, the mountain meddler who thought women born to look after men, and Mary R. Davis, the "summer lady."

"Winners All" showed Robert Eason in the role of the husband who, told that his wife is so obedient to him because she no longer loves him, sets out to make her jealous, and succeeds very well.

Isabelle Suiter took the part of the obedient wife. The parts of the quarreling newly-weds who precipitate the trouble were played by Margaret Anderson and Dan Wright.

As the curtain went up for "The Wedding," Carl Joyner, a distracted bridegroom, was discovered with head and shoulders under the bed in a search for his lost collar button.

The whole play which was a strong element of farce, hinged on the loss of the collar button and the groom's resulting nervousness and display of temper.

Though the wedding is almost broken off, the bride, played by Miss Sue Taylor Myers, and the groom finally make up.

One of the farcial characters was the best man, who having served in a like capacity nine times, felt himself the chief figure in the wedding and an authority on procedure. C. O. Armstrong took the part.

Other members of the cast were Francis Jennings, a groomsman; Grace Griffin, the groom's mother; Jack Nobles, the bride's father, and Lucy Barow, their bride's aunt.

Between the plays, music was furnished by Kate Lee Johnson, at the piano, by Alba VanNortwick in vocal numbers, and by three selections given by the popular male quartet composed of Dr. L. R. Meadows, H. J. McGinnis, Dr. R. J. Slay and R. C. Deal.

Before the last play the president of the class, Miss Alma Earle Ivey, said a few graceful words of thanks to those who had contributed to the success of the performance.

The productions were under the experienced direction of Mrs. J. H. Rose. Misses Minnie Leigh Thompson, Hazel Kimrey and Marie Daniels were student directors.

FASHION FOLLIES OF 1934 MUSICAL SET TO LAUGHTER

Fan dancers, stars, and gorgeous gowns are the attractions the State Theatre offers in "Fashions of 1934" featured Monday and Tuesday. This picture, said to be among the most lavish ever produced, stars William Powell and Bette Davis.

The story is a hilarious comedy-romance based on a tale by Harry Collins and Warren Duff. It revolves about a high pressure promoter who corners the Paris and New York fashion markets. William Powell plays the role of the personable promoter whose ambitions, although unscrupulous, schemes keep him one step ahead of "trouble."

A Laurel-Hardy comedy, Mickey Mouse and news reel complete the bill.
