Band Of Robbers Rounded Up By Police

FIVE MEN AND WOMAN SEIZED IN BIG ROUNDUP

One More Member of Gang of Negroes Charged With Epidemic of Robberies Here Sought by Police Today; Considerable Amount of Stolen Property Also Recovered

Five men and a woman, all colored, said by police to be members of a gang which has robbed several stores here recently, were rounded up by police last night and early today.

Chief of Police George Clark said this morning that a considerable portion of the goods taken in the robberies was recovered in the roundup which started last night at 11 o'clock and continued until this morning.

Those arrested are: James Moe, James Edwards, Leroy Jackson, Louis Harper, Henry Moore and Annie Lee Harper. They are being held in the city jail and probably will be given preliminary hearing in police court tomorrow morning.

The arrest of Dunn, the police chief said, will complete the roundup of the gang which entered several stores here the last three weeks and obtained goods valued at several hundred of dollars. More of the stolen property is expected to be recovered before the investigation is completed, the officer said.

All of these arrested are from this section with exception of Dunn and Edwards who are from Ayden and Norfolk.

The majority of the prisoners were nabbed by officers who threw a dragnet that extended four miles into the country. The majority were seized on the outskirts of the city.

Moore was the last to fall into the net. He was seized this morning about 9 o'clock.

The roundup is expected to bring to an end the epidemic of robberies which has kept police busy day and night in an attempt to obtain a clue that would lead to apprehension. That clue was found yesterday, and working on the information, officers bagged their gang.

CITY FATHERS ENDORSE PLAN TO OPEN RIVER

Aldermen Promise Moral Support to Movement to Make Stream Navigable

The Board of Aldermen, meeting in special session at the city hall last night, endorsed the movement recently started by the Eastern North Carolina Association for opening Tar river to navigation.

The endorsement, with promise of moral support, was given after Mr. Wilkins, field agent of the association, appeared before the aldermen and explained the movement to get the government to deepen the river from here to Washington and enable the community to obtain freight rates in keeping with other sections.

Mr. Wilkins said it was estimated that this section would save at least a quarter of a million dollars annually if the project goes through with inestimable savings to accrue in years to come.

An examination of the river was made by government engineers some years ago but an unfavorable report caused abandonment of the proposal. Recently however, at the suggestion of the association here, Congressman Lindsay Warren petitioned congress to re-examine the report on the river to determine if deepening the channel was not justifiable. The petition received favorable consideration and engineers were instructed to go over the reports again and inform congress of their action.

The association Mr. Wilkins said, is preparing to gather data on the river, and in view of the cost attached to the work, the financial support of all organizations of the community is being sought.

The board also passed two resolutions dealing with the resurfacing of Dickinson Avenue from the A. C. L. passenger station to Five Points, and the widening of Fifth street from Library street to the city limits.

The resolutions were required of the city by the federal government before actual construction work begins, it was said. The program is to be completed through funds appropriated to the state by the Public Works Administration and is scheduled to begin in the near future.

The board considered a number of applications for the job as tax taster for the city, and D. S. Spain, Jr., being the low bidder was selected for the position. The listing period begins the first Monday in April.

Late News Flashes From Over World

Today In Congress

Washington, March 9—(AP)—With the days drawing inexorably to the March 14 vote on the St. Lawrence treaty with Canada its advocates returned to the wars again today in the Senate.

Chairman Pittman of the foreign relations committee, presented an army engineers' report that the giant waterway would do no harm to the Mississippi inland waterway system. Opponents of his cause showed no signs of being convinced.

Other legislation already waiting its turn became the more crowded. Meanwhile the Philippine independence bill being approved by the Senate treaties committee as it had been previously on the House side.

On the House tax bill the Senate finance committee re-endorsed the provision which measures the capital gain or loss for tax purposes from the sale of property by an individual according to the time the property had been his.

Majority leader Byrnes expressed the view to reporters that the House in its present mood would be unable to agree upon a compromise on veterans compensation acceptable to the president. He and Rainey agreed that the House would not override a veto.

ORDER TROOPS TO ALABAMA COAL FIELDS

Three Companies of National Guards Sent to Quell Pending Disorders

Birmingham, Ala., March 9—(AP)—Three companies of national guards were mobilized early today for patrol duty in the strike-stricken area of Walker county where more than 4,000 miners have struck demanding the check-off system.

In announcing the mobilization, Brigadier General John S. Persing said "No violence has been reported in the areas but mobs have been marching around trying to intimidate those men who want to work. The troops were called upon on the request of the sheriff of Walker county.

The mobilization order was issued after Col. Walter Thomson, of the Sixteenth Infantry with three other officers had made a survey of the situation last night.

The officers were sent into the area on instructions from Governor B. M. Miller after Sheriff A. Barrentine had reported the situation in Walker county out of his control. The sheriff wired Governor Miller yesterday after between 200 and 300 miners, armed with guns and clubs, had marched on the coal valley mines of the Gelardeleben Coal Co. in an effort to enlist workers in the strike.

"The strike situation in Walker county is most serious," the sheriff wired. "Hundreds of men are marching with guns and clubs. In order to preserve human life I ask you to send troops quickly to assist in keeping order."

TWO ARMY MAIL FLIERS DIE IN AIR MISHAPS

One Killed at Daytona Beach and Other in Ohio Early this Morning

Dayton Beach, Fla., March 9—(AP)—Private Ernest Bell was killed instantly here today in the crash of an army bombing mail plane within a few minutes after it had taken off from the local airport headed south.

Lt. W. M. Raid pilot, and Floyd Marshall, a private, were injured. The motor failed and the plane fell in a heavy wooded section two miles south of the city.

Cordon, O., March 9—Army Air Mail Pilot Ott Wenecke, flying from Newark to Cleveland with the mail, crashed to his death in the midst of a heavy snow squall this morning on a farm northwest of Burton, near here.

John Hess, a farmer in whose pasture the plane crashed, said he and several neighbors heard the motor about 5 a. m., Eastern Standard Time.

FARMER AID IS URGED AT MEETING HERE

Back to Farm Movement Seen as Necessary to Improve Living Conditions

The plight of the "down-and-out" farmer was discussed by representatives of various organizations of the city at a meeting at the courthouse last night and indications are that a concrete movement to bring relief for this class of growers will be launched not only here but in all parts of the state.

The meeting was called several days ago by J. T. Bland, director of the local Re-employment Bureau for the purpose of discussing the farm placement movement started by the federal government and considerable interest was manifested by those attending the meeting.

Homer B. Mask, of Raleigh, state farm placement director, was presented by Mr. Bland, and told of the government plan to induce a "back to the farm" spirit throughout the county in an effort to relieve the unemployment situation.

The pressing need, however, said Mr. Mask, is land for the down-and-out grower to farm on and if this is obtained the government stands ready to finance each grower. No money crops will be allowed but each grower will be required to produce the things for his family to eat.

Last year there were 9,000 uncultivated acres of land in Pitt county alone, the speaker said, more than enough to care for the unemployed growers, and if this could be put into cultivation living conditions would be much improved and the poverty list cut pronouncedly.

The government wants land owners to let its representatives know how much land they are ready to turn over to this purpose, and those interested were invited to visit the local re-employment bureau and confer with representatives on the subject.

Other speakers of the evening were K. T. Futrell, director of the Welfare Department and CWA, K. W. Cobb and E. G. Flanagan and others.

Mr. Futrell said there were over 600 families in this county receiving public aid, and that getting back to the farm was imperative if the situation improves.

Mr. Flanagan and Mr. Cobb said the need for action to provide sources of livelihood for the homeless, landless growers and expressed hope something will be done to aid them.

Mr. Bland said he had several down-and-out growers on the employment list at this time and would be glad to confer with anybody needing a tenant or interested in providing land for colonization movement.

SHUPING GETS NEW POSITION

Greensboro Party Leader Selected At Democratic Meeting In Raleigh

Raleigh, March 9—(AP)—C. L. Shuping today wore the mantle of Democratic National Committeeman from North Carolina.

The Greensboro party leader, a close friend of Senator J. W. Bailey and campaign manager of the senior senator in his race against F. M. Simmons in 1930, was named by acclamation at last night's meeting of the State Democratic Executive committee here.

Raleigh was selected for the party convention which will be held June 21. Precinct meetings will be held June 9 and county conventions July 11.

The decision to hold the state convention after the primary on June 2 followed the precedent of recent years but was contrary to the wishes of state office holders. Just before fixing of the date State Chairman Wallace Winborne had informed the committee that state officials wanted it but that members of congress preferred it to be held prior to the primary.

PARK AND POOL TO BE OPENED BY 1ST OF MAY

College Trustees Grant Request of Mayor and Members of Woman's Club for Piece of Land Adjacent to New Swimming Pool For Public Recreation Center; Boundaries to be Established Later; Mayor Tells Aldermen of Success of Movement.

Greenville is going to have a public park and it will be located adjacent to the municipal swimming pool now under construction in the ravine on Fifth street.

This information was divulged by Mayor R. C. Flanagan at the special meeting of the Board of Aldermen at the city hall last night. The Mayor, along with members of the Woman's club, appeared before the Board of Trustees of East Carolina Teachers College yesterday and asked that a portion of the campus near the swimming pool be turned over to the city for a public park.

In the words of the Mayor, "The board graciously granted the request," although definite establishment of the boundary was left to Pres. R. H. Wright, who will meet with the mayor in a few days to determine the exact lines. It is known however, that the park will run from the swimming pool on Fifth street back to the curb market.

After listening to the proposal the college trustees accompanied the park committee to that section of the campus near the swimming pool and rendered their decision immediately upon returning to the school. The mayor said the delegation was highly elated over the success of the venture, in view of the long felt need of a park, and that the college trustees were highly commended for their splendid action.

In turning over the property to the municipality, the trustees stipulated that when the land is abandoned as a park it shall be turned back to the college without reservations.

Although complete plans for the park have not yet been fully worked out, Mayor Flanagan said it would be well lighted so that citizens may sit there at night, watch bathers in the pool and even read newspapers if desired. The place will also afford a splendid place for children to play, especially during the hot summer months when hundreds will take cooling plunges in the swimming pool.

Asked when he thought the pool and park would be ready for service, the Mayor said they hoped to have everything in readiness by May 1. He said construction work on the pool was being pushed forward rapidly at this time and that as soon as bath houses and lockers are completed the pool would be ready for opening. It was hoped to have the park in readiness by that time also.

Members of the board heartily congratulated the mayor on the success of the park movement and conveyed expressions of appreciation to members of the Woman's club, and college board. The park was described by several members as a "long felt need" and one that should play an important part in the social life of the city.

BIG SUM FOR HOME OWNERS

State Loan Corporation Pays Out $3,442,862 to Take up Mortgages

Salisbury, N. C., March 9—A total of $3,442,862.67 has been distributed by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation to take up the mortgages on 1282 homes in North Carolina. It was announced today by Alan S. O'Neal, state manager with headquarters here, in his report for the week which ended March 2. During the week reported on the corporation paid out $266,362.96 in cash and bonds to take up the mortgages on 129 homes.

Summarizing the other activities of the corporation Mr. O'Neal said that since the organization began operation last summer 3533 applications for loans have been approved, the total amount involved being $7,687,502.14. With the exception of those on which the cash and bonds already have been paid out, these loans are now in the hands of the legal department and attorneys throughout the state for title examination and other detail work being closed. Disbursements in a majority of these cases probably will be made within the next thirty days as quickly as the lawyers complete legal work. During the week which ended March 2, 142 additional loans were approved involving $256,128.04.

The corporation thus far has received 11,024 applications for loans the total amount requested being $29,583,074.07. Of these applications 345 were received during the week which ended March 2.

Mr. O'Neal called attention to the fact that in order to provide better service for the public and because of the rapidly expanding work of the corporation, the Board at Washington has authorized new district offices at Greensboro and Wilmington and transfer of the Gastonia district office to Charlotte. He said these changes will be made within a few days and the employees of the corporation will then be in a better position to serve home owners desiring aid. The state headquarters will be maintained as heretofore at Salisbury and all district offices will report to Salisbury, and the final legal work and disbursing will be handled at Salisbury, as well as executive direction of the various district offices.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

Evidently the nights are long and busy out in the great open space of the northwest this winter, but they have their compensations.

Our faithful northwest scout, Dick Powers, has been soaking up some "remember whens" of famous football happenings, along with a lot of heat from the base burners, and he forwards a few gems of Minnesota reminiscence, to wit and as follows:

"Roger Wheeler, captain of the 1926 Gopher gridgers, was eating in a restaurant with a friend the other day. A stranger broke into the conversation and began giving the low-down on football for the past several years. By chance he mentioned the 1926 team, which incidentally had a potent record, and loudly told how it should have been improved on.

"After 10 minutes of this, Wheeler made some remark and the stranger snapped back. 'What do you know about it?' Wheeler made no reply but his friend leaned over and whispered in the stranger's ear. The stranger vanished.

Barely Stopped In Time
"And do you remember the time Captain Wheeler was taken out of the Minnesota-Wisconsin game, after playing a standout game, with the score 10 and 9 for Wisconsin? Wheeler went to the dressing room and was taking a shower when word came in that Mally Nydahl had made a 75-yard run for a touchdown and a 16 to 10 win for the Gophers in the closing seconds.

"Two policemen caught Wheeler in the absolute nude, at the edge of the track—and rushed him back into the dressing room—just as he was making a bee-line for the field.

Pharmer's Tying Kick
"It was during the Minnesota-Notre Dame game at South Bend in 1927. Notre Dame was leading 7 to 0 in the last quarter when Minnesota rushed over a touchdown, bringing the score 7-6.

"A Pharmer, stellar place kicker, had not to play for only a few moments previously and was 'grouchy' about it. He knew Notre Dame would call on him to kick the point, and he hid in the blankets when he saw the mighty doctor coming. However, he was rooted out and sent into the game. Just as he was trotting on the field, he turned and came back to Soars and sprung the punt a dollar I make it. And then he went out and kicked the point, behind the Gophers 7 to 7 tie. Nobody knew what he had ever paid.

Follow Me!
"It was during the Minnesota game at Iowa City, Brockton, N. C. All-American full back, who had tackled throughout the first three quarters. He was talking to a 'buddy' from the Iowa squad and during their remarks, he said, 'I'm going back there to follow for a moment.' "The buddy took his place in the backfield and the ball was snapped to him and he received the drive straight ahead for 55 yards and a touchdown. It was through his previous tackle opponent."

SENTENCED TO ROADS FOR ATTACKING DOCTOR

Mann of Moyock early on the morning of Thanksgiving day, 1927, were each given two years on the roads and Moses Hall another Negro found guilty of aiding and abetting in the shooting, was given six months on the roads in Currituck Superior Court Wednesday.

His eye glasses were shattered by bird shot which struck him in the face. After being shot down he found another pair of glasses and finished dressing the wounds of his two patients.

Six Negroes were arrested after the cutting scrape. Three of them were freed of charges of taking part in the shooting of Dr. Mann.

Barnhill late Wednesday to not less than five and not more than seven years in State's Prison. No notice of appeal was given, and Ayscough is expected to be taken to Raleigh near the end of the week to begin serving his term.

Clarence Roberson one of five men convicted in the hold up of the Carolina Service Station on North Garnett street two months ago, was sentenced to 12 months on the roads. The other five had been previously sentenced to five years each on the roads. Lewis E. Teague, of municipal court, has decided.

Next Monday morning when L. I. Childster, recently graduated from N. C. State college indicted for manslaughter in connection with the girl's untimely death, is called for a further hearing, the local court will assume complete jurisdiction and proceed to find the defendant guilty or not guilty as the case may be, and if a verdict of guilty is entered, to mete out punishment.

Heretofore, the High Point court has only assumed power to bind over in manslaughter cases arising here.

This will mark it is said, the first time since the 1933 General Assembly amended the manslaughter act making it in the discretion of the court as to whether punishment for involuntary manslaughter shall be by fine or imprisonment or by both and that a recorder's court in the state has taken the power to finish finally such a case.

NITROGEN PHOSPHORIC ACID POTASH

a better FERTILIZER for better times

CLARENCE GRADY says "8% POTASH has paid me well"

THREE years ago Clarence Grady, of Kinston, N. C., decided that he would try adding extra potash to his tobacco fertilizer by top-dressing just after setting the crop. The extra potash cost him $3 per acre and his gain in extra quality and extra yields was $45.03. But let him tell you about the importance of using plenty of potash.

He says: "During the last two years I have used 8% potash and found that it pays me well. The extra potash gives better quality and larger yields. Extra potash pays best when you produce a thin, light leaf rather than one which is thick and bony. Closer rows with closer spacing and high topping help reduce the amount of heavy-bodied tobacco. Of course if you produce a real rough crop nothing seems to help much.

"From my experience and that of some of our leading growers I believe that farmers of this section will produce a more profitable crop of superior quality with extra potash in their tobacco fertilizer. With the small acreage this year we want to produce the best possible crop.

"My average yield last year was 1,074 pounds per acre and my average price was $20.68 per hundred."

Are you using a fertilizer that is well-balanced with plenty of potash? Mr. Grady and many other leading growers have found that it pays. Your fertilizer man knows this. That is why he now has 3-8-8 TOBACCO FERTILIZER on sale. Tell him that you want to produce "high-dollar" tobacco in 1934. Tell him you want 3-8-8 TOBACCO FERTILIZER.

Extra potash gives tobacco a better grain and increases yields. It does not make the crop rough and red. On the average the man with the most pounds makes the most dollars per acre. Extra pounds this year will give you the chance to grade your crop closer and sell more pounds of high-quality leaf. Use 3-8-8 FERTILIZER... It Pays!

Extra POTASH PAYS Extra Cash

This advertisement is placed by N.V. POTASH EXPORT MY., Inc., 19 West 44th Street, New York City, to support fertilizer manufacturers in encouraging the use of better-balanced fertilizers to bring better times. Your fertilizer man has 3-8-8 FERTILIZER on sale.

FOR COTTON: To help your cotton prevent rust, control wilt and produce vigorous, healthy plants with less shedding, larger bolls that are easier to pick and better yields of uniform, high quality lint—USE 3-8-8 COTTON FERTILIZER... IT PAYS!

WINTER TERM AT COLLEGE CLOSES SATURDAY

The winter term of East Carolina Teachers College will close Saturday afternoon, March 10, and the spring term will open Tuesday morning, March 13, with registration on that day and classes to begin with the first period Wednesday morning, March 14. Term examinations are being held at the regular class hours at the final class sessions this week. There will be no classes on Monday. This is a new departure, but it is necessary to have some time between the close of one term and the beginning of a new term in order to handle the records. There are a number of applicants for admission for the spring term, most of them former students continuing work. A few will drop out, but the number will be small. The list of candidates for degrees and diplomas at the end of this term is by far the largest for the winter quarter in the history of the college.

District School This Evening.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the West Greenville School will sponsor a play, "The District School" in the high school auditorium this evening at eight o'clock. Mrs. Pickens is coaching the play. ADV.

'SISTINE MADONNA' GIFT TO EAST CAROLINA TEACHERS COLLEGE

A handsome colored copy of the "Sistine Madonna" from the collection of Dr. A. D. Hunter, former head of the St. Augustine School of Raleigh, has been presented to East Carolina Teachers College by Mrs. Hunter. The picture was brought to the college yesterday by A. B. Andrews, a member of the board of trustees of the college and a great friend of Dr. Hunter's. After his retirement from active service at St. Augustine's Dr. Hunter spent several years traveling in Europe and for a year served as rector of the American Episcopal Church in Rome. During his travels in Europe he collected a great number of pictures and valuable manuscripts. This picture is one of the collection. He gave some pictures and a number of manuscripts from this collection to the University of North Carolina. He had expected to make a visit to East Carolina Teachers College and present this picture himself to the library, but could not carry out his purpose. His widow sent the picture by their friend, Mr. Andrews. It will hang in the college library.

ASKS DIVORCE: HUSBAND AN ESCAPED CONVICT

Durham, March 9.—Martha Evans Silverthorne, Durham white woman, filed suit yesterday for divorce, claiming that the man she married 13 years ago in Suffolk, Va., later turned out to be an escaped convict, and used an alias when they were married. She claims that she did not know his real name or the fact that he was a fugitive from justice, until he was arrested and returned to the state penitentiary in Raleigh three months after their wedding. The plaintiff contends further that she became the mother of his child while he was in prison, and that they assumed marital relationships after his parole for the sake of the child. In 1929 he is alleged to have abandoned her without cause.

Realizing that water transportation to Greenville would give the citizens of this community the benefits of lower freight rates, the Board of Aldermen last night endorsed the movement by the Eastern Carolina Association to get the government to deepen the river between this city and Washington. The movement is one of great importance to the people of our section and every individual in the city and county would do well to give it their support.

A public park for Greenville, a long felt need, is soon to be realized as a result of action of the Board of Trustees of East Carolina Teachers College in setting aside a section of the college property, next to the municipal swimming pool, to be used as a city park. Plans are already under way for immediate development of the property into a park and certainly its central location will make it an ideal spot. We congratulate the college trustees for their display of interest in the community by making it possible for the city to have a public park.

THOSE LOW AWNINGS, AGAIN

Recently we have called attention to the low awnings in our business district proving an annoyance to some of the taller pedestrians. Judging from the comment below by the Williamston Enterprise it seems that our neighboring town is having similar difficulties. There are plenty of persons in this city who will sympathize with them and wish them well in their efforts to get the awnings raised just a little. The Enterprise says:

One town commissioner had his hat knocked off the other day by an awning swung too low. He did not curse and fret, yet many do when they walk along and an awning, stretched about five and a half feet above the sidewalk, knocks their hats off and swipes them across the face and eyes.

How about an ordinance forbidding awnings to be swung low enough to knock off the hats of ladies and gentlemen as they pass along, or, if we have such a law, enforce it. And as a last resort, grant the privilege to pedestrians to trim out a way for safe passage.

Judith Lane

by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: Judith Lane and her fiancé, Norman Dale, have been helping Tom Bevin prepare to dam the Rio Diablo river in Western Texas. Judith is Bevin's secretary, and Norman is junior partner of the law firm that handles Bevin's affairs in the city of Houston, where Bevin's construction and building business is centered. Bevin, inspired by a terrific storm, has decided that an artificial dam is necessary—and Judith has watched Norman's quiet efficiency, getting the Rio Diablo scien-

Chapter Five JUDITH'S CHOICE

JUDITH thought of this a few nights later. They had left part of their men to assist the natives in rebuilding their adobe houses, others were carrying fresh supplies to the nearest Gulf Port town, the county seat of Rio Mar.

Anxious to clear preliminaries and hasten the building of the dam, Big Tom had chartered a trawler and with Judith and Norman was heading for Galveston, from where they could motor to their homes in Houston.

The two men were pacing the deck with after-dinner cigars while Judith watched the moon rise, then, turning watched it lay shadow patterns on the deck, angles, quadrangles, squares and quadrilaterals.

She smiled whimsically, any other girl would have found poetic fancy

even if you do try to cut off the curl—

"And you have the most amazing eyes. I look at your dark hair and lashes and expect to see black, hazel, even dark blue eyes and then up come the lashes and those clear grey—"

"Please be serious."

"I am, when will you marry me?"

"Most anytime, I suppose we should wait—"

"Considering the importance of a perfect stenographer we'll have to give Big Tom at least a month's notice."

"Notice," faltered Judith. "But Norman, that is archaic, women don't give up their professions to marry."

"Stenographers do."

Judith thought quickly, "If only I were a lawyer like he is, or a doctor, or an engineer as I wanted to be."

"Norman," she said, "must I choose marriage to you or my work?"

JUDITH waited for him to answer her question. Must she choose between marrying him or going on with her work? Clia had said he had comparatively little money, his father having left what property they had to Mrs. Dale.

She felt a rush of bitterness as in the delicate tracery of ship's rigging on slanting boards. It reminded her of her difference in other ways. She wondered how this would affect her future with Norman.

Norman, must I choose marriage to you, or my work?

Marriage, she reasoned, wasn't assurance of life-long happiness. Perhaps, like the Rio Diablo, it needed a dam to control its storm currents. She might apply her engineering experience on hers, make a topographical map of the characteristic differences between her disposition and Norman's.

Big Tom would know to a cubic yard how much rock and cement it would take to hold the flood waters in place. Perhaps she might learn how much patience and forbearance was necessary to check a quarrel.

Judith looked down and shuddered. There in the web-like lines of shadows lay a perfect triangle cast by three human beings. Black haired and silver rimmed, it defied her engineering logic to admit three vertical figures could cast such a shadow.

"Cold, Judith?"

Before she could answer, one bar dissolved, and the other two merged. Big Tom had gone below and Norman had stepped close.

"What were you doing?" he asked. She looked up with a sudden smile—"thinking."

"Judy," he protested in mock horror, "don't tell me you're one of these women who think—"

"On Mondays and Fridays at nine P. M.," she assured him solemnly. "And this is Friday. Mind telling me your thought for tonight?"

"I WAS just thinking that for me to marry is like committing bigamy. I've been wedded to my job for so long... well, I started engineering at the age of six. Built a dam in the kitchen sink... It was a success, too, Norman, flooded the whole kitchen."

"We might find a Reno which divorces girls from careers, or I'll tell you, I fell in love with the perfect stenographer. Suppose I marry her."

Judith laughed. "I wish we knew each other better. I know you have the latest set of Scotch-American features in the world. I like your hair even if it is stubborn and your warm brown eyes and your hair, she realized that her generous salary, coming in as a professional fee, might be acceptable where a stenographer's salary would be taboo.

The trawler wished through the water with a gentle undulating motion, a slow breeze hummed through the fore rigging.

"A choice?" he questioned. "No, Judy, I want you regardless."

It was a concession. Remembering Clia's picture of their social position in the city, it was a tremendous concession and it was given with such gentle generosity, it swept away Judith's arguments.

She felt she could afford to match his generosity—"if you'll be patient while I learn to adjust myself to home life, I'll try."

"That's sporting, Judy," he responded gravely. "I don't mean to belittle your work as a business woman. I've seen enough on this trip to make me realize your importance."

"But Judy-girl, I watched you among the native children. You noticed they were suffering from malnutrition before you even looked at the Rio Diablo, and you made Big Tom wait to dictate an important letter until you'd roused out the cook and had him unpack the milk to feed the babies. I realized then you were more the woman than the stenographer, and given a home you'd be contented."

Judith thought of a number of replies. She smiled into the masculine shoulder as a vision of Clia Sanford swept before her.

Clia had very definite ideas about woman's place and any platitude suggesting she be confined to the home sent her barbed tongue into action.

Clia contended she knew all about matrimony because she had a thorough education with a Reno divorce decree as a diploma.

Heretofore Judith had approved of Clia's wisdom but of course, she reasoned now, Clia hadn't been married to Norman, so—"I'll speak to Big Tom in the morning," she said.

She did speak to Bevin's the following morning as they had breakfast on the after deck under an improvised awning. He didn't seem surprised, and when she commented on this he laughed.

Willy Nilly Wins

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Grandpa Grouchy Galump had been frightened for a moment, but not for any longer. He looked at Willy Nilly.

"There is nothing you can do to me if I drain the pond," Grandpa said. "If you did anything dreadful you'd only get yourself into trouble—and great trouble, too."

"Oh, you don't know what I have in mind," answered Willy Nilly. And that was true, for Willy Nilly himself didn't have the slightest idea what he could do to get even with Grandpa Grouchy Galump.

As he was talking he was thinking as hard as he could, while the Ducks stood around and cried as though their little Duck hearts would break.

"He can't drain our pond, can he, Willy Nilly?" they cried.

They were begging him to help them in this dreadful trouble that might come to them. He must help them! He couldn't fail them!

"Dragon flies do eat mosquitoes," Willy Nilly said.

"Is that what you'd do?" Grandpa Grouchy Galump laughed. "That wouldn't be punishing me. And I'm going to drain the pond. Bringing dragon flies won't help enough. I can see now you had nothing in your mind. How absurd! There isn't a thing you can do to me.

"I'll drain the pond some night, and you won't be able to stop me. So there!"

But at last Willy Nilly had thought of something.

"Cheer up, Ducks," he told Mr. and Mrs. Quack, and the others. "I have thought of something now!"

Oh, Willy Nilly wouldn't fail them; They dried their eyes with leaves.

Willy Nilly Wins

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Listen to me, Grandpa Galump!" Willy Nilly commanded. "If you drain our pond I will go around to every swamp in the neighborhood and the swamps far away, and I'll gather all the mosquito eggs and the little mosquitoes that I can.

Then I'll bring them all to your house. I'll do that every night all spring and all summer. I won't bother about attending to anything else. My friends will do everything that has to be done around Puddle Muddle—and if any chores are neglected, I can't help it. I won't have you draining the Ducks' pond."

At the thought of all the mosquitoes being brought to him every evening Grandpa Grouchy Galump was miserable.

"Won't you have fun as they buzz around you?" Willy Nilly continued. "I don't suppose you care for their singing, do you? People who don't like mosquitoes do not care for their voices any more than for their bites."

"I'll carry them in netting so they won't bother me, but I'll let them free as I reach your place."

Grandpa Grouchy Galump turned away.

"All right," he said slowly, "I won't drain the pond. It would be a lot of trouble anyway, and if you bring around some dragon flies I hope we won't have any mosquitoes."

He was gone. The Ducks danced around Willy Nilly, dancing awkwardly, but happily.

"Oh, Willy Nilly, you're a wonder!" they cried. And each went at once into the pond—their own pond, their lovely, cool, beloved pond!

POLITICS at random

By BYRON PRICE

Some simple precepts for administration strategy in the coming campaign are to be found between the lines of President Roosevelt's address to the NRA meeting in Washington.

During one short passage of the address, Mr. Roosevelt definitely assumed the defensive—and attitude almost wholly lacking hitherto in his public utterances. He assured his critics his regime was not un-American; and declared he resented criticism only from those who had nothing better to suggest.

This language struck directly at two of the fundamentals on which current opposition is based, and on which rest many of the hopes of his political opponents. They have accused him of seeking to set up an unconstitutional dictatorship, and of being resentful of all criticism.

With republican protest and democratic revolt stiffening in congress it was not surprising that Mr. Roosevelt chose that particular moment to make his first campaign-year reply to his critics; to recognize, for the first time, although not by name, the attacks which have emanated from the republican national committee.

Regarding "Isms"

No one doubts his words will be studied by every administration spellbinder, and be highly potential in shaping the trend of political discussion in 1934.

Those who complain of a tendency to fascism or communism, or some other "ism," are to be told that they merely do not recognize good old American democracy when they see it, having seen so little of it in recent years.

Those who complain that the farm relief policy, or the home loan policy, or the new deal, itself, has failed, will be answered with a question, already put by the President into these words: "Well, old man, what do you suggest?"

That form of campaigning would seem to simplify matters considerably, and take out of politics discussion a good deal of the color and detail which often entertain and sometimes instruct the voters in campaign years.

The question at issue is whether it will satisfy a constituency which has shown signs of taking for greater interest than ever before in public affairs.

If G. O. P. Has a Newer Deal

Having been told by Mr. Roosevelt to "get with it" in new and untried things, will the voters say if the republican braintrust really think they have a plan that looks good on paper, and offers an absolutely the latest and most improved model among new deals?

Of course, speculation leads into a host of other fields, but the one solid fact of moment is that the President recognizes the opposition as of sufficient importance to merit a reply.

A steady political weather just ahead is worth remembering. The republican conditions are moving around very quickly and have one or two or three better for Mr. Roosevelt; but the indications of similar controversy certainly are more numerous in Washington today than they have been for many weeks.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLIMMER

Washington—The secrecy with which the administration has surrounded its famous two billion dollar stabilization fund set up under the President's most recent monetary move never ceases to be a marvel to energetic and inquisitive Washington observers.

They have been able to find out exactly nothing about it.

There have been few things under the New Deal which provoked so much discussion or were so widely publicized as the fact of creation as this fund. It figured in the headlines for weeks.

Then almost overnight it dropped out of the picture. Newspapers turned to other things. It ceased to be a topic of conversation. No questions were asked about it at press conferences.

When will it be put to use? Has it been already? What is to be done with those billions of dollars?

Only the President and his secretary of the treasury can answer those questions, and they won't. About the only thing known about the fund is that the administration still regards it as a powerful weapon—its ace in the hole.

Getting Into Print

One of the most successful members of congress from the standpoint of personal publicity is Indiana's woman member of the house, Mrs. Virginia Ellis Jencks.

Mrs. Jencks defeated Fred Purnell one of the republican Old Guard veterans and house leaders, in 1932.

The frequency with which her name appears indicates that the Jencks method of dealing with the newspapers is not that of an amateur. Her statements are delivered to the press in a highly professional manner. They are marked "Immedi-

HIGHWAY POLICE HALT CARS HUNTING DESPERADO

Despite the fact that hundreds of authorities were on his trail in a half dozen states, Desperado John Dillinger evaded capture after his sensational break from jail at Crown Point, Ind. Shown above are highway policemen stopping a car on an Indiana road as they sought the outlaw. Below are two men who were forced to accompany Dillinger as he escaped, and the prisoner who made the break with him. Left to right: Ernest Blunk, Lake county, Ind., deputy sheriff who was released near Peabone, Ill.; Herbert Youngblood, negro prisoner who also escaped; and Edwin Saager, garage mechanic whom Dillinger compelled to drive his car until he released him in Peabone, Ill. (Associated Press Photo)

Over a recent week-end telegrams were dispatched to publishers of all newspapers having Washington correspondents "earnestly suggesting" that they wire their representatives here for complete details of the McCarran-Jencks bill.

Washington correspondents were supplied by messenger with these details. In the five-page analysis the McCarran-Jencks bill is all but ignored. For 26 consecutive paragraphs it is "The Jencks bill" that maintains provides, authorizes and defines.

"I get better quality leaf with Royster Field Tested Fertilizer"

AND so will you. It stands to reason that if you're growing tobacco you ought to use the fertilizer that has stood the test of time in the tobacco field for nearly 50 years. That means Royster's. It's field-tested to make sure it will give you good color, good texture and good body. And that's the kind of leaf that brings real money on the warehouse floor.

Don't take any chance when you buy your fertilizer. Remember this: Royster's is made in one quality only—the best. You can pay more or you can pay less.

but you cannot buy better fertilizer for growing tobacco.

Royster experts are continually studying tobacco, learning all there is to know about fertilizing it. They never stop experimenting and improving. They test every fertilizer in the laboratory, then field-test it in the tobacco field. Only refined materials are used to make sure that the purest obtainable go into Royster sacks. As a result, we know that Royster Tobacco Fertilizer will give you the results you want.

New York Cotton

New York, March 9—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady unchanged to one higher with foreign selling offset by a fair commission house demand.

Prices sagged slightly after the opening. May sold off from 12.26 to 12.18 and October 12.50 to 12.45 making losses of about 3 to 7 points on active positions but little buying came in on the decline and the market was steady at the end of the first half hour within two or three points of yesterday's close on most months.

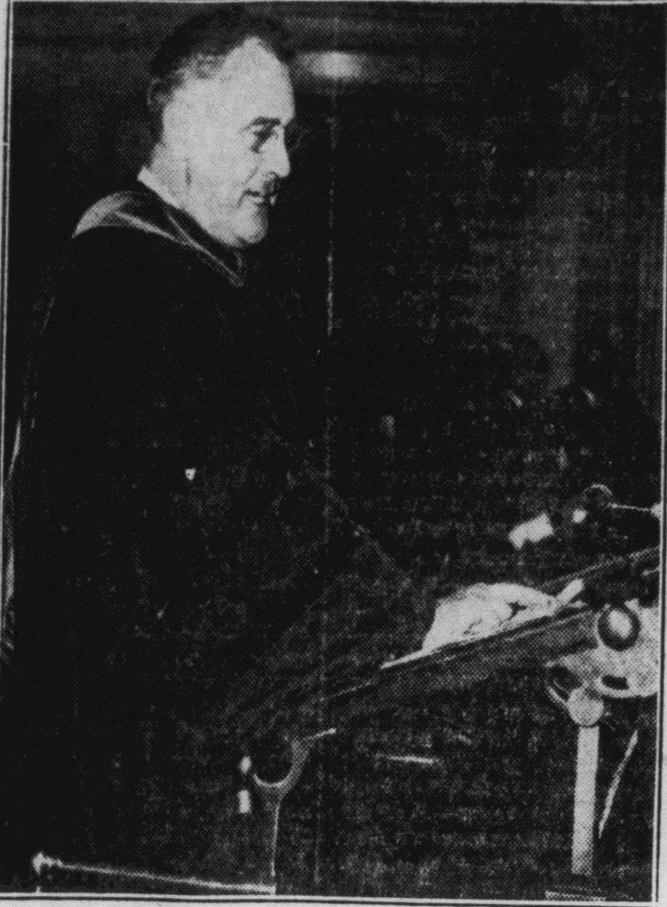

Trading continued quiet with fluctuations irregular later in the morning.

There appeared to be a little cotton for sale on the bulge but after easing off a point the market steadied on covering or scattered buying. At midday May was ruling around 12.22 and October 12.45, or about three to four points net lower.
