SOVIET UNION BONDS UNDER FIRE IN U. S.

Attorney General Cummings Studies Offer Of Russian Bonds on This Country's Market; U. S. S. R. Previously Listed As a Defaulter

Washington, D. C., May 29.—(AP)—As diplomatic wires hummed with duns from Uncle Sam to European war debtors, the administration sought to X-ray the teeth in the Johnson act, the measure banning debt defaulters from dealing in the American money market.

Attorney General Cummings acting on an administration request, was preparing a ruling on an offer in this country of Soviet Union 7 per cent gold bonds.

He previously had listed the U. S. S. R. as a defaulter under the Johnson act.

The State Department caused wires to hum with a direct call upon all war debtors to pay not only the coming installment, but also past due payments.

MOORE SEEKS QUIET REIGNS SOLICITORSHIP IN N. C. STRIKE

Craven County Man Receives Assurance Of Support in Fifth District

Thomas O. Moore, of New Bern, candidate for Solicitor of the Fifth Judicial District, through the columns of The Daily Reflector, today expressed gratitude for assurances of support in the forthcoming primary and promised if elected to serve impartially, vigorously and economically.

Mr. Moore is opposed by D. M. Clark, of Greenville, present incumbent.

A native of Pitt County and the son of L. L. Moore and Ella Kline Moore, Mr. Moore was born in Greenville in 1909. His grandfather on both paternal and maternal sides were natives of Greenville and Pitt County. For twelve years he has been practicing law in New Bern.

He graduated and studied law at the University of North Carolina. For two terms he was Craven County Solicitor, and the experience gained in this field should serve him well in the district, he feels.

He did not ask for a third term in the belief that others should be given a chance. This argument is being used in his contest against D. M. Clark, who has been district solicitor for the last twelve years.

Mr. Moore is a Mason and Elk, is district deputy of the Junior Order, and has been one of the county chairmen for the Young Democratic Clubs. As a Legionnaire, he has served the Donerson-Hawkins Post at New Bern as member of the executive committee, service officer, vice-commander and commander. He enlisted in the army when seventeen years old to serve during the World War. After the war he was made first lieutenant in the National Guard.

Kinston, N. C., May 29.—Wendell Bryan has lost six pounds during the past few days. His appetite has fallen off "to nothing."

"Conjured," there will be no rest for him until midnight, June 30. Bryan is a negro laborer who has worked on farms in this section for many years. Nearly ten years ago he offended an aged negro conjure doctor who warned him: "I'll be dead before long and you will be dead before I am in my grave very long."

NEW STRIKES THREATENED IN AMERICA

Organized Labor Threatens Walkout In Textile and Steel Industries

(By The Associated Press) Organized labor bore down today with threats of three general strikes. In the textile and steel industries and in Toledo, Ohio, shop unions threatened to strike unless their demands chiefly for recognition were met.

The last of strike violence centers notably in Cleveland where taxi drivers are out and New Orleans and the Pacific Coast where longshoremen are striking.

Thomas McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, served notice on the NRA today that a general strike in the cotton textile industry, involving 300,000 workers, would be called for Monday if an NRA order curtailing production in the industry by 25 per cent were placed in effect. Sixty-eight of the 103 unions of Toledo had voted in favor of a general strike if negotiations to end the automotive strike in which two persons have been killed and two hundred injured ended in a deadlock. Four plants of the Piedmont Manufacturing Company of Greenville, S. C., were idle today as result of the walkout of 500 employees of the spinning and weaving rooms in protest against the so-called stretch-out system. Five hundred of the employees were affected by the strike.

Employees of the Kendall-Crist Mill at Haw Creek, near Charlotte, prepared today to return to work tomorrow following an orderly strike which had lasted several weeks.

WILL OBSERVE MEMORIAL DAY

Banks and Postoffice To Close Here Tomorrow; Ask Flags Be Displayed

Tomorrow is Memorial Day and Greenville like the rest of the nation will turn its attention to honoring the men who have sacrificed their all on the altar of war.

The banks and postoffice will be closed in honor of the occasion and business people have been called upon to display flags on the streets in front of their buildings.

Members of Pitt County Post of the American Legion and Auxiliary decorated graves of the World War dead last Sunday. Legionnaires visited graves in all sections of the county and the Auxiliary decorated graves in the two cemeteries here. Flags and flowers were placed on the last resting places of the men who crossed the ocean to fight a foreign foe purely to preserve human rights.

No exercises have been planned for the day, but those who actually saw service during the war, as well as those left behind, will turn their attention to the staggering loss suffered by the nation during the conflict.

Poppy sales were conducted by the Legion Auxiliary here last Saturday. Sales of the tiny flowers always lead up to observance of Memorial Day and hundreds were worn by the citizenship in memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice.

POSTMAN FOLLOWS FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS

Columbus, O.—(AP)—Ray Egan is following in his father's footsteps.

For fifteen years Jacob Egan worked mail on a Columbus route and his service record and "No. 45" badge, were his pride.

Then Postmaster Nathan M. Egan promoted the elder Egan to postman of the inquiry section. Egan confessed he dreaded the prospect of losing "No. 45" and the record he had made to somebody else.

U. S. AND CUBA TO SIGN NEW TREATY TODAY

Political Pact Expected to do Away Entirely With the Platt Amendment

Washington, D. C., May 29.—(AP)—The United States and Cuba are expected to sign a new political "treaty today" in which the Platt amendment is entirely eliminated.

The treaty which has been the object of negotiations for the last several months will replace the 1903 pact.

The Platt amendment of 1903 treaty is the one giving the United States the right to intervene in Cuba if such action should be considered necessary for the maintenance of order and protection of American lives and property.

The administration has long been bitterly attacked by all Cuban factions and has been considered in many quarters as the stumbling bar to complete amicable relations between the two republics.

NEW GIFT FOR WRIGHT FUND

Senior Class of Greenville High Contributes $25 to Memorial Fund

The Senior Class of the Greenville High School made a contribution of $25 to the Wright Memorial Loan Fund of the E. C. T. C. They go to record as having the unique distinction among high schools of making a gift to another institution.

The formal presentation of the gift was one of the most impressive features of the graduation exercises. Gus Forbes, Jr., president of the class, in presenting it, told of the decision of the class to divide their fund so that they could have a share in honoring Dr. Wright and in helping with the cause. The other officers, Julia Gaylord, vice-president, and Allan Moore, secretary-treasurer, were on the stage also.

In accepting the gift, Dr. L. R. Meadows expressed his great appreciation of the splendid thing they had done and spoke of this as another tie that bound both the class and the whole high school to the college. He enumerated other ties.

The mothers of several of the class are former students of the college, and those of two of the officers are teachers in the Greenville public schools since this class began in the first grade were trained in the college. Many of the sisters and brothers of members of the class are in college now. He commented that the spirit and expressed the hope that other classes would follow their example.

Late News Flashes

Britain Offers Payment. London, May 29.—(AP)—A strong hint that Britain is willing to make a payment of some sort June 15 on its war debts if it could be assured of participation by the United States in a conference to thresh out final settlement of the whole problem, was given in official circles today.

Should President Roosevelt hold that a token payment would not keep Britain from default then it was believed here that Parliament would put its foot down so strongly the government would not dare to make a payment of any sort.

Negotiations are still continuing between Sir Ronald Lindsay, ambassador to Washington and foreign officials there, it was learned today.

DR. GREENE SPEAKS AT HIGH FINALS

Duke Educator Delights Audience with Address at Closing Exercises Here

"The history of most great men proves there is an advantage in having no advantages," declared Dr. Walter K. Greene, of Durham, Dean of Undergraduate Instruction of Duke University, speaking to the graduating class of Greenville High school in closing exercises of the commencement season in the Campus building of East Carolina Teachers College here last night.

In spite of overcast skies that gave forth a slight drizzle most of the afternoon and evening, one of the largest crowds ever to attend graduation exercises was on hand to see ninety-two young men and women receive diplomas—seventy-five of them from the High School proper and eighteen from the commercial department of the institution headed by Prof. L. M. Cannon.

Dr. Greene brought to his hearers one of the finest literary addresses ever heard here, and those who braved the inclement weather were fully rewarded for doing so.

Concerning himself with the essential powers whose right application he said should lead to success, Dr. Greene called attention of the graduates to three important factors in reaching this end. First, "The Power to Purpose" and second, "The Power to See the Invisible," and third, "The Power to Overcome Difficulties."

Pointing to the foundation of the Woolworth Building in New York the speaker declared that every structure must have a solid foundation if it is to endure and carry out the purpose of its builders. He said behind every great motive is a purpose, and that power of purpose had succeeded in changing the whole face of the earth.

"The bee is not the only insect that visits the flowers," he said, "but he is the only one that carries away the honey." Many people have ability, but without the focusing energy to make it count for anything.

Turning his attention to the "Power to See the Invisible" Dr. Greene asserted one must see the realities back of the invisible before he can obtain any measure of success. "Some people look at a piece of coal," he said, "without seeing in it the power of crystallized sunshine, and the same is true of the stars, flowers and other things contacted from day to day."

"God's signals," he stated, "are forever in the air, but people fail to see them."

Geneva Meeting Told Of Desire To Regulate Arms

CAPONE LOSES COURT BATTLE FOR FREEDOM

New Orleans, May 29.—(AP)—Al Capone, America's Number One public enemy of prohibition today lost his appeal for release from the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals here denied the appeal of the former gangster chief of Chicago for release from the penitentiary on a writ of habeas corpus where he is serving a ten-year sentence for evasion of income tax laws.

The former beer and liquor baron sought the writ on the contention that the offenses for which he was convicted were barred by the three-year statute of limitations.

NORMAN DAVIS TELLS OF U. S. NEW POSITION

Declaration Made At Opening of the International Disarmament Conference; Says American Government Ready to Work Out Agreement With Other Nations of the World; U. S. Aroused Over Evils of Arms Sale

Geneva, May 29.—(AP)—Nolan H. Davis, American Ambassador at large, told the nations of the world today that the United States is willing to join "in a substantial and proportionate reduction of naval tonnage and is likewise willing to join an international agreement regulating the sale of war materials."

His declarations were made at the opening of the International Disarmament Conference attended by representatives of the leading powers. His statement regarding naval reduction was anticipatory of the great naval conference of 1935 which will seek to supplement the present naval agreement by which Great Britain, the United States and Japan agreed at sea on a five-five-three ratio.

Ambassador Davis announced the United States is willing to work out by an international agreement an effective system for regulations of the manufacture and sale of arms and munitions.

After quoting from President Roosevelt's message to Congress concerning the profit in arms, Davis declared:

"The people of the United States are aroused at the evils which are being revealed in the production of the traffic in the munitions war."

"The American government is ready to join in any measure for suppressing this evil, and is prepared to negotiate in connection with a disarmament treaty that would deal drastically with the problem."

STORM CAUSES MUCH DAMAGE IN CAROLINAS

Crops and Property Suffer From Gale Striking Furiously At Charleston

Charleston, S. C., May 29.—(AP)—After hurling itself from the tropics with almost hurricane force, a storm which left thousands of dollars damage to crops, property and small shipping craft along the coast, today appeared to be spending itself in the interior.

Whipping this old seaport at a velocity of 44 miles an hour, the wind accompanied by torrential rain swept away a number of wharves, inundated the lower part of the city and sank a 65-foot yacht, the "Jene and Virginia." Many smaller boats were washed away or sunk.

After lashing Charleston the storm seemed to veer inland. Georgetown, S. C., and Wilmington, N. C., seaports farther north, apparently had escaped the vortex of the gale and cities further inland experienced high winds which tore down trees, crippled communications systems and wrought havoc to crops.

At Florence, S. C., the wind reached 45 miles an hour. Throughout most of the state telephone and telegraph communications suffered. The gale took off a roof of a downtown store at Winston-Salem and laid it violently atop power and telegraph lines.

Spartanburg and Greenville, situated in the foothills of the Appalachian mountains, also experienced heavy wind, reaching a maximum of 40 miles an hour.

Ed Smith, 47, of the Black Jack community, died in a Washington hospital last night at 3:30 o'clock after illness of two weeks.

Funeral services were conducted from his late home this afternoon at 3 o'clock by Elder W. H. Laughinghouse, and burial was made in the family burial ground near Black Jack.

He was a son of the late Robert Smith of Greenville, and has lived in the Black Jack area a number of years. He was a farmer.

Surviving are his widow, who before marriage was Miss Sudie Dixon; four sons, Leslie, Woodrow, William and Edwin Earle; three daughters, Misses Annie May, Carrie and Clarabell.

Students Stick To State Berkeley, Calif.—(AP)—Ninety-two per cent of the graduates of the University of California remain in the State all their lives, according to a survey conducted by the alumni association, and about 80 per cent remain within twenty-five miles of the Berkeley campus. Of the remainder 6.42 per cent scatter to 47 States and 1.50 per cent go abroad.

COBB TELLS OF ROTE WORK

Musical Numbers also Mark Regular Weekly Meeting of Club Here Last Night

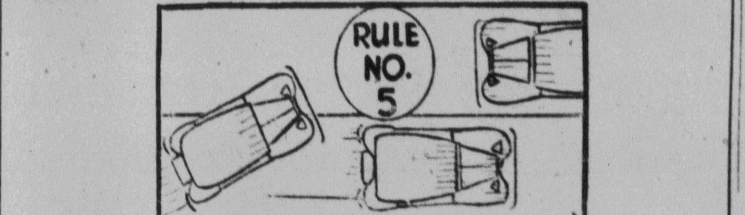

By WYATT BROWN Kinchen Cobb, president of the Rotary Club, read some interesting statistics about Rotary International last night. There have been one hundred new clubs added in the last year in twenty-eight countries. The Fifty-seventh District to which Greenville belongs added 125 members.

Mrs. Herbert Waldrop, Mrs. Dink James, and Miss Fullilove highly entertained the members of the Rotary Club at their meeting last night. Accompanied by Mrs. R. A. Tyson, Jr., Mrs. Waldrop did two numbers, "Roses of Picardy" and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes." During the latter number the Rotarians hummed an accompaniment. In her usual charming manner Mrs. Waldrop sang and sort of made one glad roses grew in Picardy so she could sing about them.

Mrs. James and Miss Fullilove did "The Rose of No Man's Land" and achieved delightful harmony. Following this number they entertained by having one sing "Solomon Levi" while the other sang "A Spanish Cavalier" and the accompaniment.

Gets Notice Of Reparation On Cabbage

The Carolina Shippers' Association, Traffic Department of Eastern North Carolina Association, Incorporated, has just received a copy of the Interstate Commerce Commission's decision in ICC Docket, 24889, which involved reparation on cabbage in carloads from points in Texas to destinations in North Carolina.

The Commission has awarded reparation, or damages amounting to approximately $6,000 plus interest for the period beginning in 1926. Seven of the Association's members will participate in this reparation, among whom are Munn, Griffin & Company, Rocky Mount, Weldon Fruit and Produce Company, Weldon, and Jeffreys & Sons of Goldsboro. This case was presented and orally argued by S. F. Dickenson, traffic manager of the Association, and is one of the many major cases the Commission has handled. The case was argued before the Commission in Washington on July 15, 1932, and should have been decided a long time ago, however, it was no fault of the Commission inasmuch as other related cases had to be investigated and decided.

Not only did the defendants attempt to disprove the allegation that the rates charged were unreasonable and unlawful, but they used every effort to get the case dismissed on technicalities involving the Rules of Practice. However, the Commission upheld the complainants in their contentions relative to the provisions of the Rules of Practice which pertained to the dates of filing informal and formal complaints. At this time the case was argued before the Commission it seemed that everything was against the complainants including the report of the Examiner which recommended dismissal.

catch them because of inability to see the invisible." In presenting his last division, "The Power to Overcome Difficulties," Dr. Greene said few things happen by accident. At this juncture he called attention to the success of the Mayo Brothers at Rochester, and the great things they had achieved for medical science by overcoming difficulties.

"If we want knowledge we must work for it," vigorously declared the speaker. He pointed to the fact that the history of most great people reveal that there is an advantage in having no advantage. The world continues to move round and round, but compensation in the true sense comes only to those who keep eternal watch.

He referred to the immortal Milton and Robert E. Lee, who through mounting the great difficulties of life won eternal fame.

In conclusion, he said victory worthwhile depends not upon fame or applause, but upon doing one's duty and bearing the cross.

Dr. Greene was presented by J. H. Rose, superintendent of schools. After the address, Mr. Rose announced awards and honors for the year. The Dr. Joseph Dixon cup for the student making the best all-around showing in athletics went to Tom Wilson.

The Keech cup was awarded to Ben Herring for the best rating in general school activities.

Awards of $5 each by the Woman's Club and Pitt County Post of the American Legion were won by Miss Tolle Williams and Ben Herring. The awards are made on the basis of the scholarship rating over a four-year period. In a very impressive ceremony officers of the Senior Class, Gus Forbes, president; Julie Gaylord, vice-president, and Allan Moore, secretary-treasurer, presented Dr. L. R. Meadows, acting president of East Carolina Teachers College, with $25 on behalf of the class of 1934, to the Robert E. Wright Memorial Fund. The presentation was made by Gus Forbes.

In accepting the gift, Dr. Meadows described the act as "just another link binding the High School to the college," and expressed the hope each institution would benefit greatly through the student fund being raised in behalf of the late president.

The High School orchestra provided music for the occasion. Following the senior professional invocation was pronounced by Rev. G. R. Combs. A boys' quartette, composed of Ben Herring, Fred Silem, Edward Conway and D. T. Beaman, appeared in "Sweet and Low," by Barnby. "When the Roses Bloom" was sung by the girls' chorus, and later in the program the Boys' Glee Club rendered "Home on the Range," and a mixed chorus appeared in "Requiem." Each group of singers was directed by Miss Ona Shindler, director of public school music, assisted at the piano by Miss Eva Hodges.

Diplomas were awarded to the commercial school graduates by Professor L. M. Cannon and J. E. Winslow, and to the High School by J. H. Rose and J. L. Little, chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Honors for the best scholastic rating during the year went to the following marshals who were chosen on the basis of their school work: Chief Marshals—Neal Herring, 35; Leo Burkes, 35.

Marshals—Irma Cobb Dunn, 35; Inez Whitman, 35; Helen Foley, 35; John Sizemore, 35; Marian Wilson, 35; Mary Lou Buiher, 36; Helen McGinnis, 35; Ronald Slay, 35; J. J. Sumner, 35; Jimmie Whitchard, 35; Carl Abee, 35; and Geraldine Harris, 36.

Willy Nilly Knows

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Willy Nilly, Willy Nilly!" called Honey Bear. But no answer came. There was Jupiter in the bucket, deep down in the well, and Blacky, her other cub, running around crying:

"I never thought it would go down like that. I didn't know. Oh, can't we save Jupiter? It's terrible!"

Poor Honey Bear was so frightened she was sure the sound of the beating of her heart would be heard all over the countryside. But no one came near.

She leaned over the well and tried to pull up the rope that was attached to the bucket. She tried with her arms. She tried with her teeth, but it was too much for her.

Then she heard a sound overhead. It was Christopher Columbus Crow. "Get Willy Nilly!" she called. "Find him! Bring him here! Jupiter has fallen down the well!"

Christopher never flew so fast as he did now. He discovered Willy Nilly at work cleaning his house. The little man had not heard Honey Bear's cries, but in an instant he was outdoors, running toward the Galump's house with Christopher flying overhead shouting:

"Puddle Muddlers! Come to the Galump's place. Jupiter Bear has fallen down the well!"

Rip, the dog, Top Notch, the rooster, Jelly Bear, and the ducks all hurried, and Jelly Bear outran them all.

Honey Bear was calling down to Jupiter as they arrived. "Help is coming. Christopher has gone for Willy Nilly. He always knows what to do!"

Willy Nilly Works
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"I'll get Jupiter Bear up out of the well in a jiffy," said Willy Nilly. Honey Bear and the others sighed with deep happiness and relief.

"You see there's a rope attached to the bucket, and I'll get him up just as the Galumps get up the bucket filled with water every time they need it," Willy Nilly explained.

"I should never have brought them over to the Galumps' in the first place," cawed Christopher softly.

"I should have tried out the bucket before Jupiter did," said Blacky. He was such a miserable looking little cub. "I'm bigger than Jupiter, too. But it wasn't because I was a coward. I thought I was letting him have the first chance at the water."

Willy Nilly had gone right to work. He was winding the rope around a big wheel at the side of the well, turning a handle which was hard to move because of the cub's weight.

But slowly the rope was being wound and Jupiter was now riding up the well in the bucket. He was not far as yet for Willy Nilly could hardly turn the handle at times.

He kept right on his strength would have to be enough for that.

Now Jupiter was halfway up the well and the Puddle Muddlers were dancing around with joy, when all of a sudden it struck Willy Nilly that it was no longer hard to wind the rope.

And then there came a cry from Honey Bear who was looking over the side of the well. "The bucket has fallen down again!" she cried. "Jupiter will be killed!"

Women Workers Banished by Bill In Belgian Senate

Brussels.—(AP)—Under a drastic bill which has been laid before the Senate, Belgian factories, shops and offices would be prohibited from employing women.

The measure, which is sponsored by three Christian democrats, Father G. Rutten, Paul Segers, and Cyrille van Overbergh, would deprive 400,000 women of their positions. It is estimated.

It would be agricultural and home workers, servants, private secretaries to professional men and woman in posts of high responsibility.

According to the authors, the measure is prompted by their wish to defend the family and to react against the tendency prevailing in certain industries to supplant male workers by female labor.

The use of women workers, the sponsors add, has had a disastrous effect on the mortality of children. They cite figures showing that the mortality among children under five, whose move are working in the Ghent textile industry was 39.33 per cent in contrast to the nation's average of 23.12 per cent.

In order not to strike too quickly at industry and commerce, the sponsors suggest that the measure enter into effect after a six-year transitional period.

Princeton University has announced a plan allowing senior students to spend nearly all their time in independent study.

Three Acres Of Cemented Cloth For Balloon

By F. B. COLTON
(Associated Press Science Writer)

Akron, Ohio.—(AP)—Enough cloth to make a 20-inch ribbon reaching from earth 15 miles into the stratosphere will go into the huge balloon in which two army officers hope to soar to that same height in June.

On the flight the balloonists will entrust their lives to 300 gallons of rubber cement, for the balloon is being "stuck together" instead of sewn, and not a single stitch of thread is going into it. The cemented seams are stronger than the fabric itself. Three acres of cloth, cut in strips shaped like slices of orange peel, are being molded into the balloon at the Goodyear-Zeppelin factory here.

When finished it will be the largest free balloon ever constructed. It will hold three million cubic feet of hydrogen gas, a capacity three and a half times greater than any previous free balloon and nearly 100 times that of the Navy dirigible Akron.

The balloon will be used on the National Geographic Society-Army Air Corps stratosphere flight, on which Capt. Albert W. Stevens and Maj. William E. Kepner will seek to attain a new altitude record and gather much new knowledge of conditions high above the earth.

The balloon will consist of 3,482 major pieces and scores of smaller fragments, all pasted together with the greatest care with rubber cement, and the seams covered on both sides with fabric-backed rubber tape.

After it is cemented together air will be pumped under the sections of the bag and inspectors will look

Rubber cement will be used to attach the catenary band—from which the gondola will be suspended—to the balloon. This band consists of a belt of heavy cloth with its lower edge cut into 160 scallops. YOU CAN'T WIN

That you can't win from the slot machine and that these instruments of evil are a menace to any community is clearly set forth in the following article taken from a recent issue of the Literary Digest. Again we urge our readers to study the facts regarding the slot machine racket and use their efforts and influence to rid our community of them.

The Digest says:

Gambling slot-machines are said to exact a $25,000,000 toll every year from the gullible public in New York City alone. In that metropolis the number of machines has been estimated at 25,000 to 30,000, but at the very best these figures are only vague symbols of the immensity of the slot-machine racket nationally. The police testified in court recently that the income in New York City was as high as $1,000,000 a week. How many legitimate enterprises can show comparable receipts?

In Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia and other large cities the gambling slot-machine industry has become a large-scale racket. Hopelessly swamped by a flood of machines in recent years and handicapped by inadequate, loosely-phrased laws, the police and other public officials in many localities have resorted to a program of education. They believe that if the public really knew how the cards were stacked against it in playing slot-machines, the profitable gyp trade would be dealt a death-blow.

Evil of Penny Machines

Mr. Markewich said players have been known to lose $170 on a single machine. He believes the penny machines are the most vicious of all, since children, lured by prizes of a few dollars, steal pennies in their vain quest for easy money. In the end the cash all goes into the hidden channels of the racket. It is not uncommon for a player to lose an entire week's wages on a single machine. Police files in any community contain letters from wives and parents bitterly complaining about the losses of hard-earned money by husbands and children.

Why it is that the consistent player can not win is merely a matter of mathematics. Dr. E. E. Free, of New York University, calculating on an ordinary type slot-machine, has shown that out of 1,000 slugs put in the machine, if the player happens to hit the mathematical average of results, he will receive 750 slugs. The "house percentage" is 244 slugs. On a nickel machine this means that for $50 the player should get back $37.80. If the pleasure of pulling the lever 1,000 times is worth $12.20, you may consider yourself even. Dr. Free said. But this is an optimistic calculation. It is a rare machine these days that will pay back even that percentage of one's money. Mr. A. P. Peck, of The Scientific American, has worked out similar chances of "winning," confirming Dr. Free's assertion that mathematically the player has only one chance in one thousand of winning a jack-pot on the ordinary machine.

How Players Are Fooled.
Aside from the purely mechanical angle, the owners have devised other means of fooling the players. For example, most of the machines have three wheels with symbols (fruits, bars, bells, etc.) pictured on the edges. As the player well knows, certain combinations of symbols must turn up in order for him to win. But only half of these symbols are bona fide—the others are dummies. If, say, the wheels each have twenty symbols, only ten are honest, and only one symbol (not two or four as the player supposes) is eligible for the jack-pot. The player sees numerous winning symbols whirling around before his eyes. He thinks his chances must be good for getting the right combination. He doesn't know that he is being royally fooled. Another hoax is that most of the coins (in some cases all of the coins) go to the collection box in the machine, which is forever unavailable to the player. Only slugs are emitted for the player, which he can exchange for cash or merchandise with the storekeeper if he is not suspected of being an officer. In the old-style machines, which are still found in localities where there is no police interference, no slugs are used at all; the player uses and receives coins only. But this type is rapidly going out of existence, for it is easier to evade the laws with slugs. Still another fraud is the practice of some storekeepers of unlocking the machine and taking out the jack-pot when no players are about. When a new player arrives he is told enthusiastically that the previous player has just won the big prize. Excursion boats, hotels, summer camps, amusement parks and speak-easies have found slot machines an easy way to make money on the side. In these places the player's chances of winning back even a fair percentage of his money is much less than in a small store in the player's own neighborhood.

Telephone, subway and automatic vending machine concerns wish the gambling machine menace out of the way. In New York the subway and elevated lines reported that 720,000 slot-machine slugs were used on their lines in one year, a sizeable loss, while 252,000 slugs were used in pay telephones in the five boroughs of that city in a year. Slugs are often used to cheat straight vending machines. Slot-machines are no longer sold direct to storekeepers and other operators. They are leased through corporations, and the profits to the middlemen are consequently cut down. The storekeeper who leases a machine must pay for the installation, must pay an initial fee to the corporate society, and monthly dues. For this he gets "protection" legal counsel and quick service if the machine breaks down. His share of the profits ranges from fifty to thirty per cent, usually the latter. The intake on a single machine each day ranges from $10 to $50 in good locations. Machines cost from $65 to $120 to manufacture, and are equipped with shatter-proof glass, heavy locks and other embellishments. If the storekeeper is arrested, he calls the slot-machine corporation by secret number, and a bondsman and lawyer are at the police station by the time the storekeeper arrives. The corporation arranges bail, pays fines and conducts legal defense. Very often the small storekeeper has no choice but to install a machine. An armed gang may pay him a call, install a machine in his shop, and warn him to let it alone. At intervals the storekeeper is presented with his "share" of the profits. He may not like the machine in his shop, but what can he do? And after all, he does need the extra money. Police are sometimes useless in such cases, for some have been known to be on the "pay-off" list of slot-machine companies. It is because the storekeeper is only a small agent—and often involuntary at that—that courts have been reluctant to send him to jail. The courts have suggested that the police go after the "higher-ups" in the racket.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER C. BROWN.

SYNOPSIS: Sergeant Harper has a piece of string and the testimony of a manufacturer of disinfectants in his chest to the mysterious death of two men in Pierre Dufréne's house. The string may explain what became of one of the dead men, but the information about the disinfectant complicates matters. He is questioning the storekeeper, who has told him that he recently left the Dufrénes' house.

Chapter 39

FOOLED HOUSEKEEPER

"How long have you been living over the garage?" Harper asked.
"Since about the middle of December."
"When did the decorators finish?"
"About two weeks ago."
"Why didn't you move back to the house?"
"Mr. Dufréne thought it just as well to leave things as they were until the house was opened again. There was to be a big party then, I believe."
"Then, since the middle of December there has been no one staying in this house at night?"
"No. After the workmen left each day Mr. Holiday locked up and brought me the keys. Every morning he came for them, so the men could get in and work."
"Were you here in the house at all yesterday?"
"Yes, in the afternoon. I was in every room of the house."
"What then?"
"I locked up and went back."
"Was it snowing then?"
"Just beginning."
"Your husband was there all the time? In the evening?"
"Yes."
"During the evening, did you at any time look out of the window, over toward the house?"
"Not that I recall. We went to bed early. The next thing we knew the phone was ringing and Andrews was telling me that some one had been killed in the breakfast-room and to hurry over. So we got up and dressed."
"Mrs. Whitmore, what would you say if I told you that this house has been frequently occupied at night during the last few weeks?"
The housekeeper stared at him without the slightest change in her grim expression.
"Am I to imply from your silence that you don't believe me?"
"I don't believe it," she snapped. "It's impossible. I would have known."
"Well, it happened. Probably it was the man who was killed last night. In fact, it's possible these nocturnal visits began as far back as last October, while you were still living here in the house."
"That's absurd," Mrs. Whitmore declared.
"Perhaps I can prove it to you. When this place was closed for the summer the ash-pits for the fireplaces were cleaned out?"
"Certainly."
"Well, if you will look into the pit from this room you will find quite an accumulation of ashes there—wood ashes. That means those ashes have accumulated since last summer. In other words, some one has been using that fireplace."
For the first time Mrs. Whitmore looked startled. "But the hearth was always clean and ready," she muttered. "I would have seen had it been used. I've been through this room a dozen times."
"Of course the hearth was clean—it was swept clean every time it was used and the ashes put down the chute. Fresh logs were left in place. From the amount of ash in the pit I'd say the fire had been lit half a dozen times."

not burn down to its socket in four or five hours. But we have the solution to that question. We found a box of candles in the drawer of the buffet. This box originally held a dozen, which are now only short stumps, more evidence of prior meetings in this house. The four candles you put in the holders, Mrs. Whitmore, are lying there in the buffet, untouched."
Mrs. Whitmore shook her head. "This is all news to me."
"Another thing—last night the electric current was switched off at the fuse-box. Is that the way you left it each night?"
"Why, no. The only times we cut off the current was when repairs were being made to the wiring or the fixtures. The lights were all right when I left yesterday."
Harper paused again and there was more curiosity than animosity now in their locked glances. "Tell me," he began anew, "did Mr. Dufréne ever come up here in the evening? Any time since he took up his quarters at the Austerlitz?"
"No, he did not."
"Did Mrs. Dufréne ever come up here at night—alone?"
The housekeeper's eyes took on a venomous glitter. "I see what you're driving at," she snapped, "and you ought to be ashamed to ask the question."

The detective smiled exasperatingly in the face of her fury. "Aren't you a little quick on the trigger, Mrs. Whitmore? I haven't made any accusations. I merely asked if Mrs. Dufréne had ever come up here at night?"
Mrs. Whitmore sprang up. "She did not. See if you can twist that around. The idea! If that's what's buzzing in your head you'd better open the windows and let some clean air in!"

THE incensed woman stalked toward the door, leaving behind her a Sergeant of Detectives who seemed no whit abashed nor embarrassed by her vehemence. Indeed, his face assumed the pleased expression of a man who has suddenly collared an elusive idea. Her angry suggestion about opening a window, by some hidden process of mind, had linked itself with a piece of twine tucked away in his pocket. In a flash he grasped the significance of that clue and the force of this intuition carried certitude with it.

Mrs. Whitmore, throwing open the door for her wrathful exit, hit the lanky Lafferty, who had that instant put his hand on the knob to enter the room. Lafferty hunched his shoulders and raised his arm in front of his face in mock defense. "What did you do to the old crow?" he inquired. "Her feathers are all ruffled and, unless my ears deceive me, she was cussing as she left."
Harper had unrolled his piece of twine and was fingering it thoughtfully.
"Charming woman, Mrs. Whitmore," he exclaimed. "She thought she was giving me a piece of her mind, but she just told me where that missing gun was hidden."
"That's as clear as mud. Where do you think the gun is hidden?"
"Come on," Harper invited, "I can show you quicker than I can explain it. I know I'm right—it must be there. I ought to have figured it out even without finding the string."
They made their way to the top floor, without meeting any one en route, and mounted the cramped and sharply-turning shaft of steps that led to the square, glass-enclosed cupola or tower that crowned the house.

The detective raised one of the windows, after a stubborn resistance, and slipped out over the sill. Lafferty followed. "What now?" he queried, turning up his coat collar.
Harper stood looking around. From this elevation the surrounding world appeared like a soft white wilderness, stretched away to infinity.
But the detective had only a moment's thought for this. His feet left clear tracks in the pristine whiteness as he went carefully toward the edge of the roof.
"Watch out you don't start slipping down that slope," Lafferty warned, "or you'll end up with a broken neck."
They walked gingerly along the danger line, careful to avoid any sudden slip. Harper with his eye cast on the short, steep slope to his left. Sudden, he stepped ahead and pointed down to a dark blotch in the snowfallen spout that edged the roof.

"There it is! There's the gun!"

They Taste Better!

WE like to tell about the finer tobaccos in Luckies—the choicest Turkish and domestic, and only the mild, clean center leaves—they cost more—they taste better. Then "It's toasted"—for throat protection. But we're just as proud of the way Luckies are made. They're so round and firm, so free from loose ends. That's why Luckies "keep in condition"—do not dry out. Luckies are always—in all-ways!—kind to your throat.

HART HEADS AYDEN BALL ORGANIZATION

Reports from Ayden this afternoon said that Frank Hart, former vice-president of the Ayden baseball club of the Coastal Plain League, had been elected president succeeding S. M. Edwards, who resigned last night at a meeting of the club officials. Mr. Edwards failed to give any specific reason for his resignation, except that he thought Mr. Hart, who has been active in the interest of the club the last three years, could render better service.

Ayden will be one of the six clubs comprising the league this season, and it was said that a much stronger team than last season would be put into the field this year.

Oregon Editor Fought Terrorism With Logic

By LESLIE J. SMITH
Medford, Ore. (AP)—A steady-thinking newspaperman who pitted clear editorial persuasion against the forces of political insurrection, directed the campaign which won for his paper the Pulitzer prize for "the most distinguished and meritorious public service rendered by an American newspaper" in 1933.
It is Robert W. King, 54-year-old editor of the Medford Mail-Tribune and once a schoolmate of President Roosevelt at Harvard. He helped smash an upheaval in Jackson County which threatened guerrilla warfare in the first six months of 1933.
King's fight began when Llewellyn A. Banks, seventy, an orchardist, developed political ambition and bought a newspaper plant to aid his desires.
Stirred into a violent temper by what he thought were gross wrongs perpetrated by city and county officials and fellow residents of the Rogue River valley, Banks organized his "Good Government Congress."
Through his paper, the Daily News, he harangued the citizens and pleaded for support. "Ropes and nooses" for some county officials were demanded.
The first bombshell burst when 10,000 general election ballots were stolen from the county courthouse on the eve of a recount on charges of fraud.
In addition to the ballot theft charge, Banks was the defendant at that time in two criminal libel cases, one criminal syndicalism charge and eighteen or twenty law suits. Banks published an extra edition of his paper declaring he would resist arrest.
"We have now come to that great showdown," his paper asserted, "where blood is likely to be spilled."
Members of the "Good Government Congress" threatened to "take over Jackson County."
Banks' prediction of bloodshed materialized on the morning of March 6, 1933. Constable George Prescott, of Medford, walked up the steps of Banks' residence with a warrant for the man's arrest. A rifle bullet blew off the top of his head.
"I shot Prescott," Banks shouted as he stepped over the prostrate body. "He was trying to force his way into my house as any burglar would!"
Banks was sentenced to life imprisonment.
"Militant journalism," so-called had no place in Editor King's program. He won his case with expression of calm, deliberate judgment.

opoloy of Western Conference links honors, are prepared to put in a heavy bid for the individual and team title at the annual Big Ten championship meet in Chicago.
Minnesota fans concede there is an excellent chance to take the honors this year even though Michigan, despite the loss of Johnny Fischer, will have another strong crew.
Let by Pat Sawyer, long hitting youngster, who won the Minnesota State amateur title twice, the Gophers will present a strong aggregation. With Fischer, winner of the individual title last year, absent with the American Walker Cup team in Scotland, Sawyer is conceded a good chance for that title.
In the national amateur last year, Sawyer tied for the all time low for the qualifying round with 142 strokes, only to see it broken by Fischer's 141.

THE SMART FORD V8

Operates for less— THAN ANY FORD EVER BUILT

THE smartest car that Ford has ever built is the smartest buy your budget has ever seen. The new Ford V-8 is the most economical car that Ford has yet produced.
That big Ford V-8 engine, which is capable of a generous 80 per, is actually miserly when it comes to fuel. It consumes less gasoline than many engines that have less cylinders and less power.
Ford V-8 is equipped with aluminum-alloy pistons which minimize carbon formation. Tungsten steel valve seat inserts virtually let you say "good-bye forever" to valve grinding.
In addition, the Ford V-8's dependable springs—which give you freeaction on all four wheels—have shackles that require no lubrication. And the whole car is so reliably, so strongly built that you will never be plagued with repair bills.
Before you buy any car at any price, drive the smart and economical Ford V-8.

After Taking Cardui "I have suffered a great deal from cramping," writes Mrs. W. A. Sewell, Sr., of Waco, Texas. "I would chill and have to go to bed for about three days at a time. I would have a dull, tired, sleepy feeling. A friend told me to try Cardui, thinking it would help me—and it did. I am very much improved and do not spend the time in bed. I certainly can recommend Cardui to other sufferers." Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

NEWS! Science Reveals Important New Facts for Smokers! Camel Smokers can verify these facts! There's a "Lift" in CAMELS that drives away Fatigue, Irritability. Feel "all in"? Then light a Camel. It's cool and fragrant and delightful...but far more important than that, it brings your flow of energy up from the depths! You feel fatigue vanish. Irritability seems to slip away. And you go back to work—or play—with the energy that is naturally yours. YOU'VE HAD THE EXPERIENCE...HERE'S THE EXPLANATION! This experience is no news to Camel smokers. But the explanation is news—and good news—to everyone. The "lift" you get from smoking Camels is simply a release of the natural latent energy in your body. You have helped your body to help itself...easily, naturally. Remember this explanation when your energy curve is "down"...times when you're irritable and your brain just doesn't seem to work and you feel too tired to move. AND CAMELS NEVER JANGLE YOUR NERVES! Camel fans smoke frequently—and they can—as often as they like. Camel's costlier tobaccos never get on the nerves. Keep your flow of energy at a higher level with Camels. TOO TIRED FOR FUN...and then she smoked a Camel! Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand. KNOW THIS FEELING? The feeling of being too "all in" to respond to the gaiety of the crowd? No taste for the pleasure and fun of the sort of social evening that you would ordinarily look forward to? That's one of the many times to light a Camel, enjoying its rich flavor while your flow of natural, healthful energy is restored. You'll like Camels—a matchless blend of costlier tobaccos!
