HOPE TO REACH DESTINATION WITHOUT STOP

Captain George Pond and Lieut. Cesare Sebelli Leave Floyd Bennett Flying Field At 6:24. Plan to Reach Italian Capital in Forty Hours

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 14.—(AP)—Captain George R. Pond and Lieut. Cesare Sebelli soared away from Floyd Bennett Field at 6:24 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) today with the announced intention of reaching Rome without stop. They said the large orange and maroon monoplane could make the 4,500 mile flight in about forty hours.

Pond, former navy flier, and Sebella, one-time Italian war ace, had been planning the flight for several months. They had hoped originally to make the attempt last fall but abandoned the idea because of unfavorable weather. Their plane, "Leonardo da Vinci," carried enough fuel to last more than forty hours.

Late News Flashes

To Ease Home Building. Washington, May 14.—(AP)—A presidential recommendation to ease home building and a Senate thumbs-down attitude on RFC loans to municipal power plants were the foremost activities as the capital opened another busy week. Many people need to repair their homes or get new ones where repair is no longer possible, the President informed Congress in advocating federal cooperation with private capital to that end.

MORE MEN GO TO WORK ON LOCAL POOL

Construction Forces Increased at Municipal Swimming Pool On Fifth Street

Additional men went to work on the local swimming pool today following order for an increase on the construction forces issued last week from FERA headquarters at Raleigh. Thirty-eight workmen were put to work this morning as against twenty last week. With this force it was believed the pool would be completed and ready to serve the public in five or six weeks.

When work was suspended the latter part of March because of disbandment of the OWA, the pool itself was about half completed, leaving lockers and filtering plants untouched. All of this remains to be done and every effort is being made to speed up activities as much as possible during the intervening weeks.

COUNTRY CLUB SETTLES ALL DEBTS TODAY

Work on First Unit of New Club House to Get Under Way in Near Future

All debts of the newly-organized Greenville Golf and Country Club were settled in full today and the organization was prepared to operate on a pay-as-you-go basis. R. C. Stokes, Jr., president of the club, said an architect was coming here sometime this week to draw plans for the single unit of the club house to be erected in the near future. The building will contain two units, but erection of the second section has been delayed until finances become available.

Mr. Stokes said at a recent meeting of stockholders it was decided to limit stock membership to 75 and non-stock members to 50. He stated that the quota of stock membership was nearing completion and urged persons desiring to acquire stock in the new organization to get busy immediately before the membership drive is over.

He said the stockholders also voted not to go in debt and that all transactions of the club would be conducted on a strictly cash basis. No debts will be made under any circumstances. It is for this reason that only one unit of the club house is being constructed at this time, Mr. Stokes pointed out.

The golf course, one of the finest in this immediate part of the state, is in the best condition of years, and scores of golfers are playing daily. In fact, numbers of traveling people make it a point to spend the night in Greenville to get an opportunity to play on the local course the next day.

MOTHERS ARE HONORED HERE

Special Sermons and Musical Programs Mark Mother's Day Observance

Greenville joined the remainder of the nation yesterday in observance of Mothers' Day and many a household was made happier by reason of the honor bestowed upon the guardian angel of the home. The observance reached its height in the various churches of the city where mother was extolled in sermon and song. Special sermons were delivered in all churches and musical programs were in keeping with the significance of the occasion.

White and red flowers were the order of the day as honor was bestowed upon mothers both living and dead. The white flower denoted the dead and red the living. Florists filled hundreds of orders as fathers and children went about the annual business of bestowing their gratitude and love upon mother.

The occasion was also observed during Sunday school hour in many of the churches, and those who attended these services without going to church were inspired by the impressiveness of the programs.

Various washing processes for oysters rob them of from 9 to 20 percent of their iodine content and 2 to 17 per cent of their iron.

BEGIN NON-STOP FLIGHT TO ROME

Capt. George Pond and Lieut. Cesare Sebelli soared away from Floyd Bennett Field, N. Y., this morning at 6:24 on a 4,500 mile hop to the capital of Italy. They carried enough fuel to last forty hours, the time allowed in which to make the trip.

JAPS CHARGE RUSSIA WITH RIFLE FIRE

Manchukuoan Sailor Killed by Russian Shooting Along The Amur River

Tokyo, May 14.—(AP)—A Japanese army report said today that rifle fire from Russian military positions on the Russian bank of the Amur River Saturday killed one Manchukuoan sailor and wounded another aboard a steamer. The army report made no mention of advances from Tientsin to the newspaper Ashai that a detachment of Japanese troops bound for duty at Heiho was aboard the vessel. The office declined to comment.

A spokesman said the government of the Japan-protected empire of Manchukuo was investigating. He said a protest might be made to Moscow.

The shooting took place near the confluence of the Amur and Sungari Rivers. The Amur forms the northern boundary of Manchukuo.

MEAT PACKERS AFFECTED BY STRIKE ISSUE

Another Death Charged to Prolonged Walkout in Illinois Mining District

(By The Associated Press) Industrial strikes spread to the meat packing business today with strikes and meat cutters and butchers ordered in St. Louis and Des Moines as another death was charged to the prolonged coal mine troubles in Illinois.

Picketing of St. Louis packing house was ordered by a mass meeting of workers which authorized the strikes. About 2,500 workers are involved. They are asking minimum wages of 75 cents an hour for butchers and 60 cents for laborers with a 32-hour work week.

At Des Moines officials of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers Workmen's Union announced a walkout of 670 packing house workers has been called for today unless demands of the union are met. The union asked arbitration agreement on a 10 per cent increase in wages and a 32-hour work week.

Joe Augotas, United Mine worker employed by the Peabody Coal Company, was shot and killed at Taylorville, Ill. Police arrested Eddie Newman, member of the rival Progressive Miners' Union, as the slayer.

The killing, police said, followed a backyard quarrel over the miners' controversy. Philadelphia painters were ordered to strike for $1 an hour. The district council which authorized the strike for the minimum wage said 4,900 would quit work.

PITT OFFICERS HAVE HOLIDAY

Court House Closed Saturday at Noon as Half Holiday Order Takes Effect

Employees of the courthouse enjoyed a half holiday Saturday and will continue taking the half day off indefinitely.

The half holiday was ordered by the Board of County Commissioners meeting in regular monthly session here the first part of the month. The action came after members of the Pitt County Bar Association appeared before the board and asked that the court house be closed Saturday afternoon in keeping with the movement adopted by other county seats in various parts of North Carolina.

Just how long the action will hold good is a matter of conjecture, but it was stated after the meeting that it would be permanent.

Officials and employees of the public building took advantage of the afternoon off, and while the majority attempted to find sources of diversion, some of the old boys who can't get accustomed to innovations all at once, visited their offices from time to time just to see if everything looked the same.

TWO MEN ARE ARRESTED IN POLICE NET

Intermediary Carrying $60,000 For Rich Man's Release Shot His Way Free When Surrounded by Unidentified Men in Car; Was Following Instructions From Kidnapers

Los Angeles, Calif., May 14.—(AP)—In a sensational escape from a mob of men apparently attempting to hijack $60,000 as ransom offered for the release of William Gettles, kidnapped oil millionaire, an emissary fled today after shooting his way to freedom, and shortly afterward two suspects, were caught in an immense police trap.

The intermediary whose identity was kept secret at the request of police was not Ernest Noon, family lawyer, who has been attempting to contact the kidnapers since the abduction of Gettles from his five-acre wooded estate in suburban Arcadia last Wednesday.

The attempt to seize the money, carried in a black satchel and made up of $5 and $10 bills of an old issue, but genuine currency, came after a dramatic series of maneuvers had thrown the entire police forces of Los Angeles County into action.

After the emissary had picked up several notes apparently left by the kidnapers and containing instructions for payment of the ransom, he noticed as he drove down a street that he was being surrounded by about three machines.

Confident that the occupants could not be actual kidnapers because of the information he had obtained through the notes, he opened fire upon them. Shots were exchanged and after a brisk battle, the go-between succeeded in escaping.

In a matter of about eight minutes the district, about eight miles southeast of Los Angeles, was locked off by swift moving cars. Officers leading the hunt believed the emissary had been surrounded by about three machines.

NO AGREEMENT TO BE SIGNED IN LEAF BOOST

Farmers May Plant Ten Per Cent More Acreage Without Signing Contract

Farmers who plant 10 per cent more tobacco acreage this season as authorized by the Tobacco Section of the Farm Administration the latter part of last week do not have to sign any new agreement, it was made known today by E. F. Arnold, director of the local Farm Department, who has just received instructions on the ruling.

However, those who decide to plant additional acreage will have to surrender refund in rental payments.

They also will have to make it known on the compliance report when acres are measured this summer.

Under the ruling, issued because of unfavorable weather conditions in some sections of the flue-cured tobacco belt, producers may increase either their acreage or production, or both, to as much as 80 per cent of their base, instead of the 10 per cent.

C. A. TUCKER BURIED SUNDAY

Funeral For Prominent Farmer Held From Home on Cox Mill Road at 3 p. m.

C. A. Tucker, prominent farmer, who resided on the Cox Mill road several miles from Greenville, was laid to rest in the family burying ground on the Meekin Tucker farm Sunday afternoon. Final rites were conducted from the home of his son, Ola Tucker, by Elder Luther Joyner, pastor of the Red Bank Primitive Baptist Church at three o'clock.

The funeral was largely attended and an extensive floral tribute told in a mute way of the high esteem in which Mr. Tucker was held by friends throughout the community where he was born, reared and spent all of his life.

The deceased was 77 years of age and had been a faithful member of the Primitive Baptist Church for many years. He was engaged in farming and confined his entire life to this industry until illness several years ago forced his retirement. He died Saturday morning after three weeks of critical illness.

In 1866 Mr. Tucker was married to Miss Melissa Cox and to his union was born several children. Surviving are three sons, Ola, Will and Simon Tucker, who reside near the home place, and several grandchildren.

SALES TAX IS NOT NECESSARY

"Keep the sales tax to keep the schools open"

of the slogans of the organized movement in this state to make the sales tax permanent

Another phase of this organized propaganda is that the sales tax is necessary to keep from putting more taxes back on land, which of course nobody wants

When you give careful study to the situation in this state, however, you will learn that neither the sales tax nor the increased tax on land is necessary to raise revenues for schools and state operation if the legislature will see to it that those sources now enjoying exemption from their just portion of the tax burdens are made to pony up in proportion to their ability to pay

The one argument of the sales tax proponents is that those who favor repeal of the sales tax offer no substitute or point out no source from which the revenue might be derived

Here are some of the facts and in view of them it is not hard to see that there are ample sources if the legislature is of a mind to open its eyes to them instead of listening to the pleas of the lobbyists who gather in Raleigh during the legislature and make it their business to see to it that the legislators turn a deaf ear to all other pleas save their own

Based upon figures from Raleigh, the sales tax this year is falling far short of expectations and will raise less than five million dollars

Where could this five million dollars come from without being placed back on land?

Here's where:

Before stocks in foreign corporations were exempted from taxation this source was paying approximately two millions of dollars annually in taxes in this state, while under the present plan of taxing only the dividends from these stocks they pay only a small fraction of that amount

Why not place these stocks back upon an ad valorem basis and let this be one of the state's sources of revenue?

How about those large corporations that are making millions in net profits and paying a franchise tax based upon the par value of their stock instead of the true value which represents far more than the actual par value? Such a change would prove of distinct benefit to the small corporation that now pays upon the par value of its stock even though the stock is worth only a few cents on the dollar. It has been brought out in investigation that the power companies and like corporations use one set of values to compute their earnings in order to show them low and at the same time use much lower figures to list their property values for taxation. The taxing of these stocks at their actual value and the placing of proper values upon the property of these corporations in itself would increase the state's revenue enough to offset the sales tax.

Under our present constitution no income, no matter how large, has to pay more than six per cent income tax. The submission of a constitutional amendment to the people to make it possible to increase this maximum in the income tax rate is in order and if carried would enable the state to gain still greater revenues from the sources most able to pay.

These are just some of the sources from which more than enough revenues could be derived to do away with the sales tax and there are still other sources that could be tapped without taxing any industry out of business, and without placing the taxes on the land. If the state could operate this year with more than five million dollars coming from the sales tax, then surely it could operate more efficiently with the greater revenues to be derived from these sources and do away with the sales tax.

We reiterate, neither the schools nor the credit of the state is dependent upon the sales tax if the legislature will get the revenue from the sources from which it should come, and no person who is unwilling to seek to get it from the sources rather than from the sales tax, should be sent to the next legislature.

POLITICS at random

By BRYON PRICE

Political prognosticators are having difficulty in assessing the possible effect of the mid-western drought on the fall elections.

Scene foresee, on the one hand, serious discredit to the administration's farm program if an actual farm shortage should develop after Washington has induced farmers to curtail their crops.

On the other side of the ledger is the theory that the farm surpluses were largely responsible for the depression, and that anything which might wipe out these surpluses and raise farm prices would tend to restore normal conditions, to the glory of the party in power.

So there are many politicians who don't know whether to pray for rain or not.

"Vice-President" State

There was a special reason why Washington was interested in the Indiana primary.

Indiana has produced in recent years an extraordinary number of vice-presidential candidates, reflecting its importance as a pivotal mid-western state.

Governor Paul V. McNutt and Representative Louis Ludlow both have been talked about as possible Roosevelt running mates in 1936.

Indiana politics today is complicated—as always. Party headquarters made a special note, however, that some of the most prominent candidates of the McNutt faction were defeated, while Ludlow was renominated easily for Congress with a look-in for the senatorial nomination to be made later.

Little noted, an event of exceptional political interest has taken place in Minnesota.

After visiting Washington, Fred Schiplin, the St. Cloud publisher, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor on a straight-out administration platform.

That pits the administration cause directly against the farmer-labor candidacy of Governor Floyd Olson, who is running on a platform favoring public ownership of railroads and factories.

It indicates that although the Roosevelt party accepted the co-operation of the farmer-laborites in 1932, it will not string along with them on the public ownership plank.

In other words, the Roosevelt party now appears in the role of the conservative party in Minnesota.

Reed Challenges Time

James A. Reed's gesture toward a political come-back after his voluntary withdrawal from the Senate only five years ago, is one more proof that no real political warrior ever actually retires.

Many will recall Alfred E. Smith's declaration after the 1928 election that he was "through with politics." Probably he really believed it. Few doubt that were Calvin Coolidge still alive he would be back now in the thick of it, just as "T. R." was—even sooner after his "retirement."

The number of those who actually succeed in coming back, however, is very limited. Time fights against the likelihood of another Reed team in the Senate.

Heat has a beneficial effect on many ailments because it increases the blood flow.

Musk-Oxen Back On Alaskan Soil After 100 Years

Fairbanks, Alaska.—(AP)—The shaggy musk-ox, hardy denizen of Arctic snows, is re-established in Alaska after a lapse of 100 years.

Birth of two young musk-ox calves in a heard brought to Alaska in 1930 indicates the experiment of transplanting the animals from Greenland was a success, the Biological Survey reports.

It was at first uncertain whether the heard would survive. Musk-oxen disappeared from Alaska, about a century ago, according to natives, but nobody knows why.

In 1927 the territorial legislature asked congress for money to re-establish the animals there.

Congress acceded to the request and in 1930 a heard of 34 young musk-oxen were shipped half way around the world from Greenland.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER C. BROWN

Chapter 17 TRACKS IN SNOW

SERGEANT HARPER spread out a blank piece of paper and drew a hasty, but recognizable, plan of the ground floor of the Dufresne mansion, with the adjacent grounds.

All windows and doors were designated. "Now, before we look at those reports, let's get this matter of the footprints in the snow firmly in our heads. I've made a complete circuit of the house. I'll mark in the tracks as I tell you about them, then you can go out yourself and check over my work before the sun gets busy and destroys them."

"First, here is the back of the house. There are two doors, both giving onto a porch. There are two sets of heavily-marked tracks, leading from the side door of the garage building to the back door of this house."

"They were made by Mr. and Mrs. Whitmore, coming over in response to Andrews' call. There are no other footprints at the back of the house and, naturally, there are none in the snow to either the right or the left side of the house."

"Secondly, there is a confusion of tracks from the pavement to the front door. There is one set, filled in and almost covered by the later snow. Mixed in with these are two sets of fresher tracks, partly filled in. The first set is the original trail left by Hamill, the second set were made by Connally and Hilleary as they followed."

"Then there is a second group, fortunately to one side of the others. They were made by Clymer, Smith, Doyle and myself, the second group to arrive on the scene. After that I had Connally shove! a path and every one entering or leaving has had to use the path."

"Furthermore, it was Connally who actually traced Hamill's footprints from the call-box and he swears that when he and Hilleary arrived here there was one, and only one, set of prints leading up to the door."

"This gives us an accounting for every single person who entered this house before the path was cleared, except the unidentified man. He must have come in before the snow started, or before it was deep enough to retain the impression of a footprint."

"We know the snow started falling about half-past three yesterday afternoon, but it didn't really begin snowing heavily until an hour or so later. It is almost certain that this man was in this house before half-past five. Otherwise shapeless, but noticeable, ridges would have been left in the snow. Officer Hamill must have been killed as soon as he entered this room. Miller puts the hour of his death as between seven and nine."

"As you see, that leaves the most important questions unanswered. When and why did the murdered man break in? What drew Hamill's attention to this house? We have the record of all who entered this house last night between, say, half-past five and half-past ten, always excepting our mysterious dead man. As far as I can see it's an unassailable record and it doesn't furnish much ground for the suspicion that all is not as it seems on the surface."

"Do you feel sure that these marks in the snow weren't tampered with?" asked Lafferty. "Can you rely on them entirely?"

"I can see no room for doubt," Harper replied. "You cannot walk through snow of any depth without leaving traces. Try it, and see for yourself. The snow can go on for hours after a track has been made and it will still be visible. That original, unbroken surface of a fall of snow cannot be duplicated."

"Hold on a minute," Lafferty interjected, "couldn't some one tread in previously made tracks and get out that way?"

Harper shook his head. "One look at Hamill's marks will convince you that that wasn't done. I know that trick has been used, but I'll swear it didn't happen in this instance. I've looked at those marks very carefully and they are absolutely bona fide. Not even a cat walked across those grounds last night."

Lafferty thought it over. "Well, we want your story hole and corner of

Missing Christopher

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Willy Nilly was a frightened little man. He feared that one of his animal friends had taken Grandpa Grouchy Galump's breakfast rolls just to annoy Grandpa.

He gathered all of them around him and told what had happened. "Did you take the rolls, Jelly Bear?" he asked.

"Not I," he answered. "I've been too busy with roots and fish and grubs. Besides, what would I care for rolls unless I happened to be particularly hungry—especially rolls without jelly?"

"Especially rolls without honey," Honey Bear growled.

"Great roosters and little chickens," said Top Notch, the rooster. "I like crumbs to be sure, but this time I haven't been near Grandpa Grouchy Galump's house."

"Nor have we," quacked the ducks.

"He may be angry with us because he couldn't get our pond and have it for his own to drain, quack, quack," said Mr. Quacko, his wings fluttering nervously. "He will probably say we're to blame."

"He was sure one of my friends had stolen the rolls," said Willy Nilly, "but he didn't know which one."

"I can tell you that I didn't take any of them," barked Rip, the Dog. "I've found some good bones lately which I buried a long time ago. And what would I do with rolls when I could get bones?"

"Oh dear, oh dear," sighed Willy Nilly.

"What is it?" they all barked and cackled and quacked and growled.

"Christopher Columbus Crow isn't here," groaned Willy Nilly.

sary had been kidnapped as he attempted to deliver the money, but this, it developed later, was erroneous.

Shortly after the desk headquarters learned the emissary was safe, two men fell into the police blockade. One of them possessed a firearm and wore a sweater.

In the course of another brief interval Noon received a telephone call from a man who was identified by his voice as the kidnappers' contact man saying: "Something has happened out of time." He referred to the revolver fire, and apparently this marked for the time being a cessation of all real effort to establish contact.

Seed Loans Ends Tuesday

had already been granted to growers of the community, and it was expected quite a number would file before the closing period.

The filing period was scheduled to close the first of the month but notice of extension to the middle of this month was given by the government several days before the close of the initial date.

Mr. Edens said little delay had been incurred in obtaining loans here. In fact, he said checks have been issued within three or four days after application left this office.

These loans are playing an important part in financing the crops of this section among growers who have found sledding rather difficult the last few years, and general farm activities are being conducted with greater speed and facility than in years.

Farmers desiring to obtain additional funds for financing their crops should apply at the office of Mr. Edens at the court house either today or tomorrow if they wish to obtain loans this year.

NO AGREEMENT TO BE SIGNED IN LEAF BOOST

allotted under the contract, Mr. Arnold said.

In explaining the ruling, J. E. Hutson, chief of the tobacco section, said:

"We are giving growers this opportunity to grow and market slightly larger quantity of flue-cured tobacco because we believe that under the conditions which have recently developed it will result in more total income than would be obtained from a smaller crop.

"Domestic consumption of flue-cured tobacco has increased during the past few months, and the export movement has been larger, particularly during the past two months, than during the corresponding period of either of the two preceding years. Although most of the increased exports have gone to increase foreign stocks, rather than into consumption, it appeared that the decline in the consumption of flue-cured types noted during the past two or three years had been checked, at least in some foreign countries."

The ruling says that where acreage exceeded 70 per cent of the base, one-third of the amount of the rental payments of $17.50 per acre, would be deducted from the adjustment payments. The making of rental payments will be completed and deductions will be made from the adjustment payments due when the 1934 crop is sold.

—they age good grapes to make rare wines

—and they do something like that to mellow good tobaccos

WHERE THE RARE WINES come from they know that the two most important things in wine-making are the selection of the grapes and the long years of ageing in the wine cellars.

IT'S VERY MUCH THE SAME in the making of a cigarette. You have to get the right tobaccos, then put them away to age and mellow in wooden casks.

You can't make a good cigarette like Chesterfield in a day. It takes over two years to age the tobaccos for your Chesterfields—but it adds something to the taste and makes them milder.

Everything that modern Science really knows about is used to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.
