NRA IS RESTRAINED IN ALABAMA COAL FIELD

New Tax Bill Adds Headaches For Public Federal Judge Halts Orders Raising Wages

AMENDMENTS STILL SWELL GRAND TOTAL

Senate Pushes Bill up To $330,000,000 With Indication It Will Go Beyond that Mark Before Completed; $10 Would Be Added to Every $100 Earned by Taxpayers

Washington, April 7.—(AP)—The senate brewed new headaches for taxpayers today. The tax bill which was a $250,000,000 measure as it came from the house already is up to a proposed $330,000,000 in the senate with strong likelihood it will reach $400,000,000 before it is passed. An amendment by Senator Couzens, Republican of Mich., that would add an estimated $55,000,000 and one by Sen. LaFollette of Wis., that would be good for $95,000,000 more were given the approval today by Sen. Harrison of Miss., who is in charge of the legislation.

Monday may see a vote, both House and Senate were in recess today.

The bill as received from the House was boosted to $330,000,000 in the Senate Finance Committee as it is reaching the Senate floor.

Sen. Couzens proposed a 10 per cent super levy to be effective for one year only. Then ten per cent would be figured on the tax itself, a person whose tax came to $100 for example, adding ten per cent of that any paying $110.

The LaFollette amendment would boost the super estate and inheritance levies beyond the finance rates and cut down existing exemptions.

MUSIC CLUBS SCORE BIG HIT

High School Musicians Heard in Initial Appearance Here Last Night

Music clubs of Greenville high school, which in recent years walked away with numbers of honors at the state-wide music contest at Greensboro, gave their annual concert in the auditorium of Greenville high school last night.

The concert followed a full dress rehearsal for the benefit of grammar grade children yesterday afternoon and was witnessed by numbers of patrons who are proud over the splendid showing made by the aggregation of youthful musicians in recent years.

The concert was staged under the direction of Miss Olga Shindler and displayed in no uncertain terms the splendid character of the young voices and the fine training which they have received.

The program consisted of choruses, bass solo, Glee club numbers, tenor solo, number by unchanged boys' voices, soprano solo, baritone solo, boys' glee club, trombone duet, trio, and mixed chorus.

Announcers were Miss Geraldine Harris and Lewellyn Thornton. Miss Eva Hodges was accompanist.

The concert was given principally for the purpose of creating funds to defray expenses of the clubs at Greensboro this year. The aggregation as a whole was described by the director as superior to that of last year and there is every indication the youngsters will return home with more loving cups in their possession than any previous year since the state music development contest started.

Miss Shindler, who has been in charge of the music department here for the last four years, was highly commended for the development shown by the youngsters as they sang themselves for the spirit and enthusiasm which they have injected into their work.

POLICE BUSY WITH TRAFFIC 'VIOLATORS'

Numbers Rounded up Today in Effort to Enforce Automobile Regulations

Patrolmen were busy today rounding up those who have been violating city traffic ordinances and getting by with it.

The action followed an ultimatum yesterday by Chief of Police George Clark that all persons who violate traffic legislation in the future will be told to appear before the mayor and tell why they did so.

"No parking" signs have been painted on various street corners in the business district. In spite of this, numbers of persons parked directly over the signs this morning and were given tickets commanding them to appear before the mayor.

Chief Clark said that the ordinance prohibiting trucks from hogging streets would be drastically enforced, and all such vehicles that make a habit of parking in the middle of streets for the purpose of unloading their cargoes will be dealt with severely.

Congestion in the business district and some residential areas is had enough without trucks parking in the center of the street, the police head said, and it will be just too bad for drivers who try to pull such stunts hence forth. Virtually all business houses have back entrances and it is these trucks must go if they wish to make deliveries without interference from guardians of the law.

ROBBER GOT COIN ON HEAD

Fayetteville, April 7.—A hold up man who attempted to rob George Honduras got a sock on the head with a bag of money. That's all he got Honduras had to dodge some bullets, however, as the would-be thief took two shots at him. Honduras who runs the post exchange cafe at Fort Bragg was crossing the yard of his rooming place on Morganton Road when a pistol was stuck in his face. He swung his money bag and jumped behind a big tree. The bullets struck the tree. The stick up man disappeared.

TWO STRIKES ARE ENDED BY GOVERNMENT

Federal Agencies Take Steps to Return More Than 30,000 Men to Work Soon

Two strikes affecting 6,600 workers have ended and three federal agencies had taken steps looking to return more than 30,000 other workers to their jobs.

Workers in three Wisconsin plants of the Nash motor company voted yesterday to accept terms suggested by the Federal Auto Labor Board for settlement of strikes involving 1,000 men.

A strike of 2,970 employees of the Dryden Rubber Company in Chicago ended. The workers had been idle since Wednesday.

A federal judge in Birmingham granted commercial coal operators a ten day injunction restraining federal officials from enforcing wage raising, hour reducing amendments to the coal code. Operators had closed mines in which 15,000 men worked.

The Auto labor board held a conference in Detroit with representatives of employes and officials of the Motor Products corporation where a walkout of several hundred workers in one department resulted in idleness for 5,600 men.

U. S. SPENDS FIVE BILLION

On April 5 the Government Had Spent $5,000,000,000 Two More Than 1933

Washington, April 7.—(AP)—Federal spending in the fiscal year which ends June 30 today passed $5,000,000,000.

On April 5 the latest date available the government had spent $5,005,462,333 as compared with $3,873,232,776 last year.

The deficit that day stood at $2,655,107,341 as compared with $2,287,945,312 a year ago.

Of the $5,000,000,000 outlay $2,018,950,000 went to routine expenditures, $2,986,512,000 to emergency recovery cost.

The public debt was today listed by the Treasury at $26,179,042,000 as compared with $21,457,652,000 a year ago.

The $5,000,000,000 spent in a little over nine months of the 1934 fiscal year was nearly the total of the entire spending in 1932 and 1933 fiscal years. In 1932 government outlays were $5,154,000,000 and the next year $5,143,000,000.

Late News Flashes From Over World

Insult Coming Back to U. S.

Istanbul, April 7.—(AP)—Attorney general of Turkey announced today that no appeal was possible against his government's decision to hand over Samuel Insull to American authorities.

Kenan Bey's ruling means the former Utilities operator of Chicago, apparently has lost his last legal battle against a return to the U. S. where Federal warrants charging him with mail fraud and fraudulently bankruptcy await him.

Washington, April 7.—(AP)—Sam Insull, Chicago fugitive is to start back to the United States from Turkey next week to face trial on charges resulting from collapse of his giant utilities organization.

The state department said today Burton Beery, American vice-consul, is at Istanbul, and had been designated by Pres. Roosevelt to take custody of Insull who has fled since his arrest.

DICK KING IN SHERIFF RACE

R. W. (Dick) King today formally tossed his hat into the ring for sheriff of Pitt County.

It is understood there will be considerable contest for this office this year, but King is the only one to have formally announced his candidacy, although others were expected to get into the fight at an early date. The office is now held by Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst.

King, who was elected constable of Greenville township at the last election, is the son of Mrs. R. W. King, and the late Sheriff (Dick) King. He is 35 years of age and admits it—which is one in his favor—and promises to render the highest type of service if elected to the important post.

The week has seen quite a number of candidates fling their hats into the ring for various county offices, and the coming week is expected to see the number swell proportionately. Indications at this time point to the fact that voters will not have so much trouble selecting candidates and the matter of voting promises to be the most spirited in years.

DECISION RESERVED IN BIGSBEE RECEIVERSHIP

Durham, April 7.—Hearings on the establishment of a permanent receivership for the A. M. Riggsbee estate were temporarily concluded yesterday afternoon in Graham when Judge N. A. Sinclair asked that briefs be filed by attorneys for both sides. He will hand down his decision.

The estate was thrown into temporary receivership by heirs who claim that Riggsbee's son, R. M. Riggsbee, has neglected his duties as executor and trustee and has mismanaged its assets. Riggsbee, according to attorneys interested in the case, has filed a report "but not an official one."

NEW TRIAL IS BEING SOUGHT FOR JIM GREEN

Counsel Seeks to Save Life of Condemned Negro on Grounds of New Evidence

A new trial for Jim Greene, Pitt county negro, convicted in Superior court here in January on a charge of criminally attacking a young white woman and sentenced to die in the electric chair at Raleigh on April 25, was being sought here today.

John R. Denton, counsel for the condemned man, notified Solicitor D. M. Clark, who prosecuted the case, that he will make a motion for a new trial in Superior court here April 18 at 2:30 o'clock on the grounds of newly discovered evidence.

Although the nature of the newly discovered evidence was not made known, it was said it was sufficiently convincing to put an entirely new complexion on the case.

Green was alleged to have attacked a young white man several miles from Greenville one night last December, stole his automobile and forced a young woman companion to enter the car and go on a wild ride with him. Testimony at the trial was to the effect that the negro criminally attacked the girl, twice, the last time hitting her with a soft drink bottle to make her do his bidding. She was abandoned several hours later on a lonely road quite a distance from the scene of the first attack. Sheriff's officers, notified of the assault, captured Greene a day later, and obtained a written confession that he committed the crime.

The confession gave a vivid portrayal of the crime.

Taken into court several weeks later, Greene was adjudged guilty and sentenced to die in the electric chair April 25. He was immediately transferred to death row at Raleigh to await execution. Several weeks later the prison warden wrote the Clerk of Superior court here if any motion for a new trial had been entered here and was informed there had not been.

Since that time, however, Attorney Denton said sufficient evidence had been uncovered to justify a new trial for the negro, and this will be sought at the next session of Superior court.

PREPARE FOR RIVER SURVEY

Association Here Gains New Support In Effort to Deepen Tar River

The Eastern North Carolina Association, Incorporated, will be held prepared for the hearing to be held in Greenville on April 26, in connection with the Tar River Project. Several witnesses from Rocky Mount, Kinston, Tarboro and other localities in the section will testify at this hearing, expressing their views regarding the improvement. The association will assist all witnesses in preparing these statements.

The work in connection with the tonnage survey will require at least two more weeks as the whole section within a radius of 50 miles of Greenville will be worked. The following is an additional list of individuals and concerns in Greenville who are supporting the association and are greatly interested in the success of this movement:

Moseley Brothers, Proctor Hotel, State Bank and Trust Company, Smith & Hines, R. E. Ricks Transfer, J. J. Perkins, Brown and White, Young Mercantile Company, C. Heber Forbes, Flanagan-Meeks, Paint Company, H. L. Hodges, White's Stores, Incorporated.

Federal Judge Halts Orders Raising Wages

Held For Patricide

John Musick, 19, of Spring Brook township, near Scranton, Pa., confessed, police said, to slaying his father, George Musick, and burying his body in a coal heap. (Associated Press Photo)

Birmingham, Ala., April 7.—(AP)—The NRA orders raising wages and reducing hours of coal miners was temporarily enjoined in the Alabama coal field today.

Federal Judge C. B. Kennemer, in district court here, granted Alabama coal operators the temporary restraining order and set a hearing for April 16 on whether it should be made permanent.

The injunction prevents federal officials from enforcing the amendment to the bituminous coal code which raise wages in Alabama to $1.20 a day and wipes out the differential given Southern officials. Wages were reduced to $35 a week.

In making his decision yesterday Judge Kennemer said it should not in any sense be construed that the national industrial recovery act is unconstitutional. He said the point involved did not necessitate such a ruling.

After the order was issued, D. A. Thomas, member of the Alabama coal code authority said the operation (Continued on Page Four)

ROBBERS TO FACE HEARING HERE TODAY

Three Wilson Youths Returned From Rocky Mount For Preliminary Hearing

Three young white men of Wilson, arrested here the first of the week on a charge of breaking into a filling station Monday night, were to be returned here today from Rocky Mount to face preliminary hearing on a charge of robbery.

The youths, Ben Simpson, Marvin Langley and Lee Brantley, are alleged to have staged robberies in Wilson and Rocky Mount before bringing their operations here and were taken to Wilson Wednesday for preliminary hearing. They were bound over to the next session of Wilson county Superior court.

It was expected Wilson authorities would return the young men here immediately after the hearing, but local authorities agreed to let them be transferred to Rocky Mount first, before being returned here for trial. Arraigned in Recorder's court at Rocky Mount yesterday, they were bound over to the next term of Superior court.

Chief of Police George Clark said this morning that in view of the fact that the filling station robbed here is outside the city limits, the hearing would be held in a magistrate's court sometime during the afternoon.

When the youths were nabbed here Monday, police also seized an automobile said to have been stolen from B. F. Eagles at Wilson, with some of the loot taken from the filling station at Rocky Mount.

In the robbery of Smitty's filling station, located near the Greenville-Ayden road intersection, they are alleged to have taken a quantity of cigarettes and money from a slot machine.

$50,000 LOAN GETS APPROVAL

No details were available other than that a letter would follow. Mr. Hartsell said he saw nothing standing in the way of Elizabeth City's getting the building.

HERE COMES SMILING JOE (The Pathfinder)

A big moving van we saw the other day bore on the front and back a sign saying "Here Comes Smiling Joe." And "Smiling Joe" was there in person—a big Negro who displayed a set of perfect teeth that John D. Rockefeller would be glad to give $10,000,000 for.

Sometimes we wish that the white race had more of the quality which enables the Negroes to tackle the worst kind of jobs and do them good-naturedly. Of course, not all Negroes are just alike—but the typical Negro is pretty well contented if he can have some sort of work which will bring him in enough to provide for the family with plenty of fried chicken and trimmings—and of course a few watermelons and suchlike during the season.

The human race as a whole is in the worst pickle known to history. Most of this trouble is due to a morbid discontent, a greedy grasping for MORE, a feverish pursuit of objects which are worthless, a spirit of utter thanklessness and diabolical misanthropy.

We of this generation are privileged to live at a time when progress has reached its very peak. Even in the span of a few short years we have seen miracles reduced to common-places. In a scientific sense now, nothing is impossible; nothing surprises us. All the fruits of the Promised Land are at our hand—but are we thankful? No, we spurn the richest blessings and kick at them, like spoiled children.

The push of a button or turning of a switch will light our house, give us heat, start a motor, wash our clothes or dishes, bring into home the voice of Mussolini, for instance, or perform countless other wonders, just as we choose. We have explored the uttermost parts of the globe and there are no more worlds to conquer. Moving pictures and sound cameras have made it possible for your voice and your movements to be reproduced a thousand years from now, if desired. In a new sense, "there is no death" for our good deeds can now really live after us, if we do any.

A couple of centuries ago it would have cost a fortune for you to possess a copy of a piece of literature the size of the Pathfinder—but now the cost is so small as to be negligible. The lowliest person in the land can be a learned scholar. These are but a few crude examples of the possibilities which exist today—things which were denied to our ancestors.

Machinery, scientific methods, short cuts and mass production give the human family a hundred times what they had in earlier times. But are we happy? We answer again, NO! We grab everything in sight, and then demand more. We de-nounce machinery as a curse, and then we growl because we have TOO MUCH. We accept the fruits of the labor and sacrifices of all those who have gone before us; we take advantage of the benefits of science and learning—and then we insult Providence by proclaiming to the world that our civilization, as we are running it in this 20th century, is a dismal failure.

How about a few more smiles, folks? Can't we begin, right now to count our blessings, instead of playing the part of perennial grouches and pretending that everything is a misfortune? Can't we dwell more on what we HAVE and less on what we HAVE NOT? Can't we exercise a little more of the patience and thankfulness that our ancestors exhibited? Can't we show ourselves a little more worthy of the splendid things which we enjoy, instead of acting as ingrates? Can't we make the present gener-

Judith Lane

By JEANNEBOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: Judith Dale is at the Rio Diablo dam to supervise its construction according to the plans provided by Tom Bevis, and with the money Bevis left Judith for the purpose. Judith's husband Norman, however, has sided against her, and joined his law partner, Morion Lampere, in contesting the will in the interest of Mrs. Bevis and her daughter Melba, a friend of Norman's. Judith learns that Lampere has treacherously had the court hearing adjourned.

Chapter 30 GOOD NEWS

THE little town of Big Tom. She liked it; liked the pink of fresh cut lumber used in the buildings on the town's main street, the hot dog stands with their inevitable aroma of frying onions, the chili parlor, barber shop, the Ephraim's Emporium, the little proprietor with kind dark eyes who wrapped a morsel of philosophy into each package.

If she lost control of the Bevis fortune, it would mean these keen-eyed young construction men would go out to look for other work with the unsatisfied feeling of leaving uncompleted work, and for the mass of dam workers there would begin another forlorn hieira to "another job if we can find one."

She should have been more alert... should have. She looked towards the sky with wordless prayer. Two stars seemed to separate from the mass in the heavens, move forward, glow larger. The night lights of an air ship. She heard the muted roar of three motors, saw the dip of the plane, towards the leveled field Slim Sanford used for landing.

From the small front porch of her shack, Judith watched the figures of two men approach. She knew that one would be Slim Sanford. The other... her heart beat like a trip hammer with hope that he might be Norman, and then the hope died as the two men swung into a lighted area. The other was Justin Cunard.

She ran downhill to meet them, her voice caroling before her, "What news?" "Good news," they answered in unison. "The will contest has been continued to late September."

"But I thought... I heard that it started today?" "No," Cunard had caught her elbow and the three had started back up hill, the older man propelling her gently forward. "No, thanks to your friend Cila, it didn't start today."

"As soon as she found out that Lampere and Martellan had slipped the case in earlier than it was supposed to be on the court calendar, she called them to her office. "She told them what she had heard in the file room of the county court house and said she would make it public if they tried to push the case forward without giving you a chance to get up here and Judge Morgan a chance to appear. He was out of town on another case and one of his partners would have had to handle it."

"Martellan said the docket was full and it would have to be continued to fall. I suppose Lampere thought you couldn't hold out financially that long. Maybe you can't, but now that I'm first vice-president of the company I have the right to put my personal fortune into it. I talked it over with Mrs. Cunard and she's with me a hundred per cent, so we'll see you through."

"And so this morning, when the case was called, Lampere sent Morion to represent him, Judge Morgan's son appeared for him, and Martellan, a little bit yellow about the gills, set it over. I feel sorry for Martellan, he's a fine white fellow. I'd like to know what hold Lampere has on him."

They reached the little house and Cunard gave it a quick approving glance. Delphy met them at the door, with a quick inquiry as to their dinner hour. Satisfied they were as hungry as she had hoped they would be she went into the kitchen and the others sat on the porch to talk.

"This will probably mean war down here, Miss Judith," Cunard admitted, when they had discussed Lampere and Martellan. "Morton is clever enough to know that by fall the dam will be far enough ahead for Judge Morgan to use it as proof that you are following Big Tom's directions in using his money."

"Why didn't he get a court order restraining her from going on with the dam?" inquired Slim.

"He tried," Judith explained, "tried when he succeeded in getting the injunction against my use of the money, but there has been too much unemployment the past few years for any human to refuse work to three hundred men, as long as I was willing to pay them."

"Lampere would have had to go before the State Commission and prove the dam impractical from an engineering viewpoint, to have succeeded in that and he knew he couldn't do that." They were silent a moment and Judith longed to ask for news of Norman, but was ashamed to admit she knew nothing.

"How do you suppose Lampere will wage his war?" Sanford asked, breaking in on her thoughts. "I wish I knew," answered Cunard, "it will be something inspired by diabolical cleverness."

Cunard discussed the city end of the dam building, while the two men did justice to Delphy's beaten cheese biscuits, potted chicken and coffee. He expressed a desire to make a tour of dam property and said he would be there for several days.

Sanford said little. He watched Judith anxiously, remarked she looked tired, and pretended to scold Delphy for starving her mistress, then, as they arose from the table and started to leave, he turned to Judith.

"I have a package here from Cila. Doggone, must have left it in the ship, but here's a letter your husband asked me to bring down." "You saw him?" she asked, hoping her voice didn't reveal her eagerness.

"No, but Cila did. He dashed into the courtroom this morning, said he'd just heard of the trial starting and told young Morrison quite frankly, that he didn't like the way their firm was doing business. Cila sidled up to him and wangled a luncheon invitation out of him. You know Cila. He asked about you and I imagine she told him plenty. She would. She told him I was flying down tonight and he asked her to wait while he wrote a note to send down with me."

"How did he look, did she say?" "No, she didn't. Well, goodnight, Judy, you need some rest. We'll see you in the morning, adios—"

AS soon as the two men had left, Judith turned to the letter. Would he be asking for a divorce?

"Dear Judith, a hasty note, as Cila's waiting, I find it difficult to say what I want to say, perhaps because my mind is not yet clear. A year ago I would have sworn that a woman did not love a man, if she could leave him to work against his interests, simply because she believed in what she was doing. However, I find I am doing the same thing. I find my love for you is unchanged, yet under the circumstances I cannot ask you to return to me."

"I believe that had we been married longer and our lives welded together with sympathetic interests, this separation could not have happened. "If I shall leave you free to do what you wish, and I'll try to be as fair as you have been in not blaming me for my stand. I love you, Judith."

"NORMAN." Judith reread the note, trying to sense the meaning between lines; trying to read into each line more than the actual words revealed. Did he mean that in leaving her "free" he wished their separation to become permanent?

She felt a moment's pique at his sportsmanship. With feminine inconsistency she wished he would rush to her and demand she return to him. She wondered what Slim Sanford would have done under similar circumstances. She reread the last line, "I love you, Judith." There was sincerity there. She would keep faith with that line, and maybe time and destiny would do the rest.

She slept better that night than she had slept for some time, perhaps because having heard from Norman, she entertained neither false hopes nor fears. She remembered Big Tom's plea that she be patient with Norman, and promised herself that she would be patient; a promise she was to laugh at with bitterness.

Breakfast, Cunard and Sanford arrived simultaneously. Judith enjoyed the festive air which seemed to permeate the little dwelling with their coming.

Later a stable boy brought up three horses and the trio started on their tour of inspection. Judith felt pardonable pride in the friendly loyalty of the men whom they met at every step of their journey. When Cunard expressed a desire to meet Scoggins, after learning who held the salient point of land jutting into the main flood basin of the dam, they rode down to the Scoggins farm and were invited to stay for dinner.

Back to Big Tom Town and Judith's shack and Cunard announced that on the next day he would like to make an air tour of the Rio Diablo country.

To Judith, who had covered nearly every step the year previous, the air trip was fascinating. (Copyright, 1934, by Jeanne Bowman)

Monday, Judith goes to Mexico.

Sundown Stories

In The House

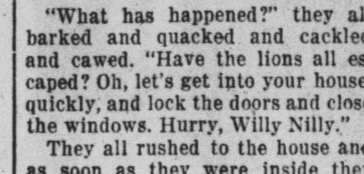

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER "I'll come with you," Jelly Bear said to Willy Nilly. "I'll protect you."

"No," said Willy Nilly. "you stay with Honey Bear and the cubs. They may become frightened and you'll be around to comfort and help them. The circus people all seem to have gone to bed. It's a wonder they don't come out and see what is the matter with the lions."

The roars became louder and louder. They fairly tore the air with the great noise they made. Although their cages were some distance back from the cave and from Willy Nilly's and the center of Puddle Muddle, it seemed as though they were roaring everywhere.

Jelly Bear was not a coward. He wanted to go with Willy Nilly and yet he knew, too, that it was his duty to stay by Honey Bear and the cubs. He would not want any harm to come to them. He would fight every lion to protect them. But he hated to see Willy Nilly walk off by himself.

As Willy Nilly walked out of the cave he saw Rip running toward him, and up the hill came the Ducks, waddling as quickly as they could. Top Notch was half-flying and half-running along and Christopher Columbus Crow was ahead of them all.

The Terrible Night

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"You don't suppose the lions could smash in the windows in their rage, do you?" asked Top Notch, the Rooster, miserably. "I don't think so," answered Willy Nilly, although he was none too sure. "Oh dear," whimpered Rip, "I do what has happened?" they all barked and quacked and cackled and cawed. "Have the lions all escaped? Oh, let's get into your house, quickly, and lock the doors and close the windows. Hurry, Willy Nilly!"

They all rushed to the house and as soon as they were inside they closed the doors and locked the windows. Yes, this is best, thought Willy Nilly. He would not bother to find out what was the matter with the lions!

"That's very brave of you, Christopher," said Willy Nilly admiringly, "but I think we had better all stay together here. At least we are with each other. I do hope they won't go near the cave. Oh dear, oh dear." Willy Nilly had not meant to let the others know how frightened he was. He had said more than he had meant to say.

"Quack, quack," quacked the Ducks weakly, "what do we hear now?" "Thunder," answered Willy Nilly. "Yes, I'm sure I heard thunder, and it must have been lightning I saw a few seconds ago. I wasn't sure at first."

Now more flashes of lightning could be seen and more thunder rolled across the sky, and the rain began to come down in torrents. "I don't hear the lions any more," said Willy Nilly. "Maybe the rain has put a stop to their wild roars."

All through the night the storm kept up and the Puddle Muddlers clung together in Willy Nilly's little house. No longer could the lions be heard. What were they doing? Where were they? What joy it was to have the morning come and sunshine and quiet.

POINTERS ON POISE

Too many hands? As this photograph of Laura La Plante shows, you can get rid of one of them gracefully by placing it on the hip joint.

HANDS

(By Laura Townsend Davies)

It is ugly to cross your arms or to stand with the hands on the hips, washer-woman fashion. Instead of either of these awkward habits, cultivate dropping a single hand to the hip joint.

A sculptor will tell you that the body "breaks" naturally into three divisions: head to base of neck, torso to hips, limbs to feet. So that the hip joint, rather than the waistline, is the natural "parking place" for the hand.

MRS. MOYE HOSTESS TO END OF THE CENTURY CLUB

(The End of the Century Club was very delightfully entertained on Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Hortense Moyer at her home on Evans street. This was the first meeting of the club in several weeks, and was for this reason, especially enjoyed.

The president, Mrs. J. B. Spilman, presided over a short business session and turned the meeting over to Mrs. E. W. Harvey who had charge of the program for the afternoon. She introduced Mrs. C. M. Warren, who gave a most excellent paper on "The Jew In History." Mrs. Warren recently gave this paper at a meeting of the Sans Souci Club and it was greatly enjoyed this time by the End of the Century members.

Interesting current events were given and the following committee was appointed to arrange a program for the next club year: Mrs. A. D. Frank, Mrs. E. B. Ficklen, Mrs. R. H. Wright.

The club was delighted to welcome into its membership Mrs. R. M. Gairret and Mrs. Charles White, and to have as visitors Mrs. Lay of Chapel Hill, Mrs. Perkins, Mrs. C. S. Forbes and Mrs. C. M. Warren. Miss Clara Moyer assisted her mother in serving a delicious salad course with coffee.—Reported.

April 17 Admission 8:00 P. M. 35 cents

Faculty Plays Create Interest.

There is great interest in the faculty plays to be presented at East Carolina Teachers College on April 17.

The first "Fourteen" is a sprightly comedy in which an ambitious society woman struggles to arrange a dinner party so as to avoid the unlucky thirty. A blizzard, a case of chicken pox, and a wrecked car are among the disasters that upset her plans. Miss Mary Greene is Mrs. Pringle, the would-be hostess; Miss Agnes Wadlington, her daughter, and P. W. Picklesimer is the butler.

"Two Crooks and a Lady" is an exciting little drama dealing with the attempted theft of a famous diamond necklace. Two crooks match their wits with those of a lady who lies paralyzed in a wheelchair. The ones who take part in this play are: Misses Loraine Hunter, Elizabeth Hyman, Annie C. Newell and Dr. A. D. Frank, M. L. Wright and Dr. H. J. McGinnis.

"The Man Upstairs" is a comedy of jealous husbands and wives. The players in this are: Misses Elizabeth Smith, Eunice McGee and Catherine Cassidy, and Messrs. J. B. Cummings and R. C. Deal.

ORANGE COUNTY MAN FOUND SHOT TO DEATH. Durham, April 7.—The body of John E. Lynch, 60, was found in his store in Cedar Forks Township today and officers expressed the opinion he had been shot and robbed by thieves near last midnight. Sheriff W. T. Sloan of Orange County said $37.25 was missing from the store till.

The store is about five miles north of Moberg and had been operated by Lynch for 21 years. Sloan said he believed the shooting took place around 11 o'clock and that from the position of the body, the storekeeper had his hands up when shot.

STYLE WORLD 'SEES STARS' FOR EVENING

By ADELAIDE KLERR Paris, April 2.—(AP)—The shimmer of soft starlight is appearing in fashion's picture of spring play-time clothes.

Black sequins evening gowns with the frosty sparkle of a starlit night, gleaming silver gauze evening wraps over colorful taffeta frocks, black organdies spangled with silver dots and little wraps of shaggy shimmering sequins, fringes are among the most brilliant notes.

The same shimmering effect appears in evening accessories. Diamond stars sparkle from smooth coiffures of nights, silver star butch chairs. The ones who take part in this play are: Misses Loraine Hunter, Elizabeth Hyman, Annie C. Newell and Dr. A. D. Frank, M. L. Wright and Dr. H. J. McGinnis.

"The Man Upstairs" is a comedy of jealous husbands and wives. The players in this are: Misses Elizabeth Smith, Eunice McGee and Catherine Cassidy, and Messrs. J. B. Cummings and R. C. Deal.

SALES TAX IS AGAIN RAPPED

J. Paul Leonard Says Tax is Contrary to Essential Element of Fair Taxation

Oxford, April 7.—(AP)—The sales tax was denounced as contrary to the "essential element of fair taxation—ability to pay" in an address by J. Paul Leonard, of Statesville, to a mass meeting here today.

The Granville county tax relief association sponsored the meeting and addressed by Leonard who is ex-secretary of the N. C. Fair Tax Association. "There is much that can be said against the sales tax," said Leonard. "But the strongest indictment that can be justly brought is that it is contrary to the essential elements of fair taxation—ability to pay—is a tax on consumption and drives business from the State. A few months experience has proven this to be a real indictment."

'SWIM' PETAIN'S ORDER TO WHOLE FRENCH ARMY. Paris.—(AP)—All French officers will have to sink or swim in the future. Marshal Petain, minister of war and venerable defender of Verdun, has issued an order that swimming will be part of the entrance examinations to all French military schools from now on.

It is the marshal's intention eventually to equip all military camps with swimming pools where soldiers will be obliged to learn how to keep afloat.

Half of World's Born Near Byrd's 'Hurmit Hut'

By F. B. COLTON (Associated Press Science Writer)

Washington, April 7.—(AP)—The weather of half the world is born near the frigid spot where Admiral Richard E. Byrd will keep a lone vigil through the coming antarctic winter, observing wind and temperature.

In his snow-buried hut the admiral will be almost at the take-off point of great masses of air which more or less continuously circulate from the south pole to the equator and back again, largely governing weather of the southern hemisphere. His wind-measuring instruments will supply valuable new scientific data on how this air behaves at the start of its weather breeding journey.

Air circulates continuously between both the north and south poles and the equator, and this movement is one of the fundamental causes of weather, the weather bureau explains.

Land, Water Are Factors. The air is cooled over the polar areas, falls near the surface, and then flows north or south, as the case may be, toward the equatorial regions. There it is warmed again, rises, and flows back toward the poles at a higher level, and the process than goes on continuously.

In practice, this air circulation is complicated by the irregular distribution of land and water, by ocean currents, rotation of the earth surface features of the continents and decreasing density of the air at higher levels.

Admiral Byrd probably would be the first man in history to make weather observations over so long a period as seven months at a one-man station so near the south pole.

While his observations will be too localized to be of immediate usefulness in weather forecasting, they will supply valuable information and a ring of such stations established permanently around both the south and north poles would be of undoubted usefulness in weather predictions, say weather bureau scientists.

Such stations could wireless "advance notice" to the outside world of what was happening near the poles. The chief immediate value of Admiral Byrd's observations will be to his own expedition in planning trips into the interior.

Gales Up to 100 Miles. The admiral's anemometer or wind-measuring apparatus, probably will record gales blowing up to 100 miles an hour, says Dr. William J. Humphreys of the weather bureau. His weather vane will record prevailing winds as blowing from the south but occasionally may blow in other directions.

Although he will keep his vigil during the antarctic winter, which is our summer, Byrd can expect as great variations in temperature as the United States usually has between summer and winter. His thermometer probably will range from 40 above zero to 70 below.

BOX PARTY TO BOOST FUNDS OF BALL CLUB

Event to be Staged at Woman's Club Next Monday Night at 9 o'Clock

Efforts to raise funds for the Greenville baseball club of the Coastal Plain League will be made at an old-fashioned box party at the Woman's Club Monday night at 9 o'clock.

A. A. Ellwanger and M. O. Minges, members of a soliciting committee named the first of the week to raise funds for the club, announced yesterday that a box party would be held and hope was expressed that a big crowd would be on hand to help make it the success desired. The proceeds will go to the support of Greenville's entry into the league this summer.

All ladies who are requested to prepare boxes and carry them to the party.

This is the first time an old-time box party has been held in Greenville in some time, although they are quite popular in some sections of the county, and in view of the cause in which it is being given, it will be one of the greatest events of the kind staged here in some time.

Greenville captured the pennant in league play last year and if another strong club is to be put on the diamond this year, it is going to be necessary to have adequate financial support. It is for this reason that every effort will be put forward to make the box party a tremendous success.

Fiddler Knows 118 Ballads. Atlanta, Ga., April 7.—(AP)—A Georgia mountaineer known as "Fiddlin' John" Carson can sing 118 mountain folk ballads from memory and play the accompaniment on his violin. He won first prize at the Georgia fiddler's convention for eight consecutive years.

Byrd will be located east of the real "home of the blizzard" in Antarctica, however. This is a region west of little America where explorers have found a wind velocity averaging 50 miles an hour through an entire winter.
