NRA Chiefs Hope To Avert General Strike People Reported

SAY POINTS AT ISSUE TO BE IRONED OUT

Hugh Johnson Sees Prospect Of Settling Strikes Threatening to Rend Cotton Textile and Steel Industries; Rumors Last Night That Agreement Had Been Reached

Washington, D. C., June 2.—(AP)—NRA chiefs held strong hope today that the threatened strike in the cotton textile and steel industries would be averted.

Despite a last-minute hitch that deadlocked employes and union leaders in the textile controversy, Hugh S. Johnson expressed the opinion that points at issue would be ironed out.

The recovery chief also saw prospects—possibly by means of a special labor board—of preventing the capital-labor struggle that threatened to rend the steel industry by the middle of the month.

Although the textile strike calling more than 30,000 workers has been set for Monday, Johnson was hopeful.

After he submitted the peace proposal to both sides there was rumor last night that an agreement had been reached, but this was denied by George A. Sloan, head of the cotton textile institute.

Details of the pact apparently provided a stumbling-block, although reported plans in general had been accepted by Thomas McMahon, president of the United Workers.

The threat of industrial war in steel simmered today as leaders of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers retired to their homes to study the situation.

SEES AID FOR SWIFT CREEK F. M. Kilpatrick Says It Is Probable Flooded Area Will Get Relief Soon

Relief in the near future for the disastrous condition prevailing in communities along Swift Creek was seen today by F. M. Kilpatrick, of Wyden, member of a grievance committee named recently to investigate the seriousness of the situation and attempt to effect an improvement.

Mr. Kilpatrick, in Greenville yesterday, has recently been in conference with health authorities as well as the State relief agency, and said he had been given assurance that something would be done to eliminate the menace to health and property as soon as possible.

Mr. Kilpatrick said the disaster was caused by disbandment by the CWA of the Swift Creek drainage project several months ago.

He stated that about as many people were involved by the situation.

"Many people will be affected by the condition of Swift Creek this summer, both from a health and agricultural standpoint, it was declared, and all of us hope the situation will be improved and are willing to co-operate in the matter," a statement issued by persons in the Swift Creek area said today.

It was said that Mrs. Thomas O'Berry, head of the FERA in this State has assured people of the Swift Creek area that she is doing everything possible to eliminate the threat to public life caused by the inundated farm lands.

PREPARE FOR STRIKE ORDER IN CAROLINAS

Union Officials Predict 100 Percent Walkout Of Textile Workers In 2 States

Charlotte, N. C., June 2.—(AP)—Union officials today stood firmly by a prediction that only the receiving of the United Textile Workers' general strike order would prevent a 100 per cent walkout of 100,000 textile units operating in North Carolina.

As the zero hour drew near regional union officials drew tentative plans for marshaling the textile workers in the strike and said they were confident 200,000 union workers in these two States could be swayed into joining the strike movement.

Their view, however, differed widely from that of the operators generally.

All the mill owners who have commented publicly expressed the view that the majority of the workers were "cognizant of the condition of the textile industry," and would not heed the strike call issued by Thomas McMahon, president of the T. T. W.

NEGRO THIEF GETS HEARING

Raymond Tyson Is Bound Over to County Court On Charge Of Chicken Theft

Raymond Tyson, colored, charged with stealing chickens from the farm of Zeno Hardee several miles from Greenville, was given preliminary hearing today and bound over to the next session of County Court.

The negro was arrested by officers here yesterday with nine chickens, identified as part of those stolen from Hardee's farm the night before. Officers said Tyson was preparing to dispose of the fowl to local stores when he was nabbed.

What became of the remainder of the twenty fowl was not known, but police believe they were in the hands of two other negroes being sought in connection with the case.

ITALIAN DUCE SAYS ITALY TO BATTLE ALONE

Mussolini Tells Volunteers Country Will Fight For Self In Next Conflict

Rome, June 2.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini told 10,000 war volunteers today that Italy will fight the next war for self alone and not on behalf of any other nation pretending to be her ally.

"Italy's volunteers for war will shed their blood only for Italy," declared the Ill Duce.

"Experience has shown that it does not pay to help by land or sea the people who pretend to be our allies."

Mussolini was interpreted as referring to France and her World War ally, Siberia, now part of Jugoslavia.

France, he has said, did not give Italy the territorial promise in the London treaty of 1915 following which Italy entered the war.

The volunteers gave the Premier a tremendous affirmative shout when he asked them if they were ready to march as in 1914 and 1915. They shouted "yes" again and again when he asked:

"Do you feel that tomorrow, if necessary to fight that victory will embrace your flag?"

The Ill Duce said Italy would have continued her foreign policy of collaboration with all people but it was necessary for other nations to co-operate too, and because this was not mathematically certain, and was not a fact, it was necessary to be prepared.

Speaking of the economic situation, Mussolini said:

"Not only are the times hard, but I also want to add that they will not be easier times to come. We must accept hard times. This is why the people are offering such a spectacle of discipline."

TWO MEN HELD FOR ISSUING BOGUS MONEY

Arrested At Chowan County River Bridge After Passing Counterfeit Bill

Hertford, June 2.—(AP)—Two men were being held in jail here today for Federal authorities on charges of passing counterfeit money after they were arrested late yesterday afternoon at the Chowan River bridge and approximately $500 in bogus money had been found in their car.

The men, armed with a revolver and driving a black sedan, were arrested by Perquimans and Chowan officers after a $20 counterfeit bill had been given to a Perquimans merchant in exchange for merchandise.

The men gave their names as Harry L. Warner and Ralph Perry of Richmond, Va.

College Alumnae Pays Tribute To Dr. Wright

At the business meeting of the Alumnae Association of the college this morning, a number of exceedingly interesting matters were attended to.

A Herbert E. Austin Loan Fund was established. The sum of $500 was set aside for this purpose. Over a year ago the Greenville chapter of the Alumnae Association began this movement and the entire alumnae wished to join in doing honor to the memory of this greatly beloved teacher, who devoted the last twenty years of his life to this school.

The Kate R. Beckwith Gateway was formally presented to the college in recognition of the services Mrs. Beckwith rendered during the seventeen years she was lady principal of the college.

This gateway is what is now the main entrance to the campus, between the Library and Administration buildings, and the driveway leads to the Campus building and Cotten Hall and around the Wright Circle.

A fund was raised which was to be used as a loan fund for five years and then, when the money had been refunded, to be put into some permanent form on the campus.

A committee was appointed to revise the constitution reported and their suggestions were adopted.

All arrangements were made for the college newspaper, the Tecu Echo, to be sent to all alumnae who pay their dues, hence all members in good standing.

E. L. Henderson presented the cause of the Robert Herring Wright Loan Fund. One of the major projects ahead will be raising money for the fund.

The objectives and aims for the next year were presented by the president.

The reports from the chapters were interesting. The Greenville chapter made a valuable contribution of work by compiling a card catalogue file of the alumnae, with the "who's who" and addresses brought as nearly up to date as possible.

EHRINGHAUS WILL SPEAK HERE TONIGHT

Governor Scheduled to Make Commencement Address At Teachers' College

Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus will deliver the commencement address at East Carolina Teachers College at 8:30 o'clock tonight, in the Campus building.

There will be very little else on the program. The only music will be the professional hymn sung at the graduation classes march in and at the close, "Old North State."

Only the prayer and the introduction of the speaker will precede his speech.

Dr. Finis Idleman, who will preach the baccalaureate sermon tomorrow morning, is considered one of the greatest preachers in the Christian Church of America. He is pastor of Central Church of Disciples of Christ, New York City.

A large crowd from throughout the eastern section of the state is expected tomorrow to hear him.

This is the first time the college has ever had a New York preacher at its commencement program.

The Y. W. C. A. vesper service will be held in the Campus building at seven o'clock. Dr. Idleman will speak at this service also. He will be introduced by Miss Melba O'Brien, president of the Y. W. C. A.

The beautiful candle lighting service in which the outgoing members of the cabinet pass the light to their successors, will be used.

The two beautiful twilight hymns "Day is Dying in the West," and "Now the Day is Over," and the Y. W. C. A. song "Follow the Gleam" will be sung. Taps will be sounded at the end, which marks the close of the student activities of the year.

The conferring of the Master's degree and the Academic procession will be two of the interesting features of the graduation exercises on Monday morning. The faculty in the caps and gowns with colors of their universities in the hoods, two M. A. graduates, seventy-five A. B. graduates in black robes and the one hundred and thirteen normal school graduates in blue robes, make a colorful spectacle. The line of march will form at the Austin building and cross the campus and will be at the entrance to the auditorium at 10:30 o'clock.

WILD FOWL REFUGE IS PLANNED FOR DARE

Elizabeth City, N. C., June 2.—A migratory wild fowl refuge on the Dare County banks, probably in the vicinity of Pea Island, below Oregon Inlet, is in prospect for the immediate future, in the opinion of W. L. Birsch, Federal wild fowl supervisor for this State.

Mr. Birsch explained today that $1,000,000 has already been set aside for projects of this nature in the United States.

PWA money will be supplemented by a Federal wild fowl tax of $1 for each hunter in the 1934-1935 season, it was explained by Mr. Birsch.

BATTLE FOR SENATE HOLDS 'SPOTLIGHT'

Four-Cornered Race For The House Also Drawing Interest As People Rally To Polls; Sheriff's Office, Treasurer And Board Of Commissioners Also In Center Of Balloting

Pitt countians, like thousands of others throughout the State, went to the polls today and registered their approval or disapproval of one of the largest fields of candidates for county offices probably ever recorded here before.

That interest was at fever heat throughout the county was indicated by reports of heavy voting reaching the city from the various precincts. In Greenville the voting was the heaviest for a primary in years, and it was indicated the total vote would not be so far behind that cast in the national election when Roosevelt was swept into office by unprecedented balloting.

There may have been a fist fight or so in some sections but reports reaching the city during the morning hours indicated that while voting was creating much interest, no disorder was in evidence. In fact, interest was primarily centered on getting people to the polls, and every nook and corner was being visited by friends of candidates in an effort to swell the tide of votes in their behalf.

Balloting was being carried on at both entrances to the courthouse here today, greatly facilitating and expediting the serious business of recording the ballots. Greenville Townships is the most populous of the county, and it is going to tax the facilities of the two voting places to handle the ballots.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon over 2,000 persons had cast their ballots, and the total was expected to be swelled considerably during the remainder of the afternoon.

Candidates conducted a whirlwind finish of their campaigns in all parts of the county last night and this morning sanguine statements came from each camp.

Main interest seemed to center about the contest between A. B. Corey, member of the State Senate, whose seat is being contested by Mrs. J. B. Spilman. Both have gained support throughout the county and it was impossible to say which would be in the lead when the final count is announced tonight.

Four candidates are entered for the House of Representatives, including Jack Edwards, incumbent of one of the two seats. Others entered in the race are J. Bruce Bure, M. O. Blount, and John Hill Paylor.

Next to the senatorial race, it is possible that the greatest contest has developed around the office of sheriff. S. A. Whitehurst, the present incumbent, is opposed by Richard (Dick) King and S. I. Dudley, former member of the Board of County Commissioners.

Numerically, the race for County Treasurer has captured attention of the voters. Six contestants are seeking the post. They are A. T. Moore, incumbent; Vance Perkins, G. L. Rouse, W. E. Warren, Charlie Martin, and C. W. Willard.

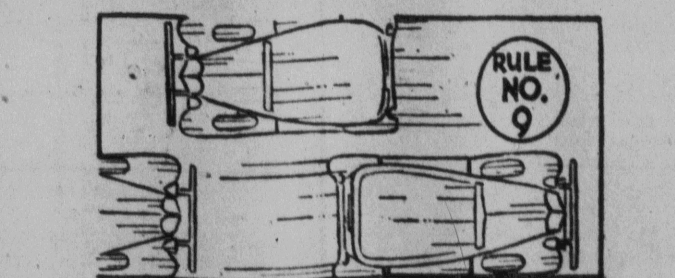

The bid for the office of Register of Deeds held by J. C. Gaskins is not a bad affair. The incumbent is opposed by Mrs. J. P. Moss.

Something of a battle has also developed for County Coroner. A. A. Ellwanger being opposed by S. O. Wilkerson.

There is also plenty of competition for the five seats on the Board of Commissioners. Nine Democrats and six Republicans are bidding for the posts, including five of the incumbents.

The Democrats are Roy T. Cox, Frank Kilpatrick, J. N. Williams, G. S. Porter, B. M. Lewis, W. J. Smith, J. K. Barnhill, Walter Cherry, and (Continued on Page Four)

HEARING FOR STEPPS SOON

Gas Theft Case Set For Today Postponed Until Next Monday Morning

The hearing for Heber Stepp, 28, and his cousin, Rufus Stepp, 18, set for this morning in mayor's court, was postponed until Monday morning on account of illness of Mayor R. C. Flanagan. The remainder of the docket scheduled for hearing today was also deferred.

The two Stepp men are charged with stealing gasoline from the automobile of Willie Owens, mail carrier, at his home on Chestnut Street Thursday night.

Learning of the theft, police hid behind the Stepp car which had been parked a short distance from Owens' home, and when the two men returned they were taken into custody. This case will be the high-light of the regular Monday morning session of police court.

AFTER TODAY, FORGET IT

With the primary voting now in progress, it is impossible to forecast the result, but regardless of the outcome let us all remember that today's voting is merely the nomination of our candidates for the coming fall election.

JUST PRAISE

At the conclusion of his final term of court in this county the local Bar paid a fine tribute to Judge Frank A. Daniels in resolutions that praised him as a citizen of the highest type and his work during his long years on the bench.

No word of praise could overstate the great value of Judge Daniels' services to the State of North Carolina. Retiring from long years of service on the bench it should bring him much comfort and happiness to know that he has rendered a great service conscientiously and impartially.

Someone else will be chosen for the place made vacant by Judge Daniels' retirement but he has set an example that will make his place a hard one to fill.

POLITICS at random

BY BRYON PRICE (Chief Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

The substantial basis appears for the report that General Hugh S. Johnson soon is to leave NRA.

The organization he built is in the midst of an important transition, and those who believe they know the mind of the President are convinced the General will stay in the middle until the more permanent aspects of NRA have been worked out.

It would cause no surprise if an administrator of a somewhat different type should succeed Johnson once the transitory period is over. That will be months hence.

Johnson at first intended to get out as soon as the temporary set-up was complete, and the bigger industry had been codified. He fixed January 1, last, as a probable date for his retirement. NRA got into serious controversy about that time, however, and he preferred not to quit under fire.

More recently the story has been spread around that he would step out after the adjournment of Congress, which will about coincide with the first birthday of NRA. That story never was supported either at NRA or the White House, and recent indications and more and more to forecast the contrary.

Self-Government Stressed A significant hint as to the future character of NRA was given by Mr. Roosevelt when he ordered that the "service" industries be relieved of trade practice regulation under the codes.

Other steps in the same direction are in prospect. The new idea is to give industry all along the line more self-government with respect to such things as production and methods of competition.

That does not include any relaxation of NRA control over relations between industry and labor. The wages and hours clauses of the codes will stand.

One possibility is that in its final form NRA will find its chief function in spreading employment, maintaining wage scales and enforcing a new capital-labor relationship—leaving to the Federal Trade Commission the task of keeping competition within legal limits.

That conception of the supreme mission of NRA would seem to be in keeping with the present emphasis on legislation to broaden the powers of the NRA labor board.

Cracking Down Barred It probably will be found that if any codes actually are "prescribed" by NRA, over the objections of the industries affected, they will be confined to wages and hours.

Of course, there are some exceptions to this general tendency; where codes already in operation are shown to promote monopoly and permit unreasonable price-fixing, some way out will have to be found. The Darrow report may lead, in the end, to several revisions.

On the whole, however, General Johnson is not going out looking for new trouble. The plain explanation is that the government is convinced general sentiment will not support a "cracking down" process that makes Washington absolute arbiter of business relationships.

Evidence of that is seen in the fact that the drastic licensing provision never was used, and now is to be permitted to lapse.

In all its aspects, the present phase of transition is perhaps the most interesting of the many through which this remarkable agency has passed. In spite of all competition, NRA still holds the center of the Washington stage.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER Washington, D. C.—Regardless of whether one agrees with either of the constitutional phases of the proposed tariff legislation, the speech in which he gave utterance to his views will be set down as one of the highlights of the present Congress.

Borah, the orator of the Senate, the man who packs the galleries and fills the usually vacant seats of Senators on the floor when it is known ahead of time he is to speak, attained heights on this occasion seldom reached ever by him.

Veteran gallery observers say it has been at least five years since the "lone lion of Idaho" has attempted an oratorical feat comparable to this one.

Curiously enough his address came with sudden unexpectedness. Everyone knew that sooner or later in the tariff debate a speech could be expected from him, but they didn't look for it on the first day the bill was before the Senate.

"Sharpshooters" Absent As a matter of fact, McNary, of Oregon, Republican leader of the Senate, was taken by surprise. A few minutes before he had been trying to get the Democratic leaders to agree to lay the bill aside temporarily and take up other business.

His three sharpshooters—Reed, of Pennsylvania; Hastings, of Delaware; and Hatfield, of West Virginia, were absent from the capital that day and none of the other Republicans was prepared to speak.

Robinson, of Arkansas, and Harrison, of Mississippi, the Democrats in charge of the bill, were reluctant to accede to McNary's request in their eagerness to get through with debate. While the three were wrangling, Borah arose from his desk in the rear of the chamber and said:

"Mr. President, there is one phase of this question I am willing to discuss now."

McNary, visibly relieved, glanced around at the empty seats on the floor and said he would ask that a quorum be called.

"I do not yield for that purpose," Borah replied and began to speak.

Long-Awaited Opportunity What impressed those who heard him was that Borah was delivering himself of thoughts long burning within him. The tariff bill gave him the opportunity he long has awaited—an opportunity to come to the defence of the ideas and ideals to which he believes the American people should cling.

His exhortation of "these enemies of free government" and his hope that someone in a place of power will rise to "challenge these apostles of terror and fanaticism" may not have changed the minds of Senators as to how they would vote on the bill. His speech, however, seems certain to overshadow any other event during the Senate's consideration of the measure.

Washington, D. C.—That delectable "pastime of members of the House—manufacturing campaign fodder"—has been in full swing on the south side of the capitol for days now.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE BY WALTER C. BROWN

SYNOPSIS: Sergeant Harper, who at first explained to his own satisfaction how a murderer killed a stranger and a policeman in three different houses, that he cannot make a case until he can identify the stranger, and determine how the murderer escaped, he has reconstructed the crime for Lafferty, his helper, and has reached one small clue in the plan.

Chapter 34 BANGING DOOR

NEXT, the murderer rinsed and dried the second liquor glass and put it back in the cabinet," explained Harper. "The dead man's pockets and clothing were emptied of anything that might establish his identity. But the killer over-reached himself there by making too thorough a job of that. A couple of keys, a pen or pencil, two or three things like that would have created a more normal appearance. By means unknown to us, the murderer then made his escape."

"But what about the banging door?" Lafferty inquired. "The killer took a big chance there. It might have drawn some one's attention while the murderer was in the middle of all those details."

"I've got an answer for that, too. The lock-bar was let down just before the get-away. There was a purpose behind that banging door. It wouldn't have been fooled for more than ten seconds, unless this man came here to meet them. Which only substitutes one set of absurdities for another. Besides, I am quite convinced that the Whitmores can be dropped from our calculations. "The next real mystery concerns the threatening letters. What was their object, if action was really contemplated? The letters really meant business, as the ambush proved."

Lafferty thought it over. "You can't dodge the inference that there was a conspiracy about to do away with Dufresne. Those letters made no demands for money. Just the threat to kill. That backs up my theory—Mrs. Dufresne teamed up with some one to get rid of her husband. The letters were sent first, as a blind to give us a false lead to work on."

"If Mrs. Dufresne teamed up with some one here in the house, where does our dead man enter the picture? And if not, then who hid the gun this morning? Certainly she did not."

"Just the same, I'm holding out for my theory. She's back of it, and her husband is foolishly trying to cover up for her. We don't know what's been going on in their private lives."

The door was supposed to draw attention.

was supposed to draw attention to the crime!" "The murderer wanted the bodies discovered right away?" "Exactly."

"But why was it so important to have the bodies discovered at once?" "There can be only one answer to that—the murderer had a good alibi and he didn't want to waste it. Had these bodies been lying here all night, discovery would not have come until the Whitmores entered this room. That might have been some time today, perhaps not until tomorrow. But that would not do. The killer wanted it known that the deed was done early last evening. Why, unless he had prepared a protecting alibi?"

LAFFERTY was interested. "That sounds as if you were aiming at Dufresne. He certainly has the classiest alibi of the lot."

"Yes, he was practically a prisoner, under lock and key. But, aside from his ironclad alibi, the fact that the gun was left in his drawer, uncleaned and not reloaded, seems to point to his innocence. A guilty man would not have been so careless."

"It's pretty hard to feel sure about anything so long as we have no idea of the motive behind the killing," Lafferty commented.

"That makes it difficult," Harper agreed. "And if we go back a little in point of time, we're up against some erratic behavior. The earliest event of which we have any knowledge shows us the masquerader buying his disguise in October, while the Dufresnes were still away. Why did he do that? Why did he want to look like Dufresne? We don't know and it's an important factor."

"Perhaps he counted on being taken for Dufresne," Lafferty hazarded. "In case some one saw him prowling around the house. The resemblance was remarkable, although without the disguise there was practically no similarity."

"That may be the reason, but if so, whom did he meet here? The Dufresnes, Andrews and Donaghy were at Moose Head Lodge. The maid, Ellen Becker, had been sent away months before. The Whitmores, knowing Dufresne was in Maine,

Far in advance of the Senate in the matter of disposing of legislation before it, the leaders have permitted the members to do pretty much as they pleased.

The last of the major appropriation bills has been passed and sent to the Senate, "giving the boys a chance to let off steam," as Jack Garner used to describe it.

Since all House members are up for re-election this year, the opportunity to "speak for the Record," means a great deal. In some cases, opportunity is provided to launch campaigns here in Washington.

Campaign in Congress Here is a typical statement, addressed to the members of the House but meant for ears of constituents back home.

"I am busy here in Washington attending to the people's important business. I have no time for campaigning. I am kept on the grind for sixteen hours a day. None of us know yet just how much longer we will be kept here. . . . The Congressman who made this statement consumed eight or nine pages in the Congressional Record in a typical stump oration. Eventtally it will find its way to the nail boxes of his constituents some 2,000 miles away.

Rarely is objection raised in such cases. Once a member is lucky enough to get time on the floor to make a speech, there's a sort of gentlemen's agreement that his subject matter may be to his own choosing.

There have been, however, loud and vigorous protests lodged against those members who have a tendency to "extend their remarks" in the Record by insertions of extraneous matter."

Where There's a Will Rich of Pennsylvania, a member of the committee of the House which has charge of printing, has been the most outspoken critic.

Recently he got the public printer to give him an estimate of how much it cost the government for members of the House, over a period of a year, to insert this bulk matter in the Record. The figure ranged from $250,000 to $300,000.

There's not much hope of a reform, however. Rich, himself, admits it. It's possible that individuals may be blocked in their attempts to get stuff in, but if they are anxious enough to get it in, they always can find a way.

If an influential member of the House can't be persuaded to do the job, there's always someone in the Senate, where that vague but powerful weapon known as "senatorial courtesy" prevails, who will undertake the task.

Tips on CONTRACT

DOUBLE SQUEEZE

By Tom O'Neill When both adversaries forced to make discards upon a declarer's long suit so that losing cards are promoted to the winning rank, some players refer to the process as a "triple" squeeze, because three suits are involved.

Lewis Osborn, director of the Deschappelles Club, New York, who has made a reputation at simplifying the mysteries of the squeeze so that they can be recognized and developed in a definite method, prefers the term "double squeeze" for such a play.

In the one-way squeeze, only one adversary can be forced to discard to the declarer's advantage.

In the two-way squeeze, either adversary may be forced to discard disadvantageously.

In the double squeeze, both adversaries suffer from the declarer runs off his long suit, including the last card of it.

Elements of any squeeze are: First, a long suit to run. Second, the declarer is one trick short of the goal he seeks. Third, opposite the squeezing suit is a suit containing a sure entry and a lower card which may be promoted to winning rank. In either dummy or declarer's hand is a single card menace.

If the two-card menace and the one-card menace are in the same hand the squeeze is one way. Only the adversary under that hand can be squeezed.

If the two-card menace and the one-card menace are in different hands, either adversary can be squeezed depending upon his holdings.

If in the squeeze hand there is a one-card menace over the player at the right of the squeeze hand, and if in the other hand of the contracting partnership there is a one-card menace over the player under that hand, there is a double squeeze situation.

In illustration is the following hand:

Darrow, Still The 'Super-Skeptic'

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE Washington, D. C.—(AP)—Clarence Darrow, now going on 78, eats spinach twice a day, sneaks in a nap in the afternoon and voices his blasts at "the so-called human race" more softly—but he still remains the super-skeptic.

America's most celebrated criminal lawyer and "the world's most famous infidel," as William Jennings Bryan called him, obviously has lost some of the fire he had in Tennessee evolution trial days, but there are many sparks left.

He still laughs at some or the "damned dudes in America"; but as chairman of the board which studied the NRA and some of its codes in the interests of small businesses, he withheld his lash with respect to the recovery program pending the public release of the board's report on NRA to the President.

"Dickering, cheating and hating" But over a dish of spinach—he often carries his tray himself in the cafeteria of the Pennsylvania Avenue Hotel that is his Washington residence and office—he will let go with sporadic shafts of salty sarcasm.

He will tell you that there is more general hatred today among the nations than at any time since the Middle Ages, that people "go on dickering, cheating and hating" and that "this is about the worst period we ever had. The idiotic nations set up crazy tariff walls and branded as public enemies other people who wanted to sell them things to eat and wear."

To him, the United States, in particular, "is cursed with the disease of money-getting which the depression didn't cure at all, the preachers are still ranting and no one is showing any signs of turning the other cheek as Christ told them to do."

Harming "The Poor Drunkard" Darrow says repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment was a step forward, but he fears that with the Federal Government taking its bite, the States getting in their nibbles, the high taxes on liquor have put a terrible burden on the poor drunkard.

There have been some improvements, he says, in physical comforts in the last thirty years, but the average man is not so happy as he was.

New Books For Young Folks

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER Author of "Gundown Stories" in The Daily Reflector

If your young son starts questioning you about how skyscrapers are built, you may refer him, with a feeling of relief, to "The Story of Skyscrapers," by Alfred Morgan.

It is actually interesting and direct. Succinctly, the author tells the history of America's tall buildings from the time of blueprints to pinnacled achievement. Boy whose imaginations turn in that direction will like it.

Or, if he dreams of being an inventor and is interested in inventions, let him have C. J. Hylander's "American Inventors." Its anecdotes of early poverty are delightful. For example, Goodyear could not pay his fare on the ferry to New York, so he carried his umbrella to the captain, whose name was Commodore Vanderbilt.

"Boats," by Harriet Salt, illustrated by Paul Ickes, is a picture-book with brief but comprehensive text dealing in the different kinds of water craft. This should be relished by younger children, but even older persons find it fascinating.

For we children there is "Tim estimate there are enough wild animals in the Great Buildings," mals and fish in that State to write and illustrated by Marjorie it interesting for 200,000 anglers, Flack. It is humorous, but has its 300,000 anglers, serious side—for, after all, the tadpole's transitions are of considerable moment to him.

For the older girls, there is, "The Prince Commands," by Andre Norton, which has romance in its pages.

Airplane Falls La Paz, Bolivia, May 28.—(AP)—The Bolivian war office announced last night that a Paraguayan airplane had been seen to fall after being struck by Bolivian machine gun bullets over a Bolivian military position.

HIGHWAY DISPUTE LEADS TO SHOOTING Fayetteville, N. C., May 28.—Herbert Jones, middle-aged white man, is in Pittman Hospital with a pistol ball in his skull and Ben Powell, of Cumberland Mills, is in jail here charged with the shooting. Jones told officers he was in his automobile on the Lumberton road last night when Powell and his brother approached and started an argument.

Jones was shot in the face, the bullet passing partly through his brain and lodging in his skull.

"We're had a little accident," began Willy Nilly, and he quickly told Grandpa and Grandpa what had happened.

"But," Willy Nilly continued, "if your rope hadn't been worn out it wouldn't have broken like that. He didn't give either of the Galumps a chance to speak but went right on."

Rate Of Grain Drops In Production, Trade

(By The Associated Press)
The rate of advance in production and trade slackened in April and the first half of May, reports the conference of statisticians in industry of the National Industrial Conference Board.

Production of passenger cars and trucks in April in the United States and Canada increased 4 per cent over March and 39 per cent over April a year ago. The first four-month increase this year over last was 102 per cent.

Building and engineering construction fell sharply to a point 26.3 per cent below March, but it was 12.3 per cent over April, 1933.

Steel production made a fifth consecutive increase in April with an increase in daily average output of 13.3 per cent over March and 115.4 per cent over April, 1933. Steel operations in April were 54.2 per cent of capacity.

April production of electric power showed about the usual seasonal decline, the board reported.

Rail shipments of all classes of commodities declined 4.6 per cent under the March level but were 18.3 per cent over April of last year. The seasonal decrease between March and April in recent years has been 0.1 per cent.

Dollar value of department store sales in April declined 1.4 per cent but were 5 per cent over a year ago. Prices advanced 0.4 per cent in April over March, a total of 1.1 per cent this year.

ROTES LICK KIWANIANS IN 'CLASSIC'

Any Kiwanians or Rotarians seen limping about town today have not been in an election scrap—they played a ball game at the college athletic field yesterday afternoon and many of them are suffering.

The Rotarians, an unknown quantity, pulled the surprise of the day when they defeated the high-touted Kiwanis aggregation to the tune of 9 to 8. As the score indicates, the game was a tight one, but the Rotes finally nosed out with the big end of the score.

The game, considered something of a classic by the two clubs, was played in the interest of the local club of the Coastal Plain League and gate receipts will go to that organization.

Troy Burnette, college hurler, did the pitching honors for the Rotes. While the Kiwanians hit almost as freely as did the Rotes, Burnette was able to clamp the lid down in the latter part of the game and enable his teammates to walk off the field with the big end of the tallying.

Conely, regular Kiwanis ace, started like a house afire, but in the sixth frame the Rote bats sent him to the showers and Ed Wells, high school pitcher, took his place.

There isn't much to say except that the Rotarians were gloating over their victory today in the face of the cocksureness of the Kiwanians who firmly believed they were going to run away with the game just like they did with two or three high school clubs of the county.

The Rotes felt rewarded for stiff limbs and aching tonsils caused by yelling their teammates on to victory, but the Kiwanians didn't know exactly how they felt this morning because they had nothing to brag about and no skill to offer except that their bats, usually loaded with dynamite, didn't have the high-powered stuff behind them yesterday.

million to be used for highways. It was yet unclear as to what extent Speaker Rainey would use his nearly voted dictatorial powers to press this major bill to passage. The massive Democratic majority increased his authority immeasurably yesterday after Republican filibuster tactics had delayed the legislative process for hours at a time.

Roosevelt At Groton

Groton, Mass., June 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt returned to Groton school today to participate in the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the institution.

Arriving just in time for a late luncheon, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt motored to the school dining-room. The President carried with him a brief talk to be delivered tonight.

As usual, the gates to Groton school were closed to outsiders. A crowd waited at the gate.

Newspapemen and photographers were forbidden entrance to the grounds.

Heavy Voting In N. C.

Raleigh, June 2.—(AP)—North Carolina voters this afternoon were reported as going to the polls rapidly to elect party nominees for the general November election and in so doing they wrote the fate of the state three per cent sales tax.

Thousands of political aspirations were at stake as candidates for constable to congress were being chosen and the fate of the sales tax levy was at stake in the personnel being selected to sit in the 1935 legislature.

At Elizabeth City in the east, and Raleigh, Durham and Henderson, in the central part of the state, and Charlotte in the Piedmont, heavy balloting was reported.

No disorders had been reported.

Says Congressmen Cursed Him

Washington, D. C., June 2.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes said Congressmen have "cussed" him out because he junked the $100,000,000 public building program.

Testifying before the House Appropriations Committee, he said at least a half billion dollars would be needed to supplement the $3,300,000,000 outlay authorized by Congress a year ago for public works.

In the midst of the testimony made public today, the administrator was criticized by Chairman Buchanan, Democrat, of Texas, for using $100,000,000 fund for other purposes.

'Gobs Parade In New York

New York, June 2.—(AP)—The navy moved up Fifth Avenue at a smart step today giving a salute to nearly a million New Yorkers who know a parade when they see one.

Over 5,000 men from the United States fleet of warships in unbroken ranks of white paraded up the avenue from Washington Square to 59th street. Taking the salute of the navy's fighting men were Mayor LeGuardia, Admiral David Sellers, Major General Dennis Noland, commander of the second corps area of the army and the navy's wartime chief, Josephus Daniels, now ambassador to Mexico.

SCOTCH WHISKEY SURPLUS PERSIST DESPITE REPEAL

London.—Repeal of prohibition in the United States has resulted in "only very partial" reduction of the surplus of Scotch whiskey, says a committee which has been investigating the use of Scottish barley by distilleries.

Statistics cited by the committee show that malt whiskey production last year amounted to only 285,418 gallons, compared to 2,192,886 gallons in 1932.

An output of 3,000,000 gallons is forecast for the current year because of the small production in 1933.

Chile Joins Forestry and Health

Santiago, Chile.—(AP)—Killing two birds with one stone, the ministry of public education has opened a mountain health camp for children who are to plant trees and develop government land as part of a forestry course.

'Chiefie,' A Modere Deer, Likes and Ride

Boulder, Colo.—(AP)—A pet deer named "Chiefie" with a fondness for pie and coffee, playing the piano and riding in an automobile attracts many Sunday visitors to the home of Mrs. Verna Cover in Boulder Canyon.

Chiefie "just strayed in" and has put up at the Cover ranch ever since, his owner explained. Occasionally he roams the mountains for days at a time, but always "comes back home."

Riding in the Cover auto was a daily habit Chiefie acquired quickly, and now, if he isn't allowed to ride when the family takes the car out for a spin, he follows like a pet dog.

The deer consumes so many cigarettes and cigar butts that "he's almost a living ash tray," his owner says.

"His favorites around the house are out cat and dog," Mrs. Cover said. "In fact he won't sleep until the cat has been put to bed with him in their sleeping place in the garage."

Chiefie dislikes hay. His favorite provender is coffee and pie, though he also likes bread, bacon and apples.

With a little patience, Mrs. Cover taught Chiefie to strike the keys of a piano with his hoofs, and now he enjoys "playing" for his admirers.

"His only bad habit," said Mrs. Cover, "is tearing clothes off the line."

SEEK TO PREVENT FILMING OF OUTLAWS

Dallas, Tex., June 2.—(AP)—The mothers of Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, outlaws, killed last week, filed suit today for an injunction to prevent the showing of motion pictures of events connected with the slaying.

Asserting they were humiliated by the showing of pictures of the activities and the bodies of their children, Mrs. Cunnie F. Barrow and Mrs. Emma Parker asked an injunction against the Jamieson Film Company, W. G. Underwood, the Independent Film Company and the Capital and Palace Theaters of Dallas.

INJURED MAN STILL IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Durham, N. C., June 2.—The condition of J. E. Davis, 52, of Charlotte who received serious head injuries Wednesday afternoon when two automobiles collided near Carrboro, was described as unchanged by Watts Hospital attaches today. Davis has not regained consciousness yet.

W. B. Drake, of Raleigh, who was an occupant of the other car which figured in the wreck, is resting well at Duke Hospital. Attaches say that he will remain here during the week for observation. Lunsford Lenz, of Raleigh, in the car with Drake, was dismissed yesterday afternoon from the hospital.

TRAIN PASSES OVER BOY WITHOUT HURTING HIM

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 2.—(AP)—A train consisting of 70 cars passed over 15-year-old Frank Popowski, of DuPont, yesterday, but he was only slightly hurt.

Frank was playing with other boys near the Lehigh Valley Railroad tracks. He chased a ball between the rails. The engine bumped him and knocked him down squarely in the middle of the track, so that no part of him was touched by the train.

GANGSTER AND WOMAN SLIP THROUGH DRAGNET

Richmond, Va., June 2.—(AP)—A man and woman, wanted by police in three States and the District of Columbia, slipped through a police dragnet here and sped away in an automobile. Police chased them as far as Williamsburg before they were outdistanced by the fugitives' faster car.

The pair were John Kendrick, believed implicated in a bank robbery here, and Jean Nash, alias Ruth Ramsey, of King's Mountain, N. C., police said.

Kendrick is listed as one of a gang of seven wanted for robbery, by the Postoffice Department. The same gang is also thought connected with the hold-up of a Federal Reserve Bank truck here in which a bank driver was shot and killed. A $60,000 hold-up is also laid to them.

SUES BOTTLING FIRM FOR $1,500 DAMAGES

Durham, N. C., June 2.—Bessie Sexton, a local hosiery worker, instituted a $1,500 damage suit in Superior Court today against the local Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company, claiming that she drank a quantity of powdered glass in a bottle of the defendant's beverage on May 21.

Miss Sexton contends the incident forced her to remain in bed under the care of a physician for several days, and alleges that she is now "almost a physical wreck," suffering dizziness, headaches and severe nausea. Physicians, according to her claims, say that her injuries are permanent.

MORE TEACHERS PAID WITH FEDERAL FUNDS

Raleigh, N. C., June 2.—A total of $84,174.50 in pay checks for the eighth school month was distributed to 1,221 teachers in eleven units yesterday. The salaries were paid from the $500,000 Federal fund granted North Carolina.

The total expended from that fund through yesterday was $413,396.50, which went to 6,030 teachers.

Units to which checks were mailed yesterday are: Cleveland, 14 teachers, $10,753; Davie, 93 teachers, $6,367; Forsyth, 183 teachers, $13,619; Gates, 63 teachers, $4,018.50; Graham, 31 teachers, $1,850; Greene, 66 teachers, $4,490.50; Guilford, 279 teachers, $21,877; Clinton, 36 teachers, $2,474; Wilkes, 180 teachers, $11,280.50; North Wilkesboro, 21 teachers, $1,655; and Yancey, 95 teachers, $5,785.
