CAR MECHANIC SHOT TO DEATH IN ARGUMENT

Casey Cade Slain By Ben Frank Gwaltney North Of Greenville Early Today

A coroner's jury this afternoon declared that Casey Cade came to his death at the hands of Ben Frank Gwaltney and recommended that Gwaltney be held without bond.

Ben Frank Gwaltney, 40, surrendered to county officers here today on a charge of second degree murder growing out of the slaying early this morning of Casey Cade, 28-year-old automobile mechanic of Greenville during an altercation which occurred between the two at the R. H. Corgan home, about five miles north of the city.

Gwaltney, officers said, is charged with firing a shotgun charge into Cade's stomach, fatally wounding him. Cade died on the way to the local hospital.

Cade, who with his brothers operates an automobile repair shop on the West Fifth Street, was working on an automobile when he and Gwaltney allegedly engaged in an argument. Gwaltney later went to the Corgan's home, obtained Mr. Corgan's shotgun, returned to within a few steps to where Cade was working, and fired upon the mechanic.

Gwaltney fled to nearby woods, it was said, but several hours later surrendered to officers.

Coroner A. E. Elwanger will conduct a hearing into the case sometime today.

TROOPS GAIN FULL CONTROL IN STRIKE ZONE

Casualty List Of Two Dead And 11 Injured Left By Rioting In Toledo, Ohio

(By The Associated Press) National guard troops gained command today of the bloody battleground around the Electric Auto-Lite Company's plant at Toledo, Ohio. A casualty list of two dead and at least eleven injured, was left by a series of skirmishes between troops and strikers.

With rifle fire and tear gas bombs the guardsmen finally gained a hand over the jeering crowd of 6,000 which battled largely with clubs, bricks and bottles.

Frank Hybay, 27, and Steve Cygon, 20, were killed by the malicious fire. The strike at the Toledo plant began five weeks ago. Union recognition, pay increases and seniority rights are among the strikers' demands.

A youth was shot and thirty people arrested at New Orleans as police routed a crowd of striking longshoremen.

Chester Bolding, twenty, was wounded when hit in the leg. At Marrero, La., 700 employees of the Cellrex plant began a strike for more pay, shorter hours and closed shop.

At Minneapolis, Minn., peace continued in the truck drivers' strike because of furious rioting early in the week in which one was killed. A 48-hour truck which would have expired at 9 o'clock last night was arranged pending efforts for settlement.

POPPIES WILL BE SOLD HERE ON SATURDAY

Tiny Flowers To Be Offered The Public By Auxiliaries Of American Legion

The annual sale of poppies, emblems of the sacrifices made by American soldiers on foreign battlefields, will be conducted on the streets of Greenville tomorrow and persons appreciating what the former veterans did for the salvation of the world from the heels of German autocracy, are urged to buy liberally of the small flowers.

The sale will be conducted by the Auxiliary and Junior Auxiliary of the Pitt County Legion. These young women will be up bright and early tomorrow morning to greet early risers and hundreds of the tiny red flowers will be worn during the day in honor of the men who sacrificed their all for the sake of their country.

Headquarters will be located at C. O. H. Home Drug Store on Evans Street. Mrs. Selma Carson Moore will be in charge of the sale and will be assisted by numerous members of the two auxiliaries.

The sale of poppies is always conducted on Saturday preceding Memorial Day, May 30, as a preparation to the observances throughout the nation in honor of American soldiers.

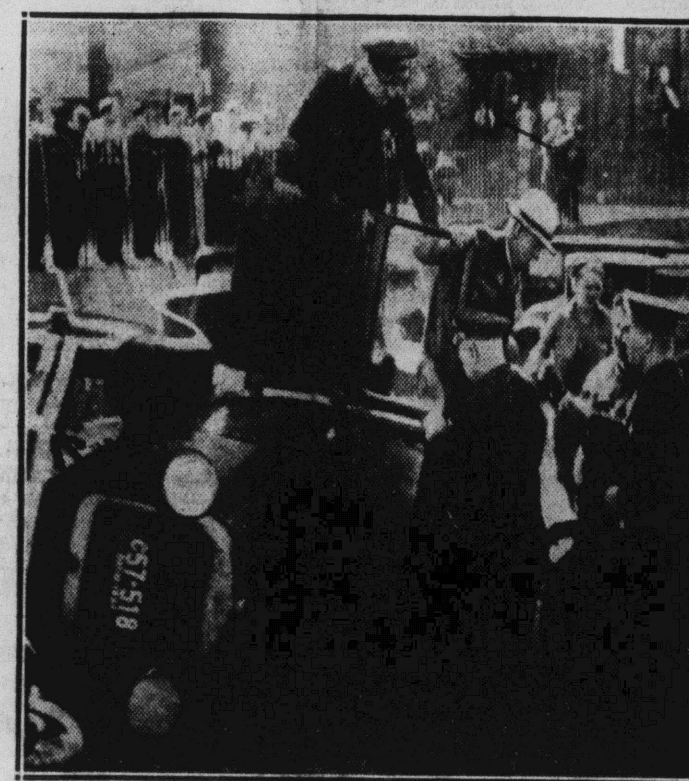

Nearly ten million Americans wear the Legion poppy each year on "Poppy Day," and contribute nearly one million dollars for the relief of the shaping the little paper flowers. A prize will be given to the child selling the most poppies.

All poppies are made by disabled veterans confined in government hospitals throughout the country. Special work-rooms are maintained by the Auxiliary so that the hands of the disabled veterans, weary of idleness, may be given employment shaping the little paper flowers.

LINDSEY GARDNER, 65, IS BELIEVED SUICIDE

Tarboro, N. C., May 25.—(AP)—Lindsay Gardner, 65, Edgemore County farmer, was found dead of a gunshot wound at his home near Pinetops today. Officers said the death apparently was a suicide.

TROOPS CALLED IN TOLEDO RIOTS

National guardsmen were ordered into Toledo, Ohio, to protect the area around the Electric Auto-Lite company plant where 1,500 workers were besieged several hours by 3,000 strikers and sympathizers. Several were sent to hospitals during rioting in which bullets, clubs, bricks and fists were used as weapons. Strikers overturned this automobile and police are helping extricate the driver who was inside. (Associated Press Photo)

ASK JOBLESS TO RE-ENROLL

Re-Employment Office Calls On Unemployed To Re-Register At Once

Mrs. Ruby Allen, head of the local Re-employment Office, today urged persons who have not re-registered during the last sixty days to get busy and do so at once.

Mrs. Allen said that all persons who did not renew their cards would be automatically dropped from the rolls.

Only in this way is the department able to keep check on those who are employed and those without employment, and persons desiring to stay in good standing should act immediately.

Hundreds of names were placed on the rolls here in the last several months, and many found employment. Mrs. Allen said, but it will be impossible to provide work for those in need of it unless cards are renewed.

The local office sometime ago was placed in the Washington district with headquarters at Washington but work here is continuing as usual with every effort being put forward to provide work for jobless.

Efforts is under way at this time to provide five hundred potato "pickers" for Beaufort County, and the Welfare Office is assisting Mrs. Allen in providing workers for this field.

Demands for labor probably will come from other sections in the near future, and those who have not re-enrolled will be out of luck.

Bethel, one of the largest potato-producing areas in this immediate section, will start digging "spuds" around June 5, and it is likely scores of workers from the Re-employment Office will be called into service.

ROCKINGHAM MAN KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Rockingham, N. C., May 25.—Frank Blacker, aged 65, was killed instantly at 3 a. m. today between Roanoke Rapids and Halifax when his truck crashed into a standing truck. Mr. Blacker was on his way to Richmond to buy goods for his store here.

The remains were carried to Richmond today, with funeral there.

BETTER LAW ENFORCEMENT PLEDGED HERE

Officers Of This District Urge Co-Operation At Meeting Here Last Night

Better law enforcement was the keynote of a meeting of law-enforcement officers of this section held in the City Hall here last night. Officers from several surrounding towns were in attendance, enjoyed a delightful supper and listened to a stirring address by Mayor R. C. Flaungan of Greenville.

The mayor called attention to the fact that co-operation of officers in the various towns and cities of the country is necessary to real enforcement of the law. He declared the building up of public sentiment was also a necessity.

He said no police department can be better than the community it serves, and pointed to the fact that public support is imperative to the realization of enforcing the laws as it should be.

The meeting was called several days ago by Chief of Police George Clark, of Greenville, with the idea of instilling in the minds of the officers the idea that each town is dependent upon the other in apprehending criminals and bringing them to justice.

It was indicated other meetings of the kind will be held in various cities and towns of the section in the next several months, giving the officers a chance to more thoroughly contact one another and prepare themselves for any great emergency.

Chief Clark presided and called one representative of the various towns for brief concerning the needs of the territory in the law-enforcement field.

The speakers were: Chief Gurley, Wilson; Chief Singleton, Washington; Chief Gray, Robersonville; Sheriff Whitehurst, Greenville; Lieutenant Lester Jones, Greenville; Policemen Sawyer and Moore, Ayden; Captain Dorsey, Norfolk, a.; and Captain Dail, of New Bern.

Mr. Clark said he was highly gratified over the result of the meeting here and thought forthcoming meetings would do much toward cementing the ties between officers of the section, enabling them to more thoroughly cope with the many problems facing them from time to time.

Final Rites Are Held For Malone Tucker

Final rites for Malone Tucker, 62, prominent farmer, who died suddenly Wednesday night from a heart attack were conducted from his late home eight miles from Greenville, on the Belvoir road, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. M. A. Woodard, Free Will Baptist minister, was in charge of the service. Burial was made in the Tucker burial ground near the Country Club.

Mr. Tucker was the son of the late Warren and Susan E. Tucker, and was prominently connected with the farming industry over a period of many years.

He was a member of the Masonic Lodge of Winterville. He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Daisy Warren; three children by a former marriage; L. B. Tucker, Greenville; Mrs. Beatrice T. Carroll, Indianapolis, Ind.; and Mrs. R. L. Andrews, Jr., of Bethel; two sons by his last marriage, Jene and Charles Tucker; two brothers, Tom Tucker and J. H. Tucker; five sisters, Mrs. R. L. Nichols, Mrs. Lucy Hester, Mrs. J. S. Ross, Mrs. Mary Byrd, and Mrs. J. O. Harris, all of Pitt County.

MRS. COWARD LAID TO REST

Funeral For Prominent Grifton Community Lady Held This Afternoon

Funeral services for Mrs. Nancy W. Coward, 86, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. M. Taylor, near Grifton, yesterday morning at 4:35 o'clock, were conducted from the late home this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The final rites were in charge of Rev. I. S. Richmond, Methodist minister of Grifton, and R. E. Pittman, pastor of the Methodist Church at Roxboro. Interment was made in Maplewood Cemetery at Kinston.

Mrs. Coward was one of the oldest members of the Methodist Church, having joined seventy-five years ago. She had lived in the Grifton community since about five years of age, and was beloved by a wide circle of friends who received news of her death with sorrow.

She was the widow of the late Albert G. Coward, the family being one of the most prominent of the section. She is survived by six daughters and a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren. The final rites were largely attended and the tribute of flowers was indicative of the high esteem of hundreds of friends.

DILLINGER IS BELIEVED TO BE INVOLVED

Indiana Killer Believed To Be Connected With Death Of Two Officers At Chicago; Bank Guards At East Chicago, Ind., Shoot It Out With Bandits, Dropping Two; Vigilantes Take Hand As Two Other Bandits Escape

East Chicago, Ind., May 25.—(AP)—Two more police officers are dead today in a bloody game to get John Dillinger.

In this city where Policeman William O'Malley was slain January 4 by a man "definitely identified" as John Dillinger, two officers, Martin O'Brien, 44, and Lloyd Mudgehill, 26, were machine gunned to death late last night. There was no clue today to the identity of the killers.

Dillinger, fugitive from Crown Point, Indiana, jail where he was sent for the murder of O'Malley, was suspected, but it was only a suspicion. The only two men who might have been able to say positively as to the identity of the killers were the victims and they died instantly.

Chicago, May 25.—(AP)—One bandit was killed and another wounded, perhaps mortally, today in an attempted robbery of the South Holland, Ill., Trust Savings Bank.

Bank employes fought it out with the invaders in the bank and killed one outright.

The proximity of South Holland, a hamlet south of Chicago on the Indiana line to the scene of the killing of two East Chicago policemen last night, gave rise to a report that the bandits might have been the assailants of the Indiana officers.

Four men and two women were in the gang. While the two women stayed at the wheel of the car the quartette of robbers marched into the bank at 10 a. m. the time the lock released the vault. Guards had been posted in the balcony of the bank alert for just such a raid. A machine gun was turned loose on the robbers below and two of them fell.

The other two raced for the door and scrambled into the car, speeding away while vigilantes already gathered around the bank, riddled the car with bullets. The fugitives fled north toward Chicago.

Death Marks Preparation For Indianapolis Automobile Races Next Week

Indianapolis, Ind., May 25.—(AP)—Pete Kreis, of Nashville, Tenn., driver, and Bob Hab, of Chanco, Calif., riding mechanic, were killed today while practicing for the 500-mile race to be run next Wednesday.

The car, traveling at terrific speed, went out of control just after it came out of the first turn. It ran over the outside retaining wall and struck a tree many feet below. The car was cut in two by the impact. The car was owned by Harry Hartz, of Los Angeles, Calif., and was one of the fastest entered in the race.

Real Cup Threat In Sopwith Craft And Sailing Skill

By GAYLE TALBOT London.—(AP)—If it hasn't already occurred to the stewards of the New York Yacht Club, they should be advised that they have a new and different proposition on their hands in this year's defense of the America's Cup.

Has Will To Win It is a challenge that must be taken more seriously than those of the late Sir Thomas Lipton and his successors of Shamrocks. His trips across the Atlantic in quest of "the old mug" were glorious argosies to Lipton. He loved them, win or lose. Sopwith doesn't have any intention of losing.

A pioneer builder of aircraft and expert pilot of airplanes and yachts. Sopwith doesn't know much about losing. Whereas Lipton had to depend upon others for the actual sailing of his expensive craft Sopwith does his own remarkably well.

"If Tom didn't feel sure he was going to bring the America's Cup back to England he never would have gone into it," said one of his friends.

Murder at MOCKING HOUSE BY WALTER C. BROWN

SYNOPSIS: A policeman and a murderer, the latter apparently a man who has tried to kill Pierre Dufresne, have been found murdered in Dufresne's house. Sergeant Harper at last has found a threat to go on—and it leads to Pierre Dufresne. Dufresne's butler has admitted he has master owned a revolver of the size used to kill the stonemason. Now, in the presence of Harper's superior officers, the butler denies the statement.

Chapter 27 THE SEARCH

"WHEN what kind of a game—explain yourself, Andrews?" "It was you, Mr. Harper, who told me that Mr. Dufresne had given you that information about the revolver," Andrews answered patiently. "I did not feel that it was my business to contradict his statements. I see now that it was just a little trick on your part and I withdraw what I said previously."

Harper was boiling, not only over the exposure of his ruse, so neatly and effectively checkmated, but over the collapse of his promising secret. Pierre Dufresne clapped his old retainer on the shoulder. "A good and faithful servant—" he intoned, laughing merrily at the detective's discomfiture.

Harper glared angrily at the impassive Andrews. "This is a serious matter, I warn you. For the time being the police are in charge of this house. Your duty as a citizen to uphold the law is greater than your duty to an employer."

"But you lied to me, sir," protested the gaunt old man, with a devastating simplicity that sent his master into a fresh peal of laughter. Harper turned to Dufresne. "All right, sir, but that is not the whole story. Detective Lafferty saw this gun himself. We know it was there."

"I repeat then, that I do not own such a weapon and I have never seen it nor handled it." Harper bowed. "We will accept that statement, Mr. Dufresne. But we know the gun exists, that it is in this house, and with your permission we will search until we find it."

"You may search as thoroughly as you please, Sergeant." "Lafferty, bring all the others here. I want everybody to stay in one room while the search is going on."

Dufresne carelessly selected a cigarette. "And what do you expect to prove?" he drawled. "These cold-blooded murders were committed by some one in this house," Sergeant Harper snapped, "and I intend to get at the truth, no matter whom it involves!"

The household assembled in the small drawing-room, a pleasant and many-windowed room on the main floor, adjoining the breakfast-room. THIS enforced gathering was quiet enough on the surface but underneath it was seething and boiling with curiosity and excitement. The Sergeant's brief and uncompromising assertion that the case had changed from an unexplained double homicide to an equally unexplained double murder had set the household by the ears.

One by one they denied any knowledge even of the existence of the revolver Harper sought. In the first flush of surprise they did not gather the implication that the murderer was not only alive but one of their number. That realization dawned on them a little later and placed an awkward restraint on the conversation.

Harper, Lafferty, and the two policemen conducted the search, having commanded the company of Mrs. Whitmore, not only because she had the keys to all the locked places in the house, but also to witness that all household and individual property rights were respected. Silent and sullen, her dark brows frowning, Mrs. Whitmore accompanied the officers.

Four men, trained and experienced in such matters, can make short work of any room when the sole object in question is as heavy and bulky as a revolver, but there were many rooms and closets in the house and Harper's methods were painstaking and thorough. He had set out with full confidence in the success of the search.

As their absence lengthened, the waiting group began to split up along lines of natural gravitation. Captain Macklin and Pierre Dufresne sat on a window-seat. Director Connors had been obliged to leave, owing to the press of other affairs, and he had left without giving any definite answer to Dufresne's request.

neat way he had tripped up the detective's attempt to trap his master. The placid Whitmore, however, was lost and bewildered at the turn affairs had taken.

Young Donaghy, spick and span in his tailored uniform, stood at one of the windows, apart from the others. Busy with his thoughts, he looked out steadily and unseeing, as if absorbed by a mental puzzle. Richard Croymden, pensive and subdued, idly ran his sensitive fingers up and down the keyboard of the piano, turned sideways across a corner of the room. He fingered melancholy little snatches of melody, softly, dreamily, his thoughts busy elsewhere. The first muted chords had drawn glances of wonder and disapproval at the intruding of the sound of music at such a time. By the side of the piano, seated in an easy chair, was Aline Croymden, smoking a cigarette and frowning at the swinging toe of her slipper.

THE minutes dragged by interminably to make a quarter-hour, the quarter became a half, the half lengthened to a full hour, and the relentless cycle started on its second lap. Conversation succumbed to the strain and became forced and desultory as impatience gnawed at every one. Even Dufresne's indignation was reduced to intermittent flashes.

One hour and a half Harper and his men expended on the search and when he returned to the drawing-room no one could tell from his expression whether or not they had been successful. But one glance at Mrs. Whitmore's disdainful air of triumph told them that the much-sought weapon had not yielded the secret of its hiding-place.

Harper's bitter disappointment was betrayed only by his grim tone as he stood before Pierre Dufresne. "I have not found the gun but I am still convinced that it is concealed here in the house. Since no one has left, it can hardly be otherwise."

Dufresne made a gesture of dismissal to the servants, who promptly fled out, that they might talk over this astounding affair more unreservedly in their own quarters. Aline Croymden and her husband left quietly, tactfully leaving the field clear for the discussion that must follow.

"I hope you did not overlook Mrs. Dufresne's room, Harper?" Dufresne asked insolently. "No, indeed, I looked there very thoroughly," the detective answered. "And what absurdity do you purpose next? Please don't worry about any inconvenience to my family or myself. I am merely the owner of this property." Dufresne was being purposely insulting.

"I have given orders that no one is to leave this house without being searched. We do not intend to have this revolver carried away. Later we may search for it again, but for the present I shall work along other lines that may bring the same result."

"Going out to study the snow again, I suppose? Or possibly to look for more places where fingerprints should be, but are not. Bah, you have no case, Harper, and you know it."

Dufresne's tones were obviously intended to be halting, and this thought acted as a counter-irritant to the detective's natural chagrin. "Do you think so?" was his cool reply. "We've just about finished with our study of the material facts. Now we take up the characters and personalities involved. I'll endeavor to follow the good advice you gave me at our first meeting, Mr. Dufresne, and take nothing for granted."

Eyes flashing, lips curling angrily, Pierre Dufresne turned his back on the detective and walked out of the room. Captain Macklin took up his hat and overcoat. "Stay on the job, Harper, but you'd better work fast. Dufresne is a bad man to cross and he carries plenty of weight in certain quarters. He'll have your scalp if he can."

"I'll risk that, Captain. I think he's so damned sure that I can't make a case out of it that he'll let me carry on, just to show me up." After Captain Macklin had gone, Harper called to Lafferty, and they proceeded to search the room in which the Dufresne household had waited. Lafferty asked, "Do you think any of that crowd would have nerve enough to keep that gun hidden on themselves? Perhaps we should have made a personal search."

Harper shook his head. "The gun would be too bulky and the risk foolish. No, the thing was hidden, and hidden well. We'll have to keep thinking about it." (Copyright, 1931, by Walter C. Brown.) Tomorrow, the detectives find a mysterious piece of string.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 25.—(AP)—The stock market appeared to be deep in the doldrums today and speculative enthusiasm was at an even lower ebb than in the preceding session.

News developments were negative if not general an die few traders who visited the board rooms were deaf to the plea of customers' men to "get so far from a turn."

Labor clouds still obscured the economic skies. The Washington political scene was also a little murky. Some equities formed on scattered buying, but as many issues were unchanged to slightly lower.

Equities were inclined to ignore the rally of about a two cents a bushel in wheat based on further reports.

Tobacco were firmer. Silver shares improved. Late advances of one to two points were recorded by American Tobacco, Liggett and Myers, Sante Fe, American Can, DuPont, Chrysler and Cerro de Pasco. U. S. Steel gained a major fraction. Transfers were approximately 500,000 shares.

New York Cotton

New York, May 25.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, one to two points lower under liquidation and continued favorable weather.

Trading was again quiet at the start and fluctuations after the call ranged from three to four points.

At the end of the first half hour the market was one to three points lower. The market stiffened late on a more active demand from the trade. This bulge was checked as prices sagged off again later.

At midday the market was quiet at 11.23 for July, or about two to three points net lower. Futures closed steady, eight to ten points higher; spots steady; middling 11.50.

Late News Flashes

Marion, was tendered the appointment by the governor by long distance phone and immediately accepted.

A few minutes earlier J. Wallace Winborne, State Democratic chairman, had declined the judgeship on account of financial reasons.

Open Bids For Air Routes.
Washington, May 25.—(AP)—Low bids for air mail contracts by independent operators challenged the supremacy of major airlines today as Postmaster General Farley and his aides opened 761 bids for 13 air mail routes covering 8,229 miles.

American Airlines, Inc., recently controlled by E. L. Cord, bid as low as eight cents per air mile for the contract on one route.

Report Tobacco Tax Bill.
Washington, May 25.—(AP)—A departure in the recovery economics—designed for once to lower consumer prices was proposed to the House today when its ways and means committee reported a bill to reduce tobacco taxes 40 per cent.

The tobacco companies have already agreed to pass all of the reduction on to the consumer so that 15 cents a package of cigarettes will sell for 10 cents.

To the accompaniment of a great advertising campaign an effort will be made if the bill passes to increase consumption to a point where the federal treasury may not after all, lose very much of the tax reduction.

Should the plan work, lower liquor taxes may follow and the whole trend of administration efforts to rectify prices for recovery may be affected.

Already urgent proposals have been brought forward to Congress to lower liquor levies so that bootlegging may be driven out and the legal liquor trade be put on a basis where prices will be sufficient to net a profit.

Blacky Bear's Cries

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
Jupiter climbed up on top of the well thinking how wonderful it would be to have some cool well water on his hot face and paws. Then Blacky would have a turn at it. He stepped inside the bucket but looked at Blacky sadly.

"There isn't a drop of water in it," he growled.

"It probably has to be let down into the well," said Blacky. "I'll give you a shove and then you'll be in the bucket over the open space that holds the water."

But Blacky's knowledge of wells was not very great. Once he had a delicious drink of water from something his mother called a well spring, but it was not deep at all. They had just bent over a few boards and had had all they wanted to drink. Blacky imagined that Jupiter would be able to do the same.

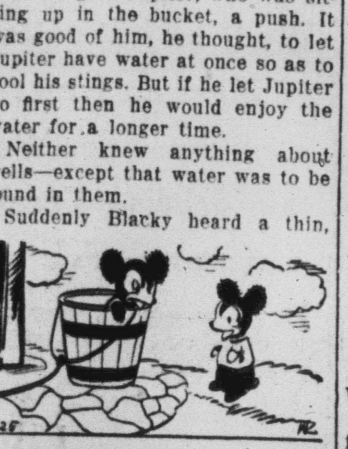

So he gave Jupiter, who was sitting up in the bucket, a push. It was good of him, he thought, to let Jupiter have water at once so as to cool his stings. But if he let Jupiter go first then he would enjoy the water for a longer time.

Neither knew anything about wells—except that water was to be found in them.

Suddenly Blacky heard a thin, far away, frightening cry. It was like Jupiter's voice but so much, much smaller.

Blacky looked over the side of the well. It was so deep and dark. He had had no idea that it was deep like this.

"Mama, mama, mama," Blacky cried. "Oh, Mama Bear, come here!"

Declares French Attitude.
Paris, May 25.—(AP)—Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, today flatly proclaimed a French policy of no immediate disarmament for France—no immediate re-arming for Germany.

The minister sought to silence talk in the Chamber of Deputies where he was under question by making an emphatic rejection of the idea that conflict was pending.

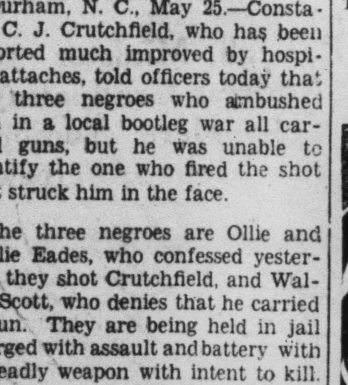

However, he pledged strong action on the matter of German border clashes.

Barthou openly declared his opposition to the British proposal for the re-arming of Germany and disarmament of France.

WOUNDED CONSTABLE NOW MUCH IMPROVED
Durham, N. C., May 25.—Constable C. J. Crutchfield, who has been reported much improved by hospital attaches, told officers today that the three negroes who ambushed him in a local bootleg war all carried guns, but he was unable to identify the one who fired the shot that struck him in the face.

ORDERS IMPOUNDING OF SILVER SHIRT PAPERS
Asheville, N. C., May 25.—(AP)—Upon order today of Judge Michael Schenck in Edgecombe County Superior Court, all correspondence and records of the Foundation for Christian Economics, Silver Shirts of America, Galahad Press, Inc., and various affiliated and allied organizations headed by William Dudley Pelley were impounded in one room at Galahad College, Charlotte Street and Sunset Parkway, and two guards were stationed outside the room. The officers met no resistance in executing the court order.
