DECISION ON 'SPUD' RATES NOW PENDING

Ruling Expected Soon On Effort to Force in Effect Rates Found Lawful by I. C. C.

Officers of the Eastern Carolina Association, Incorporated, and the growers and shippers of potatoes in Eastern North Carolina are relieved by knowing that the controversy over the rates on Irish potatoes from points in Eastern North Carolina will soon be brought to a satisfactory finish. These rates have been involved before the Interstate Commerce Commission in one way or another since the early part of 1923.

The Interstate Commerce Commission found a reasonable basis in its final decision on November 21, 1931, but the carriers refused to publish such a basis. Then, the Carolina Shippers' Association, which is now the traffic department of the Eastern North Carolina Association, representing the shippers, filed complaints to force in effect rates on the basis found lawful by the Commission.

In preventing the proposed increased rates from becoming effective the association saved the growers and shippers of potatoes in North Carolina approximately $200,000 annually, or $1,500,000 in nine years. In other words that would be the difference between the revenue on the crops at the rates on which they moved and the revenue that would have accrued on the level of rates proposed by the carriers.

Inasmuch as the North Carolina growers are compelled to sell their potatoes at prices fixed by the Norfolk growers this means that they would have been compelled to absorb this difference in addition to the difference between the present rates and the rates from Norfolk to the same points. In other words, at the present time, the North Carolina shippers are absorbing approximately $250,000 annually because their competitors can usually fix the prices at which they must sell their potatoes.

The handling and prosecution of these cases have cost the membership of the Carolina Shippers' Association several thousands of dollars but of course, the total cost is insignificant when compared with the savings that have already resulted. At the same time, the Association feels confident that reparation or damages will be awarded on all shipments made during the past three years.

This will mean a great deal to the shippers in the territory. The handling and prosecution of these cases has constituted only a small part of the work done by the Carolina Shippers' Association during its existence. It is a non-profit organization and its affairs are under the direction of some of the outstanding business and professional men in the section.

Rioting Follows Attempt to Move Truck Shipment

NRA REVIEW BOARD FACES 'ABOLITION'

Attack of Darrow on Emergency Organization Draws Fire at Washington

Washington, D. C., May 21.—The Darrow report exhorting the NRA appeared likely today to become the death knell to the board that created it.

There were signs that the recovery review board headed by Clarence Darrow faced prompt abolition because of its conclusions set down in vigorous language that the NRA is a friend to monopoly and a foe to small business.

The board, which had been asked by President Roosevelt to review the practices of the National Recovery Administration, stabbed at the heart of the NRA's principles of industrial code by saying:

Mrs. Wilson Hurt As Truck Turns Car Over

Mrs. L. M. Wilson was painfully cut and bruised this morning when a car in which she was riding turned over after being struck by a West Construction Company truck at the intersection of Tenth and Evans Street.

The truck, going in the direction of Washington with a load of cement, was driven by James Clemmons, but he was permitted by officers to continue his journey after he stopped to investigate the accident.

SEVERAL HURT AS POLICE USE THEIR CLUBS

Eight Officers Knocked Down and One Stabbed as 300 Pickets and 100 Policemen Engage in Hand To Hand Conflict; Ten Pickets Also Fall During Melee; Police Disperse Mob With Guns

Minneapolis, May 21.—(AP)—Riots broke out a gain today in the market district and eight policemen and ten strikers fell as 300 pickets and nearly one hundred special policemen clashed over the movements of trucks.

One striker was reported to have stabbed a policeman. Strikers were at the scene at dawn as several produce firms began moving trucks loaded with vegetables and other perishables and police were already on hand.

The majority of the strikers were armed with clubs and poles. Many carried rocks. As two trucks started out a mass of pickets stepped into the alleyway to block them. Police clubs swung. The pickets turned into the fray swinging clubs themselves. Half a dozen policemen dropped to the pavement and as many pickets, their heads streaming blood.

One tall picket flashed a knife and slashed it across the back of the neck of a policeman inflicting a deep gash. Police ran to their cars an unlimbered rifles, taking stations around the outskirts of the battle. The slugging lulled with the appearance of shotguns and the strikers fell back.

LAW OFFICERS TO MEET HERE

Representatives of Several Cities Expected to Attend Meet Thursday Nite

A meeting of law-enforcement officers from several towns and cities of this section of the State will be held at the City Hall in Greenville next Thursday night at 7 o'clock.

The meeting was called several days ago by George Clark, head of the local police department with a view to bringing about a better understanding between the various law enforcement agencies. Preceding the meeting a delightful supper will be served to visitors.

Mayor R. C. Flanagan has been chosen to deliver the principal address, and representatives of other cities in attendance will be called on for brief remarks in connection with closer co-operation of law-enforcement officers of the territory.

With the problem of crime becoming more complex than it has ever been, Mr. Clark said he thought officer of the district should be brought into closer contact with one another by understanding the problems affecting the several communities.

IT MERITS YOUR SUPPORT

The report from the Eastern Carolina Association appearing in this issue setting forth what has been accomplished in the way of savings to this section through adjustment of freight rates on potatoes, is within itself, enough to justify the existence of the organization and merit the wholehearted support of the citizens of Eastern North Carolina generally. In addition to its work in behalf of better freight rates for this section and its sponsorship of the project for water transportation on Tar River up to this city, the Association is likewise interested in each and every movement for the good of the entire eastern section of the state. So far the organization has received neither the financial nor moral support to which it is entitled because, we believe, the people of this section do not realize just what a great asset the organization is. We urge each and every citizen, especially the business men, to give a little study to what the organization is doing and then give it your support.

DISCUSSING PROBLEMS OF INTEREST TO THIS COMMUNITY. IN ALL CASES NAMES MUST ACCOMPANY ANY COMMUNICATION. Please Make Your Discussion As Short As Possible.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR:
In interest of Democracy will please cause this statement to be published. It is assumed that you will do so.

Your editorial: "An open letter to the legislative candidates" merits praise. Your effort is in interest of Democracy. The executive committee of Pitt County Tax Relief Association by resolution directs that you be informed the association approves the editorial and will support the principle stated. And there is added:

"We are Democrats, right or wrong; if right to remain right; if wrong to get right." Our issues must be settled within the party.

There seems to be scheming within our ranks to cause candidates to be nominated prior to adoption of a platform for the party. Nominations in this county are equal to election, as we all know. Your editorial is right in demanding that candidates declare themselves in general terms that the principles for which they stand be known to the voters. Such principle must be observed as due the voters and as protection to officers. It is reasonably certain that no officer would act contrary to the general principles upon which he was nominated and elected. No good citizen would ask him to do so.

Very generally candidates for nomination say "Your support will be appreciated." The voters, it seems, are saying "Statement of your stand will be appreciated." If you can not trust us we can not trust you. "No pig-in-the-bug." That blind practice caused more than $3,000,000 debt to be now outstanding against Pitt County.

ty. An annual debt service expense of about $180,000 stands against Pitt County because of the "pig-in-the-bug" policy. Why should candidates refuse to state the principles to which they will hold as officers? Refusal does not seem fair; it does not seem honest, and certainly it is undemocratic.

Candidates must know that there are issues within the party, and that they can not get unanimous support. They must take stand upon principle, and hold to principle. No man, no candidate, is as dependable as the Democratic Party. Officers can not under all circumstances feel secure enough to trust themselves unaided. Voting support being asked of the party why refuse moral support of that same party. Why ask for and accept personal support of the Party and reject moral support of the Party? If the personal support only is sought, and Party control is rejected some explanation should be made. Such seems self-serving. Certainly it does not serve Democracy. It is undemocratic, and is therefore wrong in principle and must, eventually, be denounced and rejected by Democracy.

Time and experience have proven that we are not afraid. When we disagree on principle it is no secret. When we do agree on principle it is our privilege to work together for that principle. This time you are right. Keep up the good fight for Democracy.

Murder at MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER C. BROWN

SYNOPSIS: Scorpens Harper has found two bits of evidence to support his theory that the two men found shot to death in Pierre Dufresne's breakfast room did not shoot each other, in spite of appearances. One is the fact that a certain bullet does not fit a certain bullet hole; the other is a drop of water in a glass. Now he has found where the murderer obtained the spent bullet he substituted for the one actually used.

MISSING REVOLVER

IT WAS a squat roll of old staff carpet. There was a scorched hole through the tough fabric and a further search showed a scar on the whitewashed boards where the spent bullet had hit.

"We're on the right road now," Harper exclaimed exultantly. "If we could only find that steel-jacket bullet, we'd have our proof complete."

"I'm afraid the killer would hold on to that," was Lafferty's surmise. "There's a natural urge to get rid of that sort of evidence," Harper countered, "and I'm counting on that."

They swung their flashlight about at random. "What's in that little cubby-hole over there?" Lafferty poked his head down. "Logs for the fireplace," he announced.

They moved those from one side of the narrow bin to the other but found nothing hidden beneath them. Harper flashed his light around the sides of the bin and the beam came to rest on a rough board barrier set flush into the wall.

The detective unfastened the rusty books and pulled it free, after a struggle. A dark space filled with rubble was revealed, greeting them with a damp, musty odor.

"That must be the space under the front steps," said Harper. Lafferty suddenly raised his hand. "Listen!" he whispered. "There's some one on the stairs. I heard a board creak!"

He tiptoed silently in that direction, while Harper snapped off the light and listened, waiting, in a little while Lafferty returned, disgruntled. "There wasn't a soul in sight," he growled, "but I'm sure somebody was listening in."

"I'm going to look in that hole," Harper declared. "Give me a boost up to the ledge." With his assistant's aid he scrambled on to the shoulder-high ledge. Thrusting the torch ahead, he crawled forward on his knees. Lafferty heard a grunt of disgust as he brushed aside a black thing that crawled out from under a dislodged lump of mortar.

There was a cry, a scramble backwards, and Harper slid down to the cellar floor in a shower of small stones and dirt. His clothes were soiled with lime and the soft, mossy dirt, and his hands were brushing at the thick cobwebs caught around his head and shoulders, but in his stained fingers he held a lump of metal.

"Carlin was right!" he exclaimed. It was a discharged .45 caliber steel-jacket bullet!

"BUT, Steve, I tell you I saw it—right there, buried under those handkerchiefs!" Lafferty pointed to the open drawer of the highboy in Pierre Dufresne's dressing-room. There was palpably nothing there now but the neatly stacked handkerchiefs.

"I couldn't be mistaken about anything as important as that. It was not an automatic, but a heavy caliber revolver. Andrews was looking for Dufresne's extra pairs of glasses and they were in the drawer on the other side. The gun was not in a holster. I'd bet a month's pay the bullets would be .45's."

"I don't get this at all," Harper mused. "We went off by ourselves and made an important discovery that has to do with the gun used for this crime. No one knew anything about our suspicions, yet when we return to this room less than an hour later the revolver has been spirited away. That's more than a coincidence!"

Harper looked through the other drawers in the highboy. The contents were in meticulous order and it was apparent at a glance that nothing as bulky as the revolver Lafferty had described could be hidden there now.

To be doubly sure that Lafferty and he had overlooked nothing, Harper went through the drawers once more, and gave the pleasant room a hasty general search before either spoke again. There was nothing.

"Don't forget," Lafferty advised drily, "that there was a noise on the stairs while we were poking around the cellar. Some one in this house is trying to keep an eye on us. I think it's Andrews. That fellow can move around with less noise than a snake."

"If that was the revolver we're looking for," Harper went on, "I don't see why it would be left lying around all that time."

"But this gun was too big to be carried around easily. It really needed a holster. I think you'd better tackle Dufresne on the question."

"Not so fast. Let me think. If Dufresne did it and we tax him with it, he'll certainly deny there ever was such a gun. If Andrews did it, he'll lie, too. But if he didn't do it and doesn't know it's gone—you stay here, Jack, and look through these two rooms for that gun."

Harper went downstairs. He met Officer Albright, who had stood guard over Dufresne's room, standing in the hall, about to go out duty. "Has any one gone up or down these stairs in the last fifteen or twenty minutes?"

"Not a soul, sir."

"I want you to do something for me. I want to find out if any one left this house in the last hour, and if so, where they went. Can you manage that without arousing suspicion?"

Albright signified that he could. The officer at the front door informed Harper that no one had gone out by that way, whereupon the detective returned to the breakfast-room. He pressed the servants' bell and signed to O'Connell to leave the field clear.

When Andrews entered he found the detective bent over the table, carefully examining under the lens the fingerprints the dead man had left on the twin drawers. Sergeant Harper looked around, as if surprised, then said, "Oh, yes. Sit down, Andrews. I want to ask you a couple of questions."

"ANDREWS, we are trying to trace the movements of this man who was killed here last night. We know that he changed into some of your master's clothing. We assume that he lit the fire in the hearth. By the way, was that always prepared for the next lighting?"

"Yes, sir. In the season it would be cleaned early every morning and freshly packed."

"We noticed that there was quite an accumulation of ashes in the pit in the cellar. Was this hearth in use while the re-decorating was going on?"

"I couldn't say, sir. I have not been in this house for some weeks."

"How long has Mr. Dufresne been at the Austerlitz, Andrews?"

"Mr. and Mrs. Dufresne spent the summer at Moose Head Lodge, sir. That's on a small island off the coast of Maine. We came back early in October, but we had only been here a week or two when we went to the Austerlitz."

"But Mrs. Dufresne has been staying at Mrs. Morlock's."

"Since the holidays, sir. The decorators have been very slow. Of course, I sometimes came up here with Mr. Dufresne to see how things were progressing. Donaghy was here much oftener to bring back things that were needed."

"Was the house closed up while the Dufresnes were at Moose Head Lodge?"

"Oh, no, sir. The Whitmores looked after it all summer."

"How many keys are there to this house and who has them?"

"Mrs. Whitmore has the only complete set of keys, I believe, but I suppose you are more interested in door keys. Mr. Dufresne has a set and so has Mrs. Dufresne. I have keys to the front door and back door. Donaghy has a key to the back door. That is all, sir."

"The household keys seem to be fairly well scattered around," Harper remarked.

"Not unusually so," Andrews replied, with some apertizing.

"Oh, I'm not criticizing, Andrews," Harper replied evenly. "This man who was killed showed a surprising familiarity with the place. He knew, for instance, how to get hold of those liquor bottles without turning the place inside out."

The butler looked at the twin drawers. "Then he must have found his way to the wine cellar. Those bottles were not kept filled. They were empty last time I saw them."

"But your wine cellar is kept under lock and key? When we searched down there we found the door securely locked."

"Yes, but the key hangs behind a beam, easy to reach, but out of sight. You would have to know where to look for it."

"That's what I thought. Now, Andrews, one more question. I must file a report of whatever firearms are kept on these premises. Mr. Dufresne reports that he keeps a revolver in the house, a .45 caliber. That is correct, isn't it?"

Harper glanced up covertly but the butler's face was as impassive as ever, nor did he hesitate over his reply. "Yes, sir."

Harper turns up more puzzling information, tomorrow.

"Building a Canal or Buying a Car... good Engineering Counts"

A CERTIFIED INTERVIEW WITH CONSTRUCTION ENGINEER FRANK VIOLETTE, PANAMA CANAL ZONE

"We punish cars down here...but let me tell you how my Plymouth takes it."

FRANK VIOLETTE is a modest man. He talks very little about his supervising millions of dollars' worth of Panama's construction. But ask him about cars...

"In the Canal Zone, our everyday driving soon proves to us how a car takes punishment. I've found that of all the low-priced cars, Plymouth stands up the best."

And Mr. Violette isn't surprised that Plymouth proved to be the strongest. As an engineer, he knows from long experience that steel reinforced with steel is the safest form of construction you can have.

But Plymouth engineers didn't stop with this one safety feature. They added Hydraulic Brakes—the safest brakes made.

Then, they built in extra comfort, too...with patented Floating Power engine mountings and Individual Wheel Springing.

Any Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler dealer will demonstrate Plymouth.

1 "Ten years in Panama taught me to take precautions many people overlook. I wanted a tough car."

2 "We depend on steel for safety in the Canal and in our buildings. We've found it's positive proof against everything from tremors to earthquakes. So I knew a Safety-Steel Body would be strongest."

3 "Some of our roads weren't built for comfort. But my Plymouth was. Its Individual Wheel Springing levels off the bumps. And Hydraulic Brakes keep me out of many unexpected mud holes."

4 Mr. Violette and Mr. Martinz, President of his construction company, each with his De Luxe Plymouth. Plymouth prices begin at $530 at the factory. Time payment arranged to fit your budget. Ask for the Official Chrysler Motors Commercial Credit Plan.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE FIFTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT

Dear Folks:

Mindful and appreciative of the splendid support you have given me in the past, I again seek the nomination for Solicitor at your hands. Although court duties have prevented my seeing my friends, I hope to be with them soon.

You know me and know that I am just one of the folks—a plain, everyday fellow that tries to do his duty conscientiously, yet be a friend to man whenever possible.

I feel that my experience and acquaintance with the people of the six counties of our district qualifies me better than ever for this responsible and important office.

My promise for the future is the same character of service as that you have experienced with me in the past.

My record is my endorsement. Upon this I ask your support.

With gratitude and appreciation for anything that you may do in my behalf, I am

Respectfully and sincerely yours,
D. M. (RED) CLARK

WILKERSON-GASKINS

St. Paul's Episcopal Church was the scene of a beautiful wedding today at high noon, when Miss Agnes Holton Gaskins was married to Edwin Clisco Wilkerson. The simplicity of the decorations and ceremony made it most impressive. Ferns and white lilies were used in taste and cathedral candles burned on the altar.

Before the ceremony, Miss Eva Hodges rendered a beautiful organ program, using Nocturne from "Midsummer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn; "When Song Is Sweet," by Sans Souci; "Serenade" by Gounod, and "Nocturne in F Sharp," by Chopin. Miss Hodges wore navy blue crepe with a shoulderette of pink roses.

The bridal party entered to the strains of the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin, and Mendelssohn's Wedding March was used as a recessional.

The ushers were first to enter. They were Reid Gaskins, brother of the bride, and Ben Dixon.

The bride entered with her father and was met at the altar by the groom attended by his brother, Vernon Wilkerson of LaGrange, as best man. The bride was smartly attired in a poudre blue silk tulle crepe suit. All her accessories were brown. She wore a shoulderette of garçonnias. She looked unusually pretty, her tall blonde type accentuated by her gown.

The wedding vows were taken before Rev. Stephen Gardner, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Washington, who used the ever beautiful ring service of the Episcopal Church. "Aria" by Freyer, and "Prelude in A," by Chopin, were softly played during the ceremony.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Claude Gaskins of this city. Her genial disposition and friendly manner have endeared her to a number of friends. Her popularity has been attested by a number of social courtesies extended her during the past few weeks.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Athleen Jamison and the late O. C. Wilkerson of LaGrange. He was educated at State College in Raleigh. He holds a position with the Greenville Tobacco Company. During his residence here, he has won a host of friends.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wilkerson left for a wedding trip. They will be at home here after June 1st.

Out of town guests here for the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Jake Froelich and children, and Matt Wall, High Point; Mrs. Herman Armstrong, New York; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Exum, Snow Hill.

HOW THE MEMORIAL POPPIES ARE MADE

Memorial poppies which the women of the American Legion Auxiliary will distribute here on "Poppy Day" Saturday, May 26th, have been a means of providing employment to hundreds of disabled World War veterans through the winter and spring months. The little red flowers have made possible earnings of approximately $100,000 for these disabled men.

"Making of the paper poppies which the American Legion Auxiliary offers on 'Poppy Day' to be worn in honor of the World War dead is reserved strictly for the war disabled. It offers a means of employment to veterans unable to do other work and not only brings them money for the support of themselves and families, but aids in their rehabilitation by giving them beneficial, interesting work.

"The poppies are made in government hospitals and in special poppy workrooms maintained by the Auxiliary. This year 58 different poppy making centers have been in operation in 40 states. Employment is restricted to men unable to do work of other types of work and preference is given those with families to support. The paper poppy is used exclusively by the Auxiliary because its making is a hand rather than machine process.

"The best of working conditions are, of course, provided for the disabled men employed in the poppy project. The number of poppies that a man can make in one day is restricted in order that the workers will not tax their strength. The work is directed in such a manner that it will aid in the physical and mental rehabilitation of the veterans, as well as giving them financial benefits. The money contributed for the poppies pays the wages of the poppy makers and helps to support the Legion and Auxiliary's activities for the welfare of the disabled veterans and dependent families."

These poppies will be sold in Greenville on Saturday by members of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Bears' Playtime

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
The bear cubs, Jupiter and Blacky, had learned many lessons about the woods and what they should eat, and that they must stay close to Honey Bear and their mother. "You may wander all around Puddle Middle," she told them, "but the big world outside is not for you until you're much older. When you want to see other woods than ours, let Honey Bear know and I'll go with you."

While Honey Bear was a true bear mother in making the cubs obey because she knew that all kinds of harm might come to them if they didn't, she was immensely proud of them.

She liked to play with them, too, and even if they, by accident, hurt her when they were tumbling and playing all over her, she did not object.

"Let's play now," Jupiter Bear suggested. He had been so named because he was the smaller of the two cubs, and Honey Bear had thought it would be nice to give him a bigger sounding name.

"Yes, growl, growl," said Blacky Bear, "let's play that Mother Honey Bear is a hill and we'll roll down her."

So Honey Bear sat just outside the cave and Jupiter and Blacky rolled down her back. Then they chased each other all around her as they played tag, and then they tried to see if they could jump over her. They never succeeded in this game. They always landed on her. She thought how well and safe they were in Puddle Middle. Little did she know of the danger ahead for Jupiter.

"SOUTH POLE OF COLD" IN ANDES MOUNTAINS

Washington.—(AP)—The "south pole of cold" is not in the Antarctic, but hundreds of miles nearer the equator in the Andes Mountains of South America.

It is the second most frigid spot on earth, with temperatures often as low as 10 below zero, comparable to the "north pole of cold" in northern Siberia, says Director Navarrette in a report to the Monthly Weather Review of the U. S. Weather Bureau.

This cold spot is a region about 30 miles wide, in the Andes Mountains of northern Patagonia, along the Chilean-Argentine frontier. It is a place of deep valleys with high mountain walls, an ideal repository for the chilled air from the Antarctic that settles into it from higher levels.

ERASMUS VOLUME FOUND IN U. S. COLLEGE LIBRARY

Emporia, Kas.—(AP)—A volume bound in rawhide and published in 1646—a compilation extracts by Erasmus—has been discovered in Anderson Memorial Library on the campus of the College of Emporia.

The book was published at Frankfurt, Germany, more than a century after the death of its compiler. An inscription below the book plate reads: "I acknowledge Johannst Bormann as my owner, 1860."

Prof. H. Winstlow Abbott, when a resident of Wichita, Kansas, came into possession of the book at the death of an unnamed French scholar. For some reason it never had been catalogued in the Anderson library.

Clinton, Ark.—(AP)—The ingenuity of Walter Satterwhite, Van Buren County farmer, brought him governmental aid.

Without a team to plant his crop this spring, he built a tractor with odds and ends salvaged from abandoned motor vehicles in the community. The whole thing cost him $24. A Federal farm loan committee observed the efficiency of his tractor in plowing and readily approved his application for a loan.

HAPPY, carefree conversation changed to breathless terror. Beautiful new cars turned into hideous wrecks. Nerves shattered. All because someone trusted to luck . . . neglected to take the proper precaution against blow-outs.

Don't gamble on tires. Know that the tires on your car will give you real blow-out protection. For today, due to high-powered motors and whirlwind revolutions of small, modern wheels, the heat generated inside the tire is terrific. Rubber and fabric begin to separate. A tiny blister forms and grows—until BANG! A blow-out!

To protect you from these blow-outs, every new Goodrich Safety Silvertown has the amazing Life-Saver Golden Ply. This remarkable invention resists intense heat. Rubber and fabric don't separate. The great, unseen cause of blow-outs is prevented before it begins.

Racing daredevils tested out the Golden Ply at breakneck speeds, on the world's fastest track. Not one blow-out. Similar tires without the Life-Saver Golden Ply failed at one-third the distance the Golden Ply Silvertowns were run.

Freedom from blow-out fears! Months of extra mileage! In Goodrich Silvertowns with the Life-Saver Golden Ply you get both—at no more cost than other standard tires. Get a set of Goodrich Silvertowns today.

This insignia indicates that the Goodrich Company complies fully with the tire manufacturing industry code.

FASHIONS OF 1934 COMING WITH STYLES COMEDY AND ROMANCE

One of the most colorful pictures to come from Hollywood in many a day is promised by the management with the showing of the First National production "Fashions of 1934," with William Powell in the stellar role at the Princess Theater, Ayden, N. C., Monday and Tuesday, May 21 and 22.

The picture is said to combine hilarious comedy with glamorous romance and a mammoth spectacle, the latter staged by Busby Berkeley the musical comedy director whose flair for the unique and bizarre is exemplified in the beautiful specialty numbers in "Footlight Parade," "Gold Diggers of 1933," "42nd Street" and other pictures.

The prize number in Fashions of 1934 is a most unusual spectacle in which 200 beautiful girls do a fan dance in rhythm to music furnished by a harp orchestra.

One feature calculated to appeal especially to women is a gorgeous fashion show staged by Director William Dieterle. In the luxurious setting of a fashionable and exclusive Paris modiste shop, more than a score of girls display the very latest 1934 styles in women's evening gowns and wraps, sports suits, negligees and lingerie.

He is a member of the Methodist Church. He is also a member of the Red Men, Jr. O. U. A. M., and Pitt County Post of the American Legion.

A recent editorial in the Snow Hill Standard-Laconia had the following to say about the Greenville man: "This writer has been observing courts here for the last 32 years, and has seen the coming and going of the ablest solicitors who have ever served in the State, and is frank to say that among them all he has seen no one secure a higher percentage of convictions."

Reserves Leaf Tax Decision. Washington, May 21.—(AP)—President Roosevelt reserved a final decision today on a plea of senators from tobacco growing states for a 40 per cent horizontal cut in tobacco taxes.

The President emphasized he would have to wait and see what Congress did in maintaining his budget in the pending supplemental appropriations bill now fixed at $1,322,000,000.

The senatorial delegation included Senators George and Russell of Georgia; Smith and Byrnes of South Carolina; Reynolds and Bailey of North Carolina; Byrd of Virginia, and Barkley of Kentucky, all Democrats; and Walcott and Longeneer of Connecticut.

Norris Amendment Loses. Washington, May 21.—(AP)—The Senate refused by the slimmest of margins today to submit the latest Norris constitutional amendment to the Senate and thereupon returned to its reciprocal tariff jousting.

Nebraska's veteran independent won 42 votes for his proposal to abolish the electoral college and select the President directly.

Opposed were 24, meaning that he barely fell short of the two-thirds vote required.

Democrats in general remained quiet, hoping for a vote in several days.

All capitol business of the day was mainly in committee.

KIDNAP VICTIM NOT RETURNING TO CLASS

Tucson, Ariz., May 21.—(AP)—June Robles received bad news today—she will not be allowed to return to school tomorrow as she had wished.

The six-year-old victim of kidnapers was so informed by her father, Fernando Robles, as she left her home to attend mass at the neighborhood Roman Catholic Church.

The condition of little June has influenced our decision to keep her from school until next year the father said.

"As soon as the cruel kidnapers are apprehended and she no longer is needed to identify them, we plan a long vacation on the coast. We probably will take her to one of the beaches where she can rest and forget about her hideous experience in that heat-scoured prison box in which she was held for nineteen days.
