BRITISH CABINET FACES BREAK ON DISARMAMENT

Grand Jury Refuses To Indict Andy Mellon Defers Statement

FORMER HEAD OF TREASURY IS FREE MAN

Internationally Known Banker Charged With Under Paying Government $2,000,000 in 1931; Mellon Declares Effort is an Attempt to Discredit Him and Administration He Served

Pittsburgh, May 8. (AP)—A grand jury which heard evidence in the Andrew W. Mellon tax case refused to indict the former secretary of the treasury today.

The government had presented charges that the internationally known banker underpaid his income taxes in 1931. Mellon himself in a statement last Friday disclosed that the government was seeking to collect approximately $2,000,000 from him. He had charged that the act was a move to discredit him and the administration he served under three Presidents.

Mellon, 70 years old, and one of the country's wealthiest men, said he actually had overpaid his 1931 income tax.

The jury reported its findings at 11:10 o'clock this morning to Federal Judge R. M. Gibson.

The jury deliberated an hour and a half yesterday afternoon hearing the witnesses and scanning bulky files of documents and returned its report this morning after the group recessed for session at which time other cases on its routine are to be considered.

NOTE ACTION IN COURT HERE

Brinkley and Spain Seek to Revive Judgment Against R. E. Currin of Georgia

A suit to revive judgment on a note for $600 held the limelight in the opening session of Superior court yesterday and consideration continued today.

The case was that of Brinkley and Spain, former tobacco warehouse operators here, against R. E. Currin, former local tobaccoist who resides in Georgia. The case dates back to about ten years ago when Brinkley and Spain went on Currin's note for $600.

Later they sued for recovery and obtained judgment. When the judgment went unexecuted, the former warehousemen attached a considerable quantity of tobacco here last season belonging to Currin and are holding the proceeds from the sale until the case is settled.

Argument was completed around the noon hour today and a decision was expected during the afternoon hours.

About forty cases are on the calendar for the one week term of court presided over by Judge G. V. Cowper of Kinston, and the bulk was expected to be completed by adjournment time.

ANSON COUNTY MAN KILLED IN QUARREL

Wadesboro, May 8.—John W. Turner, 28, was shot and instantly killed early last night by Jule Sellers near the home of Sellers, in the Sweedeboro section of Anson county. A shotgun was the weapon used and the entire charge entered Turner's left temple. Sellers, who was placed in jail by Sheriff S. M. Gaddy, stated that Turner was advancing on him with a knife, but no knife was found on or near Turner's body. The men had been attending a fish stew, where plenty of liquor was in evidence.

Turner is survived by his wife and two children. Sellers is a married man and has five children.

Insull Returns To America To Stand Trial

Samuel Insull (left) brought back to the United States after a long exile abroad, was greeted by his son, Samuel, Jr., when his ship neared port. The two are shown aboard the cutter Hudson after being transferred from the steamer Exilona. They were landed at New Jersey and Insull was placed on a train for Chicago, where he will be tried on charges growing out of the collapse of his gigantic utilities empire. (Associated Press Photo).

SAMUEL INSULL COLLAPSES AT CHICAGO, ILL.

Aged Utilities Magnate Hears Warrants Read to Him in Federal Court Today

Chicago, May 8.—(AP)—Through a gasping, murmuring crowd that filled the vast union station, Samuel Insull marched a prisoner back to the streets of Chicago today.

Arm in arm with federal officers he was hurried away to be arraigned before a federal court and then hearing the two warrants that charged him with crimes against the government, he was overcome.

Just as United States Marshal H. C. Lauberginger spread the warrants and took him in custody from the presidential messenger, Insull sank weakly into a chair, his face ashen.

He was quickly placed on a couch, his overcoat under his head for a pillow when Samuel Insull summoned a physician.

"The stairs were too much for me," he murmured. "I'd like to lie down for a moment."

The collapse was not considered serious although both his son and Dr. George B. Corey, who has administered to him on the train from the east, said the long walk from the train and the excitement had overtaken his heart.

Marshal Lauberginger signed a receipt for Insull, relieved the presidential messenger of his guard and read the 74-year-old man the charges against him.

"Use of the United States mails in a scheme to defraud investors in his corporation securities company, fraudulent anticipation of the bankruptcy of his companies and himself."

Then he was allowed to rest until the federal court opened at 10 a. m. and he might seek freedom under bond.

T. T. Hollingsworth, deputy tax collector with the State Revenue Department has been made postmaster at Greenville, it was announced from Washington early today.

He will succeed H. R. Munford who was appointed to the office in March 1922.

Mr. Hollingsworth was chosen from a field of eleven applicants, all of whom stood competitive examinations here several months ago.

It was not announced when Mr. Hollingsworth would take charge of the office, but he said today he had asked that his taking over of the duties be held up for a few days until he could get his business straightened out.

Mr. Hollingsworth is a former hotel operator here and for about a year has been connected with the Revenue department in the sales tax division.

He is a former member of the Board of AIG-men and has taken considerable interest in political activities here for a number of years.

COURT HOUSE TO CLOSE NOON ON SATURDAY

Board Authorizes Action Following Suggestion From County Bar Association

The Board of County Commissioners meeting in monthly session here yesterday decided to close the court house each Saturday at the noon hour. The closing date will become effective Saturday of this week.

The action came after a delegation from the Pitt Bar Association appeared before the commissioners and asked that the court house be closed part of the day Saturday.

The same plan is being followed by public buildings in other county seats of the state, it was said, and the public alike are enjoying considerable benefit.

The Board committee was composed of Col. Albion Dunn, M. K. Blount, and J. B. James.

Each spoke briefly of the advantages to be derived from the half holiday on Saturday and the commissioners after short deliberation acted favorably upon the request.

This was the only matter of importance considered by the body. The fined to routine matters such as a major part of the session was comparing bills and okaying reports from various departments.

A committee from the Kiwanis club was scheduled to appear before the board in the interest of a contribution to Sheppard Memorial Library fund, but its members were unable to get together in time to carry out the plan. The committee was named at a recent session of the club, which is sponsoring a campaign to obtain more books for the library, especially in the children's department where the supply has become limited by wear and tear.

MEN RETURN TO WORK AS STRIKES END

Ten Thousand Workers in Northern Part Of County Reported Back on Payroll

(By Associated Press) More than 10,000 workers doubling the total for the week, joined the parade back to their posts today.

Their return was brought about by an end to the one-day strikes at the Amoskeag Mills in Manchester, N. H., and the Ladish Drop Board Company of Milwaukee.

A similar number returned yesterday as four major disputes were settled.

About 10,000 operatives of the Amoskeag Mills were idle because of a walkout in the cotton division by the textile workers union ordered them back, refusing to sanction the strike.

Some 500 workers of the Ladish Drop Board Company agreed to return after union recognition was granted them with immediate increase of ten per cent in wages and another ten per cent in sixty days, if business warrants.

TEN MEN ARE HURT IN BLAST

Six Seriously Injured In Rain-Dust Explosion in St. Louis Grain Elevator

St. Louis, May 8.—(AP)—Ten men were burned, six of them seriously in a violent rain-dust explosion this morning in the Missouri Pacific elevator at the foot of Primm street.

The blast shattered all of the windows in the huge structure, broke long cracks in the upper portion of the building and caused fire in the 1,600,000 bushels of grain stored there. The fire burned half an hour.

Twenty-three men at work in the building at the time of the blast, apparently originated in the headroom at the top of the conveyor which is used to carry grain from the track below into the chamber of the elevator.

Julius Meyer, bank president of the Continental Export Company, which leases the elevator, a 240-foot structure, said he had been unable to determine the cause of the blast.

From 1919 to 1929 he was teacher of the Methodist Baraca Class. Then he stopped for a while to rest. In two years he was reelected teacher which post he filled until the last.

He was not afraid when death came because he was a Christian. He spoke of it as 'going west'. When his church got in debt he said it should be paid through prayer. Late News Flashes Insull Goes To Jail. Chicago, May 8.—(AP)—Samuel Insull, a tragic figure, was placed under $200,000 bond by a federal judge today and unable to furnish it, was led away to jail.

Eyes brimming with tears, steps lagging, he trudged silently between his guard to be locked up a prisoner in the city where he had risen to greatness among the financial and utilities potentates of the nation.

Shortly after one o'clock, 5 hours from the moment of his arrival by train, Insull was dressed in at the county jail and assigned to the hospital. U. S. District Attorney Green demanded $200,000 bond. The government, he said, had spent a vast sum chasing Insull around the hemisphere and wanted assurance he would be on hand for trial.

"This mean he will be compelled to go to jail," protested Floyd Thompson, former chief justice of the Illinois Supreme Court, defender of Insull.

Judge Barnes listened to the arguments of Green and the defender.

"The only question before the court," the jurist said, "is the (Continued on Page Four)

ROTES HONOR DR. WRIGHT AT MEETING HERE

Memorial Service For Late President of Teachers College Held Last Night

By WYATT BROWN Bob Wright the Rotarian, the colleague, the churchman, the citizen, the administrator was extolled in a memorial program last night by the Rotary Club at their regular weekly meeting.

"Words can add very little to that life," said Augustus Fleischman in speaking of Bob as the Rotarian.

He went on to tell how the "quiet cordiality" of his fellow Rotarian quickly dispelled the hesitancy that kept him from calling him Bob, soon it was Bob not only at the club but everywhere. Bob exemplified in the finest way that fellowship which is the true interpretation of Rotary ideals.

Here was one man who could truly be called great without compromising the term. "Everyone is grateful that we knew him for what he was."

Jasper Winslow who knew Bob as a churchman, business man, Sunday school teacher, voting at the polls and at the club remarked about Dr. Wright as a citizen. "He enjoyed rights and privileges in the community and enjoyed the right of serving the community. He would go from his work to lecture to large groups of farmers. Bob was a good citizen. Bob Wright was more than a citizen than Andy Mellon. He believed government was for the man. It was for the government—church, school and all organizations that worked for the best of the community—that Bob spent his life. No citizen could do more than Bob has done."

As churchman Herbert Waldrop spoke. Herbert Waldrop knew him first as student in the college where 'Bob' conducted chapel. He always opened with a prayer. Many talks he gave the students filled with hope and faith which was a great influence.

DEFERS STATEMENT OF POLICIES UNTIL LEAGUE MEETING

HENDERSON TO CONFER WITH FRENCH

Chairman of Disarmament Conference Goes to Paris to Talk Things Over With Louis Barthou; Believed Likely He Will Propose a New Basis of Negotiations; Situation Described As Critical

London, May 8.—(AP)—The British cabinet deferred stating its disarmament policies today after a long committee discussion and reports persisted that a break in the cabinet on the issue is likely.

It was indicated after the disarmament committee session that no statement can be expected until after the meeting of the League of Nations disarmament meeting.

Arthur Henderson, chairman of the disarmament conference, will leave for Paris tomorrow to discuss the threatened collapse of the parity with Louis Barthou, French foreign minister. It was believed likely that he would ask the Frenchman to propose a new basis for arms regulation.

Some newspapers went so far as to describe the situation in the cabinet as critical split.

TAFT BEATS SIMPSON FOR BOARD SEAT

Alderman From Third Ward Retains Seat In Aldermanic Contest Here Yesterday

Probably the lightest vote ever cast in an aldermanic contest in this city was recorded in the municipal election held here yesterday.

The light vote was due largely to the lack of contest in the three wards involved, candidates in two of the districts having no contest at all. In the Third Ward where the vote was much heavier than the other two, Joe Taft, present incumbent, defeated J. D. Simpson, 102 to 53.

In the Second Ward Mrs. J. L. Hassell obtained 28 votes and in the Fourth W. H. Norris chalked up 14. The total vote cast was 197.

With major interest centering around the Third Ward, it was natural that Taft and Simpson should have been on the scene of battle throughout the day. They remained on the court house corridor from early morning until closing time and greeted their constituents as they straggled in throughout the day.

The voting was conducted under the Australian ballot system and voters entered booths in the court house corridor where they prepared their ballot before consigning it to the ballot box.

At one time it appeared that W. H. Norris would have competition in the Fourth Ward, but F. S. Corbett, who announced he would oppose Norris, withdrew at the last minute and left the center of interest in the one district.

J. O. Duvall city clerk, stated today that Mrs. L. W. Gaylord completely revised the registration books for the voters during the period of registration preceding the election, and today 3,116 voters were registered in the various wards of the city.

CROOKED BUSINESS

Previously we have stated in this column that one of the greatest defects in our present election laws in North Carolina is the absentee ballot and it is to be hoped that the coming session of the legislature will see to it that absentee voting is abolished.

It is pretty commonly known among those familiar at all with politics that at almost every election many absentee ballots are cast in the name voters who have been away from this county too long to vote but whose names have never been erased from the books here. It is likewise known that on certain occasions absentee votes have been opened at least a day before the election in order to learn how certain parties voted and it is possible that under these circumstances even some of the ballots might have been altered or changed. At least there was ample opportunity for such crooked work if those handling them were so inclined.

If you don't believe that there is crooked work in this absentee voting business here is an incident that happened in this city just a few days ago that certainly would indicate that certain candidates hoped to benefit by this kind of action in the coming primary. A person in this city was recently employed by one of the candidates to aid in getting up absentee ballots for the coming primary. The person after being informed that the sole duty was to procure the ballots from the absent voters, permitting the voters to express their own choice for the various candidates, accepted the offer of good pay for this work. The next day the newly employed worker was contacted by one of the staunch supporters of the candidate and given instructions that whenever an absentee ballot was secured from a voter that the envelope in which it was placed should be sealed very lightly in order that it might be easily opened and examined before being turned over to the election officials. Following this conversation, the newly employed worker, realizing the possibility and probability of crooked work in such a deal immediately resigned the position that had been accepted just the day before.

We mention this just to bring to the attention of election officials and candidates for that matter, of the dangers that surround the absentee voting and we urge the election officials to place every safeguard possible about the coming primaries to prevent crooked work. Even if this precaution is taken, we realize that then some votes will get in that should not be counted but maybe to some extent this menace to fair elections might be curbed until such time as the legislature will abolish absentee voting altogether.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE
 BY WALTER C. BROWN

SYNOPSIS: A man, Sergeant Harper, finds that a policeman and a woman who resemble the couple in the photograph above Pierre Dufréne has been shot in the back of the head. He is told by the doctor that the man who killed him is a stranger. He is told by the doctor that the man who killed him is a stranger. He is told by the doctor that the man who killed him is a stranger.

Ulrich's telephone number and called it. Harper explained the situation briefly and described the nature of the wound. If the doctor had any curiosity about the cause of the wound he gave no sign of it. He promised to be over in less than half an hour.

With that detail out of the way, Sergeant Harper turned his attention to the major matter in hand. He called together Officer Clymer, Detective Laferty, and the two plainclothesmen from Headquarters. "So far we have found no clue to the identity of the man who has been killed here," he began.

"For some unknown reason he chose to impersonate the master of this house. If this same man wrote the threatening letter and shot at Mr. Dufréne, the chances are that we are dealing with a lunatic. There will be traces and I want you to look for them. We haven't found this man's hat and overcoat, for instance. Look for signs of forcible entry, too, but don't go outside. I want the snow left undisturbed.

The men scattered to their tasks. Harper and Carlin were alone with the dead man, and the investigation into their strange death was on in earnest.

"Well, Professor; it's time we got down to brass tacks. What do the stars in their course tell you about this?" While he asked this question, Harper was carefully looking over the man in the armchair.

The ballistics expert smiled at the pleasant. "Dr. Miller has emptied the pockets," he explained. "Over there you can see all that was found." On a corner of the buffet was a folded, unused man's handkerchief of good quality. On it was seventy-nine cents in change.

"What has taken place here, Sergeant, is plainly written." He pointed to the body in the armchair. "That man is seated there. He has been drinking. He is smoking a cigarette. The policeman enters. Two guns are lifted simultaneously and fired. Both men are dead—they have killed each other. That is the story. The reason why all this happened? That is your job, Sergeant, and you are welcome to it!"

Harper nodded. "The reconstruction of the scene is quite obvious. But suppose, Carlin, I told you that I don't believe everything I hear—and not always what I see?"

"Ah, then, that makes a difference. We can talk more about this simple story." Carlin's hair for the dramatic was being "fed" by the detective with admirable results. "There are certain parts of this story I find hard to swallow. The most excellent marksmanship displayed, for instance—it is almost too perfect. "One shot—right through the brain. It is true that the man in the chair needs two shots—but one goes straight to the heart, the other not two inches away. A man does not die after he has been shot through the brain, nor after a bullet has gone through his heart."

"Yet each man died where he was found," Harper mused. "There are the stains on the rug to prove it."

"Consider this," Carlin went on excitedly, now at full tilt with his subject, "consider the absolute nonchalance of these men. This one did not rise from his chair, an instinctive movement where danger threatened. He did not even drop his cigarette. It burned on and on between his fingers until it was consumed, searing the flesh."

He screwed a jeweler's glass into his eye and examined a misshapen bullet under direct light. "This is a .33 caliber, and I have no doubt that the rifling will prove it to have been fired from Officer Hamill's gun. And when the other two bullets are probed out I have no doubt they will prove to have come from this other gun."

"Both deaths were instantaneous, yet we cannot readily admit so incredible a thing as an absolutely simultaneous exchange of shots, for the man in the chair here fired twice."

"But what disturbs me most is this," he went on, pointing to the circular bullet mark in the stranger's forehead. "The bullet went in through the left frontal, passed completely through the skull and made its exit sound in the base of the brain. If we did not have the bullet, and you asked me what had caused that wound, I would answer, without a moment's hesitation—a .45 steeljacket. But it seems that I would be wrong, for there is that mark on the waistcoat where our .38 bullet lodged itself."

"I have a strange reluctance to asserting that these men killed each other in the manner indicated, yet there are the facts staring us in the face."

"Listen to this, Doyle. I warned you not to release the story until I gave the word. Hold on, now—I've no time to argue. I'll talk to you later."

The detective looked up Dr. O. C.

First Church of Christ, Scientist.

"Everlasting Punishment" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 6.

The golden text was from Gen. 18:25: "Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?"

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer: behold, the devil shall sift you; but ye shall have no tribulation ten days: he that is faithful unto death, and I will give him a crown of life. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches: To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth, saving he that receiveth it." (Rev. 2:10-17).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Sorrows for wrong-doing is but one step towards reform and the very easiest step. The next and great step required by wisdom is the test of our sincerity, namely, reformation. To this end we are placed under the stress of circumstances. Temptation bids us repeat the offense, and we come in return for what is done. So it will ever be, if we learn that there is no discount in the law of justice and that we must pay the uttermost farthing. The measure ye mete shall be measured to you again, and it will be full and running over."

Very Much Improved

After Taking Cardui

"I have suffered a great deal from cramping," writes Mrs. W. A. Sewell, Sr., of Waco, Texas. "I would chill and have to go to bed for about three days at a time. I would have a dull, tired, sleepy feeling. A friend told me to try Cardui, thinking it would help me—and it did. I am very much improved and do not spend the time in bed. I certainly can recommend Cardui to other sufferers."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

EXPIRED COTTON OPTIONS MAY BE REINSTATED

Holdings of cotton options which expired May 1 will be given an opportunity to have these options reinstated if application is made within the next 60 days, it was announced today by Oscar Johnston, Manager of the Cotton Producers Pool.

Mr. Johnston stated that only 820 option contracts covering 3,906 bales of cotton had not been heard from and, under the terms of the option, these contracts expired May 1. Holders who desire to have them reinstated should make application to the Cotton Producers Pool within the next 60 days, Mr. Johnston stated.

In announcing that reinstatement would be granted on application, Mr. Johnston made public the present status of the cotton options which were offered producers as a part of the compensation in the 1933 emergency cotton campaign.

Of a total of 571,434 options issued covering 2,428,697 bales, 567,198 options covering 2,403,174 bales have been exercised either by sale or delivery to the cotton producers pool. Of this amount, producers holding options covering 457,180 bales have called their options and the cotton sold; and the remainder has been delivered to the cotton producers pool.

Mr. Johnston stated that options outstanding totaled 6,543 contracts covering 42,025 bales. These cases are divided as follows: 3,207 contracts for 21,449 bales have been extended, the holders paying the sum of forty cents per bale per month carrying charge; 209 contracts covering 568 bales have called and fixed the date for future sale; 2,307 contracts covering 16,502 bales are in suspense and will be issued when adjusted by correspondence or settlement (these option holders will then have 30 days after date of issue in which to call for sale or delivery to the cotton producers pool); 280 contracts covering 3,506 bales have not been heard from since date of issue and these producers are given the privilege for 60 days from May 1 to apply for reinstatement.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, in the providence of God, our beloved friend and brother, Robert H. Wright, has been called from our midst into the larger sphere of life; and whereas, he was for twenty-five years a faithful and useful member of our church and an efficient member of our official board;

Resolved, that the Board of Stewards of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church of Greenville, North Carolina, do hereby resolve: First, That Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church realizes that it has lost one of its most faithful and efficient members, who always stood ready to respond to every call of duty and lend his rich gifts to the furtherance of Christ's Kingdom, and who gave to his church the same devoted service that won for him such a conspicuous place in his professional life.

Second, That we recognize that our city has lost one of its most valuable citizens, who identified himself with worthy movements for the advancement of its moral, social and civic life.

Third, That the State of North Carolina has lost a citizen who gave conspicuous service to the youth of our commonwealth, and who played a large part in one of the most valuable educational enterprises of our whole nation, giving himself without stint to these worthy endeavors to the extent of perhaps shortening his days because of his devotion to these worthy tasks.

Fourth, That we respectfully commend to the youth of our commonwealth, for whose welfare he labored so unceasingly through the whole of his public career, the high example of this noble man who constantly "loved mercy, did justice, and walked humbly with his God."

Fifth, That a copy of these resolutions be placed upon the minutes of this board, a copy published in the daily paper of this city, a copy published in the North Carolina Christian Advocate, and a copy transmitted to the bereaved family of our dear friend and brother.

Making Peace

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
"Now give back those marbles, Christopher," said Willy Nilly.
"Oh, they are so pretty," Christopher sighed as he returned them.
"Now I'll get-back to my chores," said Willy Nilly, but just then Grandma Grouchy Galump came by. She was very angry.

"I'll take a big stick to that Jelly Bear of yours!" she cried.
"Now what's the trouble?" asked Willy Nilly in a sad tone of voice.
"He has no manners and he should be punished. I was walking along the edge of the woods and suddenly a tree snapped right back into my face."
"A tree snapped back into your face?" repeated Willy Nilly. "I don't see how that could have happened, Grandma."

"Well, it did. Jelly Bear had evidently pulled the tree down toward him to nibble at it—or maybe just for mischief. Of course it was only a small, young tree, but it hurt."
"Grandma Galump," said Willy Nilly (for they only called them the Grouchy Galumps among themselves), "I wonder if you wouldn't like some little, new lettuce? I planted some seeds a while ago and I just noticed this morning that the lettuce was ready for picking."
"You let those animals do anything," complained Grandma in a milder tone of voice. She did want the lettuce.

"I'll give you enough so you and Grandma will have a fine salad this evening," said Willy Nilly. But after she had gone he said:
"Please, please, my Puddle Muddlers, stop annoying the Galumps. I won't always be able to make peace!"

Log Drumming

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
"I've discovered something," cawed Christopher Columbus Crow.
"Oh yes, I live up to my name. I'm always discovering something."
"You haven't discovered anything for ever so long," cackled Top Notch, the rooster.

"That's so," barked Rip, the dog. "I've been thinking that you did not deserve your name at all."
"I hope you haven't discovered anything that will take me away from my chores," said Willy Nilly, the little game-like man, who lived with his animal friends in Puddle Muddle.

"I don't believe you'll mind" cawed Christopher. "Come with me."
Certainly Christopher sounded delighted with his discovery. Willy Nilly could not help being curious.

Christopher walked ahead and Willy Nilly, Rip, Top Notch, and the ducks followed. The bears were busy with springtime meals of skunk cabbage and delicious roots and young grubs.

"I'm going to lead you to the woods," said Christopher. "Ah, if it weren't for me to discover what was going on, the rest of you would know little of the life around you." When they reached the woods, Christopher whispered to them to be very quiet.

They all were still, and through the silence of the woods came the sound of drum-drum-drumming.
"Is some one going to start a band?" whispered Top Notch. But Christopher lifted his wing against his breast to show that not a word must be spoken.

KINSTON MINISTER IS VESPER SERVICE SPEAKER

Rev. T. C. Johnson, pastor of the Baptist Church of Kinston, was the guest speaker at the Sunday Vesper services of the Y. W. C. A., at East Carolina Teachers College last night. He took as his text "Whatever a man soweth, so shall he also reap," paraphrasing it in the words of an old Saxon folk-proverb: "He who dances must pay the piper," and in the vernacular of the present day, "Don't fool yourself."

There are Mr. Johnson said, human ants and human grasshoppers, who can be compared to the ant and the grasshopper of fable, the former industriously laying up her winter supply, the latter playing the summer away. Human grasshoppers constantly expect to inherit a fortune from a rich uncle, forgetting that they have no rich uncle. They constantly speak of waiting for their ship to come in, forgetting that none will sail back unless it has been sent out.

The conclusion Mr. Johnson reached is that we are probably neither misunderstood martyrs, nor much-lauded heroes. Each one gets from life exactly what he deserves. The principle of sowing only what has been sown, he said, is well illustrated in the lives of those who attempt to trifle with their reputation for integrity, with liquor, with sex, or with religion. Sowing the seeds of mere outward attendance and pretention of the latter will not reap the full glorious harvest of true religion. The seeds which will mature into that product are the seeds of religion reflect in one's daily conversation and conduct.

CARD OF THANKS

Wish to thank all of those who in yesterday's primary voted for me, and to say I hold no ill feeling to anyone who voted against me. I shall endeavor to render any service possible at all times for the betterment of our city.

NOTES HONOR DR. WRIGHT AT MEETING HERE

league feel below him but instead inspired the feeling of co-worker.
"Bob was the same always—a real man. Work at East Carolina Teachers College was a great joy because of Bob. Bob was responsible for the quality of the college. His influence was felt as administrator and personality. He was a very human man. I could tell incidents that were heart breaking which occurred. He demanded facts for basis of action. He was based on real tangible things. Always he was willing to get the other fellows viewpoint. When he got a situation, he had a keen sense of analysis and seeing behind facts. His other characteristics of a good administrator were that he rendered his decisions promptly and stood behind them. My life is richer for having known him," Mr. McGinnis said.

Fordece Harding who was associated with Bob Wright as trustee of the college spoke from that angle. He had known Bob forty years. First knew him when Bob was a slim tall freshman at the University of North Carolina. When Dr. Wright first came to Greenville, he and Mr. Harding worked on joint problems with the college an local schools which afforded the speaker opportunity to see the quality of the man. "I knew him best in his private home where we sat working on problems and plans.

"Any man who becomes a real men, who is a Christian, who knows how to pray—not knows how, but does—needs only two additional qualities: unassuming quietness, genius to quietly go in search of facts. Bob had all three. In closing Fordece Harding took Longfellow's memorial to Professor Agassiz, professor of geology at Harvard University and paraphrased it thus with Bob's name:

And nature, the old nurse, took upon her knee, saying: "Here is a storybook Thy Father has written for thee.

Come wander with me, Bob, she said Into regions yet untrod; And read what it still unread, In the manuscripts of God.

And Bob wandered away and away, With Nature, the dear old nurse Who sang to him night and day, The rhythms of the Universe.

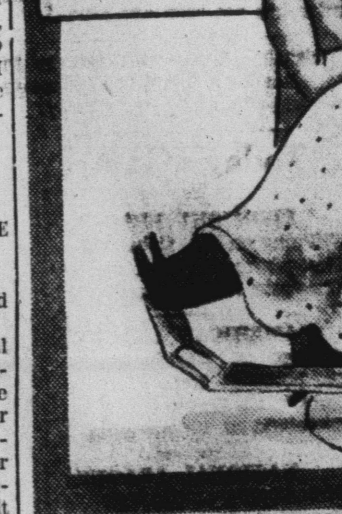

Kiuchen Cobb, the club president presided and said in closing, "The club has lost a great Rotarian. It is a great loss to the country. The only thing we can do is pray to God for another such leader."

Upon motion of Karl Pace, the remarks of those who participated in the memorial program were voted to be placed on the permanent record of the Greenville Rotary club.

The attendance prize for the evening was won by "Doc" Home. Leon Brock reported that the Rotary club was laying plans to meet the informal challenge of the Kiwanians for a baseball game to be played sometime this month.
