DILLINGER AGAIN STALLS CAPTURE IN WISCONSIN

Public Enemy Heads South From Bohemia

THREE DEAD AS RESULT OF GUN BATTLE

Desperado Fights Off Ambush of Federal and State Officers and Escapes; Three Officers Die in Attempt to Arrest Indiana Man; Michigan City Police Verify Reports from Isolated Region.

Mercer, Wis., April 23.—(AP)—Fighting off an ambush of 28 federal and state officers, John Dillinger, America's public enemy No. 1, again stalled capture at Bohemia on Lake Vilas today and was reported heading south.

In a prolonged shooting affair three men were killed and two wounded, federal officers after the escape of Dillinger from the resort used by the gang as headquarters for three days, arrested three young women.

Those killed in the attempt to arrest the gang were:

W. Carter Baum, federal agent from Chicago; Eugene Boisjanne, 35 CCC worker of Mellon and an unidentified man.

The shooting took place in an isolated region in the northwest city and meager reports which filtered through varied widely.

The federal force made a report to Washington that Dillinger had escaped and was heading south. No word was given out from Washington pending a promised statement from Attorney General Cummings. Confirmation of the escape report came from the Michigan State police radio which reported Dillinger fleeing south.

TOYING WITH PISTOL BOY KILLS PLAYMATE

Albemarle, April 23.—Bobbie, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Cooper, was killed instantly at 3 o'clock today when he was shot through the head with a revolver, supposedly fired by Robert Tucker, Jr., a 15-year-old playmate.

The children were in the Tucker home and it is thought were playing with the small automatic when it was fired. The Tucker child ran to a hospital and gave the alarm. The bullet went through the mouth and angled upward.

LEAF CONTROL BILL 'OKAYED'

Sec. Wallace and Tobacco Section Endorse Kerr Reduction Measure.

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace and the Farm Administration's tobacco section today endorsed the principle of the Kerr bill for tobacco production control, a measure similar to the Bankhead cotton control act.

The secretary's views were made known in a letter read to a house agricultural sub-committee holding hearings on the Kerr bill.

Accompanying the letter was a report from the tobacco section which Wallace said concurred.

"In the opinion of the tobacco section" the report said, "this legislation would materially strengthen the present program in that it would give assurance to cooperating producers that their efforts to adjust supply and improve prices would not bring undue profit to the small group on the outside."

The Bankhead act, signed Saturday by President Roosevelt, limits sales from the 1934 crop to 10,000,000 bales.

DR. R. H. WRIGHT SUFFERS STROKE

Dr. R. H. Wright, president of East Carolina Teachers College, suffered a stroke of paralysis while on duty in his office at the college this morning at 1 for a time little hope was held out that he would survive.

A rally later in the day gave physicians more hope for his recovery but his condition this afternoon was described as still critical.

WORK ON NEW WAREHOUSE BEGINS HERE

$60,000 Building To Be Constructed In The Heart Of The Tobacco District

Construction work on the new tobacco warehouse to be built on the site of the old McGowan-Cannon warehouse in the heart of tobacco town, got under way this morning. Several hundred workmen were employed cleaning off the location and making excavations and considerable progress as expected to be made in this connection in the next few days providing the weather remains favorable.

With completion of the building the latter part of the summer, Greenville will have one of the largest and most up-to-date auction houses in this part of the country and will be able to speed up the handling of the greatest Carolina crop.

The new building, of brick, steel and cement construction, is being erected by Hugh McGowan, Biggs T. Cannon and Will Moore. Erwin West Construction Company are in charge of construction work.

The warehouse will cost $60,000 and will contain all modern conveniences including rest rooms for ladies and running ice water.

The old McGowan-Cannon warehouse was destroyed by fire about two years ago at a loss of thousands of dollars.

YOUTH LOSES LIFE IN KENTUCKY CAVE

Glasgow Junction, Ky., April 23.—(AP)—The body of Paul Turner, 25, was removed from a cave near here late yesterday, five hours after Turner had fallen to his death in the 65-foot depths of the unexplored cavern. Rescuers, pulling the body to the top with a rope, were balked several hours because the body became wedged between some rock.

Coroner J. M. Deering said Turner was killed by the fall of about 25 feet, which occurred when Turner was asphyxiated by lack of oxygen, a few minutes after entering the cave yesterday morning. He had lowered himself on a rope to explore the cave, hoping to develop it for tourist parties.

Body of Missing Negro Discovered In Chicoc Creek

The body of Shepard Wilson, 60 year old negro who disappeared from his home Saturday week, was found in Chicoc Creek Saturday afternoon, according to information reaching this city today.

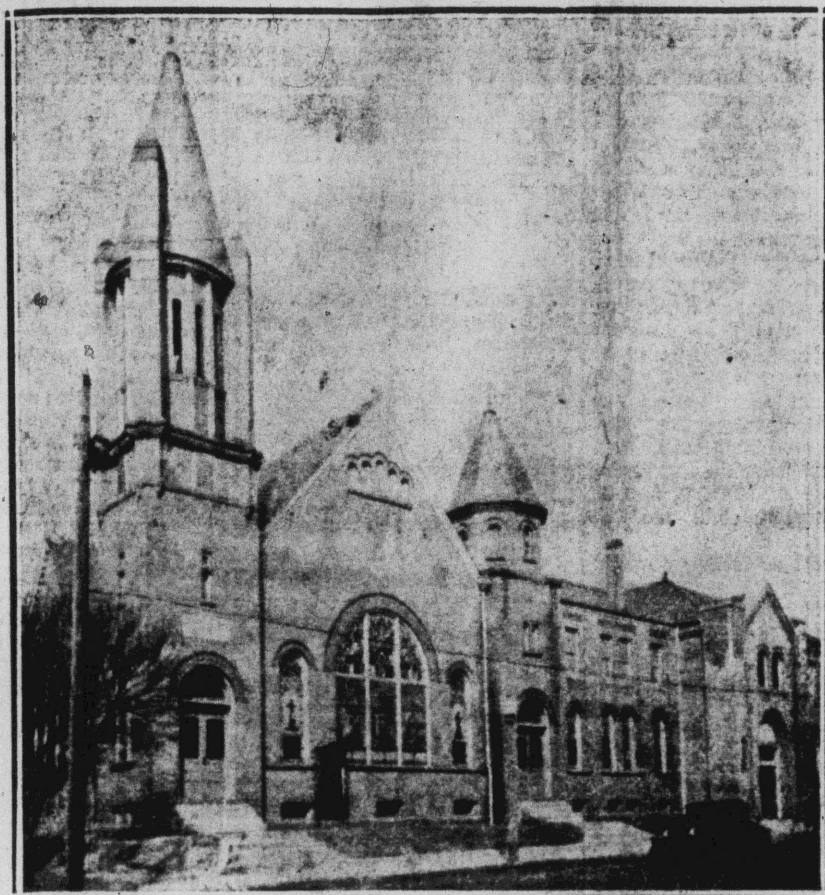

He was said to have been drinking when last seen in the vicinity of Chicoc creek bridge and was believed to have lost his balance and fell into the stream. The body, which had been searched for all the week by relatives and friends, was found a short distance from the bridge.

Coroner A. A. Ellwanger held an investigation unnecessary.

Rare Old Water Bag

Del Rio, Tex.—(AP)—A sack of tanned beaver skin, believed to be a Basketmaker water bag, was discovered in a cave near here by a scientific party seeking early Indian relics.

METHODISTS CELEBRATE LIQUIDATION CHURCH DEBT

The congregation of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, shown above, yesterday morning impressively celebrated the paying off of a debt on the $62,000 Sunday School addition to the beautiful church building, corner Dickinson Avenue and Washington Street. The notes were placed in a tub on the rostrum and burned.

METHODISTS CELEBRATE PAYING DEBT

Notes on S. S. Building Burned In Impressive Service Sunday Morning.

The congregation of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church yesterday morning celebrated the lifting of the indebtedness on the Sunday school addition to the beautiful church building at the corner of Dickinson Avenue and Washington Street.

The celebration, taking place during the regular 11 o'clock service, was marked by the burning of all notes accumulated during erection of the building. It also marked the culmination of a campaign begun last January looking to settlement of the indebtedness. The last of the notes was paid off the latter part of last week and plans for the celebration were immediately completed.

Short talks dealing with the achievement were made by Dr. G. R. Combs, pastor; A. B. Ellington, chairman of the Board of Stewards; Howard McGinnis, chairman of the Board of Trustees; Mrs. Hortense Moyer, vice-chairman of the Missionary Society, and J. H. Waldrop, chairman of the debt committee.

Each of the talks dealt with some phase of the erection of the Sunday school addition, which with the site, cost $62,000. At the end of the service Mr. Waldrop led a procession of church officials to the altar where the notes were placed in a tub and burned.

The congregation presented Mr. Waldrop with an autographed Bible for the splendid services which he rendered during the campaign to settle the indebtedness and take the church off the red side of the ledger. Construction of the addition was begun in 1921 and completed in 1923. It gave the church sufficient room to take care of practically all departmental work and is the pride not only of the congregation but of the entire community.

CARSON WILL GO ON TRIAL HERE TUESDAY

Bethel Filling Station Operator Faces Second Degree Murder Charge

Allan Carson, Bethel filling station operator, is scheduled to go on trial in criminal court here tomorrow on a charge of second degree murder in connection with the slaying of Ebb Simons at Carson's filling station at Bethel last December.

A true bill in the case was returned by the grand jury in the January term of court and the date of the trial was set the latter part of last week.

Carson is charged with shooting Simons to death over an alleged bad check for something over $1.00 which Carson claims Simons gave him in settlement of an account.

Officers said Carson warned Simons not to come to his filling station again. When Simons went to Carson's place in company of a policeman, to make the bad check good, Carson is alleged to have pulled his gun and shot Simons to death.

Carson was taken into custody and held in jail here awhile but was later released on bond.

The case created considerable excitement in the Bethel community and hundreds of people from that section are expected to crowd the court room to capacity when the case gets under way.

NEGRO HELD IN CAR WRECK

Willie Settle Bound Over to County Court For Hit-and-Run Driving

Willie Settle, colored, charged with hit and run driving following a wreck on Dickinson avenue Saturday night, was bound over to County Court in a preliminary hearing in police court this morning. He was unable to give bond and was remanded to jail.

Settle is charged with punning his car into an automobile driven by Joseph Griffin, who resides several miles from the city. Griffin's machine was badly damaged by the impact.

Settle, officers said, jumped out of his machine and attempted to escape but was overhauled in short order.

Settle gave his home as in Richmond, Va., but officers said he is a former resident of Greenville and had been hanging around here for quite a while recently.

Only single men are admitted to the military academy at West Point.

Late News Flashes

Miss Burroughs Testifies. Washington, April 23.—(AP)—Miss Ada Burroughs testified today in District of Columbia Supreme Court that she had no knowledge of 1928 contributions made to Bishop Cannon by Edwin Jameson, of New York, except the $17,300 that was reported to the clerk of the House.

Miss Burroughs and Bishop Cannon are on trial charged with conspiracy to violate the corrupt practices act and failure in report all of the $65,300 given by Jameson for use against the presidential candidacy of Al Smith.

Speaking almost inaudibly from beneath a wide brimmed hat the treasurer of the Cannon 1928 headquarters committee, said she first learned that Jameson had contributed money on Feb. 11, 1920. At that time she said, Cannon told her of the $17,300 contribution which she reported to the clerk of the House on Feb. 15.

MISSING GIRL IS BACK HOME

Julia Munford Returns to Durham After Spending Night in Chapel Hill.

Durham, April 23.—(AP)—Thirteen-year-old Julia Munford, who was thought last night to have been kidnapped, came home today explaining she spent last night at Chapel Hill, 12 miles from here, after becoming angry with members of her family yesterday afternoon.

She disappeared from the home here last night when the parents were at church, and her father, George Munford, secretary of the Home Security Life Insurance Company, said he could explain her absence by belief that she had been abducted.

The little school girl appeared at her home just after 9 o'clock today and said she became angry with two smaller sisters while out riding yesterday afternoon.

Last night Julia took some money from a savings bank, boarded the 8:30 bus for Chapel Hill and on arriving there registered at the Carolina Inn where she remained until this morning when she returned to Durham by bus.

'Stairstep' Family

Asheville, N. C.—(AP)—Within ten years seven children have been born to the Rev. and Mrs. Paul McIntyre and they form perfect "stairsteps" when lined up. Their ages are 9, 8, 6, 4, 3, 2, and 9 months. McIntyre, now 30, and his wife, 26, were married when he was 20 and she 16.

NEGRO GOES ON TRIAL FOR HIS LIFE HERE

Claude Clemmons Charged With Firing Home That Resulted in Death of Three

Claude Clemmons, Stokes negro, went on trial for his life in criminal court here today for the alleged burning of a negro house near Stokes last January 18th that resulted in the death of three negro children.

He is charged with arson and murder in three separate cases.

Testimony was begun this afternoon immediately after court recessed from lunch. The morning hours were spent in obtaining a jury.

Nine jurors were selected from the regular panel and the remainder from the special venire of 50 ordered by Judge Frank A. Daniels after Clemmons was arraigned last week. The negro entered a plea of not guilty.

If found guilty of arson it will not be necessary for Clemmons to face the three charges of murder as guilt in the first case automatically makes him guilty of the others.

Clemmons is charged with setting fire to the home of Cora Robinson on the night of January 18. Three children were burned to death and others sleeping in the building had a narrow escape from death.

In a preliminary hearing here several weeks ago, two children of Clemmons testified he was away from home during the night of the fire and returned home and called their attention to the blaze which could be seen from their bedroom window.

The crime was alleged to have been committed on account of money which Clemmons harbored against the Robinson woman because she had given shelter to his wife.

Percy Baldree Dies At Home Near Farmville

Percy R. Baldree, 13, died this morning at 8:30 o'clock at his home near Farmville following two weeks' illness from meningitis. Pneumonia developed yesterday and doctors immediately abandoned all hope for his recovery.

Funeral services were conducted from Bethany Free Will Baptist church this afternoon at 3 o'clock by Elder Jack Tyson and burial was made in the churchyard.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Baldree; three sisters, Misses Geraldine, Betty Jean and Bonnie Bell Baldree, and a brother, James Thomas Baldree.

Peg-Leg Lamb

Scottsbluff, Neb.—(AP)—Now comes the story of the lamb with a wooden leg. Born with a deformed leg, the lamb was unable to get about until its owner, A. W. Shipman, whittled a small peg-leg and strapped it to the animal. "When the lamb gets bigger," says Shipman, "I'll just make a bigger wooden leg."

I. C. C. Orders Reduction Of Rates On Coal

FOUR ESCAPE FROM PRISON IN MICHIGAN

Michigan City, April 23.—(AP)—Four persons, three of them serving life terms, escaped from the Michigan City prison during the weekend, prison officials revealed today. Leland Phillips, 26, serving a life term for murder, and Noah Fells, serving a three-year term for burglary, escaped sometime Saturday afternoon from the prison farm west of Michigan City. Both are white men. Two negroes, both serving life terms for murder, escaped Sunday.

REFUSE CUT OF RATES FOR OTHER AREAS

Cut Will Affect Coal Shipped from Virginia Fields to N. C. and Other Points

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—Reduction of bituminous coal rates from Pocahontas, Coal Creek and South West, Va., fields, to North Carolina and a number of South Carolina points was ordered today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The reductions ranged from 10 cents to approximately 20 cents a ton and generally affect cotton mills and tobacco manufacturing centers of North Carolina and a number of cotton mills in North and South Carolina.

The commission found that rates from the same group to Wilmington, N. C.; Charleston, S. C.; Savannah and Brunswick, Ga.; and Jacksonville, Fla., and other branches at Spartanburg and German, Ga., were not unreasonable and refused the proposal for a general revision of rates to destinations in Georgia, northern Florida and some points in North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Alabama.

The commission also reported a thorough study of the situation throughout the territory, made with particular attention to condition of the carriers and the amount of coal used. It was pointed out that North Carolina generally paid a considerably higher rate on coal than in South Carolina. The average in 1929 being $3.90 per short ton as compared with $2.86 to South Carolina.

MANY BOOKS FOR LIBRARY

Kiwanis Book Cansass Last Saturday Netted Around Two Hundred Volumes

Approximately two hundred books were contributed by Greenville people to the Kiwanis Memorial Library in the Kiwanis books canvass staged here Saturday. It was reported today.

The canvass was made by eighteen members of the local Boy Scout organization who stated that the entire city was covered and a second canvass probably would be made within the next month.

A number of books were contributed by the Kiwanians themselves when the library canvass was initiated at the regular meeting of the club Friday two weeks ago, and this swelled the total to around 250 volumes.

A complete check had not been made of the Boy Scouts canvass Saturday, but these in charge of the campaign said they believed the number would be around 200 if not more.

The major part of the books consisted of works for children. The need of children's books was stressed at the meeting of the Kiwanis club, it being stated that unless something was done to replenish the rapidly dwindling supply quite a number of reading clubs would have to be suspended during the summer months.

The Kiwanians are enthusiastic over the book campaign, and persons who failed to give in the canvass kind and contributors are asked to do so now. Charlie Parsons, chairman of the Kiwanis objectives committee, said today he would be glad to send for all contributions of this kind and contributors are asked to notify him of any such donations.

In the meantime, the public is urged to watch the date of the second canvass and to be in readiness to give as freely as possible to the library—considered one of the great-

URGES SPEED ON SEED LOANS

Filing Period For Government Money Comes To End Here This Week

This is the last week for the filing of applications for government crop production seed loans and growers who wish to obtain loans from this source and who have delayed doing so, should act busy immediately and file their applications.

T. O. Edens in charge of the local seed loan office, said today the filing period would expire midnight April 30 and urged farmers who wish to obtain loans to go to his office at once and file their applications.

Mr. Edens said approximately 600 applications have already been filed in the local office and it was expected the number would be greatly swelled by the closing of the filing period. It was impossible to say how many applications have been approved, Mr. Edens said, owing to the fact that numbers are in the mills at this time, but there is every indication the majority were given official okay.

Farm operators may obtain as high as $750 under a revised ruling of the crop production department, but the limit for individual farmers is $250.

These loans have played an important part in farming operations in this part of the county the last several years, and it was believed tremendous sums would be poured into farming communities through this source this year in spite of various other agencies through which loans may be obtained.

Father of Ten Children Takes His Own Life

Reidsville, April 23.—(AP)—Ross Gibson, 52, farmer, father of ten children, shot himself to death at his home here today.

Relatives said bad health and worry over finances evidently caused him to commit suicide. He shot himself in the neck with a shotgun. His widow and children survive.

POLICE ATTEMPT IDENTIFICATION WOUNDED NEGRO

Officers today were attempting to learn the name of the doctor who bandaged a wound on the head of an unidentified negro, believed to be about 30 years old, who was found unconscious in a Norfolk-Southern freight car here early today.

The negro was carried to the hospital for medical aid, but it was said little hope was held out for his recovery in view of the development of lockjaw.

Chief of Police George Clark said physicians said the bandage on the negro's head unquestionably was the product of a physician's skilled fingers, and they wished to confer with the physician in an attempt to establish the negro's identity. Two stitches closed the wound. A pistol lay near the negro in the box car, and $10 in cash, a knife and watch were found on his person.

Chief Clark said it was believed the negro, suffering from effects of the wound crawled into the freight car to sleep, developed lock jaw and then unconsciousness. There was no indication of foul play.

CHINESE PUT STOP TO MOVIE FUNERAL

Peiping, China, April 23.—(AP)—Hollywood's efforts to transfer its world of make believe to Peiping's ancient precincts, where history is being written in realistic fashion, struck a snag yesterday.

Branding it an "insult to China" the city fathers ordered police to disperse a fake Chinese funeral procession staged by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer cameramen filming scenes of Chinese life for the cinema version of Pearl Buck's novel, "The Good Earth."

A Chinese undertaker who had provided 64 professional pallbearers and an empty coffin was arrested, while 20 Buddhist monks who received fees for "lending color" were roundly admonished and told to return to their temples.

TWO KILLED IN CAR WRECK

Third Seriously Injured as Car Goes Down Embankment Near Hickory.

Hickory, April 23.—(AP)—Two young men were dead and a third seriously injured as the result of their car overturning down an embankment near Slay in Lincoln county last night.

All three were from Cale community, southwest of Hickory.

The dead: Cleat Reet, 21 son of John Reet, Marshal Brittain, 20, son of Ellis Brittain.

Reet and Brittain were rushed to a hospital at Lincoln where they later died.

Reet had a crushed head and he died soon after reaching the hospital.

Brittain suffered a broken neck but did not die until this morning. The cause of the wreck had not been heard here today.

RECKLESS WALKERS

Are you a safe walker? If you can't make an honest answer in the affirmative your life and health is literally in peril.

Last year automobile-pedestrian collisions accounted for 37 per cent of the 7660,000 accidents which occurred on the streets and highways of this country. Deaths resulting from such accidents comprised 45 per cent of the total of 29,500 fatalities. In other words, pedestrians were involved in more than a third of all traffic misadventures — and the chance of fatality was greater than in other types of accidents.

Pedestrians crossing in the middle of the block proved the most hazardous — that caused 31 per cent of the fatalities. Careless walking on highways was responsible for 17 per cent. Children playing in the street came to 13 per cent. Walking out from behind parked cars into traffic accounted for 11 per cent, with the balance of 28 per cent laid to miscellaneous causes.

The careless pedestrian is a menace just as is the careless driver—but he receives less attention. Crossing against signals — playing hide-and-seek with parked cars—walking along rural roads with back to oncoming traffic—these are some of the surest means of courting death. Think over your walking habits—and correct them.

Judith Lane by JEANNE BOWMAN

Chapter 43 ON THE STAND

JUDITH arose and rushed away to a far corner. She had no business listening, but to whom could he be talking? Judge Morgan probably, he would be interested in how she was feeling.

Later that morning, as she was dressing, she thought again of the conversation. The line, "she hadn't expected that kind of an attack." Well, she hadn't. She sent Delphy for the wide brimmed hat and pulled it low over her face. She would at least have that protection, if Lamper came in with other unjust accusations.

That will be all. I will call the next witness.

At the court room she discovered that Lampere had moved the chairs of the Bevins' women forward so that they faced Judith across a wide table, in fact, so that every time she looked towards the jury box, her gaze would be intercepted by the hatred which seemed to dwell eternally in Mathie's eyes.

"An old trick, we'll fix that," said Judge Morgan, and moved his client's chair back to the end of the table so that she sat in full view, but only by deliberately turning their backs to the judge, could the Bevins women stare their opponent out of countenance.

Your honor, I would like to enter this as exhibit 'A'.

The morning was used by Lampere to establish his claim that Tom Bevins was mentally ill during the last year of his life. To prove this he called the Bevins servants, personal friends. Dr. Kenneth Kelly was placed on the stand to testify to the nature of Tom Bevins' illness and to admit that such an illness could cause a mental reaction, even an advanced state of dementia.

"That will be all," said Lampere. "But, Mr. Lampere," objected Dr. Kelly, "in testifying I want it understood that where Tom Bevins was concerned—"

"That will be all," repeated Lampere, "I will call the next witness." He glanced towards Judith; she was trembling with indignation, anger. Her wide grey eyes were brilliant with tears.

"Miss Lane... I beg your pardon, Mrs. Dale, will you kindly take the stand?"

"YOUR Honor," Judge Morgan was on his feet, facing the judge by the time Lampere's voice had stopped. "Mr. Lampere forgets that my client is not the defendant. His work here is to prove the fallacy of the will, not to persecute its present beneficiary."

Judith touched his arm, "I don't mind, Judge Morgan, I'm ready now."

Judith took her seat looking at Lampere with a calm gaze which should have been disconcerting.

"Miss, er, Mrs. Dale, when did you first meet Tom Bevins?" "I don't remember exactly."

"Oh, come now, maybe I can refresh your memory. What year did you leave college?" "But I'd met him years before that. He was my father's partner when I wasn't more than a year old. I believe my first recollection of him was when I was five or six. He brought me a doll and gave the foreman's boy a toy engine with flat cars."

"Very pretty story," laughed Lampere, then with elaborate sarcasm, "and of course you can prove it." "Yes," answered Judith, and motioned Judge Morgan to hand her a letter, yellowed with age.

Z. L. Dameron, desk sergeant in the police station at Charlottesville, Va., has served on the force 35 years without a demerit on his record.

"Your honor, I would like to enter this as exhibit A," said Morgan, before releasing the letter to Judith. "It isn't necessary to read it," barked Lampere.

"But you asked for proof," returned Judith sweetly, "this letter is to my father, telling him another train, flat cars and toy derrick are en route to me. The date is—"

"I'll pass that, Mrs. Dale. When did you next meet Tom Bevins?" "I saw him frequently during my childhood until father went to South America and I started in college. Because of my mother's death when I was ten years old, I went into the field with my father. I had every intention of becoming an engineer so—"

"MRS. DALE, I am not asking for your life's history, I am asking you about your relations with Tom Bevins. When did you first become intimately acquainted with Mr. Bevins?"

"I received word of my father's death while I was in school. Mr. Bevins was in Austin at the time and heard of it. He came to me and offered to help me in any way he could."

"How did he help you?" "By advising me what to do."

"Come now, Mrs. Dale, do you mean you didn't accept money from him at the time?" "I did not. I was very young and very proud. My father had gone against Big Tom's advice in going to South America and had lost what money he had by doing so. I felt it would be disloyal to my father's memory to accept money."

"Why, then, did you try to force your way into his home?" "I didn't."

"Oh yes you did. You came down there bag and baggage, descended on Mrs. Bevins, and made yourself thoroughly at home. Didn't you, Mrs. Dale... honest, now, didn't you?"

"Mr. Bevins suggested I stay with them while I went to business school."

"But you didn't." "Not after I heard Mrs. Bevins say she wouldn't have me around the house."

"And then didn't you and Tom Bevins go into a huddle and decide you were to come into his office at the first opportunity?"

"No," returned Judith, calmly, "I only intended working at stenography until I had earned enough to complete my college course."

"Then why didn't you do that, instead of hanging around the millionaire engineer?" "Because after I had worked there a short time I realized I was learning more about engineering than I could learn in college. I was earning as much as a young woman engineer could learn and I was happy and contented."

When did you first become intimately acquainted with Mr. Bevins?

"Mrs. Dale, prior to your marriage and when you were living in your pent house, was it not true that Tom Bevins was a constant visitor there?"

"Yes, he was," answered Judith readily, "the most welcome visitor who came."

"Mrs. Dale, would it embarrass you too much to tell the jury why Mr. Bevins called on you so often?" "No," Judith caught her under lip in a quick smile, "he came to eat slumgullion."

Sundown Stories

The Missing Cubs By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

It was such fun for Willy Nilly the little man who lived with his animal friends in Puddle Muddle, to talk with Rip, the dog, Top Notch, the cat, and Jelly Bear, the bear, about the circus which had been visiting them.

"They left lots of food behind," growled Jelly Bear hungrily and happily. "They were pleasant visitors."

"They agreed that I was a magnificent rooster," said Top Notch, "and they taught me many fine tricks."

"Oh, you're so vain, Top Notch," cawed Christopher Columbus Crow. "Now, now, let's not get into any arguments," said Willy Nilly. "I must attend to my chores and do something about my sticking-out, pointed ears. We've had lots of excitement but we must get back to our own work. While the circus was here it was too thrilling to think of anything else."

"I must get back to the cubs, Jupiter and Blacky," growled Honey Bear. "They were quite all right for me to leave for a short time, but now I must see the little dears and their lessons must be authority."

Honey Bear walked lumberingly up to the cave, while the others began to plan what they would do first of all.

Suddenly they heard Honey Bear crying, and down from the cave she came now, hurrying for all she was worth. "The cubs are gone! My Jupiter and my Blacky are not in the cave! Oh, I should never have left them!" she cried in distress.

Murder at MOCKING HOUSE.

BY WALTER C. BROWN

"Take nothing for granted—remove no one from your list of suspects! NO ONE!" Pierre Dufresne's terrified warning sounded in Sergeant Harper's ears as he plunged from one mystery into another—deeper, more deadly.

For from then on, tragic intrigue marked a trail through the snow and into the ancient Dufresne mansion where 'ghostly' candle light flickered on a deathly scene.

How could anyone doubt that the two men there had killed each other and that one of them—disguised as Dufresne—was the crank who had been writing threatening letters to him?

But Harper's hunch is different... He tugs at the threads of mystery and weaves them into a net to trap the killer. His spotlight of suspicion falls in turn on lovely Sylvia Dufresne—a very clever and beautiful woman, her husband had said—high-strung Aline Croyden, her sister; Andrews, the old butler, the chauffeur and the other servants. Bit by bit, out of the lurking shadows of the old house, emerge the motives in the drama. And, finally, the solution.

Error In Song Contest.
In checking over the judges score in the Sacred Song contest last week it was found there had been a mistake in addition. Bethel made a score of 85 instead of 80 and tied with Stokes for first place. Both clubs sang "Abide With Me."

Health Contest.
The following clubs have had the annual health examinations this month: Belvoir, junior and senior; Falkland, junior; Fountain, junior and senior; Griffon, junior and senior; Bethel, H. E. Stokes, junior and senior; Pocatous, junior and senior; Bell Arthur, junior and senior. The girls are improving each year and it is hard to tell who might win in the county contest which will be announced soon. They are always scored most rigidly on the things they can do for themselves.

Stokes 4-Exhibit.
The two 4-H clubs at Stokes exhibited their work at the school building last Friday morning. The sick room was converted into an exhibit hall for the occasion and there was ample proof that there are some working girls at Stokes. During the chapel hour the dresses were worn in a style review. Dorothy Robinson made the best dress in the senior club, Mayo James second, and Margaret Moore third. In the junior club, Grace Parker made the best dress, Virginia Woodard second, and Nell Overton third. The judges took into consideration the age of the girl, the cost of all dress and whether she made it all alone as well as the workmanship and the general appearance. The cost ranged from 45 cents to $2.02. The ages ranged from 11 to 18. When a girl has had help with her sewing she usually admits it and does not expect full credit for the workmanship.

Home Demonstration Clubs.
The Winterville Club met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. L. R. McLawhorn. Sixteen were in attendance. We were glad to have Mrs. J. B. Spilman of Greenville who made a short talk on "The First Woman's Club."

The Simpson Club met with Mrs. Bessie Barron. Hostesses were Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Mrs. Elks. Twenty-two members were present. They sent a contribution to the Greenville Woman's Club.

The Pierce Club met at the club house Thursday afternoon. Hostesses were Mrs. Sam Pierce, Mrs. Levi Pierce and Miss Katie Pierce.

Attend Allen-Elison Wedding.
Mrs. S. T. White, Miss Helen White, Mrs. W. L. Hall, Miss Jane Hall, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Tyson, Miss Katherine Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hellen, Mrs. Horlene Moyer, Miss Clara Louise Moyer, Miss Mattie Moyer Gaylord, Miss Mattie Moyer Gaylord, Miss Mary James Lipscomb, Miss Eloise Garrett, Mrs. F. J. Forbes, Miss Margaret Blow, Buster Starkey and Carey Mayo, Jr. attended the wedding of the former Miss Lillian Burch Ellison and Robert P. Allen which was solemnized in a brilliant ceremony in St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Washington Saturday evening at 6:30.

Pointers on Poise

STANDING GRACEFULLY
(By Laura Townsend Davies)

Hours have been spent teaching many of us how to handle our forks and spoons correctly, but precious few of us have had the slightest training in the matter of handling ourselves, or leaning the social amenities, such as keeping our listeners awake and making all our guests feel equally consequential.

In spite of a general lack of training in these directions, most of us admire tremendously that man or woman who has charm of manner and poise. But too often we make the mistake of thinking that poise is solely a gift of personality, when as a matter of fact, it is largely the result of training.

That favorite movie actress of yours does not "just happen" to do her parts pleasingly. As for the interesting lecturer you heard recently, his splendid poise was the outgrowth of experience. The ease of manner and poise that artists bring to their work may be yours, if you are willing to make the effort.

Take the right, graceful way to handle our feet when standing. If you don't believe this is important just observe the "unbeautiful" positions women get their feet into. For grace, a woman should stand with her feet together, the weight swayed slightly forward over the ball of one foot, the back foot and kept propped against the front foot and knee.

Try this in front of a long mirror, and you will never again make the mistake of standing with your feet spread apart.

An actress stands with her feet a-straddle only when she is portraying a common, bold type. For beauty of carriage, and to show your clothes to better advantage, practice using your feet correctly.

This girl, Helen Vinson of the screen, is standing gracefully.

The Griffon Club met Friday afternoon with Mrs. Chauncey. Delicious refreshments were served.

Schedule For Next Week.
Monday, 3 p. m.—Farmville H. D. Club at the home of Mrs. O. C. Stocks.
Tuesday morning, Grimesland health examinations.
Wednesday morning, Farmville health examinations.
Wednesday, 3 p. m.—Ballard's Cross Roads H. D. Club at the community house.
Thursday morning, Chicod health examinations.
Thursday, 3 p. m.—Chicod H. D. Club at the school.
Friday, 10 a. m.—School for canning leaders at the Woman's Club. Mrs. Irma P. Wallace will give demonstrations in making pickles to sell. All food leaders are invited.

Roosevelt To Retain Present Bi-Partisan Of His Administration

By BYRON PRICE

President Roosevelt's desire to perpetuate and broaden the bi-partisan alliances of 1932, despite growing resentment among old-line democrats, becomes increasingly plain as the off-year campaign approaches.

It is not alone the Roosevelt democrats are openly supporting one republican senatorial candidate and flirting with several others, or that Roosevelt republicans have sought in states such as Illinois to control the primary elections of the republican organization.

The evidence goes much deeper than any local state situation. It finds expression in the continual complaints of democratic members of congress that too many republicans are being appointed to federal office, and in the persistence with which Mr. Roosevelt's advisers have kept constantly at hand a card-index list of "bad" democrats and "good" republicans.

In the President's own utterances there appears a definite consciousness that several millions of republican voted for him in 1932. Rarely does he mention the democratic party; far oftener he speaks of non-partisan endeavor as the basis of the new order he symbolizes.

His deliberate banishment of certain of his warmest democratic supporters from the inner circle of his administration demonstrated how far he is ready to go in warning the politicians they need not expect to exercise "influence" just because they happen to be prominent in the democratic party.

Comparatively little notice was taken of it amid the rush of other Washington developments, but the house recently gave an eloquent proof of the differences existing between the President and many party men on the question of regularity and patronage.

To a pending bill the senate attached an amendment barring political considerations from appointments to the Home Loan corporation. A republican—Norris of Nebraska—presented that amendment, and the senate adopted it by a narrow margin with many stalwart democrats opposing it.

Mr. Roosevelt asked the house to accept it. But democratic house leaders not only turned it down in committee, but tried by parliamentary means to keep the house from voting at all. Most of them made no bones about their purpose; they wanted the jobs.

Finally, the republicans forced a vote. The amendment was defeated 230 to 141. Against it were recorded 230 democrats; for it, 22 democrats. The republicans voted solidly with the President.

For several reasons, that roll call deserves to be preserved as an historical exhibit.

New Books

By JOHN SELBY

There is renewed interest in the west and there are plenty of books to prove it. One of them is George D. Lyman's "The Saga of the Comstock Lode."

The author is a child specialist in San Francisco. He came by his interest in Nevada mining days legitimately, since he was born in Virginia City. That interest has led him to assemble one of the most important known collections of material on the west.

From all this he has drawn a book that seems best described by the adjective "gorgeous." It tells the story of the famous Comstock Lode, as promised by the title. But there is more to the book than that. There are dozens of fabulous characters abroad in its pages, from Mark Twain to the bibulous gentleman who named Virginia City.

It is a roaring tale of a day when the surest way to win an argument was to be quick on the draw, when justice as quicker than now, and its miscarriages were for the most part not susceptible to rectification, since the convicted one usually was dangling from a conspicuous tree. And it is full of apparently authentic data concerning men who since have become famous—the Pairs and the Mackays, for example.

Thumbnail Reviews.
"We Sail Tomorrow" by Frederick Hazlett Brennan; A pleasant romance (that men as well as women will like) about a junior officer in love with his commander's wife, and a captain too weak to manage his crew; the navy is in it.
"Long Remember" by MacKinlay Kantor; a romance which has the Civil War and especially the battle of Gettysburg for its backdrop; the woman in the case was already married.
"Family Cruise" by Helen Ashton; the author of "Dr. Seacole" does a kind of "Grand Hotel" book in which a family takes its troubles on a cruise to the Grecian Isles and has a very amusing time of it, too.
"Kaleidoscope," by Stefan Zweig; writes some mannered short pieces which move so slowly at times as to seem stationary.
"Once A Wilderness" by Arthur Pound; in which a versatile writer does another of those sagas of the soil, without forgetting to keep his Captain John Mark and the farm in touch with the rest of civilization.

Mr. Bromfield.
"Here Today and Gone Tomorrow" by Louis Bromfield; four short novels about the sort of people who are here today and gone

Price Sees Breathing Spell Following A Year of Action

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

One impressive element in the present Washington outlook is the apparent disposition of President Roosevelt to give the country a breathing space.

For a year action has followed action and experiment has succeeded experiment with a rapidity which made it difficult to keep track of all that was happening.

Now the prospect is for a summer of comparative quiet. Congress is to go home, the President to Hawaii. Government machinery will continue to operate, of course, but on lines already pretty well understood. New policies are out. At least that is the idea just now.

Business, especially, has been asking for such a respite. Through the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the industrial advisory boards set up under NRA, and many other avenues, the argument has been put forward persistently that what the patient needs now is rest, rather than more operations.

The burden of the plea has been that credit will be freer, big and little business men more willing to launch expansions, and the public itself less disposed to "hoard and hang back, if it is known that no violent changes in the economic structure are in contemplation.

Advocacy of such an armistice is by no means confined to those who think the Roosevelt policies bad.

Some of the President's warmest supporters believe that he already has done can accomplish the greatest good only if his ventures are permitted to work themselves out in an atmosphere devoid of too many outside distractions.

Others do not agree, and on Mr. Roosevelt's return from Florida there was a grand scramble to get his ear. Congressmen with pet bills, brain trusters filled with ideas, "reformers" of various types, all were for more and more action.

He accepted as a part of his program only two really first-calibre projects, and he already had been committed to both of these. One was more rigid stock market regulation. The other was a mammoth lending campaign to stimulate building construction.

He rejected any sweeping currency expansion, the bill to pay off bank depositors, the labor board bill (except in modified form) and of the other legislation pending on a crowded calendar. And he was quite clear on the point of wanting Congress to quit and go home.

Mr. Roosevelt himself has indicated more than once that he looks on life as a sort of game. He loves to give and take dices.

Often, when individuals and groups come to him asking for this or that, he says: "Well draft a bill. Let's see if you can work it out on a practical basis."

Now he is using that same process in reverse. He has put industry on the spot. It asked for a moratorium and promised all sorts of things in the way of business improvement would result.

Everyone knows that if the promise is not made good, there will be plenty of fireworks after the trial period is over.

BILLIONS IN WORLD ARMS REVEALED BY LEAGUE

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY

Geneva, April 17.—(AP)—While the entire world is wobbling economically, the nations are pending annually about $7,000,000 on armaments, say military experts who have been working for two years at the League of Nations.

The experts constitute one of the branches of the international disarmament conference. They were instructed to find out whether it was feasible to establish a system of international publicity in connection with military budgets, and also whether it was possible to limit armaments by agreeing upon a limitation of armament budgets.

The committee believes budget publicity can be worked out, but that armament cuts through budget limitations are not practical.

Though the experts gathered from various countries have been wrestling with figures daily, since the conference began in 1932, there never has been an outburst of impatience by any delegate.

Hope 'Something Be Done'
They haven't gotten mad at one another as men sometimes will who are doomed to daily discussion of a disputatious subject. On the contrary, they established such a fine feeling of brotherhood that they formed a little club.

Apparently, the experts, staggered by the huge sums expended in preparation for or against war, found a fraternity based on the hope that "something will be done about it."

This amazingly long and detailed investigation which is now completed, revealed one or two other things. One was the seeming completeness of budgetary details furnished by the big powers. There was no evidence of attempts to conceal amounts expended for military purposes.

The military budgets of 61 states were examined and generally in the presence of a special expert sent by the country whose budget was under scrutiny. The committee examined 10,000 mimeographed pages of a material which flowed in from all corners of the world in answer to 400 questions.

Prepare Model Budget
The committee decided that publicity for military budgets as a feature of the projected disarmament convention is feasible, provided all nations accept a standard form of budget. The committee has drawn up a model budget which will go to the conference, if it ever meets again.

Rocks were encountered in the attempt to cut armaments by limiting budgets. Several nations do not cotton to this yardstick of comparison.

The United States, which used to have a representative on the committee, believes that on account of the difference in costs in various countries (in the United States, soldiers and sailors are paid more than in other lands, for example), it is not practicable to compare armaments by comparing their costs.

Three Nations Unarmed
Japan, Germany and Italy also are of the opinion that budgetary limitation is not possible at this time.

The total world military expense of $7,000,000,000 as reckoned at today's average rate of exchange is based on the aggregate estimates for 1931.

Panama, Haiti and Luxembourg told the committee they have no military budgets whatsoever—merely police budgets.

Richmond Has R. R. Centennial
Richmond, Va.—(AP)—Ceremonies were held the other day celebrating Richmond's centennial as a railroad terminal. The first train left the city in February, 1834, on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac railroad leading to Fredericksburg, Va.

New York Cotton

New York, April 23—(AP)—Cotton futures opened fairly steady 9 to 12 points decline on lower Liverpool cables, favorable weather and under May liquidation.

Trading was moderately active on the opening. Prices steadied and early fluctuations were narrow with July selling around 11.60 and at the end of the first half hour when active months showed losses of 9 to 12 points.

There was little change in the differences between by months and the general market was no better than steady at midday with July market around 11.59, or about 10 to 12 points lower.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 23—(AP)—Diffident financial markets were inclined to drift indecisively today as traders and investors waited for news of a more stimulating character.

Word that the treasury would export gold if necessary in order to maintain the new parity of the dollar brought recovery of three in the American unit in foreign exchange centers. Wheat dropped more than a cent a bushel but got back most of the loss. Cotton dropped. Rubber on the other hand edged up to new top since 1930 as more reports were heard of imminent restrictive measures abroad. Bonds were irregular.

A few preferred stocks and specialties set out for sizeable advances. The metals and aircraft were mixed and utilities dull.

Transfers were 1,000,000 shares.

from the House, grew more ominous at the same time. Flaunting presidential opposition, senators favoring a congressional mandate to increase the metal value decided to press on with the House bill under which silver would be accepted at above world prices in payment for farm supplies.

The House vote was on a parliamentary question.

Had the tally gone counter to supporters of the President's position the McLeod bill would have been put up for debate. As it stands the maneuvering will go on.

Administration leaders in the Senate centered on ways of holding off mandatory silver action. Only time could tell what would eventually.

The immediate contest was over air mail contract cancellation. The bill for a new setup, contended Austin, representative from Vermont, would assert the government's right to rob its citizens.

Dillinger Men Escape Ambush
St. Paul, April 23—(AP)—Out shooting a deputy sheriff, three men believed to be Dillinger gangsters escaped a highway ambush in St. Paul Park, 8 miles southwest of St. Paul shortly before noon today.

Twenty shots were exchanged. The men were riding in a Ford coupe bearing a Wisconsin license number 92652, which is one of the three Dillinger license numbers known to the department of justice, men.

The shooting followed a St. Paul radio broadcast ordering all cars to assist Dakota county authorities in the pursuit.

Some of the shots were reported to have struck the Dakota county squad car which continued the chase. Whether anyone was wounded was not immediately determined.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

One of the few shifts that have stood up under the wear and tear of the major league training route is the comeback of Travis (Stonewall) Jackson as shortstop of the world champion New York Giants.

His replacement of the colorful Biondy Ryan was the biggest single development in the Giants' camp at Miami Beach and the indications all point to Jackson being a vital factor in the attempt of the team to repeat. Jackson has been fielding with his old-time skill, on either side, and his bat should add considerable strength to the attack.

It was only a year ago that Manager Bill Terry was basing his somewhat slim hopes of a first division berth upon Jackson's ability to play regularly at short. It was apparent in California, however, that Jackson's legs were not fully recovered from the operation of the previous winter and Ryan got the call.

The way the ex-Holly Cross star came through, playing a heroic role in the pennant drive, is familiar baseball history—one of the most dramatic episodes in any sport in recent years.

Ryan is now bustling around as the chief infield utility man, ready to substitute for either Jackson or Hughey Critz at second base, when ever the occasion demands.

Travis Sees Full Year
I talked with Jackson during the earlier workouts at Miami Beach not long after he had been told by Terry that he had regained his old job.

"I don't want to be over-confident about my legs but I really feel they are back in good enough shape to carry me through the full season," said the Arkansas traveler. "I figure it has simply taken longer than I originally expected to get over the effects of the operation on each knee. You know, they took a piece of bone out of one knee and a cartilage from the other."

"My legs really were all right last year but Ryan was going so good it would have been foolish to try to put me in there. Then when I had to go back into the game near the end of the season I was bothered by charley-horses. My knees gave me no trouble at all but the muscles not having had enough active work stiffened up and made me feel like I was playing on wooden legs."

Fine Slab Corps Clash
No matter how they fare along the exhibition trail, Terry and the Giants should have their batting eyes pretty well sharpened up by the time they fish their tour with Walter Johnson's Cleveland Indians.

The world champions happen to have picked one of the best curving corps in either league for spring sparring partners. The situation is mutual, inasmuch as pitching is the chief asset of the Giants, but the reports coming in from the correspondents indicate Hildebrand, Hudlin, Pearson, Harder and others of Johnson's star staff have been flinging in more advanced form than Hubbell, Schumacher, Fitzsimmons and Parmelee.

Moreover, it is increasingly apparent if there is anything the matter with the Giants or any cause for apprehension in their early form, it is the absence of Gus Mancuso, recovering slowly from an attack of typhoid.

PIRATES TO PLAY

A. C. C. BULLDOGS
The Pirates of East Carolina Teachers college will meet the A. C. C. baseball team on the College diamond tomorrow at 3:30. A capacity crowd is expected.

Troy Burnett local boy will pitch for the Pirates, he has won two games in as many starts. Johnson will catch.

The battery has not been announced for A. C. C., but local fans will be interested to know the S. R. Lee former Greenville boy is reported one of the big guns of the A. C. C. nine.

The local team will be strengthened by the return of "Runt" Bostic, hard hitting short stop, who has been out for the past two games. The Pirates are in top form for the game, and promise to stand the show.

High To Play

Kiwanis Club

On Thursday

A baseball game between Kiwanians and Greenville high school has been arranged for next Thursday afternoon, and part of the proceeds will go to the Kiwanis book fund for Sheppard Memorial Library.

The other part of the gate receipts will go to the athletic department of Greenville high, and it was hoped the public would attend the game in large numbers and help swell the library stock and the high school athletic pocketbook.

After trimming two high school aggregations this season, the Kiwanians were looking forward to adding another scalp to their belt in this game with the high school laddies. And the high school aggregation, under the leadership of Andy Hewlett, is just as determined to take the Kiwanians in camp.

Donald Conley, who does the pitching job for the clubmen will probably be on the mound, and while Hewlett has not announced who will do the chanking for him, it is likely he will place his best man on the mound.

The Kiwanis team is made up mainly of former college and professional players and the fast brand of ball they have been playing this season indicates that they will give higs some of the stiffest competition of the season.
