Celebration of Father's Day Adds Few More Bills For The Old Man to Meet

American fathers had a break yesterday—and what a break. It was annual Father's Day, and in addition to hearing themselves extolled from numerous pulpits, the proud daddies received sufficient wearing apparel to last them the rest of the year and all affections of the household had to offer.

Today these same daddies were waiting serenely for the first of the month to come to determine the toll of the celebration.

For some the bills will be small, but for those whose families had the idea they should also dress themselves up to help "Pop" celebrate, the situation will be rather oppressive. But all had a big time, and bills or no bills, Dad will not allow himself to become worked up over the cost of the affair, and is prepared to startle every bill collector with a mile-wide smile instead of the monthly grimace and "grilling" concerning "extras" appearing on the various bills.

Some of the preachers thought well enough of the occasion to pay tribute to the tremendous army of men who go out every morning to struggle to keep the family bread tray out of the dust, and others—fathers themselves—passed the occasion by without a word, confining themselves to straight sermons with lots of "hell-fire" stuff mixed in.

CLUBMEN BACK TO COMPLETE FROM CANADA POOL IN MONTH

Bennett Moseley and Al Darden Have Thrilling Experiences at Kiwanis Meet

B. W. Moseley and W. A. Darden returned today from Toronto, Canada, where they attended the international convention of Kiwanis Clubs as delegates from the Greenville club.

The local men spent four days in Canada—the time allotted to the convention—and returned home by the way of New York. While in the metropolis the two delegates had the opportunity to see New York at night, and they described the scene as "dazzling."

The four-day convention was declared one of the greatest in the history of the organization. Al was so "overcome" by the reception he was practically speechless when he reached home. If his wife gets a glimpse out of him she certainly will have to pull some hocus-vocus stuff.

Nearly 2,000 schools in twenty-four States failed to open last year and sixteen colleges and 1,500 business schools were closed, as well as many other parochial and private institutions," Mr. Clement declared.

FEDERAL BANK MOVES LEGAL OFFICE HERE

W. L. Whedbee and B. B. Jones in Charge Of District Department Here

Announcement was made today that the legal department of the district Federal Home Owners' Loan Bank, established here by the government about a year ago has been moved to Greenville.

The department will be in charge of W. L. Whedbee, of Greenville, and B. B. Jones, of Kingston. Mr. Jones will move to Greenville to be in close touch with the district office, it was understood.

The bank is one of a number set up by the Federal Government at the beginning of the present administration to carry relief to homeowners throughout the nation who were so hard hit by the depression they found it difficult to hold their property, and in many instances lost it through foreclosures.

BIBLE SCHOOL BEGINS TODAY

Two Hundred and Nine Children Enrolled For Opening Session this Morning

The Daily Vacation Bible School opened at Third Street School this morning with an enrollment of 209 children between the ages of four and fourteen years of age, it was announced this morning shortly after school started.

The enrollment was so large it was said that it was found necessary to add another member to the teaching staff. Paul Royer was made a member of the faculty in the manual training and athletic department for the larger boys.

The school is under direction of Miss Louise Galphin, member of the city school faculty, assisted by other public school and experienced Bible class teachers of the city.

Registration started Saturday with enrollment of 111. The school is sponsored by the various churches of the city cooperating with the public school system. It will run for a period of one month and will cover studies of the Bible, manual training and forms of diversion.

The institution is the outgrowth of a movement started several weeks ago in an effort to improve the juvenile life of the city. It is hoped to return hundreds of children to public school campuses next fall in such a physical, spiritual and normal condition that it will have a direct bearing on general school life.

BRITAIN WILL REPLY TO U.S. ON WAR BEBETS

Ramsay MacDonald Tells Commons Nation Will Not Hand Over Bermuda

London, June 18.—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald announced in the House of Commons today that the British government proposes to reply to the United States' war debt note regarding the American suggestion that Great Britain make payment "in kind"—that is, in goods and services.

Replying to a query from the floor as to whether Britain would consider handing over Bermuda or other island territories adjacent to the United States and which are no longer of defensive value to Great Britain as a payment to the United States, the prime minister said: "There could under no circumstances be any question of such an agreement."

AUTO WRECK CLAIMS LIFE N. C. WOMAN

Macon, Ga., June 18.—(AP)—Miss Thalia Dillard, who was en route from Miami Beach, Fla., to Greensboro, N. C., died here today of injuries received in an automobile accident near Forsyth, Ga.

Miss Dillard, about 33 years of age, was riding with Miss Ruth Canaday, also of Miami Beach, when their car skidded on the wet highway and plunged into a ditch Sunday afternoon. Miss Canaday was not hurt.

WEARY SENATE PLUNGES INTO MORE TROUBLE

Three Measures Must Be Settled Before Adjournment Period Is Reached

Washington, D. C., June 18.—(AP)—A runaway Senate plunged toward more hot debate today and none could foretell whether the first new deal Congress would adjourn tonight or days hence.

One threat of a filibuster and three pieces of legislation containing the makings of bitter warfare faced the Senators. The House, its business practically over, sat around hoping for the end.

President Roosevelt's vacation plans may be changed a bit by this Senate which bucked from under its leaders to prevent adjournment Saturday night. The President hopes to get away this week to New London, Conn., to see his son, Franklin, row in the Harvard freshman crew against Yale Saturday.

Sitting at his desk today amid a mass of legislation and mail, he faced the possibility he may not be able to see the race. On or about June 26 he plans to sail on a month-long cruise to the Caribbean and Hawaii.

The first order of business as the Senate gathered for its noon meeting was final action on a conference report about the two billion dollar appropriation bill. That was expected to be easy sledding. The rub came in the three other bills. They provided for quick adjustment of railway labor disputes, a six-year moratorium of bankrupt farmers and many changes in the banking laws, notably a one-year extension of time which banks may separate themselves from their investment affiliates.

Sixty Persons Also Injured In Attack On ABC

RETALIATION BY SOCIETY FEARED TODAY

Guards Thrown About Emergency Hospital on Reports Society Plans Vengeance for Four Wounded Men; Sunday Parade of 50,000 Members Turned Into Slaughter; Woman Slain in Encounter

Havana, Cuba, June 18.—(AP)—Retaliation by infuriated members of the ABC Society was feared today after "Cuba's bloody Sunday" in which twelve persons were killed and nearly sixty wounded.

A heavy guard was placed around the emergency hospital on reports that the ABC planned to storm it and wreak vengeance on four wounded men.

Deep political significance was attached to the two days of rioting leaving a total of fifteen dead and culminating yesterday in a parade that was turned suddenly into a slaughter, they appeared likely to bring a postponement of the government's plans to hold general elections in December.

Guerrilla warfare carried on intermittently for months reached a climax when 50,000 members of the ABC Society, powerful political organization, marched through principal streets the big moment of a two-day fiesta enemies had sworn to break up.

When the marchers reached the intersection of Neutonnen Street along the fashionable Prad Boulevard the music of brass bands was interrupted by deadly clatter of machine guns. The attack by enemies of the society came as a complete surprise. A shrill whistle sounded and then the shots whizzed.

In the boulevard and on side streets a number of marchers, including several women, fell dead or dying.

Thousands of bystanders, watching the parade, were thrown into panic and trampled to the earth as they rushed for shelter. Women screamed and fainted.

ABC members who were armed dropped to their knees and returned the fire.

Raleigh Woman Fatally Injured In Auto Wreck

Baltimore, Md., June 18.—(AP)—Miss Pearl Fanning, 27, of Raleigh, was fatally injured in an automobile accident here early today.

Her companion, A. W. McNeil, Jr., 26, of Raleigh, was injured in the accident, but his injuries were not serious and he was taken into custody by police.

The accident occurred on Eastern Avenue of the Back River road. McNeil, who was driving, apparently tried to turn from Eastern Avenue to Back River road and was unable to make the turn.

MRS. DALL ARRIVES AT TEMPORARY HOME. Cal-Neva, Nevada, June 18.—(AP)—A house of logs overlooking a mountain lake became the temporary home today of Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, daughter of the President, as she began a six-week stay in Nevada which is expected to end in her divorce next month from Curtis B. Dall, New York broker.

Watched over by a secret service agent, Mrs. Dall and her two children, "Sistie" and "Buzzie" were rushed to this mountain resort by motor car from Truckee, Calif., where early this afternoon they left the transcontinental train that had carried them westward from Washington.

"The higher the average rate of speed the greater the death and accident toll," is a statement well founded upon the figures of city and state accident records.

 MOCKING HOUSE
 BY WALTER C. BROWN

Chapter 47
 AGAIN DEATH

"YOU appear to be armed at all points, Harper. It's a very pretty yarn. You've almost convinced me of its truth!"

"We've had all these pieces of evidence," the detective continued calmly, "but we couldn't get them into a pattern. After we had a talk with Ellen Becker we began to understand."

Pierre Dufresne jerked as though he felt a knife at his ribs. "Ellen Becker?" he echoed faintly.

"Yes, and once again I can tell you something you didn't know before. Your bribes to her were a waste of money. She had already put her silence in pawn—elsewhere!"

Dufresne leaped up, his face working, his eyes glittering in stark rage. He gripped the detective's shoulder. "My wife—?" he choked.

Harper nodded. "Ellen Becker has been taking money from both of you. When she confessed about those notes in the sand, it became obvious how you must have planned to catch that man in your house and murder him. But you have hopelessly prejudiced your case by being secret and subtle, with the result that a perfectly innocent man lost his life as well. That part is not so easy to forgive."

Dufresne faced the detective. "Harper," he exploded, "what would you say if I denied everything, completely and absolutely?"

"You may deny all you like, but you'll find it pretty hard to explain away Ellen Becker's evidence, or those letters. Then there's the presence of the master-key on your ring, and the murder gun, first hidden in your room. Besides, there is any amount of corroborative evidence."

"But didn't you tell me you had two suspects on your list? Or were you lying to try to trap me?"

"Not exactly that, Mr. Dufresne," Harper threw his bombshell. "Mrs. Dufresne's actions are under equal scrutiny. She is known to have been away from Mrs. Marlock's house during that mysterious fire. She has refused to give any explanation or account for her movements."

Dufresne halted in his tracks, a peculiar intensity coming into his eyes, as though looking at something far away.

"I suppose you threatened my wife with arrest?"

"I am giving her every chance to reconsider her decision," Harper replied, "but continued refusal to answer my questions will force my hand."

Pierre Dufresne threw back his head and burst into harsh, jarring laughter. "Are you mad?" he cried. "No one in this house is ever going to stand trial for murder."

"THE prize quandy of all time!" Sergeant Stephen Harper, still clad in pajamas, was shaving himself. He had just started the razor down the side of his face when the telephone by his bed began to ring. In a moment a voice he did not recognize was pouring out an excited tale.

"Wait a minute. . . Stop shouting, I'm not deaf," Harper protested. "Who is it? . . . O'Connor? . . . at Dufresne's. . . Yes. . . Who? . . . Donaghy, the chauffeur? . . . Yes, yes, go on. . . Whither found him? . . . You've kept the others away? That's the stuff, O'Connor! Hold everything! I'll come right out!" Harper sat down on the edge of the bed.

Joseph Donaghy, the chauffeur, a suicide in his living quarters over the Dufresne garage! And there was a letter he had written—an open letter explaining his action. So this was the end of the trail for that cocky young fellow.

He hurriedly finishing shaving, dressed, and was ready at the door when the car from the Homicide Bureau stopped to pick him up. In the back seat were the fingerprint man, a police surgeon, and the official photographer, his two black boxes of equipment wedged between his knees.

The snow-laden streets made for slow driving but there was not much conversation exchanged on the run up to Pythian Terrace.

and villages blighted by the economic crisis, learning conditions at first hand, seeing what is being done and adding his words of encouragement. No booster of false hopes, he said recently:

Honey Bear's Recovery

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

The little man, Willy Nilly, certainly could not attend to anything for himself while one of his animal friends was unwell. Honey Bear was better, but she still was pained by the burns she received in saving her cubs, Jupiter and Blacky, from the fire.

"Are you feeling better, growl, growl?" asked Blacky.

"Are you almost well, growl, growl?" asked Jupiter.

Honey Bear moved her big head and her eyes rested lovingly on her two little bears. They were worth any suffering. They were worth made up for the worry, now that they had escaped without the slightest burn.

"I'm almost myself once more," Honey Bear growled. "Soon we'll go into the woods and find some delicious berries, and then we'll go fishing in the streams and we'll have a delightful time."

"Do you suppose we could go tomorrow?" asked Blacky Bear.

"Or at least the day after tomorrow?" asked Jupiter Bear.

"Mother will go with you just as soon as she can," said Jelly Bear, who was licking Honey Bear's burns and making her feel so much more comfortable.

Willy Nilly now spread before her a feast of salad made from young roots, and bread and honey. Just then there came a loud quack-quacking. All the ducks had gone down to their pond but now they were evidently back again, as the quacks came from many, many throats. Willy Nilly opened his front door, and Honey Bear saw a sight that made her sit up very straight.

THE MOST OUTSTANDING GIRL

Mary and Martha Davidson of Petersburg, Ind., have been chosen as "the most outstanding girls" in the senior class of the Indiana State Teachers College at Terre Haute. The girls were nominated, along with others, on the basis of character, scholarship, service, leadership and general worth to the school. Unable to vote for them separately, the student body voted for the twins as a unit. (Associated Press Photo)

A LONG NEGLECTED RESOURCE

(Hertford County Herald)

The survey that has been started in this county (and in other counties as well) to locate children and widows of veterans, and many others in direct need of help and unable to get it, is a fine thing. The cry of a child with no one to answer that cry with a helping hand is a tragic thing to witness. The writer saw not long ago a sweet-faced little girl who had just been stricken with tuberculosis, and whose parents were not able, they stated, to buy milk for her, to say nothing of owning a cow or of placing the little girl in a sanatorium for care and treatment. We also saw not long ago a crippled child who could very likely be made whole and well by a little needed care, perhaps an operation and a little medical treatment . . . but because the parents are too poor to hire a surgeon, and because the case is not acute enough to come in as a necessary "charity" operation or case . . . it goes on, and the child will grow up pitifully unable to care for himself when grown. Children are worth more than cows, hogs, forests, and the many objects cared for and protected by great sums of money through appropriations. People are fast coming to realize that of all our boasted natural resources, the greatest resource we have is human beings, people and children, who make up the country. It is a fine thing that steps are being taken to improve this resource at its beginning—children, for without a healthy, vigorous crop of youngsters coming up there can be no lasting program of human progress in this, our commonwealth.

Furrows Seam Wales' Princely Brow as Heir Nears Fortieth Year

By OSCAR LEIDING

London.—(AP)—The ever-popular Prince of Wales, still slim and boyish and still a bachelor, will reach his fortieth milestone June 22.

"You wear very well, you know," he recently told David Lloyd George. It was a compliment which the war-time premier easily could have returned as a "trade last."

The main visible change wrought by the years is a seaming of the princely forehead and a lining of his cheeks which impart to him a serious, sometimes weary, air.

Britains Know Him Better

He's still listed as the world's best matrimonial prize—but that's just a gesture, for even the die-hards have become reconciled to his bachelorhood. The "prince-is-going-to-marry" rumor has died.

If the world at large hears less of the prince than it did during his globe-trotting days, Great Britain knows him better.

Conspicuous in his recent work has been a cycle of tours to towns to miss a following engagement. Even a heavy rain is no obstacle. Recently he was to play himself in as captain of the Royal St. David's Golf Club. When the time came, it was raining hard. Officials pondered; gazed at the leaden sky; shook their heads.

The prince arrived briskly. Would he go? There was no quibbling, only a crisp: "Certainly" as he donned spikes shoes, slipped a pair of waterproof trousers over his knickerbockers and strode to the first tee.

He has an 11 handicap and next to playing he finds the best pleasure in joining a gallery and following a championship match.

SEEK CAUSE OF PLANE CRASH

Federal authorities have entered the investigation of the crash of the huge American Airways liner near DeBruce, N. Y., as the result of the finding of papers that were in possession of William Bader, Buffalo chemist who was one of the seven killed. Coroner Victor G. Bourke of Sullivan county is shown examining the papers which some reports said were "secret" naval documents. Efforts also are being made to ascertain whether chemicals in the possession of Bader could have exploded. Three bottles of a picric acid solution which were found in the wreckage are shown upper left. (Associated Press Photo)

AUSTRIAN LEADERS 'UNDER THE SAME UMBRELLA'

When Chancellor Dollfus (right) and Prince Starhemberg recently demonstrated their solidarity by appearing together at a patriotic meeting, they were caught by the camera in this brotherly pose, "all under the same umbrella." A woman in the foreground held her parasol high to keep it from being damaged in the crush, giving an opening for the cameraman to catch the leaders as they were receiving flowers from a delegation of peasant women. TO GO ON TRIAL SOON

Pretty Norma Millen, 19-year-old bride of the condemned police slayer, Murton Millen, will go on trial at Dedham, Mass., June 20, charged with being an accessory in the crimes of her husband and his associates, Irving Millen and Abraham Faber. The Millen brothers and Faber were convicted of killing a patrolman in the holdup of the Neadham Trust company, and Norma is accused of having knowledge of the crime and assisting in covering up traces of the killing. GIRL'S DEATH PUZZLES POLICE

Vernon B. Shelters, Newark, N. J., automobile salesman, took his firm's stenographer for a motor ride and returned several hours later with her dead body in the seat beside him. Shelters, who was held on a manslaughter charge, told police he had no idea how the girl, Eleanor Coleman, 23 (inset), was killed. He said she left his car during the ride and he found her a few minutes later lying in the road. Police believe she was run over by an automobile. (Associated Press Photo)

In a quiet but impressive ceremony the marriage of Miss Sarah Elizabeth Gulley and John Elisha Raper of Lexington, was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents on Fifth street, on Saturday afternoon at four-thirty o'clock, in a lovely setting of roses, lilies and gladioli.

The wedding came as a surprise to their many friends as the date had not been announced.

Tea For Miss Lipscomb.
Outstanding among the many attractive affairs honoring Miss Mary James Lipscomb, popular bride-elect of Saturday, June 23, was the tea Saturday afternoon when Mrs. S. T. White and Miss Helen White were charming hostesses.

The home throughout was beautifully decorated. A pink color note was emphasized in masses of roses, gladioli and snapdragons.

Mrs. H. W. Whedbee greeted guests on arrival, and Miss Ada James presented them to the receiving line which stood in the living room. In the line were Mrs. White, Miss White, Miss Lipscomb, Mrs. W. T. Lipscomb and Mrs. W. I. Skinner.

Mrs. J. H. Waldrop invited guests to the punch room. From an attractively appointed table Mrs. C. A. White and Miss Mary Forbes served fruit punch. Assisting in serving were Miss Jane Forbes and Miss Lourene Skinner. From the punch room to the rear hall Miss Frances Harvey was receiving.

Mrs. R. A. Tyson directed guests to the dining room, where Mrs. J. B. James and Mrs. W. H. White, seated at the table, served cream. Miss Jane Hadley and Miss Dorothy White passed cream. Miss Mary Lou White passed cakes, and Miss Mable Glenn Best, mints. The table was especially pretty, covered with an imported embroidered cloth and centered with a silver bowl of pink roses, snapdragons, daisies and baby's breath placed on a reflector, with pink candles in silver holders placed at the corners.

Guests passed out through the music room.

Several hundred guests called during the tea hour.

Mrs. Westbrook Entertains.
Dunn, June 16—Charming among the social activities of early summer was the barbecue luncheon given on Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Earl Westbrook at her home on North Ellis Avenue, honoring her mother, Mrs. C. M. Jones of Greenville; her sister, Miss Virginia Jones, and her cousin, Miss Elizabeth Moore, the latter two being brides-elect of Greenville.

Lovely vari-colored summer flowers and Queen Anne's lace were used as decorations throughout the house.

The guests were greeted at the front door by Mrs. Raymond Cromartie and Mrs. Thomas Hood introduced them to the receiving line which was composed of Mrs. Westbrook, Mrs. Jones, Miss Jones, Miss Moore and Miss Eleanor Hatcher, a bride-elect of Dunn of the late summer. All wore dresses of pastel shades with shoulder corsages, gifts of the hostess.

Little Miss Mary Ann Westbrook stood at the end of the receiving line.

Mrs. I. R. Williams directed the guests into the dining room where Mesdames McD. Holiday and John A. McLeod served barbecue and slaw from either end of the dining room table. The table was spread with a cloth of Japanese linen and centered with a silver bowl of pink and blue larkspur.

Mesdames Charles Huff and Edwin Graham passed bread sticks. Tea was served at the buffet by Mrs. C. L. Corbett. Mrs. Ruth Westbrook Sample, Miss Selene Parker and Miss Catherine McLeod served in the dining room.

Mrs. Aley Parker stood at the dining room door.

Guests were seated in the living room, porch, and on the lawn.

At the conclusion of the luncheon it was found that Mrs. C. M. Jones and Mrs. T. C. Hyman were winners of the prizes. They received lovely linen handkerchiefs.

The honorees were presented pretty pieces of lingerie and Miss Hatcher was given a piece of silver.

Mrs. C. R. Vincent said goodbye to the guests. About ninety called between the hours of 12:30 and 1:30 o'clock.

UNITED STATES ALONE IS BOOSTING PAYROLLS

Geneva, June 18—The United States is the only nation deliberately increasing pay-rolls in order to stimulate industry and reduce unemployment, according to H. B. Butler, Director of the International Labor Office.

The rest of the world is now beginning to give up wage-cutting, mainly because the economic situation is improving. Butler maintains that slicing pay-rolls did not improve matters at all. In fact, he strongly suspects "it may possibly have worked in the opposite direction."

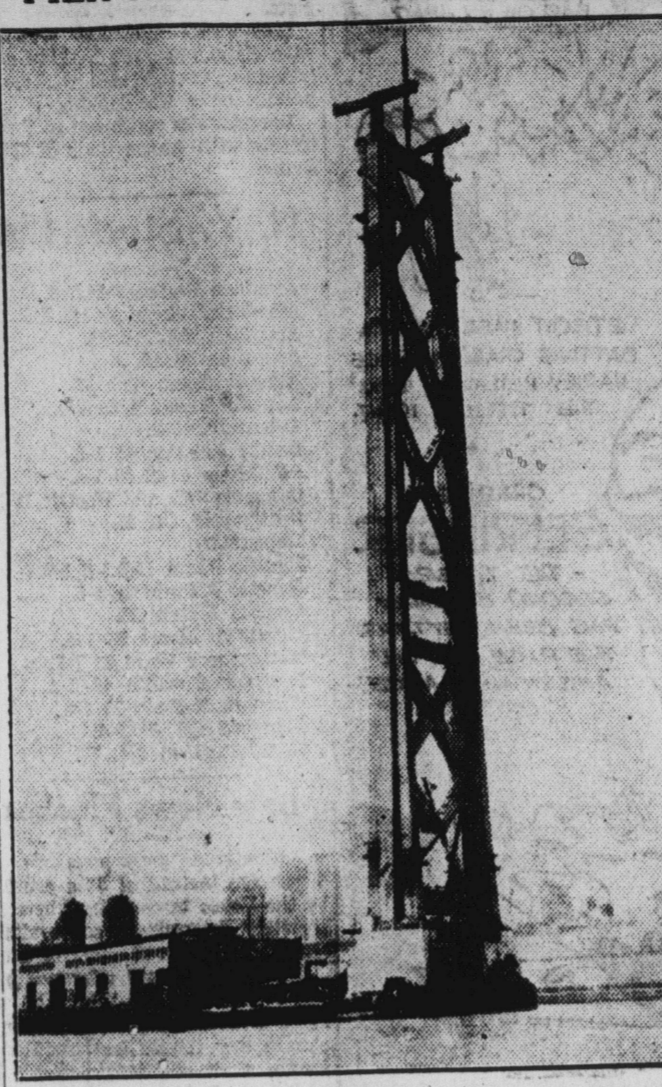

That is, cutting salaries may have caused meager returns for employers, instead of profits. Also longer bread lines may have resulted from wage slashing.

"Where consumption or buying power has been seriously depleted by drastic wage-cutting, aggravated unemployment and crippling production seems to have been its accomplishment," says Mr. Butler.

That is the lesson he draws from a close study of reams and reams of official documents containing age ups and downs of the world's millions of workers.

Hungary Finds Roan Town

PIER RISES ABOVE SKYSCRAPERS

Towering high above the San Francisco waterfront, the principal tower of the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge on the west side dwarfs the skyline of the city. The structure is almost complete, the daddies for huge cables remaining to be put in place. (Associated Press Photo)

Antonio Pacinotti, Italian scientist, by plainly stating thereon that it is in honor of the 75th anniversary of the dynamo. Pacinotti was born in 1841 and died in 1911.

The stamps show the inventor standing beside an early model of his device.

The ever persistent flow of postage stamps from Rome, which is continuing to keep Italy far in the lead over the rest of the stamp issuing countries of the world, goes on with little interruption.

In addition to the Pacinotti pair, another set has just arrived from the presses of that issue is the world championship football contests held in Italy with 17 countries participating, including the United States. In the group are nine stamps, of which three are airmails, valued from 20 centesimi to 10 lire.

The regular postage have football action scenes, while the airmails have modern planes in flight over various Italian stadiums.

The constant additions to the Italian issues have led to considerable discussion among stamp authorities in this country, particularly those who have direct charge of catalog compilation, over whether they should take steps to place a limitation on the stamps they list from Italy in their annual publication. Coupled with the Italian colonial issues, the number is becoming quite formidable, with still six months of the year to go.

Uncle Sam is doing his part in offering cooperation to the stamp collector and at the same time is experiencing a constantly growing business along those lines.

The division of the postoffice department whose sole purpose is catering to the collector is the philatelic bureau in Washington, established in December, 1921 at the suggestion of W. Irving Glover, then third assistant postmaster general. Since that time it has been growing and growing until today it is doing a business which indicates this year's receipts will be a million dollars at least.

So successful is the bureau becoming that it has led Prescott H. Thorp, authority and prolific writer about stamps in all categories, to pen the statement that:

"It looks as though stamp collectors will take the postoffice out of the red by Christmas."

SAYS DOG CAUSE OF FIGHT IN KENTUCKY
Newport, Ky., June 18.—(AP)—Only the dog in the family of Everett Smith, 49, laborer, was his own boss today.

His master was in jail, as was his mistress, Smith's wife, and two of the Smith children were in Campbell County detention home.

Two other children in the family were being cared for by neighbors. The dog started it all, police said. Oliver Bonneville, 45, tinner, was in a hospital, after having been shot by Smith. According to police, in an argument that started when Bonneville was attacked by the dog as he called at the Smith home.

Bonneville may recover, it was reported last night, although his condition is critical. He received charges from both barrels of a shotgun.

Mrs. Smith is serving a jail sentence on a disorderly conduct charge. The two children detained stoned officers as they made the arrests, and later appeared at the jail to continue the bombardment, authorities reported.

SAVED HIS CAR BUT BURNED HIS TROUSERS
Kinston, N. C., June 18—June Miser sat in a parked automobile Thursday night and fell asleep. His slumber was disturbed by a dream. He dreamt he was on the top floor of a skyscraper hotel with flames all around him, escape cut off.

He awoke to find sweat drenching him. He was relieved to realize he had been dreaming and was not actually doomed to a fiery death.

Then he smelled smoke. The seat on which he was sitting was afire, and the heat was intense. He had dropped a lighted cigarette on the cushion.

Miser dragged the seat out to save the car, but he was too late to save his trousers, the seat of which was badly damaged.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

"One of the dizziest fallacies ever foisted upon the sporting public is that which depicts dear St. Andrews as the golf course supreme, the place where all good golfers should go at least once before they hang up their clubs," writes our own Gayle Talbot from his British observation post.

"Old it certainly is, but if the converted sheep pasture where this year's Walker Cup matches were played is a championship course, a fair test of golf, then the architecture of every course constructed in the last one hundred years is all wrong.

"True, the American players who come over and whip around the ancient layout in close to par figures invariably exclaim: 'I love this course. It's wonderful and I hope to play it many times before I die.'

"They say that at St. Andrews, but the suspicion is strong with this observer that if they played the same identical course out in Red Dog, Okla., the locker room would be filled with words that have no place here.

"In other words, you're just not supposed to say uncomplimentary things about St. Andrews. It's hallowed golfing ground. At least one British player, Leonard Crawley, just about didn't get on this year's Walker Cup squad because he had, in an unguarded moment, said it was 'disgraceful to play an important event on such links.'

"One of the older and more outspoken members of our Walker Cup team told your correspondent quite frankly that if St. Andrews was a golf course then he, the player, was a three-toed sloth. His name will not be given, because he might want to play St. Andrews again some time.

The Lies Have It!

"It's a little difficult to explain about St. Andrews. Perhaps the idea may be conveyed thus-wise: A crack player might go around the course today, definitely 'on' his game and hitting every shot as perfectly as he ever hit them in his life, and take an 80. He might go around again tomorrow, hitting them no better, no worse and score a 70!

"The reason for this lies, you might say, in the lies. No man can tell after hitting any shot, no matter how well, what sort of lie he will have for his next. There's no such thing as smacking one out of sight down the middle and then straggling after it happily, secure in the knowledge that everything's going to be all right.

"In the first place, the old course is given such a battering from morning to night all year 'round that it's practically one big divot. How it manages to survive at all is something of a miracle. They fill these divots with sand, which makes a pretty awful base for a full mashie shot to the green.

"Then, on about half the holes, there is no real fairway; just an expanse of rough, rolling, windswept, desolate land littered with traps and bunkers. There's no time nor reason to the location of the traps. They grab what apparently are perfect drives, while a terrific hook is likely to give the player a clear second shot to the green. If the player is lucky enough to escape the traps, he can in most instances look forward to hitting his next from a hanging lie.

"Picturesque, Eh?"

"As for the greens themselves, there is nothing true about them. They are as big as all out-of-doors, roll crazily throughout their expanse and, without, make a sort of guessing game out of putting. As good a putter as Johnny Goodman had 10 three-putt greens in a single round. A duffer friend of mine went around the same afternoon and used up only 37 putts.

"There is no such thing, of course, as playing a full iron shot—plunging on the green, the most beautiful and skillful shot in golf. The man playing St. Andrews hits one on the ground towards the hillock pointed out by his caddy, perhaps 30 yards to the left of the flag, and then hopes for the best as it goes skipping up and down and around the swells.

"But what's the use of telling any more about St. Andrews? It would not get a championship in a thousand years if it were located in Ohio. But the boys will continue to come over and see the crimson-cloaked university students strolling about, the ladies crossing the direct fairway with perambulators directly in the line of drivers, and he will sigh and say:

"How picturesque. I'm in love with the course already."

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, June 13.—(AP)—Congress refused to quit as per schedule today and many stock traders retired to the sire-lines to wait further Washington developments.

Bullish and bearish sentiment seemed to be mixed as prices of equities were in a similar condition. Dullness ruled throughout the greater part of the session and attendants in the board rooms were generally restricted to odd lot stragglers.

Last week's moderate revival of enthusiasm appeared to have evaporated to a considerable extent. Important news was lacking.

Irregularities continued in the late trading with transactions of 500,000 shares.

Contradicts Foulos.
Washington, June 13.—(AP)—Chairman Rogers of New Hampshire said today on the Houth floor that Major General Ben Foulos told a "lie" to the military affairs subcommittee which yesterday recommended the general's removal as chief of the army air corps.

Discussing the report, Rogers said Foulos had testified that army pilots who would fly mail planes had had from 30 to 60 hours of night flying. He then quoted figures showing that those who had been involved in accidents had averaged much less night flying and that some of them had had only 8 to 21 hours.

Order Search For Pirates.
Changhai, June 13.—(AP)—Two U. S. vessels tonight were ordered out to search for pirates who kidnaped six British citizens including two British naval officers from the steamship Shuntian, a British commercial steamer.

The fighting craft ordered of the scene of the outrage off the mouth of the Yellow river were the U. S. Pope and the mine layer Bitlers. They were ordered to find the Chinese junk into which the Britishers and 20 Chinese had been taken off the ship which flew a British flag.

Not only did the U. S. Asiatic fleet go into action by the British as well moved to the rescue of its citizens.

The destroyers were sent from Wuehwei in the chase. The American ships started from Chefoo.

The Shuntian was on its way from Tientsin to Shanghai when taken by the pirates who apparently had boarded it at Tientsin and awaited the opportunity to overpower the crew and passengers.
