REVEAL PLOT TO ASSASSINATE RUMANIAN PREMIER

Veterans Bill In Hands Of Senate

HOUSE PULLS SURPRISE VOTE ON THE ISSUE

House Reduces Sum Involved and Then Tosses it to the Senate For Consideration; President Roosevelt Threatens To Veto Either of The Measures

Washington, March 23.—(AP)—In a congressional game of catch, it was the senate's turn to receive the Veterans benefit bill today. The house after two surprise votes, tossed the independent office supply bill toward the upper chamber again yesterday. The representatives in the two ballots struck by their decision for veterans benefits costing $38,000,000 and an amendment to restore the federal cuts estimated at $126,000,000. The senate had voted for $118,000,000 and $190,000,000 respectively. On the side lines, was President Roosevelt with a veto ready to knock the ball clear out of the lot if he doesn't like it when it gets to him. He has said definitely he would veto the senate provision. There have been indications he might veto even the smaller house amendment. Both are considerably above the budget estimate.

Bryant Freed In Assault Case

Wilmington, March 23.—J. N. Bryant, prominent Wilmington lumberman and owner of the Wilmington baseball club, charged with an assault, was acquitted by a jury in New Hanover county Superior Court yesterday afternoon. The jury was out for more than four hours. The charge against Bryant resulted after injuries had been inflicted upon G. Lacy Coleman, Fayetteville, a foreman of the State Highway sign department. The assault is alleged to have taken place in a room of the Cape Fear hotel here on the night of May 6, 1933. It was said to have been the result of an altercation over a girl, following a drinking party. Bryant testified he merely held Coleman to prevent him from reaching the girl, a 19-year-old college girl, named on the warrant as Miss Ruby Rogers. She never appeared in the trial. Coleman accused Bryant of breaking into his room and assaulting him.

Late News Flashes From Over World

Promise Strike Settlement. Washington, March 23.—(AP)—Definite proposals from the administration for settlement of the automobile strike situation were promised labor union leaders at a conference with Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator. At this meeting the labor leader expected to hear some definite words from the administration but had no assurances as to what was planned. During the morning Johnson conferred with automobile manufacturers but both sides kept silent as to the results. There was a growing feeling that today had definitely become the deadline for negotiation. (Continued on page six)

WINTER AGAIN STRIKES PITT

Greenville people who remained up to midnight last night witnessed a real battle for "survival of the fittest." It was a battle between King Winter and the youthful Spring Time and lasted for more than an hour before Winter, using his last means of assault, sent the infant Spring bellowing into oblivion. Hardly had he relinquished his grip on the section—permitting a half day of real spring-like weather, before winter sent his withering blasts howling over this territory again. Spring Time, who officially made his debut the day before, was incensed by interference of the hoary old man, and last night lighted up the countryside with flashes of lightning for improved visibility. Spring Time hurled thunderbolt after thunderbolt into the enemy's camp. Winter was undaunted by the withering elemental fireballs and renewed his howling with such fury that the infant took to his heels and disappeared—although only temporarily. With cloudy skies and lowering temperatures holding forth prospects of most anything in the way of weather, Greenville people shivered today and glanced apprehensively at the sky and dwindling coal bins. The snow of the first of the week caught almost everybody unprepared except coal dealers and they gave winter the glad hand. The temperature at 10 o'clock yesterday was at 43, early this morning had fallen to 35. It was a tremendous downward glide for such a short space of time, but the mercury has made swift changes so many times this winter that numbers of themoeters have burst under the test. Even the government indicator at the home of B. T. Clark has been strained and if Spring doesn't conquer Old Man Winter soon, experts will have to do something about it.

LOAN BLANKS ARRIVE HERE

Emergency seed loan blanks were received here today and filing of loan applications will begin next Monday morning, it was announced today by T. O. Edens, in charge of the seed loan office here. Offices will be located in the grand jury room at the courthouse, Mr. Edens said, and several assistants will aid farmers in preparing their blanks. Farmers desiring to obtain loans from this source are requested to visit the Crop Production Association at the Pitt County Farm Department where their application must be given the okay. Farmers who apply for these loans must convince the government that they are co-operating in the reduction programs and when they have done that they will be given approval by the association. The government is making $40,000,000 available to growers of the nation this year as compared to $57,000,000 for the previous year. Not all money appropriated by the government during last year was used and it was not believed the total amount would be used this year.

KILLER PUT TO DEATH IN STATE PRISON

Walter Thaxton Pays The Supreme Penalty For Slaying of Person County Man

Raleigh, March 23.—(AP)—Walter Thaxton, convicted of the murder of a prison camp steward in Person county, was electrocuted at State Prison today. Thaxton confessed shortly before he died that he shot and killed the steward, Butler Gentry on last November 24, but asserted his brother-in-law Tom Williams was the cause of it. Williams was scheduled to die with Thaxton for the murder but was given a respite. On death row after the execution Williams reiterated that he was innocent. The murder took place in a robbery attempt. Thaxton declared he charged Williams with planning the robbery. Williams was to grab Gentry, he said, while he was to get the money the steward was reputed to carry at all times. When the robbery was attempted, Thaxton said Williams became scared and there was nothing for him to do but shoot Gentry.

Asks $20,000 For Pipe Burns

Durham, March 23.—Paul Naegel, 4-year-old boy, through his next friend, filed a $20,000 damage suit in superior court here yesterday for burns suffered in a fall against an exposed steam pipe in a dentist's office. The suit was brought against the Depositors' National Bank, of Durham, in whose building the office was located. According to the complaint, the boy was injured while waiting for his mother, Mrs. Irene Naegel, in the dentist's office, on last November 20. He is alleged to have tumbled from the chair in which he was sitting, his throat and neck falling across the hot pipe. The complaint alleges, as a result of the accident, that the child is "mained for life," his neck permanently disfigured by reason of severe burns, and his head drawn to one side; alleging further that the defendants were negligent in installing and maintaining an exposed steam pipe.

Columbus Man Held For Death Brother-In-Law

Lumberton, March 23.—Reverend Barnhill, 26, of Evergreen, Columbus county, died in a Lumberton sanatorium early today of title wounds inflicted last night at his home by his brother-in-law, "Son" Williamson, who escaped and has not been apprehended by officers. The shooting followed words between the men. Relatives said Barnhill started off with the announced intention of going to the home of a neighbor, taking his shotgun with him. Williamson followed with a rifle and asked where he was going. Barnhill is said to have stopped to reply and turned as if to walk back to Williamson. At that moment Williamson fired, the bullet going through Barnhill's arm passing near his heart and lodging in his back. Barnhill died seven hours later.

INSURANCE SUIT HOLDS STAGE HERE

Civil Superior court today was in the midst of a case involving payment of an insurance policy and indications were that work would not be completed before the late afternoon. The case is that of Grover C. Hardee of Greenville against Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Association and involves Hardee's former home and outbuildings which were destroyed by fire in 1931. The suit involves several thousand dollars. After the fire, Hardee demanded that the insurance company make settlement for his loss. They refused to do so, declaring Hardee was not a member of the association because he had allowed his policy to lapse. Hardee contended firmly that he had not let his policy expire and early last year filed notice of suit for recovery. The case was begun yesterday morning and probably will reach the jury late this afternoon. Following completion of the case court, expected to be adjourned until Monday morning when the second week session will begin with Judge J. Paul "Fuzzelle" of Snow Hill presiding. Judge Daniels is scheduled to go to Sampson county to conduct Superior court here next week. In spite of the fact that several involved cases stalled work on the calendar from day to day, it is believed that a major part of the 30 cases scheduled for hearing this week will be settled. In fact, it was indicated that quite a number had gone the compromise route. Clearing the docket of the complete cases this week should pave the way to the disposition of more cases during the approaching term.

A heavy sea was rolling and coast guardsmen reported the ship was close on the beach full of water and listing badly. If the sea kept up there will be no chance to save the boat, coast guardsmen reported to headquarters. The Currituck Beach craft left for the scene of the wreck immediately after it was discovered and the Caffey inlet and Watchwood crews responded. The first man was taken off on a buoy at 4 o'clock and at 4:45 the coast guard had taken off the last one. The captain is Leo Saziorio, master and owner. DOUBLE WEEK OF CRIMINAL COURT APR. 16

A two week-term of criminal Superior court will convene in Greenville Monday, April 16, with what court officers described today as a comparatively heavy docket. Judge Frank A. Daniels, of Goldsboro, who is presiding over a civil term of court here this week, will hear the docket. Probably the most important case to face the grand jury is that against Matthew Harrington, Greenville young man, charged with the slaying of his stepfather, John Gurganus, on the night of February 17. Harrington, who surrendered to Sheriff Rumley at Washington, several days after the alleged slaying took place, is being held in Pitt county jail at this time without bond. He was given a habeas corpus hearing about two weeks ago before Judge Frank A. Daniels at Snow Hill and was ordered held for criminal court action, although the presiding judge said he did not think evidence presented by the state at the hearing was sufficient to convict. He said he ordered Harrington held because the young man refused to tell what he did with an automobile which he was reported to have left here in the night of the crime and his whereabouts at the time. Several other cases, including a murder case which originated in Bethel, in addition to an arson charge involving the death of three negro children in the Stokes community are scheduled for consideration.

A WELCOME TO SPRING

Welcome, welcome, March Spring! For this we were waiting long. Give ear, and we'll be the first to sing a joyous welcome song.

The children first in bright array, Will sing their songs of glad, To their great Spring, who came today.

They sing their melody.

The youthful lovers, fondest eyes, Are glad to see you too. For do you not, in rapture, ring The wedding-bells anew.

And then the older folk, dear Spring, Rejoice that you are here. They join the throng, who 'welcome' sing.

To Spring, the season fair. —Frederic A. Turner.

The Big Dinner

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
"Dear me," exclaimed the Signor, "that was most unfortunate." He, too, was drenched by the water that had gone over Willy Nilly. "But that splash came from one of my finest and strongest and bravest and most beautiful elephants."

"However, we'll go up to one of the tents and dry ourselves before a fire. It will be nice and warm there as now they'll be preparing our dinner."

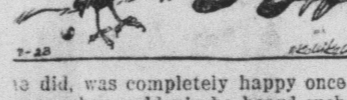

"Come along, every one, come to dinner."

Everything was forgiven as the Puddle Muddlers heard the word "dinner" and a splendid meal it was, too. The wild animals were fed right in their cages to the relief of all, and even some of the others did not come out for the meal.

When it was over the Ducks went back to their pond and found that while the ground all around was soaked there was still plenty of water left for them.

"Now," said the Signor to Willy Nilly, "I must show you all around and explain everything to you. And then we'll have to begin our daily practicing of tricks."

It certainly was a splendid circus and Willy Nilly, loving animals as he did, was completely happy once more when suddenly he heard such a chattering, and such angry voices. "My monkeys must be out," said the Signor. "They quarrel sometimes, but they do not mean anything by it." But Willy Nilly was not so sure. For in the midst of the monkeys' voices he heard that of Christopher Columbus Crow, and Christopher did not sound pleasant.

A DANGEROUS PLAN

The suggestion of Secretary Morgenthau to the Senate Finance Committee for a graduated tobacco tax there- by giving an advantage to the manufacturers of 10 cents cigarettes is a most dangerous one and in the end will work to the disadvantage of this and other sections of the country that produce cigarette types of tobacco. For a long time we have felt that there should be a reduction of the federal tax on cigarettes but certainly such a reduction should be a horizontal reduction rather than one that would reflect a distinct advantage to the manufacturers of low price cigarettes and a disadvantage to the growers of tobacco and to the manufacturers who purchase the more expensive grades for the higher price cigarettes. The Lexington, Ky., Leader in a recent editorial on the dangers of the graduated plan sets forth the disadvantages it would work for the burley tobacco growers of that state, and what is true with the burley growers would be equally true in this and other states growing bright leaf cigarette tobaccos. Realizing that by aiding the farmer it is speeding the nation's recovery we do not believe that the Senate Finance Committee will take this step that would in the end work to the disadvantage for the growers of cigarette tobacco. A horizontal cut in the cigarette tax would mean cheaper cigarettes for the consumer with its resulting increased consumption and better prices for the growers, while the graduated tax plan would mean a price war between manufacturers and lower prices for the tobacco growers.

Setting forth the dangers of the graduated tax plan the Lexington Leader says:

Although a graduated tax on cigarettes might not result in the disaster predicted by its opponents, the Leader believes that this tax plan is dangerous and should not be adopted. It is certain that it could not help conditions in Central Kentucky and it is probable that it would lessen the value of land in this section, reduce the income of farmers and injure business in general.

A movement for such a tax has been underway at Washington for some time, but the possible effects of the plan were not generally known until last week. The graduated tax plan provides for a levy of $2.70 per thousand on cigarettes retailing at 10 cents or less per package of 20 and $3 or more per thousand on cigarettes retailing at more than 10 cents. The present cigarette tax is $3 per thousand regardless of the retail price.

Many tobacco men believe that this difference in taxation would cause manufacturers of 15-cent cigarettes to cut prices to meet competition and that the manufacturers of 10-cent cigarettes would cut to eight cents. While this might be all very well for the consumer in general, it would probably work a hardship on everyone connected with the business interests of Lexington and Central Kentucky. If the manufacturer of low-price cigarettes was given an advantage in the matter of taxation, the trend would be toward low-price cigarettes. With few exceptions, the price paid for raw materials declines as the retail price declines. Thus the price paid by manufacturers for Central Kentucky's burley tobacco could be expected to drop with the retail price of cigarettes.

With practically all burley purchased for low-price cigarettes, there would be no advantage in growing good tobacco. A statement issued by the Lexington Tobacco Warehouse Association and addressed to tobacco growers, says, in part: "Manufacturers of 10-cent cigarettes can not use high priced tobacco in their product and continue to operate successfully. When the retail price of the cigarette is 15 cents, these higher priced tobaccos can be used."

"The sale bill on your crop this year, last year or for any year since 1931 is the best proof possible of the value of a 15-cent cigarette to you over the value of a 10-cent cigarette. Look over these sales bills and see who purchased the tobaccos you sold for more than 15 cents, and then see who purchased the tobaccos you sold for less than 10 cents."

"And there you will find that the tobaccos purchased for use in 15-cent cigarettes were the tobaccos on which you made a profit, while the tobaccos purchased for use in 10-cent cigarettes were the tobaccos on which you took a loss."

"There always will be some common burley tobacco in most every crop, so it is well to protect a market for these cheap tobaccos, but it would seem inconsistent to protect a market on cheap tobaccos by throttling the market on good tobaccos."

PILOT INJURED IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Mount Olive, March 23.—In a spectacular crash United States Army mail plane No. 34 was wrecked about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon near Dudley, seven miles north of Mount Olive. The pilot, Lieut. Joe E. Barton, 23 years old, of Greenville, S. C., was only slightly injured, having sustained a sprained ankle and lacerations about the head, face and arms. All who viewed the extent of the plane wreckage deemed his escape little short of a miracle.

Lieutenant Barton was en route from Jacksonville, Florida, to Newark, N. J., and was due to touch at Fort Bragg, finding himself off his course and the motor not functioning properly, he brought the plane down into an open field in the middle of which was a large cypress tree. The color of the tree blended so completely into the surroundings, the pilot said, that he did not see it until he was headed straight into it. Then he made an effort to clear the tree and perhaps could have done so had the motor responded properly. Failing, he crashed headlong into the trunk just where the large limbs branch off.

Fire Destroys Negro Houses

Fire last night destroyed two negro houses on Bonner's Lane causing a loss of approximately $2,000. The houses belonged to Alex Darden and Hardy Washington who lost most of their furniture also.

Firemen were unable to determine the origin of the blaze which had gained considerable headway when they arrived. Excited over the burning structure somebody turned in a double fire alarm and the bull-throated whistle faucet hundreds to turn out of bed and visit the scene of the fire.

High Point After Airport

High Point, March 23.—An airport to be provided by a grant of $100,000 from Federal funds is being projected here by a group of aviation enthusiasts who have obtained an option on the Joe Willard property, east of the city, for that purpose. In presenting the matter to the city council with a petition for use of city equipment in the necessary grading, Alston Clark, spokesman for the group, said that the property is located alongside the main line of the Southern Railway and that a plane-train transfer base for North and South travel might logically be provided by the field.

Costner Held For Asheville Authorities

Chicago, March 23.—(AP)—Isaac Costner, Tennessee marksman, was held in $20,000 bail today for removal to Asheville, N. C., to face trial in the $110,000 Charlotte, N. C., mail robbery.

Costner was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker as a fugitive from justice. He waived examination and smiled genially. It is expected that Costner will aid the government in convicting others indicted in the Charlotte robbery.

Costner turned state's witness against four Touhy gangsters in their trial for the kidnaping of John Factor.

CAMPUS SHEEP, STUDENT TAILORS, GIVE DEAN SUIT

Atlanta, Ga.—(AP)—The "homespun" suits worn by Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Texas Technological College, are produced to the last stitch on his own campus. The secret came out here at a conference he attended of southern relief authorities. His revelation prompted by fellow conferees admiringly asking, "where'd you get 'em?" The wool came from the college's herd of sheep and was woven into cloth by self-help students. This year, Dr. Knapp disclosed, there are 18 students paying their college expenses by weaving, and the faculty is bent on increasing the number by further development of the industry.

Judith Lane

By JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: Judith Lane knows that her husband's law partner, Morton Lampere, plans to wreck her old employer's plans for the Rio Diablo dam, which were put into Judith's hands for execution upon the death of Big Tom Bevins, whose pet project it was. Judith has been left the Bevins fortune in trust, to be spent on the dam. But Norman, her husband, is torn by the belief that Judith should step out of the picture; they have quarreled and now, reconciled, have settled back to life.

Chapter 17
NEW RIFT.

THE meal over, dishes back in the kitchen, Norman found an old scarlet dressing gown, dug in its pockets for pipe and pouch, then filling and lighting the pipe sank into the divan.

Judith, at a gestured invitation, curled into the circle of his free arm, wide eyes on the flames shooting up through the oak logs. Outside, twilight was moving in, a cold spring wind in its wake. The leafless arms of the nearest tree rubbed fretfully against the house, the fire crackled—"Happy?" inquired Norman, contentedly.

"Perfectly."

"With this could go on forever," he mused, "no more outside influence. Sounds archaic, maybe, but I believe there's a primitive need in every man for a home of his own; y'know, the kind of a need that forces him to go out and make good in business like—"

"Like the caveman in the forest made good with his billy club?" inquired Judith.

"Judy, you're laughing at me."

"No I'm not. I'm just thinking how nice it is to be your particular woman, to say nothing of living in such a cave."

"I like this cave too," he said, boyishly possessive.

She knew he had had but little home life; as Clis had said, "Plenty of house and nobody in it."

He settled back again, and then into their peaceful moment came the whirr of the telephone. Judith, not wanting to listen, couldn't help hearing a few words and was ready for something unpleasant by the time he returned.

"Jude—" under the brave scarlet coat, his shoulders were sagging. "I forgot to tell you, Lampere has called a meeting of stockholders and the board of directors for the company tomorrow at three. He wants you there."

"She wanted. She remembered dimly that Poppy Neville was giving a five o'clock luncheon and she had promised to help. Would she have time to change? She shouldn't go to such a meeting in a ruffled silk suit and Dolly Varden hat."

"Judith," Norman interrupted her thought. "I'd promised myself I wouldn't discuss this Bevins matter with you, but you're my wife and I can't let you go to that meeting unprepared. I want you to know what other people know."

"Judy-girl, I wonder if you realized that Big Tom had been losing his mind during the last few months of his life; in fact that he had a serious brain affliction at the time he drew up that new will?"

JUDITH jumped from the encircling haven of her husband's arm.

"Norman," she cried.

"There, Judy, don't take it like that. It was bound to be a shock to you, I know, but I thought it was better for me to tell you than someone else."

"Norman," she repeated, this time brokenly.

"Yes dear, it probably came from sort of a belated sun-stroke. You remember how we suffered on that trip? Why, healthy as I am, there were times when I nearly went under. It seems Big Tom stood up while he was actually on the job, but the moment he got back home where he could relax, the whole thing came down on him like a ton of brick."

"What do you mean?"

"If you'll remember, Judy, he had a slight stroke the day after his return. From then on he began to grow queer. Everybody in the legal department noticed... what's the matter?"

Judith stood before him, eyes narrowed, body rigid with emotion.

"So that's what they're saying!" she began in the low voice Norman had come to recognize as one of anger. "the... the gods, Listen, Norman Dale, you go to Lampere and tell him he's the lowest kind of a liar there is; the kind who will try to destroy the reputation of a man who can't defend himself!"

"Judith, will you listen to reason?"

TO ATTEND U. N. C. ALUMNI MEETING IN NEW YORK CITY

Chapel Hill, March 23.—Several North Carolinians will be guest speakers at a meeting of the New York Alumni club of the University of North Carolina at the Town Hall, 223 West 43rd street, New York City, Friday evening, March 23, at 6:30 o'clock.

Speakers from this State will include J. R. Achibald Henderson, head of the University Mathematics Department; Carl Snively, head football coach; Robert W. Madry, Director of the University News Bureau; J. Maryon Saunders, executive secretary of the University Alumni Association; and Dr. Foy Robertson, representing the University Athletic Council.

Another prominent guest and speaker will be Dr. Harry W. Chase, former President of the University and now Chancellor of New York University.

"To reason, gladly, where is it?" Norman's dark eyes were glowing in the firelight, his chin had jutted forward with Scotch stubbornness—"you'll admit he kept you working all night the night after his stroke. Was that an evidence of sanity?"

"After what you've just said, Norman, it was evidence of more than sanity... it was sheer genius. Only a man facing death could have had the foresight to do what Big Tom Bevins did that night."

"I suppose that you, a twenty-four-year-old—"

"Ma'teel calls me an 'office girl,' supplied Judith bitterly.

"Leave Ma'teel out of this," snapped Norman.

"Try to leave her out," laughed Judith. "You were saying, that a twenty-four-year-old office girl 'presumes,' is the next word isn't it?"

"Alright... presumes, to know more than brilliant, tried and proven engineers and lawyers."

"That's what you really believe," she said with sudden conviction, then, "Norman, do you see what this is doing to us?"

"It needn't," he replied, arose and walked to the door, "as long as Lige is taking the week off, instead of the day I'll have to go down and look at that furnace."

Judith walked slowly upstairs, undressed mechanically and slid into bed. She felt exhausted. The quick exhilaration of anger had burned out, leaving her numb.

Down to the west the full moon began its ascent blocked by the oak tree before the window. Slowly it eased into view, seemingly climbing from limb to limb.

NORMAN would come up, they would talk it over and regret their furry of temper. He would come up before the moon reached the limb with the queer hump. But it fattened its silver surface against the sliver of topmost boughs and sailed on into the clear blue, with no sound from below.

Judith was asleep when Norman, hair rumpled, eyes blinking even in the soft glow of the bed lamp, did appear. She didn't see him stand and stare down at her, a baffled, troubled look on his face. Even had she seen the look, she couldn't have known how much like a child she appeared to the man.

In deference to her new dignity as a matron she had let her hair grow and it lay spread in becoming disorder on her pillow. Her eyes were tear stained.

Her body, fuller now and healthily pink, due to Delphy's untiring care, lay clad in maize yellow pajamas, one foot and one arm hanging over the edge of the bed. Carefully Norman moved them back, pulled the covers high, then went to the chair before the window.

They spoke quietly at breakfast, the apprehensive Delphy and Lige hovering around like two solicitous black birds.

"Shall I call at Neville's for you?" Norman asked as he was leaving.

"No," Judith answered, "as long as you belong to the firm retained by the Bevins women, it would be less embarrassing for you if I come as Big Tom's stenographer, rather than your wife."

"Just as you say." He kissed her and left, and Judith felt an unreasonable desire to weep because he hadn't insisted upon standing by her through the coming ordeal.

Judith was afterwards to wonder how she managed to live through Poppy's luncheon. Her beruffled frock of dark bluish green, and pert, small hat, won the hearty approval of Poppy's guests.

"Look as though you'd been clipped from the top of a candy box," one guest remarked.

She thought of this later, for she hadn't had time to rush home and change and was forced to attend the board meeting in her party frock, and there was small comfort in the smartness of her ensemble as she saw universal disapproval in the faces of the men gathered there.

Even the courage inspired by Judge Morgan, who accompanied her, was dimmed by the sight of Mathie Bevins in deep mourning at one end of the table, flanked by Morton Lampere on one side and by her husband, Norman Dale.

Preliminaries over a meeting of the stockholders was called and Lampere, their elected chairman arose.

"Mrs. Dale," he began, "prior to your coming, the board of directors held a closed meeting. They came to a conclusion about a very vital matter and wish to lay it before you for a decision, are you ready to hear it?"

FERTILIZER PLANT DAMAGED BY BLAZE

Washington, N. C., March 23.—Fire occurring early Wednesday night at the Washington Fertilizer Company's mixing plant located on Water street, caused approximately $1,200 damage to the brick building which houses the fertilizer ingredients, also destroyed 100 tons of fertilizer. A certain amount of the fertilizer was lost when the floor space in the portion of the building where it was stored, burned, causing the storage contents to be dumped into Pamlico river.

The fire originated in that part of the warehouse built over the and was said to have been caused by spontaneous combustion taking place in the acid fish bone material.

BALL FEVER HOLDS SWAY AT COLLEGE

By R. O. MOYE

Baseball practice at East Carolina Teachers College got under way last Wednesday when sixteen players reported to Coach Beatty for the first drill.

Among the old men reporting for practice were "Runt" Bostic, short stop, Jack Barrett, outfielder and John Hodges, third base.

Among the new men reporting were Preston Dunn, who pitched for the Ayden high school last season. Other candidates for the pitching position are Percy Smith, James Burton James and Troy Burnette.

For the catching position Seago and Johnson are working hard for first string catcher.

Other new men out for various positions on the team are Puckett, second base; Ridenhour, first base; Kapelie, Eason and Leggett, for the three outfield positions, and Jennings at third base. These men are showing plenty of ability and form and promise to lend much strength to their various positions.

The team this year is under the management of W. O. Jolly. He says that other men in the school will report for practice later on.

The schedule as announced by James Carr, student manager, shows that there will be a total of thirteen games. The first games of the season will be played at the local diamond on March 27th and 28th with Oulford College. Although it is definitely known that there will be thirteen games on the schedule, other games may be scheduled later on. The schedule is as follows:

- Guilford, March 27-28 (here)
- Presbyterian J. C. April 13 (there)
- Presbyterian J. C. April 14 (there)
- Presbyterian J. C. April 19 (here)
- Presbyterian J. C. April 20 (here)
- High Point, April 28 (here)
- Oak Ridge, May 3 (here)
- Oak Ridge, May 3 (here)
- High Point, May 18 (there)
- Oak Ridge, May 18 (there)

Dates are not settled for two games with Atlantic Christian College.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

He's a big curly-haired youth, with the shoulders and legs of a pile-driving fullback—which he was—and a combination of hitting ability and color that stamps him as one of the coming big sluggers of major league baseball.

His name is Henry (Hank) Leiber. He's only 22 now but he has come along so fast in only two seasons of professional baseball that he probably will land a job this year as understudy to Joe Moore, the agile left-fielder and leadoff man of the world champion New York Giants.

All of which makes this blond youth from Phoenix, Ariz., a personality worth keeping an eye on during the next few years.

"If he doesn't make a great ballplayer for us before he gets through, I am one of the worst guessers in baseball," says Manager Bill Terry. "There's still some rough edges to work off him but he has real stuff in him, he's smart and he's ambitious."

Discovered By Art Nehf

Leiber was discovered for the Giants by their famous southpaw of John McGraw's last championship club, Arthur Nehf. Hank was better known for his line-bucking ability at the University of Arizona than his powers on the baseball field or basketball court but Nehf was quick to detect the youth's real ability and recommend him to McGraw.

The spring of 1932 saw the big Arizonan in camp with the Giants at Los Angeles. He played that year with the Winston-Salem club of the Piedmont league, clubbing the ball for a substantial average and showing a lot of ground covering ability for a 206-pounder whose two ankles were broken as a youngster.

The following winter he joined the Giants forces again and was one of the sensations of the exhibition trip back from California to New York. He made life miserable for most of the Detroit Tiger Pitchers. Bucky Harris, the Detroit manager, told me that spring that he picked Leiber to be one of the greatest sluggers in the game, in due time and after further schooling.

SEED ALWAYS FRESH

To get the necessary experience Leiber was sent to Memphis in the Southern association, where he hit .356. He finished the season with Jersey City in the International league. He was nearly traded once to Brooklyn, at a time when the Giants were desperately in need of some seasoned talent like Lefty O'Doul and Watson Clark, but Terry finally decided to keep his strings on the youngster.

Big Leaguer Or Coach
As to his hitting, Hank says he just takes a "heartly cut" at the ball. He's inclined to lung a bit through eagerness to connect, and he has not yet entirely solved the mysteries of the slow curve, but Terry has helped improve his style and judgment at the plate.

As for the future, if Leiber doesn't make the big league grade he is determined to be college coach. He has three months of college work to finish before he gets a degree in physical education at Arizona and he is going to do it next fall and winter.

New York Cotton

New York, March 23—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, five to six higher in response to Liverpool cables and under trade buying.

The market reacted partially. At the same time demand tapered off and cotton which was under pressure eased from 11.16 to 11.11, or within a point of the previous close.

May was steady selling off from 11.94 to 11.92, and the general market at the end of the first half an hour was about two to three higher.

Prices fluctuated irregularly within a narrow range later in the morning. At around midday May was at 11.91 and October at 12.13, with the general list about two to three higher.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, March 23—(AP)—Doubtful and dull financial markets today awaited further inspiration from Washington.

Stocks were mildly mixed during the early hours and the ticker tape dragged along at a snail's pace. Fractional changes were the rule.

With the motor labor situation status quo, notwithstanding reports of progress in the presidential negotiations for settlement, traders showed little inclination to step out of the line.

Business and industrial news continued bright in the face of potential strikes. The railway wage situation seemed hopeful. The activity in the alcohol groups was attributed partially to reports that some of the companies are enjoying highly satisfactory earnings, and are preparing to meet demands for lower liquor prices without cutting into the profits appreciably.

There was much timidity in the commodity transactions. Grains were easier as were rubber securities.

Cotton was up a trifle and silver did little better. Bonds were spotted. Foreign exchanges were featureless.

Rails were generally easier. U. S. Steel Scheely Distillers, Curtis-Wright and McIntire were steady to firm but Santa Fe and New York Central lost sizeable fractions.

Transfers were only about 700,000 shares.

Late News Flashes

The manufacturers were eager to return to Detroit and the union leaders were having difficulty convincing groups of their followers at home that action had to be delayed further. Labor men spent much of the morning sending reassuring messages to Detroit and other parts of the county.

DePriest Gains Signatures.
Washington, March 23—(AP)—Representative Oscar DePriest, Chicago negro, today obtained the 146 signatures necessary to force a House consideration of his resolution to investigate the ban on negroes eating in the House restaurant.

Almost simultaneously Representative Lindsay Warren of North Carolina, chairman of the accounts committee which controls the restaurant, told the House he would have despised himself if he "had avoided the responsibility put on me by the House and the committee."

Warren is said to have ordered the restaurant manager not to serve negroes unless they are with DePriest.

The resolution called for a probe of the authority under which Warren issued the order.

Approve Stock Control Bill.
Washington, March 23—(AP)—The Federal Reserve Board today approved the revised Fletcher-Rayburn stock market control bill without reservation.

Governor Eugene Black told the Senate banking committee the board felt the redrafted bill was workable—right in principle, and will accomplish the purpose of regulating the exchanges.

His statement at the opening of the Senate hearings on the new bill gave a tremendous impetus to the drive for its enactment.

Meanwhile a statement that mysterious backstage influences were behind the revised measure for fed-

New Air Mail Bill

Washington, March 23—(AP)—A revised air mail bill, introduced in the senate today by administration leaders would bar bidding on new contracts every company that had representatives at the now famous 1930 Washington conference of air mail operators, or at any other meetings held—it said—for the purpose of rearranging the air mail map of the United States.

The bill was introduced by Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, and Representative Black, democrat, Alabama, chairman of the special air mail probe committee.

The interstate commerce commission would be authorized to establish routes after a four year period instead of three years, as in the first bill, which was severely attacked by Col. Lindbergh and others.
