JUDGES TURN DOWN APPEAL FOR ACTION

Strikers Demand Injunction Against Governor's Military Rule; Ten Protesting Employees Are Involved; Permanent Injunction Was Sought by Strikers

Minneapolis, Aug. 11.—(AP)—The Federal Court today upheld the legality of Governor Floyd Olson's military rule in the truck drivers' strike in refusing ten protesting employees an injunction against continuance of the decree.

The decision, handed down by Judges Gunnar, Joe Molyneux and John Sanborn, was unanimous and was signed by all three jurists.

Employers attacking the legality of the governor's martial rule edict and the administration of it by the military had demanded first a temporary restraining order, then a permanent injunction.

Application for the court writ was filed the first of the week.

N. C. Aluminum Not Involved In 'Walkout'

Budin, N. C., Aug. 11.—(AP)—S. A. Copp, manager of the Carolina Aluminum Company here, said the plant was running on regular schedule today with all operatives at their posts despite the strike called in all plants of the Aluminum Company of America by the aluminum workers' council.

Early morning shifts went to work as usual and were continuing through the day, Copp said.

The plant employs about 425 persons as the present curtailed operation.

Solicitor Reviews Jim Green Rape Case

Solicitor D. M. Clark of Greenville, N. C., when interviewed this morning concerning the negro, Jim Green, sentenced to electrocution for rape on a white girl in Pitt County and who has twice been relieved pending an investigation by Commissioner of Paroles, Mr. Edwin Gill, stated.

That while he is naturally sympathetic and never especially strong for capital punishment in any case, he feels that the prisoner in this case deserves the full penalty of the law if anyone ever did for the crime of rape, adding that this was one of the strongest cases of its kind that he has ever known of.

He further stated that although neither he nor Sheriff Whitehurst relish being placed in the attitude of opposing commutation, that they are in accord in believing it to be their duty to see that Commissioner Gill and the Governor are not misled and deceived by rumors and

Late News Flashes

Tobacco High On South Markets. (By The Associated Press) Tobacco farmers of North and South Carolina today took a holiday with warehouses closed and counted up rosy returns from the first two days of sales of the 1934 crop.

Fred C. Stewart, sales supervisor at Lake City, S. C., today reported that sales on that market were 698-284 pounds at an average of $21.51 a hundred. This compares with sales for the first week of last season of 633,806 at an average of $17.20.

Official figures on the opening break at other markets were expected today but they already knew that increased demand, a government shortened crop and late curings have brought them a flow of gold undreamed of, despite pre-opening predictions of prices above parity.

Unofficial averages on total sales on 15 markets of somewhere in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 pounds ranged between $21 and $22 a hundred. Approximately 100 per cent above the figure for the same time last year.

And this despite unusually poor and light offerings.

New Silver Ruling. Washington, Aug. 11.—(AP)—A decision to issue currency to the full extent permitted by the law against certain silver in the treasury prompted speculation today as to whether a similar policy would be applied to future purchases which might put more than a billion dollars of new money into circulation.

PITTMAN TO SPEAK HERE

Free Will Baptist Minister to Speak at Court House Lawn Service

Rev. R. F. Pittman, pastor of the Free Will Baptist Church, will speak at the union services on the courthouse lawn tomorrow evening. The choir of the Free Will Baptist Church will be in charge of the song service.

Services are scheduled to continue through this month, and in event of rain, they will be carried to Memorial Baptist Church, an arrangement decided upon during the early summer when rain interrupted the first two services.

The services, sponsored by the Ministerial Association, have proved a source of much inspiration and attendance each Sunday have expressed themselves as heartily pleased with results accomplished.

Ample seating accommodations have been provided for the tremendous crowds on hand each Sunday and preparations were being made to take care for even larger attendance during the concluding services.

Mr. Pittman is considered one of the leading speakers of his denomination, and his sermon was being looked forward to with interest by members of the various congregations to be in attendance.

Blistering Heat Claims 50 Lives In Mid-Century

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 11.—(AP)—The mid-continents counted more than 50 dead today as a result of the week's excessive heat.

COUNTY TAX RATE BOOSTED THREE CENTS

Rate This Year Will Be 86 Cents on $100 Valuation Compared With 83 Cents

Pitt County people will pay a higher tax rate this year than they did last year as a result of adoption of a boosted schedule by the Board of Commissioners in special session at the courthouse last night.

The rate this year will be 86 cents on the $100 valuation compared with 83 cents for the previous year. The rate will be distributed as follows:

- General fund, 14. Debt service, 57. Schools, 6. County Home, 11-2. Relief, 4. Health, 3-1-2.

The board levied four cents directly for relief work this year. Last year this was contained in a 5-cent levy for the county home.

The recommended health department budget carrying appropriations of $9,980 for the county, $1,500 for the State and $400 from the Rosenwald Fund was accepted by the board. The county last year devoted $5,400 to this purpose.

The increased health budget figure, it was said by members of the department, will enable the employment of a full-time sanitary inspector to combat the serious outbreak of disease in several parts of the county. Special attention will be given to cutting down the high death toll among infants, described as the highest in this county than any other section of the State.

One hundred and twenty-five dollars was contributed to the Eastern Carolina Association, local organization confining its attention to the upbuilding of this section of the State and lowering of freight rates.

The increased tax rate, it was explained, resulted from increased appropriations to the departments over those of last year, and lack of increase of valuations over the previous year.

SHOPLIFTER BOUND OVER

John Weston Also Sent to Roads On Charge of Beating His Wife Here

John Weston, colored, alleged shoplifter and wife-beater, was sentenced to thirty days on the road for wife-beating in the regular Saturday morning session of police court.

He was bound over to the next session of County Court under bond of $300 on the charge of shoplifting. The negro was taken into custody several days ago after he had allegedly stolen several pairs of hosiery and a pair of shoes from Blount-Harvey Company's store.

He was apprehended by one of the clerks who gave chase. The negro dropped the shoes, but had the hosiery in his possession when taken into custody.

After his capture, his wife filed a charge of assault against him.

ORDER 'FIRED' WORKERS PUT BACK ON JOB

National Relations Board Takes Hand In Burlington Mill Dispute

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11.—(AP)—The National Labor Relations Board today ordered the Foster Knitting Mill Company, Inc., of Burlington, N. C., to reinstate within seven days four employees it was said were discharged because of union activities.

The board found that Woodrow Wilson, Werner Holderfield, H. L. Alcox and Theodore Melton had in effect been discharged by the company because of their union affiliations and that as a result the company had violated Section 7 of the NRA act.

It ruled that unless the men are reinstated within a week the case would be referred to the compliance division of NRA for appropriate action.

Five employees of the company were taken back when the mills at Burlington re-opened after a brief shutdown. Originally J. R. Holbert was included in the complaint, but the board found that since that time Holbert had been taken back and put on his regular job.

The company in a statement to the Labor Board said that Holbert had merely been given a temporary lay-off in order that a learner might be given training at his machine.

O'QUINN HELD FOR ROBBERY

Wilmington Young Man Jailed for Stealing Saxophone Here Sometime Ago

Johnnie O'Quinn, of Wilmington, described by police as a "bad actor," was in jail here today awaiting hearing on a charge of stealing a $165 saxophone from a member of the local fire department several weeks ago.

He was to have been given preliminary hearing in police court this morning, but the case was held over until next Monday morning on account of the prosecuting witnesses being out of the city.

O'Quinn was taken into custody by Wilmington officers at Carolina Beach yesterday and was immediately returned to this city to await hearing.

Police said the young man, described as about 28 years of age, had served two terms in the penitentiary for robbery, one of the robberies having been committed here about two years ago.

After finishing his term in prison, the young man came to Greenville and hung about town for several days. He was befriended by members of the fire department who were said to have given him clothing and food from time to time.

Soon O'Quinn disappeared and the missing saxophone was charged up against him. He was said to have had the instrument in his possession when nabbed at the beach.

MAJOR PART OF LEAF CROP IN THE HOUSE

Farmers Expected to Complete Housing Operations Some time Next Week

With opening of this great bright leaf tobacco belt twelve days off, farmers and business men alike were busy today in preparation for what is generally considered the greatest event of the year from the standpoint of financial recovery.

Farmers, with over 95 per cent of their crop already in the house, were pushing the remainder of their housing operations as speedily as possible. Lack of rain the last several days has helped along this activity, and the end of next week will see virtually the entire crop in pack rooms ready for marketing.

With prices on both Georgia, South Carolina and North Carolina border markets the best in years, growers were looking forward with keen expectation to the opening day here so they will be able to test the buying strength. But the strong opening on the other markets has injected new life into the situation and everybody that can shake a foot in a crowd will be on hand August 23 to get first-hand information on the price situation.

Merchants, who annually lay in tremendous stocks of goods to take care of the demand of the growers, have been giving attention to this important matter for sometime now, and when the market swings open it will find probably the greatest assortment of values assembled here in years.

Everybody is affected by the tobacco market regardless of their position in life, and when the annual flow of money gets under way it will reach every channel of trade, injecting new life into business and causing the populace to throw its shoulders back under the spell of rejuvenation.

The Greenville market is prepared to take care of more tobacco than ever before. Facilities of warehouses have been increased, and when the industry begins to hum the crop will be handled with greater facility than ever before.

COMMISSIONER KING HAS HIS SON LOCKED UP

Durham, N. C., Aug. 11.—County Commissioner W. E. King last night lodged his 24-year-old son, Denzil, in the city jail, after signing a warrant holding the young man on a disorderly charge.

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

CORRECT THE GLARE! The Carolina Motor Club issued a statement today pointing out that there were 8,900 automobiles involved in accidents in 1933 in which one or both headlights were out, or in which the lights were glaring. Tests show that lamps need to be replaced or adjusted in nearly 70 per cent of all automobiles operating on our streets and highways. A blinding glare which dazzles approaching traffic is usually caused by the beam of light being tilted too high. Inspect your lights for glare.

ONE STRIKER ARRESTED IN DISORDERS

Workers Demand Closed Shop and Recognition of Collective Bargaining; Labor Relations Board Prepares to Take Hand in Struggle; Fifteen Thousand and Workers Reported Involved

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Pickett lines surrounded three strike closed Aluminum Company of America plants in the Pittsburgh district today marking the first day in an employees' walkout in which two men already have been injured and another arrested.

Representatives of nearly 4,000 employees at the company's plant at New Kensington, Arnold and Logan, Pa., are demanding through their workers a union closed shop contract and recognition of the union as the workers' collective bargaining agent.

J. P. Hawlett, of New Kensington, a vice-president of the National Association of Aluminum Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, said by strikers to represent 80 per cent of the employees. He claimed 90 per cent a union members.

In announcing the shutdown of the three plants, R. Ferry, work superintendent at New Kensington said only power plant operations and maintenance forces are being kept on duty.

Although rumor has for a number of years linked the Aluminum Company of America with the vast industrial kingdom of Andrew Mellon, Pittsburgh financier and Secretary of State, now abroad, company heads deny it.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11.—(AP)—The Labor Relations Board prepared today for a tussle with another new strike, the conflict between the Aluminum Company of America and its workers.

The strike, said to involve 15,000 workers, was called for midnight last night. Today the status of the board in the dispute still was somewhat clouded. It said no formal complaint had been made, but stood ready to assist disputants in reaching a satisfactory settlement.

TWO CONVICTS SHOT DOWN AT BATON ROUGE

Six Other Convicts Wounded in Attempted Break From Penitentiary Today

Baton Rouge, La., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Two convicts were today reported by the penitentiary manager, R. L. Himes, to have been shot and killed as thirteen prisoners broke from the State penitentiary at Angola. The prisoners killed were Raymond Candler and Bill Bryant, both long terms.

Six of the escaped convicts were wounded and caught and the remaining five surrendered later. Himes described the break as a concerted and apparently prearranged dash for liberty of a detail of red caps of "incorrigibles" working in the garden after breakfast.

Protest Return Of Blue Eagle To Tenn. Plant

Chapel Hill, N. C., Aug. 11.—Evidence of the thoroughgoing censorship of the Nazi regime in Germany is found in a letter written by Lawrence Thompson, president of the Beta Kappa at the University for the coming year and a former resident of Raleigh, who is touring Europe this summer as a member of the party headed by Dr. J. C. Lyot of the French department of the University, to his mother, Mrs. Lawrence S. Thompson, of Chapel Hill. He writes that at the German frontier at Aix he happened to have in his pocket some anti-Nazi propaganda published in Prague. The customs officer came through the train to inspect newspapers and destroyed young Thompson's paper.

THE MARRIAGE

Chapter 42 ILLNESS

WITH a murmured response Bob settled. He saw, with a tightening of heart, that Marsha's place at the table was undisturbed. Perhaps she would appear soon.

Bartholomew left the room; Bob looked at Marsha's empty chair to see her face as he had seen it the night before. She had seemed a little girl from the wild fear that had filled her eyes and she stammered explanations that had told him nothing.

"Has Mrs. Powers breakfasted?" Bob questioned abruptly. "No, sir; I presumed, Mr. Robert, that she had slept late and would breakfast in her room. I had hoped that she was getting enough over the shock, sir. She worked steadily and hard these last, long months. Night on night up."

"Yes, sir. But your mother wanted her, Mr. Robert. And she knew it. And she answered every want and need of your mother's with a word of complaint and when Hannah or Ella or I would remonstrate, she always answered with, 'But I want to be with Mrs. Powers; I could be nowhere else if she needed me!'"

WHEN he reached the upper hall he found Hannah, a disturbed Hannah, stepping from Marsha's room. "Mr. Robert," he heard. "Yes, Hannah." "Mrs. Powers is not at all well this morning, Mr. Robert. I just now ran her tub for her and as she made way to the bath room she was very unsteady. I touched her skin as I put her negligee around her. She's afebrile with fever and I thought perhaps we'd best have Doctor Jackson in."

of the girl, the solicitor said that under the admitted facts and circumstances of this case the reputation of the girl could not have anything to do with the guilt or innocence of the prisoner. That the prisoner stated to Sheriff Whitehurst at the time he confessed, that he had never seen the girl or the man before the night of the assault. The solicitor also stated that he had never heard the girl's character discussed until sometime after the trial. That since the first reprieve he had heard things. He said in fact he heard the girl frankly tell Commissioner Gill that she had been out with several different men. She said she would slip off and go to ride with a friend when her parents would not allow him to come to her home. She did not have to tell the Commissioner this, in fact, it would have been less embarrassing for her not to have told him, but she seemed to want to be perfectly frank about everything that might have any bearing on the case; certainly she was not concealing anything nor seeking vengeance, for when the Commissioner asked her what she wanted done with the prisoner, her reply was that, that was a matter for the Commissioner and the Governor and not for her to say.

He also said that the girl is not wealthy or well-to-do, but that he is informed that night riding and petting parties are not confined to the poorer classes or to any particular class. That no matter how some people condemned night riding he did not feel that the prisoner's method of punishing the offenders should be encouraged. That anyway he thought the girl in this case had already been punished too much for her ride that night, even if it was with a married man and that he did not see how any further attacks upon her character could serve any useful purpose, especially in view of the prisoner's statement to the Sheriff that he had never seen her before.

When asked to give a brief outline of the principal evidence and facts, the solicitor said: "The first officers knew about the crime came from the man who had the girl out riding. It seems that he had been picked up on the road by someone passing and carried to the hospital. He said he had stopped on the woods road to fix his lights and had been knocked in the head from the rear or side by an unseen assailant. That he did not know who hit him or what had become of the girl or the car, he being knocked unconscious. He certainly received a terrific blow; it took fourteen stitches to sew it up and he was laid up in bandages for some time. Evidently the prisoner thought he had killed him and left him for dead. The girl was found next morning in another section of the county some ten or fifteen miles from where the man was assaulted. She had walked about two miles to a white farmer's house and asked for assistance. She was in a highly nervous condition, bloody, and her clothing torn. Her throat and shoulders were badly bruised and she had a wound in the back of her head. She was carried to the hospital and her man was struck—it smelt strong of whiskey. Upon investigation it was discovered that Jim Green had had such a jar full of whiskey in that neighborhood early the night of the assault. The girl and the abandoned car were found in the Pactolus section where Jim Green had been. He had been suspected of rape on a white woman in the Pactolus section about two years previous, but the victim could not identify him and he was never tried. He had also been suspected of attempted rape on a colored woman but was tried on a breaking and entering charge and acquitted. Being in possession of these circumstances the Sheriff arrested Jim Green and after warning him of his rights, asked him to account for his whereabouts the night of the assault. After making several different and conflicting statements the prisoner, within about thirty minutes, made a full confession in which he corroborated the girl in all but two particulars. The signed confession said the solicitor, is in the files of Commissioner Gill, but the substance of the confession in detail is as follows: That he, Jim Green, had been drunk and lay down to sleep it off; that he was awakened by the car and got up and went toward the car; that the white man whom he did not know, cursed him and struck at him; that he went off and got a tree limb and came back and hit the man on his head—knocked him out; that the girl got out of the car and tried to run, but that he caught her and made her get back in the car; that she asked him to take her to the filling station and he told her he would; that when he reached the highway and turned towards Washington she protested and that when he passed a filling station she screamed and tried to attract attention, but he ran the glass up and put his hand over her mouth and speeded by; that in going up a hill she tried to get out, but he pulled her back and held her with one hand and threatened to knock her in the head with a bottle; that after crossing the river near Grimesland and getting into the woods, he stopped the car and tried to make the girl get out and that when she refused he shoved her head down under the steering wheel and raped her; that she begged him not to do it and fought and resisted but he choked her and held her and accomplished his purpose; that he drove the car; got out and took the seat cushions out and told her to get out and get on it and when she refused he pulled her out of the car and hit her on the head with a coca-cola bottle; that she fell over and he laid her on the cushions and tried to have intercourse with her but did not succeed that time; that he got up, kicked her, put the cushion back in the car, backed out and drove off, leaving her there on the ground; that he drove the car on up the road and abandoned it and went to the home of some friends.

The prisoner also told the sheriff that he did not know the man or the girl and had never seen either of them before, but inadvertently the written confession did not include this statement. You will notice, said the solicitor, that the prisoner's confession corroborates the girl's statement in every detail except the beginning where the man was struck and the end when he struck the girl with the coca-cola bottle. She says he hit her after he got up—he says it was before he put her on the cushion. But in all important details their statements are exactly alike. Sheriff Whitehurst's testimony further corroborated both statements, for he testified that at the scene where the man was struck, there were a woman's tracks, apparently running from the car and a man's tracks following and that where both sets of tracks ended there were marks on the ground indicating a struggle and that both sets of tracks led back to where the car had stood. Also that the girl had bruises on her throat and arms and a wound on the back of her head. The Sheriff said the prisoner also told him that he was sorry he had committed the crime and would not have done it had he not been drinking. At the trial the prisoner did not take the stand or in any way repudiate the confession. After he had been sentenced and while he was being carried to the State Prison at Raleigh, he voluntarily told Mr. Preston Pierce, a former Chief of Police of Greenville and at that time County Tax Collector, and also Mr. Ben Buck U. S. Deputy Marshal, that he had committed the crime and told them about it in detail, just as he had told Sheriff Whitehurst. He also told them that he was drinking when he committed the crime and expected to be detected for it and that his only request was that his only be brought back to Pitt County for burial. Sometime after reaching the penitentiary he voluntarily made practically the same statement to Mr. Dorsey, Asst. Warden of that Institution. None of the Pitt County officers were present and the statement to Mr. Dorsey was not known by them until the recent hearing before Commissioner Gill. How could any case be any stranger? he asked. What about the newly discovered evidence? he was asked. "Well, he said, 'in my opinion that is nothing but a lie and an unfounded scandal on the girl. Of course, it is justified by some people on the grounds that a man's life is at stake. But,' said he, 'let's analyze it and see whether it is worthy of consideration. The crime was committed on Sunday night, January 7th, and the prisoner was arrested on the 9th of January and confessed the same day. He was tried and convicted about the 25th of January and immediately carried to State Prison. You will recall he made three separate confessions to different parties—on the 9th to the Sheriff, on the 25th or 26th to Mr. Pierce and Mr. Buck while on the way to Raleigh, and to Mr. Dorsey after entering the State Prison. None of these confessions were repudiated or newly discovered evidence mentioned until about two months later after he had been interviewed by attorneys sometime in April—the original date set for his execution being April 23rd. Then it was that he was first reprieved and Commissioner Gill began his investigations. The Sheriff and I who represent the State, did not know about the repudiation of the confession or what constituted the newly discovered evidence (except rumors) until we went to Raleigh at the request of Commissioner Gill for the hearing before him on July 13th. Then we were informed that the prisoner had repudiated his confessions in part and to the effect that he had known the girl before—had seen her around her father's filling station, where he says he was well known—driven cars for men to take her to ride and had taken her to ride himself and had intercourse with her on several occasions; that when he came upon her and the white man in the woods they quarreled and fought over her and that when he knocked the white man out with the stick, she voluntarily went with him and subjected herself to him. To my mind," said the Solicitor, "that statement is disgusting and revolting, even if you do look with charity upon any statement made by a man faced with the electric chair and trying to save his own life. No matter who the victim might have been he could have said the same things about her. And," he added, "the bad part is, I reckon there are always some people ready to believe everything they hear about a woman, no matter who she is. But," he said, "if what the prisoner now says is true, why did he tell the Sheriff that he did not know the girl and had never seen her before and stick to that statement until his attorney interviewed him and got Commissioner Gill to make this investigation? Also if what he now says is true, why was it necessary for him to run after and scuffle with the girl and force her back to the car, as the Sheriff says the tracks and markings on the ground indicated, which corroborated his first confession and the girl's statement?

"If she had been with him before and went with him willingly on this occasion and submitted herself freely without struggle or resistance, as he now says, why the screaming and effort to get out of the car? Why the bruises on her throat, arms and legs and the wound on the back of her head? If she had been his sweetheart on other occasions, as he now says, why did he leave her supposedly unconscious or dead in the woods fifteen miles from home? Shucks," said the Solicitor in disgust, "the whole statement is a rotten lie and absurd. It won't stand the test of analysis, reason or common sense. The only other evidence that we were told about, if you wish to call it evidence, was an affidavit by the prisoner's step-mother, one Addie Daniels, alias Addie Green, or better known by the name of Missie Reaves. Her affidavit tended only to corroborate the prisoner and was to the effect that sometime prior to the assault, Jim Green had told her of his relations with the white girl and that he was spending money on her. "And who is this Addie Daniels or Missie Reaves? Just a notorious bad character around Greenville. The mother of several very fair, in fact almost white children. Her main claim to distinction, however, is her ability to fix up evidence. For truth and veracity her reputation is bad and in a Court trial where it could be proven, her testimony would carry no weight or credibility. In fact I have been told that this same Daniels or Reaves woman told Senator Arthur Corey that her stepson, Jim Green, was as guilty as he could be and ought to be electrocuted. That is all there is to the so-called newly discovered evidence or at least that is all the Sheriff and I have heard anything about. As already stated, the girl told Commissioner Gill that she had never seen or heard of Jim Green before the night of the assault. Her father told him practically the same thing and that he did not know Jim Green and he further said he did not allow his daughter to come around his filling station even in the day time. "Naturally a man faced with death would tell anything that he thought would help him under the circumstances. I don't expect he could be blamed. The same thing applies to his step-mother, only in a much less degree, of course, but that is no reason why anyone should believe either of them. In fact, it is inconceivable that anyone could believe them. To do so you would have to disregard all other testimony, all physical facts and all natural circumstances. If the prisoner's statement was true and it does seem that somebody would corroborate him, at least in some minor detail, such as being seen riding with the girl or being seen around the station. He said he rode with her a number of times, etc. If so, somebody must have seen them, at some time. Yet he is not corroborated in even a minor particular. His step-mother is only as to what she says he told her. Of course, there is nothing to it. He is as guilty a man as was ever convicted. He is not supported or corroborated in anything he now says. "I want to say in conclusion," said the Solicitor, "that I have no criticism to make of anyone connected with this case and that includes the prisoner's attorney. He is a good lawyer and honorable. It is his duty to do all he can to save the life of his client and naturally he had to work with what he could find or what he was told. He has made, a good fight and I commend him for it. He might have been overly zealous in persuading people, mostly these opposed to capital punishment to write letters recommending commutation, and in his zeal might have emphasized too strongly the so-called newly discovered evidence, but after all we must realize he is a lawyer fighting for the life of his client. But even that fact or any other sentimentality should not influence our better judgment where we know the crime was committed and the law fixes the penalty. When asked what percentage of the people felt that the sentence should be carried out, the Solicitor replied, "I haven't yet heard a person say the sentence should be commuted, except, of course, the prisoner's lawyer. In my opinion," he added, "at least 95 to 98 per cent of those who know anything at all about the case are in favor of letting the law take its course. Some are red hot about it."

When asked what would happen if the sentence was commuted, he replied, "Nothing, of course. We all know that whatever Commissioner Gill recommends and whatever the Governor does, there will be good reason for, and that settles it. However," he said, "I fear it would have a bad effect if another such case should arise in the near future. I don't know what might happen. The officers wouldn't have much influence in trying to reason with a mob to let the law take its course. "That's all," he said, "I am through. I am glad to have given you this interview and make this statement of the case as I see it. I felt that it was my duty. But now I want to forget it—a man facing the chair is not a pleasant thing to contemplate."

Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst, who was present during much of the interview with the Solicitor, when asked for a statement said: "That he and the Solicitor had discussed every phase of the case and were entirely and thoroughly in accord. That he agreed with him in his statement of the evidence and facts and concurred in his reasonings and conclusions. That he had requested the Solicitor to make such a statement for them both. That there are other facts concerning the obtaining of letters, etc., that he might mention, but hardly thinks it necessary."

Really it is no pleasure to keep "harping" on the same subject but that garbage can at the entrance of Cherry Hill cemetery has more rubbish piled around it than several cans could hold, and according to the cemetery keeper, the can up until late yesterday had not been emptied for more than four weeks. Whether or not the city wagon has been around today to take up the rubbish we do not know, but if not, it is to be hoped there will be no further delay before this eyesore is cleaned up.

Reports brought from the Georgia and South Carolina and border markets by tobaccoists returning to this city paint a very promising picture for our growers for the coming season here. Those who have visited the southern markets report that the quality of the tobacco is probably not as good as that in this vicinity which should mean still higher prices here.

By the end of today something around two thousand or more swimmers will have enjoyed the swimming pool here since its formal opening Wednesday afternoon. Certainly this is evidence that Greenville needed such a place of recreation for its citizens, especially the children. This pool will prove of great benefit to our citizens in the way of healthful recreation for many years to come and to be sure the part that the city had in financing the pool should prove a good investment rather than just an expenditure.

Rich Air Speed Prizes Draw Pilots

By OSCAR LEIDING London.—(AP)—Crack fliers of 15 countries—more than a score of them from the United States—will carry away October 20 from London in a gruelling dash to Melbourne for the richest prize of contemporary aviation. The greatest air derby yet projected, for its distance of more than 10,000 miles, its total prize money of $5,000 and its entry list of internationally famous pilots, the competition is a double-barreled one combining an "absolute speed" race and handicap event. Candy Maker Gives Prizes Staged in connection with the centenary celebrations of Victoria and Melbourne, the contests are sponsored by Sir MacPherson Robertson, Australian candy manufacturer, and have been named officially the Robertson international air races. Sixty-four planes have been entered for the dual event. Nine will fly for the speed prizes of $50,000 a gold cup for the first place, $7,500 for second and $2,500 for third; 28 will fly in both divisions simultaneously and 27 seek only the winner and $5,000 for the runner-up. Through the present England-Australia record is six days, 17 hours and 56 minutes, fliers are predicting that the time of the second race winner will be close to four days. Everything Goes in Rules Day and night flying, refueling in the air—nothing is barred in either

THAT was the end of the message which had, evidently, been written in haste and with some considerable emotion. So she had known, and Marsha had known that his mother's appeal was in the painful hour. He opened Marsha's door. She sat up in her bed as he moved toward her. He saw fright in her eyes; did she think he was going to belabor her again? "Please, please!" he begged, "don't be afraid of me, Marsha." "I'm not, truly!" she assured him, a trifle unsteadily, and she lay back. By the bed he stood looking down on her; he was alarmed by the flush on her cheeks and by the brightness of her eyes which were raised to his. He ventured to lay a hand on her forehead. As Hannah had said, she was "afire with fever." She drew a little away; he moved to settle on a small chair that stood near.

"Marsha—" "Yes!" "It's difficult for me to say all I feel. I've never been so deeply ashamed, if that's anything in the way of apology. I don't know that it is." Again she sat up. "It's all right, really. It doesn't matter. As you said, a great many men have kissed me. I don't know why it hurts me. But I didn't expect you to when I didn't want you. But it doesn't matter."

"It matters rather terribly to me, Marsha." She looked at him vaguely. "I put the pearls and the bracelet on my dressing table top," she said. "Marsha," he stretched an appealing hand toward her. "I didn't mean that! I know my mother gave them to you. I want you to have them." "No, I couldn't really. I'm so sorry. I don't want to hurt you, but I couldn't. And I know that she gave them to me and that's all that matters; I don't care about having them. . . . All I need is the feeling that she wanted to give them to me. . . . and she did!" She dropped back again, and turning a little from him she hid her face in the crook of her arm. He saw her shoulders shake. "Oh, Marsha, please!" he begged frantically, voice roughened. Bob tells Marsha about the note, Monday.

Solicitor Reviews the Jim Green Rape Case

(Continued from page one) responsibility and of course, we will be satisfied no matter what he does—our only interest is to see that he has the true facts before him. He also said that he had been informed that several of those who wrote letters recommending commutation did so at the solicitation of the prisoner's attorney, at least some signing the letters he brought to them, without knowing any of the facts or anything about the parties, except as they were told to them by said attorney. When asked about the reputation

Barbecue Supper At College.
A barbecue supper was served on the campus of East Carolina Teachers College on Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock. The students of the summer school, members of the faculty and their families, and a few invited guests greatly enjoyed the occasion. Long tables were placed under the trees on the part of the campus nearest Eighth street. The plates, served cafeteria style, were loaded with barbecue, cold slaw, corn bread and pickles, with punch and cakes on the side. For those who could not eat the barbecue, platters of ham were convenient.

Barbecues have been features of the summer school for a number of years. This is the second one this summer, as one is given in honor of students attending each term of the summer school.

The long tables were set up early in the summer and have been used for various purposes. A bumper crop of watermelons was raised by the college this year. As the producers were the consumers, there was no trouble about a code or the disposition of the crop. Watermelon feasts have been held twice every week for the past month, in the late afternoons.

DILLINGER SAW 'MANHATTAN MELODRAMA' FEW MINUTES BEFORE SHOT BY OFFICERS

What did John Dillinger think about, as he sat in the Biograph Theatre in Chicago viewing "Manhattan Melodrama" only a few short minutes before he was shot down by officers' bullets? To have even the slightest idea as to what his thoughts might have been one will have to see the picture which is the feature attraction at the State Monday and Tuesday.

As a sort of prologue to the principal action, which is laid in 1934, the picture re-creates one of the most horrible disasters in the city's history—the fire and beaching of the excursion steamer General Slocum, a tragedy that cost more than 1,000 lives.

The story itself deals with the careers of two boys, Gable and Powell, reared in the closest friendship and reaching middle life to find

Sundown Stories

Big Eaters
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
"Cock-a-doodle-do," crowed the roosters, "this is a very nice place Top Notch, you've told the truth." Top Notch strutted around looking very important.

"You must make yourselves a home," he said.
Just then Christopher Columbus

Crow flew down, and a little later the bears, the ducks, and Rip, the dog, appeared. It seemed that Christopher had seen all the visitors on their way to Puddle Muddle and had flown around to find and tell the other Puddle Muddlers what was going on.

"Grunt, grunt, grunt, squeal, squeal," grunted and squealed the pigs, "we're very hungry."
"You'll never suffer from hunger in Puddle Muddle," crowed Top Notch grandly.

"We'll have to give them all plenty to eat," Top Notch whispered to Willy Nilly, and Willy Nilly brought forth all the food he could get in so short a time.

"Now don't put yourself out," said one fat pig. "We're perfectly willing to help ourselves."
That Willy Nilly thought, seemed to be quite true. For now the visitors were all over the place. The hens and roosters and chickens were scratching up the dirt in his garden and finding seeds. The pigs were everywhere, grunting and squealing and chewing at the same time.

The ducks had found some bags in Willy Nilly's closet, filled with grain. But Mr. and Mrs. Quack noticed this and objected.

"There's going to be trouble, there's going to be trouble," Wily Nilly thought.

Monday—"Plenty Of Trouble"

themselves on opposite sides of the law, Gable, as a big-shot gambler, powerful and dramatic figure of the city's night life, and Powell as the district attorney forced to prosecute him for murder. Between them, loved by both, is Myrna Loy.

Seeing Through My Windshield
(By ETHEL NICE, H. D. A.)

August Club Meetings.
Most of the Home Demonstration Clubs have social meetings each August. This year Stokes, Red Oak and Winterville will have a joint meeting at Riverside Park, below Washington, August 16. On Wednesday Simpson, Chicod and Red Banks clubs are planning to go to the same beach for a picnic supper and swim. Others are making plans—but we are not ready to announce the dates. These social meetings are usually well attended and very much enjoyed, coming as a relief from the heavy tobacco work.

Pressure Cooker Let.
One pressure cooker from the last order has not been placed. If you are interested in it see Mrs. Hugh Ragsdale at the Court House, as it has been left there.

Red Oak Club Meeting.
Thirty-one were present for the Red Oak Home Demonstration Club meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ed Dickerson. Five members arrived after three-thirty and as a consequence donated five spoons for the new cabinets. The dishes and silver are accumulating as each one comes late since the July meeting is "punished" in this way. "Training Children" was the subject used. Most members took part in the discussion.

Sauerkraut.
For making sauerkraut in the home, 4 or 6 gallon stone jars are considered the best containers unless large quantities are desired, in which kegs or bottles may be used.

Select only mature, sound heads of cabbage. After removing all decayed or dirty leaves, quarter the heads and slice off the core portion. For shredding, one of the hand-shredding machines which can be obtained on the market is much the best, although an ordinary slaw cutter or a large knife will do.

In making sauerkraut the fermentation is carried out in a brine made from the juice of the cabbage which is drawn out by the salt. One pound of salt for every 40 pounds of cabbage makes the proper strength of brine to produce the best results. The salt may be distributed as the cabbage is packed in the jar or it may be mixed with the shredded cabbage before being packed. The distribution of 2 ounces of salt with every 5 pounds of cabbage probably is the best way to get an even distribution.

Pack the cabbage firmly but not too tightly, in the jar or keg. When full, cover with a clean cloth and a board or plate. On the cover place a weight heavy enough to cause the brine to come up to the cover.

If the jar is kept at a temperature of about 86 degrees F., fermentation will start promptly. A scum forms on the surface of the brine. As this scum tends to destroy the acidity and may affect the cabbage, it should be skimmed off from time to time.

If kept at 86 degrees F., the fermentation should be completed in 10 days.

A well fermented sauerkraut should show a normal acidity of approximately plus 20, or a lactic acid percentage of 1.8.

After fermentation is completed, set the sauerkraut in a cool place. If the cabbage is fermented late in the fall, or if it can be stored in a very cool place, it may not be necessary to do more than keep the surface skimmed and protected from insects, etc., otherwise it will be necessary to resort to one of the following measures to prevent spoilage.

(1) Pour a layer of hot paraffin over the surface, or as much of it as is exposed around the cover. Properly applied to a clean surface this effectually seals the jar and protects the contents from contamination.

(2) After the fermentation is complete, pack the sauerkraut in glass jars, adding enough of the "kraut" brine, or a weak brine made by adding an ounce of salt to a quart of water, to completely fill the jars.

The second method is much to be preferred to the first. If it is heated before sealing in a water bath until the temperature of the center jar is about 160 degrees F., and then stored in a cool place, sauerkraut packed in this way will keep in good condition for a year or longer.

In the commercial canning of sauerkraut, where conditions and length of storage can not be controlled, heat must always be used.

New Books

By JOHN SELBY
For a good many the most satisfactory book of the week will be Alice Waugh's "The Balliols" in spite of the fact that the same thing has been done before by innumerable persons, among them John Galsworthy and Hucy Walpole.

Which is to say that Mr. Waugh has tried to show us England from 1805 or thereabouts to the present through the medium of a family. He begins when Edward Balliol decides to move out to Gelders Green, there to build himself a house that will suffice for the Balliols through the future. He moves for the reason that his wife, Jane, is too much interested in a man considerably younger than herself.

The House and a job for the young man care for that crisis. When the Balliols move, there are four children; shortly there are five. These are the mirrors in which Mr. Waugh catches up England and reflects it onto the mind of his reader. It is possible to tell the story of each child without too much overlapping, because their ages run that way.

And many readers will be delighted with both the method and the material. The supercilious may say Mr. Waugh is trespassing on the ground of his betters. It is, however, common ground and the manner of telling it is Waugh's own.

Tumbail Reviews
"The Woman W Ho Had Imagination" by H. E. Bates (Macmillan): A book of short pieces of the type usually known as "writers' stories"—although these are so intelligent that the phrase seems rather flattering for the authors!
"The King of the Archers," by Rene Bazin (Macmillan): A per-ordinarily well done novel about what happened in his not too satisfactory place.

"Broken Music," by Morna MacTaggart (Dutton): A gentle novel in which the motivating situation is an English-German marriage.

France Strengthens Navy To Match Italian Program

By M. K. WHITELEATHER
Paris.—(AP)—France is starting a ship-building program designed to put her in a strong bargaining position with Italy at the 1935 Naval Conference and to offset Germany's three "pocket battleships."

The "Strasbourg," a 26-500-ton man-of-war, a destroyer and two submarines soon will be laid down as a part of a co-ordinated re-armament program on land, in the air and on the sea.

In addition, the entire fleet is being scrubbed and polished. State navy yards are so over-loaded with this task and with constructing the "Dunkerque," the model for the "Strasbourg," that the new building plan has been allotted to private yards.

Third Dreadnaught Planned
The huge new capital ship will be constructed by the Penhoet Company at St. Nazaire, builders of the giant transatlantic liner "Normandie," not yet completed.

When the "Strasbourg" takes to the water in 1937, France will have two crack modern fighting ships of super-tonnage. Another of the same size probably will be asked for next year.

These new ships will bring French heavy craft up to the 175,000-ton limit for capital ships allotted by the Washington treaty of 1921 to France and Italy.

Neither of these countries signed the London treaty of 1930. But France, by scrapping the six capital ships, now in service, all of which have served their twenty legal years, could add four other men-of-war to her equipment (making a total of six) and still be within the Washington limit.

This is the club the French hold over Italian and German ambitions to build bigger and better navies. The French claim that they are in a position to match ship for ship if anyone wants to start a naval race.

Ready For Building Race
The new defense scheme calls for close co-operation between the air fleet and the navy. Fifteen "flying ships" are contemplated as the arm of the navy. They will be equipped to function in battle in close liaison with sea craft.

Furthermore, strategic coastal points are being equipped with subterranean oil tanks as reservoirs for the navy. These are to be kept filled in time of peace. The government hopes to get the oil from the French share in the Iraqi oil fields which are about to be opened.

French Naval Strength
The total strength of France's navy on January 1, 1934, including craft under construction, was 183 ships, totaling 659,004 tons, classified as follows:

- 10 capital ships, 212,000 tons.
- 1 airplane carrier, 22,100.
- 12 heavy cruisers, 124,400 tons.
- 17 light cruisers, 110,000 tons.

60 destroyers, 113,472 tons.
7 old submarines, 4,776 tons.
76 modern submarines, 71,756 tons.

CRITICISED OFFICERS RESIGN AND GET JOBS

Wilson, N. C., Aug. 11.—Wilson's police shake-up of last week is over. There will be no hearing or trial of the four accused officers, as was promised them if they wished it, and Friday the department accepted the resignation of three of the men, Carl Fulghum, Lloyd Lucas and John Pittman. Gregory intends of resign today. Fulghum has been made head jailer for the county and Lucas has obtained a position as detective on the Greenville police force. It is understood that the other two have also obtained employment.

Six tons of fish were seized from Bryan County, Texas, lakes this season and given to needy families.

In "Tiger Island" Gouverneur Morris does more than tell an absorbing story of adventure—he gives a dramatic and startling insight into human nature on the firing line of danger.

LOCALS AGAIN HAND LICKING TO AYDENITES

Greenville continued to push toward second place in the standing of clubs yesterday by again trouncing the league-leading Ayden club to the tune of 4 to 3 before a crowd that watched the last two innings in a drizzle.

It was the third time the locals have defeated Ayden in the last three trials, and the two clubs were to vie for honors of the fourth encounter this afternoon.

The losing of three straight games proved a serious matter for Ayden, perched insecurely at the top of standing of clubs, and Doc Smith seemed irritated at times that his standing of clubs, and Doc Smith seemed irritated at times that his huffies couldn't hammer the old apple about the lot at will as they have been doing the most of the season.

With Smith on the firing line for the locals yesterday, Ayden found his rather difficult when they were really needed, and not until the ninth frame did they actually threaten to overcome the definite lead piled up by the locals in early stages.

A double and single in the ninth sent Smith to the showers, and "Emergency" Reynolds may go to the mound to save the day for the locals. The visitors connected for one more hit after May accepted the pitching mission and sent a single runner home. With runners perched on second and third, May caused the next batter to ground out to second, and one of the most hair-raising encounters of the season was at an end.

The last two innings were played in a slight drizzle, but the large crowd on hand accepted the wetting contentedly and cheered lustily as the Ayden ninth inning rally failed to produce.

Byrd limited the local club to only six bingles, but these, combined with several free passes, were sufficient to put across enough runs to virtually put the game on ice.

Smith played an important part in the victory, hitting safely twice. The locals were credited with four bobbles against the visitors none.

Greenville went to Ayden this afternoon, and with May scheduled to go the route, it was expected the locals would ring up their fourth straight victory. A big crowd was expected to make the trip and help boost the boys to that coveted position at the top now held by Kingston, just a game and a half away.

The box-score follows:

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened easy, eight to fourteen points lower under liquidation and spot house selling on evidence that yesterday government relief purchase had been smaller than expected.

The selling became more active after the opening decline in the wheat market and some spot orders were uncovered on the break which carried prices of December off to 13.52, or 24 points below last night's close and 46 points below high of Thursday.

The market at the end of the first half hour was 23 to 24 points net lower.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Fresh buying of the on-ferrous metals gave the stock market a little firmer appearance today, but the rest of the list was all but neglected and unchanged. The closing tone was steady.

Transfers for the two-hour session were only about 300,000 shares. The market was confused by contrary signals provided by government bonds and commodities. The Federal issues declined rather sharply and the dollar weakened. These were accepted as inflation signals but commodities which should have gone up if the market generally had been gripped by inflation, expectation declined sharply. As a matter of fact, it appeared the inflation uestion had little to do with decline in bonds or the drop in commodities.

Grain and cotton reacted in profit-taking.

Week-end business news was mixed, reports from the steel trade mentioned a weakening in scrap prices and indications of some curtailment of ingot production next week. Retail trade reports were widely encouraging.

Insignificant amount of silver held in the treasury when the new silver purchase law was enacted. Its purpose was to point to the possible future course of the huge silver buying authority by that law.

Observers raised their eyebrows at three words in the announcement saying that for the present the more expansion of policies would be followed on silver buying that included the nation's billion of stocks.

New Orleans, Aug. 11.—(AP)—The city registration office was closed promptly noon today on the deadline of registration for the Sept. 11 congressional primary without national guards who have been in charge of the office for 13 days showing any signs of withdrawing.

The usual 11th hour rush marked the last morning for the office to remain open but there was no disorder.

Wilkesboro, N. C., Aug. 11.—(AP)—The prosecution in the case of five mountaineers charged with the murder of 18-year-old Leota Childress today was overruled in an attempt to prove that Luther Tilley, one of the defendants, had tried to destroy specimens of the girl's handwriting.

The evidence was contained in testimony of Mrs. Hill Cox, sister of the slain girl, which was heard in the jury's absence, and then ruled out by Judge John Oglesby as irrelevant.

The witness said the letters from her sister were destroyed when fire burned her home twenty miles from the Tilley home three days after the slaying.

NEW BERN WINS, 4-3

New Bern, N. C., Aug. 11.—Swamp Norwood's single in the tenth sent Biddle home with the winning run as New Bern defeated Tarboro, 5 to 4 yesterday in a burlesque of bobbles.

New Bern had rallied in the ninth for a singleton to tie the score and bring on overtime play. Tarboro counted once in the ninth, but New Bern had what it took to win in the extra inning. Norwood's hit came off Manager Perrett, who had taken over the hurling assignment after Jack Jenkins had weakened in the tenth.

An even dozen errors marked the game. New Bern led with seven. Billy Ferebee, New Bern star and the league's "perfect fielder," bobbled three times to equal his total for previous play this season.

Smoky Ferebee made a pair of hits to lead New Bern. Loughn hit twice for Tarboro. The visitors outhit New Bern, 8 to 7.

Batteries: Tarboro—Jenkins, Perrett, and Richardson; New Bern—Wheaton and H. Ferebee.
