SECOND PRIMARY FOR PITT COUNTY IS ASSURED

Two Bank Bandits Are Captured In Duplin

Held For Robbery Of Magnolia Bank On Last Saturday

SURPRISED IN WOODS NOT FAR FROM WARSAW

Arthur Petit, convicted of former robbery of same bank and unidentified escaped convict, surrender without fight; heavily armed; other bandits believed hiding in woods

Warrens, N. C., June 12.—(AP)—Arthur W. Petit, young man who was convicted for the first robbery of the bank of Magnolia two and a half years ago, and an unidentified escaped convict, were arrested by Sheriff D. S. Williamson and two deputies near Beaufort, Duplin county, early this morning and charged with robbery of the institution last Saturday morning. The men were heavily armed and had several hundred dollars in their possession when surprised by the sheriff and Deputies Powell and Dail in the woods. They sought to draw their guns on the sheriff and his men when they were awakened, but both were seized and surrendered without fight. They were brought to Kenansville but hadn't been questioned early today. The men, believed to have been hiding in the woods since they escaped several volleys of rifle and gun-fire following the Magnolia hold-up were driven by hunger to a small country store operated by a man named Smith yesterday afternoon. He recognized Petit and communicated with Sheriff Williamson. Officers believe several other men took part in the hold-up and may also be hiding in the eastern part of Duplin County.

Tugwell Given Committee Okay

Washington, D. C., June 12.—(AP)—The Senate Agricultural Committee today approved Rexford G. Tugwell as Under-Secretary of Agriculture by a decisive margin. The first Senator to leave the executive session of the committee said he believed the vote was 16 to 2 with Chairman Smith of South Carolina, and Senator Hatfield, of Virginia, voting against Tugwell. The committee during a four-hour session yesterday received objections to Tugwell's advancement to Assistant Secretary. He was opposed by Smith and others. His supporters predicted the Senate would quickly confirm him.

WOMAN KILLED WHEN SHE LEAPS FROM AUTO

Tin City, June 12.—Mrs. Grace Winner, 25, was killed near here this morning when she jumped out of an automobile in which she was being taken to Duplin County jail at Kenansville by two deputy sheriffs following arrest on charge of violating the State prohibition law. Deputy Sheriff J. B. Wallace said her home here was raided last night and her husband, R. J. Winner, taken after three gallons of liquor were found. Deputies G. Powell and Curtis Dale went to the place this morning and arrested the woman. Deputy Wallace said she was also charged with maintaining a nuisance. They started to return to Kenansville, both riding in the front seat with their prisoner in the rear of the vehicle, according to Deputy Wallace, when the party was a quarter of a mile from Tin City on State Route 40, she opened the rear door and jumped out. Death is thought to have been instantaneous.

STRIKE THREAT BECOMES MORE SERIOUS NOW

(By The Associated Press) Threats of a nation-wide steel strike had solidified today into a concrete movement for walkout of the unions contingent upon the nation's quarter of a million metal workers. Demanding recognition, the right to bargain collectively, officials of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers completed plans for meeting Thursday at which formal strike call is expected to be issued unless industry capitulates. "We are asking only one thing, recognition," said Michael Tighe, president of the association.

The industrialists were reported as opposed to union recognition on the grounds that it involved abrogation of the open shop principle, but agreed to the government proposal for a three-man arbitration board. The suggested mediation body was rejected by union leaders and President Roosevelt was said to have taken under consideration other possible methods of adjudication.

SILVER PLAN GIVEN 'OKAY'

Measure Expected to Become Law of the Land in Short Order Now

Washington, D. C., June 12.—(AP)—The administration silver purchase plan is expected to become the law of the land in short order.

The Senate approved it 55 to 25 late yesterday without accepting a single amendment proposed by the administration. Among those rejected was a rider calling for immediate cash payment of the bonus.

It calls for a policy of increasing the use of silver in monetary stocks until it reaches a ratio of 25 to 75 for gold. Advocates say it will require the Treasury to buy 1,400,000,000 ounces and issue silver securities against this in an amount equal to the cost of the metal.

The white metal would be bought at world prices, but valued in monetary stock at $1.29 an ounce.

Estimates of possible inflation have run as high as $1,500,000,000, depending on how far the President goes in exercising his new powers.

"It is a great victory for the silver people in the West," said Senator McCarran, Democrat, of Nevada.

"It puts silver on the same basis as gold the first time since 1873 it has been accorded such a place."

Census figures give Texas 308,121 illiterates, about equally divided between males and females, representing 6.8 per cent of the State's population.

The annual drive against typhoid fever got under way in Pitt County today under direction of the Department of Health with the holding of clinics in four sections of the county.

Typhoid has been greatly reduced in Pitt the last few years through regular courses of serum, and the condition was expected to be further improved this year with additional hundreds to take the treatment.

LIGHT DOCKET BEFORE COURT

County Court Expected to Make Short Work of Its Docket Here Today

County Court was in regular session here today with indications that the light docket would be completed during the early afternoon.

The docket was described by court officials as one of the lightest in some sessions. At the last sitting a day and a half was required to complete the work. This was due, however, to the fact that court had not been able to sit in two weeks because of the two-week term of civil Superior Court.

This is the first consecutive sitting of County Court in several months because of the several terms of Superior Court held here from time to time, and the docket is expected to be small and quickly disposed of from now on until the latter part of the summer when Superior Court begins convening again and halts activity of the lower court.

The major part of the cases heard in the lower court are sent up from Greenville courts, but due to the fact that things have been quiet among the criminal element the last several weeks, actions are expected to be conspicuous for their paucity until crops are sold and people get enough money ahead to pay for their meanness, or are ready to go to jail to get something to eat during the long cold season next winter.

Over two dozen cases were given consideration last week in spite of the fact that several were continued, but court was expected to make short work of the batch in addition to those accumulating since the previous session and adjourn during mid-afternoon.

Judge Ding James was presiding over the session.

Young Quakenbush was swimming with Billy McPherson and two youths named Whittenmore when the tragedy occurred. His companions said as they were swimming in the middle of the pond young Quakenbush said he was tired, and before they could help him, he sank from sight.

The youth is survived by his parents, five sisters and a brother.

Deny Promotion Of Helvering

Washington, D. C., June 12.—(AP)—Published reports that President Roosevelt tentatively has offered Guy Helvering, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee, were denied today both by Helvering and a spokesman for the Democratic leadership.

"I don't know anything about it," Helvering said.

"It is pure unadulterated bunk," one close to the leadership of the party said, asking that his name be not used.

SEED CRUSHING FALLS OFF COMPARED WITH 1933

Washington, D. C., June 12.—(AP)—Cotton seed crushed during the ten-month period, August 1 to May 31, was reported today by the Census Bureau to have totaled 4,292,294 tons compared with 4,292,150 tons in the same period a year ago.

REVIEW BOARD AGAIN SCORES NRA EFFORTS

Darrow Sights "Surreptitious Authoring" in Boot and Shoe Codes

Washington, D. C., June 12.—(AP)—A second blistering report from the Recovery Review Board headed by Clarence Darrow was disclosed today to hit at reported "practices of surreptitiously authoring NRA codes after industries appeal." In one instance the report asserted an important change was made in the big boot and shoe factory industry code by "some unrevealed and mysterious agencies." The board contended the change—limiting amounts made for cash payment—fell crushingly on the small manufacturer.

It demanded immediate action to restore the code to its original and legitimate terms.

Some of the higher up of the NRA, in most instances unnamed, came in for criticism. Transfer of an assistant in the department of lumber whose name was not mentioned, was recommended because of what was termed a lack of training and experiences among other things. The report slipped out with little of the fanfare that attended the issuance of the first. Submitted to President Roosevelt several days ago it had yet to be made public formally.

Several copies became available in news channels and were quickly published. The first report revealing more startling recommendations and criticisms became a matter of national interest because it was held up to allow Hugh Johnson, NRA administrator, to make a reply at the same time.

YOUTH DROWNS IN POND IN ALAMANCE

Graham, N. C., June 12.—(AP)—Gilbert Banks Quakenbush, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Quakenbush, of Swepsonville, in Alamance County, was drowned in a millpond near his home about 3:30 p. m. as his three young swimming companions made vain efforts to save him. The body was recovered about an hour and a half later.

Young Quakenbush was swimming with Billy McPherson and two youths named Whittenmore when the tragedy occurred. His companions said as they were swimming in the middle of the pond young Quakenbush said he was tired, and before they could help him, he sank from sight.

The youth is survived by his parents, five sisters and a brother.

Vacation Bible School Plans Pushed Rapidly

Plans were being shaped rapidly today for the opening of the Vacation Bible School at Third Street School June 18. The school will run for four weeks, closing July 13th.

Churches of the city co-operating with the city school system are sponsoring the school in the hope of improving the moral and spiritual life of the community.

The movement to improve the juvenile situation here was started "metaphorically" and has gained such momentum that belief was expressed that every organization of the city interested in the future of youth would render all financial assistance possible.

A capable and experienced staff of teachers will direct work of the school which will hold its sessions both inside and outside the Third Street school building. The course of study will deal with Bible stories, wholesome recreation and helpful occupation.

The Ministerial Association last week appealed to all organizations of the community to rally to the support of the movement in view of the pressing need of such training for the children. Reports compiled from school records sometime ago showed that numbers of youths had shown marked criminal tendencies through crimes committed here, and it is to correct this evil and Approve Tobacco Bill. Washington, June 12.—(AP)—The Senate agricultural committee today approved without change the House bill to control tobacco production through taxation.

The bill is along the line of the Bankhead cotton control measure passed earlier in the session.

Chairman Smith of South Carolina said he would press for final action before adjournment. The bill would authorize the secretary of agriculture impose a tax of 33 1-3 per cent of the selling price on growers who refuse to abide by quotas assigned by the farm administration.

He would have the discretion to make this only 25 per cent.

ROTES TO AID BIBLE SCHOOL

Committee Named Last Night to Co-operate With Child Movement Here

By WYATT BROWN

Following up their resolutions of last week about Greenville's juvenile delinquency problem, the Rotary Club at its regular weekly meeting last night at the club building appointed a committee to co-operate with the daily Bible school which the Greenville schools and churches have worked out and to appear before the Board of Aldermen to supply Greenville with a full-time person to work out a recreational program for the local youths.

Chairman of this committee is Charles O'Hagan Horn with Jasper Winslow and Martin Swartz as the other members. Herbert ReBarker, acting chairman of the meeting, said in appointing the committee that he was convinced that the Rotarians were ready to throw what influence they could behind getting at this juvenile delinquency.

Guests of the club were Dr. J. N. H. Sumrell and little Miss Lois Waldrop. The attendance prize was won by L. A. Stroud.

SWIFT CREEK CONSTABLE IS ALSO IN RACE

Action of Perkins Comes As Surprise After He Announced Yesterday He Had Decided Not to Run; Edwards Says He Had Been Encouraged by Constituents; Cost of Run-off About $155

After it appeared that all chance of a second primary in this county had been dissipated, three candidates filed notice of contest with the Board of Elections late yesterday afternoon. The time limit expired at midnight.

Jack Edwards, who several days ago announced he was considering opposing John Hill Paylor of Farmville, for a seat in the House of Representatives, definitely declared himself in the race by filing with the Elections Board. Edwards represented the county in the last legislature.

Closely behind him came Vance Perkins, who immediately after the primary said he would oppose A. T. Moore for the office of County Treasurer, but who yesterday morning said he had decided not to do so.

The third involved a township race for the office of constable and W. E. Corey is the candidate. Mr. Corey, like the others, ran second in the battle of ballots in the primary and is seeking to wrest the advantage from his opponent, W. Ray Smith, in the run-off battle.

M. O. Blount, of Bethel, received a majority for a seat in the House in the four-cornered race for the two seats; but the vote for neither of the three others was sufficient to assure election.

Edwards said he had talked with numbers of his constituents in all parts of the county and had been encouraged to such extent that he felt he would be unfair to his supporters if he did not go into a second contest.

Perkins said yesterday that his main reason for not entering a run-off vote was the cost incurred by the county, but when he learned that a run-off was inevitable, he changed his mind and immediately filed notice with the Elections Board.

Perkins ran next to A. T. Moore, present incumbent, in the six-cornered race for County Treasurer, and therefore, was permitted by law to call for a run-off vote.

F. C. Harding, chairman of the Board of Elections, said today that the approximate cost of a second primary would be $150. Reports circulated throughout the section the last several days placed the cost at around $1,000.

Funeral services will be: J. Key Brown, W. C. Vincent, C. C. Jackson, D. H. Conley, Roy T. Cox and Ralph Red-cliff.

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

RIGHT OF WAY AT CROSSWALKS

Pedestrians who are crossing the street at an intersection on a cross-walk have the right of way over automobiles. Drivers must slow down or stop if necessary and afford them a chance to cross in safety. This is always the rule except at intersections where traffic is being regulated and controlled by a police officer or signal service. At such times pedestrians should obey the officer or signal.

AYDEN HOLDS UNDISPUTED LEAGUE LEAD

Ayden's perfect play featured the opening week's program in the Coastal Plain League, which yesterday entered its second week of activities.

Kinston routed New Bern, 14 to 3, yesterday in a play-off of a contest rained out last Tuesday at Kinston.

In compiling its five wins, Doc Smith's Ayden outfit defeated Greenville twice, Tarboro twice and then trounced New Bern behind Doug Johnson's no-hit pitching. Each of the victories over Tarboro's cellarites was by a one-run margin.

Save for Ayden's winning streak and Tarboro's losing string, early play in the league has shown the clubs to be pretty well balanced.

If Manager Eddie Winston has any success in securing pitching reinforcements at Tarboro league followers expect the race to settle down to a ding-dong battle.

Good crowds turned out for last week's games and yesterday's affair at Kinston. Backers of the various clubs are encouraged by the attendance.

A fast brand of ball is being played in the circuit. "It's at least as fast, if not faster, than Class D professional ball," declared D. C. "Peahen" Walker, Elon College coach and manager at Snow Hill, in discussing the first week's play.

"Walker's right, but I believe for long the league will be offering as good baseball as any I've ever seen in a Class C circuit," said Eddie Winston, Tarboro manager. Both Walker and Winston played pro ball for a number of years, and Winston also served as club executive in pro circles.

Kinston score ten runs in the third inning.

"Help! Help!"

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Even during the fire in the next village Honey Bear had not been so worried as she was now. Then she had known that the others were keeping the fire from spreading to Puddle Muddle and the cubs were safe with her in the cave.

"There's something about that burning smell I don't like," she told herself, and put the cubs further back in the cave. Then she went toward the entrance, for she was thoroughly alarmed.

"Help! Help!" she growled, as she stood there. "Help! Help!" she cried again.

But not an answering voice could be heard. What should she do? Smoke was curling all around the ground outside of the cave, and the entrance was thick with it.

"My babies! My cubs!" cried Honey Bear, and went inside for them. She held them close to her and went toward the entrance, again, but so thick was the smoke now that Honey Bear's eyes filled with tears and it was impossible for her to see.

"Help! Help!" she cried again. "Oh, where had everyone gone? Where were Willy Nilly and Rip and Top Notch and Christopher Columbus Crow and the ducks, and where was Jelly Bear?"

She would have to put the cubs back into the cave and cover them with some leaves and moss she had there, as she could never take them out into the smoky air.

She tried to tell them that everything would be all right, but they were miserable, and she was leaving them when they wanted her comforting arms about them.

Why was she leaving them now?

T. Morrow—"The Flames."

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

There has been many a fog around or about the sporting scenes, including the one that enshrouded Tony Loughran in his sleep-walking match with Jack Sharkey, but none to compare with the pall that surrounded the crew race between Syracuse and Columbia varsity boats a few years ago in East Forchester bay.

"That was a day I will never forget," said Maxwell Stevenson, chairman of the board of stewards of the intercollegiate Rowing Association recently during a session of rivermen. "The fog was so thick that we should have called off the races but the boys wanted to row and since it was their party, we decided to go ahead."

"At the outset there was a long delay getting the two crews away from a drifting start. The Syracuse crewman also happened to be the crewman and he was determined not to lose any advantage on the getaway. After much jockeying, they finally were off. Columbia pulled slightly into the lead and they had not gone a few hundred yards, into the thickest pall you ever saw, when the Syracusecox turned and shouted to the referee: "What's the direction?" But before the official had a chance to reply, the Columbia steersman turned around and yelled: "Follow us."

"It was impossible to steer a straight or accurate course and after ten minutes of rowing the bow car in Columbia's boat turned his head and hollered, 'Land ho!' Sure enough, they were clear off the course and headed straight for the shore. One of the oarsmen had presence of mind enough to jump from the boat and keep it from going on the rocks.

"So they turned about, did a little tacking and finally reached the finish line, with Syracuse still out of sight in the fog. The Orange showed up after a while and then we found out both crews, in wandering around, had completely circled an island and headed for the shore. It was a wonder they didn't wind up right back where they started from, under the circumstances."

Turning to a discussion of this year's revival of the Poughkeepsie regatta, Stevenson offered the opinion it would develop one of the best boat races the old Hudson has seen in many a season.

"Washington and California both will have great crews in the varsity race again," he said. "They were not far apart when they raced on the coast. Cornell has a powerful boatload for the four-mile distance and Navy as well as Pennsylvania and Syracuse will be well represented for the main race."

The curtain-raiser at Poughkeepsie, with the freshman crews of Washington and Cornell figuring to give quite an account of themselves, —not to overlook the Syracuse year-lings, either—should be an exciting race.

Which recalls that something like eleven years ago the "frosh" eights of Cornell and Washington same-slashing down the Hudson at a terrific pace, bow and bow, throughout the last mile. It was so close at the finish that one judge yelled

The official sealing of crankcases after fill of five quarts was put in. No addition of oil was permitted in this "destruction" test.

With the second primary called the voters of this county will have two more weeks of politics before they begin their rest period before the fall elections. During the past several days there has been much discussion as to the cost of a second primary and we have heard different persons on the streets estimate the cost at figures ranging from around $500 to as high as $1,500, and express an opinion that under such circumstances no second primary should be called. In justice to the calling candidates we quote one of the election officials as stating that the proposed second primary would cost approximately $150.

BUY A BARREL

The recently inaugurated "Buy a Barrel of Potatoes" movement in Eastern North Carolina is one that should appeal to our people. At this time our farmers are harvesting a bumper crop of "spuds" and if all of them are shipped to centralized markets in competition to the yield from other states the price which is already too low will be still further depressed. There is little doubt that most any family in this section can and will use at least one barrel of potatoes within a few weeks or months. In view of this why not buy them direct from the growers in this section now? By so doing the consumer will get them for less than will have to be paid later on and by cutting down the quantity to be shipped to the central markets the price there will be strengthened and the growers will get far more for the portion of their crop that they do ship. "Buy a Barrel of Potatoes" is a good slogan for Eastern North Carolinians at this time.

Murder at MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER C. BROWN

SYNOPSIS: Reduced almost to desperation by his inability to solve the mystery of the murderer who shot a policeman and a stranger in Pierre Dufresne's house, Sergeant Ellen Becker, the maid who left the Dufresnes about the time the series of mysterious events began which preceded the tragedy. Harper and his assistant, Lafferty, are talking to Ellen's aunt.

Chapter 42
BECKER TALKS

"WERE from Police Headquarters," said Harper. "Are you Mrs. Sutton? Well, Mrs. Sutton, we happen to know that Miss Becker is at home. It would be much wiser if she saw us. Much wiser."

To assist Mrs. Sutton make the correct decision Lafferty casually put a sturdy foot across the sill. "Oh, all right, come in. She's upstairs. I thought you were bill collectors. There's some mistake, though, Ellen has been home for months, looking after me."

"If there has been a mistake, we can soon put it straight. Will you ask her to come down, please?"

The detectives were ushered into a dark, stuffy parlor that probably had its twilight atmosphere even on the brightest days. They heard the elderly woman's slow tread as she mounted the stairs.

"There's something in it," Lafferty whispered. "Did you notice her face when she found out who we were?"

Harper nodded. A lighter step was coming down the staircase. Then the curtains rustled and Miss Ellen Becker faced them.

"Miss Becker?"

"Yes. What do you want, please?" "We are from Police Headquarters. I am Sergeant Harper of the Home-Clide Bureau. I am in charge of the murder case at Mr. Pierre Dufresne's house. You've heard about that?"

"Yes," echoed Miss Becker. "I read about it in the papers today." "We came to ask you some questions about your period of service there. Why did you leave Mr. Dufresne's employment last November?"

"My aunt was very sick and needed constant looking after, so I gave notice and came home. I haven't been near Mr. Dufresne's house since."

Harper looked at her. "Still taking care of your aunt?"

"If you left Mr. Dufresne's of your own accord, why don't you apply for your old job? They haven't hired any one in your place."

"I'd rather get a job where I can live at home."

"Miss Becker," Harper continued, "you deny, then, that you have been advised to go into hiding for a while?"

The detective's chance shot, based on Harris' report of the telephone messages, certainly struck home. "Why, er—of course," she stammered, with apparent effort.

"You were not, by any chance, packing to go away when we arrived?"

"No! Where would I be going? I live here." But her voice was still unsteady.

"In that case, you won't mind if we just take a quick look at your room. Jack, see to it!"

LAFFERTY was off like a shot. In a moment there issued loud voices from upstairs and Lafferty came hurrying down again.

"She was packed to go, all right," he accused. "When I rushed up the old lady was stuffing things back in the bureau and closets as fast as she could."

"Ha!" exclaimed Harper, "now the cat's out of the bag. I give you your choice of two things. You can talk to us, or you can come along to Headquarters. There's a car waiting on the corner."

Ellen broke down, quick, frightened sobs shaking her body. "I didn't do anything wrong," she wailed.

Harper answered stonily, "but you are holding back information. Why did you leave the Dufresnes? Because some one found it worth while to get you out of the house?"

Harper leaned forward, tense and eager. "Who has been paying you the hush-money?"

"Mrs. Dufresne!"

Ellen Becker clenched her fingers. "It was right after the house was opened last autumn," she began. "The family were at the apartment while we got things ready. I was cleaning the hearth in the breakfast room. There was a brass urn standing by the fireplace, filled with white sand.

"I saw a bit of paper sticking up and when I picked at it I saw that it was part of a cigarette stub. I pushed the sand around and found a lot of them buried there. I thought that was strange, because we'd only opened the house a few days before and hadn't used the breakfast-room at all.

"I poked a little deeper in the sand and found a slip of paper, buried down one side. I read it." "Was the writing that of a man or a woman?" Lafferty asked.

"I couldn't tell. All the words were printed and there was no date and no signature. It said: 'Will expect you at the usual time. That was all. I took it upstairs and showed it to Mrs. Dufresne. She turned white when she read it. She kept me there nearly an hour, while she walked up and down the room. Finally she suggested that if my aunt was in need of nursing I could go home for a while and she would continue to send me my wages. I did, and she has," was Ellen Becker's terse conclusion.

"Do you realize that was practically blackmail?"

ELLEN shook her head. "It was Mrs. Dufresne's idea. Why shouldn't I accept it? It was the first time in my life I ever got something for nothing. Nobody's going to die and leave me a million," she said bitterly.

Harper stirred himself. "I think you'd better come along with us to Dufresne's house. We'll have to get to the bottom of this story."

"No—no—please! I can't go back there!"

"So there's more to the story? One with it—all of it this time!"

Ellen's next statement came only after a visible struggle. "Two days later," she continued, "I found another note in the same place. It was printed, just like the other. It said: 'The same place, and you'd better come this time.' The last part was underlined. While I was looking at this note, with the sand spread out on a paper, Mr. Dufresne walked in.

"He wanted to know what I was doing there and I had to show him the note. He carried on worse than Mrs. Dufresne. He asked me all kinds of questions and talked so wild I was afraid of him.

"I told him I was leaving to take care of my aunt. Then he calmed down all at once, but he made me swear to say nothing about the note to any one. He promised that I wouldn't lose by it."

Harper leaped up. "Well, I'll be damned," he cried, "you've got the nerve to sit there and calmly admit you've been taking money from both of them?"

Ellen turned sullen before his anger. "But what could I do? Hand back his money and tell him I was already being paid to keep quiet? What good would that have done? Besides, I was afraid of him. I was afraid to tell him anything."

"Can't you see that you were spreading dynamite around in that house?" Harper burst out. "For a few paltry dollars you were willing to see a whole household broken up. No wonder you're afraid to go back there and repeat your story. Who warned you to run away—Mr. Dufresne or Mrs. Dufresne?"

"I won't tell, I'm not going to say another word," Ellen's voice grew shrill. "I want to see a lawyer."

"Come on," said Lafferty, "let's trot her down to Headquarters. She'll talk there, whether she wants to or not. By that time she'll need a lawyer!"

The sinister tone pried the girl loose from the last hold on her reticence. "Neither one," she admitted sullenly. "It was Joe Donaghy who called me."

Harper's eyes glittered with renewed interest. "So Joe was in on this? He knows all about these deals?"

"Only about Mrs. Dufresne," Ellen confessed.

"I guess you call yourselves sweethearts," Lafferty sneered. "A fine pair of lovers you are."

"Never mind that now, Jack," Harper interrupted, then, turning to the girl, "What did he tell you over the 'phone?"

"He said it looked like things might break wide open up there at the house, and that if they did, it would be a good idea for me to be missing."

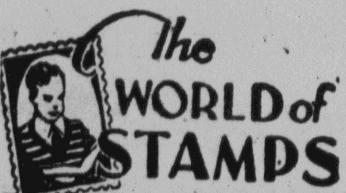

"You're holding out on us again. You two have been working this game together. We know Donaghy's been bleeding these people, too, because he's sporting a big roll of bills."

But where, asks Harper tomorrow, does Ellen's evidence lead.

The two took off from New York in a hurry and without passports, safely navigated the Atlantic air lanes, but cracked up in a thunderstorm in a Pomeranian forest when only 400 miles from their goal, Kaunas, Lithuania.

The story of the flight is depicted in the six stamps comprising the set. Two of them, the 20 and 60-centals, bear the portraits of the fliers, with a four-blade propeller as the centerpiece. The 40-cental has a map of the United States and Europe on either side, with a picture of the Atlantic between. The 1-litas

Peru Air Mails

More and more the countries of South America are demonstrating the possibilities of beauty in design for airport stamps. Peru is the latest with such an offering.

Wisconsin Stamps

Collectors as yet have received no indication when the next state centenary stamp, that for Wisconsin, is to be ready. It is not expected to come out, however, until after the appearance of the National Parks issue, now due some time in July.

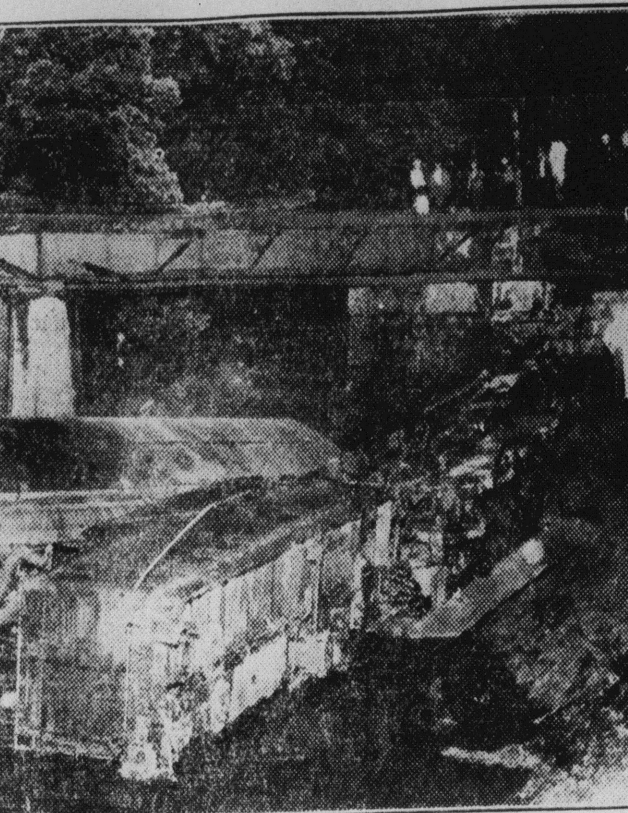

The Wisconsin stamp, it is reported, will depict the landing of Jean Nicolet, French explorer, at what is now Green Bay, on the shores of Lake Michigan. The stamp commemorates the three hundredth anniversary of that event. The design to be used probably will be E. W. Deming's painting, which hangs in the capitol at Madison.

Argentina has declared obsolete for use as postage all of its commemorative issues beginning with the Rivadavia set of 1926, put out to observe the centenary of the post-office, down through and including the La Plata issue of 1933 which was in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the city of La Plata.

Variety changes have been noted in some more of Mexico's stamps. The current airport stamps, 10 and 50 centavos, rouletted, have been

They Taste Better!

We like telling you that Luckies are made of only clean center leaves. For the clean center leaves are the mildest leaves—they cost more—they taste better. And we're proud of the fact that these choice tobaccos receive the benefit of Lucky Strike's famous process—"It's toasted" for throat protection. But here's a point that's just as impressive: Luckies are round, firm, fully packed with long golden strands of fine tobacco—no loose ends. That's why Luckies "keep in condition"—why you'll find that Luckies do not dry out. Truly, Luckies are all-ways kind to your throat.

(Continued from page one) authorized her to immediately buy beans to take them off a glutted market. Mrs. O'Berry said plans would be made to buy probably 25,000 baskets of beans at once and they would be canned and stored for fall and winter relief uses. In the next few days shipments from eastern growing points to canning points in western counties will start, she said. Mr. Hopkins also authorized the buying of Irish potatoes, another food which is overabundant in the market and going to waste but plans for handling them have not been made.

Signs Air Mail Measure. Washington, June 12.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today signed into law the administration bill for regulating air mail transportation. The President's signature climaxed months of investigating and controversy over the handling of the air mail under this and former administrations. Among other things the bill eliminates some of the privileges denounced by Postmaster General Farley when he canceled mail contracts of all private air mail lines in the United States last year. It authorizes the postmaster general to award one year contracts on competitive bidding. A company is prohibited from bidding if an officer or employee performing general managerial duties has entered into any combination to prevent bidding and also if it has an annual compensation exceeding $7,500.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, June 12.—(AP)—Financial markets generally were in a more cheerful mood today and prices moved up to firmer levels despite restricted trading volume. Stocks recovered to the satisfaction of recovery proponents altho brokerage houses still bemoaned the slackness of business. Some nervousness continued in evidence as the steel labor controversy appeared to be without any immediate solution. Grains resumed their advance after early hesitancy. Corn led the upturn with grains of more than 2 cents a bushel but wheat, rye and oats were up around a cent. United Smelting rose 3 points while issues up about one to two points included American Telephone, New York Central, Johns Manville, American Smelting and General Motors. Transfers were 1,000,000 shares.

Blocking Tugwell

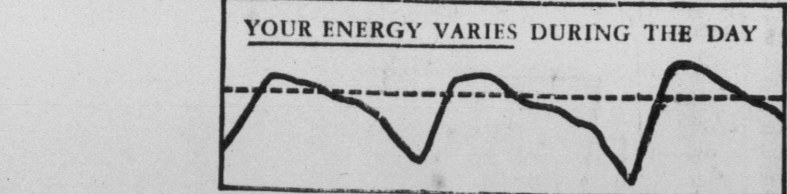

The Senator holds the advantage because his committee can't meet to consider Tugwell's nomination until he personally calls it in session. This he flatly refuses to do. There are threats the nomination will be called upon on the floor despite his objections, to which Smith has replied that the Senate will hear plenty from him if it is. Also there are hints that, if necessary, the President will give Professor Tugwell a recess appointment. It looks as if a showdown will be forced. Odds seem to be against Senator Smith, but no one doubts he will put up a real fight.
