Forest Fires Threaten Mountain Towns Britain Threatens Occupation During Arabian Tribe War

TWO PERSONS DIE IN FIRES WILKES AREA

Number Of Homes Destroyed As Flames Rage. Unchecked In Wilkes And Allegheny Counties; Roaring Gap, Summer Resort, Reported In Path Of Blaze; Many Volunteers Fight Flames

Doughton, N. C., May 4.—(AP)—Two persons are believed dead and sixteen homes known to have been destroyed in one of several disastrous forest fires sweeping mountains of North Carolina.

More than 200,000 acres, it is estimated have been burned over and the flames were still raging in Wilkes and Allegheny counties.

Reports reaching here said that Mrs. Alice Calloway, mother of three children, and a firefighter whose name was not learned, had perished in the fire of the Mitchell River community at the foot of Roaring Gap. They were missing when citizens of their community evacuated their homes and abandoned their property to the invading flames.

Another fire thought to be even larger is raging over Stone Mountain on the edge of Wilkes. Although the flames advanced within two miles of Roaring Gap, exclusive summer resort, it is not believed the village is in danger.

However, the fire in the Mitchell community might endanger the resort if not brought under control. Thirteen homes were fed into the flames at this place and several homes were said to have burned in the Stone Mountain fire.

Refugees from the mountain section said the fire swept in suddenly. One man, an invalid, narrowly escaped with his life when friends carried him out of the path of the fire.

Hundreds of volunteers sought to check the flames last night but none of the major blazes were entirely under control early today.

More than 100 Elkin residents joined the forces combating the Stone Mountain fire.

W. H. WOODIN DIES IN N. Y.

Former Head Of The Treasury Succumbs To Throat Infection Last Night

New York, May 4.—(AP)—William H. Woodin, whose warm friendship for Franklin D. Roosevelt led him to take the helm of the Treasury in one of the nation's gravest crises, died last night.

The industrialist and composer, whose health had been frail in recent years, died in a hospital from the ravages of a throat infection. He would have been 66 years old late this month.

For seven months, though the strain of the national bank holiday and the unprecedented monetary experiments of the "New Deal," Mr. Woodin held to his post until last November, when he first obtained a leave of absence; and finally on January 1, resigned as Secretary of the Treasury.

The President, whom he called "Governor" and by whom he was in turn addressed as "Will," served times took occasion to acknowledge the value of the counsel and administrative ability of Mr. Woodin.

There are 12,000 students and a faculty of 750 at Temple University, Philadelphia.

WORK BEGINS ON POOL HERE

Twenty Men Find Employment As Construction Of Swimming Pool Resumed

Work was resumed today on the Greenville swimming pool which was among several projects abandoned in this county by the CWA the latter part of March.

Original plans called for completion of the pool by May 1, but delay in obtaining funds from the federal government has stalled work to such an extent that it will probably be mid-summer before the pool is finished.

ASKS PUBLIC TO OBSERVE SAFETY WEEK

Mayor Flanagan Calls On Citizens To Take Part In Observance May 7 To 12

Mayor R. C. Flanagan today issued a proclamation calling on the people of Greenville and community to join the remainder of the state in the observance of "Safety Week" from May 7 to 12.

The proclamation is in keeping with a similar pronouncement recently issued by Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus urging the people of the state to make an effort to reduce the loss of life and property on the public highways not only during the week but throughout the year.

A safety committee was set up in this county sometime ago to promote greater care in the operation of automobiles and it was expected the committee members in various parts of the county would use their influence in helping make "Safety Week" more significant than otherwise.

The Mayor's proclamation follows: WHEREAS, the increasing loss of life and limb upon the public streets and highways of our state have reached enormous proportions, and WHEREAS, there is a great need for every citizen, man, woman and child to appreciate and assume their own individual responsibility in preventing street and highway accidents and,

WHEREAS, the week of May 7th to 12th has been designated as "Safety Week" in our state.

I, R. C. Flanagan, Mayor of Greenville, N. C., do hereby proclaim the week of May 7th to 12th to be "Safety Week" in Greenville, and I hereby call up on all our good citizens of every race, in the interest of humanity, to lend their cooperation in the efforts now being made to bring about a reduction in highway accidents, not only during the week of May 7th, but throughout the year. This cooperation can be given by simply taking time to drive carefully, to observe all rules of the road, to obey all traffic signals and to practice the Golden Rule upon the streets and highways as they would in their own homes.

Registration books for the state-wide primary in June will close tomorrow night and candidates who wish to get in the race must get busy.

TAX LISTING WILL CLOSE ON SATURDAY

No Further Extension Of Time Will Be Allowed, Tax Head Declared Today

Tax listing will be brought to a close in Pitt county tomorrow and persons who have not yet listed either county or city taxes would do well to get busy and do so before the books are definitely closed.

The listing was to have closed April 30 but owing to the fact that work was late getting underway, the period was extended through this week.

Although quite a rush has been reported in the listing room at the courthouse, it was believed today that quite a number of persons had not yet listed and they were urged to do so immediately in view of the fact that the law provides a penalty for failure to list.

REGISTRATION BOOKS CLOSE ON SATURDAY

Final Rush Of Candidates In State Primary Expected Today And Tomorrow

Registration books for the state-wide primary in June will close tomorrow night and candidates who wish to get in the race must get busy.

Pitt county, with one of the biggest crops of candidates in years, will probably see other entrances in the various fields of contest before the books close. The rush closed several days ago but from one to two hats have been flung into the ring from day to day with indications that others will come.

Plenty of competition prevails in the race for the Board of County Commissioners where around 12 entrances have been recorded.

Still, this is just one phase of the battle of ballots, as there is plenty of competition in the other fields. Take the office of sheriff for instance. Two candidates are entered against Sheriff Sam Whitehurst.

There is no shortage of contest for the office of County Treasurer, either, as five candidates are entered for the post. One of them is Thurman Moore, present incumbent who is seeking re-election.

There are four seeking seats in the House of Representatives and two for the Senate of the State legislature.

J. C. Gaskins is opposed by a single candidate for the office of register of deeds.

Contest has developed for the office of constable in the majority of townships of the county.

LIBRARY FUND GIVEN BOOST BY ALDERMEN

$150 Contributed By Solons At Regular Monthly Meeting At City Hall Last Night

The Library fund received an additional boost last night when members of the Board of Aldermen, meeting in regular monthly session at the city hall, contributed $150 to the cause.

The gift came after Mrs. B. B. Sugg had told the board of the status of the library and the inability to buy new books to replace old ones which time had taken toll of.

Mrs. Sugg said the book supply had become alarmingly depleted in recent years, especially those in the children's department, and called on the aldermen to give to the limit of their ability so that the stock might be improved.

The board received a petition from Mrs. R. P. Pittman, daughter of the late Henry T. King, Mrs. M. H. White and L. B. Fleming to dedicate and continue Contentee street from Third street to the river and Colonial street up to the proposed opening of Connetta street.

The board instructed Mayor Flanagan upon receipt of proper legal dedication from owners of the property and required maps to instruct the street committee to open the streets as requested by the committee.

The board also instructed the Mayor with a committee to go to Raleigh to determine if more labor could not be obtained so the swimming pool now under construction on Fifth street may be completed in time to be enjoyed during the summer.

A fifty per cent release of interests was also directed by the board on street paving assessments providing accounts were paid in full by June 1. After that date a complete audit of accounts will be made.

Persons owning assessments of this kind were urged to make settlement immediately and realize a distinct saving.

Sanction was given to a meeting of police and other law enforcement officials to be held here, the date to be determined by Chief of Police George Clark, one of the leaders of the convention.

The street committee with the mayor were asked to continue efforts to obtain a better crossing at the A. C. L. depot on Dickson Avenue and to insist that weak places in the pavement on that street be taken care of with concrete reinforcement.

Reports from the Clerk and Treasurer regarding the financial standing of the city indicated that the government would finish the year within the budget. All departments have cooperated fully in the movement this year to operate the government on a decreased amount of money and the report that they would do so was received with interest by the mayor and members of the board.

Mrs. Baker Dies Here; Funeral At Edenton Saturday

Mrs. Carl A. Baker, 27, died this morning at 4:45 at the local hospital, after illness of three weeks.

The body will be taken to the home of her mother, Mrs. S. W. Ward, in Edenton, this afternoon and funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 by Rev. J. T. Bynum. Burial will be made in Edenton.

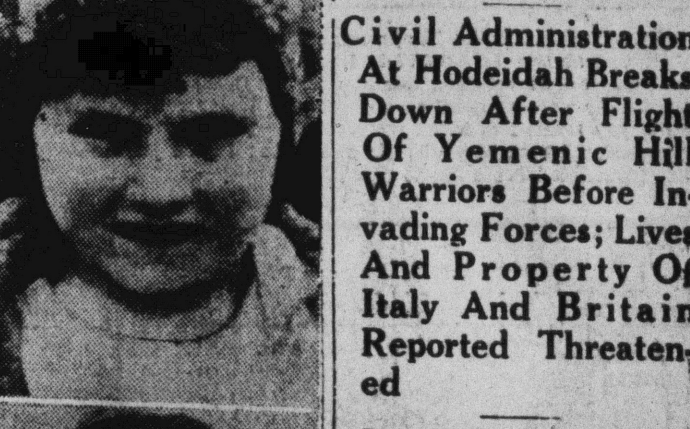

Mrs. Baker, a native of Ryland, had been living here six weeks. She was a member of the Missionary Baptist Church of Ballard's Bridge near Edenton. The family came here from Edenton.

PROTECTION OF PROPERTY BEING SOUGHT

Civil Administration At Hodeidah Breaks Down After Flight Of Yemenic Hill Warriors Before Invading Forces; Lives And Property Of Italy And Britain Reported Threatened

Mother Jailed For Burning Girl

Rome, May 4.—(AP)—The Italian government today ordered three light warships to Hodeidah to protect Italian subjects and property which may be in danger by the conflict in Yemen.

The order for the dispatch of the warships came from Benito Mussolini as premier and minister of the navy.

An official communique stated: "In view of the events happening in the Arabian peninsula in consequence of the war between the Saudi kingdom and Yemen and owing to the noteworthy Italian interest in the Red Sea area, three of our naval units stationed in the Red Sea have been sent to Hodeidah to protect lives and property of Italy."

London, May 4.—(AP)—British occupation of Hodeidah was threatened today because of the breakdown of the civil administration at conquerors of Ibn Saud, ruler of the as result of the headlong flight of Yemenic hill warriors before the conquerors of Ibn Saud, ruler of the Saudi Arabia.

Apprehension over the ambition of the powerful Ibn Saud in other parts of the Arabian world was overshadowed in British official quarters by alarming reports that a state of anarchy exists in Yemen itself. Reports today said that Ibn Saud's formidable military machine was in possession of the great port of Emen a port bounded by the Red Sea and the British control of Aden.

It was indicated that the fighting between Ibn Saud and Iman Yahya, ruler of Emen probably was over but the danger of widespread disorder brought new threats to the establishment of tranquility.

ARREST N. C. MAN IN TEXAS

Kenneth C. Cooke Of Pilot Mountain Held For Embezzling Tax Funds

Dallas, Tex., May 4.—(AP)—Kenneth C. Cooke, 38, former tax collector and chief of police of Pilot Mountain, N. C., was being held here today following his arrest for North Carolina authorities on a charge of misappropriation of funds.

Pilot Mountain, N. C., May 4.—(AP)—Kenneth C. Cooke, held by Texas rangers for local authorities on a charge of embezzlement of tax funds, has waived extradition and an officer left here today for Dallas to return him here. When arrested Cooke was accompanied by Mrs. Alice Hester, divorcee of Winston Salem.

Cooke disappeared from Pilot Mountain Sunday, April 22, telling his wife he would never come back.

An audit of his accounts revealed a shortage of more than $1,000 according to town officials, and he was charged with misappropriation of tax funds. The loss was covered by his bond.

The chances are all against trigger-fingered John Dillinger even if he has come out on top in his brushes with the law so far. Sooner or later, authorities hold, the desperado will go the way of his predecessors. They cite the examples of other outlaws. There was Jesse James, shown in the sketch at left. He operated successfully until Robert Ford shot him in 1882 to gain a reward of $30,000. A more modern gunman was Gerald Chapman (second from left). An escaped convict, he was hunted two years for robbery and murder, finally was caught in Indiana, and then hanged in Connecticut in 1926. 'A BACHELOR'S DREAM' PRESENTED AT COLLEGE. A pantomime, "A Bachelors Dream," was presented by the Home Economics Club of East Carolina Teachers College this morning at the assembly hour.

A bachelor, which part was taken by Miss Will Higdon, disgusted after an attempt to do his own housekeeping, puts out the sign "Housekeeper Wanted." A succession of unsatisfactory applicants present themselves, but finally an attractive Home Economics graduate proves so satisfactory that he changes the sign to "Wanted: A Wife." The parts were as follows: the ignorant, old fashioned girl, Miss Elizabeth Odum; the fat, lazy girl, Miss Lola Brooks; the ten-cent-store clerk, Miss Ruth Cagle; the negro, Miss Mary Elizabeth Crawford; the flapper, Miss Pennie Keel Lang; and the Home Economics graduate, Miss Clara Van Freeman.

ART EXHIBIT IN SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY. There is now on display at Sheppard Memorial Library an exhibit secured from the Division of Graphic Arts of the United States National Museum. The exhibit is sponsored by an Art Appreciation class of East Carolina Teachers College under the direction of Miss Ruth Bonnewitz. The whole display has marked educational value. It shows how prints are made, banknote and stipple engraving processes, etching, dry point, pointing for the blind and many other interesting features. Quoting from one of the sheets in the package: "This exhibit is to represent art as an industry. The expression must be taken in its literal sense, as conveying the idea that art productions, from the great frescoes by the most distinguished painters to the illustrations produced by the latest photo-mechanical processes are here to be considered primarily from the technical side. This particular exhibit attempts to present in concise form a general survey of the more important processes with which the Division is concerned."

The sponsors and the library staff invite the public to come to the library and see the exhibit. It is conveniently arranged under the skylight in the stock room.

TESTIFIES IN SUIT TO RECOVER DAMAGES. Winston-Salem, May 4.—(AP)—Sandel Rosenbacher, Winston-Salem traveling salesman, testified this morning in his $10,000 personal damages suit against operators of Richardson's High Point clothing store, who he alleges assaulted him. The plaintiff said he was assailed without provocation by C. C. Newton and William Gordon when he called upon them. He said he was leaving the store when he overheard Newton say he thought he "was going to have to throw that Jew out." When re-monstrated, Rosenbacher alleges, he was beaten by both defendants.

Washington Daybook

Washington — If there had been any doubt that the senate was girded for the stiffest legislative battle of the present session over the administration's pending tariff bill Secretary Hull's appearance before that body's financial committee must have removed it.

The quiz to which the mild-mannered, silver-haired secretary of state—himself a veteran of many hard-fought tariff battles—was suggested by republican stalwarts impressed all who heard it as merely a forerunner of what is to come.

Reed of Pennsylvania, heir to the title "high priest of protectionism," held for so long by Smoot of Utah, bred down so hard on Hull that at the conclusion he felt constrained to say: "Mr. Secretary, I hope that despite what I have said this morning you will believe that I hold, as always, the greatest admiration and respect for you."

Reed Leads Foes. Upon the Pennsylvania senator's shoulders rests the responsibility of leading his party's opposition in the senate to the request of the President to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with foreign countries.

Heretofore tasks like this were handled by Senator Smoot. With his defeat, in 1932, however, Reed moved up as ranking republican on the senate finance committee and thus leader for the minority in all contests involving fiscal affairs.

Reed already is on record as believing the bill a "menace to the security and happiness of every American home" and a measure which "might easily upset the whole recovery program."

His and his party's opposition, however, is more specific than that. Questions fired at Secretary Hull before the committee demonstrated this.

largely on two broad principals. Why, they will demand of the democrats, do you propose to give these treaties, raising or lowering duties, that might bring "incredible ruin" (the phrase is Reed's) to a domestic industry, without giving that industry a chance to be heard? The democrats' reply will be: It would take too long. It took two years or more to enact the Fordney-McCumber tariff law and almost that long to pass the recent Smoot-Hawley act. The idea here is to act quickly.

Again republicans will say: You democratic leaders in the past have admitted frankly that tariff-making and revision under the constitution are legislative duties. Then why deprive the senate of even the right to ratify these treaties when they are made?

And the democrats will reply: That admission was made by us when times were not as they are now. Again, the idea here is to act quickly. Don't you know that we are still in an emergency.

GETS SIX MONTHS FOR CRUELTY TO ANIMAL.

Halifax, May 4.—One of the most brutal cases of cruelty to animals was tried in recorder's court Tuesday Walter Williams, colored defendant pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six months on the roads by Judge C. R. Daniel.

The evidence revealed the occurrence as follows: Williams had rented two oxen from R. Hunter Pope, and after allowing one to get lost without attempting to recover it, he beat the other unmercifully knocking out its eyes, breaking one leg, and beating a hole in its back; after which he tied its feet together, threw it on its back and left it without food or water. It was found two days later by R.

The project for the deepening of Tar River to this point must travel a long road to ever become a reality, in view of the fact that it must first pass three boards of engineers and then wait its turn to be presented to Congress, but even at that, the project is well worth working for. It may take some time to get the project through but the great future savings that our people would derive from the provision for water transportation to this city will prove well worth the time and effort and we hope that those interested in the movement will continue to push it.

Tomorrow night ends the filing time for candidates. If you have any notion of running for office in the coming primary the time for making your decision is short. After tomorrow it will be too late.

Again we urge the voters to require the candidates to state where they stand on the important issues to come before the next legislature. The day of the "Pig in the Bag" is passed and the same should be true in voting. No candidate who is unwilling to face the issues squarely and state where he stands is entitled to the support of the voters.

More than $300,000 has been paid to tobacco farmers in this county within less than two weeks and these payments will continue until the total sum has reached more than $500,000. Of course this money is going to be spent and if you are not getting your part of it, Mr. Merchant, let us suggest that you tell these buyers what you have to offer through the columns of your newspaper. Newspaper advertising is the most effective method to use in getting your sales message over to the buying public.

MEN AND MONEY

(News and Observer)
The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, yesterday added the weight of its prestige to that of other organizations which have endorsed the principal that in any future wars wealth shall be drafted along with men.

The past has been too full of wealth growing fatter at home synonymously with men dying on the battlefield. Men have been drafted to fight in the same war in which wealth was left to grow rich and as even assured a profitable return. Only on the grounds that wealth is more sacred than human life is there any basis for not applying the draft to money as well as men.

In no future war will the American people be content with a draft of men without a draft of capital as well.

Murder at MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER C. BROWN

SYNOPSIS: After receiving a series of threatening letters, Pierre Dufresne is ambushed on a lonely road. Sergeant Harper has left Dufresne drunk in his suite at the Austerlitz, after sending to open the latter's house on Pochatan Terrace as bait for the wood-be killer. But before that can be done it is found that Officer Hamill and another man are lying dead in the breakfast room of Dufresne's house. Harper, Doyle, a newspaper reporter, and some others are investigating the crime.

Chapter Nine THREE SHOTS

THE scene of the crime was a costly furnished breakfast-room, resplendent with polished wood, gleaming silver, sparkling glass, against a background of dark-stained wainscoting and richly embossed wallpaper, hung here and there with the bright colors of hunting scenes. In the center of the room stood a refectory table, with eight chairs ranged around it—three at each side, one at the foot, and a more formal armchair at the host's place.

On this table six slender wax tapers had burned down to guttering stubs. There was an open fire in the fireplace, its wide hearth protected by a finely meshed copper screen, and a massive log was still burning. Its heat was sufficient to give the room a comfortable temperature.

Unfortunately, there were two dead men to turn the scene into a mockery. There was the friendly light of hearth-leg and candle—with the acrid fumes of gunfire still lingering on the air.

Officer Hamill lay just inside the door. He was sprawled at nearly full length, his legs drawn up just a trifle, the weight of his body resting on his right side.

The cause of death was fully apparent without moving the body—two bullets had been fired into his left breast, one directly into the heart, the other slightly higher and closer to the sternum. So much for young James Michael Hamill—Officer 1845.

At the head of the table, seated limply in the host's chair, but in a very natural position, was the other man. His body had posed in such a life-like position that the jagged black hole drilled through the frontal bone seemed an incongruous mark. This man was faultlessly attired in evening clothes, and the bullet's impact had not even jarred loose his gold-rimmed nose-glasses, with their thin black silk cord.

His features, adorned by a well-trimmed mustache and goatee, was tilted slightly, as if he were bored or abstracted in thought. Both his arms rested on the table. His right hand still clutched an automatic gun, his left held a cigarette, which had burned itself out, searing the flesh of two fingers.

A number of things stood at his place. There was a packet of cigarettes of a popular brand, with an open paper of matches beside it. Both were about half used. There were two small carafes, each holding a different liquor. A used, but now empty whiskey glass stood near his hand.

Harper was inwardly amazed at this tragic scene, but his astonishment was self-contained. Not so Officer Clymer's, on whom a great light had dawned. "Say, that must be Pierre Dufresne himself," he blurted.

HARPER had ordered the others to keep their posts by the door while he went forward to get a better view of the bodies and to examine the wounds at close range. He had leaned over the man in the chair, looking long and thoughtfully at his face. Then, without disturbing the position of the body, he had gone through all the pockets. Nothing of importance came to light. Harper turned and herded them all out of the room.

"I want every one to stay out of this room until the photographers have been here," the detective ordered, "and keep your hands off anything that looks as if it might have a fingerprint on it."

The reporter, Doyle, buttonholed him as he was closing the door on that grim scene. "I thought Dufresne was under guard for the night?" he said. "How the devil did he get up here—alone?"

Sergeant Harper's reply was cryptic. "You'll want to know a great deal more than that before the night's over!"

The reporter pricked up his ears at this mysterious prediction. He looked longingly at that closed and locked door, but he had covered Sergeant Harper's cases before and knew that his statements were never film-flam.

Harper stood in the center of the spacious hall, the key to the room of tragedy in his hand. Doyle wondered why the detective had so promptly locked up the scene of the shooting after his first scrutiny had shown him that both victims were beyond medical attention.

The candle flames reared high and cold, their flutterings casting weird shadows of the six men up the walls and obliquely across the ceiling. "Have you tried all the lights?" Harper demanded. "Are you sure none of them is working?" Connally spoke up. "Yes, sir. The juices must be cut off."

"It must be cut off at the meter. Suppose you go down in the cellar and see if you can find out about it. And while you're there, take a look at the heating arrangements. We're going to be here the rest of the night, by the look of things, and we can't work without light or heat."

Officer Connally went to the cellar door, drew the bolts after some tugging, and descended the stairs. In a very short time he called up to say that he had pulled the lever on the electric meter. The candles were blown out.

Harper turned to Hilleary. "You and Connally were first on the scene, weren't you?"

"Yes, sir. We followed Officer Hamill's footprints from the call-box to this house."

"What did you do while you were waiting? Were you here in the hall the whole time?"

"We had a look around, carrying those candles, but we didn't leave this floor. It was dark everywhere and we couldn't see much, but found all the doors locked—except the front door, of course. Everything seemed to be in order."

Harper nodded and turned to his men. "I want this house searched from top to bottom. And keep your eyes open for any signs of recent occupancy. For instance, there must be a hat and overcoat somewhere about."

Officers Clymer, Smith and Hilleary scattered for their search. Harper picked up the telephone and dialed the Homicide Bureau. He made a very terse report of the double killing, giving only the address of the house and the telephone number. To the listening Doyle's surprise, he suppressed any mention of names.

HARPER put in a requisition for the police ambulance to be sent up at once, with a Coroner's deputy, the official photographer, and the usual technical experts whose duty it was to make the basic survey in homicide cases. He also requested that Detective John Lafferty be notified of assignment to the case and told to report at once to Headquarters.

By the time the detective had finished telephoning, Connally had come up from the cellar. "Everything will be O.K., Sergeant," he reported. "There's one of those new-fangled oil heaters down there. It was going all right, but the gauge was set very low. I moved it to seventy-five."

"That's fine. How are the arrangements down there?"

"Very neat, sir. Everything clean and wide open. You can see all around it from the foot of the stairs. I spotted the meter right away."

"Is there a shovel down there?"

"Yes, sir. There's a carpenter's bench in one corner with a whole stack of tools lying around."

"All right, Connally, here is a job for you. Get a shovel and clear a narrow path from the front door to the sidewalk. But do not disturb or cover over any of the footprints that are already out there in the snow. That is most important. Then go on duty at the front door and see to it that every one who enters or leaves the house walks in that path."

One by one the men returned from their search upstairs. All had the same report to make—everything spick and span, with no sign of recent occupancy.

Harper glanced at his watch. "I've got to make a flying trip down town," he declared, then turning to Smith and Hilleary, of the Bandit Chaser Squad, "you two had better stay here until the Headquarters men arrive. Then you can check out."

He gave the key to the locked room to Officer Clymer. "If they get here before I return, get them started in there. Tell the photographer that I want an extra set of prints. And warn everybody that that room is to be left exactly as it is. Nothing is to be disturbed. Tell the doctor to wait for me. I'll be back soon."

Connally appeared as Harper was buttoning his overcoat. "Just sit tight while I'm gone. Don't go poking around for clues until we have a better idea of what to look for. And don't go outside the house on any account, or you will be confusing the tracks in the snow."

WILMINGTON FIREMAN TAKES OWN LIFE

Wilmington, May 4.—Adjonijah A. Garrason, veteran Wilmington fireman, committed suicide Wednesday at the fire station, 17th and Dock streets, where he was stationed.

He slept at the station and arose as usual but did not talk with his aches. He wrote a note, placed it in his pocket, entered his car and fired a bullet into his head. He died in a few minutes.

The note, addressed to a brother, said his nervous condition had become so bad he could no longer stand it. He also directed that his bills be paid with his insurance and the remainder given to his mother.

DeVALERA TEST SEEN IN IRISH JUNE BALLOTS

By MICHAEL ROONEY
Dublin —(AP)— Attended by an importance unique in the nation's history, local elections will be held June 26 throughout the Free State. For the first time they are being contested officially by the political parties and many observers say the future of the de Valera administration depends upon the result.

President de Valera had hoped that before this appeal was made to the county his new system of full adult suffrage, which applies to parliamentary elections, should be in force.

Only Tax Payers Vote
The senate, however, rejected that plan and the local elections will be held on a register of "rated occupiers," or tax-paying householders.

This will mean that the youth element, which has no very great responsibilities and has supported Fianna Fail, the president's party, through thick and thin, will have no chance to make itself felt.

Those who will vote will be those who have stood to lose or gain by the national government's policy, thus giving rise to the feeling that the elections will give a fair index to the opinion of tax payers.

The victory of President de Valera, it is generally conceded, would harden his stock immensely and render the result of a general election almost beyond doubt.

Blueshirts Confident
General Eoin O'Duffy and his "blueshirts" and the rank and file of the United Ireland movement, however, are talking about the elections as already won.

Trough difficulties have been pressing thick and fast on the government in regard to its agricultural policy, many observers think this optimism a little early, particularly since the government forces are strong and backed by smooth-running political organization.

With both political parties testing their strength, the possibility of bitterness finding an outlet in disorder has not been overlooked and President de Valera has made it clear that any forces at his disposal will be used to maintain peace.

DIES FROM INJURIES IN SHOTGUN ACCIDENT

Rocky Mount, May 4.—Robert Lee Davis, 16, of Route 2, Elm City, died at a local hospital yesterday as result of injuries received in what was termed the accidental discharge of a shotgun, in the hands of Ennis Stancill, his father-in-law.

The boy was brought to the hospital April 17 suffering from a serious wound in his left side. His condition grew gradually worse until his death yesterday.

It was reported that Davis and

Angry Voices

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
"Christopher Columbus Crow!" barked Rip.

"You thief!" crowed Top Notch. "You're a scamp, quack, quack," quacked the ducks.

Christopher looked down from his favorite branch on the pine tree, and cocking his head to one side said:

"What is life without a touch of mischief?"

"You just made me look at my comb so you could steal my blue marble," cackled Top Notch.

"You knew I would look, too, when you said that Top Notch's comb had become pale pink," complained Rip, the dog. "You stole my best marble because you made me look at him."

"You took our best marbles, too, quack, quack."

"I didn't make any of you look at Top Notch," cawed Christopher, with a naughty gleam in his eye. "I suggested it, but I didn't make any of you."

Willie Nilly, who had gone back to his house, heard their angry voices and came outside.

"Now what is the matter?" he asked.

"Christopher has taken our best marbles," they all cackled and barked and quacked.

"Tattle-tales," cawed Christopher. "I'd be ashamed to be a lot of tattle-tales."

"I'd be ashamed to be a thief," crowed Top Notch.

"You're so vain!" said Christopher. "If you weren't you wouldn't have grabbed for your little mirror at once to make sure that your red comb was still red. Ha, ha, ha, caw, caw, caw."

Tomorrow—"Making Peace"

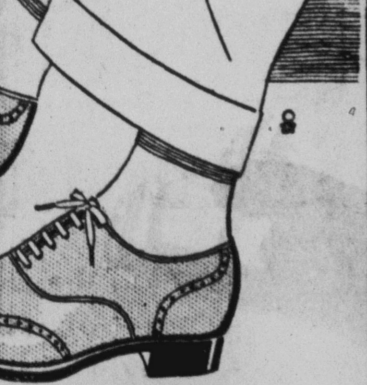

Stancill were in a field shooting crows when the gun held by Stancill accidentally discharged. The full load of shot struck the boy who was standing at close range.

SEEKS TO RECOVER FOR FALSE ARREST

Winston-Salem, May 4.—(AP)— Claiming false imprisonment at the instance of R. D. Shore of this city, C. M. Allman of High Point, has instituted suit for $7,175 from Shore. He charges he was jailed with "safe blowers" and other hardened criminals for 15 days.

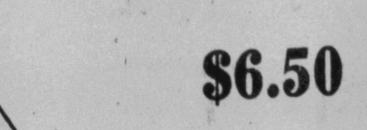

Allman's complaint sets forth that in conducting a "go to church" campaign here he sold Shore 500 seals. Shore is said to have later asked police to investigate Allman, and the campaigner was subsequently arrested on a charge of securing money under false pretenses. The case, however, was non-suited when it came before the jury.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 4.—(AP)—The stock market enjoyed a quiet rally in the first half hour today but agile and skillful traders were quick to cash in on small profit and prices generally tumbled into a resumption of dull business. Various rails, steels, motors, metals, alcohols and aircraft came back for gains of fractions to a point or countered which apparently could not more. Then offerings were encountered. Washington continued to the focal point of speculative interest, although decisive stimulation from this was lacking. The trend of industry was also being watched closely for signs of seasonal relaxation. Commodities turned in a much better performance than usual. The late tone was steady. Transfers were 800,000 shares.

Late News Flashes

J. B. Hutson, tobacco chief of the Farm Administration, and his assistant, J. C. Lanier, who brought the quota amendment to the capital, also decided with Rep. Flanagan of Virginia, his bill for licensing tobacco warehouses and buyers. Flanagan said the administration officials approved his bill and said they had no amendment to suggest.

War Dept. Calls For Bids

Washington, May 4.—(AP)—Bids for 110 airplanes to cost $7,500,000 will be asked within a few days by the War Department as a part of the three-year aviation development program. The money has been made available by the Public Works Administration. Bids will be asked for 80 bombing planes and 3 attack planes. Objections raised by the army judge advocate general to the terms of previous advertisement for bids have been met in the new specifications, the War Department said. All bids for the planes were held up when a District of Columbia grand jury and congressional committee began investigation recently into alleged influences by lawyer lobbyists in War Department purchases and contracts. Before July 1 the chief of air corps will be asked for bids on the planes to be purchased during 1935 with funds recently appropriated by Congress and for planes to be purchased during 1936.

To Limit Terms of Bishops

Jackson, Miss., May 4.—(AP)—The 22 quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Church, South, today drafted a proposal to limit the terms of bishops, decided not to elect any new bishops at this conference and amended the discipline to permit the retirement of bishops for unacceptability and inefficiency. The major decision made with Bishop Cannon, Jr., in the chair as the presiding officer of the conference in his turn of seniority in the College of Bishops.

Requests Return Of Mace.
Washington, May 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today asked Congress to return the mace of the Parliament of Ontario, Canada, captured during the war of 1812, and now held at the Annapolis naval academy. In a special message, Mr. Roosevelt called attention to the fact that a memorial tablet to the United States forces killed in action will be unveiled in Toronto. "The suggestion has been made," he said, "that it would be a gracious act for the United States to return this historic mace to Canada at the time of the unveiling of the tablet."

Prodigal Britons Get Cold Welcome In Mother Country

London.—(AP)—John Bull is steeling his heart against his former countrymen who have become citizens of the United States and returned to Great Britain. Applications from naturalized Americans of British birth for return to the mother country often are granted—but only on condition that they will not take any employment, paid or unpaid, during their sojourn here. Hundreds of cases have occurred since the home office, where former British subjects have come back from abroad, looking for jobs. Requests for permission to work are rejected "in the interests of our own people, who have borne the brunt of the depression." The rule against foreign workers applies "not only to aliens of foreign origin but also to those of British origin."

TAX ON VETERAN'S AUTO CHANGES POLISH STATUTE

Warsaw.—(AP)—Poland's road fund bill, which places a special tax on all automobiles, is to be amended because of the car of Adolf Markow, veteran of the Polish-Soviet war of 1920. Markow, paralyzed in both legs managed to buy a small car and a tax collector tagged the machine for three years' road taxes, plus penalties and interest. Public sympathy for the veteran brought the case to the attention of the minister of communications, with the result that the bill is to lose its strict wording.

Noble Prizes Shrink Slightly
Stockholm.—(AP)—The Nobel prizes for 1934 will amount to 162,500 kronor each, or approximately $40,625 at par. This figure, slightly less than last year, results from lowered returns on the funds of the Swedish Noble Institute.

LOST "GOLDEN MILE" FOUND IN ISTANBUL

Istanbul.—(AP)—Ruins of the "golden mile" from which all the roads of the Byzantine empire were measured, are believed to have been laid bare by Turkish workmen, digging a modern sewer in Istanbul. The ruins were at first believed to be part of the famous hippodrome, though their location between St. Sophia and the Blue Mosque would have revolutionized the former conception of the hippodrome's position.

Prof. Ernest Mamboury, French archeologist, states positively that the marble blocks unbarred cannot be part of the hippodrome, as they lie too far beyond that great structure's known boundaries, which he says, were fixed by British experts in 1932.
