EXPECT DEAN HERE TODAY

"Lefty" Dean, last year's crack moundman of the Greenville baseball club, is expected to reach the city sometime today to rejoin the local club.

Dean, who has been playing with a semi-pro club in Massachusetts since the closing of Oak Ridge, announced the first of the week he had accepted terms of the local club to complete the season with the Greenville club.

Milton Harrington, "skipper" of the Greenville club, announced Dean's decision the first of the week and announcement was received with joy in local circles but with grimaces in other cities where the pitching prowess of Dean is too well known already.

In addition to helping Greenville capture the pennant last season through brilliant mound work, Dean appeared in the outfield from time to time because of his ability with the bat. He is one pitcher that can hammer the hide off the old apple and his two-fold ability will come in good this season with the locals hanging precariously near the cellar.

Harrington said Dean would not pitch tomorrow, but would be given opportunity to rest before contributing his part to the upward boost of the Bugs who have been crawling most of the season with occasional spurts of real baseball.

KINSTON WINS

Kinston, N. C., June 28.—Orlin Rogers, clever and cocky southpaw flinger, struck out thirteen and chalked up his fifth straight win yesterday as Kinston defeated Ayden, 5 to 0. The victory ran Manager Bunn Hearn's team's winning streak to eleven games. The win boosted Kinston's hold of first place to a margin of three games.

pitching of Belg Johnson and Tarboro. Kinston tallied twice in the second, and this formed the only scoring during Johnson's sojourn on the firing hill. The heat proved too much for the Wake Forest athlete, however, and he retired after the seventh. Kinston mixed safeties with a couple of errors to get three runs in the ninth.

NEW BERN TOPS TARBORO
Tarboro, N. C., June 28.—New Bern came from behind to score twice in the sixth inning and take a 4 to 3 victory over Tarboro here yesterday afternoon.

Just one hit figured in the winning New Bern rally, and that hit, a single by Norwood, started the rally. A walk and a nerror filled the bases. Billy Ferebee drew a walk to force in a run, and then Ham Ferebee lifted an outfield fly to send Smoky Ferebee home with the winning run.

Smoky Ferebee, with two hits, led New Bern. One of Smoky's former teammates at Carolina, Bill Croon, made a pair of hits to pace Tarboro's batting.

Loose fielding accounted for most of the scoring, as hits were at a premium. The locals made five safeties, and New Bern made four.

Batteries: New Bern—Wheaton and H. Ferebee; Tarboro—Shoaff and Richardson.

TAXICAB ORDINANCE IS TERMED UNLAWFUL

Durham, N. C., June 28.—The proposed taxi ordinance, requiring Durham taxicabs to carry liability insurance, was termed unlawful by Judge N. A. Sinclair who produced a number of Supreme Court decisions handed down last week to substantiate his statements.

The Durham taxi case is identical with that in Charlotte where an ordinance was recently passed requiring taxi concerns to carry liability insurance, the Fayetteville jurist said. The Charlotte dime taxi companies continued to operate in spite of the law.

The proposed tax insurance ordinance, temporarily shelved by the Durham city council, provides that all taxi companies carry liability insurance or present liability statements showing their ability to satisfy judgments in damages suits.

Overnight—Goodyear's "G-3" became the fastest-selling tire in the world!

HERE'S the tire everyone is talking about! It took Goodyear over 24 months to perfect it—but it took only 24 hours for it to become a nationwide sensation.

"G-3" is its name. Just the factory symbol for the tread that stood out in every test—kept its grip 43% longer than former All-Weathers—twice as long as other tires tested against it.

What a tire! Its tread is wider—flatter—has more rubber in it—more grip because there are 16% more non-skid blocks in the center of the tread. And beneath this huskier, handsomer, tougher tread is the only ply material able to stand the strain—Goodyear Supertwist!

Why should you get less safety for your money—when the "G-3" All-Weather costs no more!

First Church of Christ, Scientist.
"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 24.

The golden text was from I Cor. 8:6: "To us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Bless the Lord, O my soul. O Lord my God, thou art very great; thou art clothed with honour and majesty. Who coverest thyself with light as with a garment; who stretchest out the heavens like a curtain; who layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters; who maketh the clouds his chariot; who walketh upon the wings of the wind; who laid the foundations of the earth, that it should not be removed for ever." (Psalms 104:1-3-5).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Let there be light, is the perpetual demand of Truth and Love, changing chaos into order and discord into the music of the spheres. The mythical human theories of creation, anciently classified as the higher criticism, sprang from cultured scholars in Rome and in Greece, but they accorded no foundation for accurate views of creation by the divine Mind."

Getting Ready
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
The little ducks quacked happily when they heard that they were going to the Ducklings' camp, and now all the parents were busy making leafy blankets and doing up the grain and seeds to pay for the camp season.

"Now," said Mrs. Quacko to her children when they returned to Puddle Muddle, "I'm going up to see Willy Nilly and tell him all about it."

"Then he'll come down to the pond and tell me if I've forgotten anything. Willy Nilly has such a good memory and at present my duck head is in a wail."

Willy Nilly was working hard when Mrs. Quacko went up to speak to him. The rain had stopped, but it had refreshed the ground so much that everything looked ready to grow again. To be sure there were puddles everywhere, but no one in Puddle Muddle objected to them. The ponds and lakes were almost overflowing—and that gave pleasure to all except Top Notch, the rooster, and Christopher Crow.

"We're going to send our ducklings to camp this summer," Mrs. Quacko told Willy Nilly, "and they must be off tomorrow. You have such a fine way of remembering everything that I want you to come and look us over to make sure I haven't forgotten anything."

Willy Nilly hated to leave his work, but then he couldn't resist seeing the little ducks start off for camp.

"I haven't the backbone of an aspen leaf when the wind is blowing. I'm going to do Mrs. Quacko's thinking for her while forgetting about my chores," he thought.

Beaumont, Tex.—(AP)—Bobbie Bridges, 9-year-old Beaumont boy, claims to have come out on top after the following: Bronchitis, severe head injuries from a fall, dislocation of both knees in a fall, whooping cough, chicken pox, fracture of his right shoulder, mumps, diphtheria, emergency operation for appendicitis, tonsil operation, granulated eyelids and the measles.

It would take an automobile traveling sixty miles an hour 175 years to reach the sun from the earth.

Ours is a Frigidaire '34"

What a hit the Super Series Frigidaire '34 makes with its automatic defrosting! But that's only one feature of this fine Frigidaire '34. There's automatic ice tray release, too; and double Hydrator capacity. Then, interior lighting; the Sliding Utility Basket; the new Frigidaire Servashelf; and Lifetime Porcelain, inside and out!

Better come in and see these conveniences for yourself! Better still, have them for yourself. We've made it very easy!

Suit Slam Better
Holding all the aches and a fair suit besides, a prayer naturally has ambitions for a slam at no trump in order to increase his point total by 150. But when the structure of the big hand and bids of partner warn of possibilities difficulties in entering the responding hand, the thing to do is to select one of the suits of the responding hand.

In recognition of these facts is a deal at which Frank Quayle of Great Neck, N. Y., made seven clubs when six of trump would have been defeated through lack of communication between the hands. At the trump make, ruffing afforded a means of communication. Here is the deal:

NORTH		EAST
♠A942	♠A10643	♠8753	♠KQ2
♠AK	♠AK	♠J854	♠J854
♠AK	♠AK	♠KQ10	♠KQ10
♠KQ10	♠KQ10	♠QJ9764	♠QJ9764
♠QJ106	♠QJ106	♠QJ106	♠QJ106
♠98	♠98	♠98	♠98
♠9763	♠9763	♠9763	♠9763
♠1085	♠1085	♠1085	♠1085

North, the dealer, started bidding one heart and South called two clubs. North forced with three hearts and South said four diamonds. Over North's four no trump, South rebids clubs. Noting the inability to enter the South hand via diamonds and clubs and the lack of heart support South shown in the bidding, North restrained his impulse to bid a no trump slam. Instead he went to seven clubs.

Quayle was glad the slam was not.

at no trump, especially as there was no way of getting from the North hand to South at no trump except by the king of spades and eventually losing spades and hearts would have to have been led from North.

Against the seven club contract West led the queen of spades. The declarer noted that 12 tricks could be taken with ease by trumping one diamond and giving away on heart trick. But how could all the tricks be taken? The only possibility was a squeeze based on the theory that the adverse hand which held most of the diamonds held also the king and queen of hearts and could not protect them both. There were also the possibility that a squeeze would set up a spade.

West's spade queen was won South with the king, and a diamond was led to the ace. One the ace of spades a heart was discarded South. The ace and king of clubs were led and a spade was trumped South. The king and queen of diamonds were played, setting up the diamond ten as a menace which would enable either the West or East hand to be squeezed. Also the nine of spades North was a menace over West since the knave was obviously left in his hand, the queen having been led and the six and ten played subsequently.

After the king and queen of diamond South led out all his club. This was the situation with one more club to play:

NORTH: S-9; H-A J.
WEST: S-J; H-9 8.
EAST: 1-K Q.
SOUTH: H-7; D-10; C-7.

On the lead of the club seven West shed a heart and the now useless led spade went by the board North. Helpless East threw his diamond jack. The last two tricks were taken with the diamond ten and the ace of hearts.

A heart opening would have prevented the squeeze, since it would have taken out immediately the entry card containing the ace of lower cards against which East had to guard.

Something is doing away with Charleston, S. C. dogs. A few years ago 4,500 were listed on the tax books. Now the number has been reduced to 262.

LICENSED GAMBLING

Judging from reports from Raleigh regarding the looking into the slot-machine business by the State Revenue Department the state seems more interested in whether or not it is getting the money due from the operation of the machines rather than the menace these machines really are to our state.

Judge Sinclair in a recent ruling handed down in Durham declared that all machines that did not give a fixed and certain value on each and every play were in violation of the law, and it appears to us that under such a ruling the state could easily do away with all these machines. It is true that some of the machines, to an extent, comply with the law because they dispense either chewing gum or mints or the like on each play of a coin but even then this is not a fixed value, as we see it, for the attraction of the machines is that the player stands a chance, though very slim, of getting more than this fixed value, and that is why the machines are played. Call them vending machines or what you like, but when all is said and done they are nothing more than gambling devices and, as such, are robbing the people who play them. Instead of seeking revenues from the operation of the machines the state authorities had better give their time to putting the machines out of business and ridding the state of the present evil.

SPITE MARRIAGE

by Katharine Haviland Taylor

SYNOPSIS: Marsha Moore's parents have not given her a very substantial dowry upon which to set up her life's offerings—and Aunt Gertrude Moore's agnate home has only antiquated and loved objects. While waiting for Aunt Gertrude in a hotel lobby Marsha has invited Letitia Powers with the intention that her cousin, Bob Powers, has paid her. Then she leaves the little group.

Chapter Four AUNT GERTRUDE

"CAT!" breathed a muddyskinned girl, as Marsha moved toward her aunt, who had entered with a stride that told of her having marched in many parades—for this, against that; the sensitive missed the propaganda on the banner!

"He's really mad about her?" asked the girl who must live on synthetic emotion, who must warm her hands at others' fires.

"Absolutely!" Letitia admitted hollowly.

Some one else said, "He's seen no one but a Chinese cook for ten months, you know—"

"She is marvelously beautiful," said the girl who was honest.

"Yes; but I've known lovelier women who had nothing of her power!" said Letitia Powers and bitterly; "but you know what she

"Mrs. Powers called upon me this morning, Marsha."

"Absurd day to call; even I am bound to be in," Marsha responded carelessly.

"She is deeply troubled!" Miss Moore stated. "Deeply troubled!"

"The waiter is, too, dear," Marsha said, "so suppose you ask him what he recommends and then you can thumbs-down it and select something else, and he can depart in peace to the kitchen, and hibernate there for a season or two—"

The waiter bowed, Marsha looked around as her aunt frowned upon the menu. Marsha gave her own order crisply, quickly; the waiter disappeared and Miss Moore attacked anew.

"Mrs. Powers came to me, asking my help," Miss Moore began. "She is a gentlewoman of rare poise; a woman of years—"

"Oh, where is my handkerchief?" Marsha murmured. Miss Moore paid no heed to the interruption.

"She told me much of her son," Miss Moore went on; "he has been an exemplary young man. Always so thoughtful, she says; sending her primroses—"

"TO REMIND her of his path?" Marsha asked. Again Miss Moore ignored her niece's contribution to the conversation.

Marsha looked around the room.

does; what she can do; how she orders them around—"

"I was at school with her one year," said a blonde who sat slumped deep on lounge. "She had left the Church School here for some reason. I think she'd been kicked out, but—it was hushed up."

"And she went to Miss Vance's and each time we'd come back from school the rest of us—quite a group—would ask the red caps to carry our luggage; she never asked; she said, softly, indolently, 'My bag, pointed... it was snatched up... she would swing off, head high, while the rest of us waited to be served.'"

"How does she do it?" "Well, you know what's said—"

The heads drew close and the voices lowered. And Marsha, passing with her aunt, saw this and smiled.

Miss Gertrude settled at one of the window tables, without a smile. "What now?" thought Marsha. Something was, obviously, disturbing Miss Gertrude; and a something of considerable weight. Marsha studied the menu, wondering.

"I had not supposed you would be alone," Miss Gertrude began. "What have you done with Mr. Powers?"

"DON'T know," Marsha answered; "you know how careless I am with my men. Perhaps I checked him, but—what matter? What are you going to eat, Aunt Gertrude?"

"It is useless to try to evade with me," boomed out Miss Moore.

"True," Marsha agreed as she looked around the room to see whether anyone she knew was near. Stuyvesant Leggit was at a table near the orchestra; his eyes were upon Marsha and he flushed darkly as she nodded to him. He was among the legion, who had "never got over it."

"Who was that? I haven't my bifocals with me."

"Stuyvesant Leggit, Aunt Gertrude."

"I see and that brings me to the point, Marsha. I remember and too well how you treated Mr. Leggit—"

"It seems he—loves you, Marsha," Miss Moore confided, "and he has never loved before."

"I knew that," Marsha replied; "his technique is trifling. It quite takes me back to the dancing school age. I think he's dreaming of kissing my hand—"

"When you are quite through, I shall continue, Marsha."

"I realize that, my dear aunt, and that was rude, and I know you want your little say; so take a deep breath and—shoot, darling!"

Miss Moore stiffened; gave a thought to asking Marsha to express herself in a manner less suited to a taxicab chauffeur and abandoned this with her decision to keep for the moment, to the main track.

"Mrs. Powers confided to me that her son has never dallied—"

Marsha sat back to laugh. "Dallied—" she echoed, "but that is charming, Aunt! Ah, here comes our waiter!"

"Mrs. Powers informed me that—if you were not serious—you would break his heart!"

"I do hope she incorporated 'My boy' with the vox humana effect," said Marsha.

The eyes of the two women met as the waiter swooped to put foods, with a flourish of arm, on the small table, and Marsha's fippancy died.

She found herself to be oddly tired; nervous and angered, as she had not been for years, by her aunt. For the first time in all of her lonely, selfish, fighting, mature existence, she was troubled by a consideration of what might come, through her, to another.

She did not want to hurt Bob Powers. His trusting, level-looking, light-blue eyes had had strange effect upon her. At times these honest eyes had made her want to laugh hysterically and cry a little and to say, "Don't! You're quite mistaken! I'm not like that. I'm shallow and I've rolled in a hundred gutters, and I believe in nothing and you're wasting your good time and yourself!" But somehow she had been able to tell him nothing of the truth.

political situation.

Robinson has based his career in the Senate largely around the fact that he has been the champion of the cause of former service men. He has been probably the most outspoken man in the Senate against the administration's economy act which made such drastic reductions in veterans' compensation.

Whether Robinson, who lists in his official biography that he was successively first lieutenant, captain and major of infantry with overseas duty during the World War, will suffer by having an ex-soldier opponent remains to be seen.

Much more than this, however, enters into the Indiana senatorial fight. Those familiar with Indiana politics see possibilities of bitter factional strife among the Democrats as a result of Minton's nomination.

Generally regarded as the candidate of Governor McEwen, Minton may lose important party support. The faction controlled by Earl Peters of Fort Wayne and unsuccessful contestant for the nomination, are bitter foes of the governor.

Mississippi's "Three-Way"
Political insiders are speculating as to what Pat Harrison will do in the Mississippi three-way senatorial fight this year. The best information is that it all depends on what Huey Long does.

Reese Collins, representative in Congress, former Governor Babo and Senator Stephens are in the race. So far, Harrison, who doesn't come up for re-election until 1936, has shown inclination to be neutral.

A Washington Day Book

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The task of providing leadership for his party in the Senate during this session of Congress has been no easy one for Joe Robinson, of Arkansas.

He is credited with unusual success. While the Senate at times has shown disposition to be balky, even rebellious, he has been able to hold it in check almost all the way.

Robinson, however, has had his troubles. Rebuffs on veterans' compensation and the St. Lawrence waterways treaty are examples. Then, individual Senators have caused him a lot of trouble.

The Republican Robinson, of Indiana, and Huey Long must be mentioned in this connection. Were it not for these two his big job would have been much easier, certainly more peaceful.

The Indiana Robinson is up for re-election this year and has missed no opportunity to make himself heard on the floor of the Senate. His clashes with the majority leader have been frequent and the exchange often has been bitter and personal.

Digs From Long
As for the Louisiana "Kingfish"—there seems to be nothing Robinson can do about him. For that matter perhaps no one could. Long does as he pleases.

There have been times when he seemed to have taken a particular delight in tormenting Robinson. Their desks are on the same row, four or five removed from each other. When he is making a speech, Long watches Robinson like a hawk. If the Democratic boss gets up and leaves the chamber, he notes it immediately with, "I'm sorry the Senator from Arkansas is not here, for I wanted him to hear me."

During the seemingly interminable tariff debate, he roared Robinson and Harrison, of Mississippi, in charge of the bill, almost to the point of frenzy. He'd make as many as a half dozen speeches a day in other Senators' time besides those he made in his own.

And no plea to him had an effect.

Slated For High Court?
Robinson has tried almost every known senatorial device to squelch the "Kingfish" without success. Other Senators have, too. Each time he comes up for more.

It is said frequently on Capitol Hill that the Democratic leader is slated for a place on the Supreme Court as reward for his services to the administration. If a vacancy were to occur any time soon, however, President Roosevelt might find it difficult to spare him from the Senate.

Woodrow Wilson once remarked of Robinson that "he is the real moral and intellectual leader of the Democrats in Congress."

Were Robinson to surrender the Democratic leadership of the Senate for a place on the bench, the names of Barkley, of Kentucky, and Byrnes, of South Carolina, would figure largely among those to succeed him.

Son Dons Sire's Mantle; Outfits Arctic Expedition

London—(AP)—A student of Magdalen College, Oxford, is to carry on the name of Shackleton in polar exploration.

He is Edward, 26-year-old son of Sir Ernest Shackleton, whose exploits were cut short 12 years ago by his death while on the way to the Antarctic.

The son is to seek his spurs, however, in the opposite end of the earth—in little-known Ellesmere Land in the Canadian Arctic.

An expedition which he has organized under the leadership of Dr. Noel Humphreys plans to leave London in July, sailing in a sealer chartered by young Shackleton from Norway.

The interior of Ellesmere Land is unexplored and the chief scientific work of the expedition will be a geological survey and mapping. The explorers plan to winter in the region and to devote next spring to northern Ellesmere Land. They expect to be away a year.

Shackleton, who strongly resembles his noted father in looks as well as in interests, is president of the Oxford University Exploration Club under whose auspices the expedition has been launched with the support of the Royal Geographical Society and the Canadian government.

His principal interest is exploring and the walls of his room at college are covered with pictures of Arctic landscapes.

The last previous venture of the club was an expedition in Borneo from July to December, 1932.

For several months Shackleton has been busy learning from polar experts as much as he could concerning Polar equipment and conditions.

He has had conferences in Copenhagen with Dr. Lauge Koch, veteran Arctic explorer, and with the Greenland board. In Oslo he talked with Capt. Riser Larsen, famous Arctic and Antarctic flier.

Ellesmere Land, to which the expedition is heading, next to Baffin Land, is the largest of the Canadian Arctic archipelago, the greater part of which is on Eskimo reservation. It is like a deep saucer, with its interior lowlands flanked by coastal mountains.

'DADDY' BROWNING CRITICALLY ILL

His left side paralyzed as a result of a cerebral hemorrhage, Edward W. "Daddy" Browning, wealthy real estate operator and estranged husband of Frances "Peaches" Browning, was critically ill in a New York hospital. ### Thin, Worn-Out Tires Unsafe For Holiday Driving

Local tire leaders are taking an active part in the national effort being made to insure a safe and sane Fourth of July in their home towns by urging the inspection that will remedy or eliminate doubtful tires which may mar the holiday.

"There are undoubtedly more cars in operation now than there were at the same time last year," said E. G. Fanagan, Jr., of the John Flanagan Buggy Co., local Goodyear dealer, commenting upon the situation, "which means that in the case of holiday travel highway accidents are more likely to happen if a great many of these cars have to stop to repair tires or, worse, if tires go flat or blow out when traveling in heavy traffic."

"It is now pretty generally known that tires that are thin and well worn can't stand the gaff of summer driving on hot pavements. It is only natural that more tires 'let go' in warm weather than in cold because hot days expand their air pressures and the thin casings won't stand the added strain."

"About the best insurance for trouble free driving, Mr. Flanagan pointed out, is to take a few minutes for a careful check-up at a reliable service station. The Flanagan Buggy Company will make this inspection no charge and without obligation."

fractional range.

The return to the doldrums seemingly was predicated on the expectancy that a cue to immediate trend would be furnished by Washington and that for the moment discretion was the better part of valor.

Activity in stocks was much lower than yesterday's relatively dull session.

The ticker tape was silent minutes at the time and many issues were not even traded. American Telephone, for instance, did not change hands until one hour and forty minutes after the beginning of business. A few of the gold and silver mining and sugar issues commanded time followings, but they were not particularly higher ground late in the day. Transfers were 589,000 shares.

Washington, June 28.—(AP)—Settlement of the threatened steel strike was announced today at the White House.

St. Paul, June 28.—(AP)—John Dillinger, long hunted outlaw, is dead, Albert "Pat" Reilly, held on a charge of harboring the fugitive told federal investigators today.

Reilly told his questioners that Tommy Carroll, during a conversation in Minneapolis before Carroll was slain at Watrloo, Ia., June 7, had confided to him that the desperado was dead.

The statement regarding Dillinger's death came during the relentless questioning of Reilly which began immediately after his capture in a Minneapolis apartment and continued unabated today.

While Reilly was making this statement Chicago detectives here learned Dillinger attended a "ball game between the Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers in the Illinois city two days ago.
