GOODWIN AND LEAKE RESIGN AT RALEIGH

Charged With Accepting Funds From Prisoners in Clemency Cases; Governor Makes Announcement After Investigation by Commissioner Gill

Raleigh, N. C., July 24.—(AP)—Loomis M. Goodwin, State's Prison chaplain, morale and welfare officer for about twelve years, and T. B. Leake, a guard at the prison, have resigned following the revelation that they accepted "gifts" from a convict in a clemency case.

Chairman E. B. Jeffries of the Highway and Public Works Commission said today that the two men resigned late yesterday after a lengthy hearing attended by the Governor, Parole Commissioner Edwin Gill, and prison officials.

ARMY FUNDS SWELL HERE

Total Contributions For Salvation Army Today Had Reached $72

Contributions to the Salvation Army "Dollar Emergency" drive today had reached $72, it was made known this morning by Captain Stratford, head of the local organization.

The drive for funds to supplement the budget that never materialized last year was started the latter part of last week and probably will be completed the latter part of the present week.

All contributions so far have been for $1.00, with exception of one or two for $2 and $5.

An anonymous subscription listed in yesterday's contributions was for $5.00.

Captain Stratford said it would be impossible for his workers to carry on the work here in due style without the wholehearted co-operation of the citizenship.

He told members of the Board of Aldermen in an appeal for funds at the last meeting of the solons, that the situation here was expected to be serious during the winter months in spite of the Government effort to relieve the situation and urged that as much support as possible be given his organization so the program for this year could be carried out.

Yesterday's contributions were made by the following: Dr. M. B. Massey, G. V. Smith, Taft Furniture Company, James Patterson, J. B. Kittrell, Carolina Cafe, Dr. W. M. B. Brown, A. B. Ellington, Mrs. J. R. Askew, Van Motor Company, Home Grocery Company, and Anonymous $5.00.

TROOPS READY IN OREGON STRIKE

Called out by Gov. Julius Meier for strike duty, Oregon national guardsmen are shown at Camp Withycombe, 10 miles from Portland where rioting was feared as a result of the opening of the tied-up port. The governor said the guardsmen would be sent to Portland if police were unable to control the situation. The unions resented the guard call and threatened to order a general strike. POOL TO OPEN J. A. HUDSON IN SHORT TIME BURIED TODAY

Indications That Municipal Swimming Pool May Be Opened August 1

Indications today were that the local municipal swimming pool which has been under construction since the first of the year will be completed probably by the first of the month.

Although the working force fell off slightly the first of the week, an increased number of men were on the job this morning and every effort was being made to push work to completion so that parched Greenvillians may take cooling plunges during the remainder of the summer.

The pool proper has already been completed and bathhouses, constructed of brick and the last word in sanitation, are near completion. Those in charge of the operations said as soon as the wading pool for children and several other minor pieces of work had been finished they would be ready to turn the job over to the city.

No celebration has been planned to mark the official opening of the pool but a move will get under way in the next few days to have the booming voice of the city's chief executive let loose some oratory along with pinning tulips in the buttonholes of those who have been responsible for rushing work to a close.

When the project was started it was understood it would be rushed to a finish as soon as possible. Soon the CWA went bloeey, lost all of the money it probably thought it had and didn't, and work here was suspended.

After Mayor Flanagan and a number of other city officials virtually went out two or three automobiles running to Raleigh to convince relief heads that the city would parch to death this summer without the pool, they received assurance work would be resumed under the FERA or wxyzpu, and that the pool eventually would be completed.

Anyhow, this does not reimburse the mayor for the automobile he wore out running to Raleigh, and as he is in the milk business and needs every kind of vehicular contrivance possible to continue supplying his patrons with milk from contented cows, someone has proposed that he be presented a brand new car as a part of the exercises when the pool is opened. The gift would enable him to look after the "moo-moos" and at the same time supervise bathing costumes, giving particular attention to extremities and preventing their appearance at the local pool.

The total area of the Nantahala National Forest, which lies in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, is 355,000 acres.

SUPERVISED PLAYGROUND TO OPEN HERE

Recreational Center And Park to be Thrown Open Monday to Children

A supervised playground for the children of Greenville will open Monday, it was made known today, through funds allocated to the city by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

Two other similar projects, one at Farmville and the other at Ayden, have also been approved by the Relief organization and will be pushed to completion as soon as possible.

The Greenville playground will be in connection with the municipal park near the skimming pool. The playground will be on the Old Model school site and a part of the college property adjacent to the swimming pool, and the school has been loaned to the city for the recreational center.

Five trained teachers of this city will be in charge on the supervised playground, it was stated. Mrs. Eugene Roberson, member of the faculty of city schools, has been selected as general playground supervisor for the center.

The college property was loaned by the Board of Trustees prior to the death of the late Dr. R. H. Wright, but boundaries were not decided upon until after the death of the former college head.

The property loaned by the trustees begins at a point adjacent to the new municipal swimming pool on Fifth Street, circles the Old Model school site and an adjacent grove. It consists of five or six acres.

With the municipal swimming pool rapidly drawing to completion, work on the playground will get under way immediately. Lights will be set up by the City Power Commission and seats and other things necessary to an up-to-date park will be provided in time for the opening.

Speaking of the loan of the property to the Board of Trustees of the college, Mayor R. C. Flanagan said today the officials had willingly let the city have the property for use as a park and playground, and as long as the citizens made use of it as such it would continue to be used as a recreational center.

But abuse of the courtesy extended by the college, the mayor said, will result in the property being returned to that source. He urged children and grown-up who use the property to respect the courtesy extended them and avoid any possible criticism of conduct.

START WORK ON NEW STREET

City Cutting Street Through King Property and Extending Contentnea Street

Street forces of the city were busy today clearing away weeds and debris preparatory to cutting a new street through what is known as the King and White property beyond Third Street school and extending Contentnea Street north from Third Street to Tar River.

The improvement was authorized at the last meeting of the Board of Aldermen after a committee had been over the property and approved a request by the owners that the streets be opened to afford greater outlet for the residents of the district.

Chief of Police George Clark, who is in charge of street operations here, said this morning that several workmen had been put on the job this morning clearing away weeds and debris and preparing to set the street boundary lines.

He said work would be pushed forward as rapidly as possible in view of the fact that the population in that section of the city has been increasing recently and the need of the new street and extension is felt keenly.

Late News Flashes

Bank Robbers On Trial. Kenansville, July 24.—(AP)—A. W. Pettit and Arthur York went on trial in Duplin county Superior court today charged with the holdup of the Bank of Magnolia on June 9, in which two men were wounded in a gun fight.

Judge Frank A. Daniels is presiding. Pettit and York had $860 of the $880 take in the spectacular robbery were found three days after the robbery by a posse headed by Sheriff D. S. Williamson. The men were surprised asleep in a hideout near Beulahville with guns near.

Today was the second time Pettit has gone on trial for robbery of the Bank of Magnolia. Eighteen months ago he was given a prison term for robbing the bank and two months before the June robbery escaped from a prison camp.

PLOT TO OUST DOLLFUSS IS SNIPPED IN BUD

Twelve Hundred Socialists Arrested in Government Effort To Clean up Foes

Vienna, July 24.—(AP)—Twelve hundred Socialists were arrested today in connection with an alleged plot to overthrow the Dollfuss government.

It was the biggest round-up of political prisoners since the bloody February civil war.

Political police were picking up threads of evidence which they said indicated Socialists, Communists and Nazis had merged into a common front for a huge campaign of terror against the Fascist government.

Prisoners were herded into a former coach building plant. Police were uncommunicative, but a government spokesman explained most of the arrests were merely preventative pending a search of suspects' homes for explosives and incriminating documents.

Those whose connection with a plot cannot be established "will be released within a few days," he said.

ROAD STRAIGHTENING TO BECOME REALITY

Farmville, N. C., July 24.—The long-awaited straightening of Highway No. 264 soon is to become a reality. The town of Farmville has started laying water mains and putting down sewers in that section of the town where the change is to be made, with the anticipation that the contracts for the having will be let and the work begin within the next sixty days.

For some time citizens of Farmville have been aware of the necessity of this change in the highway, which carries the motorist a quarter of a mile out of his way. Too many motorists passing through the town follow the road, and with the laying of the new pavement the old turns will be eliminated. The State has charge of the project.

During vacations children are likely to forget caution. Many a residential street is turned into a makeshift baseball diamond. They know it is dangerous, but they take a chance. That's just the reason motorists must be extra careful. Slow down and keep your car under control, ready to stop on a second's notice. When the lives of little children are at stake you cannot dodge this responsibility.

PEACE SEEN IN STRIKE ON PACIFIC COAST

Maritime Workers Take Vote to Determine if They Will Accept Arbitration

(By The Associated Press) The nation's labor spotlight, once again today was on San Francisco, this time for the counting of ballots which even strike leaders predict will end the Pacific Coast maritime workers' walkout.

Representatives of the national longshoremen's board took the poll yesterday and expected to know the strikers' answer to arbitration proposals tonight.

Docks were rapidly being cleared by non-union workers in San Francisco, Portland and Seattle. Minneapolis police convoyed twenty-two trucks safely past striking drivers, but Governor Floyd B. Olson, of Minnesota, warned all factions that the National Guards would take charge if there were disorders.

Police guarded the Chicago stockyards where two hundred handlers struck and a similar walkout threatened St. Joseph, Mo.

In New York one hundred Staten Island bus men struck, delaying 20,000 homeward-bound commuters.

Approximately 850 employees of the Central Foundry Company at Holt, Ala., and about 500 employees of four stove foundries in Rome, Ga., stayed away from their jobs to enforce wage and union demands.

At Knoxville, Tenn., about 400 employees of the Holston Manufacturing Company, a hosiery mill, walked out today in protest against a wage cut.

DOGS STILL BEING SHOT

Police Attempting to Throw Safeguard Around Public From Rabid Animals

The mad dog situation here has improved somewhat during the last few days, but officers were busy last night and early today spreading annihilation among the canines.

Chief of Police George Clark reported this morning that three dogs were killed last night and early today because evidence had been presented that the animals had been bitten by the rapid dog killed in the western part of the city the latter part of last week.

The police head has warned dog owners they must keep their animals up if they wish to save them from summary execution at the hands of the law, and expressed hope he would receive the hearty co-operation of the public.

The chief stressed the fact that rabid dogs are nothing to joke about, much less tolerate, and in shooting all animals suspected of having been bit, he said the officers merely were attempting to throw a safeguard around the citizenship, especially hundreds of small children playing in the yards of their homes.

Last year an infant was bitten by a rabid animal while playing on (Continued on page three)

Nearly 600 Dead As Sun Blaze's Down On Nation

RECORDS OF MANY YEARS ARE SMASHED

Devastating Effects of Heat Most Severe in the Mid-West; Unofficial Temperature Of 120 Degrees Reported at Musatine, Iowa; High Pressure Over Canada Promises Relief For Great Lakes

(By The Associated Press) The death toll mounted above 535 today as intense heat blazed down on the nation, smashing records for intensity and duration.

The blanket of heat, as tenacious and oppressive as a mustard plaster, showed signs of lessening at the edge, but in the Mid-West where its devastating effects are greatest, no relief was sighted.

An unofficial 120 degree temperature was recorded at Musatine, Iowa, and above 100 degree readings were general through the central-western States.

The Atlantic seaboard was cooling and hope-for relief was held out for the southern coastal States and the high pressure area now over western Canada promised relief for the Great Lakes territory.

In Chicago packers and officials, deluged with record shipments of cattle because of the drought, appealed to Government officials to stay the flood of starving animals being bought with Federal funds from destitute farmers and shipped there for processing.

BORAH TAKES ROUGH CRACK AT MONOPOLY

Idaho Senator Declares it is Most Invidious Enemy Of New Deal

St. Anthony, Idaho, July 24.—(AP)—Senator William E. Borah called for the destruction of monopoly today denouncing it as "the most invidious and most successful enemy of the new deal."

Flinging down the gauntlet to "defenders" of monopoly, the Idaho Senator told an annual pioneer day audience: "They will have to fight in the open."

His address bristled with epigrams. "Monopolies are economic Hitler." "The effect of monopoly is to decrease if not to destroy purchasing power." "The farmer can never win out on that basis." "Monopoly has no more right to exist than any other form of depradation."

He accused monopoly of blocking the national recovery effort so that purchasing power of the farmer and laborer "have been but little increased, if at all."

YOUTH CLAIMS THAT THREE MEN KIDNAPPED HIM

Delco, July 23.—A young man, 19, giving his name as Major Cooke of near Nichols, South Carolina stopped here one day last week and reported that while en route to Sunday school in his community Sunday morning, July 23, three young men whom he did not know, riding in a new automobile, stopped and picked him up and forced him to accompany them to Wilmington.

He said that he lived on the Hayes Brothers' farm near Nicholas and that he was trying to catch a ride back home.

Mr. Hobbs got in touch with the railroad agent at Nicholas by telephone and confirmed that part of the boy's story.

A contribution was given the boy and he purchased a ticket and caught the evening train for Nicholas.

Before leaving, however, he said that his kidnapers had not harmed him any way other than taking him to Wilmington blindfolded and putting him out without telling him where he was, with the statement "Now, young fellow, find your way back the best you can."

Compulsory Farming Chilean Plan. Santiago, Chile.—(AP)—Radical members of the chamber of deputies are sponsoring a law requiring all unemployed persons between the ages of 15 to 60 to go to work on farms, and fixing special taxes to finance the scheme under supervisory commissions.

TO FILL A LONG FELT NEED

With the municipal swimming pool rapidly nearing completion and with work to begin immediately on converting adjacent property loaned by the college into a public park, Greenville is soon to begin to derive the benefit from two things that have been needed here for a long, long time.

With the matter of the college lending the city a portion of its property for a public park all settled, plans are going forward for the operation of a supervised playground for the children on the site beginning next Monday morning.

SPITE MARRIAGE

SYNOPSIS: Bob Powers has in his still-socked summer, forbidden Marsha to elope with her lover. She has also demanded that she divorce him. Now he learns that his mother is incurably ill, and asks Marsha to return with her to the part of the happily married daughter. Marsha is glad to do it, for she loves Bob very deeply.

Chapter 26

BOB saw Marsha move toward the door to slip away, despite the most pressing of Victorian invitations to linger.

"She knows I want all the moments alone with you that I can have," said Bob after Marsha had disappeared. He stood looking at the spot where he had seen the last flutter of her skirt, as he continued to shake a long extinguished match.

"I feel that we lack, Robert, when she is not here. I have no sense, with your wife near, of intrusion."

"Mrs. Powers paused; Bob saw that she was 'displaced.'"

"I have been wanting to say a few words to you, Robert, for some days."

"Yes, Mother?"

"I cannot feel that you quite appreciate Marsha, Robert; hers is a rarely selfless, sweet, loving character."

"Oh, I know, I know that!" he faltered.

"Don't pluck at that nail, dear. You'll make it sore."

"Sorry," he clasped his hands; raised his face.

"If you had added your word to my invitation, dear, she would have lingered."

He wondered, as he felt a sharp knife plunged into an old, dull palm, whether she would have lingered if he had added his word. He thought not.

"Be tender with her, Robert. She has sadly lacked affection."

He had a flash of her, in Geoffrey Taretton's arms. He rose to wander to and fro and hoped—fervently—that it wouldn't last much longer.

This particular lecture was not easy to endure!

"She loves you so!"

"God! The old hard plunge of heart . . . and longing."

"Of course," Bob managed to say quite steadily, "of course I know that."

"You accept the fact too casually, my dear. Every man is not loved as you are loved by your wife."

"I hope not," he thought with a flash of bitter humor.

"Marsha says that no woman can do justice to herself or the subject with a man stamping around the room, Robert."

He sighed deeply; again he settled to the small stool. He murmured, "All right, dear. But get at it. I must change, you know—"

"She is so sweet!"

"Oh—of course!"

"I don't mean to take exception, nor to nag, Robert, but there is no 'of course' about it. She is rare. And so eager to learn. Now, Letitia would not have been interested."

"No," he admitted. He hoped it wasn't wearing Marsha out. Lord, she was being good about it; generously, marvelously good.

"ROBERT, you should kiss her when you come in."

"Don't you think," he hazarded, voice conscious, "that that sort of thing has rather gone out?"

"Robert!"

"Well, all right I will hereafter!" he hastened to promise.

"I would!" Mrs. Powers advised.

"You come in and kiss me, but never kiss Marsha. I can see it tells her; it shows."

He didn't respond.

"And flowers. Your dear father sent me flowers every other Friday."

"Every other Friday, you say?" he questioned. He laughed delightedly; he was living one of those rare, light moments when he was not haunted by the picture that Marsha and Geoffrey had burned deep into his heart with the acid that is known only by those who love overpoweringly.

"Kiss her," he muttered, "and send her flowers every other Friday."

"You could make it another day, of course, Robert. If you thought another day would be better than Friday."

"Yes, darling!" He rose, patted her shoulder and hurried up the stairs.

Marsha opened her door to him;

fall upon is looked forward to, however, as encompassing large possibilities.

Chasing Idle Money

The task of getting idle money out of hiding, into the channels of trade, has provoked the most stubborn of the recovery problems.

Mr. Hoover sought to master it through various credit agencies. Mr. Roosevelt has intensified that effort, and Congress now has added the leverage strongly persuasive legislation.

Under the credit expansion act, the government has gone into partnership with the reserve banks in lending. A little-mentioned clause in the tax revision act puts a penalty on idle corporation surpluses.

Through these and other means, the administration is "turning on the heat" in a manner unequalled at any previous stage of the depression. If the excess reserves of the Federal reserve system—now running well above a billion and a half—do not shrink before fall, it will be because Washington is unable either

Jobs For 5,000,000?
The housing program will be the main reliance of the re-employment drive.

Big figures have become so common that nobody batted an eye when James A. Moffett, the new housing administrator, predicted the program eventually would put 5,000,000 men to work.

Mr. Moffett is rated as an experienced business executive, not a dreamer. Presuming he is serious about his statistics, the housing venture must take rank at once as one of the most ambitious of its recovery program.

Even General Johnson's outside figure for possible re-employment under NRA did not greatly exceed 5,000,000. PWA never got anywhere near that total in its predictions.

The latest American Federation of Labor figures put the aggregate of industrial unemployment in May at 10,267,000. Everyone recognizes that even in normal times 5,000,000 or so are unemployed either from choice or chronic causes—"disemployed," some economists call them.

So it would seem that what Mr. Moffett aspires to is nothing less than absorbing completely the remaining employable unemployed. It is a fascinating forecast, worth watching.

Two Big Worries
While Washington doubles the pressure for re-employment of men and dollars, two worries are never out of mind:

One is agricultural unrest, to which will be applied the remedy of even greater spending during the summer and fall.

The other is the constantly recurring threat of large-scale labor trouble. The new labor board is intended to provide the safety valve for that. The endeavor of no other recovery agency will be watched more prayerfully by Washington.

Another nation-wide campaign is demonstrating again how difficult it is really to "realign" political parties.

For many years politicians and political observers have been saying the time was near when one party would have to become the "conservative party, and the other the "radical" party.

The results show how far wrong it is possible for the wise ones to be. It is true there has been some bolting, principally from the Republican party, but so far as the leaders are concerned, it scarcely can be regarded even approaching a "realignment."

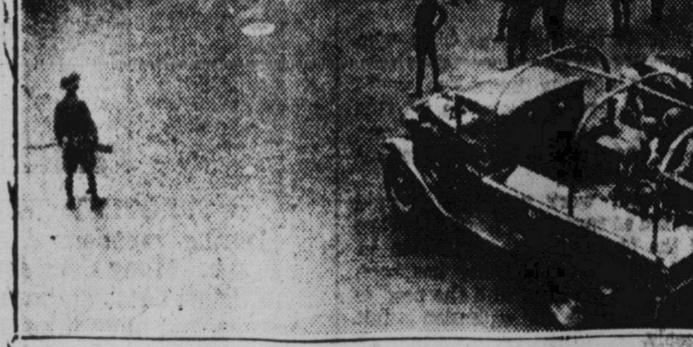

The Republicans still have on their rolls plenty of public men who, like Borah, of Idaho, and Nye, of North Dakota, rank in the public mind among the strongest liberals. The best that can be said is that, even counting bolters out, the Republican party continues to be conservative in one State or section, and liberal or even radical in another.

Complain—Loyally
On the Democratic side, the division of opinion is just as apparent without the slightest sign that anything is going to happen about it.

Al Smith, John W. Davis and Carter Glass (to name only some of the most prominent) have openly complained that the Roosevelt administration was leading the Democratic party away from sound moorings; but not a single leader of that rank has indicated a willingness to vote the Republican ticket.

They stay in the national fold with the Democrats of Washington state, for instance, who appear to be leading the procession toward liberalism. Here are some of the provisions of the 1934 Democratic platform in that State:

"We believe in the 30-hour week. We favor the remonetization of silver. We favor the principle of unemployment insurance. We endorse the principal of municipal ownership and operation of power, light and water utilities. We endorse the principle of old age pensions. We recommend that as rapidly as possible the government take over the management of banks."

Stray Shots
The situation in both parties shows how futile must be any effort to "direct" this year's Congressional campaign from national headquarters.

Among the Republicans up for reelection are Senator Hale, of Maine, pillar of eastern conservatism, and Senator Frazier, of North Dakota, author of the farm mortgage moratorium.

The Democrats include Senator Byrd, of Virginia, who thinks the Roosevelt farm program has been inclined to go much too far, and Senator Wheeler, of Montana, who ten years ago was Vice-Presidential nominee on the independent ticket headed by the elder La Follette.

About all the national organizations can do is to take stray shots at one another, without saying too much about specific issues. If either party took a definite stand for "conservatism" or "radicalism," it would hurt a good many of its own members.

Actually, this year is seeing not one campaign but many, each confined to a State or locality and making its own issues to suit itself.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, D. C., (AP)—Secretary Wallace's frankness and candor concerning various phases of the agriculture almost bowl over Washington newspaper men and politicians.

They haven't been accustomed to such treatment at the hands of a government official of this high rank. He seems to conceal nothing, and he speaks with a conviction which leaves the listener assured he has heard exactly what the Secretary of Agriculture believes to be true.

There is, for example, his meeting with the press after his return from a trip to the West. It was the first opportunity for reporters to ask him if he could explain why the administration's popularity seemed to be slipping in that section.

Cash Will Help
Slowly, sometimes hesitantly, but without any attempt to evade the question, he replied that he thought a possible reason was the corn-belt has received little in the way of benefit payments.

"If the South had been going along this past year with six-cent cotton, I suspect even a Democratic administration would lose favor there."

At that, said Wallace, he found the Roosevelt administration a little more popular than he had anticipated, and "I think the corn and hog checks we are giving out now will ease the situation materially."

It was a straightforward admission on the Secretary's part that the delay encountered in forwarding funds on the corn-hog contract between the government and producers had proven costly to the administration's prestige in the West.

Farmers' Pay Day
It is estimated that approximately $130,000,000 will be distributed on 1,000,000 contracts under the corn-hog program. The first checks were mailed out of Washington during the last week of April.

By the middle of July more than 30,000 checks totaling $9,284,569.70 had gone into the pockets of the corn-hog producers. At the present an average of $30,000 a day is being disbursed in an average of 3,000 different checks.

These averages are being stepped up daily with the expected peak to be reached by the first of August.

The significance of these figures hardly can be over-estimated either from an economic or political standpoint.

Perfect Mirror Can't Be Scratched

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (Associated Press Science Editor)
Ithaca, N. Y., (AP)—The perfect mirror, one which reflects all the light but which cannot be scratched, is near realization in the Cornell University physics laboratory.

The newest one is a combination of glass, chromium and aluminum, described in the Physical Review by D. Robley C. Williams, Cornell physicist. It is made by evaporating chromium as a mist on top of glass, and over the chromium a film of evaporated aluminum.

The glass is first cleaned to a shininess no housewife ever imagined. It is washed with chemicals. Then it is given an electric bath. This is done by placing it in a vacuum and bombarding the glass surface with ions, which are frag-

Miss Nettie Brogden Honored

Miss Nettie E. Brogden, Greensboro educator, is one of six particularly interesting women chosen by American business women to plan and preside over the sessions of five regional meetings of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs this summer and fall. Included in the group are a New England florist, a juvenile court judge of the Middle West, a private secretary to a Grand Rapids furniture king, a realtor and insurance broker of the Southwest, and a Western silver miner.

Miss Brogden is general chairman of the Southeast region, which will hold its second biennial conference at Blue Ridge from August 16 through August 19. Women of North Carolina are hoping that the region can be persuaded to make Blue Ridge the permanent site for its biennial conferences, says Miss Mae Reynolds, of Raleigh, the recently elected president of the North Carolina Federation. But the Florida Federation, the largest in the Southeast, has announced that it is sending a large delegation to Blue Ridge next month with the determination of winning the 1936 conference for Coral Gables, Washington, D. C., women have shown signs of wishing to lure the next conference to the Nation's Capital. This will be one of the interesting items of business taken up at the general session on Saturday morning, August 18, according to Miss Brogden.

The Tar Heel leader of Dixie's business and professional women only recently returned from a year of travel and study in Europe. Much of that time she spent in rural Germany, where she was sent by the Experimental Division of Teachers' College of Columbia University, to study the development of community life and elementary education. During the months of her stay abroad, she interviewed leading business women of a number of countries. In Rome, she was a guest of Dr. Maria Castellani, civil engineer and the woman upon whom Benito Mussolini depends to keep Italian women enthusiastic about his regime. In Belgium, she was entertained by a newspaper woman. In Berlin, Miss Brogden had tea with Dr. Maria Munk, Berlin's first portia and the first woman to rise to a civil judgeship in Prussia. Dr. Munk has been in the United States since late in April studying American juvenile courts, and the German League of Business and Professional Women, of which she was founder and president, has been absorbed in the general "front" that has replaced women's organizations under the Hitler regime.

A native of Tennessee and a graduate of George Peabody College for Teachers at Nashville, Tenn., Miss Brogden has had wide experience in the teaching field. She taught in a Louisiana school where dark Creole children used to bring her candy in rather dirty little hands. She worked in the rural schools of Maryland before the advent of good roads had conquered the mud, and she was on the staff of the State Department of Public Instruction in Florida. After doing a piece of work in western North Carolina for the State Department of Public Instruction she had charge of teacher supervision in the 30 white schools of Guilford county for seven years. Just now, she is taking a vacation in Greenville, where she is visiting her sister, Mrs. David Clark, and Solicitor Clark.—(Raleigh News and Observer).

The Knighthood of Dannebrog, one of the most coveted of Danish decorations, was instituted in 1219. It is awarded only by decree of the king for meritorious service to Denmark.

Garner's Taking 'Lazy Man' Rest

By R. W. BARRY

Uvalde, Texas.—(AP)—"Come on, let's go look at my settin' hen," said Vice President John N. Garner.

He pulled himself out of a restful chair, parked in the sun-room of his comfortable home, buttoned the neckband of his collarless shirt, fastened his belt and sauntered leisurely toward the barn on his 15-acre place.

Garner is taking a real "lazy man's rest" from arduous duties as president of the Senate and confidant of the President.

"Why should anyone want to go to Siberia or some place for a vacation when he can stay at home and be himself?" he asked as he made his way to the hen-house. A white chicken was sprawled over a dozen eggs—his "settin' hen."

"A President can't turn the corner these days without being followed and guarded like a prisoner," he commented. "Why, it's like being in jail."

"Every time he steps out there is a 'sheriff' in the lead, a 'sheriff' in the rear and a 'sheriff' on either side."

"I am happy here at home," Garner appeared really happier than the night, nearly two years ago, when he was elected vice-president. "I certainly look healthier, as he stepped with a spring."

The vice-president is disturbed frequently, even in his off-the-beaten-path home, but he takes it all good naturedly.

"You know Mrs. Garner (who acts as his secretary) is the best person in the world," he said. "She will let all of them come to see me. I like to have them come."

For instance, there was a famous evangelist here from Tennessee. He came out. He said it was the first vice-president of the United States he had ever seen.

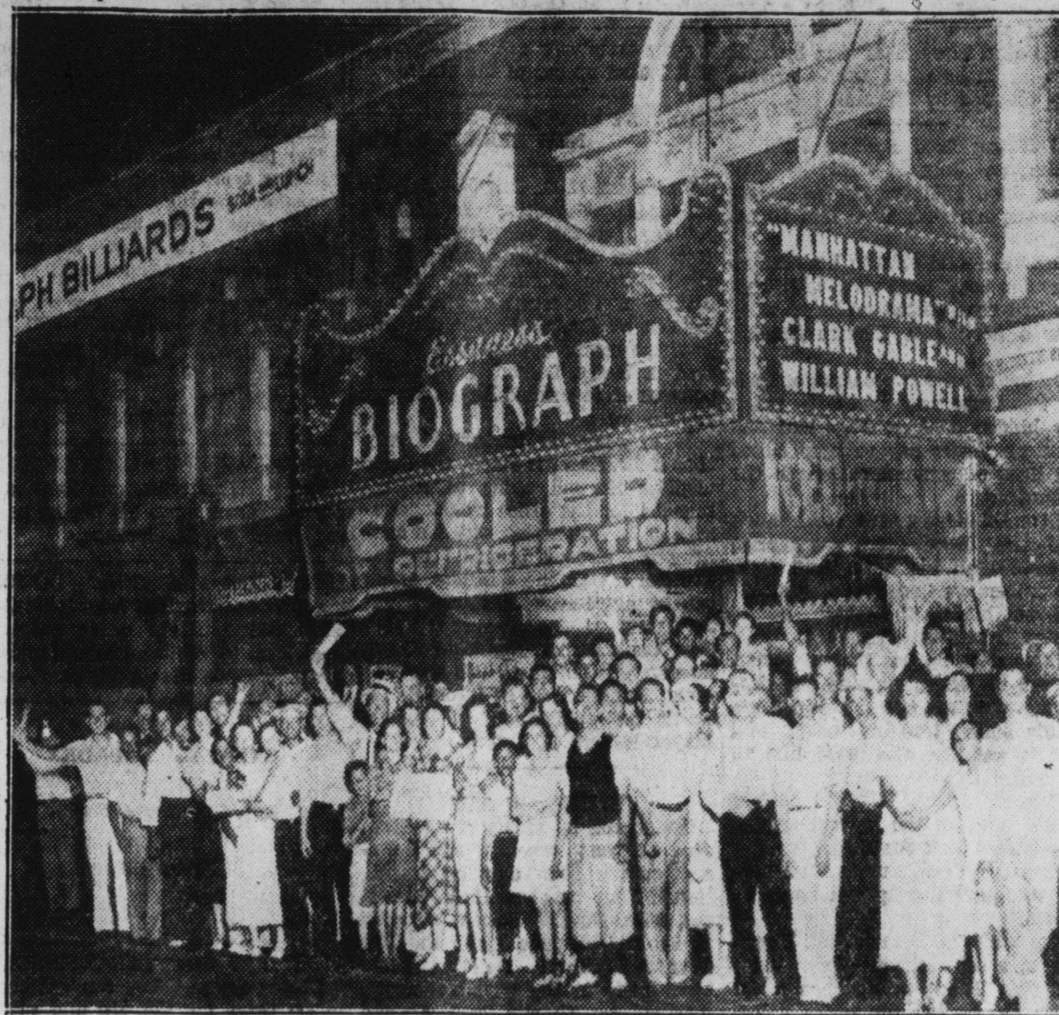

"Did you know," he asked, "that John Quincy Adams got up every day about 5 o'clock and took a plunge in the Potomac? Can you imagine what the reaction would be if an occupant of the White House in this day and time would slip out before daybreak and take a swim like that?"

Garner chuckled at the idea. "Going to Washington in September to help with the congressional elections?" he was asked. "Haven't heard about it, except what I read in the newspapers—that the President wanted me to," he replied.

With a sigh he added: "Of course whatever the chief wants me to do I'll try to do, but I sure love this place."

Garner has a fine grape arbor as well as a pecan orchard and a garden that produces virtually all kinds of vegetables. He has been putting in much time picking grapes and preparing them for jelly. They make good wine, too, he explained.

JOHN DILLINGER'S LAST STAND

One gang story ended, John Dillinger left the Biograph movie house (above) at Lincoln and Fullerton streets in Chicago. Guns barked and a real-life gang story ended with the midwest's most hunted bandit dead on the sidewalk. Federal agents had been tipped off that the desperado was movie-going and they surrounded the theater. Recognizing him despite his surgical disguise, they closed in and settled an odd score. Here is the crowd which gathered immediately after the shooting. (Associated Press Photo)

OFFICERS ARE ROTE GUESTS

Wind-Jamming, Led By The Mayor, Marks Law Enforcement Program

By WYATT BROWN

"You people can have any kind of law enforcement you want," said Mayor Roy Flanagan, chief of Police George Clark, Sheriff Sam Whitehurst and Lieut. Lester Jones of the State Highway Patrol, last night at the regular weekly meeting of the Greenville Rotary Club. Each one stated and reiterated that if the public will back them they can get better law enforcement.

Mayor Flanagan spoke first and bespoke the encouragement and appreciation of the policeman's efforts. He said there is a drive to raise the standard of law enforcement officers by attracting men of training and education. One of the chief handicaps to discourage the officer's best efforts is the way citizens want to get a criminal's case settled before a hearing, usually playing up a good mother that needs protecting.

"We are filling our penitentiary with white men who have never learned to read and write. They want things which their earning capacity cannot afford. Recently a car forged a check to purchase a car to take his girl driving in. Good mother and outstanding citizens came to get the boy off before a trial. To arbitrarily excuse a boy runs him. This discourages the officer. Give the officer your moral support in discharging his duties. If you will do that, you will see such a change in Pitt County that it will surprise you," the Mayor urged in closing his brief remarks.

"Citizens," said Sheriff Whitehurst, "soon forget a criminal and lose sight of the crime." Recently on a case in which a man was to be electrocuted for the perpetration of a crime in this county the sheriff said he was called to Raleigh because new evidence had been found. First off he found a letter from five or six of our best local citizens asking for a commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment. The new evidence turned out to be facts that were available to the defense attorney all the way through the trial if he had wanted it. The officers in the case had done their duty only to be stalemated by this handling of the final outcome.

Lieutenant Jones explained that he was confined to enforcement of the highway laws of the state. He said that there were several things that made his task more difficult. Two he specifically emphasized were the out-moded vehicular laws created for the fifteen-miles-per-hour model T Ford and the absence of chauffeurs and operators license for all automobile drivers. The many unused vehicular laws clutter up the state's statutes, he said.

Chief of Police Clark was brief and to the point in his remarks when he said: "You people can have any kind of enforcement you want. The more you back up the police, the better enforcement you will get."

Besides the speakers, the club had as guests Charles Cobb and George Gardner. Lawrence Stroud won the attendance prize. He says that it is simple to do, one just concentrates on it. He did last night and received the prize without the slightest surprise. An impromptu quartette composed of Burney Warren, Johnny Overton, John Clark and Lyman Ormond entertained for a short while and enjoyed their singing so much that with little encouragement the whole club joined

Arguments

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Christopher Columbus Crow fortunately was not accused of having brought the field mice to the other meeting, and now the arguments commenced again.

"I say," began one farmer, "that crows should be destroyed. Soon they will be stealing all our corn. Why, another name for crow is that of corn thief."

"I agree with you," said a second farmer. "They raid poultry yards, they attack other birds—particularly to them like birds' eggs."

"They also eat insects which do great harm to the crops," Willy Nilly now cried out. "If you destroy crows your farms will be overrun with grubs and cut-worms and grasshoppers and beetles. They do more good than harm. And my Christopher here is so well fed at home that he doesn't have to come over to this village."

"Besides it was my Rip who saved two of your children in a fire. There wasn't enough you could do for him. He has come here to show you that now you can do something for him."

"You can save his friend Christopher Columbus Crow."

Rip wagged his tail and barked and looked at everyone out of his soft, pleading eyes.

"Oh, do, do save our Christopher,"

HARRINGTON RESIGNS AS BALL MANAGER

Milton Harrington, former star Duke outfielder, who has directed the playing destiny of the local club of the Coastal Plain League the last two seasons, resigned his managerial duties at a meeting of the board of directors last night.

In a statement this morning, the directors announced that "Dick" Poole had been named to succeed Harrington and would appear in his new capacity in the game between New Bern and Greenville here this afternoon. Poole was with the club last year and returned several weeks ago to resume his place in right field.

In presenting his resignation last night, Mr. Harrington assured the directors the step was taken in what he believed to be "the best interests of the club." He said he thought probably somebody else would be able to obtain better results and pull the club to a higher level.

After accepting the resignation and expressing appreciation of the fine work which Harrington had done to give the city a winning team, the directors "slept on" the new manager proposition until this morning when it was announced that Poole would be the successor.

Harrington is probably one of the most feet-footed fielders in the league and was able to lead the local club to the pennant last season. In the final series with Ayden the locals copped four straight games to capture the flag.

The flag was raised with appropriate exercises at Third Street Athletic field about two weeks ago and officials of the league expressed appreciation of the fine spirit of sportsmanship that marked the victory for the Greenville club.

Much credit for the honor went to Harrington, whose batting and fast work in the field contributed largely to the club's success.

Poole came to the club the first of last season. He is a former professional player, having been a member of a club in the International League for several years. He hails from the Clayton section of North Carolina. He is red-faced, jovial and well liked and is expected to play an important part in the club's activities through his advisory capacity.

League Moguls To Decide The Fate of Fletcher

Coastal Plain League directors will meet at Ayden tonight to pass judgment on the eligibility of Guy Fletcher, Kinston pitcher who had won nine consecutive games before meeting his first defeat last week. Fletcher is a student at Carolina.

Greenville has protested the eligibility of Fletcher, contending that he pitched in 1933 for the Winston-Salem club of the Piedmont League.

Under Coastal Plain League rules, each club may carry one professional on its roster, but he may not be used as a pitcher. Kinston professionally is Bunn Hearn, manager.

Kinston is now leading the league race, with a four-game margin over the runner-up Ayden club. Forfeiture of the games won with Fletcher in the box would drop the club to the 500 mark. Kinston has won 27 games and lost nine to date.

Today's schedule in the league: Tarboro at Ayden; New Bern at Greenville; Kinston at Snow Hill.

After an irregular opening due partly to the closing out of an assortment of thinly margined accounts gains of fractions to around a point were recorded by a number of the more recently depressed shares. Trading activity became dull on the upturn and the list later exhibited further spottiness. There was no news of consequence.

Commodities were a trifle nervous.

Buying predominated late in the day and gains of around a point were shown by some issues.

the Greer highway near here.

The priest killed was Father Charles DeZineau of Charleston.

The other victim was a man about 20 years old. He was not immediately identified as all persons connected with the party who were able, were assisting in removal of the injured to hospitals. Ten of the injured were taken to Brecard where hospital attaches said more ambulances were en route to scour the mountains. The others were brought in in ambulances and private cars manned by officers.

Dillinger Died Seeking Gold.
Chicago, July 24—(AP)—Gold lured John Dillinger on his career of crime and gold lured him to his death.

Officers found $7.70 in his pockets after his body punctured with bullets had been picked up in an alley near a north side theatre Sunday night.

Dillinger, private probers concluded, was broke and unable to reach any hidden bank robbery loot and could no longer pay to keep closed the lines of communication to the authorities.

Alive, Dillinger wasn't worth much in dollars. Dead, there was a price of $15,000 on his head. And that, the probers concluded, is why someone "put him on the spot."

Who it was is a secret.

There were reports that a woman dressed in red was beside the desperado when the agents pumped the deadly bullets into his body, and that it was she who lured him to his end.

"I won't discuss it," said Melvin Purvis, chief of the federal agents, who laid in wait for Dillinger.

"Probably," said Purvis, "the person who gave the tip will never be known."

The Chicago Herald and Examiner in a copyrighted story today said that Dillinger had been under police observation for weeks before he was shot and the central figure in the case was a Croatian informer, a former gambling acquaintance of Dillinger.

CONTEST FORESEEN IN NEW BERN P. O. JOB
New Bern, N. C., July 24.—Call for an open competitive examination for the position of postmaster in New Bern has been issued by the Civil Service Commission. Applications must be received by the commission by August 7. The call follows the recent appointment of Alfred A. Kafer, Democrat, as acting postmaster, to succeed Roy F. Shupp, Republican.

It is generally understood here that if Mr. Kafer is among the three eligibles he will again be recommended for the office by Congressman C. L. Abernethy, with his confirmation already promised by the two North Carolina Senators, under caucus agreement and recent endorsement. However, it is reported that Congressman-Nominee G. A. Barden will object to this appointment, being said to be favorable towards the application of former Mayor Hubert G. Tolson.

Talk Tobacco Agreement
Washington, D. C., July 24.—(AP)—The inauguration of a marketing agreement for fluecured tobacco was discussed today in an informal private conference between farm and tobacco section officials and representatives of domestic buyers.

Newspapermen were not admitted to the conference which was expected to last until late in the day.

Buyers operated last season under a marketing agreement which covered only the 1933 crop.

No information was available as to the nature of proposals for this year's agreement, but it was assumed the 1933 structure was being used as a model.
