Von Papen Stripped Of The V-Chancellorry In Germany

WILL REMAIN AS MEMBER OF THE CABINET

Home of Former Vice-Chancellor Raided Again Last Night; Von Papen Will Remain in Germany; Nazi Spokesman says he Will Take a Rest; Office Stripped of Furnishings

Berlin, July 5.—(AP)—Franz Von Papen, the "burr" in the side of the Nazi regime, will be stripped of the vice-chancellorry, the foreign department, but he will be permitted to remain in the cabinet as Sarr Commissioner.

Thus with the puzzling problem of the vice-chancellor's disposition for the time somewhat clarified, reports indicated that the Nazis have opened a vigorous anti-Jewish campaign in provincial centers. Along with these reports were rumors that Cardinal Michael Faulhaber, arch-bishop of Munich, was being held a prisoner.

These reports shared with others less well substantiated of growing unrest and dissatisfaction outside the capital.

Vice Chancellor Papen's office, next to that of Hitler, was stripped of its papers and furnishings from top to bottom and all his belongings taken to his private home where his secretary said his office henceforth will be.

The Associated Press learned from Fran Von Papen that their home, too, was raided again last night.

Even the furniture was removed from Von Papen's old office and scaffolding erected outside the building for alterations and a thorough cleaning. A party spokesman said an entire Nazi staff would replace Von Papen's men in the vice-chancellorry. Von Papen himself declined to be interviewed, saying his position would not permit it until after a discussion with the chancellor.

One of his secretaries said that the Vice-Chancellor would remain in Berlin rather than take a leave for the sake of his health, but a Nazi party spokesman insisted he would take a long rest.

LIGHT DOCKET BEFORE COURT

Three Cases Given Disposition in County Court Here Last Tuesday Morning

Approximately eight cases were docketed for hearing by County Court last Tuesday, but only three were directly disposed of, the remainder being continued until the next session.

The continued actions involved automobile wrecks mostly and were postponed because of the absence of highway patrolmen who were out of the city preparing to take care of the traffic jam on highways during the Fourth of July.

Henry Lewis, colored, convicted of a charge of selling whiskey, fined $100 and given a four months' suspended sentence to the roads, appealed to Superior Court under bond of $200.

Lewis was taken into custody by police here several days ago when they raided his home and found 12 gallons of contraband whiskey stored around the premises.

Charlie Whitchard, colored, charged with driving drunk, was given the choice between a fine of $50 and his license revoked for six months and six months on the roads. He accepted the road sentence.

Convicted of stealing potatoes from the Boyd farm, Charlie Ross was given a suspended sentence of four months on the roads. The sentence was conditional, providing that he should stay off the Boyd farm for three years.

AFTER HITLER SMASHED REVOLT

This picture, transmitted from London to New York by radio, shows armed police on bicycles patrolling the deserted streets of Berlin after Chancellor Adolf Hitler ruthlessly smashed a revolt of oppositionists to his rule. JULY FOURTH QUIET HERE

Business Houses Close And Ball Fans See Greenville Lick Tarboro Twice

The Fourth of July passed quietly in Greenville and vicinity yesterday and citizens who did not hit away to watering places for swimming and fishing remained at home and found such diversions as they could during the day.

The high light of the observance here was the ball game between Greenville and Tarboro. Greenville fans had the unutterable joy of seeing the "Bugs" lick the Tar Babies in the morning here, and numbers went to Tarboro in the afternoon to see the locals repeat the performance.

It was a great day for lovers of the national pastime. It was the first time in years they had seen the home town club capture both games of the holiday double bill, and the majority slept peacefully last night with visions of another pennant dancing in their dreams.

Business houses and public buildings were closed throughout the day and employees were afforded an opportunity to do whatever they saw fit to celebrate the Day of Independence. Several firecrackers popped intermittently during the day, but they were small ones and did not bring back recollections of historic battles of the Revolution in which America won her liberty from Great Britain.

Law-enforcement officials said today violations were at a minimum with a few minor arrests being reported. These consisted mainly of drunks who could not resist the temptation to take on more than their share of intoxicating juices during the holiday. Some landed in jail while others were permitted to return home to sober up today with enlarged heads and weaker hearts.

No special exercises in commemoration of the signing of the Declaration of Independence were held here as in some other sections of the country, but the occasion was a pleasant one and independence seemed to be the order of the day where one went.

TWO SUFFER INJURIES WHEN CAR OVERTURNS

Wilson, July 5.—Woodrow Batts, of Petersburg, Va., and Bennie Batts of Bailey, brothers, are in a local hospital suffering from serious head injuries sustained Sunday when the car in which they were riding overturned near Simms. The car was demolished in the accident.

Both men suffered cuts and bruises about the head and face, and one was believed to have been internally injured.

DIES FROM EFFECTS OF HEAT PROSTRATION

Hamlet, July 5.—J. Bruce Gibson, about 39, died here yesterday morning at 7:30 from heat prostration which he suffered Friday afternoon while working with the highway forces. He was an ex-service man.

Funeral services were conducted at 3:30 this afternoon at the residence by Rev. J. H. Shore and Rev. J. H. Buffalo, and interment was in the Gibson cemetery.

DEFER PROBE IN CAR DEATH

Inquest in House Station Wreck Postponed Until Injured Recover

The second inquest into the death of Hardy Mizelle, 55, farmer of the Old River Road community, who was killed Monday afternoon in an automobile collision with Haywood Dail, Jr., of Greenville, has been postponed indefinitely. It was made known today by Coroner A. A. Ellwanger.

The investigation was set for last Tuesday night at 9 o'clock but Coroner Ellwanger said two other men injured in the accident had not recovered sufficiently to attend the inquest, and the postponement was ordered.

The injured men are Willie Mizelle, son of the dead man, and his uncle, Isaac Mizelle of Martin county. They are receiving treatment in the local hospital but are expected to be out in a few days, the coroner stated this morning.

The accident occurred at House Station Monday afternoon at six o'clock. The Mizelles were coming in the direction of Greenville at what investigating officers described as a high rate of speed, when they attempted to pass Dail on the right side of the road. Their car struck Dail's front fender, went out of control, crashed into an oak tree several yards away and turned turtle, pinning the occupants beneath.

The death car was driven by Oscar Mizelle, another son of the dead man, whose injuries were not considered serious. He was released from the hospital the next day.

Dail entered the highway from a side road, and according to reports had straightened himself on right side of the highway when the Mizelle car attempted to pass on the right side, running far out on the shoulders.

All of the injured were rushed to the hospital but the elder Mizelle died several hours later of a crushed skull and internal injuries. While painfully hurt, Willie and Isaac Mizelle were not considered seriously injured. Mr. Dail escaped with shock and slight damage to his car. The other machine was virtually demolished.

The American Legion is sponsoring this pageant not only for the purpose of giving some Pitt County girl an opportunity to win a trip to Greensboro or Miami, but also for the purpose of helping the Legion carry on its program of work in the county. The Legion this year has given cash prizes in the High School, has made donations to the Bible School, is helping pay the hospital expenses of a man in Duke University Hospital, and doing other worthwhile things. The Legion, therefore, requests this community to stand behind this Beauty Pageant in order that it may be a success.

DEATH TAKES A HOLIDAY IN THIS COUNTRY

Death Rate This Year From Fourth July Celebrations Reported Cut Sharply

(By The Associated Press) Death took a holiday as the Carolinas observed the Fourth of July. A check-up today showed there were no unusual number of deaths from motor accidents, drowning, fireworks or other violent or accidental causes.

North Carolina reported three deaths, two drownings and an automobile fatality, while two deaths from automobile mishaps were reported from South Carolina.

Henry Earl Bennett, 26, farm hand, was drowned in the Catawba River near Charlotte when he ventured into the water too deep for him, and Robert Harper, 19, negro, was drowned in the inter-coastal waterway canal near Sea Breeze, in Pender County.

Near Fayetteville, Clara Horne, 19, was fatally injured when the car in which she was riding turned over after a tire blew out.

(By The Associated Press) America celebrated its 158th birthday anniversary in the sanest manner in recent years with the lowest number of deaths since 1929. A total of 76 men, women and children gave up their lives on the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence a drop of nine from last year, and only about one-third of the number who perished in 1931.

BEAUTY SHOW HERE FRIDAY

Legion Pageant to be Presented at High School Auditorium At 8:30 o'Clock

The Beauty Pageant sponsored by the American Legion, under the direction of Ted Pauling, will be held tomorrow evening, Friday, July 6, in the High School auditorium at 8:30 o'clock. Approximately sixty young ladies of Pitt County will take part in this pageant. Since the Greenville Post of the American Legion draws its membership from practically the entire county, with the exception of the Farmville area, and since the Farmville post is not staging a beauty contest young ladies from the entire county will be invited to participate in this pageant.

In addition to the representatives from Greenville, will be young ladies from Farmville, Ayden and Bethel. The judges for this contest will be out-of-county people. The winner of this contest tomorrow night will be awarded a trip to the State Convention of the American Legion with all expenses paid.

The State Convention will be in Greensboro on August 26, 27 and 28. The winner of the State-wide pageant in Greensboro will be given a trip to the National Convention of the American Legion in Miami in October. Miss Helen McGinnis was awarded the title of "Miss Greenville" last year. Miss Edna Taylor, of Washington, N. C., was awarded the title of "Miss North Carolina" last year, and was given a trip to Chicago with all expenses paid.

The American Legion is sponsoring this pageant not only for the purpose of giving some Pitt County girl an opportunity to win a trip to Greensboro or Miami, but also for the purpose of helping the Legion carry on its program of work in the county. The Legion this year has given cash prizes in the High School, has made donations to the Bible School, is helping pay the hospital expenses of a man in Duke University Hospital, and doing other worthwhile things. The Legion, therefore, requests this community to stand behind this Beauty Pageant in order that it may be a success.

Bailey Chosen As Trade Body Speaker July 12

Honorable I. M. Bailey, prominent Raleigh attorney and former Corporation Commissioner and last year's president of the North Carolina Bar Association, will be the principal speaker at the ninth annual meeting of the Eastern North Carolina Association (Carolina Shippers' Association) which will be held at Bayview on Thursday, July 12. The membership of the organization is very much interested in hearing Mr. Bailey, not only because he is one of the outstanding attorneys in the State, but also, because he is well versed in freight rate and transportation matters, and many other problems effecting not only this section but the entire State.

The delegation will leave Washington, N. C., and go to Bayview and return on the "Emblane," the Norfolk, Baltimore and Carolina Line's new 400-ton boat which will be sent down from Norfolk for this purpose. An interesting program has been prepared and many matters of interest will be brought before the meeting and disposed of, including a general program for the coming year.

The association has done a great deal of work during the past year, and its program will be greatly enlarged for the coming year. Several hundred business and professional men in the section are expected to attend this meeting.

C. W. Howard of Greenville, who succeeds the late Dr. Wright as president of the association will preside. Officers and members of the board of directors will be elected for the ensuing year at this meeting.

DRURY SETTLE IS KILLED IN AUTO MISHAP

Greenville Young Man Victim of Car-Train Collision At Marsden Last Night

Drury Spain Settle, 20, popular Greenville young man, was killed this morning at 12:30 o'clock when the automobile in which he was riding crashed into a moving freight train at Marsden, on the Greenville-Washington highway.

Carl Brown, also of Greenville, received serious injuries of the chest and his condition today was described as precarious, although doctors said he had a "fighting chance." Robert Exum of Snow Hill, driver of the coupe, suffered minor injuries.

Funeral services for young Settle will be conducted from Eighth Street Christian Church tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. W. A. Ryan, pastor, assisted by Rev. W. A. Davis, of Washington, N. C., pastor of the Mount Pleasant Christian Church, Pitt County. Interment will be made in the Mount Pleasant Churchyard on the north side of Tar River.

Surviving are his parents, Rev. H. H. Settle, who has been confined in a sanatorium in Kentucky for several years, and Mrs. Settle; a sister, Miss Helen Settle, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Spain, with whom the young man made his home.

Settle and Brown went to a river camp below Washington yesterday for a swim. Last night they returned to Washington where Settle went to see a young lady friend. Shortly before midnight he and Brown went to the river bridge to catch a ride back to Greenville.

Exum came along and picked the youths up. Visibility is poor along the highway at Marsden, and Exum did not see the moving freight train until too late to stop. He applied his breaks, but seeing that he would be unable to stop in time, swung the car to the left, throwing the right side occupied by Settle against the train.

Settle and Brown were rushed to the Washington hospital, but Settle, suffering from a crushed skull and broken shoulder, was dead when they arrived. Exum was brought to Pitt Community hospital here but it was not thought his injuries, which, although painful, were necessarily serious.

Settle was graduated from Greenville High School in 1931. He attended East Carolina Teachers College two years, and the past year was an honor ministerial student at Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa.

During his vacation he was employed by Warren Drug Store here. He was one of the city's most popular young men, possessing a genial disposition that endeared him to a wide circle of friends. News of his death was received with profound shock and sorrow.

Mrs. Roosevelt Visits The State

Asheville, N. C., July 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and her two companions, on a visit here, Miss Nancy Dickerson and Miss Nancy Cook, of Hyde Park, N. Y., left Asheville by automobile this morning after a two-day visit at the mountain industries of this section.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she would arrive in Morristown, Tenn., Norris Dam, where she and her friends will inspect the place before going to Tuswell, Va.

NEW NOTE TO BE DIRECTED TO GERMANY

Diplomatic Conversations Expected to be Presented if no Note Is Dispatched; Britain's Plan of Attack Will Not be Followed by America; Moratorium Draws Protest

Washington, July 5.—(AP)—The United States will demand that Germany give Americans an even break with Britain in the payment of debts.

This became known today as the official reaction to the news that the Reich has agreed to pay interest for at least six months on the Dawes and Young loan bonds held by British subjects.

About $1,500,000,000 of German obligations are held in this country. Authoritative sources said a new note asking equality may be dispatched to the Reich. If no note is sent diplomatic conversations are expected to be presented.

Britain's threat to seize German commerce in funds was considered potent.

But the United States enjoyed a favorable balance of trade with Germany. That is, Germany buys more from America than America buys from Germany.

Any idea that the United States could follow the British way of retaliation therefore died a-borning because this country stood a chance to come off second best in any trade war with Germany.

Germany's announcement of a moratorium on interest payments last month brought a quick protest from the United States.

ROOSEVELT TO CONFER WITH PRES. VINCENT

President of Haiti to Board American Warship For Conference

Aboard U. S. Glimmer, Accompanying President Roosevelt, July 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt cruised leisurely along the northern shore of ancient Haiti to a rendezvous today with President Stenio Vincent of the island republic.

After successful Fourth of July fishing on choppy Bahaman waters, Mr. Roosevelt was scheduled to receive President Vincent at noon aboard the cruiser Houston.

President Vincent who went to Washington recently to visit Mr. Roosevelt, planned to board the cruiser at Cape Haitian beneath the green island mountains.

From there President Roosevelt will proceed to Porto Rica for the first landing of his vacation voyage at Mayaguez. He will ride overland into San Juan.

The President had a good haul in his five hours of fishing on the Fourth with his sons, Franklin, Jr., and John Roosevelt.

FAYETTEVILLE GIRL IS KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Fayetteville, N. C., July 5.—Miss Clara Bell Horn, this city, was killed in an automobile accident yesterday afternoon on the Fayetteville-Elizabethown highway when the blowing out of a tire caused the overturning of a car driven by Corporal Linwood Long, of Fort Bragg.

Miss Horn died on the way to the Highsmith Hospital. She was the daughter of Lee Horn and resided with her sister on Person Street. Funeral arrangements had not been concluded last night.

The accident occurred at Bladen County, and an inquest will be conducted there, it was said at the local police station. The accident was investigated by Sergeant Devane of the military police, who stated that the car turned over three times after the left rear tire blew out on a curve.

The injured pair were brought to Fayetteville by J. A. Rowland and T. N. Park, of Raleigh. Long suffered only minor injuries and was sent to Fort Bragg for medical attention. He is a member of the Eighth Motor Repair Section. No charges were preferred against him, and there was no evidence of negligence on his part.

TWO GIFTS TO BIBLE SCHOOL

Total Contributions Reach $338.55; $400 Goal Expected to be Reached Soon

Contributions to the Daily Vacation Bible School stood at $338.55 today, it was indicated by records in the hands of the finance committee, headed by Dr. G. R. Combs, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

The total reached this amount with two contributions during the morning. One from the Philanthropic Class of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church was for $5.25 and the other from Miss Hennie Whitchard was for $1.00.

With the goal of $400 drawing nearer each day, members of the committee were hopeful of completing their work the latter part of the week. Persons who have not contributed are urged to do so at once and in that way do their bit toward improvement of the spiritual, physical and moral life of over two hundred children enrolled in the school.

Dr. Combs made a final appeal to the public the latter part of last week, expressing the hope that contributions would be liberal enough to reach the goal during the present week.

The school is sponsored by the Ministerial Association in cooperation with the city school system and is directed by a staff of highly trained teachers.

The yearly losses of the American public by embezzlement are estimated at $150,000,000.

BLIND CROSSINGS SHOULD BE ELIMINATED

The fatal accident at the Chocowinity railroad crossing last night should be further evidence that some steps should be taken to protect motorists at that spot. The railroad crossing at Chocowinity is in a bottom with the highway sloping toward the tracks from each side and in the case of an unlighted freight car on the crossing a motorist cannot observe that the crossing is blocked until in many instances he is too close to stop his car. Very frequently freight trains are shifting back and forth across the highway there at all hours of the day and night, and while only one serious accident occurred at the spot last night several narrow escapes at the crossing earlier last night have been reported today.

While at times a flagman is on duty at the crossing in the case of a freight train on the crossing at night a motorist cannot see the light of the flagman if he happens to be approaching from the opposite side from that on which the flagman is located and the flagman in such a case is of little or no value. Either the crossing should be eliminated entirely by the construction of an underpass or the railroad should be compelled to install a set of well lighted gates at the crossing for the protection of highway travelers. Already far too many lives have been snuffed out at this spot and steps should be taken without further delay to remove this hazard. And while something is being done about it attention should likewise be given to the other five unprotected railroad crossings between this city and Washington.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—President Roosevelt is credited with another masterly bit of strategy in naming Frances Perkins his personal representative in negotiations seeking settlement of the country's greatest labor problem—the steel industry dispute.
For that job to be assigned to a woman—even one of Miss Perkins' known ability—came as a shock to many observers. It's a tough problem, and one usually considered outside the sphere of feminine undertaking.
Some idea of the situation's tenseness can be shown by an incident which occurred in the office of General Johnson.
He was in conference with labor representatives of the industry when a group of the employers entered without being announced.

SPITE MARRIAGE

by Katharine Haviland Taylor

Chapter Nine
PASSAGE AT ARMS
"I WISH," said Marsha "that I were nice enough to belong in this house." She realized it had been long since she had done more than to laugh at the word "nice," and now she had said it seriously and her eyes had brimmed.
"But, dear, you do belong in this house and to us!" Bob's mother assured her. She added in an aside to Bob, "A little nervous," and she added to that, and more loudly, "Bob," will you be so good as to ring for tea?"

Marsha had caught it all. Bob laid a hand on her shoulder as he moved toward the bell. They were both anxious that she should be happily at ease with them and beyond feeling nervous while within their reach.
"Oh, don't!" she thought "don't be so kind!"
The tea was, patently, a gala affair; the best of all the good porcelain was upon a huge, gleaming silver tray which Bartholomew brought to set on a solid table before Mrs. Powers. Mrs. Powers measured from a caddy tea that had come from China. Bob sat staring at Marsha. Marsha tried to speak easily, naturally, but she could not.
At dinner that night Miss Gertrude was rarely loquacious. She had the curiosity that thrives in persons without imagination to reveal spiritual toes upon which questions may tread.
"I am, frankly, eager," she admitted with an acid smile, "to hear of your adventure of this afternoon; I could not conceive the—let us say—melange."
"It was a bit strange," Marsha answered. She stared a little tragically at the silver which, having come from such proudly respectable ancestors, had always made her feel more than ever the Pariah she knew she was.
"How did Mrs. Powers impress you?" Miss Gertrude probed on.
"She impressed me as a woman who had gone into caps at twenty-seven," Marsha answered pertly, "and I know she knits those scratchy wash-cloths that are wrapped around the soap that smells like a dog being treated for mange, and I could see her giving the amalgamation to the servants—with advice. Is my description adequate, or do you require more?"
That was Marsha's old manner, but she had lost her way to the music and she could but chant the words with a new bitterness. Even Miss Gertrude who saw little beside her own righteousness, noticed the change.
"I presume you will break it off?" she queried.
"I presume I shall," Marsha agreed. She added, "It has been done before."
"I think perhaps," Miss Gertrude commented, "that it will be the most heartless and wicked thing that even you have ever done."
"We'll not quarrel about that," Marsha stated. "I feel as do you. No, thank you, Alice, I don't care for any sweet."
She rose then; "If you'll be good enough to excuse me, Aunt—"

"WELL!" Miss Gertrude murmured as Marsha left the room. She had never thought anything could touch Marsha and Marsha was obviously touched. "But it won't last, it can't last!" she thought triumphantly.
Marsha, nervous in the drawing room, wanting to move this, that, knowing she dared not as each object had its sacred spot—wondered whether Geoffrey had telephoned while she was out, perhaps.
She wanted to see him, needed to see him.
She wanted to be taken back by him to the ground where one stood, careless of others' hurts; to the ground where one thought only of "killing" one's own drearily stretching time.
She moved toward the dining room. "Alice," she said, her voice quick and sharpened by strain, "did Mr. Tarleton telephone this afternoon?"
Alice answered with, "No, Miss Marsha."
Miss Gertrude smiled without raising her eyes from her plate; her smugness sang, "The way of the transgressor is hard," and Marsha saw, through her, that Pharisee who thanked his God that he was not as other men.

She could not stand much more, she felt, as she stood by a window of the drawing room to trace the cars, by their gleaming lights that followed the avenue. Years, it had been since she had suffered thus from her aunt's smile and its implication.
Why must she turn back to the younger heart that could suffer? What had made her turn?
What could she do about Bob? It was Geoffrey she wanted, Geoffrey. Close to three weeks he had been in town now, and without sending a word to her.
She puffed deep on her cigarette to see, in the blue, floating smoke, Mrs. Powers, saying, "But, dear, you do belong in this house and to us."
She belonging in that house? Why couldn't she laugh at it? She had sneered at nervous breakdowns. Was she to suffer one? She mustn't cry, and she wanted to cry all the time.
"Doubtless Mrs. Powers will be relieved," said Miss Gertrude who appeared to pursue the theme, "but it will seem hard to the young man for a time... although I presume he will live to thank you."
That stopped Marsha's impulse to tears.
"But you're simply too fond of me, Aunt," Marsha replied, "you think everyone must love me as you do!"
It silenced Miss Gertrude. She glared, and making her angry helped a little. Alice appeared to say, "The telephone, Miss Marsha."
Marsha's heart beat hard, but it was not Geoffrey who had called her. It was only Bob.
"Yes?" she said wearily after his short, heavily-charged and eager, "Dear?" She could not keep it up much longer, she knew. It was, actually, making her ill.

NOVEMBER had frozen and thawed again and again; the last of its weeks was held, for the most part, in a fog which turned the river and harbor craft clamorous and that made old scenes strangely and eerily new.
Miss Gertrude was loud in her descriptions of the deaths from influenza, which was "creeping over the city to paralyze it"; she shook her head and gloated, a blue-blooded ghoul, who called her fascination for the morbid, "my ready sympathy."
Marsha forced her smile and dwelt upon those lines of Housman's which have to do with dressing and washing and eating and thinking and "God knows why." She tried to fill her time and she tried not to think. She thought a great deal and she could not fill her time.
"You're so strangely and unhappily restless!" Miss Gertrude complained over her solitaire cards and her never-ending games.
It was a relief when Marsha realized Bob knew. He came the last evening of November. Alice admitted him in her grim and silent way; Marsha looked up from the book, which was with all the rest she'd read lately, "so dull!" to see him standing in the doorway that led to the hall and seeming to fill it. She appreciated his silent entrance; it was novel and like him.
"I didn't hear you," she said.
"Come in—"
He moved across the room without speaking and with the long stride of a tall man whose waist has been thinned by work outdoors and whose shoulders have been broadened by it.
Marsha looked up at him testily. "I think you're not very glad to see me," she said.
"God help me, I am!" he answered; his voice was roughened and he breathed a bit unevenly.
She rose to stand by him; he had evidently been walking, coat open and blowing. Little heads of mist were on his waistcoat; his stiff shirt was pock-marked.
He looked more ruffled than she had dreamed he, who was so contained, could look.
"Why the Paavo Nurmi feat on a night like this?" she asked; she knew well enough; but anything to get it over! "There's a lovely dew on your shaggy fierce eyebrows."
"I do like them, Bob! You really are as gentle as a lamb and as innocent as those old maids who serve on committees for the suppression of vice, but you can look so alarming!"
He said nothing, staring down on her.
"Well," she went on, "the day has been dull! Get at it! You're going to ask me whether it's all been a game, aren't you?"
(Copyright, 1934, by K. Haviland-Taylor)

Marsha goes through a bitter scene, tomorrow.
While Miss Perkins has been named the President's personal representative "fully empowered," by his own words, "to represent me in taking whatever action seems advisable under the circumstances," the actual work of trying to force an agreement between employers and employees of the industry more than likely will be left to others.
Men such as Ed. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, will go into the conference rooms and do the desk-pounding and shouting.
Peacemaker
Miss Perkins' principal mission will be to endeavor to keep things running as smoothly as possible and to try to pacify those on both sides who have their feelings hurt and tempers ruffled.

That is believed to be the real reason the President picked her for the job. General Johnson, who had been in command of the situation before for the government, apparently is now out of the picture.

'Champagne Cork' Gondola Planned For Stratosphere

Brussels—(AP)—A plan to ascend between 90,000 and 100,000 feet in a balloon has been worked out by Professor Auguste Picard, pioneer explorer of the stratosphere.
"The idea I have in mind," he said, "is a solo flight in an airtight cabin having the outer appearance of a large champagne cork."
"The lower part would afford just sufficient room for me to stand upright. The upper part would mushroom out so I could move my arms and head and take pictures through windows."
"Inclusive of myself, the balloon and cabin would weigh not more than 1,830 pounds. The balloon would have a capacity of nearly 200,000 cubic feet, the bag having a diameter of 150 feet and a height at the start of fully 300 feet."
The balloon would require an outlay, he estimated, of $50,000.

He has figured out theoretically that if he can rise 100,000 feet he would be afforded a view extending 400 miles in all directions.
"This venture, like the first stratospheric flight," the professor said, "would be aimed especially at finding out what is going on in this part of the stratosphere and to prepare the way for further investigations."
"The best place to start from, in Europe, would be Interlaken, Switzerland, or some other well-protected place between two mountain chains and at a safe distance from the sea. It is possible to know what kind of currents are to be met at such high altitudes.

CHEVROLET When Chevrolet announced price reductions several weeks ago, something important happened... something of vital concern to every buyer of a low-priced car: Chevrolet stepped into the most favorable price position it has enjoyed in a long time!

Reductions amounting to as much as $50—the most substantial price cuts announced in the low-price field this year—dropped Chevrolet's base price to a new low figure of $465. Just compare this price—compare any Chevrolet price—with those of other cars. Then compare what you get for what you pay! There'll be no question in your mind which car to buy once you do.

Chevrolet offers patented Knee-Action—and others do not! Chevrolet alone has a Fisher body! And the same thing applies to cable-controlled brakes, Y-K frame, shock-proof steering, and 80-horsepower, valve-in-head, six-cylinder engine. Chevrolet gives you far more features—far finer quality—a far better name for dependability. Yet the price of the Chevrolet Standard is lower than that of any other six or, of course, any eight in the world.

Camp Fireworks

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
The terrible object was nothing more than a great big old trunk of a tree that had been chopped at until it had been left as it was—an odd looking thing.

Little Yellow Beak forgot his fear, his homesickness, everything in the relief he felt. Of course the terrible object had not been able to answer him. Yellow Beak never would tell anyone how frightened he had been. They would think it such a joke and laugh at him all his life, and tease him mercilessly.

This would be a secret he would keep in his little duck head. But now he heard a great deal of excitement.

Camp Director Big Duck and Mrs. Duck were looking for him.

"Oh," they quacked as they saw him, "we thought you were lost."

"I am so sorry if I caused you any worry," said Little Yellow Beak.

"You must have walked in your sleep!" cried Mrs. Big Duck. "But all is well now, and we've got to celebrate."

Yellow Beak was thankful it was the Fourth of July, for with all its excitement they did not bother to question him any more, and now that the sun was warm, the sky clear, everyone so happy, Yellow Beak thought he would enjoy camp life. The parents all came over for the celebration and the Puddle Muddlers came too.

And late, late into the evening they watched the fireworks over Blue Lake. They were wonderful beyond all words.

PUSHES WORK ON BERLIN TRIP

Rev. J. A. McIver Encouraged in Daily Reflector Subscription Campaign

Rev. J. A. McIver, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, who is conducting a one-man subscription campaign for The Daily Reflector in the hope of obtaining funds for a trip to the Baptist World Alliance in Berlin, Germany, reported today he was making gratifying progress.

Mr. McIver visited Farmville Tuesday and was greatly encouraged by quite a number of yearly subscriptions, some of them new ones. Previously he had obtained quite a number of subscriptions from Greenville and other sections of the county.

He has a number of other territories to visit and expressed the hope he would be able to obtain a sufficient number of new and renewed subscriptions to put him "over the top."

He plans to sail on the steamship Europa from New York July 25, arriving in Berlin for the Baptist Convention August 4. After attending the four-day session of the World Alliance he will go to Oberammergau to attend the world-famous "Passion Play." He will then go into the Bavarian Alps, Lucerne and Paris, embarking at Cherbourg, for home August 18. All points of interest will be visited in the various cities.

Mr. Iver started his subscription drive last week, and through liberal premiums hopes to have his jeans filled with ready cash when the day for his departure rolls around.

The World of Stamps

By JINTON JAMES

A new king for Iraq in northern Arabia has meant a new issue of stamps for that country, which since it became a kingdom in 1927, has featured its ruler on its postal adhesives.

The present king is Ghazi, eldest son of Feisal, who succeeded to the throne at the recent death of his father.

The new set is the fifth in Iraq, but only the fourth change in printing. The first 1932 set consisted mainly of overprints of the 1927 issue, with an occasional stamp from the 1923 issue thrown in. It was necessary because of the change in money from annas and rupees to fils the "tree of life."

The latest issue consists altogether of 34 stamps, 17 of which are for regular postage. The remainder are surcharged for official use. The basic set follows the three general designs when King Feisal was alive except for the change in the king's portrait. The lower denominations, running 2 fils to 40 fils, are rather small. From 50 to 200 fils, the stamps are approximately one inch square, while the 1-2 dinar and 1 dinar are somewhat larger.

The stamps are bi-lingual, both English and Arabic being used.

The Park Stamps

Another change has been effected in the forthcoming U. S. national parks issue, due around the middle of July. It has been decided to place the Crater Lake Park scene on the 6-cent instead of the 8 and shift the Zion Park illustration from the 6. to the 8-cent. Also it has been announced that the second in the series, the 2-cent red/Grand Canyon, will go on first-day sale July 24.

The 1-shilling stamp of the new

Issue of Nyasaland, completing the set, has proved to be another addition to beauty in postage printing. The same design as the other stamps, it is in two colors, orange and black, the black being used for shading and producing quite a startling combination.

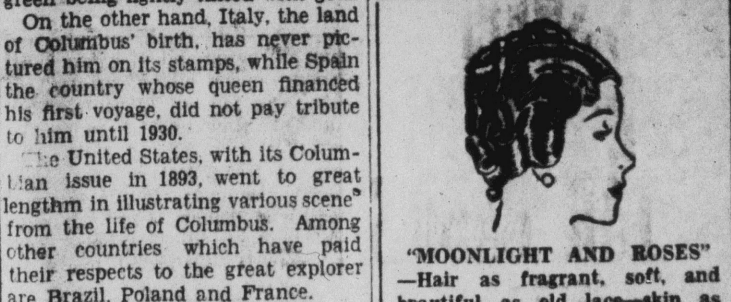

Chile and Columbus

For nearly 60 years, 57 to be exact, a country that Christopher Columbus never saw or for that matter never knew existed has pictured its stamps the discoverer of American republic of Chile.

The reason behind the selection of Columbus for its stamps lay in the postal regulations, which like those of the United States, provided that no living individual be used.

From the first issue in 1853, with one exception, until 1910, the stamps had various portraits of Columbus, a good example of which is the 1-peso stamp of 1905-09. It bears a large head of Columbus in relief and is printed in green and gray, the

Luncheon For Miss Bost

Complimenting Miss Elizabeth Bost who will be married this afternoon, Miss Frances Taft was a gracious hostess at luncheon Tuesday at her home on Eighth street.

The home throughout was artistically decorated in masses of summer flowers in various colors.

On arrival at one o'clock, guests were welcomed by Mrs. Bryce Sigmon and presented to the receiving line.

Receiving with Miss Taft were Miss Bost, Mrs. James Exum of Snow Hill, Mrs. Bob Ritter, New York, Mrs. Pete Kugler, Philadelphia, Mrs. Hal Tankard, Rocky Mount, Mrs. Frank Bowers, New York, Miss Adeline Mayo and Mrs. Lee Davenport, Washington, Mrs. Cecil Fisher, Wilmington, Delaware, and Mrs. John Glenn of Scarsdale, N. Y.

From the receiving line Mrs. J. Key Brown and Mrs. W. Hill Horne directed guests to the dining room.

From the attractively appointed table which was covered with lace, centered with a silver bowl of pink roses, snapdragons, larkspur and gypsophila, flanked by pink candles in silver holders, Mrs. A. H. Taft and Mrs. H. A. Bost served barbeque and slaw. From the buffet, Mrs. Charles O'H. Horne, Mrs. J. C. Tyson, Mrs. M. B. Massey, and Mrs. J. M. Taft served iced tea, pickles and breadsticks. Buffet decorations were a silver basket of mixed garden flowers. Mrs. W. H. Taft and Miss Annie Shields VanDyke served lemon ices.

Miss Taft presented Miss Bost with a silver sugar and cream set and Mrs. Edwin Wilkerson and Mrs. W. L. Whedbee, recent brides, with sport handkerchiefs. A large number of guests enjoyed this very delightful affair.

Return From Goldsboro

Mr. and Mrs. David J. Whichard, Jr., have returned from Goldsboro, where they were called on account of the death of Mrs. Whichard's sister, Mrs. Hart Norwood.

REDUCED TAX RATE SEEN IN MECKLENBURG

Charlotte, N. C., July 5.—Despite the fact that the county commissioners have agreed to appropriate $12,500 for the remodeling of the old jail property to provide required juvenile delinquent quarters, the board will be able to cut the tax rate from 5 to 10 cents under the present 60-cent rate, Chairman H. B. Fowler declared last night as the county auditor's office continued its work on the 1934-1935 budget.

The cut will place the new tax rate at from 50 to 55 cents, it was pointed out. This will give the citizens of the county outside the city a net saving of that much in their tax costs for the coming year and will reduce by that amount the county taxes of citizens of the city of Charlotte.

ABSOLVED OF BLAME IN GOLDSBORO DEATH

Goldsboro, July 5.—L. B. Warren, young Goldsboro mechanic, was freed of blame by a vote of 5 to 1 of the coroner's jury at an investigation of the death of Lewis Gaine, 61 year old filling station operator who died Sunday morning at the Goldsboro Hospital.

The verdict of the jury was that Gaine met his death as a result of the combination of a blow struck by Warren and the subsequent striking of Gaine's head against the sidewalk.

SUMMER IS PARTY TIME FOR YOUNG ENTERTAINERS

Summer is a good time for the children to entertain. It brightens their vacations and helps them to acquire poise in entertaining their guests.

If the party food is simple there will be less difficulty in carrying dishes. A large fabric set on the lawn can be used to serve from.

Frequently the guests list contains the names of many children, but the task of serving them must be handled by a few adults. In that case it may be advisable to have boys wait on the table for the first course and let the girls serve the ice cream and cake.

Always arrange an outdoor party so it may be brought indoors quickly in case of rain.

Tomorrow—"A Duck Fust"

Everything was very fine at the Ducklines' camp and all the little ducks loved it. Little Yellow Beak was homesick no longer. Sometimes he chuckled to himself as he thought of how he had tried to run home, and had not been able to more after he had seen the terrible object which was really nothing but the trunk of an old tree, very odd looking, but certainly as harmless as could be!

How surprised he had been as the light had come early that morning to have seen what had frightened him so all through the night. And fortunately the Fourth of July had interested everyone so much that they had not bothered to ask many questions.

"Now," quacked Camp Director Big Duck, "we must have camp drill. We'll go to the far end of the pond."

They all went to the far end of the pond and took their places.

"Now," quacked Camp Director Big Duck, "when I count 'One, Two, Three,' you all glide through the water but when I say 'Four,' you all duck your heads."

Each little duck understood and now they had their first lesson. They glided so easily through the water as he said "One, Two, Three," and as he said "Four," they all ducked their heads.

"Now, we'll go on to the next part of the drill," said Camp Director Big Duck.

But just then Quacks had given a tug at Downy Duck.

"You poked me and it hurt!" cried Downy.

"Mama's little baby, can't stand anything, quack, quack," answered Quacks.

TO ASK FOR POSTOFFICE BUILDING AT SMITHFIELD

PRINCESS MARIA'S CHARITY GIVES SIGHT TO INFANT

Naples, Italy.—(AP)—Princess Maria, attractive youngest daughter of the royal house who "came out" last winter, is credited here with an especially endearing good turn.

Some months ago the princess presided at a charity bazaar in the royal gardens here and Peditimo Baldan, a young mother, had the opportunity of presenting her blind infant son.

The princess promptly had the baby placed under the care of Professor Vittoriano Cavara in a clinic for eye diseases. Recently press and public hailed the princess when it was learned that the child had recovered normal sight.

Entertain For Wedding Party

Last evening, following the rehearsal for the Mayo-Bost wedding which will be solemnized at five o'clock this afternoon in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Bost and Mr. and Mrs. James Exum delightedly entertained at the Woman's Club.

The rooms in the club building were beautifully decorated in colorful flowers and suggestions of the approaching wedding.

Seated at the lace covered table, which was centered with a tiered wedding cake, Mrs. P. T. Anthony and Mrs. E. B. Ferguson served ices. Miss Emma Frances Hardee and Miss Elizabeth Kasey served cakes, salted nuts and mints.

Members of the wedding party found their fortunes in cutting the cake.

Guests included Miss Elizabeth Bost and Edward Long Mayo, members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

Entertainments At College

A number of excellent entertainments are coming to East Carolina Teachers College in the near future. All these entertainments will be given in the Austin Auditorium. The Davies Light Opera Singers will give a program Thursday evening, July fifth. This entertainment is by a group of artists who are not only excellent soloists but also very fine ensemble singers.

The North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, directed by Lamar Stringfield, will appear Saturday evening, July 7th. All who have heard this group of artists are looking forward to a most pleasing entertainment.

The Boston Art Quartet will be at the college on Monday evening, July 9th. This quartet brings together five of the most gifted and progressive artists in New England. The achievements of these individuals will be of interest to those who have an appreciation of high artistic standards.

BUGS SWEEP SERIES WITH TAR BABIES

Greenville "Bugs" of the Coastal Plain League evidently are bound for higher ground.

By sweeping the three-game series with Tarboro, the "Bugs" today were bidding for a higher place in the standing of clubs after lingering next to the cellar, one rung above Tarboro, the most of the season.

Tarboro, the victim of most clubs of the circuit all season, dropped Tuesday afternoon's contest to the tune of 9 to 6 and then let the "Bugs" take them for a ride in the double bill scheduled for the Gloucester Fourth.

The Fourth might have been glorious for most people, but not for several hundred Edgecombe capitalists who came to Greenville yesterday morning and jammed grandstand and bleachers in their hometown yesterday afternoon.

Yesterday morning Greenville copied the game 4-2, behind the consistent hurling of May, Duke sophomore. In the afternoon the battle was carried to Tarboro and the Edgecombe county lads took a more severe trouncing than in any other game of the series. The score was 8 to 1. D. Smith did the mounding work for Greenville in the last game and let Tarboro down with six scattered hits while his teammates were banging Stineke and Shoaf for a total of 13 safeties.

Tarboro obtained five hits in the morning game and Greenville 6. No single player obtained over one hit. Dean and Mills accounted for extra base drives, while Lauhn was credited with a three-bagger for the visitors.

Mills and Harrington set the pace for the boys in the afternoon with three safeties each, one by Mills going for three bags. One of the features of the game was a home run by Martin, Dameron, Martin and Smith also were credited with two bingles each.

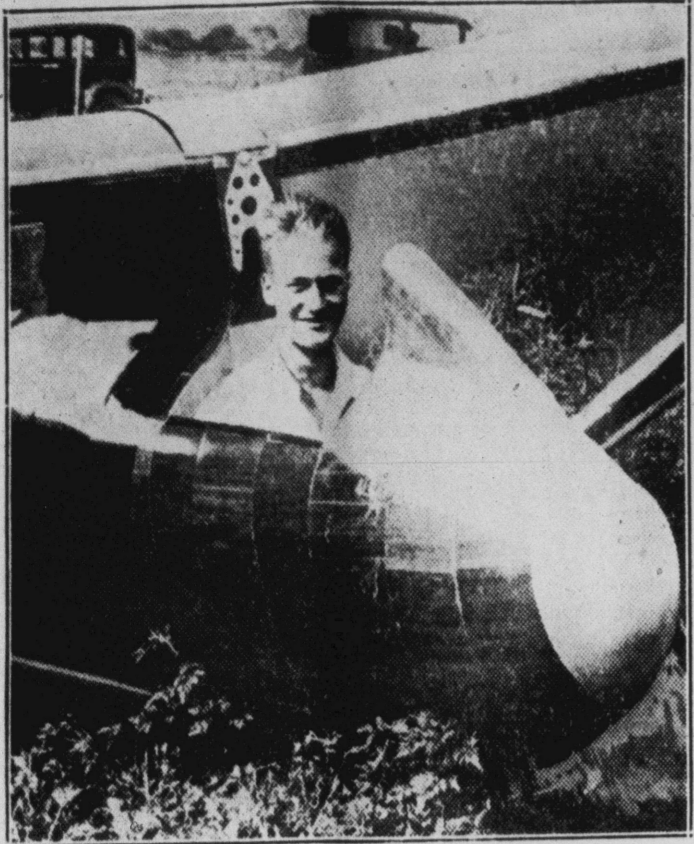

Nelson led the stick attack for Tarboro, chalking up two bingles, while four other members of the team were accounting for one each.

Three special additions to the local club showed up to good advantage in the Tarboro series. They are "Tick" Poole, last season's right fielder of the local club, who rejoined the outfit the first of the week; Martin, giant left fielder, and Mills, feet-footed, hard-hitting shortstop. Martin also is something of a power with the bat and gave a good account of himself.

Poole, veteran player, displayed some of his old tricks Tuesday afternoon by lashing out three hits. He wasn't so active yesterday, but his big bat drove several to the outfield which would have been good for safeties under other conditions.

New Bern was scheduled to play here this afternoon and with "Lefty" Dean, who rejoined the club last week after spending some time in the Red Sox training camp, on the mound, indications point to another win for the local club.

GLIDES 155 MILES FOR RECORD

Richard C. du Pont, son of Felix du Pont of Wilmington, Del., piloted a glider to a world's distance record of approximately 155 miles in the Elmira, N. Y., gliders' meet. Taking off from Elmira, he landed near Far Hills, N. J., after a flight of five and one-half hours. The old mark was 136 miles, made in Germany. (Associated Press Photo)

New York Cotton

New York, July 6.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, eight to eleven points higher in response to higher Liverpool cables and continued dry weather in Texas.

The initial demand sent the price of October up to 12.39, or within thirteen points of last week's high, but the buying was not active or aggressive, and there was sufficient realizing to cause reactions of two or three points from the best during the early trading. At the end of the first half hour October was selling at 12.336 with active months generally showing advances of about eight points.

The market eased off later in the morning under comparatively light offerings. October sold off to 12.31 and active months showed reactions to five to eight points from the early highs.

At midday October was selling at 12.35 with active months showing advances of six to seven points.

The market reacted later in the day on scattered liquidation and commission house selling.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, July 6.—(AP)—While few of the Independence Day fireworks were saved for today's financial market, traders generally returned from their holiday with a more optimistic viewpoint and prices reflected the improved sentiment.

Stocks, although moving dully most of the session, brought considerable encouragement to the technicians by advancing fractions to around two points. As there was little news of a stirring nature, the rallying tendencies of the list were variously attributed to scattered short covering and cautious buying.

Wheat got up a cent or so a bushel, but relinquished part of the gain later.

Later prices were around the day's best. Transfers were 400,000 shares.

stewards union, was clubbed over the head and knocked unconscious. As the police charged the pickets hurled a few rocks.

A fire broke out in a box car containing an automobile. The fire department tore out the side of the car and extinguished the blaze.

The box car was set afire despite a warning to the strikers by Governor Frank Merriman not to molest state owned property. The Belt Line Railroad is owned by the state.

A tear gas shell set fire to weeds on top of Lincoln Hill.

French Protest to Germany.
Berlin, July 5.—(AP)—The French embassy tonight issued a formal protest to Germany in the form of a vigorous denial that France was the villain in the foreign conspiracy phase of the recent Nazi revolt.

French sources said that the protest will be presented at the Wilhelmstrasse, where it was said yesterday French Ambassador Andre Francois-Poncet was promised that the German press would not dare France into a controversy over Hitler's charges that a famous "foreign power" was involved.

The Franco-German storm broke just as the government was trying to leave the gruesomeness of the revolution behind it and move on toward consolidation of the new positions.

Dismiss College Fire Case.
Raleigh, July 5.—(AP)—Magistrate J. B. Daniels this afternoon dismissed charges allegedly connecting Sam Harper and Robert Carroll with a recent series of fires in Wake Forest.

He found no probable cause on which to hold them for Superior court. The two young men who had been in custody since Tuesday were released after a hearing lasting over three hours, during which Harper repudiated an alleged confession in which he was said to have made to W. A. Scott, State Insurance Department investigator.

The alleged confession connected Harper and Carroll with one of the fires. Harper called as a state witness before Magistrate Daniels asserted he never saw the fire in question at the Hunter dormitory at Wake Forest College and said he was not in the dormitory on the night of the blaze.

The statement was in direct contradiction to the alleged confession which it was said he signed Tuesday in the presence of Scott, President Thurman Kitchin of Wake Forest, and J. L. Taylor, chief of police.

This morning Harper testified he made the statement against Carroll to get even with him. Harper alleged that Carroll had involved him in another case involving the stealing of an automobile battery.

Auto Sales mount
Raleigh, N. C., July 5.—(AP)—Sales of new autos and trucks in North Carolina in the first six months of 1934 were more than double the sales in the similar period last year. L. S. Harris, director of the Motor Bureau reported today.

In six months this year 19,115 new cars and 4,816 new trucks were sold compared with 9,599 cars and 2,220 trucks disposed of in the same period of 1933.

June sales of cars aggregated 3,726 cars, while 672 trucks were sold.

My Beauty Hint

By ESTHER BRODELET (Screen Actress)

To keep my hands fresh and lovely I avoid putting them in water that is too hot or too cold. To keep them from getting dry, I apply a good hand lotion after washing, and massage them with a good tissue cream at night.

An official survey of 3,305 rural homes in a typical North Carolina county revealed 31 log houses.

Seek Cutting Of Long Grass At Ball Park

Fans today urged the cutting of the grass in the outfield at Third Street school athletic field in order to give the league players a better chance to nab the old apple.

Several fans were heard to complain of the long grass today, declaring that it was impossible for the outfielders to go after the ball in the way they should without improvement of the condition.

The park is one of the finest in this part of the state and with due attention to the grass it should continue to hold its prestige as one of the best if not the best in the league.

COURT TO TAKE VACATION HERE

County court will take its annual vacation following next Tuesday's sitting, Judge Dink James made known today. Work will be resumed August 14.

Vacation has been under consideration for quite awhile but was not definitely decided upon until the first of the week when Judge James announced the date.

Some of the court officials are good fishermen and others don't care a darn about hanging a pole over the water to wait for members of the flyny tribe to take a noble Judge James is not so strong for wearing out his pants on river banks and has been kidded considerably because of his disinclination to try his skill on the water.

The kidding became so impressive last week that the judge actually accepted an invitation to visit a river camp over the week-end and test his skill at angling. His greatest ambition was to bring at least one monstrous fish back to the city to show to those who accused him of lack of skill with the rod and reel. Fish happened not to be biting that day and the judge returned home empty-handed.

It was a keen disappointment after his threat to show the boys he could coax even the most recalcitrant fish from his watery habitation and his perennial "dry" smile had almost disappeared when he gave out the distressing information he had enjoyed the proverbial fisherman's luck.

However, the judge still insists he knows how to fish and anybody else desiring company on a fishing trip will not be disappointed by a refusal from the jurist.
