It was our error. That baseball meeting at the City Hall is 7:30 tonight. If we caused you to go last night, we are sorry. At any rate, if you are interested in baseball here this summer, be at the meeting tonight.

WORTHY OF YOUR SUPPORT

A careful study of the facts contained in the story relating to freight rates in Eastern North Carolina, printed on another page of this issue, should convince every resident of this state of the necessity of an organization to fight for the interests of our people. That is just what the Eastern Carolina Association is trying to do and certainly it deserves the moral and financial support of our people. Not only is the association at present waging a fight before the Interstate Commerce Commission for equitable adjustment of rates compared with Virginia points, but it is likewise sponsoring a movement to get the government to deepen Tar River between here and Washington to make commercial water transportation to this city possible. It is needless to go into details of the fact that water transportation to this city would prove a great benefit to all consumers as well as receivers and shippers of freight in this territory. Experience of those places that already have water transportation is that they enjoy a much lower freight rate than inland points and the same would be true with Greenville.

The Eastern Carolina Association is at present engaged in getting together tonnage facts to present to government engineers at an early date and the success or failure of the waterway project will rest to a large extent of just how good a job the association can make in getting together this data.
 Of course, it costs money to carry on the work of any organization and this is where our people come in. If you are interested in great future benefits for our city and section as a result of the work of this organization, now is the time to give the association your support by subscribing to a membership.
 The fee is small and nil when compared to the great benefits to be derived from the work of the organization.

Members of the Farmington, Utah, bridge club declare they are unable to remember a single tie between players during its 12-year existence. Meetings are held twice a week.

Judith Lane
 by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: Facing a court fight by Mrs. Bevin and her daughter Mathile for possession of the Bevin money left her by Big Tom Bevin to complete his dam in western Texas, Judith Dale severely is ready to begin her work.
 But her husband, Norman, is the low partner of Morton Lampere, suitor for the Bevin family, and attorney for the Bevin family, and Mathile is determined to take Norman from Judith. Judith wins Mathile, and returns to him Seafort, her pilot friend.

Chapter 23
TROUBLE
NOT hungry," said Judith when Slim suggested dinner.
 "I am," he retorted, "I'm like my ship, no fuel—no go."
 "Sorry," she said her hand on his sleeve and found it engulged in one of his big brown fists.
 "Forgive me... but how about running out to one of the oyster farms?
 It won't take us long."
 "Anything?"
 She thought of a few things as Slim drove off in a borrowed car, with her beside him. Slim was being awfully decent. He hadn't asked a single question about her sudden return.

Queer how he had waited, insisted upon waiting, she must question him about that. He'd probably said it was a hunch. According to Slim, men who lived in the air lived also by hunches.
 And then they were passing through a gaudily lighted driveway.
 Slim was half leading, half pushing her along the edge of a dance floor, lined by long tables where couples and families and parties were dining. And then they were in a small room with crude wooden furniture and steaming broth was before her and Slim was urging her to try some so he'd feel at home.
 "Slim," she said at length and showed him the now empty bowl, "are there any platinum blondes in Heaven?"
 Slim spared a succulent oyster and regarded it thoughtfully—"Judith, I don't like to sail under false colors. That's one place I haven't landed. However, I think it's safe to say only black haired girls with sea-grey eyes are allowed," then suddenly, "Judith... are there platinum blondes in Galveston?"
 She nodded miserably and a tear plopped onto a half-shell.
 "Too much hot sauce," scolded Slim, and then he became the Slim she had known heretofore, gay, whimsical, audacious, one mood moving into the next until she was forced to forget her woes.
 "Ah Judith," he sighed hours later, as he left her at Hillendale, "I should have handled my Chinese war lord American fashion; a punch under the chin instead of six months of diplomacy."
 "But why?"
 "I'd have been back here six months sooner."
 Not until he had left did she catch the underlying meaning of that wish.
 The house was dark, and yet the familiar odor of new wood and paint, of pipe tobacco and flowers intermingling, took away any sense of strangeness. It was home. She reached for familiar wall buttons but even as she reached, heard Lige coming.
 "Heard your auto," he explained, blinking his eyes. "Ma'ms comin' long soon's she can histe her clothes."
 Judith waited in her room while Delphy "histed," waited and thought of what Slim had said. "Six months sooner."
 Did he mean he might have won her, had he arrived in time to try?
 Goodness no, not Slim, not the good looking sky-blazer who could have his choice of a million girls all over the world. Yet Norman had liked her...

"I AWZEE, Miss Judy, it's most 't'clock an' he'ah you are Jess gettin' in. My the time I been havin' with that telamfoam. Man on there been a swearin' fit to kill—" "Man... swearing? How?"
 "I dunno how, he just do. He call up 'bout seven clock an' say 'Miz Dale in an' I say 'Nosuh, I ain't exceptin' but' Then bimbeny he call again an' he say 'Miz Dale come in yet an' I say 'No, an' he say 'Miss Cila, she say she comin' in an' I say 'No tellin' what Miss Judy do, come in or stay out.'" "Delphy, quick... who called and why did he swear."
 "That's what I'm splainin' an' then he say when she do come in you tell her to call this pumba. Tell her... and then he begun to swear.
 He say Hell and Dam and Devil an' somethin' in a foreign langwich." Judith leaned back with hysterical laughter, "Delphy you'll be the death of me yet... did he say something about the Diablo, Dam and Rio Diablo and Del Mar?"

"Yassam, that's it, and I say 'What you mean Delbow-dam. And then he tell me to go to the devil, or words to such affect an' I say 'shame to talk thataway, even to a po' ole colored lady.'" Judith explained that diablo was Spanish for devil, something Cun-nard had probably tried to do, for Delphy sat down and laughed until the tears rolled down her cheeks.
 "I shu' do get things messed," she admitted as Judith went to the telephone.
 It was late, but Judith disregarded the hands of the clock, which an-dicated four-thirty.
 "Mrs. Dale?" inquired Cunard, answering immediately. "Justin Cun-nard speaking. Miss Judith, Lam-pere has succeeded in reaching one of our men. Received a wire at the office late this afternoon saying the foreman of construction, Mason I believe is the name, quit without notice."
 "Mason—" cried Judith in astonishment, "he's one of the finest men I've ever met. I can't conceive of anyway in which he could have been reached... wait!" She had been standing, now she sat down, her thoughts clicking with mechanical precision.
 "There's only one way to handle that," she said after a moment.
 "Wire Max Larson to take Mason's place. I'll leave for the dam immediately."
 "Mrs. Dale," said Justin Cunard, his voice sounding vibrant over the telephone wire, "it is asking too much for you to leave your home and husband—"
 "Please," Judith's voice was weary, "it might have been too much this afternoon, or was it yesterday? But now it solves a difficult problem."
 She felt that way as she went to her room and to bed. Regardless of how good Norman's intentions were, or what his alibi might be for squirting Mathile Bevin when the whole world was watching, she felt she deserved more consideration. Going to the dam would give them both time to consider their future actions. She slept.

JUDITH opened her eyes, and found Norman looking down at her.
 "Judith, I want an explanation. I tried to get in touch with you through Cila last night and she said you'd gone on some fool flight with that adventurer brother of hers, then I had the operator try here until after midnight, I got so worried by that time, I chartered a ship and flew up here... and what do I find... you in bed... after getting here at four o'clock in the morning... can you explain that?"
 "Easily," answered Judith with a hysterical desire to laugh.
 "I flew to Galveston, to be with my husband. I found him already occupied with Mathile Bevin, so I flew back. We developed some motor trouble and were held up on the Galveston field until two-thirty.
 Is there anything else you'd like to know?"
 "What do you mean you found me occupied?"
 "At the precise moment of my arrival you were dining with her at the Galvez, had dined, I should say for you were lighting her cigarette."
 "And you didn't trust me enough to come in instead of shying away like—"
 "Trust you... after that? Knowing that the whole southwest is wondering whether or not you'll fight me to win that... that dam money for Mathile, you have no more sense than to be seen dining in public with her... trust you?" Judith was amazed to find her voice rising, shrilling.
 "I suppose it would be useless to tell you that mother invited Mathile to have dinner with us, then mother went on to play in some tournament. I would have left but Teel had to have some fancy dessert, and I couldn't get up and walk away from her."
 "Not her," agreed Judith with more venom than grammar.
 "You're so jealous of her—" "Jealous... of Teel?" Judith laughed, "Oh, no, if you'd wanted her you'd have picked her up long ago to keep her out from under your feet."
 "Your Teel, now, is the kind of a girl who can't get a man for herself, so she tries to get one belonging to somebody else—"
 "Then why—"
 "Why do I dislike her? For making a fool of you. Every time she whistles you dance. You should have married her and taken a permanent cure, then you'd been ready to be a full-time husband to some other woman."

Pope Pius Plans
 His First Vacation
 In Twelve Years
 Castel Gandolfo, Italy, March 30.
 —(AP)—The papal summer villa here is being put in readiness to house a pontiff for the first time in 63 years.
 Pope Pius is expected to make it his hot-weather retreat, re-establishing a custom his predecessors followed until they became "voluntary prisoners" in the Vatican in May, 1871.
 It is understood that the pope will move to the villa with his court in May and stay through June, July and perhaps August. This will be his first vacation since he became head of the church, 12 years ago.
 Although he will come primarily to rest and escape the sultry summer weather of Vatican City, he is expected to hold court here on a few occasions and probably will grant regular audiences. If he arrives in May he will be here for his 77th birthday, which falls on the last of the month.

The villa has been completely rehabilitated in recent years and will provide a comfortable abode for the pope and his retinue. It is at an altitude of 1,400 feet and dominates a beautiful lake region.
 Although his doctors have been urging Pius for several years to leave the low-lying church state during the hot months, he never previously has found time to do so.
 Last year he made two trips to the villa, but they were of only a few hours' duration.
 He is expected to make one final inspection visit prior to establishing himself here. It probably will take place early in April, soon after the close of the Holy Year, throughout which he has been working strenuously.
 A micro-wave radb telephone plant installed at the villa by the inventor, Marconi, two years ago, will keep the pontiff in contact with the Vatican constantly. There is a similar plant at Vatican City, giving two-way transmission.

UNIVERSITY GEOLOGISTS MAKE STUDIES OF CAROLINA COAST
 Chapel Hill, March 30—Members of the faculty and student body of the University Department of Geology spent the spring vacation in geological study and research along the coast of North and South Carolina.
 The most extensive investigation was carried on by Dr. G. H. Mac-Carthy and J. A. Alexander, who spent the entire week making geophysical examinations of the coastal plain in the area north and east of Florence, S. C. The object of the survey was to determine the position and extent of a buried triassic basin.

The Queer Notes
 By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

The music started off with a great deal of spirit and flourish, and the Signor felt that the band, at any rate, did not require much practice before the circus started its travels.
 And then the bugler, who was supposed to play a special solo, and who had been waiting for this moment, started in. But every note he tried to blow was a rattling, harsh one, quite out of tune.
 The Signor was worried. Here was his best band performer and suddenly the man couldn't play his bugle. It was not like a beautiful, clear, thrilling solo at all. It was just a lot of dreadful noise.
 The bugler couldn't understand it either. He tried again and again, but the more he tried the less his solo sounded like anything fit to hear.
 He stopped playing and looked at his bugle and then he turned it upside-down.
 Out from the bugle came any number of little pebbles.
 "That's what was the trouble!" he cried. "I never fall when I play a solo."
 "Of course you never do," agreed the Signor who was greatly relieved that his bugler hadn't forgotten how to play.

 "I wonder who has been fussing with my bugle," the bugler continued. "The nerve of any one to touch it and fill it full of pebbles." Everyone was completely amazed until they heard a laughing voice from a branch of a nearby tree.
 "Caw, caw, caw," laughed Christopher.

MEMORIAL BAPTIST CHURCH CLOSING SPECIAL SERVICES THIS EVENING

The last service of the series in which we have been engaged this week will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Let us make this hour a crowning service of inspiration and spiritual growth. Our topic is "Assured Salvation." Every member is urged to be present. Let us make this "family night" and be present together.

A good audience entered into the service of last evening with interest and participated wholeheartedly in the singing of the fine old Gospel hymns. How clearly they bring us to know God's truth. "The One Condition of Salvation" was the subject of the evening message, and centered about the great principle of "faith" as it is operative in our lives in relation to God's great provision for us in Christ Jesus.

Miss Carolyn Hamric sang for us, preparing the way for an attentive hearing of the Word.

Be present, tonight. We are counting on you.

Cotillion Club Dance April 5th.

The Greenville Cotillion Club will give their Easter dance on Thursday night, April 5th, in the auditorium of the Greenville high school. The music will be furnished by the celebrated recording and radio broadcasting artist, Bert Lown and his orchestra of thirteen pieces.

Bert Lown achieved his first success in the music business as manager of Rudy Vallee, Lown and Vallee later formed a partnership calling it Lown-Vallee orchestra. After about a year of this Lown and Vallee discontinued this relationship when Lown was requested to go into the Biltmore Hotel, New York with his on hand. He continued his engagement there for three and a half years, and during this time wrote some hits, such as "Bye, Bye Blues," "You're the One I Care For," "By My Side," "Tired," and others.

After his long run at the Biltmore Hotel, Lown went west where he played the leading hotels through out the middle west and east coast. Plans are being made by members of the club to make this dance a commendable one and an affair which will be a credit to Greenville society.

Ayden-Greenville Chapter Easter Star Install Officers

On the evening of Tuesday, March 27th, incoming officers of Ayden Chapter No. 52 and Greenville Chapter No. 149 Order of the Eastern Star assumed their new obligations in an impressive ceremony of great beauty and solemnity. The joint installation took place in the Greenville chapter room, which was very tastefully decorated. Flowers were used in abundance, significant in their color arrangement of the Eastern Star ideals. The lovely blossoms were seen only by candle light, whose soft brilliance grew, as each officer took oath, by the added strength of one new flame.

Mrs. Roland M. Herring, District Deputy Grand Matron of the second district, was installing officer. She appointed to act as Grand Marshal, Mrs. Minnie Stocks; Grand Chaplain, Mrs. Patsy Randolph; and Grand Organist, Mrs. Annie J. Stroud of Ayden, who ably assisted her.

Officers installed were: Worthy Matron—Ayden No. 52, Mrs. Florence Jenkins; Greenville No. 149, Mrs. Vivian Hines. Worthy Patron—Ayden, Charles E. Speer; Greenville, Frank Harrington. Associate Matron—Ayden, Mrs. Rena Sawyer; Greenville, Mrs. Louise Wells. Secretary—Ayden, Mrs. Annie J. Stroud; Greenville, Mrs. Carrie Munford. Treasurer—Greenville, Mrs. Georgia Gilbert. Conductress—Ayden, Mrs. Mattie Holton; Greenville, Mrs. Susie Ragsdale. Associate Conductress—Ayden, Mrs. Leah Flaughter; Greenville, Mrs. Ruth Harris. Chaplain—Greenville, Miss Lil Wilson. Marshal—Greenville, Mrs. Mollie Brown. Organist—Greenville, Mrs. Loula Fleming. Adah—Greenville, Mrs. Clara Morton. Ruth—Greenville, Mrs. Patsy Randolph. Esther—Ayden, Mrs. Ethel Ellis.

Beaver Dam Grange To Meet Monday

Beaver Dam Subordinate Grange will hold its regular meeting Monday evening, April 2, in the Arthur school auditorium. Pierce Grange also will meet this week.

The Grange of Arthur will hold its regular meeting in the school building Monday night at 7:30 o'clock.

This time there are several important matters to be discussed and all members are urged to be present. The literary program will feature a short play by local talent. An appropriate program is being arranged.

Pierce Grange will hold its regular meeting on Wednesday night, April 4th, in the local community building.

These are two of the six hundred such meetings that are held every week night throughout the thirty-three states where the Grange is now organized.

The Grange is an organization of the farmers and their families which boasts of a history of over sixty years of continuous service to the nation. At present the National Grange has paid up membership of over 800,000 and the N. C. State Grange is composed of over 12,000. The state secretary reports that over 2,500 members were added during the first quarter by reorganization and re-instatements alone.

The Grange never rests upon its past achievements. Every year's program is constructive and far-reaching. Check up on these objectives—education, cooperation, home and community development, insurance, protection and agricultural equality through the maintenance of a full-time representative in U. S. Congress.

Notwithstanding its tremendous service, the cost of membership is very low. Easily in the reach of farm families everywhere. Nearly a million rural people can't be wrong. They all belong to the Grange.

Immediately following the installation Greenville chapter entertained the Ayden chapter at the home of Mrs. Carrie Munford. Members of the committee, Mrs. Louise Wells, Mrs. Nel Moore and Mrs. Carrie Munford were at the front door to welcome the guests. Little Miss Elizabeth Wells directed them to the coat room, after which they returned and were introduced to the receiving line, composed of the outgoing and incoming Worthy Matrons, Mrs. Leah Flaughter of Ayden and Mrs. Roland Herring of Greenville; Mrs. Florence Jenkins of Ayden, and Mrs. Vivian Hines of Greenville. The home was most attractively decorated with spring flowers and suggestions of Easter. The two chapters enjoyed piano selections and dialogue skillfully rendered by Edward Hearne of New York City, after which a delectable ice course was served by members of the Greenville chapter.

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — It was unfortunate, perhaps, that Bertrand Snell, republican leader of the house, chose the day after President Roosevelt had averted the strike in the automobile industry to make his speech against the administration's tariff bill.

The portly New Yorker took great pains in preparing that address. It was to be his party's main pronouncement on the subject in the house. While passage of the bill in that body virtually was assured before he spoke, it was up to him as the minority party leader to record his opposition with as much emphasis as possible.

Democrats realized this and cooperated in every way they could. By unanimous consent he was permitted to talk as long as he felt it necessary.

As a matter of fact democratic offers of cooperation with the republican floor general were so liberal as to be a bit embarrassing to him.

Parliamentary Sarcasm

When he arose at the start, Blanton of Texas, who rarely misses an opportunity to bait Snell, addressed Speaker Rainey.

"Mr. Speaker," he said, "the distinguished minority leader is about to deliver an important address on the tariff. I think he is entitled to be heard by more than the handful of republicans and democrats now on the floor. I feel constrained to make the point of no quorum."

"Please," begged Snell, "I hope the gentleman from Texas will spare me of such sarcasm."

Blanton sat for the next 30 minutes or more waiting for further opportunity to raze him, but finally gave up and went to lunch.

Snell was permitted to proceed with the reading of his prepared address without further interruptions.

Speech Scanned Closely

In view of Snell's position in his party together with the part he may play in the political picture in 1936, his speech will be scanned closely. Much more than a mere statement of policy on the tariff will be made of it politically.

It is the first extended speech he has made during the present session of congress. Heretofore, he has been content with taking shots at close range on policies of the administration, leaving it to others to make long speeches.

His triff address may be interpreted by many politicians as a sort of keynote of what is to come later.

the government twice the tax of other cigarettes in proportion to their value. M. H. Thatcher, representing the 10 cents manufacturers with plants at Louisville, Ky., Winston-Salem, N. C., and Petersburg, Va., said although this group had been making a fair profit the NRA cost and processing taxes have added a great burden to the 10 cents manufacturers and threatened them with extinction.

Thatcher appeared at the committee public hearing on the proposed reduction in federal tobacco taxes that has been under way since Tuesday by the House Ways and Means sub-committee.

Game Commissioner

Raleigh, March 30—(AP)—John B. Chalk, of Rockingham, was today selected as North Carolina's new game and inland fisheries commissioner.

The exact title he will have has not yet been decided upon but his duties will be that of a game and fish commissioner. There were a number of applicants for the position but Chalk was not one of the applicants.

Checks May First

Washington, March 30—(AP)—War veterans who will benefit from the independent offices bill will receive their government checks May 1 and government employees will get their pay increases by April 14. ### Raps Governor

Winston-Salem, March 30—(AP)—Governor Eringrhus is guilty of gross negligence in his failure to appoint a building code council, as directed by the 1933 legislature, and his failure is costing the small builders thousands of dollars each month. L. A. O'Brien, president of the Institute of North Carolina Architects, said today.

Raleigh, March 30—(AP)—Governor Eringrhus said today he was much more concerned about protecting citizens of North Carolina from additional building costs than about trying the patience of L. A. O'Brien, president of the state Chapter of Architects in reply to a charge that his failure to name a building code council is costing the small builders of the state thousands of dollars each month.

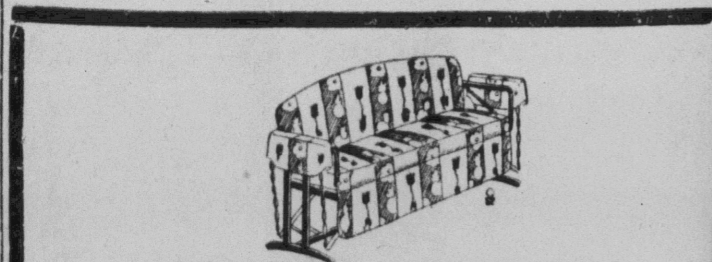

Georgia law provides that the governor be sole dictator of the state's fiscal affairs and no expenditure is possible without his approval.

This means that North Carolina shipped to Bay City and it is only 13 miles farther from Beaufort than it is from Norfolk.

These cases have cost the shippers and Carolina Shippers' Association a great deal of money but it is believed that they will soon be brought to a conclusion and the rates satisfactorily adjusted.
