WAR DEPARTMENT WILL NOT ACT IN NEW ORLEANS

Woodring Tells Mayor Wamsley He Cannot Act

SEEK PROBE OF TROOPS IN BIG POLITICAL TILT

Mayor Wamsley Announces He Has Appealed To War Department For Investigation; Woodring Says No Such Request Received; No Action To Be Taken

Washington, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Acting Secretary of War Woodring has informed Mayor T. Semmes Wamsley of New Orleans that the War Department will take no action in the controversy between the Wamsley and Senator Huey Long factions in Louisiana.

Mayor Wamsley, political foe of Senator Long and Governor O. K. Allen, announced in New Orleans he had appealed to the War Department for an investigation of Allen's action in calling out the Louisiana national guards to seize the city voters registration office.

Woodring said today a representative of the Wamsley faction whose name he did not obtain—telephoned him from New Orleans last night asking in formation concerning the department's attitude.

He explained that no official request had been received from the New Orleans mayor and that pending receipt of such a request the department would take no official action.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Further answering the challenge of Senator Huey Long's militia mobilization south of the city, Mayor T. Semmes Wamsley today called five hundred additional police for duty from the city's civil service list, increasing the local constabulary force to 1,400 men.

Fully armed, including riot guns, were issued to the augmented force at headquarters. All officers now on leave were recalled to duty and twelve-hour police shifts were decreed for the first time in the past fifteen years.

GET OVER $1,000 FROM SAFE AT THOMASVILLE

Thomasville, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Battering in by sheer force the door of the safe of the Coca-Cola Bottling Company here, thieves Monday night took more than $1,000 in cash and made a successful getaway. The robbery was discovered on opening of the business yesterday morning.

Greensboro and High Point police called to assist in efforts to establish identity of the robbers were of the opinion that the robbery here followed an unsuccessful attempt to crack the safe of the Greensboro Coca-Cola Company during the night.

The safe was not drilled nor blown. It had been battered in with heavy tools which appeared to have been muffled with rags. A special compartment which housed the safe had been entered with a key but the entrance to the building had been effected by breaking open a rear door.

ALDERMEN TO ADOPT BUDGET

Tentative Budget to Be Considered at Monthly Meeting Tomorrow Night

The tentative city budget will be considered at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Aldermen at the City Hall tomorrow night.

In addition to the budget, the aldermen are expected to give consideration to salaries of city officers. Department heads were elected at a previous meeting, but the question of salaries was left open until tomorrow night.

After adoption of the tentative budget it will be placed on display for a period of several days in which the citizenship will have the opportunity to look over the provisions for the various departments and see exactly what the boys are planning to do during the next year.

With only a slight variation between the valuation last year and that of this year, there was little likelihood of a reduction in the tax rate this year, although members of the board are cutting in every way to make this possible.

In preparation for the budget, the heads of the various city departments were asked to present the board with a list of its needs for the new year, and with these in hand the budget was prepared probably in a more intelligent way this year than ever before.

Economy has been the watchword of the board for several years. The tax rate has been cut annually until the city enjoys one of the lowest rates of any town of similar size and importance in the State.

The aldermen have attempted to run the city efficiently at the least possible cost, and this program has resulted in tremendous savings to taxpayers.

TEMPERATURE FOR SECTION

Manixum 92; Minimum 71. Report is furnished by local government station, B. T. Clark, chief every 24-hour period dating from 8 a. m.

Heaviest Rains In Five Years Reported Here

Greenville and vicinity had the heaviest rainfall during the past month of any single calendar month in the past five years, it was made known today by B. T. Clark, local weather observer.

Mr. Clark said his gauge at the government weather observatory showed nine and two one hundredths inches rainfall for the period.

The maximum temperature yesterday was given at 92 degrees and the minimum was 71.

Owing to the extreme humidity caused by the excessive rainfall the day was one of the hottest of the week, yet cooling breezes last night enabled the citizenship to sleep peacefully.

PAVE WAY TO NEW PARKING

One Side Parking on Dickinson Avenue to Become Effective This Month

The marking the Dickinson Avenue was under way today in preparation for enforcing the one side parking ordinance to become effective sometime this month.

Resolutions to this effect were expected to be passed at the monthly meeting of the Board of Aldermen tomorrow night.

Mayor Flanagan announced several weeks ago that he had been requested by the Federal Administration to enforce one side parking on all streets thirty feet wide or less in an effort to relieve congestion. This provides only for streets for which the Federal government has appropriated money for improvements, it was said.

As Dickinson Avenue is one of the most congested thoroughfares in the city, especially during tobacco season, the mayor said immediate steps would be taken to carry out the Government's request.

Although the Government forces also did some work on Fifth Street, it was said that only Dickinson Avenue would be affected by the ruling. Marking forces have been busy the last few days properly marking Dickinson Avenue in preparation for enforcing the new parking ordinance, and every effort will be made to see that the new law is fully enforced, it was said.

Other streets are also being marked today for the monthly change in parking regulations which take place the first of every month.

BANK PAYS INSTALLMENT

Third Payment to National Bank Depositors Made by State Bank Here

State Bank & Trust Company announced today it had just paid off the third installment to depositors of the old National Bank which closed here about three years ago.

The total amount involved in the payment was over $85,000. It was stated that those receiving payments immediately re-deposited the money in the bank.

The depositors of the old bank signed an agreement for reorganization of the institution and thus provided for the payment of the deposits in four annual installments.

Officials of the bank expressed gratification over the progress made by the institution since its reorganization and the faith evidenced by former depositors by re-depositing their money in the institution.

TROOPS SEIZE QUARTERS OF STRIKE HEADS

Soldiers With Guns on Wheels Take Charge Of Strike Situation At Minneapolis

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Men in khaki with guns on wheels seized the headquarters of the striking truck drivers today, arrested the ring leaders and smashed before it got started an organized movement to stop truck transportation in defiance of military law.

With the national guards in full control and occupants of the buildings dispersed, Adjutant General W. A. Walsh mapped a plan of action designed to break up another unauthorized meeting of strikers.

"The round-up of these officials," said General Walsh, "was stressed because they defied the order of military rule by holding meetings at the parade grounds last night without permit."

Effective immediately any pickets appearing in the city in automobiles will be arrested, he said.

Officers formed their men in solid line completely around the square block in which strikers congregated in a former garage.

Undeterred by troops, the pickets lunged guerrilla attacks on trucks, keeping guards on the jump from calls for aid.

Wholesale arrests followed. Some were armed with lead pipes shortly before word was received that a second victim of the terror strike had died.

He was among those arrested by police July 10 when a loaded truck was attacked by pickets.

MRS. VINCENT PASSES AWAY

Beloved Winterville Lady Succumbs to Declining Health of Past Year

Mrs. Z. V. Vincent, age 65, died yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home in Winterville. She had been in declining health for the past year but had only been confined to her bed for about two weeks. PITT CONVICT MAKES ESCAPE

Bill Clark, Colored, Makes Successful Bid For Liberty at Bruce

Bill Clark, 20-year-old negro convict, escaped from the state prison road forces on the Falkland highway yesterday, it was made known today by Manley Sellars, camp superintendent.

The negro, along with several others were shrubbing along the highway when Clark was said to have suddenly dived into the woods and escaped while the guard was not looking.

The negro was serving twelve months for breaking and entering. He was being sought by officers today and it was expected he would again be back in his prison garb by tonight, if not earlier.

After his successful break for liberty the negro was said to have entered the home of Jack Jones in the Bruce community and made away with a gray suit of clothes in addition to other wearing apparel. Investigating officers said the negro left his prison stripes on the floor of the room in which the change of clothing was made.

He was reported to have been seen a short distance from Bruce last night dressed in a gray suit. Notified of the negro's presence, officers immediately attempted to nab him but he evaded capture.

Supt. Sellars said every effort was being made to capture Clark, and that the negro would face a new charge of breaking and entering, growing out of the entering of the Jones home.

HITLER VISITS HINDENBURG

Former Corporal in Hindenburg Armies Visits Bedside Of President

Neudeck, Germany, Aug. 1.—(AP)—President Paul Von Hindenburg, 96 years of life behind him, and death believed closed ahead, was visited by Chancellor Hitler today.

The former Field Marshal, said by his physician, had grown weaker during the night, but retained full consciousness. The chancellor who once served in Von Hindenburg's army as a corporal came to his bedside from Berlin by airplane.

At 12:20 p. m. the physician announced: "Condition as compared with this morning is unchanged. Full consciousness remains. Toward noon the patient took slight nourishment."

It was shortly after that that Hitler and an entourage arrived by automobile from the airport at Marienburg.

HARRIS STILL IMPROVES HERE

Stabbed Officer Reported to be on Road To Recovery at Local Hospital

Continued improvement in the condition of Herbert Harris, deputy in the office of Sheriff Sam Whitehurst, who was seriously stabbed by a negro named Jesse Dudley Saturday night near Farmville, was reported from the local hospital today.

Suffering from knife wounds in the neck, shoulders, chest and back, some apprehension for the recovery of Harris was felt at first. Physicians said, however, he was expected to recover barring complications. One hundred and three stitches were taken to close the wounds.

The stabbing occurred on the Greenville-Farmville highway about a mile from Farmville. Harris, who was looking for an automobile wreck previously reported by telephone to the sheriff's office, halted his car to speak to Dudley, who allegedly was cursing a negroess identified later as Ella Armstrong.

The negro informed the officer it was none of his d—business what he did—that he'd cut his d—throa; if he fooled with him.

Suiting action to the word, Dudley allegedly pulled a five-inch-blade pocket knife from his pocket and sailed into the officer.

Cut off from his gun locked in his car, Harris was at the mercy of his assailant who made several murderous slashes and fled.

Harris, bleeding profusely, got in his car and drove to Farmville for medical aid. He was immediately returned to Greenville for hospital attention.

ALL MARTS SHOW GREAT PRICE GAIN

Tifton Reports 500,000 Pounds of Tobacco Offered There With Prices Ranging From 12 to 45 Cents a Pound; Valdosta Reports Averaging 25 Cents; Nashville Shows 20 Cent Average

Tifton, Ga., Aug. 1.—(AP)—The Tifton bright leaf tobacco market opened today with more than 500,000 pounds of tobacco offered.

First row sales ran from 12 to 45 cents a pound.

The Tifton Gazette said an unofficial estimate placed the average price at 10 cents a pound over last season.

Valdosta, Ga., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Thousands of pounds of tobacco went on sale today at fifteen South Georgia markets with the tobacco growers undergoing the new experience of having their product sold by allotments.

Roads leading to the state's markets were filled with trucks late yesterday bringing the weed to market opening this morning. There was approximately 12,000 farmers growing tobacco in the state under the tobacco reduction agreement and practically all the farmers said they expected a good break in the opening prices.

The markets which had announced opening today were at Valdosta, Tifton, Douglas, Moultrie, Nashville, Blackshear, Adele, Barkley, Hahira, Hazlehurst, Metter, Pelham, Statesboro, Vidalia and Waycross.

On the basis of private reports received by The Reflector today from Georgia tobacco markets it was indicated that the average price would be around 20 cents a pound or better, as compared with an average of between nine and ten cents for the opening day last season.

From W. Z. Morton at Valdosta came the following telegram: "First hour's sale here averaged 25 cents. Quality exceptionally good. Domestic companies buying in most of it. Farmers, of course, highly related."

C. L. Perkins at Metter said: "Growers Warehouse sold 50,000 pounds at an average of $17 to $18. Low basket five high. Forty-four farmers well pleased."

A telegram from Nashville stated: "Sales have been going on about 30 minutes. Prices high. Good quality. Liggett and Myers, Imperial Tobacco Company and Reynolds the strongest buyers. Estimated average fully 20 cents. Farmers highly pleased and rejecting none of their sales."

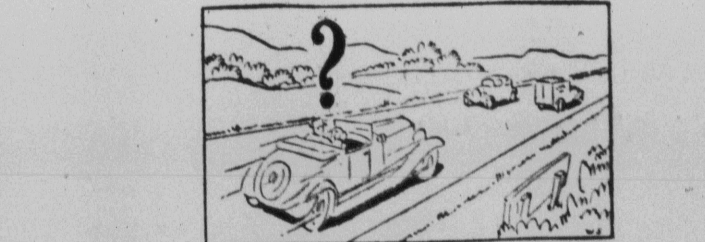

H. G. Juett at Statesboro said: "Market will average $20 quality fair, offerings fairly heavy, consisting mostly of primings. Growers well satisfied."

Hearse Mystery Solved. Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 1.—(AP)—The mystery of a hearse that was abandoned here three days ago was partly solved today.

Henry Singleton, an undertaker of Florence, S. C., appeared in police headquarters and claimed the vehicle.

"I just left it parked and went over to New York," he said. Singleton had left the hearse parked on the main state highway that leads to the Holland tunnel. Police removed it yesterday.

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

USE JUDGMENT

The lowest priced car you can buy today will go 70 miles per hour. The well paved roads invite high speeds but circumstances and conditions often make slow speed necessary if accidents are to be avoided. This requires competency and judgment on the part of the operator—when to slow down—when to resist the temptation of smooth highways and fast cars.

SPITE MARRIAGE by Katharine Haviland Taylor

SYNOPSIS: Bob Powers' mother is ill of an incurable disease and Marsha, Bob's wife, as a New York girl, for her Mrs. Powers' illness has postponed the divorce that Bob had demanded. Marsha's mother, Mrs. Powers, has never ceased loving Bob, and still comfort for his misfortune, understanding her selfishness with a devotion to his mother, Bob is in Mexico at work.

Chapter 23 SELF-SACRIFICE

"YOU will never know," said Marsha "what your faith in me, and your caring for me, means to me; it will always mean to me!" Her voice broke; she saw Mrs. Powers' eyes fill and she spoke quickly, lightly, of other matters.

She had new eyes, and they told her that Mrs. Powers was helped by seeing her through those sleepless nights when pain kept vigil and that Mrs. Powers' knowing the nurse to be awake and alert was not the same.

The fact warmed Marsha, who felt from it a rise of tenderness that made her eyes sting; an almost maternal tenderness. She reflected often and gratefully on the fact that she was, "so absurdly strong" and, fleetingly, she mused upon the mercy of crowded hours and the weariness that sent her soon into sound and dreamless sleep.

Such, for instance, was the case of Mrs. Powers' old friend, Mrs. Vin, who always stayed a round two hours. There were checks to write or the family attorney might come or the Curate or the Rector. And flowers must be arranged and Mrs. Powers must be diverted, entertained—and Bob's letters must be written every two days.

Many were the worlds for Marsha, who had known but her own selfish and sometimes cruel world; and there was so much to do in each of them.

Day done, Marsha would creep into the high, black walnut bed to sleep soundly for an hour, perhaps two; to wake with compunction and to fumble thickly for her elusive slippers.

Then, a negligee around her; she would make shivering, stumbling way down the passage. If the light by Mrs. Powers' bed showed a yellow silt beneath the door, Marsha would blink herself to sharp wakefulness and push open the door.

"Pain, dearest?" she would ask anxiously. "We can do no more than do to Marsha; the effect of opiate wears away with this!"

She would see Mrs. Powers smile on her, "er eyes brighten; she would hear, "Just a little, dear."

SHE would settle by the bed; sometimes Mrs. Powers admitted that she would have "a little pellet" and when this happened Marsha would drop it in a glass of water. The she would slip her arms beneath Mrs. Powers' shoulders to lift her while she drank.

After that she would sit down by the bed to wait, watch and hope; to hope so fully, so fervently, that she was often drained by the energy she gave to hope.

"Please, please!" she petitioned silently of that vague something that was drawing closer and growing warm for Marsha; "Please keep pain from her!"

"You'll get cold, dear," Mrs. Powers would murmur. Marsha would answer with a convincing, "I'm quite warm," frequently when her hands were stiffened by the cold and she had to set her teeth to keep them from chattering.

"Will you, just to gratify me, wrap that comforter around you?" "If you like, but I'm not cold. Is it any better, dear?" "I think so."

And then again, she'd sit back to wait. It was at such times that she felt oddly close to Bob; quite as if his strength sustained her, as if his love encompassed her, as if everything were well between them, and as if he cared.

ded under an onslaught of bitter fingers. But next morning fresh posters would be pasted up.

The "ribbon" was even quieter. It consisted of refusing to wear a pro-government emblem on lapels from which Socialist and Nazi emblems were barred.

Repeatedly the Dollfuss government proclaimed it was no time for half-hearted patriotism and that all Austrians should show the red-white-red ribbon of the "Fatherland Front." Government employees were told to wear it both on duty and off. Appeals for public co-operation in the drive to exterminate terrorism emphasized that he who failed to

And one night as she sat in the chill, dimly lit room she fell asleep to wake with a start and a sob because she had heard Bob say, "My dearest dear! My poor, tired child!"

It had made her tremble violently. "You spoke, mother?" she faltered.

"Water, dear, please." She stumbled as she moved toward the table upon which was a pitcher, but the ache and the depression that had rooted in an unusually long and trying day, were gone.

Bob must not know how bad it was, she decided again and again; he must never know! When he returned, she must keep him from the room at the bad hours. She considered, and at length, ways of doing this. She decided that she could with the help of the servants and the nurse, who would certainly understand the futility of his having more hurt than must be his.

"You'll break down," said the nurse one morning that followed a sleepless night; "it'd just a whim of hers, wanting to see you; it'll wear you out!"

For a brief moment a little of Marsha's chill arrogance returned; "Never suggest to her, please, my being tired. Do you understand, Miss Thrope?"

"Yes, Mrs. Powers, I didn't mean to annoy you, but you're too selfless."

"Nor did I mean to be sharp. But I want to be with her, to do everything I can for her! And if she thought I was being worn down, it would make it too difficult, you see?"

THE nurse did see, but she did not cease to be troubled. She released pressure through angry mutters to Hannah, to Ellen; mutters in which she said, "She's wearing herself out! That's all! The human body won't stand more than so much. When's he coming back anyway? She's a saint and—"

But Marsha was finding new food as well as new fatigue through doing what she could for "mother."

The diversion she best liked was looking, with Mrs. Powers, at Mrs. Powers' many portraits and snapshots of Bob. Bob in the photographer's high chair, Bob in his first short dresses, Bob wearing his first sailor-suit with the real whistle of which he had been so proud, hanging from a cord that was around his neck.

Bob in military-school uniform, later, in college and on the crew; Bob at some picnic. (The girl seated by him was really beautiful, Marsha realized with a quivering of heart.) Bob with his father, that happy year they spent together abroad.

Under this heading too, came Bob's dogs; horses; the Adirondacks place. "Of course you will go there often with Bob," said Mrs. Powers; "Bob loves it—"

And Mrs. Powers' life ending, Marsha was certain, was the very reason why she would never go with Bob to the Adirondacks place. His loving it would, of course, wall it away from her.

All that faded, wasted, small women had been to Bob began to be too apparent to Marsha and it led her to write him, in extra letters which Marsha did not show to Mrs. Powers, every small detail concerning his mother which she felt could interest him; his mother's enjoyments; how she spent her time; what they were reading; of her appetite, (if good, that day) who had called upon her. The chronicle was faithful in narrating all that could cheer.

Marsha felt that such word would help him; but once and again doubt crept in through her weariness, which reduced her judgment and left her certain only of the fact that she loved two souls with all her heart and must live, in the chill future, without both of them.

She wrote, one doubtful day, when her head ached from lack of sleep and she could not see quite clearly.

"I have written as I have, thinking it might help you. If my extra letters annoy you, put parentheses about "Your letters are so long and good, dearest" and I'll understand that you wish a terse report and no more.

"I don't want to make things harder for you than they must be; and I thought you might, and most naturally, feel I intrude where I can't belong through telling you of your mother.

"The only thing I could not forgive is your letting me continue to annoy you, if I have."

(Copyright, 1934, by K. Haviland-Taylor)

Marsha has, tomorrow, a telegram from Mexico, which will show his colors could not hide behind the fact that he was not an active terrorist.

"He who is not with me is against me," was the slogan of the pro-government press.

Yet a few hours spent watching crowds in Vienna or any other Austrian city revealed surprisingly few red-white-red ribbons.

One explanation was that many loyal Austrians hesitated to expose themselves thus to terroristic reprisals by wearing a pro-government badge.

EIGHT CONNECTICUT CHILDREN KILLED BY TRAIN

Seven boys and one girl were killed near Shelton, Conn., when they were trapped between two trains and another youth was critically injured. The children ranged between 10 and 14 years of age. An eyewitness to the tragedy said the victims were playing on the tracks. It was believed they stepped out of the way of one train only to be mowed down by another train coming from the opposite direction. Above is the scene of the tragedy with some of the bodies covered awaiting the coroner. (Associated Press Photo)

'Finger-Ribbon' Revolt Adds To Austria's Trouble

Vienna. — (AP)— The "finger-nail" and "ribbon" revolts against the Dollfuss regime in Austria, less spectacular than the bombings which preceded the Nazi revolt, nevertheless played a role in the anti-government activities.

They began when the Dollfuss government outlawed all Nazi and Socialist propaganda and launched its own advertising campaign. They provided a background of silent opposition contrasting with the bombings, shootings, artillery bombardments and other noisy features of the political struggle between the slain chancellor and his enemies to the left and right.

"Finger-nailing" the government consisted of scratching the faces of Dollfuss and Prince Starhemberg which appeared on government posters. Sometimes whole pieces were ripped from the countenances of the pair as they were pictured shaking hands. Sometimes the finger-nailers simply picked out their eyes.

Government bill-posters kept no more than two or three behind the finger-nailers. Of an afternoon, the tens of thousands of Dollfuss-Starhemberg posters might be shredded under an onslaught of bitter fingers. But next morning fresh posters would be pasted up.

The "ribbon" was even quieter. It consisted of refusing to wear a pro-government emblem on lapels from which Socialist and Nazi emblems were barred.

Repeatedly the Dollfuss government proclaimed it was no time for half-hearted patriotism and that all Austrians should show the red-white-red ribbon of the "Fatherland Front." Government employees were told to wear it both on duty and off. Appeals for public co-operation in the drive to exterminate terrorism emphasized that he who failed to

Ballard's X Road

One hundred years of winter and summer, one hundred years of springtime and harvest; one hundred years of sunshine and shadows have silently come and gone since Ballard's Cross Roads became a community of independent, conscientious law-abiding, peaceful and friendly people.

In its early days, one might say in the beginning we had a SCHOOL and where you find schools there you find intelligence and refinement.

There was no school building at Ballard's in the early days, but the school was usually taught in an unoccupied house and the school was not always taught at the Cross Road.

When the movement to consolidate our schools got under way our Board of Education decided to have a "two teacher" school at Ballard's—they disposed of the one room building which was situated on the road (now closed) that led from Adams' Bridge to the old "Plank" road to Greenville, and build a house of two rooms on a plot of ground donated to the county as long as the building should be used for school purposes.

This building erected in 1904 was used as a school house (for the white race, of course) until the beginning of the fall term of 1930 or 1931, when the building was closed for school purposes—the desks, tables, heaters, blackboards, maps and pictures, the back door steps, and the door key were removed.

The people of the community had, since the second Sunday in October, 1930, been holding Sunday School here regularly and after the public school was discontinued we obtained permission to continue our Sunday School and preaching in this building until such time as we should be in a position to buy it for a community building.

Secure in what we thought a mutual understanding, imagine our consternation when we learned that it had been OFFICIALLY announced that this building was to be used for a colored school!! Think of it—a colored school in the center of our community!!

Rabb-Menefee.
Lenoir, July 31.—A beautifully simple and impressive wedding was solemnized Sunday morning at nine o'clock at the home of Rev. R. E. Hardaway when Miss Alice Thornton Menefee became the bride of James Dudley Rabb. The service was performed by Rev. R. E. Hardaway, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

The bride wore a lovely navy blue ensemble with white accessories and carried an exquisite corsage of Briarcliff roses and swansonia. Mrs. Rabb, the attractive daughter of Mrs. Mattie Menefee, and the late E. H. Menefee, of Greenville, N. C., is a graduate of East Carolina Teachers College.

Mr. Rabb is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Rabb. He is an alumni of Mars Hill College, and is now prominently connected with the Radio Service Company of Lenoir.

After a bridal trip to Eastern Carolina and through the Valley of Virginia, to Washington, D. C., the young couple will be at home here. Guests present at the wedding were the bride's mother, Mrs. Mattie Menefee, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Rabb, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Menefee, Mrs. Lawrence Crawford of Chico, Calif., Charles West and John Rabb.

CONTRACT
By TOM O'NEIL
Costly Psychic

Some players who have possibilities for no trump, but lack a stopper in one suit and a good biddable suit, are prone to open the auction by bidding one club or one diamond, with the idea of winding up in a three no trump contract if partner makes a positive response, especially one that shows a fit.

If the opening bid is on a worthless suit and partner raises that suit, the presumption is that the combined hands have the suit stopped. If partner bids another suit and there is a fit with the original bidder, the game contract is no trump will be arrived at in the hope that the leader will start some other suit than the one which opened the auction.

Occasionally this type of psychic will run into a bunched suit at the left of the declarer and great will be his grief if the contract is no trump. In illustration:

South opened the auction with one diamond. Norris A. Huse, of New York, the suspicious West, delayed not on the order of his passing. North called two clubs. East passed and South went to three no trump, the contract.

Transpose the west and east hands and what could the defense have done to prevent the declarer from taking ten tricks?

But alas and lack! Huse gleefully led the diamonds from left to right, ace to three spot, and the nervous vulnerable South went down four.

The set was 1,400 points for the simple reason that West took the risk of doubling and the contracting partnership did not go back to clubs. That failure caused an argument between North and South, to-wit:

South—"It was your duty to bid four clubs with that long suit. Four clubs can be made. Possibly five could be squeezed, but a no trump same contract seemed a fair gamble."

North—"It was up to you without a diamond stopped to return to clubs. I assumed you had the King of diamonds or the ace and expected to steal a game with a diamond opening. The king of hearts was an obvious entry to the hand if your clubs would not let you in. So far as I knew West's double might have been a psychic effort to drive us back to clubs. I thought he had too much bridge intelligence to double a no trump with a solid suit when there is an out."

West—"Ha! Ha! I thought you'd think that. It was the double cross."

Top Notch's Visiting
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
"Your ideas are all good," said Willy Nilly, "and I'm sure you'll all enjoy yourselves in your different ways."

"What are you going to do, Top Notch?" "I" crowed Top Notch, the rooster, "am going visiting. I have not been around the countryside in a long, long time. I have many friends and they'll all be glad to see me. I shall smooth my feathers, straighten my comb, and then I'll be off."

Top Notch took out his little mirror, looked at himself with pride, strutted about for a minute or so, and then was off. The others had started.

Willy Nilly sat down on his front porch, thinking what he would do first of all. His garden was in good shape except for a little attention it needed owing to the time he had spent in the next village trying to defend Christopher in particular and crows in general.

"I should attend to my automobile Two-Ways," he said to himself.

Willy Nilly thought a little longer. "Yes, I should repair my automobile. It will go backward or forward when it's fixed, but as it is now I can't make it go at all. These are nice days for riding. I think I will spend one day in the garden, which will be enough for the time being. Then I will put my automobile in running order and that will only take a few days."

"But I'd much rather—yes, I'd much rather—yes, I believe that is what I'll do."

Perhaps it wasn't right of him to decide this way but he was going to anyway!

FARMVILLE PLAYGROUND THROWN OPEN

Good Enrollment Reported Both at Farmville and Ayden First of Week

By MRS. EUGENE ROBESON
The Farmville Playground opened Monday morning with an enrollment of 59 children, ages 5 to 12 years, Miss Vivian Case, director of Farmville, reported. As the age limit is now to be extended to four to fourteen years of age it was expected that the enrollment would be doubled in a very short time.

Farmville has the same instructors, the same playground site and practically the same children, so the work was organized quickly and the children are giving a play on Friday morning, August 3. Hans Who Made the Princess Laugh," to which they expect to invite the public.

The folk games and dance hours and story hours have been started, and the children are already enjoying supervised recreation hours.

The Ayden playground opened Monday and by Tuesday the registration had reached 53 children. Mrs. Sally Evans, director, reported. Baseball clubs were organized, story hours held, and the senior girls have organized their Dramatic Club and are working on Cinderella for their first public performance.

Mrs. B. L. Ross, director of the Greenville playgrounds, reports an added roll on Tuesday of 53 new members, which brings the total on the Greenville playgrounds to 203 children which are composed of 25 pre-school children, 90 children from the 1, 2, 3 and fourth grades, and 90 children from 5, 6, 7 and 8th grades.

As the recreation park has not been thoroughly cleaned from poison vines, rubbish, etc., an effort is not able to organize as it will be by the end of the week, however the children are thoroughly enjoying the lovely sand beds, the seaws, the story hours and the folk games and music hours. These latter are held in the High School auditorium.

All of the children are showing much interest and entering wholeheartedly into the opportunities given them by the Welfare Department and the City Fathers in each community.

The merchants have co-operated wonderfully in helping with the equipment for the playgrounds, and shortly a full list of donations will be printed.

Greenville and Ayden picture shows are giving a number of tickets each week for good sportsmen, eye on the playgrounds, and there will be swimming pool tickets for those who have the best attendance, best cooperation and who conform to the playground rules and enter into the activities or otherwise are the best playground sports each week. These tickets will be given in Farmville this week and in Greenville and Ayden children for the Greenville swimming pools as soon as opened.

The playground staff are hoping that the people of Ayden will get together and open the lovely swimming pool in Ayden, now lying idle so that the children there may, too, enjoy this healthful recreation at home.

It is indeed gratifying to know that already over 300 of the Pitt County children are enjoying outdoor, supervised play and it is hoped that very soon even more will take advantage of health-giving, character-building recreation and soon all of the children may have the privilege of taking part.

Again please let it be known that all white children in or near these three towns are cordially invited to become a part of the Pitt County Playground Association.

ASKS SUPPORT OF BALL CLUB TAKES PRIZE

Chamber of Commerce Secretary Says Bugs Playing Heads-up Ball Now

R. L. Powell, secretary of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, today appealed to the citizenship to support the local club of the Coastal Plain League, described as playing "the best ball of the season," under the leadership that veteran of many a diamond, Tick Poole.

"Heads up" baseball is the watchword of the rejuvenated "Bug" outfit. Mr. Powell said, and the second place out is going to make a strenuous effort to root Ayden out of the first place and keep the flag on the home lot for the forthcoming season.

Here's what the secretary says about the boys: "Tick Poole, the leather-lunged pilot of the Greenville baseball club, who recently took over the helm from Milton Harrington, called his players in a huddle and asked for 'heads-up' baseball. Well, they are giving it, and for the past several days there have been no 'cob-we' on any part of the lot.

"Ardent baseball fans like air-tight pill swatting, and their favor for this type of the great American sport has been manifested recently by their lusty rooting and feet stomping. Fans, for the past several games have learned that anything can happen in the great old game, and on several occasions it looked like some insurance policies were going to be collected by grief-stricken members of local families who nearly lost their husbands who were about to overcome by excitement. Ninth inning rallies, inning after inning with no-hit pitching miraculous catches and fielders snatching fly balls from the air that looked like sure hits—that's baseball, real baseball.

Greenville is second from the top of the standing calendar, and the last rung in the ladder is sure to be climbed before the season is over. Baseball fans cry loud and long from the stands for a little support.

"A bit of support from local fans at home games makes the boys play all the harder, because it shows them that we are all with them and rooting for them. Be out at the games, there are only eleven more home games, and each one promises to be a wow. The fight for the pennant is on—the Greenville baseball club is out for wins, and wins they are going to be. Tomorrow our team will again play Tarboro, and what a game it promises to be. Remember the sensational ninth inning rally which won for us a few days ago; none of us have forgotten that yesterday when good old elbow-bender May tossed the pill over the pan and held Tarboro to three scattered hits; some of them mighty weak, too. It's a sure thing Tarboro isn't going to forget those games, and tomorrow they will be out for vengeance, so be there, yell, whistle, and stomp. The boys will like it and so will you."

World Famous Pool Shot Here

Fred B. Hall, champion exhibition pool player of the world for the past 39 years, will give an exhibition of his skill at the Tripp Billiard Parlor tonight at 8:15 o'clock. Hall will take on the best pool shot in the city and demonstrate to the satisfaction of his audience why he is the champion shot of the world. This is his first visit to Greenville in thirty years. His greatest feat is the pocketing of 14 balls at a single shot. The exhibition will be free.

Plan Farmers Exchange Here

During the past few weeks several meetings have been held with the agricultural leaders in Pitt County in regard to organizing a branch of the Farmers' Co-operative Exchange in this county. Most of the organization work has been worked out and on Friday of this week several meetings will be held in the county or the purpose of outlining to the farmers the plans and purpose of the exchange.

The meetings will be held on Friday, August 3, at the following places: Winterville High School building, 10:30 a. m.; Stokes High School building, 3 p. m., and the courthouse in Greenville, Friday night at 8 o'clock.

It is hoped that all farmers who can do so will attend one of these meetings. A representative of the organization will be present to discuss the plans for the operations of a Pitt County.

Since last August the agricultural leaders of the State have been working together to create an organization which would give all agricultural workers in North Carolina the opportunity of serving under one banner and for one single purpose—that of benefiting the farmer through this effort the Farmers' Co-operative Exchange was worked out, and it is now a State-wide organization.

The branch in Greenville will be known as the Greenville FCX. Service and its purpose will be done through the central State office. The Greenville FCX will be under the control of a local board of directors and a local manager.

Cunning Rotarian Captures Attendance Award Three Consecutive Times

With Rev. Fredrick Jones, formerly the Memorial Baptist minister in Greenville, and Maynard Fletcher, fellow Rotarian from Washington, as gay raconteurs, the Greenville Rotary Club was regaled with verse and story at their regular weekly meeting at the Rotary Club last night. And then there were Virginia and Lillie Bradshaw, of Washington, dancer and pianist, respectively, who entertained as only fresh young artists can in a quaintly naive fashion, in song and dance.

Let it be said that any man who wins the attendance prize three times in succession as has Lawrence Augustus Stroud the last three weeks can not get away with it. Last night Hill Goodson prepared the lots as usual. To assure an honest casting of the same Jasper Winstlow himself shook the lot from its container. Lo, and behold, not about Ben Adam's name, led all the rest, but Lawrence Stroud won again.

The prize, a huge suggestive box, was presented the winner of course his did not even thrill Lawrence, for he has the formula for winning—"Just concentrate," says he. "But hadly had he got the prize than there was a clamor that he open this did not even thrill Lawrence, to see. Dr. Pace scampered for fear of lethal instruments being concealed within. By this time Lawrence was cautious; so he opened it gingerly. The loosed wrappings revealed a large yellow box—well, it was a shirt box, to be sure—and upon raising the lid Lawrence discovered a fine selection of white and red corn cobs. Howls, cheers, etc., went up with great gusto from the assemblage.

When the official attendance prize was won, Fordice Harding found the winner. Visitors for the evening besides the speakers and entertainers were Joe Taft and H. G. Moore. The Greenville Club voted last night to attend the Inter-City Rotary meet to be held at Bayview on August 15 by the Washington, Ayden, Farmville and Greenville sections.

The program was under the aegis of Yo Walker and Leon Brock, and Herbert ReBarker, club president, presided.

TYPHOID FEVER SLOWED DOWN

Unsanitary Conditions Of Rural Homes Described as Cause of Illness

Deplorable living conditions existing among people in the rural areas were described today by Dr. R. S. McGeachy, Pitt County Public Health Director, as responsible for the several cases of typhoid fever reported in this county the last two or three weeks.

Although the slight epidemic has been definitely checked and confined to the three localities in which it originated, Dr. McGeachy said there was still danger of spread, and urged the public to use every precaution to avoid infection.

The health director said unsanitary conditions in all homes where typhoid has been reported were responsible for the prevalence of the illness. He said in many instances surface wells, filled with trash and frogs were the only source of water supply some of the families and that the typhoid situation could not be improved to any extent until the condition was improved.

Out of sixteen cases reported in three widely separated communities Dr. McGeachy said two deaths had been reported. The number of typhoid cases have been reduced to ten at this time and hope for definitely checking ravages of the illness was brighter than it has been in months.

Health workers will preach inoculation in the various clinics to be carried to several parts of the county the latter part of the week, and it was hoped the immunization campaign would halt the incipient typhoid rally.

THREE BOUND OVER IN STORE ROBBERY

Littleton, Aug. 1.—Thieves broke into the Eugene Johnston Company store here early Monday morning. Two bicycles and a rifle were taken. Later in the morning two men and a woman, riding on new wheels, were apprehended in Weldon by Chief of Police Fuller Robinson and returned to Littleton where they were tried before Charles Housh, J. P. Unable to furnish bond, they were taken to Halifax jail to await the next term of court. The woman was dressed in men's clothing. She was the wife of one of the men who gave his name as Carraway. The other man gave his name as Toller.

MAY BESTS TARBORO IN TIGHT TILT

Reynolds May, Duke University hurler, held Tarboro to three hits yesterday afternoon as Greenville registered a 2 to 1 victory.

The visitors' score came in the first inning. The locals matched this run in the first and bunched hits for two tallies in the sixth. Shoaff, Tarboro hurler, allowed eight hits, three of which were for extra bases. Lefty Dean, with a triple and a single, and Martin, with a double and a single, led the locals' attack. Clearly accounted for two of Tarboro's hits.

Richardson caught for Tarboro; Potts caught for Greenville.

The game was played in an hour and eighteen minutes.

NO. 12 FOR ROGERS

Kinston, N. C., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Kinston defeated Snow Hill, 7 to 2, as Lefty Rogers registered his 12th win. He has lost only one game.

The locals shelled Cecil Longest from the mound in the seventh. Longest was 10 hits. Davis, his successor, allowed one. Perry hit a homer for Snow Hill.

Weathers, with three singles, and Zaiser, with a double and two singles, led Kinston.

The victory put Kinston in a tie with Snow Hill for third place, one game behind Greenville's runner-up outfit.

SPORT SLANTS

Not so many years ago it was considered quite a feat for a young fellow of 25 or fewer summers to win or place well up in a major golf tournament. Now it is almost as much of an unusual occurrence for anyone more than 25 to last through a fast battle with the youngsters.

The blue ribbon event of American amateur golf—the national—remains to be played, but in all the other major sectional tournaments have come to the fore.

A seventeen-year-old boy, Fred Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, won the Southern amateur. He is the youngest to hold the title since Bob Jones won at fifteen, the same year Haas was born.

Charles Yates, of Atlanta, 21, won the National Intercollegiate and was low amateur in the Masters' invitation tournament last spring at Augusta, Ga.

Zell Eaton of Oklahoma City, celebrated his 21st birthday by winning the Western amateur. And bear in mind that the western district covers almost three-quarters of the United States and ranks just a notch below the national amateur.

Leland Hamman, of Waco, Texas, 23, won the Trans-Mississippi, beating none other than the former Open champion, Jimmy Goodman, in the final.

Lawson Little, the Californian who holds the British amateur, was eliminated in the early rounds in this fast Dallas competition. Walker cup players as well as finalists in the national amateurs of other years were among contenders who fell before these youthful shot-makers.

The strange part in that none of these new kid champions have any reputations behind them. They're all newcomers, lending the belief that the national amateur this year will really be a wide open affair, with few favorites and with the possibilities for surprising upsets from the start to the wind-up.

Some Dixie Debs

This drive of the youngsters has possibly been more in evidence in the South than in other sections. The Southern women's champion, Betty Jamieson, of Dallas, is only fit teen.

Lily Harper, of Portsmouth, seventeen, won the Virginia women's championship and a day later her brother, Chandler, at twenty became the possessor of his third Virginia men's championship. Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, 13, holds the Georgia women's crown.

Schuddy Homer, nineteen, is the Tennessee king. Thad Street, nineteen, of Charleston, S. C., is the champion of the Carolinas. Young Edwin McClure, of Shreveport recently won his fifth Louisiana championship.

NEW BERN BEATS AYDEN

New Bern, N. C., Aug. 1.—It was a weird tall game which was served local fans yesterday afternoon. Stuart Flythe, New Bern hurler, pitched no-hit ball for eight innings and it looked as if the locals were set to cash in with a 3 to 0 victory.

However, Ayden rallied in the ninth to score three runs on a walk, two hits and an error—and the tie brought on more activities.

Things rocked along until the 13th when Ayden made five hits, mixed with two walks and an error, count for five runs and an 8 to 3 victory.

E. Ferebee led New Bern's tenth attack by smacking a double and two singles off the hurling of Jim Shields. Shields and Wrenn each with two hits, led Ayden. H. Ferebee caught for New Bern; Doc Smith caught for Ayden.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER Washington—(AP)—Five members of the House of Representatives are working this summer to devise some scheme whereby the tempers of congressmen may be kept running more smoothly.

O'Connor of New York, Greenwood of Indiana, and Smith of Virginia, all Democrats, with Mapes of Michigan and Lehbach of New Jersey, Republicans, have been charged with thinking up some way of handling the thousands of private bills and claims against the government which are dumped every year into the hoppers of the House and Senate.

Probably nothing in House procedure gives the leaders such a headache as the private calendar. On several different occasions during the last session the House found itself completely paralyzed and unable to proceed because of it.

The difficulty lies in the fact that bills on the private calendar virtually must be disposed of by unanimous consent. One objection to a bill during its consideration holds it up for the time being. If it is called up again, three objections can kill it entirely.

Eagle of Texas, for example, near the close of the last session held up all of the bills on the private calendar single-handed. Someone previously had objected to a bill of his which would have adjusted a claim of $4,000.

Eagle was frank about it. He served notice that he would not permit a single bill to pass until that one of his which was so "cruelly and unjustly slaughtered" was approved.

He relented on the closing day of the session but before he did he announced that if he was returned to the next Congress either the one-man objection rule would be amended "or there will not be one single private bill passed in the seventy-fourth congress."

The ablest parliamentarians in Congress for years have endeavored to work out a better plan for disposing of bills on the private calendar.

Since the claimants can't sue the government their only recourse is to enlist the aid of their representatives in getting a bill through appropriating the money. Often the time spent costs more than the claim.

In the face of threats such as the one made by Eagle and others a reform is said to have become definitely necessary.

And every congressman knows it is this type of legislation which does most to keep his political fences in good shape back home.

A large oil company advanced $50,000 so that employees with deposits in a closed bank in a Kansas City suburb might obtain their money sooner.

Fish from great depths of the sea carry "headlights" before or behind their eyes, or "lanterns" suspended on appendages from their jaws.
