Guards Surround Home of Niceto Alcantara Zamora in Effort to Prevent His Death; Sanguniary Disorders Redened By Farm Strike Cause Guards to Take Precautions

Madrid, June 7.—(AP)—Guards surrounded the home of Niceto Alcantara Zamora today as a precaution against an alleged plot to assassinate him, while sanguniary disorders redened by a farm strike plotted Spain.

A newspaper was fined after publishing a report that Blasistas were plotted in the uprising and planned to kidnap the president, but authorities took extraordinary precautions against any attempt to assassinate him.

The assassination of General Fernando Beringuer, brother of the former monarchist premier and at least twelve deaths and scores injured in a farm strike, spread fears of an uprising.

It was believed that assassins of Beringuer had mistaken him for his brother, General Damaso Beringuer, who served as premier under former King Alfonso.

Two persons were killed and several hurt at Valladolid when civil guards broke up a demonstration by striking laborers. The incident was not directly connected with the farm strike.

ROAD DEATH RATE DROPS

Three Less Killed on Highway Last Month Than During April, Report Shows

The death toll in this highway patrol division showed a slight improvement compared with the previous month, records in the office of Lester Jones, patrol lieutenant, indicated today.

Nine deaths were recorded during May, compared with twelve for April. The list of injured ran about the same as the previous month with 35 persons being victims of automobile crashes in various parts of the division.

The report also showed that a total of 147 arrests were made by the patrolmen with sentences of 90 1-2 months being dealt out to the defendants. One hundred and forty-one were found guilty and six not guilty.

In addition to the many other duties given attention during the month, the patrolmen issued a total of 2245 warnings to motorists in an effort to improve traffic conditions and reduce the toll of deaths which had been growing slightly each month for the past year.

Drunk drivers are becoming more frequent on the public highways of the State, the report also revealed. Thirty-five were arrested along with twenty others charged with reckless driving. Twelve drunk were also taken into custody along the highways.

Total revenue collected by the patrol was listed as $18,793.71.

COUNTY COURT ENDS SITTING

About Half Dozen Cases Disposed of in Second Day Session Yesterday

County Court, which disposed of over a dozen cases Tuesday, completed work and adjourned yesterday about the noon hour. Five or six cases were given hearing during the final day's session.

It was the first sitting of the court in two weeks by reason of two-week term of Superior Court which was adjourned the latter part of last week.

Three negroes, charged with receiving stolen property, were given the privilege of spending four months each at the County Home or paying $25 and one-fourth cost each. They were Lena Bynub, Pearl Boyd and Willie Boyd. They were arrested by city officers several days ago and charged with receiving a supply of meat stolen from the Dav-entport farm.

The actual thieves were not arrested, although officers conducted an extensive investigation into the theft. John Owens, colored, was sentenced to four months at the County Home on a charge of larceny.

James Clark, charged with the larceny of clothing from another colored man, was given four months on the road.

Tom Nobles was convicted on charges of driving drunk and hit and run driving. He was taxed $50 and costs with license revoked for ninety days on the first charge and five days in jail and drivers license suspended ninety days in the second. He was alleged to have hit an automobile driven by Frank Little and to have went on his way without stopping.

Jesse Ross and Jean Upton, white couple, charged with immoral relations, were each given six months in jail, but sentence was suspended on condition that they be married and remain out of the county for three years. They were married and left the county immediately after the ceremony was performed. The case was one of the last given hearing the day before.

IRISH ARMY MAY MARCH IN BRIAN BORU UNIFORMS

Dublin.—(AP)—The Irish Free State's army may revert to the uniform of the Erin of centuries ago.

A proposal is being considered by the government that the army dress as did Brian's Boru's soldiers when they routed the Danes at the battle of Clontarf. At present the soldiers are garbed like American troops, except that the uniforms are green.

One suggestion is that the soldiers wear kilts and shawls. But economy is a leading objection since a kilt takes more than three times as much material as a pair of trousers. Opponents of this scheme heartlessly inquire: "If kilts, why not bows and arrows?"

CHILD RUSHED TO HOSPITAL BY AIRPLANE

Suffering From Unknown Malady, Daughter of Asheville Doctor Sent to Md.

Baltimore, Md., June 7.—(AP)—The three-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Greenwood, of Asheville, N. C., rushed here by airplane, was in the John Hopkins Hospital today for treatment for a malady which her Asheville physicians were unable to diagnose.

The baby was placed under the charge of Dr. Walter E. Dand, noted brain specialist. She was given an immediate examination by a resident physician at the hospital.

Dick Merrill, pilot of the Eastern flying time to Greenville, S. C., by an hour and landed at Loran Field at 3:42 this morning, 18 minutes ahead of schedule. The plane left Greenville at 11:05 last night where it had been held for nearly 45 minutes to await the arrival of the day.

After further examination at John Hopkins Hospital the child was said to be very seriously ill, but the exact nature of the brain ailment had not been determined.

FOUR KILLED IN CAR WRECK

Fifth Injured as Machine Crashes Through Barricade and Drops 30 Feet

Redding, Pa., June 7.—(AP)—Four persons were killed and a fifth critically injured today when their automobile crashed through a heavy barricade at the dead end of a street and tumbled over a thirty-foot embankment to railroad tracks below.

The driver of the car, Lawrence Kuhns, of Boyertown, was the only one of the five identified. He was taken to a hospital and was not expected to live.

Clothes of the other four occupants of the machine were searched for papers or other marks of identification, but none were found.

Aldermen Meet Postponed Here

The regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen scheduled for tonight has been postponed until June 14, on account of the illness of Mayor Flanagan. Several important matters are scheduled to come before the body.

The mayor, who has been confined to his home the last several days, was reported as much improved today, and it was hoped he would be well enough to preside over the delayed session.

ACCEPTED HIS DOOM. EXPECTED EARLY ACTION

Elizabeth City, N. C., June 7.—Judge W. A. Devin Monday afternoon sentenced John Bunch, Middle Street negro, pleading guilty to second degree murder of his wife, Mary, to thirty years in the State Prison.

Apparently bewildered by the legal procedure of the trial and resigned to his fate, the 64-year-old murderer of his wife seemed quite oblivious to what was going on about him.

When the judge had pronounced the sentence the grizzled old darkey, leaning over to a fellow-culprit on the prisoners' bench, quietly asked: "Are they going to kill me today?"

LITHUANIA IN REVOLT GRIP

Exiled Augustine Waldemaras Returns to Kaunas and Reassumes Premiership

Tilsit, Germany, June 7.—(AP)—The German News Bureau reported today from Kaunas, Lithuania, that Augustine Waldemaras, former dictator of that country, had returned from exile by airplane, carried out a coup and reassumed the premiership of Lithuania.

The government report also said a military revolt broke out in Lithuania last night under the leadership of Waldemaras.

His adherents immediately proclaimed him premier and he took up his quarters in the general staff building.

President Antanas, it was further reported, had refused to speak with Waldemaras and his men who issues an ultimatum against the chief executive. The ultimatum expired at midday, but appeared here to have been extended.

All government offices were occupied by the army between 2 a. m. and 7 a. m. today, according to the dispatches.

Several members of the government were reported arrested, but this report was not confirmed.

Kaunas, the capital, was reported quiet with soldiers withdrawn from the streets at noon.

LEAF MEASURE PASSES HOUSE

Bill to Penalize Growers Who Fail to Join Reduction Drive Goes to Senate

Washington, D. C., June 7.—(AP)—A bill to penalize tobacco growers who fail to join the crop reduction program today had passed its first hurdle.

With Republican cries that it was another step toward "enslavement" of American tobacco farmers, the House passed the measure late yesterday and sent it on to the Senate.

An amendment limiting the bill's effect to two years and classifying it as experimental legislation, was tacked on at the suggestion of Chairman Jones of the Agricultural Committee just before passage.

Dredge Fair Site. San Francisco, Calif.—(AP)—Submerged shoals in San Francisco bay adjacent to Yerba Buena Island (Goat Island) to all except the map makers) will be built up by dredging into a site for a World's Fair in 1937. The fair will celebrate the completion of construction of two bridges at a cost slightly in excess of $100,000,000.

BETHEL STORE ROBBERS ARE NABBED HERE

Police Say Two Negroes Confess Entering Store and Stealing Car Here

Two negroes, Charlie Ewell and Herman Mason, charged with the robbery of M. O. Blount's store at Bethel several nights ago and stealing an automobile here, were given preliminary hearing before Magistrate John Ivey Smith this morning and bound over to the next session of Superior court under bond of $1,000 each. They were unable to provide bond and were remanded to jail.

Chief of Police George Clark, who with county officers, directed the investigation, said the two men confessed both cases of theft after being taken into custody. A considerable part of $500 worth of merchandise taken from Blount's store was recovered along with the automobile.

The trail of the thieves led from Bethel to Greenville, then to Washington and back to Greenville.

Stealing a car belonging to E. B. Ferguson here last Thursday night, Chief Clark said the negroes confessed going to Bethel and robbing the store. They carried the stolen property, consisting of clothing, to Washington, left part of it there and then started back to Greenville.

The automobile gave out of gas about three miles from Greenville and was abandoned. A considerable part of the merchandise was secured in the woods near the cemetery on the city limits and the negroes walked into Greenville.

They later sold some of the merchandise among colored people here and it was through these sales that police were able to follow their trail.

Mason was taken into custody here, admitted the crime, and told police Ewell could be found in Washington with part of the goods. Ewell was arrested shortly afterward and told where the hidden goods could be found.

Chief Clark said the two negroes recently complete road terms of from 3 to 5 years for robbing a store at Winterville three or four years ago.

GIVES LIST OF WINNERS IN PRIMARY

Names of Those Who Were Not on Ticket Also Included in Election Board List

F. C. Harding, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Elections, which met here Tuesday to canvass the vote in Saturday's State-wide primary, today gave the names of those officially certified by the Board as Democratic nominees for their respective offices.

Numbers of offices were without contest, and consequently were not voted on in the primary.

The chairman also called attention to the candidates who did not receive a majority vote and who are open to be called to a second primary. These include the office of Treasurer and one seat in the House of Representatives, in addition to three constables who did not receive a majority.

The constable race is in Greenville, Winterville and Swift Creek Townships.

J. Vance Perkins, who ran next to Thurman Moore for treasurer, announced the first of the week he would ask for a run-off primary, but Jack Edwards who is runner-up to Moore, declined.

NRA FAILS TO OBTAIN AGREEMENT

Hugh Johnson Unable To Reach Settlement With Steel Strike Leaders; Serious Situation Threatens in Cincinnati Type-writer Strike; Settlement of Longshoremen's Strike in California Seen

(By The Associated Press)

Despite the determined effort of Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson to make peace, a paralyzing strike in the steel industry today became hourly more probable while threatened outbreak of violence in the Alabama mine fields and the Cincinnati typewriter strike caused tightening of police vigilance.

From San Francisco came the hint of a break in the longshoremen's strike with release of all Alaska shipping, and in Laurinburg, N. C., settlement of the week-old strike of Waverly Mill employees was in sight as representatives of the management and laborers got together for a conference.

In New York where General Johnson presented his personal plea to the Iron and Steel Institute for a special board to smooth out the trouble in the steel industry, the Institute directors put down their foot on any plan for a "closed shop" and took no action on the Johnson proposal. Labor spokesmen, their demands rejected, said a strike of 100,000 workmen on June 16 is inevitable unless their grievances receive consideration.

Despite renewed vigilance in Cincinnati prospects for settlement of the Remington-Rand typewriter strike was seen in an official promise that he would attempt to arrange a New York conference this week.

Police remained on guard at the Iliou, N. Y., plant where a few men are at work. Increasing numbers of workers are back at work at their jobs in the Syracuse plant.

In the Alabama mine fields where an outbreak of bombing and fires occurred yesterday there are no negotiations in progress and the strike rounded out its fifth week.

OFFICERS NAB LIQUOR STILL

Ten Gallons of Liquor and Considerable Beer Also Taken in Bethel Area

County officers cooperating with Chief of Police Martin, of Bethel, captured a steam whiskey distilling plant in the Bethel community yesterday, it was revealed here today.

Along with the still, the officers nabbed ten gallons of whiskey and approximately five hundred gallons of beer.

The still was in operation at the time, but the distillers, warned by outposts, escaped.

It was the first capture reported by county officers in several weeks due largely to the fact that whiskey making operations are not carried on as extensively during the summer as in the fall and winter. Demand always falls off about a month prior to the beginning of the fall rush of business.

DROWNED WHEN CAR PLUNGES INTO WASHOUT

Albemarle, N. C., June 7.—Foster Efrid, 30, former resident of this county, was drowned about eleven o'clock last night when the open car he was driving ran into a washout on Little River bridge at Capelsie, Montgomery County. The body was discovered at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Recent heavy rains had washed part of the bridge and Efrid drove on to it without knowledge of the break.

Two other occupants of the car, Lacy Brake and Lloyd Franklin, both of Capelsie, were badly hurt by the fall and immersion in the water and are patients at the Yadkin Hospital here.

Efrid is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Efrid; his wife and two children, and two sisters.

PLAN TO INVITE MAIL MEN HERE

State Rural Letter Carriers Association To be Invited to Meet in Greenville

O. H. Jackson, of Winterville, member of the executive board of the Tar River Branch of the North Carolina Rural Letter Carriers Association, said today the state organization would be invited to meet in Greenville at the session to be held at Elizabeth City July 3 and 4.

W. C. Chauncey of Grifton, is the present president of the Tar River branch, and A. J. Craft of Walsenburg, will take the helm on July 1.

Mr. Jackson said that although it would be impossible to bring the state meeting here in less than two or three years, they would place Greenville's bid before the organization at the Elizabeth City meeting.

He called on all organizations of the city to cooperate with the Tar River branch in extending an invitation to the organization.

Several hundred letter carriers from all sections of North Carolina will be brought here if the invitation receives favorable action. Mr. Jackson said, and hope was expressed that all organizations interested in the matter would join the Tar River branch in making it possible.

LOCALS TRIM KINSTON TEAM IN 11 INNINGS

The Greenville club of the Coastal Plain League opened the season on its home grounds yesterday afternoon by trimming Bunn Hearn's Kinston team to the tune of 2 to 1 in an eleven inning encounter.

Two or three thousand people were on hand to see the two clubs clash for the first time of the season. In the crowd were several hundred Kinston fans who cheered madly as their doughty players played one of the finest games seen on the local diamond.

Kinston was rained out in the official opening of the league on her home grounds the day before and Greenville lost to Ayden in the curtain-raiser at Ayden.

It was a pinch-hitter named Huiscamp, batting for Mulhern, that set Greenville fans wild in the fatal eleventh. He singled and got around to third while two of his teammates got out and came home when Dameron hit a smashing single to the outfield. Two men were down when the winning runner reached home.

The contest resolved itself into one of those nip-and-tuck affairs at the outset, with each side straining for an advantage without being able to find it. Greenville drew first blood in the third when Taylor hit safely and later scored. Kinston retaliated in the fourth with a batting rally, but after that it was a game of seesaw until the eleventh when a couple of singles sent the visitors home with their first game chalked up as a loss.

Crouch did the hurling honors for Kinston and Taylor for Greenville until the beginning of the tenth inning when the latter was retired in favor of Lewis. Fans were treated to a real pitchers' duel and an errorless brand of ball.

Taylor allowed six hits in 9 2-3 innings and Crouch ten for the whole game. Dameron, second-sacker, led the way with the stick for Greenville, chalking up three safeties, one of which went for an extra base. "Bing" Miller took second place with two singles.

Biddle, stocky Kinston left-fielder, walked away with batting honors for his teammates, being credited with two hits, one of which went for three bases, the longest drive of the day.

In spite of the fact that he was forced to retire on account of becoming over-heated, Taylor staged one of the finest exhibitions of hurling ever seen here. The former Greenville high and Oak Ridge pitcher held the hard-hitting visitors well in hand as did his successor, Lewis, who also showed he had a trustworthy arm in pinches. Crouch won the praise of the crowd, and Kinston fans returned home with nothing but praise for him.

Mulhern, outfielder, and Bostic, shortstop, captured fielding honors for the local club by making several difficult chances good.

Today found Greenville playing at Kinston. Friday will find Ayden playing on the local lot, and every effort will be made by "Skipper" Harrington's crew to get revenge for the first licking of the season handed them by Ayden.

Dolomitic limestone has come into favor as filler material in the manufacture of agricultural fertilizer.

Dogwood trees, commonly valued only for their flowering blossoms are being marketed as timber by five sawmills in North Carolina.

and punch left in spite of the fact he has been active for upward of ten years in every division from fly-weight to welterweight.

Another angle in Jimmy's favor is that he has a habit of squaring accounts. He never was able to get even for three beatings handed him by Bud Taylor, but McLaurin turned the tables on Sammy Mandell, Ray Miller and Billy Petrolle in return bouts. McLaurin beat Petrolle twice in 1931 to make up for the shelacking Billy gave him in Madison Square Garden the year before.

On the other hand, it is just as likely that Rossy obviously on the upgrade, would give McLaurin a worse beating next time they met. The Irishman looked wilder than he really was in their 15-round thriller because Ross made him look bad. Barney's quickness on the defense and alertness in anticipation of what the clouting Celt was going to do helped take the sting from Jimmy's main weapons.

Hard To Convince
A return Ross-McLaurin bout undoubtedly would pack them in again, because of the existence now of a natural rivalry, as well as the doubts of those who had to a large extent idolized the Irishman and scurried around looking for excuses for him after his downfall.

It is logical to assume that McLaurin is on the downgrade now, but such is the popularity that our sporting champions or favorites attain that it takes more than one beating to convince their followers.

There are still thousands who do not believe Jack Dempsey was fairly and squarely beaten by Gene Tunney in their second fight at Chicago; that, in fact, Dempsey was entitled to a knockout victory in the seventh round and only deprived of such satisfaction by the development of a "long count" for Tunney.

All of which goes to show what personality and a punch will do for a young fellow trying to get along in the fight industry. These are the two factors that appeal most to the crowd. They survive longer in the popular imagination than all the fancy foot-work and boxing skill in the business.

Ros Had His 'Downs'
Sam Levy, the Milwaukee observer, recalls that Barney Ross was considered just a "punk kid" by his managers when the former Golden Gloves champion was trying to make the professional grade in 1929. Ross was a stablemat of Jackie Fields when the latter won the welter title at Detroit from Young Jack Thompson. Gig Rooney, then managing both Fields and Ross, cast the latter adrift.

Not long afterwards, Sam Pian and Art Winch, present managers of Ross, gave him a fresh chance, but they, too, decided to let him go after he lost a semi-final bout in the Chicago Stadium to Roger Bernard, of Flint, Michigan.

"I told those two mugs that if they wouldn't manage me I would retire," Ross told Levy recently, "but they told me to scram. I couldn't blame them. It was my own fault. I had won a few fights, had a few bucks in my pocket and friends started to slap me on the back and tell me I was a great fighter. It went to my head. I wouldn't train. That's why I looked so lousy against Bernard and lost."

ETHEL NICE, H. D. A.

FLOATING HOSPITAL ASKED BY SPANISH FISHING FLEET Madrid.—(AP)—The Ministry of Marine has been asked by the Society of Fishermen to send a hospital ship into Irish waters so that the 3,000 Spaniards fishing those waters each summer may have medical attention.

The petition states that each year there are numerous deaths from neglect among the crews of the 240 fishing boats which put out from Coruna, Gijon, Bilbao, Pasajes, and Santander.

The crews, knowing neither English nor Gaelic, cannot make themselves understood at Irish coast hospitals.

A ship manned by Spanish physicians, the petition says, assuredly would reduce the death toll.

Blisters

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER The night passed and morning came and no one in Puddle Muddle had gone to bed. Christopher Columbus Crow flew over to the next village to see how the people were getting along and came back with his feathers scorched and his eyes full of smoke.

"They're fighting the fire and making some headway," he reported, but even as he spoke it seemed as though the fire would surely spread to Puddle Muddle and thence to the woods.

"An old barn has burned to the ground," Christopher continued, "and they're throwing water on everything." But he did not say any more for he needed to continue his work on Willy Nilly's roof where he was putting out sparks after spark.

It seemed as though they could not go on any longer. They were all exhausted, their eyes smarted, and Willy Nilly's hands, Jelly Bear's paws, and the ducks' webbed feet were covered with blisters.

It looked as though the flames were under control in the village, but still the wind was blowing sparks over to Puddle Muddle. They were a sorry looking lot of creatures, with watering eyes, singed clothes, feathers and fur. At last, when they didn't believe they could work another instant, the wind died down, and only a few last sparks blew over and dropped down and went out of their own accord.

"Well each take turn in watching to see that nothing else happens," said Willy Nilly, "so that we can all get a little rest."

Tomorrow—"Where Is Rip?"

Where Is Rip? By MARY GRAHAM BONNER There was something the matter, for tired though they were they could not sleep. Suddenly Willy Nilly sat up from the ground where he had been resting.

"Where is Rip?" he cried. "Where is Rip, a quack quack" quacked the ducks.

"Where is Rip, growl, growl" growled Jelly Bear.

"Where is Rip, cackle, cackle" cackled Top Notch.

"Where is Rip, caw, caw" cawed Christopher Columbus Crow.

And the voice of each was full of terror and fright.

"How could we have gone on without missing him before?" moaned Willy Nilly. "What sort of creatures are we that we could forget about our dear, dear dog?"

"We were all so excited we didn't know what we were doing," said Top Notch. "But that's no excuse." They were worried beyond all words and they felt so miserably ashamed that they had forgotten, even in the excitement, about Rip.

"Didn't you see him anywhere?" they asked each other. "When was he last seen?"

They looked very sad indeed to be without Rip.

"Perhaps he went for a long, long walk and knows nothing about the fire," suggested Top Notch hopefully. But they feared this was almost too wonderful to be so.

"Didn't you see him when you were flying back and forth between the village and here?" they asked Christopher Columbus Crow.

"No, caw, caw," Christopher answered sadly. "But I'm going to look for him now."

Scoville Ends Work At Duke With All A's

The Greenville High School and the city of Greenville are very proud today because Warren Scoville, who graduated from the Greenville High School four years ago, yesterday graduated from Duke University with the extraordinary record of having made all "A's" since his entry to that institution.

Warren's name yesterday appeared on the Duke University commencement programs all by itself because he was the only member of the class of 1934 to make a record of all "A's."

This record which Warren made has never been surpassed at Duke University under their present marking system. In fact, the record has only been equaled a very few times in the history of the University. It is also noteworthy that Warren has worked his way through Duke University entirely. He has had no outside financial help. Warren has also been signally honored by having been awarded a fellowship at the University at Chicago for next year. This fellowship will pay his expenses at the University of Chicago for the coming year.

Wash Out 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes. Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. If kidneys don't empty 8 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS... a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. WOULD BENEFIT THIS SECTION

The Vinson bill for a forty per cent reduction in the federal tax on cigarettes will come up for action in Congress probably this week. This measure, as we see it, is of vital importance to this section and we urge that interested parties get in touch with Congressman Warren urging his support of the bill.

The forty per cent reduction in the cigarette tax means lower cigarette prices which will prove of distinct benefit to every cigarette smoker in the country at large and to be sure lower prices will boost consumption with the result that there will be a greater demand for cigarette tobacco and that is where the tobacco producing sections of the country will come in for their biggest share of the benefit.

There will no doubt be a hesitancy on the part of some Congressmen to want to vote for this reduction because it means reducing the government revenue at the present time, but it is generally conceded that it will take but a short time for the consumption to increase to the point that the revenues will be just as great as at present and certainly the benefits to the growers and the public in general will more than offset any temporary loss to the government. We sincerely hope that Congressman Warren and all other Representatives from this and other tobacco states will get behind the measure and see to it that it is put through before the present session comes to an end.

FARMVILLE HAS ITS SWIMMING POOL

Farmville yesterday formally celebrated the opening of its municipal swimming pool and the good folk of that city are to be congratulated that their pool is completed and is now rendering service to their community. Realizing that the public swimming pool was a necessity and a great asset to any community, the city of Farmville, when the CWA work on the pool was stopped, took the situation in hand and completed the pool for use this summer.

While Farmville was doing this Greenville has been struggling along with just a few workers for short periods at a time and the result here is that the summer is already here and we have a pool partially completed and of no service and value to the community until and when it is completed.

All the material for the project has been purchased and is now on the ground, and we are informed that if something in the neighborhood of $4,000 was available for final work the pool could be completed and in operation in a short time. Of course we would prefer that the government continue its work on the pool in order that the city would not have to make further expenditure but it now appears that if we wait on the public works program to complete the job we may not have a pool this summer. The children of this city are entitled to this facility for safe recreation and unless some action can be taken immediately to get the government to rush the project to completion the city would do well to follow Farmville's lead and complete the job itself.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE BY WALTER C. BROWN

SYNOPSIS: Sergeant Harper has proved that the stranger and the policeman found dead in Pierre Dufresne's house were murdered and did not shoot each other. But the motive of the crime, the identity of the stranger, and the means of escape used by the murderer still are a mystery. Harper has discovered however, the print of Dufresne's butler's thumb on one of a set of threatened letters received by Dufresne. Andrews, frightened, admits all knowledge of the letters.

Chapter 35 ANGEV

ANDREWS, gasps, "I do not know." "These must, I tell you, I knew nothing about it. Besides, I was at the Austerlitz last night. You know that."

"Sure, I know it. You've got an ironclad alibi. Quite true, but there was more than one in this plot. When I got to the Austerlitz, why were you so nervous, Andrews? I hadn't yet told my news, but you were already upset, jumpy. Why were you so agitated when I insisted on rousing your master? Why all this, if you knew nothing about what had happened?"

Once again the man exhibited all the signs of an intense inward struggle to repress an emotional strain. By sheer force of will Andrews pulled himself together. "I had strict orders not to disturb Mr. Dufresne on any account." He faltered on. "You see, sir, I knew he was intoxicated and didn't want a stranger to see him in that condition."

"You're lying, Andrews. There's something else. Mr. Dufresne was more than half drunk when I left him the first time." Sergeant Harper spoke out of the delirium of his conviction. The butler's words were plausible, yes, but there was that indefinable something in his tone that convinced the detective that Andrews was uneasy at mention of the Austerlitz-surprise visit.

"Furthermore," Harper continued, "some one spied on us while we were searching the cellar this morning. The result was the hiding of the gun that had been in Mr. Dufresne's room. Those are overt acts and some one is going to answer for them."

Andrews' eyes glistened as he squared his shoulders and faced the detective squarely. "If you think I am guilty, I'd prefer that you repeat those charges before Mr. Dufresne," he challenged.

"That's not a bad idea," Harper snapped, and strode over to the bell. Dufresne made a prompt appearance.

The detective repeated the account of his discovery and placed both letter and goblet before the dapper man, silent and attentive until Harper had finished.

Then Dufresne pushed the exhibit aside without a glance. "I'm not surprised that you've come to some such idiotic conclusion," he said. "There is no question as to Andrews' loyalty. I would as soon accuse myself." He put his hand on the old man's shoulder with a gesture of affection.

Harper's anger mounted, too. "This mutual loyalty is very touching but it still doesn't explain how Andrews' thumb print came to be on this letter. That certainly calls for an explanation."

Dufresne turned to his servant. "Have we any stationery like that in the house?" "No, sir. We've never used tinted papers of any kind."

"It's strange that every letter is a different color," Dufresne commented thoughtfully. "Stationery is not sold that way. It suggests sample specimens."

Andrews started up. "I remember now," he cried excitedly, "these are sample sheets. They were sent here by some printing concern soliciting business. Mrs. Whitmore turned them over to me a long time ago and I stuck them away in a desk. Last afternoon I cleared out the desk and threw them into the waste-basket. That's how my finger mark got on the sheet."

the detective stated, "to determine who did write the letters." The butler made a free gesture with his hand. "I have no objection, sir."

Harper handed him a blank piece of paper and a pencil with a soft lead. "Please print, not write, what I dictate."

Andrews nodded, whereupon Harper began to read the letter which bore the butler's imprint. He read leisurely, giving the man ample time to draw the letters. When it was over he placed a fresh piece of paper before Andrews. "Now," he said, "this time go as fast as you can." His dictation doubled in speed and his repeated admonitions of "Faster! Faster!" sent the butler's pencil scamparing.

Harper compared the two papers. "Please do not mention this test to any one in the house," the detective ordered. "Only the guilty person need fear the result."

A long look passed between the two men, a profound and searching look on both sides. "You may rely on my discretion, sir," said Andrews gravely as he turned to leave. As soon as the butler had gone Harper brought out the test papers again and compared them, not only with the original letter, but with each other. Andrews' specimens seemed to be quite genuine and to substantiate his denial of authorship.

THE sight of Mrs. Dufresne's ruined slippers, rescued from the rubbish by Lafferty's zeal, suggested an easy way of checking that lady's writing, with no one the wiser. Harper locked the door to the breakfast-room and betook himself to the cellar. Two square rubbish boxes stood under the stairs.

One contained crumpled paper bags, discarded advertising matter and waste paper of various sorts. Scattered here and there among these were slips from the pad Mrs. Dufresne used for writing out questions and answers since her surgical wrappings had enforced muteness.

There were about a dozen in all and Harper quickly gathered them, not stopping to read them there. He had snapped off his light and was about to ascend when he heard footsteps on the stairs and placid-faced John Whitmore appeared, carrying an armload of empty boxes.

"Whitmore," Harper began, "have you the time to do a little job for me?"

The handy man nodded eagerly, delighted to have a finger in this most superlative of thrillers.

The detective lowered his voice to the proper conspiratorial pitch. "I want you to go to all the rooms upstairs, empty the waste-baskets, and bring direct to me what you find in them."

"But I emptied them all first thing this morning," Whitmore whispered. Harper nodded. "I know you did, but do it again. That includes Mrs. Dufresne's room. Act very casual about it, so no one will suspect anything. Understand?"

"Oh, yes, sir," Whitmore responded with alacrity. "I'll go right away." Harper followed him upstairs and was walking through the dark-paneled hall when he saw that familiar figure in the huge fur coat making toward the front door. "May I have a word with you, Doctor?" he called, and Dr. Ulrich swung around.

"How is Mrs. Dufresne today?" Harper asked. "Doing well enough," Ulrich responded rather curtly.

"When will she be able to talk? I have some questions to ask her."

"She is not to talk for several days, at least. That is final. If your questions can't wait, I'll arrange an interview. She can write out the answers for you, but I insist on being present."

"Thanks, but I prefer to hear the answers from her own lips."

"Well, then, you'll have to wait," Ulrich snapped, his waxed moustaches bristling and his black eyes glaring behind the gold-rimmed glasses.

Harper watched his brusque departure from the vestibule, curious to know the reason for the big doctor's animosity. He returned to the breakfast-room and sat down to study the salvaged slips that bore Sylvia Dufresne's writing. There was absolutely nothing to be gleaned from the contents themselves, and the detective could see no points of similarity between Mrs. Dufresne's swiftly paced and essentially feminine style and the broad incisive strokes of the anonymous penman.

The longer he pored over the letters the firmer became his conviction that a man had written them.

There was something about the sequence of events that baffled penetration. (Copyright, 1934, by Walter C. Brown)

TVA Workers Speeding Work At Norris Dam

By PUGH MOORE
 Morris, Tenn.—(AP)—Under blistering sun and glaring floodlights, four shifts of men are working 22 hours a day in preparation for June 10—the date set for the first concrete-pouring at Norris dam.

The dam, with its $37,000,000 reservoir and power house, is the largest single construction project of the Tennessee Valley authority.

About 5,000 TVA employees and a like number of CCC boys are at work at the dam site and nearby. The gigantic project is expected to be completed by the last of 1935. Original calculations were that the job would be finished in four years, but good progress caused engineers to shave a year and a half off the estimated working time.

Each of the four shifts works five and a half hours daily and the remaining two hours out of each 24 are given to adjusting and oiling the ponderous machines.

Heard of Progress
 The scene is in noisy contrast to the countryside, only recently as quiet as a rural churchyard.

Throughout the day and most of the night the surrounding hills echo to the din of hammers, saws, dynamos, the roar of machines and shouts of overworked men.

Only 1,200 of the workers are employed in the actual construction of the dam, which will tower to the height of a 22-story building and impound 3,600,000 acre-feet of water that will form a lake with an 800-mile shore line. The number will be increased, however, with the installation of more machinery.

Laying Out Streets
 Meanwhile, 1,800 TVA workers are clearing trees and underbrush from land that will form the lake basin, and 2,000 others are laying out streets, installing waterworks and electric lights and building 250 homes for workers in the town of Norris. The CCC boys are assigned to reforestation and soil erosion work on land surrounding the reservoir area.

Besides its activities in the Norris district, the TVA is operating the Muscle Shoals generating plant on the Tennessee River at Florence, Ala., and is building the Joe Wheeler dam sixteen miles above Florence.

Through a contract with the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation and its subsidiary utilities, the Authority has obtained a market for all of the power generated at Muscle Shoals. At present one municipality, Tupelo, Miss., is using TVA current exclusively and eleven other towns have negotiated contracts with the Authority.

PRICE SEES MANY FACTORS DELAYING PARTY FIREWORKS

By BRYON PRICE
 (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

Those who like to watch first-class campaign fireworks may as well resign themselves to a long wait. None of the big bombs of the 1934 show will be exploded for weeks to come.

There is an old saying that no campaign really gets down to essentials until September or October. That is not always true; in 1932, for instance, the lines were pretty well drawn as early as June. This year, however, the delayed-fuse system promises to operate with a vengeance.

The scattered fire-crackers which have been going off recently will be found, on examination, to come almost exclusively from one party—the Republican—and largely from only one wing of that party.

Comparatively few Democrats are even admitting publicly there is a campaign, except where they have to take cognizance of it in early state primary elections.

Most Republican leaders are just silent. A few who openly talk politics belong mostly to the old-line regulars, who are eager to commit the party to an out-and-out opposition to the new deal. Their pleas are directed more toward other wings of their own party than toward the great body of voters generally.

Everybody Wary
 Two principal reasons stand back of the fact that both party headquarters are playing for time.

One reason is economic. The election is to be held in November, and in times like these, who can tell what business conditions will be by fall, or figure out the political thing to say to the voter about the depression?

The other reason is more purely political. After such a shattering of party lines as occurred in 1932, politicians are reluctant to make commitments or get aboard a bandwagon until they find out more about the parade route and the tune the band is going to play.

This reluctant accounts for the failure of the expiring session of Congress to develop more party issues. Everyone confined on its doing so, and more than one political observer stepped out with a prediction that by adjournment time, the course of the campaign would be pretty clearly outlined.

The tariff bill came nearer than any other to drawing exact party lines, but even on that issue the Republicans abandoned first plans to prolong the debate until they had put several volumes of campaign material into the record.

They'll Go Fishing
 Many politicians believe that live current features of the recovery program, rather than old issues like the tariff, will write the result in November. They point out that many things still are to be reckoned with, making detailed planning now almost impossible.

It will be week before NRA has gone through its present cycle of reconstruction, and public opinion has had a new opportunity to assess its value.

It will be late summer before Mr. Roosevelt makes his projected speaking trip across the West, and unfolds his conception of the coming phases of recovery.

It will be early fall before AAA knows the full effect of the drought on its crop curtailment plans for next year.

It will be almost election day before the extent of the seasonal fall upturn in business can be accurately measured, and estimates made of the relief measures which will be necessary during the winter.

And until some of these things, at least, are revealed, many experienced politicians propose to go fishing.

New York, June 7.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened fairly steady, two points higher to three points lower on steady Liverpool cables which were offset by realizing and foreign selling.

There was little scattered selling by the South as further profit taking and continued near-month liquidation, but initial offerings were fairly well taken by trade and commission house buying. The market was barely steady at the end of the first half hour with active month's ruling about two to three points lower. The market held steady later in the morning. October which sold off from 12.18 to 12.14 held around 12.22 at midday with active months showing advances of two to five points.

Futures closed steady, seven to nine points higher, spots higher, middling 12.20.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, June 7.—(AP)—Labor clouds continued to hover over the financial markets today and prices in the most category backed and filled in a high indecisive manner.

Firmer metal issues was the only feature of the extremely listless trading in stocks. The ticker tape idled through the greater part of the session and most issues were inclined to drift to lower levels.

The oils quieted down after the spurt of yesterday. Squillies found little assistance from grains. Wheat dropped more than a cent as further reports came from some of the drought-stricken crops districts.

The late trading was irregular. Transfers were 450,000 shares.

Will Not Accept Proposal.

London, June 7.—(AP)—Official quarters said today that the British government will not accept the disarmament proposal made by Louis Barthou, French foreign minister in Geneva. The government, said these sources, had instructed Captain Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, and British representative at the disarmament conference to attempt to get the French to agree to the British suggestion relative to arms levy made by Arthur Henderson, president of the conference.

It was stated that Britain will not be turned from her self-imposed role of umpire in the tangled disarmament controversy.

Displastic circles said they did not believe the French would yield much ground but both officials and diplomatic quarters professed belief that complete breakdown of the conference would be averted.

Washington Tense Over Strike

Washington, D. C., June 7.—(AP)—Uncertainty over the projected steel strike and its possible effect on adjournment of Congress made for a tensely in Washington today that was rivaled only by Senate silver dissension. Carrying out his announced intention, President Roosevelt at the strike of 12 o'clock signed the bill easing corporate bankruptcy procedure. In no time at all the House passed the measure that exempts farmers from having to pay usual taxes on 1,000 pounds of hogs which they slaughter themselves for sale; and before reaching three silver purchase proposal the Senate sent to the President for his approval a million dollar appropriation to combat cinch bugs in the corn belt.

It was Hugh Johnson's return from a conference with steel manufacturers in New York however, and his assistance they had not rejected legislation for avoiding the strike that caught notice.

Spokesmen for the steel unions had an engagement with Secretary Perkins with a reluctance on all sides what would eventuate between now and June 16—the schedule strike date.

Should no settlement be agreed upon before then, there will be a setback to present hopes for adjournment of Congress by the week end. A major consideration will be what will Congress do with the administration bill for a board to deal with capital and labor disputes.

Tomorrow the President will send to Capitol Hill his message on social legislation—such as unemployment insurance, old age pensions and also on utilization of all natural resources.

This will not see immediate action but rather is a talking point for the congressional campaigns in the fall and in the session beginning in January.

Saturday he is expected to submit his request for $525,000,000 for drought relief, concluding his legislation program for now.

ORDERS INDICTMENT OF FALSE SWEAER

Durham, N. C., June 7.—Judge J. R. Patton, Jr., in recorder's court this morning, ordered that an indictment be drawn up for perjury against Mrs. Myrtle Ennis, who yesterday swore out a warrant against Will Garret, 31-year-old garage mechanic, claiming that he enticed her to his hotel room and criminally assaulted her.

This morning Mrs. Ennis told the court that she was made to swear out the warrant in a frame-up plot by her stepmother, Mrs. Pauline Eubanks, who is Garret's sister-in-law. A capias was this morning issued for Mrs. Eubanks, charged with subordination to perjury, and her bond was set at $200. Mrs. Ennis' bond was set at $500.

The original case was not pressed, and trial for Mrs. Ennis and Mrs. Eubanks was set in recorder's court Thursday morning. Judge Patton said that it was high time that perjurers be indicted, since in this case the reputation of a highly respected man was at stake.
