Alabama Textile Workers Vote To Strike Stanley Baldwin Gives Assurance To Louis Barthou

30,000 MEN TO TAKE PART IN WALKOUT

Shorter Hours, Increased Pay and Changed Working Conditions Sought; Headquarters For Directing Strike to Be Located at Huntsville

Huntsville, Ala., July 10.—(AP)—The Times said today approximately 30,000 textile workers in Alabama mills have voted to strike and that a meeting would be held in Birmingham Sunday to vote on the strike date.

The paper quoted John Dean, personal representative of the president of the United Textile Workers of America, and Albert W. Cox, State representative, as saying the strike already has been voted for shorter hours, increased pay and changes in working conditions.

Headquarters for directing the strike it called will be located in Huntsville, one of the largest textile centers of the State. "During the past ten days, the paper quoted Dean as saying, 'every one of the 42 locals met and voted for the strike.'

Dean described the conditions of the workers as "the worst in the textile union." Dean also was quoted as saying the national union would aid the Alabama strikers.

DARROW HOPES HITLER IS SLAIN

With the statement, "If there are any more such as Adolf Hitler, I hope it will end in the killing of Adolf Hitler," Clarence Darrow, internationally noted lawyer, started off an inquiry into conditions in Germany. HITLER CALLS REICHSTAG TO MEET FRIDAY

Chancellor to Give an Account of Second Revolution to The World

Berlin, July 10.—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler today called the national Reichstag, rubber stamp of the Nazi dictatorship, into session Friday for an accounting of the "second revolution."

Silent since the climatic events of June 30, Dere Fuehrer himself will mount the forum of the national Parliament at 8 p. m. to address the nation and the world up on questions Germans and foreigners have been asking in explanation of the revolution attending the Nazi "purging" process.

Almost simultaneously with the Chancellor's announcement secret orders were issued in Munich to section of the storm troopers to turn in their arms which were described as state property. It was presumed the order came from Victor Lutze, new head of the storm troopers.

The Reichstag under the Chancellor's policy is called together only on the most important occasions when the attention of the entire world is focused on the meeting for the purpose of obtaining the representatives of the people to endorse his action and words by loud acclaim. The Reich has not met since January 30 when the Chancellor gave an exhaustive accounting of his first year's stewardship.

The Chancellor's address to the Reich, expectantly awaited for the last eleven days, will follow the one in which Paul Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda, will deliver tonight on "How the Country Regards July 3rd Cleansing."

Local People Will Receive $64,200.00

J. J. White, secretary of the Home Building and Loan Association, stated today that on Thursday, July 12, their 49th series would mature. The maturing of this series will pay to the people of Greenville approximately $64,200.

This association has paid to the people of Greenville in matured and dividends on full paid shares of $127,000 since January 1, 1934. They are also at the present time financing the construction and modernizing of a large number of homes in Greenville.

The 49th series, which is now maturing, earned the shareholders of that series approximately 6 3/4 per cent.

DELEGATIONS BOOST MORE HEALTH MONEY

Ask Commissioners to Increase Health Budget to Aid in Fighting Death Toll

Recommendations for an increase in health appropriations in this county for the next fiscal year were given hearty support by two delegations, representing the Pitt County Medical Society and the Kiwanis Club, appearing before the Board of County Commissioners in regular monthly session at the court house yesterday.

A proposal to increase the health department budget from around $5,000 to $8,000 annually, to permit the employment of an all-time sanitary inspector and additional nurse was presented to the board several days ago, in the hope of improving the infant mortality death rate in this county, described as the "highest" in the state.

Although the board listened to the delegations' request that the increase be included in the next budget, no definite action was taken. The members, however, assured the visitors that something definite would be done by the first Monday in August.

Mayor R. C. Flanagan, and Joe Taft, representing the city of Greenville, informed the commissioners the aldermen were ready to do their part in the employment of the all-time sanitary officer, believing that it would throw an additional safeguard around the lives of people in all sections of the county.

Taft, a member of the city council, acted as spokesman, and said the city fathers at a previous meeting had decided to join the county in the proposed movement for improved health. The city and county will be asked to appropriate $100 each a month for defraying the expense of the sanitary expert.

Spokesmen of the Medical Society who have vigorously stressed the pressing need of improved health facilities in view of the continued increase of the mortality rate among children, were Drs. L. C. Skinner, K. B. Pace and Tom Watson.

The death rate among children in Pitt was said to be 55 per cent compared with the state average of 19.3 per cent. The situation has been described as "staggering" by members of the medical profession especially in view of the fact that infants seem to be bearing the brunt of death's assault. The causes of the mortality toll were ascribed mainly to stomach disorders most common among babies.

The commissioners also voted to increase the salaries of court house employees ten per cent of the three cuts ordered the past three years. The commissioners had promised to restore the salaries as soon as conditions justified. The cuts in most instances were of a voluntary nature, especially among elective officers.

The cuts in most instances were Cox, Smith and McLawhorn; against, Williams and Dudley.

Queen Bee Shipped By Air

Miami, Fla.—(AP)—Officials of an airways concern here say their planes have transported about 75,000 baby chicks from Miami to Latin-American countries since air express service was started a few years ago. The smallest shipments on record was a queen bee consigned to British Guiana.

Man and Woman Held For Court Action After Raid by Police Over Week-End

A tow-in-one blind tiger fell into the hands of officers here over the week-end in a raid in the colored district of the city, it was made known today.

The "tigers," Aleck Williams and Pearl Clark, both colored, were being held in jail here today, charged with possessing liquor for the purpose of sale.

Police said they found three gallons of whiskey in quarters occupied by each of the prisoners. They occupied adjoining rooms and were easily accessible to one another in case of emergency, or shortage in rum supply.

Given preliminary hearing in the mayor's court here Monday morning they were bound over to County Court under bond. The woman's bond was $200 and the man's $100. They were unable to provide bail and were remanded to jail to await hearing.

Senator Thomas Scores Reserve Bank Head For Stabilization Efforts

Elmer Thomas, United States Senator from Oklahoma, today soundly scored George L. Harrison, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, who with other American bankers are in Europe allegedly to discuss with European central banks a renewed proposal to stabilize the American dollar with England's pound or to enter an agreement to tie it to a fixed weight of gold.

In a cablegram dispatched from Washington to Harrison, in care of the Bank of International Settlements, Basle, Switzerland, Thomas declared, "Your viewpoint and your activities do not represent the best interests of our people and your acts are certain to provoke a demand for congressional inquiry."

He declared that such an agreement would lead to disaster and probably serious international complications.

The cablegram follows: "Press dispatches from Basle, London and New York affirm that you and other American bankers are abroad for the purpose of discussing with European Central Banks a renewed proposal to stabilize our dollar with England's pound or to enter an agreement to tie it to a fixed weight of gold.

"Because the commodity gold exchange now for 150 per cent more of other basic commodities than in 1926 and we have increased our dollar price of gold only 60 per cent we have a dollar so deflationary that to stabilize it now would mean continuing disaster.

"A recent chart by the National Industrial Conference Board shows our present dollar at $35 an ounce for gold buys from 47 to 65 per cent more of basic commodities than the dollar bought in 1926. Thereby our farmers and other basic producers are compelled to give of labor and products one and one-half times as much as in 1926 to pay increased

Expect Large Attendance At Bayview Meet

Indications now are that the 9th annual meeting of the Eastern Carolina Association, Inc. (Carolina Shoppers' Association) which will be held at Bayview on Thursday, July 12, will be well attended. The trip will be made from Washington to Bayview and return aboard the "Fog-blane" one of the Norfolk, Baltimore and Carolina Line's largest vessels which will be sent down from Norfolk for the purpose.

A great many matters of importance facing the section will be discussed and disposed of at this meeting and officers and members of the board of directors will be elected to serve for the coming year. The association's activities are steadily increasing and the business interests of the section are realizing more than ever the importance of supporting this association.

The officers of the association were greatly pleased recently to learn that Governor Ehringhaus had "observed with satisfaction the efforts which the association is putting forth to improve conditions in the territory which it serves."

All business and professional men in the territory are invited and urged to attend this annual meeting and take part in carrying out its program. The "Emblane" will leave Washington at 9 a. m. Thursday, and return at 5 p. m. in the afternoon.

Two Escaped Prisoners Shoot Hal C. Routh to Death Late Last Night

Siler City, N. C., July 10.—(AP)—Hal C. Routh was fatally shot at his home here late last night and early today two escaped convicts were captured by officers who quoted them as confessing the shooting.

Police said the men said they shot Routh when he pulled a pistol from his pocket after refusing to help them.

Routh, 38, was manager of the Standard Oil Company here. He died shortly after being taken to a hospital.

Officers said the convicts, Harry Baxter and John D. Willis, escaped from a Chatham County road camp Sunday night with a third prisoner. It was not known where the third man was.

After the capture early today Baxter and Willis were taken to State's Prison at Raleigh.

The two were quoted as saying they approached Routh at his home and asked that he take them in his car. They said he refused to help, pulled his pistol and the shooting followed.

Routh is survived by his widow and one child.

Sheriff G. H. Andrews, of Chatham County, said Baxter was the man who shot Routh, using a .33 calibre rifle which Willis took from a prison guard when he overpowered him and escaped.

The sheriff said Routh had the pistol in his pocket when the two men tried to get his car to make their escape from this section, but asserted that Routh apparently had made no effort to pull the gun on the two men.

Routh was armed, the sheriff said, because he had been out to help a posse which was seeking another convict, Grady Bowers, who was charged with assaulting a Chatham County woman after he escaped from the Randolph County road camp yesterday morning.

Two Killed In Freight Wreck At Morrisville

Morrisville, N. C., July 10.—(AP)—Two negroes are believed dead under the wreckage of a tank car and at least four are known to be injured, one seriously, following a pile-up of Southern freight train No. 58 here early this morning.

Moving west on its run from Selma to Spencer, the freight left the tracks at the foot of the heavy grade and caught fire. Ambulances and fire trucks from Durham rushed to the scene. The injured were taken to Durham hospitals.

Graduation classes from Iowa colleges numbered 2,900 men and women this year.

COINJOCK BRIDGE KEEPER KILLED

Currituck, N. C., July 10.—David Lindsay, 64-year-old keeper of the Coinjock bridge, was instantly killed about 7:30 last night when the bridge draw flew into the air after workmen had severed several bolts holding the gear in place and Lindsay holding on the bridge railing was wrenched loose.

The man fell to his death 90 feet below, striking the concrete abutment and falling into the water. The body was recovered 30 or 40 minutes later.

Local Tobacco Man Says Buyers and Warehousemen Agree on August 23

B. Suggs, Greenville tobacco warehouseman, today denied that there is any conflict between buyers and warehousemen regarding the opening date of August 23 for the Eastern Carolina tobacco belt.

Returning from White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, where he last week attended the sessions of the United States Tobacco Association, Mr. Suggs said both the buyers and the warehousemen approved the date set by the association.

Mr. Suggs was a member of the date-fixing-committee and has been active in the movement looking to improvement of the tobacco industry. He stopped in Washington on his return trip.

A statement carried in the News and Observer today declared that the buyers' date for Eastern Carolina market was August 23 and the warehousemen's August 28.

Mr. Suggs said this was incorrect in view of the fact that the warehousemen were for the earliest date possible and compromised with the buyers on the 23rd.

Mr. Suggs said the confusion grew out of a few warehousemen from this belt, the middle and old belts, who also operate in the South Carolina belt, asking for a later opening here to allow sufficient time for them to operate in both belts.

He declared the warehousemen of Eastern Carolina are not in favor of delaying the opening of this belt, had accepted the compromise for the 23rd of August, and any change would be for an earlier date.

Mr. Suggs expressed appreciation of the attitude of the buying companies in accepting the suggestion for the opening date.

REVERSE ENGLISH CODE FOR CLERGY, MARRIAGE CLERKS

London.—(AP)—Talk about shorter hours and more leisure means little to the registrars of marriages and ministers of religion in England and Wales.

Their days have been extended three hours by act of Parliament which obliges them to be available to officiate at weddings until 6 p. m. daily, instead of 3 p. m.

The act does not apply in Scotland because the limit there has been 6 p. m. for many years.

There has not been a suicide in the 66 years.

There has never been an automobile theft.

Edward Mooring, 4 Drowns in Stream in The Ormondville Community

Edward B. Mooring, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Mooring, of the Ormondville section, was drowned in a canal while accompanying his mother from a tobacco barn to the home yesterday afternoon.

The body was carried about 500 yards down the canal and was not recovered until this morning.

The mother had a small child in her arms and Edward was following by her side when they reached the bridge across the stream. High water had washed out at place in the bank and the child fell into the raging stream and disappeared.

Funeral services were conducted from the late home this afternoon at 3 o'clock by Rev. M. Phillips, of Hookerton. Burial was made in the Heath cemetery.

Surviving are the parents and a sister, Verna Erlen.

NEW TOBACCO HOUSE READY

Finishing Touches on New Structure on Old Gorman Site Completed Today

Will Moore and Biggs Cannon today announced completion of their new and up-to-date tobacco warehouse on the old Gorman site on Dickinson avenue and Ninth streets, next to C. H. Edwards Hardware store.

The new structure is owned by C. H. McGowan, Will Moore and Biggs Cannon, but will be operated by Moore and Cannon. Mr. McGowan will continue to operate the Farmer's warehouse.

The structure, built of steel, brick and concrete, is one of the most modern in Eastern Carolina. It is well lighted, has a circulating ice water system, large camp rooms for both white and colored farmers, and a modern rest room for ladies.

The warehouse is not only one of the best in this territory, but one of the largest. It is capable of holding a day's sale with selling going at a pace of 360 piles an hour.

It gives Greenville nine warehouses, covering fifteen acres of floor space, and capable of accommodating 2,500,000 pounds of tobacco at one time.

The building formerly on this site was destroyed by fire about two years ago.

CHINA'S 'DEAD' LANGUAGE BANISHED FROM SCHOOLS

Nanking.—(AP)—English or Japanese should replace an ancient Chinese classics and the "dead" language, known to Chinese as "wen-li," says the minister of Education.

The classics, which include the writings of Confucius and Mencius, are characterized by the educational authorities as "feudalistic" while "wen-li" not only is dubbed "dead" but also is held to be too "deep" for high school students.

"Pai hua," or "spoken" language, advocated by Dr. Hu Shih, American-trained philosopher, is commonly taught the younger generation, but the older Chinese cling to "wen-li."

SPITE MARRIAGE

By Katharine Haviland Taylor

Chapter 14 HONEYMOON

at your service, and a very serviceable shoulder you'll find it to be."

She did, after a little hesitation; he must have driven with painstaking care she knew, when he woke her with a touch and she looked up to find him smiling down on her, and a flurry of snow in the air, and the small doorway of a stone house seen through it and near.

"Home, my dear child!" he said. He stepped from the car then and picked her up to carry her over the threshold. "I have my superstitions," he admitted, as she found herself set by him and reluctantly, upon her feet. "This is one of them!"

A stooped old woman in black dress, white cap and apron appeared then from the rear of the low-ceilinged, old-fashioned hall. She curtsied in a fashion that told of her having started as scullery maid in another land.

"I think you'll find everything in readiness for Mrs. Powers, Mr. Robert," she said, "and it's honored we are, here, to serve you both."

"Ella, one of my mother's oldest, most trusted servants," Bob said to Marsha. She murmured something gently kind to find surprise at herself. She had not known she could play this role that had been thrust upon her, so adroitly.

A moment more and she went with Bob up the few stairs and into a room with a sloping roof. The walls were covered with an old-fashioned, flowered paper, ruffled, dotted Swiss curtains were at the windows, and two deep, chintz-covered chairs and a few other old and good pieces gave the place peace.

"SWEET," she murmured, looking around.

"Thought you'd like it," he answered; he did not glance away from her. "I'll bring up our bags. We're without any men servants. I think I didn't want any rugged male thing to see how softly I shall gaze at you. Why don't you finish that nap before dinner? You have a long hour and a half."

"Perhaps," she admitted, "it would be a good idea." She could be alone thus, she reasoned; and perhaps, alone, she could think things through a little to get beyond the old, and disconcertingly unsteady, feeling that had been hers ever since she had learned Geoffrey was lost to her and since what she had done because of the loss of Geoffrey.

He brought up their luggage, set hers on the waiting racks, and unstrapped each piece.

"All fixed!" he said. He moved toward the doorway; smiled at her from the doorway; then he left, closing the low door firmly after himself.

For some time she stood without moving. Suddenly she laughed; she did not know where she was physically, nor mentally! Where had his car turned as she slept? If only things would become real; if only he would act as she had expected him to!

If she could feel solid ground, known ground through a normal man's actions, even the name of the village. Then perhaps this ghastly new seriousness, which made deep crippling pressure, would slip away.

She descended the stairs at half after six; he was waiting for her at the foot of them.

"Sleep?" he asked.

"Yes, I didn't expect to, but there's a peace here, I've never felt before. It's a darling house!"

"I hoped you would like it."

"I can't see how you arranged everything in this short while."

"It took a little speed," he admitted. "I spent the night telephoning—dragging people from bed—and persuading them that no one needed so much sleep as they thought. Come in here and see the nice fire and the cocktails that are waiting for you."

The living room was broad and long; a piano stood at one end and near windows of tiny panes; at the other end of the room was a bank of books; their colors were gentle in the soft light. A fire leaped and scolded. Deep chairs were before it and an old-fashioned, chintz-covered sofa.

"I adore this place!" said Marsha. "I thought," he said slowly, "that if you liked it—as much as I shall after our time here, we might buy it, so that we can come back; make a pilgrimage now and again; you know—between bridges—"

He paused a moment.

"Come here to me," he said next. "I want to say something that is rather serious to you—"

Infection Dnger In Open Bathing Shown By Test

By HOWARD W. BLACKSLEE (Associated Press Science Editor)

East Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—Infection dangers can creep into open water beaches almost exactly as if these bathing places were enclosed swimming pools.

Studies showing that for hours at a time one of these open beaches may become no different than a wall-in pool are published in the American Journal of Public Health by W. L. Mallaman, Ph.D., and Adolph S. Lipp, of Michigan State College.

The open beaches become infected during crowded bathing periods.

"Small inland lakes," says the report, "because they do not receive any raw sewage have been frequently assumed to be safe for bathing. This is largely true, but to date no recognition has been given to the pollution introduced by the bathers. As these lakes are frequently located near large cities they have become very popular."

How Test Was Made

To find out what happens in such waters, a lake a mile wide and somewhat longer was studied near East Lansing. Few bathers there ventured more than 200 feet away from the pier which marked the center of this beach.

Water samples showed doubling and sometimes tripling of the numbers of bacteria in this restricted area. The streptococcus types especially, which contain some of the more virulent infections, would begin to rise sharply about 10 a. m. on crowded bathing days. By 5:30 p. m. their numbers would have tripled. By 10 p. m. they mostly would disappear.

"Like Indoor Pool"

"Contrary to accepted opinion," the report states, "the writers believe that momentarily a natural bathing beach is not different from a circumscribed indoor or outdoor bathing pool."

"If the pollution introduced into an artificial pool by the bathers is to be considered dangerous, it seems highly illogical that the same pollution on a bathing beach should be ignored."

Siamese Twins In Another Fight

By RADER WINGET

New York—(AP)—The Hilton Siamese twins are always battling opposition.

Right now they want husbands and babies, but the city of New York is inclined to say "no."

Their lives always have been that way, they say, with someone eternal objecting to things they want to do.

Violet, who is on the right side of the combination, joined at the hips, wants to marry Maurice L. Lambert, 29, a musician, but a marriage license was refused in New York City and Newark, N. J. Now they have decided to battle in the courts for the right of marriage and motherhood.

Daisy is extremely interested in the outcome. She has a sweetheart in New York and one in England. The one in England is a pugilist, but "I haven't seen him for more than six months and don't know how I'll feel about him when I see him again," she says.

Meanwhile, an unidentified New York boy, also a musician, whispers sweet nothings.

They say they battled in Omaha for the right to ride on one railroad ticket. They won there, they say, and then the airlines in California tried unsuccessfully to make them buy two tickets. On steamships, however, they must buy two tickets because they eat twice as much as one person.

The twins have had an exciting 20 years of life. They were born in England. They never knew their parents and were given to the care of an English nursemaid. When she died they were taken into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Myer Myers, in Australia, and learned to regard them as their parents.

They have traveled widely in shows, circuses and vaudeville.

As the girls were growing into womanhood, Myers built a magnificent home like a Chinese pagoda in San Antonio, Texas. Furnishings imported from the Orient cost many thousands, and the girls were happy.

But one day in late 1930 they found a strap sloop yellowing with age. On the next page was an English newspaper clipping showing the Prince of Wales bending over the crib of the Siamese twins. They hurriedly thumbed through the other clippings they had never seen before as the realization dawned that they were not the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Myers.

They hid the book in horror and said nothing. Several days later they fled to a hotel.

When their absence was discovered, they left for an apartment in a distant suburb. Through an attorney they sued their foster parents for an accounting of their wealth and demanded freedom.

They glared in their new surroundings. Every morning they served tea in their apartment for "friends—their own tea party and their own friends."

The Texas District Court appointed a receiver, and after litigation they received nearly $100,000 in cash and securities. The girls left alone on a vaudeville tour which carried them to England where they added to their wealth.

In New York they live in the grand manner in a large apartment overlooking Central Park.

tops a 22-year record of engineering progress that makes Chevrolet the best riding car in the low-price field

Year after year, it's been the same old story: Chevrolet FIRST... with the NEWEST and BEST! Chevrolet leading—others following. Chevrolet out in front with the latest proved advancements—others in the low-price field trying vainly to catch up with the leader in engineering progress. The self-starter! The sliding gear transmission! Modern streamlined design! It was Chevrolet aggressiveness and Chevrolet progressiveness that forced all low-priced cars eventually to adopt these and other major improvements. And now, this year, comes the climax of Chevrolet's engineering leadership: the Knee-

FIRST in the low-price field with THE SELF-STARTER

In 1917, buyers of low-priced cars were able to throw away the hand-crank, thanks to Chevrolet.

FIRST with the SLIDING GEAR TRANSMISSION

Chevrolet introduced the modern type of transmission into the low-price field. Others adopted it, years afterward.

FIRST with the SAFETY GAS TANK

Chevrolet led drivers of low-priced cars out of danger, by putting the gas tank at the rear of the car, instead of in front. Eventually, all low-priced cars did the same thing.

FIRST with MODERN DYNAMIC LINES

It was Chevrolet that set the pace for the low-price field in true modern streamlined styling.

FIRST with NO DRAFT VENTILATION

Last year, Chevrolet introduced genuine Fisher No Draft Ventilation. This year, other low-priced cars are trying to catch up with Chevrolet—by claiming the same kind of feature.

Riches Rivaling Aladdin's Treasure Found In India By Refugee Dacoits

Simla—(AP)—A tale that might have stepped fully dressed out of "The Arabian Nights" has reached the archeological department of India.

A band of roving dacoits, or robbers, according to the story told to officials, took shelter in a cave under a mound at Sersa, in the district of Hissar.

While there, one chanced to touch one of the ancient stone figures carved in the face of the rock and was astonished to see the figure move.

Pushed aside, the venerable guardian revealed a tunnel leading to the center of the mound.

There the dacoits found a vaulted chamber piled with jewels and ancient finery. One of the prizes was a coat embroidered with gold thread to which, the story goes, were attached diamond buttons.

They sold the gems to a Bombay mill owner in Ferozpur and with the proceeds approached the owner of the mound with an offer to buy. He was unwilling to sell but so urgent were the robbers that he became suspicious, set his servants to spy on them and thus learned of their find.

First Church of Christ, Scientist.
"Sacrament" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 8.

The golden text was from John 6:33: "The bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood. And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified." (Acts 20:28-32).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus established his church and maintained his mission on a spiritual foundation of Christ-healing. He taught his followers that his religion had a divine Principle, which would cast out error and heal both the sick and the sinning. He claimed no intelligence, action, nor life separate from God. Despite the persecution this brought upon him, he used his divine power to save men both bodily and spiritually."

Jelly Bear's Trip
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Willy Nilly, the little gnome-like man, was making excellent headway in fixing up his place. He had repainted the house and it looked so pretty and white, while its gables and shutters were such a lovely shade of blue. The garden was in fairly good shape, but the rain had caused many weeds to grow.

"I'll attend to the weeding, then to my automobile Two-Ways, and then I'll have time to see about my pointed, sticking-out ears," Willy Nilly said as he stroked his side whiskers and looked at his house.

Just then Jelly Bear came lumbering up the hill.

"Honey Bear," he began, "is very busy teaching the cubs some more of the lessons they must learn, and I have a feeling that I'd like to travel."

Willy Nilly put down his pail of paint and paint brush and looked at Jelly Bear sadly.

He feared that Jelly Bear might be growing restless and might be anxious to move away from Puddle Muddle. It would be so lonely without Jelly and Honey Bear and the cubs Blacky and Jupiter.

What did it matter if he attended to his ears so long as he had his friends around him? But then Willy Nilly realized he was being foolishly worried. Jelly Bear meant only a short journey by himself.

"Where do you intend to go?" Willy Nilly asked.

"To the pond beyond our woods," said Jelly Bear, little knowing what was going to happen near that quiet pond.

Cool Water
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Jelly Bear started off, walking slowly. It was a very hot day, and as he walked he thought with pleasure of how he would go through the cool, dark woods. Then he would reach the pond.

Many days of rain had filled the ponds and the brooks with plenty of water. Jelly Bear thought how he would enjoy his swim and how soon his great heavy, furry coat would be covered with the refreshing water.

He walked along, swinging his head as he went and sniffing the breezes to make sure that everything was all right.

The woods were as cool and lovely as he had thought they would be. How wonderful it was of the trees not to let the sun come through. They knew a bear needed some shade!

Then he went on to the pond. He put in one foot and drew it out again. He would enjoy this pond and its delicious water very slowly.

Now he got down on the bank and put his head in the water. Oh, it felt so lovely! The cool water on his head seemed to make a new bear of him.

Suddenly he heard a noise and then he heard a great splash. Jelly Bear sat up very straight. Then he stood up.

Jelly Bear's heart felt as though it had been stopped completely by what he saw. This was an accident. The splash had not been one just for fun.

Alas, nothing like that!

taxes and unreduced freights, interest and charges.

"Some bankers owning government and other fixed obligations have acted as though they thought it would be to their advantage to retain this deflationary dollar. This might be so, provided they could do it without precipitating a social overturn or nation-wide repudiation. But the resulting ruination of farmers, bank depositors, home and other property and equity owners by forced payment of increased taxes and unreduced debts in dollars of such grossly in increased purchasing power created inevitably the feeling that mortgages and other contracts and the power to increase taxes are instruments of injustice. By attempting to hold us to this unjust dollar you are helping to undermine the social sanction upon which our free institutions rest. This may manifest itself at any time in a wave of repudiation.

"Since Congress adjourned I have crossed our continent from coast to coast and find Central States devastated by drought, one large Western city under military rule account of strikes, another Southwestern city of 1,500,000 population with 750,000 on relief rolls.

"With the public mind in its present condition, with ten million still unemployed, with prices of farm products near or below cost of production, with banks not making loans, with massed debts totaling 250 billion dollars, and with total annual tax burden in excess of 15 billion dollars, what American presuming to represent all interests dare favor or suggest stabilization of the dollar at its present value? No such act could be more than temporary. Our people cannot possibly pay existing obligations with high valued dollars.

"We dare not tie our dollar to the English pound because England's interests are not identical with ours. Our people must control their own money. England is the creditor end of the British Empire just as Wall Street which you represent, is the creditor end of the United States."

"But England has been wiser than Wall Street in abandoning fetish worship of a fixed weight of gold and changing her policy of gold standard to changing conditions.

"England long ago helped arrange for her agricultural and raw material producing areas a price of gold from $42 to more than $50 an ounce. Consequently those countries have recovered much farther than we. Their producers receive higher incomes in their national currencies and have higher purchasing power without destroying crops or restricting production.

"Today the Australian pound, for example, is at $4. To give our producers the same income that Australian farmers enjoy would require our gold price to be raised from $35 to Australia's price of $42. To give our farmers and other producers a money income equivalent to that enjoyed in sterling area countries our dollar would have to stand at $6.08 to $7 to the English pound. Every six cents under $6.08 means a 1 per cent straightjacket disadvantage for American agriculture.

"Our people at a cost in income alone of 127 billion dollars and a still greater depreciation in capital assets have learned from this depression how unwise and destructive has been banker dictation of monetary policy.

"You, Mr. Harrison, as head of the New York Federal Reserve Bank which has exercised a dominating influence over the Federal Reserve System and the United States Treasury, led New York influences in counseling the deflation policy of the Hoover administration. Your policy has been to keep unchanged or as low as possible the dollar price in five years, or faster than ever before in economic history. Thereby you created deflation and brought needless, tragic destruction on our country. You ignored the example of wiser financial leadership in many other countries which released their peoples through raising the price of gold early and high enough to correspond with its increased value.

"It was your personal fate through lack of understanding of monetary forces to be the central figure in the world's greatest, most inexcusable and most costly tragedy of financial leadership. I ask by what right do you now presume to initiate even a partial return to your policies which have been tested and proved so ruinous.

"Instead of our dollar being stabilized at its present abnormal value, its purchasing power must be re-

County Court Pitt Health Queen Loses

Miss Pearl Ward Barnhill, of Paeetus, Pitt queen of health, lost out in the district contest held at Washington yesterday, and the honor of attending the State contest as district health queen went to Miss Addie Jackson, of Johnston County.

Ten young women, representing various 4-H Clubs of the district, took part in the contest, and it was said competition was so close that examining physicians had a difficult time picking the winner. Miss Barnhill when examined here several weeks ago had a rating of 100 per cent, but in the contest yesterday she rated 96.6 per cent.

Competition was described by Miss Ethel Nice, home demonstration agent of this county, who accompanied the girls to Washington, as the closest in years and reflecting great credit on the young women.

Miss Jackson, it was said, rated second to Miss Mildred Taylor of this county, who won last year, but was denied attending the State contest because it was postponed. She will represent the county at Raleigh this year, however, and hope was expressed she would come out at the top of the column.

County Court On Vacation

After disposing of a light docket today, County Court was scheduled to take its annual vacation of one month.

The vacation was decided on at a former session. Work will be resumed August 14.

Court always takes a vacation every summer while farmers are busy in the fields and unable to attend as witnesses, and officials will be given an opportunity of hieing away to their favorite streams to wear out their pants in an effort to coax denizens of the deep from their watery playgrounds.

Others, not relishing fishing as a pastime, will go to the seashore to wet their feet and burn their backs, and return home to report a big time.

Judge Dink James had not decided definitely what he would do, but he was determined to go fishing at least a time or two to demonstrate to some of his critics that he is capable of "bringing home the bacon" in the form of fish.

The cases to be given consideration today involved charges of selling whiskey, theft and other minor charges, and worked was expected to be finished sometime during the early afternoon.

As a member of the Congress I protest your assumed authority to meddle in this way. Your viewpoint and your activities do not represent the best interests of our people, and your acts are certain to provoke a demand for a Congressional inquiry.

Your reported activities can lead to so many serious consequences that I am communicating with my fellow-members of Congress concerning them."

"Foreign central bankers and governments may not understand that your negotiations are an unwarranted usurpation of Constitutional powers of Congress, and therefore your unauthorized negotiations may result in serious complications unless it is made clear that Congress has not delegated to anyone the power to regulate or influence the value of this nation's money by tying it to any foreign currency.

"I warn you that any step you take tying our money in any way to any foreign money is a usurpation of the powers and prerogatives of Congress. Even a discussion leading to a bankers' private understanding with spokesmen of foreign powers can serve only to curtail our freedom of action in restoring our domestic price level and to interfere with the purposes of Congress.

"It may be true that New York bankers who lend internationally may profit most from international exchange stability, but such stability, obtainable only by anchoring the dollar to a fixed quantity of unstable gold, would be at the cost of an unstable domestic price level. Thus the interests of nearly all the cost of an unstable domestic price level. Thus the interests of nearly all the American people would be sacrificed to the advantage of a few.

"When representing private interests you conduct secret negotiations abroad affecting the gold value of our dollar or discuss tying it to the English pound or any other currency you attempt to assume the powers reserved by the Constitution to the Congress to regulate the value of money.

"Under the Thomas amendment these powers were temporarily delegated within certain limitations to the President with the understanding that they were to be used for the quick restoration of our domestic price level. They have not been used to rebuild the price level promised by the President or intended by Congress.

"You doubtless know that numerous bills were introduced and extensive hearings held indicating the intention of Congress to deal at its next session in a broad and decisive way in formulating a permanent monetary policy.

"If press reports are correct, your activities will develop an issue of far-reaching consequences.

"Your efforts, in the exact measure that they progress, will handicap and embarrass the freedom of Congress to exercise its most important sovereign function. This country is no longer in a temper to tolerate manipulation of its money by private or international interests.

GETTING THE STATES TOGETHER

Uniform traffic laws and ordinances in all states are vital to any movement designed to reduce the number of deaths and injuries as the economic loss chargeable annually to automobile accidents—a fact that was emphasized by the recent Fourth National Conference on Street and Highway Safety.

With Secretary of Commerce Roper presiding, the Conference approved a model Uniform Vehicle Code which all states are asked to copy or adapt. First in importance in this Code is a Model Operators and Chauffeurs' License Act which requires examination or test before awarding certificates.
Twenty-one states now have such a law. Four states give the license to private operators on application, and the other states have no license at all. All but six states have a minimum age requirement, ranging from thirteen to eighteen; seemingly, the six will permit anybody to grasp a wheel to run a car.

Other laws in the Uniform
Code are:
Model Motor Vehicle Administration; Registration and Certification of Title and Anti-Theft Act; Model Civil Liability Act; Model
Financial Responsibility Act; Uniform Act Regulating Traffic on Highways; Model Municipal Traffic Ordinance.

A member of the committee which arranged for the conference, said, in explaining purposes of the Uniform Code:
"As anyone can realize it is vital for a state to control those it permits to use its highways. It should have the right to say who shall drive in the first place, and then to penalize those whose driving practices are dangerous to the lives and limbs of others.

gone, in many cases, almost unanswered.
The President himself has indicated he was ready to accept an open challenge against the "new deal" such as these leaders have made.
With Borah it is far different. He attacks from another angle entirely. He is one of those Western independents whom, as a group, the administration has sought to keep satisfied.
He is making an issue where the administration had hoped there would be none. That is why he is watched.
It is true the White House has not given Borah much special notice.
Usually he has not been in one of Roosevelt conferences with the Western independents. When he was there, he was not very active.
That is not Borah's way, and the President knows it. From the beginning both appeared to recognize that the Borah flair for independence of all administrations would assert itself sooner or later, and there was not much use trying to forestall it.
All the same, the Idahoan's present speech-making campaign is not the subject of any jubilation among the Democrats. They will put their best talent to work against him.

Attacks G. O. P. Too
It surprised no one that when Borah attacked the Democratic policies, he included several uncomplimentary references to the Republican program and leadership.
He has not, for years, considered himself a part of the Republican organization. When he took the stump for Hoover in 1928, he made it plain he was supporting, not a party, but a man he thought would make an excellent President.
Later, when the inevitable break came, he said to friends that he never would campaign again for an individual for the Presidency.
His whole career has been builded on opposition. He recognizes that as his forte. He still is the voice crying in the wilderness, and he likes it.

Eye On White House?
Where is it all leading?
It is no secret that Borah has had his eye on the White House for many years; that as recently as 1932 he listened reflectively for some time to those who wanted him to run as an independent.
Whether he still cherishes hope of the Presidency is known only to himself.
He is in his seventieth year, and he has seen over and over how difficult it is to organize a new party.
He knows, too, that he could say no means he is assured of the support of other Western independents who have served with him in the Senate.
His very passion for playing a lone hand stands in the way of any aspirations he still may have for the highest office.

Yet politicians do not lose sight of the fact that the present era is a peculiar one, politically, knowing no laws and recognizing no precedent.
So Democrats and Republicans in Washington both will keep an eye on Borah.

Washington Daybook
By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, D. C.—(AP)—Probably in his whole career Borah, of Idaho, never had a situation more to his liking than that he faced on the night of July 4.
If he had had it within his power to choose the circumstances under which to launch his campaign against certain phases of policy now being pursued by the government, he could have done no better.
He had a national audience and it was the nation's birthday. He appeared as one of the country's elder statesmen, the dean of the United States Senate, to advise and counsel with his countrymen as to the future.
More than that, he was a prophet deserving to be heard. Almost from the time he entered the Senate back in 1907, Borah, the arch Isolationist, has raised his voice to warn America to live her own life and not mix in with the affairs of other nations.

In Prophetic Strain
Many of the things he has prophesied had materialized when he made his address. America's public and private debts are being repudiated on a wholesale basis.
"During the last twenty years we have sent nearly $40,000,000,000 of the American taxpayers' money to Europe," he declared.
He found himself, on the night of July 4 as a prophet, who had foretold successfully, preparing to prophesy what the future had in store.

The Borah Method
It is significant, perhaps, that Borah launched his one-man campaign after the issues for the coming Congressional elections had been distinctly drawn.
They have been set forth by President Roosevelt, in the declaration of Republican party policy, enunciated by Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and by other spokesmen of both parties.
After they had spoken, Borah the Independent came forth with issues of his own—an adequate banking system, an adequate monetary system, abolition of bureaucracy.
It's the Borah method. In the past most of his campaigning has been done between Presidential elections.
This year will be no exception.

The administration political scouts are watching closely the operations of William E. Borah.
That is one quarter from which attacks is not welcomed. Not only is Borah recognized as an able antagonist, but he has been associated in the public mind for years with that liberal school of thought which the Democratic managers ad hoped to bring more completely into the Roosevelt fold.
Such speeches as those made re-

French Hoarders Form Syndicates For Ingot-Buying

New York.—(AP)—A theory for prevention of gold hoarding, now being tried by the French government, is reported here to be weakening because of clever evasions.
The French melted their gold into bars which will be sold to any persons at around $8,000. The theory was that since hoarders usually are frightened individuals of small means, selling gold only in the large bars would prevent their purchase by that class.

But some Frenchmen, it is reported here, are forming syndicates of several persons who purchase only a portion of the bar, say $20 worth.
When enough money is raised, the syndicate buys the bar from the government and either cuts it into smaller portions for keeping by the syndicate members of stores the entire bar with shares issued against portions of it.

GUY BUSH
After pitching
9 innings

—and then he smoked a Camel!

MEET GUY BUSH...star pitcher for the Chicago Cubs! Guy won 20 games last year...pitched in all 264 innings...and he's pitching at an .800 clip this year. Like many athletes, Guy has found that at the end of a gruelling match, nothing brings back his energy and vitality like a Camel.

YOU TOO can increase Vim and Energy...quickly!

When you feel "used up"—smoke a Camel! Fatigue and irritability fade away. Your flow of natural energy snaps back to a higher level in a few minutes.
This experience is well known to millions of Camel smokers. It has been confirmed by a famous New York research laboratory.
Take for example Guy Bush. There's a lesson in what Guy has to say about the "energizing effect" in Camels:
"Bases full, one out, and a strike. I'm watching the bases and the batter, too. Now I've got to pitch. The pitch—and it's two strikes! Will he strike out? You think so...and yet you can't tell. Baseball is full of tough spots that take it out of a pitcher who works his regular turn and stands up to the grind for seven long months. Like most of the big-league pitchers, I smoke Camels. And when I come out of a game after nine hard innings there's nothing that lifts up my energy the way a Camel does. I feel freshened up in no time at all. I smoke a lot. Camels never interfere with my nerves!"
Learn to "get a lift with a Camel" whenever your energy runs low. Smoke as constantly as you like. The finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS in Camels never upset the nerves.

● Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS — Turkish and Domestic — than any other popular brand.

COMBS SPEAKS AT ROTE CLUB

Methodist Minister Stresses Need of Fellowship in Life of Club

By WYATT BROWN
If Rotary is going nowhere except to lunch, it is justified, said the Reverend Dr. Combs last night in a brief address at the weekly meeting of the Greenville Rotary Club at its club building on Rotary Avenue.

There is nothing this age needs more than fellowship. That sort of thing alone justifies any organization like Rotary. Men meet on a common plane.

No life can be satisfied with true friendship. When asked by Mrs. Browning what made his life so beautiful, Charles Kingsley answered that it was that he had a friend. Some think that money or position will satisfy one and bring compensation for living and peace. The only things that bring abiding satisfaction are religion and friendship and a great part of religion is fellowship," Dr. Combs said in closing.

Lawrence Stroud gave in his report of his attendance upon the convention of Rotary International in Detroit recently. In going he hobnobbed with Mark Sullivan who took part in the program at Detroit.

Mr. Stroud was very much impressed with the convention hall which cost ten million to build, is air conditioned and seats ten thousand with every possible thing to make it comfortable. Part of the impressive decorations were the flags of sixty different nations who had representatives attending the convention. One delegate had left his home April 25 to reach Detroit in time.

Henry Ford put three hundred automobiles on the streets for the courtesy of the Rotarians. Mr. Stroud failed to get one of the free ones, but he got out free because his Japanese friend paid the bill, insisting, "Me pay."

Lawrence found fellows attending from Ayden, Wilson, Raleigh, Red Springs and other nearby towns from Greenville. Out of the 3,600 Rotary Clubs in the world, 1,644 were represented. Of a total membership of 150,000 Rotary International had 9,000 present at the Detroit convention. Mexico City, at the invitation of the President of Mexico, gets the convention next year.

E. P. May of Washington, N. C. was a visiting Rotarian last night. J. H. Waldrop won the attendance prize. There is a little story behind that, though.

Herbert came in late. Lawrence Stroud collected the fine for this infraction of the club rules. Herbert said he would get it back. Upon being presented with the attendance prize, Herbert chortled a told-you-so at Lawrence.

Herbert ReBarker, president of the club, presided and Phil Goodson, chairman of the attendance committee, was in charge of the meeting.

DEAN TO HURL AGAINST AYDEN ON WEDNESDAY

After taking five out of six games last week, the Greenville "Bugs" of the Coastal Plain League went over to Tarboro this afternoon in an attempt to continue to fatten their average in the standing of clubs.

Three of the victories last week were at the expense of the tail-end Tarboro aggregation and the other from New Bern. The game lost went to Ayden, second place club, which has been vying for top honors the most of the season.

A victory from Tarboro today will place the locals in fine shape to meet Ayden here tomorrow in what has been termed as a "Red Letter Day" battle in which the pennant captured by Greenville last season will be hoisted on the Third Street school athletic field amidst appropriate exercises.

The day, a half holiday for business houses of the city, is expected to be one of the greatest of the season for the local club, and attendance probably will eclipse any other day in the last two years. In addition to the exercises in connection with hoisting the pennant, one of the big attractions is "Lefty Dean," speed ball southpaw, who will take the mound for the locals in an effort to vanquish the fast-traveling club from Ayden headed by the doughy Doc Smith.

Dean has pitched only one game for the locals since returning from the Red Sox training camp. That was against New Bern, and as usual he won. With his speed ball working in old time order, the "Bugs" were hopeful of taking their first victory from Ayden this season.

Mayor Flanagan will present the pennant tomorrow with appropriate remarks, and Bruce Eure, president of the league, Manager Milton Harrington and other officials are expected to take part in the program.

After the flag-raising the high school band, followed by members of the ball club and officials will parade around the field and then the old game will get under way.

Everybody capable of shaking a foot was urged today to attend tomorrow's game and help give the "Bugs" a boost toward higher ground in the standing of clubs.

SPORT SLANTS By ALAN GOULD

Max Adelbert Baer won't fight again this year, for the obvious reason that there is too much profit for Max and his board of directors to make without running the risk of a disastrous tap on the chin, but Barney Ross can wage two championship fights with considerable advantage to his pocketbook and prestige.

CECIL TRAVIS - THE FORMER SOUTHERN LEAGUER IS FILLING IN AT THE "HOT CORNER" IN GRAY STYLE FOR THE WASHINGTON SENATORS

There is not only a brisk demand for Ross to give Jimmy McLaurin a return match for the world's welterweight or 147-pound title, but he can hardly doze the logical challenge of Tony Canzoneri for another battle with the world's lightweight or 135-pound crown at stake.

These are the only authentic "naturals" now on the fist horizon and if the new board of directors of Madison Square Garden does not make both matches it is missing the best possible bets in the fist recovery program of 1934. Of course, there might be some competitive bidding for either or both, although it is my understanding that the return Ross-McLaurin match is tentatively set for September, in New York, where the Irishman has his biggest following.

Ross has beaten Canzoneri in both Chicago and New York, but on the basis of Tony's technical knock-out victory over Frankie Klieck, there would be no difficulty steaming up a third match in either city. They are the best-matched pair of lightweights since the days when Benny Leonard and Lefty Lewis Tandler were arch rivals, fighting twice in 1922 and 1923 before the biggest galleries in the history of the class.

Reds Try Baseball School

The St. Louis Nationals have been baseball's foremost agriculturists for the better part of the past decade, pioneering with such success that they have compelled other big league clubs to join the farm movement, but the Cincinnati Reds will take a brand new stride by conducting a mid-season school for young players this July.

For a period of three weeks the new Redland management will experiment with talent collected from far and near by its scouting organization as the first major step in an elaborate re-organization. One week will be devoted to inspecting pitchers and catchers, a second to infielders and outfielders, and the last week presumably for the finalists and commencement exercises. Those making the grade will be sent at once to clubs already in the Cincinnati connecting organization, ranging from B to double-A leagues.

The youngsters who believe they have major league possibilities must pay their own expenses to the camp, but they will be taken care of after they get there, provided they are selected as members of the teams which will be kept during the last week of practice.

The only equivalent to this scheme is the Cardinal method of conducting a spring school at one of its Mid-Western farms, with the idea of weeding things out before they go to the expense of shipping the lads to Florida for the decisive test.

New York, July 10.—(AP)—For the first time in several weeks the stock market today showed signs of life and renewed hope.
