TWO THOUSAND PERSONS DEAD AT SAN SALVADOR

Tornado and Rain Inflict Damage In Many Villages

MANY AREAS COMPLETELY WIPED OUT

Government Decreases That Prices of Food-stuff Must Remain The Same; Import Duties on Grains Abolished During Relief Period; Work of Burning Dead Carried on by Villagers

San Salvador, June 11.—(AP)—(By the Way of Pan-American Airways Wireless)—Relief workers today estimated 2,000 persons were dead in the vicinity of San Salvador alone following last week's disastrous tornado and rainstorm.

The San Salvador air corps yesterday sent up airplanes to survey the nation. They reported death and destruction everywhere.

E. C. Calloway, Pan-American Airways airport manager, went along as an observer and made an unofficial report of his findings.

He said the government planes dropped message to all communities where life was still observed asking them to report to the capital immediately as to the extent of the casualties and loss in each village.

He saw evidence that whole towns had been destroyed by landslides slipping down volcanoes as result of the rain.

In the Lampa River he saw the funnel of a river boat sticking out of the water and bodies floating around it.

The coast from La Libertad to La Union was worst hit and the village there virtually destroyed.

The president of the republic issued a decree that prices of food-stuff must remain the same as before the disaster.

He abolished import duties on wheat, rice and other cereals for the next three weeks in order that the people of La Salvador may be fed at as low cost as possible.

Electric power was restored over the week-end in Salvador. The capital city is receiving drinking water, although it is only issued two hours a day.

The work of burying the dead is being carried on as quickly as rescue workers can be carried into the stricken district.

Thus far only the locality around San Salvador can be reported with any exactness, but isolated villagers are handling their own work of covering up the ravages of the twenty-five inches in twenty-four hours rainfall of last Wednesday.

FRANCE AGAIN EXPERIENCES SEVERE RIOTS

Paris, June 11.—(AP)—A violent outbreak of another government anti-Fascist disorder swept the French provinces over the week-end. One hundred persons were injured.

Cavalry swinging carbine butts at Grenoble and Cambrai charged into many spectators and produced a score of cracked heads among Communists and Socialists.

The government used troops and gendarmes freely to restore quiet and warned it would not tolerate defiance.

Other anti-Fascist demonstrations were held at Genain and Zalenclines with clashes between crowds and the police. Even Paris had a small battle between Communists and Royalists news vendors.

More than one thousand Socialists and Communists barricaded themselves in the streets of Grenoble. At least fifty were injured as stones were hurled before police finally gained the upper hand.

BELL HELD IN ROBBERY CASE

Albert Bell, 20-year-old white man, who bound over to the next term of Superior Court in a preliminary hearing here today charged with breaking and entering the Lee poolroom on Evans Street Saturday night.

His bond was set at $1,000, but he was unable to raise it and was remanded to jail, police said.

Bell was nabbed, police said, as he was inside the poolroom attempting to extract money from a slot machine. He fled as police rushed into the building and broke a plate-glass window in his haste to escape.

Chief of Police George Clark said this morning the prisoner gave his home as in Pennsylvania, but on the basis of information compiled by the department, he was believed to be from Salisbury, Md.

Bell made his entrance to the building by breaking in a back window. The young man was given preliminary hearing in police court this morning.

LOUISBURG BUILDING IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

Louisburg, June 11.—The Burt building, located on Main Street next to Ross's five and ten-cent store, was seriously damaged by fire Sunday morning about 10:15. The fire caught upstairs in Dr. S. P. Burt's office, but the exact origin was unknown as the building was in a blaze when the fire was discovered.

The fire department gained control before the fire spread to the other buildings, but Perry's grocery store, located on the first floor of the Burt building, was damaged by water and smoke.

NEW TROUBLE FLARES UP IN MINE FIELDS

Negro Killed In Disorders Accompanied By Bombing In Alabama Strike Zone

Birmingham, Ala., June 11.—(AP)—Disorders in the Alabama industrial district today had claimed one life and caused the serious injury to another worker in a dynamiting and gun battle over the week-end.

Green Patton, negro employee at the Thomas furnaces of the Republic Steel Corporation, died in a hospital from injuries suffered when dynamite blew up the porch of a friend's home.

Patton and an unidentified negro, officers said, were attached aboard a street-car last night by five white men who pursued the negroes as they fled from the car, firing shots after them. The negro died from a fractured skull. His companion had not been located.

Tension throughout the district was evident today as unrest increased among 8,000 idle iron miners who have been a strike since May 4. The miners shut down when a strike was called by the International Union of Mine Smelters and Mill Workers after its demand for collective bargaining and a seven-hour day and wage increase from $1 to $2.84 per day for skilled and unskilled workers were not met.

LOANS HELP TO PITT GROWERS

Total of $222,400 Of Federal Land Bank and Farm Mortgage Money Paid Out.

A total of $222,400 of Federal Land Bank Commissioner's farm mortgage loans was made in Pitt County, North Carolina (State), from June 1, 1933, to May 1, 1934, according to the Farm Credit Administration.

Of this total, farmers in Pitt County used approximately $174,800, or 78.6 per cent to refinance their indebtedness. By refinancing, farmers obtained new mortgage loans which they used to repay their old debts. They generally reduced their annual interest charges in doing so.

In a number of cases, scale-downs of indebtedness occurred in connection with the new loans. These and other advantages benefited farmers uniformly. Secondly, creditors benefited from the receipt of cash or bonds in exchange for obligations they held.

Of the loan money used by farmers in Pitt County for refinancing their debts, about $72,300, it was estimated, repaid their debts to banks; $75,300, their indebtedness to insurance companies; $17,400, their taxes; $2,000, their debts to merchants; $66,900, their debts to "others," or creditors not separately classified, including private mortgage lenders, mortgage loan companies, retired farmers and many others to whom farmers were in debt.

A total of about $47,600 of loans in the county was used for purposes other than the refinancing of borrowers' debts. Of this sum, $40,900 was used for the purchase of land and equipment, the construction of improvement of buildings, and for general agricultural uses, including the provisions of capital, while $6,700, the balance, was used for the purchase of stock in national farm loan associations, for loan fees, etc.

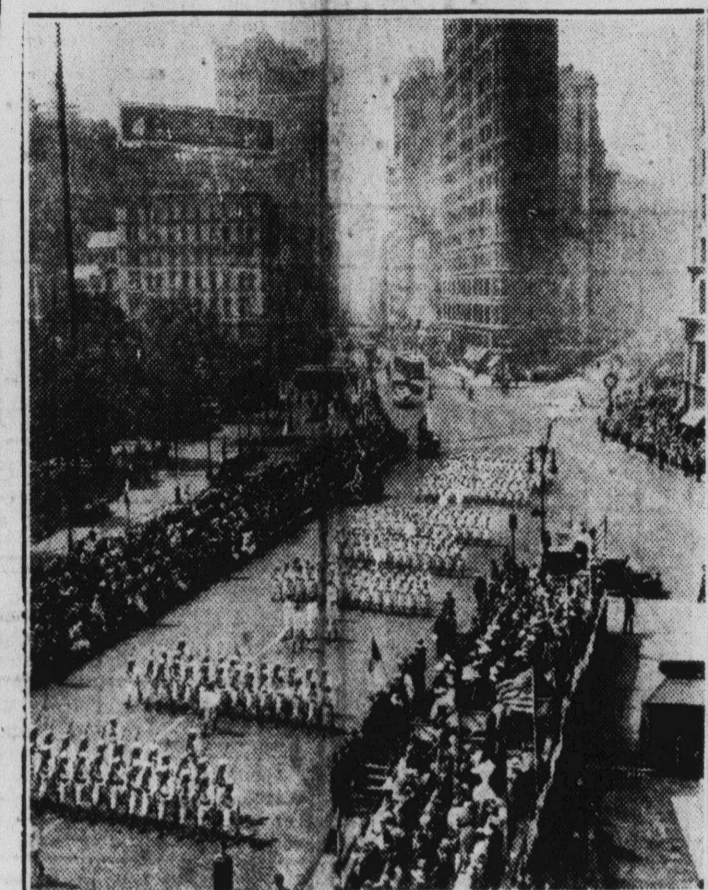

Throughout the United States approximately $675,000,000 of land bank and commissioner's loans were made from June 1, 1933, to May 1, 1934. Most of these loans were made to refinance debts resulting from the long period of the low farm income.

Generally farmers pay considerably less interest each year on the new than on the old loans. Land bank loans made through national farm loan associations carry an interest rate of 5 per cent, but there is a reduction of 4 1-2 per cent until July, 1938. Loans made direct by banks carry a rate of 5 1-2 per cent, but there is a reduction to 5 per cent until 1938. NRA TO STAGE CELEBRATION

First Birthday To Be Observed At Jubilee In Washington Next Saturday

Washington, D. C., June 11.—(AP)—NRA (that amazing offspring of hard times, attains its first birthday next Saturday.

Born in economic gloom, mothered by enthusiasm, the infant has drawn the attention of the whole world. Observers everywhere are trying to assess its accomplishments, its future.

As Hugh Johnson has predicted, NRA in these latter days has stood amid a tower of bouquets and dead cats.

But as Johnson bids his fellow NRA workers and officials to a jubilee next Friday night the hard hitting general is confident.

Brushing aside the shafts of critics, some of whom say the vast undertaking is cracking up, NRA finds consolation in the fact that it has laid the ground-work of organization.

Since President Roosevelt put his signature to the industrial recovery act, June 16, 1933, it has affected more millions of people than any new deal legislation except laws dealing with money and banks.

Final victory is now claimed for the daring experiment.

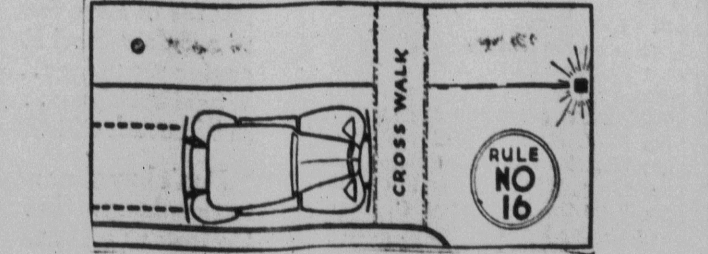

NRA proudly declares it has gone a long way toward its goal of government-business partnership.

BADLY INJURED MAN SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Vass, N. C., June 11.—Reports from the Moore County Hospital, where Atlas Eastwood, young Lakeview man lies battling with a triple fracture of the skull, a fractured collar-bone, a broken nose and an arm broken in two places, are to the effect that he is gaining ground, and is conscious a part of the time.

Young Eastwood received his injuries when his automobile turned over on Highway No. 1 two miles south of Lakeview about 10 days ago.

Seven of the dead were passengers and crew of the big Newark-to-Chicago air liner which crashed at Mogau Park, Sullivan county, in the Catskills of New York.

Searchers in the tropical island of Trinidad found the wrecked plane of Michael Ciprani and Leslie Bradshaw on Mt. Rucuche. They had been missing a week after taking off at Tobago Island.

Even a searchers located the wrecked air liner in New York State at the other end of the American continent, Pan-American-Grace Airways liner crashed into a small lake in Argentina, killing three. The Argentina plane was piloted by Charles Lindenberg of Los Angeles, Calif.

Meanwhile Colonel Charles Lindbergh tried out the proud new giant S-42 flying boat at Pan-American Airways, Inc., at Bridgeport, Conn. It is intended to fly the South American route faster than any commercial ship ever before has traveled.

SAYS BALLOT WOULD COST PITT TOO MUCH

Edwards Not Yet Decided Whether he Will Call For Run-Off Primary For House of Representatives; Little Prospect of Battle From Three Constables Able to Call For Second Balloting

Vance Perkins, who announced several days ago he would enter a second primary against A. T. Moore for the post of County Treasurer, made it known this morning he had decided not to do so.

Mr. Perkins said one of the main reasons for his decision not to call for a run-off vote was the expense which the county would incur in the holding of a second primary.

He ran second to the present incumbent in a six-cornered race and announced immediately afterward that he would call for a second primary, but later decided against it.

With the announcement of the prospect of a second ballot, went a-glimmering unless Jack Edwards, who ran second to John Hill Paylor in the four-cornered race for the House of Representatives, decided to call a run-off vote.

Edwards said the first of last week he had not made up his mind to enter a second battle, but the latter part of the week he seemed more in favor of it after conferring with constituents in many sections of the county.

He was still undecided today but said he would reach a definite decision sometime today. The filing time for candidates desiring to call for a second vote expires today, and Edwards will have to make up his mind before midnight.

The same is true in the field of constable where it is possible for contestants to call in three townships. However, it was not believed today any contest would come from these directions in view of the fact that Perkins has dropped out of the picture and with Edwards still undecided.

The remainder of the large field of candidates entered in the first primary in this county were elected without the possibility of being called into a second primary. Some of them were renominated without opposition and their names as a consequence did not appear on the ballot.

FIRST LADY VISITS STATE

Mrs. Roosevelt Stress-Need of Honesty In Brief Stay In Capital City

Raleigh, N. C., June 11.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, told newspaper men and women here today that "honesty is the most needed thing to put the New Deal across in a big way."

Mrs. Roosevelt was here as guest of Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph Daniels, and made a short address in Memorial Auditorium before leaving for Durham where tonight she will be the speaker before the Institute of International Relations at Duke University.

Replying to every question that was asked at the short press conference, the wife of the President declined to talk politics.

"Honesty of every kind is most needed in everything that is to be successful."

"There must be intellectual honesty in which a person will think things all the way through and not just half way. One of our troubles today is that persons think just half way through a thing."

Parents who desire to send their children to the Daily Vacation Bible School which begins next Monday, are urged to have the children register at the Third Street School next Friday morning. Of course children may enter the school at any time during the following week but by registering Friday the work of those in charge of the school will be aided greatly in the matter of assigning children to the various classes ahead of the opening of the school Monday. This Vacation Bible school is sponsored jointly by the local churches and the city schools will no doubt mean much to our city and citizens are urged to donate liberally to the financial support of this project.

MORE EQUAL REPRESENTATION

The Pitt County Democratic Convention in session here this morning adopted resolutions for appointment of a special committee to divide the county into districts for the purpose of electing County Commissioners and to present the matter before the representatives from this county in the next General Assembly to secure the proper changes in the present laws to permit this districting. The movement, we believe, is for the betterment of the entire county and we are sure that today's favorable action by the convention will meet with hearty approval. Under the present system of electing our commissioners it is possible to elect two or more commissioners from one section of the county, while other sections will go unrepresented on the board. Just this happened in the recent primary, and as a result the entire section of the county north of Tar river will be without a representative on the board for the next two years. This situation no doubt prompted action at this time to have the county divided into districts and we are sure that it will be done by the next legislature.

Queen Elizabeth Tried Monopolies

By FRANK I. WELLER
Washington. — (AP) — Elizabeth, the only child of Henry VII and Anne Boleyn, ruled more than three centuries before General Johnson and Clarence Darrow went to the mat over NRA "price-fixing," but she had something to do with the basis of their row.
It seems the great queen of England developed quite a flair along about 1570 for rewarding certain craftsmen and artisans with the exclusive right to manufacture and sell their wares.
Elizabeth was on something of a spot, what with political, religious and economic woes. It was no small

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER C. BROWN

SYNOPSIS: Although he is still unable to identify the stranger who, with a policeman, was killed in Mrs. Dufresne's house, he at least has some "leads." One is that at the time Ellen Becker, a servant, left the Dufresne employ Mr. and Mrs. Dufresne had a quarrel. Another is that there was something strange about Ellen's leaving, and a third is that Donaghy, the chauffeur, has recently been seen with a large amount of money in his pocket.

Chapter 41

PUZZLING AMBUSH

DONAGHY suddenly recaptured his jaunty manner. "Certainly I've got a big roll of bills, a regular man's size stake."

"What of it? There wasn't any money missing, was there? I didn't win it on the horses. That's just a yarn I pitched to nosy John. To makes his eyes pop. This is money I've saved up from my wages and I'm not trusting it to any bank. Now, if you want to count it, or write down the numbers, or look for fingerprints on it, it's all right with me."

Harper waved aside the mockingbird offered wallet. "So you carry your hard-earned savings around with you, yet you borrow small sums of money from your fellow servants to ride you over to the next payday? I must say I like the horse story better, Donaghy!"

This time the chauffeur's temper blew up. "I don't give a damn what you like or don't like," he sputtered. "It's my business. If you think you've got anything on me, go ahead and make the pinch. You can bluff me and you're not going to hang anything on me, either, by hanging around the kitchen and wheedling gossip out of the help."

"Put the screws to the servants, make 'em jump through hoops when you crack the whip. Ask anything, we've got to answer. But I haven't heard you making any noises like that upstairs. Try badgering them and see what you get!"

Donaghy went on, unheeding, "There are lots of things you don't know about, Mr. Sergeant of Detectives, for all your snooping. I'll give you a couple of hot tips and dare you to do something about it."

"You can't question Mrs. Dufresne because her face is all wrapped up in bandages. Question her, hell, you can't even get into the room. Well, she can talk, because I heard her talking to the doctor, and talking plenty."

"Here's another! Mr. Dufresne hasn't been near her since she came back to this house last night. Is he staying out, or is he being kept out? If you can spare a little time from the butler, the chauffeur, and the cook you might look into a few things like that, going on right under your nose."

Harper got down from the table. "Donaghy, I'm running this case in my own way. Right now we're discussing your part and I'm going to tell you what I think, in plain words. It's for your own good."

"I am convinced you hold the key evidence in this case, because you know who that dead man was and why he came here. If you have accepted a bribe for your silence, or leveled blackmail on the strength of that knowledge, I warn you that you're playing with dynamite."

"Both those murders were treacherous, cold-blooded affairs. There may have been a strong reason behind the first killing but Officer Hamill was murdered for one reason, and only one—he knew the killer's identity. Any one who will kill, and kill again to cover the first crime, can keep right on killing so long as there is danger of discovery."

THE dark blue limousine, with the blue and gold seal of the city blazoned on the door slipped swiftly past the snow banks that lined the country road.

Harper and Lafferty had gone over the scene of Dufresne's ambush of the day before with extreme care and with the help of Officer Watson, to whom Dufresne had first reported the affair. And they had found exactly nothing whatever.

"No cars had been seen, no trains had passed that could have served the hidden gunman, and all traces of his hiding place had been hidden, if they existed at all, by the snow."

"It looks as if we're up against an invisible man," Lafferty remarked.

"Make it plural," returned Harper with a sharp look. "The snip-er vanishes in a few minutes in the midst of a bare, flat country. But he must have been back in the city almost as soon as Dufresne, who drove like mad."

"And then a still smarter man murdered the sniper, and escaped from Dufresne's house without leaving a track in the snow. Either it's magic, or someone's been dragging red herrings across the snow."

"You mean some of our clues have been planted?"

"Exactly. By the way, you haven't told me how you made out at Mrs. Morlock's."

"Well, Mrs. Dufresne's alibi is just as strong as her unsupported word. Here is the situation, Steve. Dufresne called up his wife about 4:30 and told her about the ambush. He said he was safe, was staying in the Austerlitz for the night, and that there was a police guard."

"She seemed greatly upset by the news, complained of a nervous headache, begged of attendance at Mrs. Morlock's dinner party and immediately retired to her room."

"About five o'clock the maid left a tray outside her door. When she passed a little later it had been taken in. The point is that no one actually saw Mrs. Dufresne from five o'clock until the maid went up to announce that Doyle was asking to see her."

"Dinner was served at seven and while they were dining one of the chauffeurs gave the alarm about the fire in the garage. The telephone wires were strung at the back of the garage and the phones went dead right after they'd called the Fire Department. Naturally, the whole house was in an uproar, but what Mrs. Dufresne did no one in the house seems to know."

"THAT wouldn't take any prize as an alibi, would it?" Harper asked quietly. "I always thought that when a murder was planned the murderer usually turned up armed with the best alibi—not the worst. It's almost a law of criminal nature. Now who, would you say, had the very best alibi in this case?"

Lafferty groaned. "Sherlock Holmes is in again."

Harper continued with a sly smile, as though he had been answered. "You're quite right, Steve. Dufresne and Andrews. And what portions of our evidence have been most troublesome to place?"

"Personally," Lafferty said, "I could get along better if I knew nothing of the case that dated prior to sundown yesterday. That fellow buying the disguise months ago, the crank letters, the ambush, those damned things make everything dizzier."

"Right again, Jack. And why? Because those three events should be links in a sequence, the logical outcome of which would have been Dufresne's death! That's why I've felt so uneasy about the letters—something tells me they were not written by our dead man."

Lafferty nodded. "I see. The letters furnished Dufresne with his alibi. If the letters are 'phony,' then the alibi—I get your drift. Where's our next stop, the Austerlitz?"

"Not yet. First we have to pay a little social call on the mysterious housemaid, Ellen Becker." Harper took a slip of paper from his vest pocket. "Ellen lives at 1221 West Magnolia Street. I don't think we're expected and I doubt if we'll be welcome."

"Harris found her in a little over an hour," he told Lafferty. "That youngster will make his mark. He's got a nose for the scent as sharp as a beagle's."

"Do you expect her to cut and run?"

"If she knows something, that's very likely. I'll be interested to see her reaction when she finds out who we are."

The police car threaded its way through the city lanes until the driver pulled up at the opening of a narrow street. "Here you are, Sergeant," he announced. The detectives got out and Harris emerged at once from a tobacco shop on the corner and joined them.

"Any sign of activity?" Harper asked.

"I think so," Harris reported. "Miss Becker has been called to the phone in that store twice. There's a booth, so I couldn't hear what she said, but she looked excited."

"Good enough. Wait here for us," Harper directed, and he and Lafferty turned into the narrow street, solidly lined with neat, but small, two-story houses. They mounted the low steps at 1221 and pulled the old-fashioned bell.

They had a wait before the door opened about a foot and a middle-aged woman with iron-gray hair looked out at them suspiciously.

Harper greeted her politely. "We would like to see Miss Ellen Becker."

"She's not at home," the woman answered brusquely.

The mysterious Ellen Becker is put on the "spot," tomorrow.

Trust-Busting

The Federal government stepped into the picture in 1890 with the Sherman anti-trust law which sought to guarantee free operation of competition.

History still ranges with "trust-busting" days of Theodore Roosevelt's administration. In 1914 the Clayton act both modified the enlarged regulations sought by the Sherman law, and the Federal Trade Commission was set up to investigate and report upon organizations and corporations alleged to be infringing on the anti-trust laws.

NEW PRICES CHANGE THE PICTURE

If you read the papers last week you probably saw that Plymouth had substantially reduced its prices. Unless you are in the automobile business you probably don't realize just what this means.

It means the prices of "all three" are now so close you can well afford to dismiss that factor from your mind. What you should think about today is WHAT YOU GET FOR YOUR MONEY.

For instance, take this question of SAFETY. Surely nothing is more important than the protection of your family.

When you put your foot on the brakes you want your car to stop RIGHT IN ITS TRACKS.

When emergencies happen you don't want to depend on ordinary brakes that often make your car skid and swerve dangerously.

With Hydraulic Brakes you can jam the pedal down to the floor and STOP DEAD. The marks on the pavement will track straight ahead.

Even if Plymouth COST MORE it would be worth it . . . just for this one feature alone. But add to this the security of a Safety-Steel Body . . . the comfort of Floating Power engine mountings . . . the smoother ride of Individual Front Wheel Springing . . . and remember you get these features in Plymouth without spending one extra red cent.

Don't buy your next car through habit. Don't be blind to the changes that have taken place in the low price field. Go look at a Plymouth today . . . at any Dodge, DeSoto or Chrysler dealer. Buy no car until you do.

By TOM O'NEIL The Safety Way

If the opening lead against a slam contract shows the possibility of a loss of two tricks immediately, the able declarer will look for safety possibilities rather than finesse.

From a hand played at Freeport, N. Y., by Miss Dolly Crowley, here are the dummy (North) and the declarer's cards:

NORTH: S-A Q 4 2. H-K 5. D-6 3. C-K Q 8 6 2. SOUTH: S-J 3. H-Q 4. D-A K J 9 5 4 2. C-A 5.

South was in a contract of six diamonds, doubled by East. A spade was opened by West.

What would you do? If the spade is let run around to South's jack, and the jack wins, there will be no trouble with the hand. If the clubs held by the adversaries are divided three-and-three the contract can be made easily with an overtrick by playing the ace of spades on the first trick.

But supposing the clubs are not divided evenly. It seems certain that the ace of hearts and king of spades are in the East hand and the spade finesse will give East two tricks (with the ace of hearts).

East's double indicates also his belief that he has the clubs stopped.

The club suit can be set up by a ruff after the ace and king are played, but lack of entries North will prevent clubs being run for discards.

The declarer resorted to the squeeze on assumptions from the double. The first trick was taken with the spade ace, the ace of clubs was played and then all the diamonds were run. Miss Crowley took both the ace of hearts and the king of spades and at the same time stop the clubs.

Here are the complete hands:

Diagram showing card distributions for NORTH, WEST, EAST, and SOUTH.

This was the situation after all of the diamonds but one had been played from the South hand:

NORTH: S-Q. H-None. D-None. C-K Q 8 6. WEST: Immaterial. EAST: S-K. H-A. D-None. C-J 10 4. SOUTH: S-J. H-Q 4. D-4. C-5.

On the lead of the diamond four, the spade queen was discarded North and whatever East did was wrong. In desperation to let go the spade king and then South's spade jack squeezed him again. In hope that South did not have a club East let get a small club and the last three tricks were taken with North's clubs.

Here are the essentials of a one-way squeeze: opposite the squeeze suit (diamonds) is a suit containing a card of entry and low cards that may turn out to be winners (clubs). Over the hand being squeezed is a one-card menace a card that may be promoted to the winning rank by the squeezed player's discards (the spade jack and the heart queen).

A heart opening by West will hold the declarer to a little slam, made made by a squeeze. After drawing trumps the declarer will take a heart trick, a spade trick with the ace, a club trick with the ace, and then run the diamonds. East will be unable to keep the spade king and protect clubs.

Bid Or Lose a Husband. Mrs. Josephine Culbertson evidently has averted a divorce in a San Francisco family. She was so much concerned that she telegraphed an answer to the following letter:

"Will you please answer my questions. By so doing you may prevent a divorce. My husband dealt and passed, second hand bid one diamond, I passed, third hand passed and my husband doubled. Second hand passed. My best suit was four hearts to the nine-spot. The highest cards in the other suits were sixes and sevens. I passed. Should I have sufficient strength to bid in the first place, should he have doubted? I have told you the exact truth. Unless one of us admits error the situation may end in divorce."

Mrs. Culbertson's telegram advised her correspondent to tell her by she was wrong and be happy.

Swansboro, N. C., was named for beautiful white swans found by an English sea captain, Daniel Bates, who explored that section and settled there in 1713.

Cooking Suggestions. The lemon of average size yields about three tablespoons of juice. To obtain the most juice from a lemon, roll it well, pressing with the fingers. The young host received a number of useful and attractive gifts.

Honey Bear. By MARY GRAHAM BONNER. The Puddle Muddlers all had a most refreshing sleep and one they badly needed. When they awoke they felt rested once more.

"It was a lucky thing the wind died down when it did," said Willy Nilly, "for things are so dry after the long time we have had without rain."

"Let's have a party for Rip," quacked Mrs. Quacko Duck. "We need some fun after all we've been through."

Willy Nilly knew that there was more work for him to do than ever, but certainly now was not the time to do it—not when a party was being suggested in Rip's honor.

"Why not have the party at the pond?" quacked Mr. Quacko Duck. "It will be so nice and cool there. We've had enough of fire and heat."

"That's so," they all quacked and crowded and barked and growled in agreement.

"What about Honey Bear?" suggested Rip.

"She's probably quite happy in the cave with the cubs or she would have come out," said Willy Nilly. "I'll leave a message on the door in bear footprint sign language that we're at the pond. She'll understand."

So they all trooped off.

Honey Bear had been having a wonderful sleep, and so had the cubs, but later in the day she was sure she noticed a strange smell of burning once more.

"We can't be having another fire," she thought. But the smell disturbed her and she awoke again.

Tomorrow—"Help! Help!"

Washington Daybook advertisement.

By HERBERT PLUMMER. Washington, D. C.—Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, was denied representation on the stock market control bill conference committee, but his absence scarcely could be noted.

The agreement finally reached by the conferees proved what many believed all along—that the ideas of the Virginia Senator would prevail in the end.

It has been a long time since an individual member of Congress achieved such a personal victory as did Glass in this instance. And it must be set down as just that—a personal victory for Glass.

The most powerful forces of the administration were aligned against him. Perhaps anyone except a man of his temperament would have capitulated long ago. He didn't, and by not doing so he forced reassertion of the long-believed fact that in this field of legislation, Glass still must be reckoned with.

Glass Fought Issue. Glass was determined that a separate commission should administer the stock market control act. He insisted that the Federal Trade Commission was too busy with its other duties to supervise properly such an important job as this one.

He fought the issue successfully through the banking and currency committee and persuaded the Senate itself to accept his idea.

The President was opposed to his plan and publicly stated that he thought the Federal Trade Commission was the proper administrative agency.

Although the ranking Democrat on the banking and currency committee, Glass was left off the list of Senate conferees charged with the duty of adjusting differences in the proposed legislation with the House.

He charged that he was deliberately snubbed, and threatened to resign his position on the committee.

Not Through Yet. He made the atmosphere on Capitol Hill sizzle as the bill went to conference. The three Senate conferees—Fletcher, Byrnes and Barkley—not only were aware of the fact that Glass had stirred up a hornet's nest, but also knew only too well he would go even further if they yielded completely to the President's wishes.

They held firm—bolstered both by respect and fear of the Virginians—until the House conferees, the so-called "young brain trusters" and even the President himself gave way. Nor is Glass through yet. His victory won't be complete until the personnel of the administrative agency is named. And if those appointed to administer the bill are not to Glass' liking, there'll be more storm warnings hoisted on Capitol Hill by the Virginia Senator.

CARD OF THANKS. I am truly grateful for the many courtesies shown me during my recent campaign for the State Legislature. I certainly hope I am a good loser and therefore not a disappointment to my many friends and supporters.

'BUGS' DOWN SNOW HILL IN STICK SPREE

After losing a heart-breaker to Ayden the day before, Greenville "Tobacco Bugs" of the Coastal Plain League went over to Snow Hill Saturday afternoon and trimmed the Greene County lads to the tune of 9 to 4.

Unlatching one of the most terrific batting attacks of the season, the locals rapped Sively, Snow Hill hurler, for 17 safeties while Davis, crack "Bug" moundsman, was letting his opponents down with nine bingles.

"Lou" Brown and Wagner led the way with the stick for Greenville, each getting credited with four bingles out of four trips to the rubber. One of Wagner's blows went for three bases and another for a double. Brown was credited with two doubles, the remainder going for single bases.

Completely reversing themselves from the day before, the "Bugs" shelled the Snow Hill pitcher in the first, third and seventh and eighth innings for enough tallies to put the old game in the ice-box. The big inning was the seventh when five runners were shoved over the rubber to seal the fate of the Greene County boys.

Snow Hill scored in the first, second, seventh and ninth, but in no single frame were they able to get more than a single tally over the pan.

Bostic, Dameron and Farley also played a conspicuous part in the Greenville victory, each being credited with two safe blows. Roye, Snow Hill catcher, walked away with honors for the home town boys, obtaining three safeties out of four trips to the rubber.

Because of the terrific bat bombardment two hours were required to play the game, probably the longest drawn-out nine inning affair of the season.

Here's the box-score as prepared by Bert Moye, the official score keeper:

By R. O. MOYE, Official Score Keeper

Second place goes to Ty Wagner, catcher, who has been to the bat for a total of 18 times, securing seven safeties, for a percentage of .388. The entire average of the team is .285 per cent.

LOAN HELP TO PITT GROWERS

(Continued from page one) Commissioner's loans were made in cash. Commencing on that date they were made mainly in the government-guaranteed bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation. These bonds are exempt from all Federal, State, municipal and local taxation, except surtaxes, estate, inheritance and gift taxes. They are guaranteed fully as to principal and interest by the United States Government. In a relatively short period after they were issued, they sold above par and had met a favorable reception from farmers and their creditors all over the United States. With the use of these bonds, the refinancing program is going forward rapidly.

New York Cotton

New York, June 11.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, 6 to 9 advance on higher Liverpool cables and on unfavorable view of the weather.

There was an active Wall Street and commission house demand combined with further trade buying and prices worked up to 12.40 during the early morning trading with active months generally showing advances of 8 to 10 points.

The market was within two or three points of the best at the end of the first half hour.

The demand tapered off and the market at midday was quiet with active months showing reactions of five to six points from the best and ruling about two to four points net higher.

Futures closed fairly steady, seven to nine points lower; middling 12.15.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, June 11.—(AP)—Stock market enthusiasm seemed to have waned somewhat today and prices as a whole showed little inclination to resume the forward push inaugurated the past week-end.

Although stock news was not as gloomy as it had been and business and industry seemed to be holding their own in the face of seasonal depressants, there was no strong buying urge evident. Scattered equities showed a firming tendency, but there was also a few soft spots in the list. Trading volume the greater part of the session was about half of that last Friday. Grains came back for an advance of fractions to around a cent a bushel despite more rain in the dry crops area.

Following the selling at the opening the list backed and filled with declines of reactions of about a point predominant in the late dealings. Transfers were 800,000 shares.

Late News Flashes

(Continued from page one) Seek Final Vote On Silver Washington, D. C., June 11.—(AP)—As the Senate sought a final vote on the House approved bill to make silver 25 per cent of the nation's metallic monetary stock, the House expected to act to obtain a report on the legislation to guarantee deposits in full up to $5,000 today. The present limit is $2,500.

Reconsideration of the House Banking Committee on the administration housing bill—intended to facilitate construction and modernization of homes through government guarantee of part of the cost—was sought by Harry Hopkins, who will have charge of the program.

The committee had struck out part of the bill authorizing the establishment of new privately-owned national mortgage companies. This legislation is one of the principal hurdles to be surmounted before adjournment—expected by some next Saturday.

Senator King, of Utah, told the Senate the silver legislation was only a forerunner of other steps in pursuance of President Roosevelt's "manifest desire to give silver an important place in the currency."

FOUR TO BE TRIED FOR MOZINGO MURDER

Kinston, N. C., June 11.—Four men will be tried here during the week of June 25 for the murder of Benny Mozingo, alleged bootlegger, late December. He was shot from ambush. The killing occurred in Lenoir County, near the Wayne County line. The defendants are Fred Wade charged with the actual killing, Eddie Mozingo, double first cousin of Bennie, and Tom and Leon Williams. Authorities believe the slaying was the result of a bootlegger's quarrel. Young Wade is alleged to have confessed, saying he was hired to shoot Mozingo.
