PARAGUAYAN TROOPS TRAPPED AND SLAUGHTERED

Price Fixing Battle Faces Federal Trade Commission

RUBBER CO'S. ENGAGED IN CODE BATTLE

Three Companies Accused of Violating Practices of Fair Competition; Charged With Diverting Trade to Themselves With Injury to Competitors

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—A major engagement over price-fixing is to be fought out soon before the Federal Trade Commission. Ostensibly the dispute involves only the comparatively small interests of three rubber concerns, but developments seem likely to form another celebrated industrial case which would basically affect NRA price control powers. Several code authorities planned to jump into the case. The rubber companies' authority accuses the owners of violation of codes by refusing to file a list of prices with the authority. The firms are the Hills-Baker Rubber Company of Providence, R. I.; LaCrosse Rubber Mills of LaCrosse, and the Goodyear Company (not the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company) of Middletown, Conn.

AYDEN ALL SET FOR SONGFEST

Patrick Alderman to Lead Musical Event On High School Campus Tomorrow

The citizenship of Ayden was looking forward expectantly today to the community sing to be given on the campus of Ayden High School tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The sing will be conducted by Patrick Alderman, of Goldsboro, who is celebrated for this field of musical activity, and hundreds of people are expected to attend and hear some of the finest voices of the section.

The sing is sponsored by the Woman's Club of Ayden and all other Woman's Clubs of the county, together with members of other organizations, have been invited to attend.

Ayden club women have been making preparations for the sing for sometime, and indications today pointed to the largest attendance of any similar event ever held in the community.

The campus will afford accommodations for several hundred people, and hope was expressed that all available space would be taken.

32 DIVORCE CASES DOCKETED IN VANCE

Henderson, N. C., June 23.—With 32 divorce cases listed for attention the first day, the June civil session of Vance Superior Court will get under way here next Monday. Judge M. V. Barnhill, of Rocky Mount, who held the June criminal court here last Monday and Tuesday, in one of the shortest sessions on record, will return to preside over the civil court.

Perhaps outstanding in interest on the civil calendar are a group of suits seeking to recover damages from the D. Pender Grocery Company and the Statesville Flour Mills as the result of the alleged finding of parts of rats in flour purchased by the plaintiffs from the Pender Company and manufactured at Statesville.

The docket is rather smaller than usual, but the civil calendar never is cleared entirely at any term.

HARRIMAN GUILTY IN BANK CASE

Joseph W. Harriman and Mrs. Harriman are shown in the lobby of federal court, New York, after the 67-year-old founder of the defunct Harriman National Bank and Trust company was convicted on charges of falsifying records and misapplying the bank's funds. A jury found Harriman guilty on all 16 counts made against him. (Associated Press Photo)

LIMIT PUT ON COTTON MONEY N. C. COTTON ARRIVES HERE

Production This Year To Be Cut to 528,683 Bales Under Bankhead Act

Raleigh, N. C., June 23.—(AP)—Cotton production in North Carolina this year will be limited to 528,683 standard 478-pound bales under the Bankhead act compared with ginning in 1933 of 689,279 running bales. The Bankhead allotment by counties does not include the 10 per cent total State allotment of ginnings as that amount is held out to allow later revision to include ginnings necessitated by allocation to individual farmers.

Two Local Men to Return From Trips Abroad

Charles Carr will return tomorrow from Shanghai, Cina, where he has been the last eighteen months for the E. B. Ficklen Tobacco Co. of this city. J. S. Ficklen, president of the concern, will also return tomorrow from a business trip to Europe.

WHIT LAUDED LAFAYETTE IN LAST MESSAGE TO U. S.

Jersey City, N. J.—What may have been the last message to America from Brand Whitlock, war-time ambassador to Belgium who died May 24 at Gannes, France, was received four days earlier by Judge Walter P. Gardner, president of the American Friends of Lafayette, of which society Whitlock was vice-president. The message cabled from Cannes on May 20 while in the United States was commemorating the centenary of the death of Lafayette, said:

"So sorry not to be with you, but am laid up by the heels in hospital. Lafayette was the very flame of liberty, one of the founders and for a long time the leader of the great cause of liberalism in the world. He helped procure the liberties which we have enjoyed so long that we have forgotten or cease to take them seriously. He never once yielded a principle, no even to please the people and it cost him his fortune, his popularity, and his freedom. Let us cherish his memory and follow his example. Vive Lafayette—Vive la Liberte, the two are inseparable."

REVIVAL HERE ENDS SUNDAY

Two Services Tomorrow to Climax Series Of Services at Presbyterian Church

The series of services which have been under way at the Presbyterian Church this week will be concluded tomorrow evening.

Tremendous crowds were expected to be on hand at both services tomorrow and the two sermons and musical program will transcend all others of the week.

Services at St. Paul's Episcopal Church have been abandoned temporarily to give members of the congregation an opportunity to attend the Presbyterian revival. Members of other denominations were also expected to join the congregation in the closing services.

The largest congregation of the series was present last night in spite of uncomfortable temperatures. The church was well filled with young people of senior high school age and up. The service was set aside for youth, and Dr. J. R. Potts, evangelist, delivered a sermon especially prepared for the occasion.

Singing, as usual, was excellent, and the solo by Mrs. Charles White transcended the musical program. She sang beautifully and made a splendid impression upon the congregation.

Interest throughout the week has been good, and the two concluding services tomorrow are also expected to draw large attendance.

Mr. Potts took his text last night from the last verse of the 12th chapter of Ecclesiastes: "For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil."

"If ever there was a man who had tried to find the best in the world," said the evangelist, "it was the man who wrote this book. And I wish all young men who have found sin alluring for a season, and all young women who have found questionable pleasure fascinating for a time, would listen to this man who reaches the conclusion of the whole matter when he says, 'Behold all is vanity and vexation of spirit.' In the thirteenth verse of the twelfth chapter, he says: 'Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter; fear God and keep His commandments; for this is the whole duty of man.' Then comes the text."

The minister spoke very impressively of the judgment and his description of the awfulness of sin made a deep impression upon his young auditors. This sermon, as all the others have been, was profusely illustrated with thrilling stories.

Mr. Potts expressed his deep appreciation of the interest, attendance and co-operation of the members of the other churches in the city. At the 11 o'clock service tomorrow Mrs. Dink James will sing a solo. The sermon subject will be, "Cloaks of Sin." At the evening service the text will be taken from John 18:18: "He shall be driven from light into darkness and chased out of the world."

Out of 3,743 weddings in Milwaukee last year, the knot was tied in 3,043 instances by ordained ministers, with justices of the peace and judges dividing the remainder.

Late News Flashes

Episcopal Minister Dead. Salisbury, June 23.—(AP)—Rev. William Hill Harding, 66, arch deacon of the convocation of Charlotte for the last 18 years and rector of the Christ Church in Cleveland and St. Matthews on the Statesville road, died in his sleep early today at his home here from cerebral hemorrhage.

He was accustomed to rising early and when members of his family went to his room between 6 and 7 o'clock he was found dead.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock at Christ Church at Cleveland, conducted by R. Rev. Edwin Phenix, bishop of the diocese.

PUSH BEAUTY PAGEANT HERE

Legion to Offer Brilliant Parade of Feminine Beauty on the Night of July 6.

Plans were being pushed forward rapidly here today for the American Legion Beauty Pageant to be staged in the High School auditorium Friday night, July 6.

J. H. Rose, commander of Pitt County Post of the American Legion, said today the showing of feminine pulchritude undoubtedly would be the most magnificent ever witnessed here.

From the score or more young women to take part in the attraction, "Miss Greenville" will be selected. She will be accorded the honor of representing the city at the annual Legion convention at Greensboro in August. The winner of the State contest will represent North Carolina at the National Legion meeting to be held in Miami in October.

Members of the Post are particularly anxious to make the beauty contest better than ever this year, and with this end in view, the entrance of the very cream of beauty is being marshalled for the affair. Mr. Rose stressed the fact that the queen would not be selected on the basis of popularity as this is purely a beauty contest and not a popularity affair.

FLOYD SPEAKS AT MEETING OF CLUBMEN HERE

Tobacco Specialist Tells of Unified Farm Program; Farmers Guests of Club

E. Y. Floyd, of Raleigh, state tobacco specialist, and director of the federal tobacco production campaign in North Carolina, was the chief speaker of the local Kiwanis Club's Farmers Night program last night and told the clubmen and twenty or thirty farmer guests from all sections of the county of the ambition of the government to provide a long-time unified program accompanied by economy and satisfactory prices.

Introduced by J. C. Galloway, prominent Pitt county grower and one of the agricultural relief leaders, as one of the best informed men in the county on the leaf drive. Mr. Floyd declared that it was the hope of the federal administration to work out a long time farm program as a means of eventually obtaining satisfactory prices.

He termed the program as a unified one also through which all commodities could be handled under one contract instead of by separate and distinct agreements between the government and the grower.

Plans for the long time unified program, he declared, are in an incipient stage at this time, but through conferences with growers from every part of the country, agricultural administration heads are attempting to obtain some definite line of attack that will be satisfactory to the growers.

The main idea of the unified program, it was pointed out, is to simplify the handling of the various crops under one contract and eliminate some of the tremendous expense which the government has incurred in its embryonic efforts at curtailing production and lifting prices to that stage where growers may obtain living prices.

J. B. Huston, chief of the tobacco section of the AAA, was praised for the tremendous energy he is throwing into the task of improving the condition of the industry. He is conferring with farm leaders from all tobacco growing belts and these opinions are gradually being forged into a chain that eventually will result in the unified long time program.

Explaining the ten per cent increase of production ordered by the government sometime ago, Mr. Floyd said this was the result of unfavorable crop conditions in some sections, increased consumption and condition of the foreign market. He declared that Mr. Huston is a keen observer of the foreign situation and has been influenced largely by the apparent demand from abroad as well as at home.

Instead of planting 70 percent as allowed under the original contract growers under the revised plan may plant 80 per cent, he stated, and it was hoped this additional increase will result in the production of 500,000,000 pounds of leaf this season, sufficient to take care of domestic and foreign demand.

The Kerr bill passed by congress last day of its momentous session was viewed favorably by the speaker as a means of throwing a safeguard around the producer. Although provisions of the bill have not yet been fully worked out there were expected to be made known in a short time now, he said.

Farmers were invited to ask any questions concerning the tobacco agreement not clear in their minds, and numbers were fired at the speaker which he apparently answered in a very satisfactory way.

Dr. McGeachy called attention of the guests to the club movement to improve the stock of Sheppard Memorial Library, and told them to use the library which is open to everybody in the county. He also asked their moral support in obtaining additional funds to increase the stock of books of the institution.

Bennett Moseley and W. A. Darden, who recently represented the club at the Toronto International Convention of Kiwanis clubs, were visibly disappointed because their account of the trip was delayed until the next meeting. They don't know much about the convention proper, but seem to be pretty well versed in things happening at night outside the convention hall walls.

Disaster Follows Driving Attack on Bolivian Fortress

W. J. Manning Sets Record In 'Spud' Growing

W. J. Manning, farmer of the Bethel community, takes this season's cake for Irish potato production. Mr. Manning is credited with digging 900 barrels of No. 1 "spuds" on seven acres of land in the Grindle Creek drainage district near Bethel this week. He averaged over 128 1-2 barrels to the acre, one of the largest yields ever recorded in this section.

The record was set on land reclaimed from the flood waters along Grindle Creek. Give Mr. Manning real potato-growing land and they might be found digging his fully baked potatoes over in China, on the opposite side of the earth.

BIBLE SCHOOL FUND MOUNTS

Contributions of $45 Reported to Office of Daily Reflector This Morning.

The Vacation Bible School Fund continued to move upward rapidly today with contributions totaling $45 reported at the noon hour.

A. E. Hobgood, member of a committee from Memorial Baptist Church, reported donations of $30, and two other gifts of $15 recorded during the morning brought the total to $45.

Mr. Hobgood said he would continue canvassing during the afternoon and hoped to report several additional contributions during the afternoon. His funds this afternoon came from the following persons:

A. M. Moseley, $5; G. V. Smith, $5; J. J. White, 5; A. E. Hobgood, $5; State Bank and Trust Company, $5; R. B. Green, $2; and N. C. Brooks, $1; Proctor Hotel, $2.

Dr. M. B. Massey gave $5 to the cause and the Kiwanis Club $10. Although a total check of contributions has not been completed today, it was believed about half of the $400 required for the school had been raised.

The school opened last Monday. It will continue for four weeks, during which time the over two hundred students will receive supervised study and recreation under the direction of skilled teachers.

The institution is being sponsored by the churches of the city in cooperation with the public school system. Numbers of appeals have been made for finances and organizations that have not already contributed to the cause are urged to do so at once.

Committees from other churches of the city are scheduled to make a canvass for funds and hope was expressed by members of the finance committee that the public would give liberally.

It is impossible to estimate the value of the school to the moral and spiritual life of the community, and as some leaders have said, the "effort cannot be computed from the standpoint of dollars and cents." If you haven't given to the cause, you are urged to get busy and do so at once.

7-DAY FIGHT CLIMAXED BY DEATH TRAP

Bolivians Use Bind Artillery Fire For Trapping Paraguayan Forces Near Fort Balavian; Attackers Lost After Indenting Bolivian Lines and Are Shot Down in Heavy Artillery Fire

Beunos Aires, June 23.—(AP)—Thousands of Paraguayan soldiers were reported today as trapped and slaughtered by a blind artillery fire climaxing a seven-day Paraguayan drive against the Bolivian stronghold in the Chaco Boreal, Fort Balavian.

Communique issued by both Paraguayans made a headlong thrust with massed infantry and cavalry in an effort to open the Bolivian defense line in the Phicomayo sector.

This drive followed several days of skirmishes to the "Canada strongest" and "Canada LeCarmas" sector at the northern end of the Bolivian line.

The Bolivians, however, were not drawn out on the wing, but instead consolidated their position at Condado in the Phicomayo sector. A Paraguayan drive commanded by Colonel Brizuela drove at Condado. They smashed through, indenting the Bolivian defense. They were lost.

Bolivian artillery, light and heavy guns and mortars of both large and small calibre, were ready and in position around the spot of indentation. They cut loose with the fiercest artillery barrage which the war in the Chaco Boreal had yet seen. The Paraguayans were massed on the spot. It was slaughter.

FLEET TO PAY NORFOLK VISIT

City in Holiday Dress To Receive Uncle Sam's Battle-Scarred Veterans of Sea

Norfolk, Va., June 23.—(AP)—Norfolk hung out the welcome sign today for ships and forces of the United States fleet.

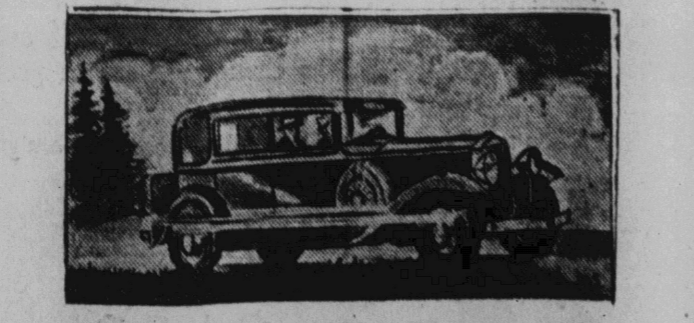

The city was in holiday mood awaiting arrival of the vessels which will begin a two-week shore leave for their contingent of men and officers.

Formal welcome to the waters will be extended by a delegation headed by Governor George Perry, through Vice-Admiral E. H. Campbell, commander on board the Admiral's flagship, the cruiser Indianapolis at Norfolk Navy Yards this afternoon.

The vessels will be in about noon to drop anchor or tie up at the naval base. Nearly two-score ships were due to arrive today and tomorrow. It will be the first trip here for most of the men in more than two years.

Jupiter is greater in mass and volume than all other known planets.

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

FAIR WEATHER DANGERS The majority of serious traffic accidents occur where least expected, due to lack of attention and too fast driving because of apparently favorable condition such as straight, dry unobstructed roadway with the driver going straight ahead. Constant alertness to the business at hand is the price of safety.

CLEAN-UP WEEK

Next week has been officially designated as clean-up week in this city and citizens are urged to cooperate in the movement by seeing to the thorough cleaning of their premises. Getting rid of trash on the premises will remove a great fire hazard and the removal of weeds and other rank vegetation and any old receptacles that might hold water will do a lot toward freeing our community of mosquitoes.

LET'S GET THAT OTHER HALF

The $400 fund necessary to finance the Daily Vacation Bible School here has been about half raised. The school began here last Monday with an enrollment of more than two hundred children and will continue through a period of four weeks. Every citizen should be interested in this project for supervised recreation and character building for the children, so let's get busy the first of next week and raise the other half of the fund.

Washington Daybook. By HERBERT PLUMMER. WASHINGTON, D. C.—Perhaps no message which President Roosevelt has sent to Congress since he entered the White House surprised Senators and Representatives as did the one in which he outlined a three-fold attack for 1935 on the problems of human security.

Long ago members of Congress reconciled themselves to expect almost anything from Mr. Roosevelt. They were not, however, quite prepared for what they received in this instance. The message was delivered on Capitol Hill at a time when the leaders were anxiously striving to adjourn the session. No one seemed to know how or when it could be done because there was no definite assurance from the President as to what he wanted passed in the way of legislation before the end.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE BY WALTER C. BROWN

Chapter 52. TABLES TURNED

"WHEN you are not going to arrest me?" Mrs. Croymden gasped. "Oh, yes. That much is necessary, in any case. But before I take you away I am going to inform your husband of the facts."

"Don't do that! Please, I can't face any one now. Take me away without letting any one know. I have confessed. What more do you want?"

"I want to know who was in this room with you when you marked that table with your ring!" Harper retorted. Mrs. Croymden reached out a hand blindly and collapsed into a chair. Detective Lafferty arrived post-haste, stopping in surprise at sight of Mrs. Croymden's grief-stricken face and Harper's stern features.

"Mr. Croymden reached out a hand blindly and collapsed into a chair. Detective Lafferty arrived post-haste, stopping in surprise at sight of Mrs. Croymden's grief-stricken face and Harper's stern features. The Sergeant of Detectives wasted no time in explanation. 'I have just placed Mrs. Croymden under arrest,' he said. 'You will take charge of her until I come back.'

Andrews was lingering in the depths of the hall, a prey to that troubled vision of Aline Croymden, harassed and stricken Harper strode up to the butler. 'Have you seen Mr. Croymden?' he inquired. 'Mr. Croymden has gone across to his own house,' Andrews answered. 'How long ago?'

Harper snatched up his hat and overcoat. Putting them on as he went, he bolted through the back door, passed the garage, vaulted over the three-foot stone wall and cut across to the back of the pianist's house. The doors of the garage were open, but both cars were there—Richard's large gray limousine and his wife's small blue roadster.

He went around to the front and rang the bell. A housemaid in a white cap and apron opened the door. The sound of a piano penetrated the quiet of the house and the soft cascade of harmony increased the detective's distaste and reluctance to perform the duty that lay before him.

The maid re-appeared in the hall, beckoning him toward the music-room. He entered, just as Richard Croymden rose from the piano. 'What brings you over here, Sergeant?' the latter asked. His tone sounded perturbed and his hands nervously grasped the lapels of his house-jacket.

'I have very grave news for you, Mr. Croymden. Your wife has just confessed to having committed murder. She has given me a very circumstantial account of the methods she employed, as well as her motives. She has put into my possession all the facts except the real identity of the man, H.D. This she refuses to divulge. She has surrendered and intends to plead guilty. Before taking her away, I thought it only fair that you should be notified. He paused, then repeated with peculiar emphasis, 'You understand, Mr. Croymden, she gave me a very circumstantial account.'

Richard Croymden cocked his head a trifle at the significant tone of the detective's repeated statement. For a moment vital with unspoken thought they eyed each other gravely, then Croymden drew a deep breath, squared his shoulders, and turned. 'I CAN'T let her do it!' The words rushed out in one breath. 'Whatever story she told you, Harper, I see that you have found out the truth. I did the killing and I'll face the consequences. I can't hide behind my wife's confession.'

Harper said, 'She intends to take her oath in Court.' Richard Croymden put his hand on the detective's shoulder. 'Thanks, Harper. You are blessed with understanding, but we can't let her go through with it. There are some things in life not worth buying.'

He smiled wearily. 'I'll go with you quietly; isn't that the correct phrase? Nothing that happens now can be worse than the hell I've been through already.'

'Your wife's story, then, is true in detail, except that you, and not she, carried it out?' 'I have no doubt it was, Harper. She would have no incentive to mislead you, except by substituting her name for mine. We can get that all cleared up later. I shall offer no defense. Both of us talked this thing over and over last night, but I had no idea she had any such plan in her head.'

'She felt she was solely to blame. You see, our marriage went on the rocks long ago. I began to get wind of this last night and when it began to get desperate I managed to get blinked their eyes when they read his praise of their efforts and then his optimistic words: 'Only a small number of the items of our program remain to be enacted and I am confident that you will pass on them before adjournment.'

A Little Game? There was no mention of just what comprised that "small number of items," a knowledge of which is so essential if any idea is to be had when adjournment is possible. It was the belief shared by many that Mr. Roosevelt was playing a little game with Congress over the question of closing up shop for the Avenue for guidance since March, 1933, suddenly found that nothing in the way of specific orders were being issued there. It seemed almost as if Mr. Roosevelt had made up his mind to permit Congress to wind its way alone to that greatly desired goal of adjournment.

It was much as if he had said to himself: "Complaint has been made that Congress has abdicated its powers to me. I'll give them opportunity to prove they can proceed alone."

If it is demonstrated they can proceed without his guidance, well and good. If it is shown they can't there will be time enough for him to step in.

Washington, D. C.—Democratic leaders of the Senate were more concerned than they appeared outwardly to be on the situation that developed around whether Professor Tugwell should be confirmed as undersecretary of agriculture.

It was apparent from the ebullient Tugwell was little more than a symbol in the controversy. With the possible exception of Senator Smith, of South Carolina, who wanted a real "dirt farmer" in the position, other members of the Senate who opposed his confirmation gave little thought to the professor personally.

It was the "new deal" for which they were gunning. The Tugwell nomination afforded an opportunity for the conservative group of Democrats not in sympathy with some of the things that are being done by the Roosevelt administration to air their grievances.

Growing Conservative Bloc From the beginning of the present administration the Democrats in the Senate permitted themselves to be carried along with the Roosevelt recovery program without question.

Senator Glass, of Virginia, was the first to register frank disapproval of what was being done. For a while, he stood alone, but as time went on one by one the conservative group of the party in the Senate fell in behind him.

Unless something is done to placate this group its strength promises to grow and may, in the end, cause all sorts of trouble. The Republicans experienced something of the same thing when they had control of the Senate. The progressive or insurgent block led by Norris, of Nebraska, attained such strength that the leaders at times encountered administration measures enacted into law.

Falls Elections Factor The issue will be fought out in the Seventy-fourth Congress in all probability. Thus far there has been no serious break in the party's alignment despite the fact there is ample evidence of dissatisfaction. Emergency legislation either must be re-enacted or dropped next year.

Oil Control Bill, Dispute 'Pumps,' Remains In Well By HERBERT PLUMMER Washington, D. C.—There's more back of why the Seventy-third Congress refused to enact the administration-supported oil production control bill than appeared on the surface.

During the latter part of May, President Roosevelt made the direct request that the measures sponsored in the Senate by Thomas, of Oklahoma and in the House by Disney of the same State be passed.

Mr. Roosevelt was "frankly fearful" of a "collapse of the whole industry" unless the present laws were strengthened. Secretary Ickes, administrator of the petroleum industry, was even more alarmed than the President.

Despite these entreaties, however, after a short-lived flurry of activity the Congress adjourned with the proposed legislation buried far down on the calendar.

Avoiding a Filibuster The truth of the matter is, that word was passed around privately that any attempt to force passage of the measure at the session just concluded would precipitate a filibuster in the Senate of tremendous proportions.

It was estimated that a least 15 members of the Senate were prepared to stage a talkfest in opposition to the bill. House leaders hearing this decided they might as well put on the brakes on that side of the Capitol. It would have been futile, they agreed, to go ahead and pass the bill only to have it talked to death later.

At the time pressure was applied in behalf of the measure, the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce which considered the bill was up to its neck in work. The stock market control act and the far-reaching communications bill—two of the most technical pieces of legislation enacted in the session—were still in the formative stage. This committee, headed by Rayburn, of Texas, had the reputation of being perhaps the most thorough in the House.

enjoyed the best legislative record in the House. Both the stock market and communication measures went sailing through the House without amendments and with maximum speed.

Inability of representatives of the oil industry to get together on what they wanted also had its effect. What hearings were held made it apparent that everybody was all but ready to fly at each other's throats. Even the oil administration seemed a bit hazy as to what was actually needed.

So the whole affair was quietly side-tracked. It will be only six months until Congress meets again, the Congressional bosses decided. Perhaps by that time there can be a meeting of minds.

Scientist Raises Chinch Bugs To Help Fight 'Em Ames, Ia.—(AP)—While farmers of eleven States are trying to wipe out hordes of chinch bugs which are destroying their corn and small grain fields, a young Iowa State College scientist is raising the insects to lay the ground-work for a long-range campaign against the pest.

He is Melvin Janes, graduate research worker in the Department of Entomology. Already, in his corner laboratory filled with incubators, test tubes and glass vials containing thousands of chinch bugs, he has discovered why the drought brought with it the worst chinch bug invasion since 1887. Temperature a Factor It has been believed that under most favorable conditions the female chinch bug laid a maximum of 500 eggs during her laying period. James found that the female lays twice that many under most favorable conditions and that a female chinch bug's ability to reproduce is four times greater than hitherto suspected, he said.

By hatching the bugs in his laboratory and counting their eggs, James discovered that one female, under conditions similar to the drought conditions in the Mid-West this summer, lays about 1,000 eggs.

Lays 1,000 Eggs Half of these hatch into female bugs, and each one of the latter lays about 1,000 eggs, which makes one pair of the bugs responsible for 500,000 of damaging insects. James' prize layer deposited 909 eggs in forty laying days. Her home was an incubator kept at 96 degrees Fahrenheit, and her diet was four-day-old wheat sprouts. More than 90 per cent of her eggs were fertile. Her record day was 39 eggs; her average 22.

Skinner-Lipscomb. Uniting two of Greenville's most prominent families was the wedding of Miss Mary James Lipscomb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lipscomb, and William Iversen Skinner, son of Mrs. W. I. Skinner and the late W. I. Skinner, which took place today in Memorial Baptist Church.

The abiding good wishes and loving interest of Greenville people centered, particularly, around this wedding, since the bride is a descendant of some of Greenville's oldest citizens and the granddaughter of the late Colonel and Mrs. F. G. James.

The church was never lovelier than for this noonday wedding. The decorations of shell pink and green were in tier effect following the lines of the church. On each side of the altar, which was banked with palms, ferns and festoons of smilax interspersed with large clusters of gladioli, were double tiers of cathedral candles.

Before the entrance of the bridal party Mrs. R. A. Tyson rendered a lovely program of wedding music.

To the softened accompaniment of the organ, Mrs. J. H. Waldrop and Charles James, uncle of the bride, sang "Serenade" by Schubert. Following this, "I Love You Truly" was sung by Mr. James. To the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, James Skinner and Edward Ferguson, groomsmen, entered, and were followed by Miss Frances Harvey and Miss Laurine Skinner, sister of the groom, dressed in peach organza dresses with brown sashes, wearing large brown hats, and carrying arm bouquets of garden flowers tied with brown.

Next to enter were Frank Skinner, of Smithfield, cousin of the groom, and William Wright, who in turn were followed by two other bridesmaids, Miss Helen Forbes White and Mrs. C. C. Skinner, Jr., wearing brown organza dresses with peach accessories and carrying arm bouquets of garden flowers tied with peach tulle.

Miss Ada James, as maid-of-honor, wearing orchid dress and hat and carrying yellow Pernet roses tied with orchid tulle, preceded the bride.

The embodiment of youth and loveliness, the bride, gowned in Ice Blue Chiffon modeled on princess lines with demi-train, wearing picture hat of corresponding shade, trimmed with deeper blue velvet ribbon and carrying bride's roses and valley lilies, entered with her father.

The groom and his best man, James King, of Williamston, awaited the bride at the altar and proceeded to the awaiting minister, Rev. A. W. Fleischmann, who united them in marriage.

The mother of the bride was most becomingly attired in powder blue chiffon, white accessories, wearing a shoulder corsage of pink Columbia roses.

The mother of the groom was handsome in a gown of black and white chiffon, white accessories, wearing a corsage of pink Columbia roses.

Mrs. Skinner, the beautiful and popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas Lipscomb, has always made her home in Greenville, having received her education at East Carolina Teachers College. Her charming personality and sweet friendliness to everyone, were shown by the many social courtesies extended her since the announcement of her engagement.

Mr. Skinner, the son of Mrs. William Iversen Skinner and the late William Iversen Skinner, is a young man most outstanding in character and ability. He received his education at the University of North Carolina where he was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. He is now a member of the firm of W. I. Skinner and Company of Williamston.

Immediately following the ceremony the bridal party, the families of the young couple and out-of-town guests were entertained at a wedding breakfast at the home of the groom's mother on West Fifth street.

After July tenth, Mr. and Mrs. Skinner will be at home in Williamston, North Carolina.

WEDDING BREAKFAST. Immediately following the wedding in Memorial Baptist Church, Mrs. W. I. Skinner, Mrs. John Flanagan and Mrs. T. A. Smoot were gracious hostesses at an attractively appointed breakfast honoring Mr. and Mrs. Iversen Skinner.

The home of Mrs. Skinner was artistically decorated in gladioli of various shades.

In the dining room, Mrs. Larry M. James and Mrs. Graham Flanagan served the tempting breakfast. The table was centered with a silver bowl of white roses, sweet peas and baby's breath, and covered with a cloth of Italian cut-work.

Guests included the bride and groom, members of the wedding party, relatives and out-of-town guests.

Mrs. Quacker Talks

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER. "Quack, quack, I'll tell you all about it," answered Mrs. Quacker. "Now I think it is nice for the ducks to get away from us for a while. We're so apt to spoil them."

The ducklings looked at each other and one gave another a poke so that the little duck giggled. But such thing, Mrs. Hobart calls Chinese double-dealing.

From Norway. Ronald Fangen is one Norwegian novelist who has escaped translation up to now, and how that happened one cannot explain. Every Norwegian novelist can attain the honor of translation into English, it seems.

In any case, his "Duel" (Viking) is before us and it is a worthy performance in the characteristic manner of his nationality. The due in question is a psychological one between a country physician and a successful Oslo legal expert. The physician has an inferiority complex, and for that matter, so has the gentleman from Oslo, although it is not so obvious.

These two cannot leave each other alone, nor can they be happy together. They have not the common gumption to ignore each other, and consequently plow through one shameful scene after another toward tragedy, accompanied of verbiage.

More Books. One of the most beautiful animal books of the season, "Engato, the Lion Cub" (Dutton) is dedicated by J. H. Dreierberg to one "Janet" on her twelfth birthday. But the book is no juvenile, rather a subtly considered study of a so-that was what the older ducks thought; and the little ducks were too much interested in the plan to interrupt. So now they looked at each other with expressions that said:

"Don't say anything or do anything until we hear all about it. We don't want to miss our chances of some fun."

"Even if we can't afford to send our ducklings to a camp, I think we should let them have a great deal of fun by themselves in the summer," Mrs. Quacker continued.

"They should be allowed to have picnics and go off down the stream by themselves and even make camps of their own. They could do it."

"But I believe we can all afford this camp. I understand it's not very expensive and it's excellent."

"Do you mean to say you know of a camp all ready for ducklings?" quacked Mrs. Quacker excitedly. Then, as she did not wish Mrs. Quacker to be superior to her in knowledge and information, she added:

"I suppose I would have heard of it, but we've had fires over in Puddle Muddle and we've been in the midst of danger."

"That's true," quackingly agreed Mrs. Quacker, who was so excited with the idea that she was not being at all snobbish or superior now.

New Books

By JOHN SELBY. The reader who doesn't like books about China is in a bad way this summer. There was a book about China last week; there is one this week, and there will be another next week.

The current title is "River Supreme" (Bobbs, Merrill), Alice Tisdals Hobart's tale of an indomitable Yankee who is determined to force his ships upon the Chinese and the Yangtze, and is finally done in, smothered, one almost might say, by the weight of Chinese centuries.

The book is quite unlike "Oil For the Lamps of China" in some ways—it moves much faster and is written more directly, for example. The faster pace is in keeping with the subject matter, for Captain Hawley is one of those men with an obsession which never stops spurring him on. Hawley can override his wife, his servants and his son. But he cannot conquer his son's wife, nor the Chinese.

"River Supreme" is worth attention for another reason. It is written without the slightest fear. Mrs. Hobart is not trying to carry water on both her American and Chinese shoulders, and so speaks her meaning directly. What so many writers on China feels constrained to call Oriental "inscrutability" or some

CIRCUIT CLOUT CAUSES BEARS TO BEAT BUGS

New Bern, June 23.—Lefty Kennel provided a story book finish as New Bern defeated Greenville, 7-4 in a 16-inning battle here yesterday.

With two runners perched on the sacks in the home half of the extra inning, Kennel was sent in as a pinch-hitter. He responded by hitting the ball out of the lot for a homer.

Stuart Flythe, State College athlete, pitched for New Bern—and he held the visitors to three hits. The locals collected 12 safeties against the hurling of Davis and May.

Two of the Ferebee brothers—Smoky and Bill—featured for New Bern. Smoky hit a homer, a double and a single. Manager Bill hit a homer and a single.

The umpires were faced with a number of close plays, and the resulting decisions brought frequent disputes. The locals turned in two errors, while Greenville made three.

SPORT SLANTS By ALAN GOULD

KINSTON LICKS AYDEN Kinston, June 23.—Kinston and Ayden met for the first time yesterday—and the resulting 13-2 victory for the locals put Bunn Hearn's Kinston club in a tie with Ayden for the Coastal Plain League top.

They can argue about the longshoremen's draw between Max Baer and Primo Carnera indefinitely, but the number of disputed counts, but the clear, ringing fact remains that the new champion made a chopping block of the giant from Italy and probably would be quite happy to repeat the experiment in bag-punching any time an adequate stage-setting can be produced.

Carnera, of course, could have fought a smarter fight but he isn't that kind of a fighter and after being felled by two or three of Baer's smashing long rights to the side of the head, it is doubtful whether Primo thereafter was capable of collecting or using his scattered wits at all. The fallen champion believes a sprained right ankle, suffered in his first flop to the floor, was the main cause of his defeat, but for a man thus handicapped he moved around at a fair clip pace for the better part of eleven rounds, whether he was on his feet. Carnera's stamina alone enabled him to last as long as he did.

Never a Real Punter The fight should settle for once and for all the fact that Carnera has nothing that can rightfully be called a real punch. He cuffed and jabbed Baer with amazing courage for a man slowly being beaten to a pulp, but not once did he hurt the challenger or do anything more than annoy him by the force of 263 pounds behind a few cumbersome pokes.

How then, to account for the fact that the word "money" is said to be derived from the Roman "moneta," the name given to their silver by the Romans because it was coined in the temple of Juno Moneta, B. C.
