

TO COMPLETE SUTTON CASE HERE TONIGHT

Hope to bring Lor Drawn Out Suit End With Tonights Session.

When court resumed hearing of the J. W. Sutton case following the noon recess today indications were that all evidence would be completed by three o'clock this afternoon and the case would go to the jury by tonight.

The case is a suit by J. W. Sutton to recover property he alleges to have been disposed of through collusion and fraud while he was a non compos mentis and under guardianship. Since Sutton was first declared incompetent to look after his own affairs the estate has gone through the hands of two guardianships and a receiver. Under the first receivership the estate suffered heavy losses and a receiver was appointed in an effort to conserve assets.

Three Fires Here Sunday and Today

Firemen answered alarms to put out three fires here over the weekend but in each case the damage was slight, the total loss for the three not exceeding $25.

Yesterday afternoon the firemen were called to the residence of P. R. Ricks, colored, on 14th street, where they put out a blaze on the shingle roof. Damage was estimated at around $15.

Early this morning the home of Daniel Langley on 14th street, caught fire from a spark but the blaze was extinguished before any appreciable damage was done.

Judith Lane

by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: Morton Lampere has obtained an injunction against Judith Dale's plan to build Big Tom Bevin's Rio Diablo dam, as he directed in his will. She is ready to fight Lampere and the Bevin heirs, but her husband, Norman, has told her that if she persists in going to the dam, and in spending Big Tom's money for the project instead of turning it over to Mrs. Bevin and her daughter, it may mean a parting of the ways in the Dale family.

Chapter 25 PREPARATION

"We won that point," said Cunard. "No man at the present time has the heart to throw three hundred men out of work if the money used to pay them isn't in chancery."

"I have the money. Big Tom gave it to me months ago for this emergency. But Mr. Cunard, if you will place it in your name, it will save me a lot of embarrassment. It would be difficult to explain why a man gave his stenographer a hundred thousand dollars as a gift, wouldn't it?"

"It would indeed. I'll be glad to handle it for you. Anything else?"

"Yes. Do you happen to know if the Bevin Construction Company Incorporated is hiring any stenographers?"

"We really do need one at the dam. I'd like to keep Miss Kelly Norman while I am away, won't you Delphy?"

"But Miz Dale, there was misery in the old woman's voice, 'who-alls goin' t'be lookin' after you. An' you so plump and pink. Whose a goin' t'give you yo' chocolate?'"

"Goodness knows, Delphy," replied Judith. "Nobody ever tried to take care of me before I fell into your hands. Delphy, you've been wonderful to me and I won't forget it, but you musn't worry about me, will you?"

"None."

"Goodbye, Delphy."

"Yain't goin' yet," was the reply. Judith turned from the telephone and found Judge Morgan had entered the room.

"Now that we're alone, Miss Judy," he said kindly, "I'd like to talk to you about something personal; call it legal prevention if you will. Tell me, have you and Mr. Dale decided to separate? Are you considering a divorce?"

"I DON'T know, Judge Morgan," she answered. "It was impossible to live there under the existing conditions. I would know things Norman's partner would like to know. Norman would know things important to our side. It was an impossible situation."

"He seems confident that Mrs.

Of course you understand that by leaving Mr. Dale you are giving him grounds for divorce.

here to work with me; have you someone in mind?"

"Yes," she answered earnestly, "myself."

"Is this wise?" inquired Cunard. Judith smiled wistfully. "It's necessary. I haven't any income, and it's going to be imperative that I work from now on."

"You haven't any income?" inquired Cunard and looked at Judge Morgan.

"Even after the injunction is raised Mrs. Dale is not using any of the interest or dividends accruing from Bevin's business. She's turning it all back to the trust fund... it's a bit quixotic, but I can understand her reasons for so doing and under the circumstances can't insist she do otherwise."

Cunard studied a moment then nodded his head. "I guess you're right, but it does seem a bit unusual for a girl worth as many millions as you are worth, Mrs. Dale, to be working for a comparatively small salary."

"At least it will seem more natural to me," she said brightening. "And now about the injunction and the will contest."

"Under normal circumstances there would be no question of our winning the will contest, but with Lampere acting the way he is acting, I'm expecting some sort of trickery."

THERE was so much business to handle that Judith found she would not have time to return to Hillendale if she took the early evening train to San Antonio, so she spent a few precious moments telephoning Delphy.

"Pack all of my clothes, Delphy," she ordered. "Put them into my wardrobe trunks and have Lige carry them to the basement store room. Then take that one trunk down there, unpack the things, air them well, repack them and have Lige take the trunk and my hand bags... I didn't unpack them when I came in last night... and carry them to the Union Depot."

"Now, do you understand, Delphy?"

"Yes... yes-sure," came the delicate reply.

The Hurried Escape

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER As Christopher walked into the lions' cage one of the lions showed his teeth, roared, and then started to reach for Christopher.

Christopher was as nervous as a cat on a hot tin roof, but he didn't want to admit it, so he approached the White House in similar fashion.

From 1826 to 1889, the year after Harrison became President, the same proposition for direct election of the President and vice president in various forms was presented some 34 times.

Washington Daybook

Washington. — President Roosevelt's approval of the Lea-Norris proposed constitutional amendment to abolish the electoral college may mean final disposition of a proposition which has been hanging fire in congress for 108 years. The White House is on record as believing the proposal is "sound and good" and that as far as the President is concerned he would be "glad to see it put through at this session."

First Raised in 1826

Senator Norris of Nebraska is a progressive republican who supported President Roosevelt in the 1922 campaign and since has been one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the "new deal."

With party lines so obliterated at the start, it would seem that the present is an excellent time to ord the congressional state of its perennial proposal for a major reform.

The question of abolition of the electoral college first was raised as far back as January 4, 1826. The proposal for direct election of the President and vice-president was offered in the house by McManus of New York. The move was inducted by the result of the presidential election of 1824 when Andrew Jackson, although receiving the largest popular vote, was defeated in the house of representatives.

Century of Opposition

Under the electoral system as now constituted it is possible for a President to be elected although receiving fewer popular votes than his opponent.

Rutherford B. Hayes became President in 1876 under such circumstances. Later in 1888 Benjamin Harrison entered the White House in similar fashion.

From 1826 to 1889, the year after Harrison became President, the same proposition for direct election of the President and vice president in various forms was presented some 34 times.

From 1889 to 1928, the record shows that 53 attempts have been made to change the existing method.

Representative Lea took up the fight in 1928 and has pushed it in every congress since.

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in that certain mortgage deed executed on the 23rd day of December, 1915, by R. G. CAN YOU?
People bloom forth in the spring As fresh as the flowers at dawn. Each with his gifts and talents Breathes the pure air of morn.

As your small bud uncurls, And in life is given the test; We wonder if you will contribute Your own and very best.

Will you be a blood red rose Filled with courage and strength; Ready to do the thing that's right No matter what others may think?

Or will you be a white lily, Filled with thoughts that are sure To spread along the path of life Ideals that are high and pure?

Perhaps you'll be just a violet, That's modest and shy all day; Giving to all a message sweet In your humble little way.

When old winter draws the shade, And life's sun is in the west, It matters not what species you are Can you say you did your best?

Applications For Seed Loans Being Received

With more than 200 seed loan applications already completed growers continued to make applications at the office in the court house here today. Blanks for these loans were received about 10 days ago by T. O. Edens, in charge of the bureau here, and the first applications were completed last Monday.

Mr. Edens stated this morning that in spite of the fact that about 50 applications were being filed daily, there were still some growers in the county that were unaware that the blanks had arrived and applications were now being filed.

These loans to growers to enable them to plant and harvest this year's crops are made possible by a federal appropriation of $40,000,000. Last year approximately 1,400 growers in this county received such loans from the government but indications are that only about half that number will require loans this year.

impossible for them to raise. Mr. R. L. Little of Chicod township has been appointed Director of the Farming Program for relief families. The immediate problem is to find land which the landowners will allow to be used by these families in this farm program.

Mr. Little stated Saturday that, so far, the response of the landowners of Pitt county for requests for the use of land had been very fine. The government believes that, with the cash rental program of land taken out of cotton and tobacco production, there should be enough land available to carry through this relief farming measure to a successful conclusion.

Emphasis is going to be placed on the fact that every family aided by the government must raise some of the food it uses.

Those families living in the country are going to be expected to raise at least fifty bushes of corn for bread and other foodstuffs in proportion. Those families living in town are going to be expected to have a garden and to raise some vegetables for home use. Not any of this produce is expected to be raised for sale.

Mr. K. T. Futrell said this morning that no family which raised a cash crop, under the new regulations could be given help.

The several educational projects over the county were ordered suspended until further notice in a telegram received this morning by Mr. Futrell. These projects included the nursery schools and the adult education classes which have been being carried on as part of Emergency Relief program. They had been previously exempt from the general closing order last week.

A Washington Day Book

By MERRERT PLUMMER

Washington — Action of the house in overwhelmingly defeating President Roosevelt's veto of the independent office appropriation bill may be of far greater significance than the fact that body consented to the addition of $28,600,000 to budget estimates for veterans' and federal employees.
The effect of that vote on the future of both the administration and members of the house will be watched closely in the days to come.
Since the day President Roosevelt convened congress in special session a little more than a year ago, the house has been his main standby. It has been that body which received the various parts of his emergency legislative program and, in many cases, without so much as reading the bills quickly transferred them into law.
The representatives consented to be "gagged" by their leaders time and again. They stuck by the administration when the senate kicked over the traces.
Then, almost overnight, they rose up and handed the leader they had so loyally followed as decisive a defeat as any President ever has suffered.
Up until this vote it had been believed the average democrat regarded his unswerving loyalty to Rooseveltian policies as the best possible recommendation to his constituents for being returned in the election this fall.
There were 209 democrats who voted to override his veto. What caused the greater number of them to go against him for the first time

Repercussions Coming

It is answers to questions such as these, that Washington politicians are trying to find at the present. Most of them are agreed it will be necessary to wait and watch developments.
If there had been any doubt in the minds of observers as to the importance with which administration leaders viewed the proposition, the terrific and stubborn fight made in support of the President in the senate the next day before the body also overrode the veto would have dispelled them. Its equal hasn't been marked since the beginning of the "new deal."
Repercussions are destined to be heard for a long time.

MEEKINS SEEMS TO HAVE LEAD IN WEST

Asheville, April 2.—W. C. Meekins of Hendersonville, son of Federal Judge I. M. Meekins, of Elizabeth City, seems assured of a majority of western county delegates for the chairmanship of the Republican State committee in the State convention of that party to be held Wednesday, April 4 in Charlotte.
A survey made today by Meekins supporters showed that in 18 western counties, 83 delegates have been pledged for Meekins and 52 for J. S. Duncan, of Greensboro, present chairman of the party. The remaining 156 delegates are uncommitted from the various county conventions but a poll of them shows that Meekins will have a decided majority.

Meekins, who is an attorney, has made an aggressive canvass of the State pleading with Republicans to elect him as State chairman.
The Buncombe county convention gave him a majority of nearly two to one over Duncan.

EASTER PASSED QUIETLY HERE

The Easter holiday passed off quietly in this city, and community from the standpoint of law and order and accidents. Not a single wreck of consequence occurred in the county over the week-end according to reports of the highway patrol and the sheriff's department reported no arrests. Other than a couple of arrests for drunkenness and one liquor raid things were quiet with the city police department.
The liquor raid was upon the premises of Bettie Nelson, colored who resides at the southern end of Greene street and netted about 10 gallons of whiskey. She was given hearing in city court this morning and bound over to county court. The woman was described as an old-

LOCAL HIGHS OPEN SEASON HERE TUESDAY

The local high school baseball season will officially open tomorrow afternoon at 3:45, with Washington high as the opponent.

The high school candidates have been at work for the past two weeks weather permitting, and thus far are looking good for early season workouts. About 55 candidates reported and at present there are about thirty men out for practice.

Coach Hewlett has several lettermen back from last year to form a nucleus for this year's team. Hodges at first base, Maddrin at third, Jack Forbes and Bill Clark in the outfield Bill Carroll, who was not in school last year, is looking mighty good at short stop, and Pierce seems to have the second base job. These two boys are both fast, and should make an ideal double play combination.

The other promising infielders are Swartz, Mengis, Lautares, and Wilkerson. These boys are not for behind the regular infield combination in defensive play, but have not had the experience and do not pack the punch that their big brothers have. In the outfield; Gus Forbes, Alton Cox, and Joe Hatem are looking good. Both Forbes and Cox are left-hand hitters, while Hatem is a right hander. This might possibly result in a shift according to the opposing pitcher. Jack Dunn and Pete Brewer are the best bets for doing the receiving, with Dunn having the edge, due to his better throwing and hitting. The pitching staff is the "if" of the ball club. If these boys come through in good style, the team should have a great season.

Ed Wells, Sam Vincent, Frank Parks, Willie Warren, and Carey Warren are the boys in whose hands the chief burden lie. Vincent and C. Warren are both left handers. The former has had some experience at Winterville, and should develop into a winner. He is 195 pounder and stands about 6:2.

Wells is the class of the right handers, and looks to be the smartest pitcher on the staff. He has good control a nice change of pace a fair curve ball, but needs to develop a bit more hop on the fast one. Parks has a good control, and it is believed that he will be of considerable value to the pitching staff in the relief role.

The schedule for home games is given below:
April 3—Washington.
April 10—Wilson.
April 13—Kinston.
April 20—New Bern.
May 8—Williamston.
Season tickets for these games can be secured at the high school or from any of the school monogram club members.

$25 to $130 by leading companies. There was slight irregularity during the last hour and some steel and metals lagged. Specialties provided the main activity in the earlier dealing.
